TRIBUTE TO ONE BELOVED

Earnest Eulogy on the Late Jno
McCrae, who Passed Away in Windsor.

Impressive Funeral Services Where Many Paid a Last Tribute of Esteem.

Windsor Record.

"Mr. John McCrae is dead!" Such was the melancholy message that passed from mouth to mouth in the city last evening. With the death of Mr. McCrae a kindly and uplifting presence has passed out of the social and religious life of Windsor, and many outside of the family will mourn the loss of the friendly greeting of the venerable man whose nature was imbued with an unquenchable and uniform kindness.

The end was not unexpected. Nearly a year ago he disappeared from the street and the scene of his daily labors stricken with paralysis, and his extreme old age, as well as the serious nature of his attack, forbade hope of ultimate recovery. On Monday his illness assumed a more critical phase and he sank into insensibility. Last evening, a few minutes after eight, he passed to his reward, never recovering consciousness. All the members of the family were present with the exception of Allan, now in Chicago.

The late John McCrae was born on the McCrae homestead, about four miles below Chatham. He was in his eighty-second year, and resided over half a century in this city. He was the youngest member of the family of Wm. McCrae, who sat in the Upper Canada legislature in 1835. One brother, Thos. McCrae, deceased, was police magistrate of Chatham for many years. The other brother, William, also deceased, was collector of customs at Dunnville. There were four sisters, all deceased.

It was about 1842 when the deceased came to Windsor. He found the present city of 15,000 inhabitants a partial wilderness. He established with his brother a commission store on Sandwich street, and afterwards pursued a profitable insurance business.

Recognizing his claims upon his party, the Ontario Government appointed John McCrae in 1873 to the office of clerk of the Division Court.
He also was official assignee up to the time this office was abolished. As Division Court clerk for over 25 years Mr. McCrae won the esteem of his fellow-citizens, and was ever regarded as a faithful servant of the people. He labored diligently at his office until last October, when he had an operation performed for his eyesight. The operation was entirely successful, and Mr. McCrae rejoiced in regaining the use of his eyes. He suffered the first stroke of paralysis on Dec. 2 last and was confined to his home, 151 Bruce Ave., up to the time of his death. He suffered a second stroke last Monday, after which no hope was entertained for his recovery.

The deceased is survived by his widow and six children, Allan Lath-McCrae, Chicago; Walter Ogilvie Mc-Crae, Detroit; Miss Edith A. McCrae, Miss Frances Eva McCrae, of this city; Mrs. L. E. Tate, St. Thomas, and Mrs. H. L. Miller, of Chicago.

Laid at Rest.

A large number of Windsor's oldest citizens turned out Sunday afternoon to pay their last respects to the memory of John McCrae.
The McCrae homestead on Bruce avenue was thronged with a steady stream of friends of the deceased, who called to take a last look upon the kindly features of the highly esteemed old gentleman. The many beautiful floral offerings that surrounded the casket showed the great respect in which the deceased had been held.

At 2.30 o'clock short services were held at the house of Canon Hincks, of All Saints' Church, after which the remains were removed to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, of which the deceased had been a member. At St. Andrew's Church Rev. J.
S. Henderson, in the absence of Rev.
J. C. Todrie, conducted the services. After the sermon, the Rev. Mr.
Henderson paid a very high tribute to the memory of the deceased. The church quartette led in the singing of two favorite hymns of deceased—
"Nearer My God to Thee" and "Abide With Me," after which the remains were taken to St. John's Cemetery, Sandwich. The services at the grave were conducted by Canon Hincks.

The following old friends of the deceased acted as honorary pallbearers:—Senator Casgrain, Judge Mc-Hugh, Sheriff Her, Judge Horne, Alexander Bartlett, Wm. McGregor, J.
Watson and H. C. Cousins. The active pallbearers were Wm. Millard, Miles Cowan, J. Duck and C. J. Seagel.

WILL ROSEBERY BE LEADER?

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's Recent Speech and Speculation as to its Drift.

Forthcoming Political Address by Lord Rosebery Foreshadowed by Politicians.

London, Tuesday, Nov. 12.—There is soon speculation as to the interpretation of an oracular utterance by Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the present Liberal leader, at a private luncheon to the leading Aberdeen Liberals given by the Earl of Aberdeen at the Haddo House, where Sir Henry is a guest. No reporters were present, and various versions of Sir Henry's speech are afloat, but it is generally conceded that he referred to a forthcoming political speech by Lord Rosebery in a manner possibly intended to hint at the latter's reappearance in the political arena in response to an invitation by the Derbyshire Liberals, which is likely to lead to his resumption of the leadership of the Liberal party.

Several papers report Sir Henry as saying after a reference to Lord Rosebery's furrow, that they would all welcome the longly plowman, provided what he was prepared to do was acceptable to the Liberal party, and in the interests of the country, and that his wishes and actions were consistent with the opinions expressed by the party and the hopes they are cherishing. This may obviously have been the merest platitude, but it has created considerable curiosity in some quarters.

A leading member of the Liberal Imperial League says that Lord Rosebery's reappearance in politics was instigated by King Edward, who thinks the Cabinet needs strong opposition as a stimulus.

FAMILY AFFAIR

Husband and Wife Engaged in Fancy
Duel Before Judge Houston
This Morning.

A young and comely colored woman, who acknowledged 23 years, appeared before Judge Houston this morning on the charge of not being a fit person to have the custody of her child. The charge was laid by the husband of the woman, Henry Horton, who claimed that his wife was characterized by lax morals.

Sarah Howell, grandmother of the defendant, told the Court that Mrs.
Horton had come home twice the worse of liquor and had domiciled with a man named Bradley for two months. The mother offered to give her six-year-old son up to the father yesterday before the case came into Court but the father desired to prove his wife's faithlessness in Court. The Judge held that the mother was not a fit person to have the custody of the child and the boy was handed over to his paternal parent by consent.

Mr. Horton then attempted to explain things to the Judge. He was assisted by Mrs. Horton.

"I had a house fixed up as fine as any colored gentleman's residence," said the husband.

"Yes, how did you have it fixed up?"
was the scornful interpolation of the wife.

"My family," began the husband.

"I want separation," interrupted the wife.

"You pay for it and I will sign the papers," was the gallant response of the husband.

"I can pay for them," confidently retorted the wife. "He can't live with us," she added.

"This puts me down on women," said the husband with an affected touch of sadness. "I gave her money all summer. I came down from Windsor and she stayed at the Walker House. I paid her board. I gave her all the money I had but 20 cents."

At this juncture Judge Houston explained that the case had been tried and disposed of and it wasn't necessary to say anything more. The husband and wife left the court room, but not together.

Harvester Legg Tells of the Fatigue he Endured in the North West.

W. E. Legg, of Brownville, formerly a student of the Canada Business College, was in the city yesterday en route to Walkerville, where he has secured a position with Hiram Walker & Sons.

Mr. Legg has just returned from the Northwest, where he worked during the harvest.

"Moose Jaw," said he to The Planet,
"is one of the liveliest little places I have ever seen, and I would like very much to live there. I have no desire to go back for the harvest though, especially in the Territory. Where I was working our nearest neighbors were so far away that you could just see their houses on the other side. When you are through with your day's work you have to start out and look for a bed and you eventually end up under a straw stack. I stayed there until the snow came, and people were driving around in sleighs, when I came to the conclusion it was too cold to sleep out doors.
"Are the farmers out there making any money?"

"Well, I don't know much about the Manitoba farmers, but those in the territories are not making more than a living. When a man goes there to work, the farmer always tries to let him go before his time is out, so that he can beat him out of his wages. I had a lot of trouble in getting mine, and I know other men who didn't get a cent."

"Did you have any trouble getting work?"
"No, but a lot of them did. When the rush came out there the most of them stayed right in town, expecting some farmer to come along and hire them. Those who got out and hustled generally got work. When I came away farmers were looking for men, and could not get them. The most of the men, having served their time, were anxious to get home. When I was walking down the street on my way to the station, no less than six farmers stopped me and tried to engage me, but I had had enough and no amount of money could induce me to stay there any longer."

LOOK LIKE CHAMPIONS

Chatham Football Club Defeated Detroit on Saturday.

Splendid Struggle was won by Three Goals to Nil—Laurie's Fine Game.

One of the fastest and most interesting games of football that have been witnessed in Chatham this season was played on Tecumseh Park last Saturday afternoon with Detroit and Chatham the opposing teams. This game has been looked forward to by every football enthusiast in Chatham as one that would practically decide the Walker cup contest this season. The Detroit team, which was a very strong one, was composed of an aggregation of players from Detroit, Windsor and Walkerville. They were short one man when they arrived in Chatham, and Jinks, of the Darrell team, played for them. Their strength therefore was practically the same as the Windsor team will be this year and the Chatham boys feel that with such an easy victory as they had on Saturday they will have no trouble in winning the Walker cup. At all events they intend to do all in their power to secure it. Captain Mowbray and Max Fraser have both written to a number of the Windsor players with a view to arranging for games, but have as yet received no reply.

Captain Stricker, of the Windsor team, played with Detroit on Saturday and he expressed his willingness to arrange a couple of games. If Windsor does not play the cup will go to Chatham by default.

There is no reason this year why Chatham cannot win the cup. Their team is as strong, if not stronger, than it has ever been and in addition to this enthusiasm runs high.

The game Saturday was a fair sample of the possibilities of the Chatham team. There is no chance for denying the fact that the Detroit team was an exceedingly strong one. Their players were all men who professed to play ball and they did remarkably well, individually. They, however, lacked easily in combination work and thus it was where the Chatham players excelled. Those who did the most of the work for the Detroit team were Jinks, of Darrell, at half back and Kidd at full back. If it had not been for the excellent playing of these two men the score would undoubtedly have been far larger in Chatham's favor. The headwork and fancy playing of the Detroit team was good but it was the steady and telling plays of the Chathamites which won the game. The work of Allan at half back is worthy of special mention.

Among the Chatham players F. D. Laurie, formerly captain of the team, was seen at his old position at centre half-back. He stood out, conspicuously noticeable on account of his timely and effective plays. Several times he was seen behind the fullbacks stopping some swift shots, and in many cases he saved goals for Chatham. Laurie, by the way, is known as the best halfback in Ontario, one of Chatham's best players, and the local rooters were pleased to see him back in his old position. He is noted for his long throws and he made some very telling ones on Saturday. He also has the faculty of being in the right place at the right time, which is a very valuable feature in a halfback. Captain Mowbray led the forward attack and Sheldon and Houston on the left wing, cannot be beaten. Their work was splendid and they made some neat rushes on the Detroit goal which were loudly applauded by the onlookers. Bowers, a former member of the team, was seen on the inside right. He played faultlessly. Boulton, halfback, made his debut on the Chatham team and did well. McNaughton also played brilliantly. It is needless to mention the backs, who always play in good form, and Smith, in goal, as will be seen by the score, 3-0, stopped every one that came his way. Chatham's goals were scored by Houston, Mowbray and Sheldon.

On the whole it was a good game. The Detroit boys worked hard, but they were over matched. A number of the Darrell boys who witnessed the game are anxious to secure a game with them, and they feel confident of success. They should be given a chance. Acting Captain Courtney was to have taken the team to Darrell yesterday, but, owing to the inclement weather the trip was postponed.

The following was the line-up on Saturday:

DETROIT.
Goal—Rockford.
Backs—Kidd and Stricker.
Half backs—Jinks, Dolman and Allan.
Forwards—Nickerson, Kelley, Belson, Galt, Carmichael.
CHATHAM.
Goal—Smith.
Backs—Wilson and Courtney.
Half backs—McNaughton, Laurie and Boulton.
Forwards—Anderson, Bowers, Mowbray, Sheldon and Houston.
Score—3-0.
Referee—Brady.
Time—1 hour 15 minutes.

Baby's Birth.

How many a woman dates a life of chronic invalidism from baby's birth. She tries "different doctors and different medicines" with little benefit. Then, fortunately her attention is called to the remarkable cures resulting from the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Her experience is that of ninety-eight women out of every hundred, who use "Favorite Prescription" for womanly ills—she is cured. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is peculiarly a mother's medicine. Its use before maternity makes the baby's advent practically painless. It gives the mother strength to nurse her child. It cures diseases peculiar to women and cures them permanently.

There is no alcohol, opium, cocaine or any other narcotic in "Favorite Prescription." It is purely a vegetable preparation and cannot disagree with the weakest constitution.

Mrs. Emerson Allen, of Dorset, Ontario Co., Ont., writes: "I can truly say that I think Dr. Pierce's medicines the best I have ever used. I was in very poor health for a long time, dating from the birth of my little girl. I tried different doctors and different medicines. I derived very much more benefit from your medicine than from any other I have ever used. I took four bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and I always keep the 'Pill' in the house."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Advice, paper bound, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

from Essex, Kent and Wayne Counties.

Darrell and Detroit would furnish a splendid struggle with odds on Darrell.

The Detroit contingent of spectators were gaily bedecked in their club colors.

It was the bumper attendance of the season and encouraged the players to do their best.

Capt. Mowbray telegraphed President Macdonald "Your team won." Mac celebrated the fact in Toronto.

Captain Mowbray modestly spent Sunday and Monday out of the city to escape the congratulations of his friends over the victory.

THE LYCEUM COURSE.

The second number of this popular course will be furnished at the Grand to-morrow evening by The Fadedettes Ladies' Orchestra, of Boston.

The House that Jack Built, at the Grand on Saturday evening, Nov. 10th. The Toronto Saturday Night in last week's issue, comments as follows on "The House that Jack Built":—"When an attraction is billed as a musical comedy or farce, it is the usual rule that the 'musical' takes the place of the plot. 'The House that Jack Built' proved to be the exception, and though billed as a musical farce, the word 'musical' was evidently used as an adjective, and not a noun. The piece is uproariously funny, and though based on the old foundation of mistaken identity, the structure is rather unique, and one forgives the little that is old, for much that is new. The author, Mr. Broadhurst, has written many good pieces, and in this his latest effort has given great scope for a good low comedian, and Mr. George Sumner and Willie Slat, certainly fill the bill. Mr. Sumner is an old Toronto boy, who since joining the 'profess', has developed into a first-rate comedian. His work in this new piece is capital, and as Willie Slat, the hanger-on, who will certainly 'stick' in the memory of those who saw him in Toronto. Miss St. George Hussey as Mrs. Dooley did some of the best acting that I have seen, and her tragedy is just about the right thickness. The rest of the cast was excellent, and 'The House that Jack Built', though perhaps not so large, should pretty nearly fill the Grand for the week.

FROM SCOTLAND YARD.

Booked for the Grand on Monday evening, November 18th. There is no doubting that the real pleasure that is to follow the announcement of the coming of From Scotland Yard. This is the new detective drama written around the prominent facts in the history of England's greatest crime detecting agency, Scotland Yard. The authors have created a composite character, who takes part in all the big operations, as the robbery of the bullion car, the murder of Herbert Hason, the fight on the roof tops, etc. As a matter of fact, these incidents all happened, though different members of the Scotland Yard staff were the heroes of them.

The play is produced with a wealth of scenic effect, and with a cast for which only praise criticism can be meted out. There are some 14 scenes in the play and these depict lowly and high life in London, and the charming domesticity of the English provinces.

No one regretted the disappointment more than the local management, and they are losers, as heavy expense was entailed in advertising the production.

JOY CLUB

Within Its Territory Col. Samuel Holmes Entertained Friends Yesterday.

The Joy Club—that exclusive and splendid shooting lodge of Col. Sam Holmes, situated on Leguille Bay, and shut off from the world and the uninhabited by several hundred acres of excellent shooting preserve—afforded shelter to a select party of duck hunters yesterday. Col. Sam Holmes was there himself to extend the hospitality of the club and to assist in giving his guests a good day's shooting. The Colonel had gone down to his retreat prepared for a week's hunting. He was accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Chas. Hicklin. They drove down in a democrat wagon which was taxed to its utmost capacity with the bountiful supply of provisions necessary to satisfy hungry duck hunters with appetites whetted by the bracing air of Leguille Bay. Rob. Rankin, of Dover, was a visitor; he drove down. The innocent was the fourth member of the party. He wheeled. He had the misfortune to have a puncture when four miles from the city, and with the usual intelligence of innocence, found on investigation that he had a repair kit but no air pump. A kind-hearted farmer in the person of John Urquhart took pity on the thoughtless youth and furnished a bicycle pump.

Thus were the difficulties of a great accident overcome, and the innocent reached the Joy club about two o'clock, hungry and ready to eat. The club house was locked and the residents out on the bay. The innocent's hunger was satisfied in so far as looking through the window at eatables on the table would satisfy it. Late in the afternoon the Joy clubites returned from the bay and blissful in the innateness of the Joy club, Monday broke with rain and the downpour kept the eager and impatient hunters within doors. However, about nine o'clock, decoys were set, and the elusive duck allured to certain destruction—at least almost certain.

In marksmanship Col. Sam Holmes, as usual, and as became an army veteran, had the honors of the day. He got seven of the eleven ducks secured by the party, but with the consent of the Maple City military man, all agreed to say that "We got eleven, or our party got eleven ducks." Natural modesty and a desire not to let us individually telling what we had done. Some of the party returned this morning. Owing to the nature of the roads the returned ones are not presentable as yet, but to ease the strain on the minds of those interested in their wills, and thus concerned about their safety, it may be said that there will be no funeral.

Dear Sirs—I was for seven years a sufferer from Bronchial trouble, and would be so hoarse at times that I could scarcely speak above a whisper. I got no relief from anything till I tried your MINARD'S HONEY BAL-SAM. Two bottles gave relief and six bottles made a complete cure. I would heartily recommend it to any one suffering from throat or lung trouble.

AT THE EAU

Local Duck Shooters are Always Careful in Observing Sunday.

Chief Young and T. J. Rutley went down to Erieau on the Shenango special on the Lake Erie. The bar was quite lively with duck hunters. Speaking of the trip, Chief Young said, "One thing I liked was that all the hunters at Erieau were observing Sunday. You could see the boats with decoys in them drawn up all along the bar. Down towards the foot of the Eau occasional shots were fired. We couldn't hear the reports but we could see the smoke. There never was such good hunting at the Eau in many a long day and the ducks are quite plentiful."

"The Blenheimites are telling a good joke on a Chatham man who went a-hunting to the Eau. He was not successful, however, and hearing that silver bullets were sure to kill, he decided to get some game that way, and so set out. He met some boys. They offered him some butter-balls and teal at a fair price, but he declined at the price for the size. The boys said if it was size for little money he wanted why they had some large ducks which he could have cheap. They exhibited seven shell drakes, more familiarly known as 'saw bills.' Well, the Maple City man purchased and brought them home. The Blenheim crowd are wondering what the man did with his 'saw bills.' You know did this species of duck is good for most anything except to eat. I believe their feathers are useful."

Paine's Celery Compound DOES WONDERFUL WORK

It Saved Mr. Arthur's Life After The Failure of Doctors and Their Medicines.

The Only Remedy that can Cure Serious Blood Trouble, Scrofula, Salt Rheum and Eczema.

The blood plays an important part in our physical economy. In twenty-seven heart-beats all the blood in the system has been pumped once through the heart and starts again on its round, bearing nourishment and life to all parts of the body. If our blood be impure, disease instead of true life creeps to all parts, leaving the excretory organs so weak, that they cannot remove the waste matters and noxious particles in the system, that are such fruitful sources of disease.

Paine's Celery Compound is the only reliable and safe medicine for the curing of the most virulent blood disease, as it is the only purifier of the vital life stream. It saved Mr. Arthur, of Chelmsford, Ont., when his life was in peril. He writes as follows:

"With great pleasure I write about your wonderful medicine, Paine's Celery Compound. I was laid up with years all over my face and neck, the result of blood poisoning. While in that condition I could not sleep at night, had no appetite, and could not attend to my work. The doctors in my district and their medicines did not benefit me. My aunt advised me to use Paine's Celery Compound. In 2 weeks I was as much better that I could go out, and in three weeks, I was able to work again. I bless the day I commenced the Paine's Celery Compound."

Miss Ethel Morton Phillips, daughter of the late Captain Phillips, who went out to Sikka last June to visit her sister, Mrs. Richard M. Sturdevant, wife of one of the lieutenants of the U. S. Steamer Rush, is to be married next month to Arthur Glenning Shoup, son of James M. Shoup, U. S. marshal of the district of Alaska. Mr. Shoup is a nephew of Senator Shoup, of Indiana.

A very pretty and happy event took place last Wednesday at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. P. Trotter, Muskogee, Mich., when Miss Daisy Rosenberg was united in marriage to Ben. C. Burgess, of Battle Creek. The bride was assisted by Miss Margaret Burgess, her sister, and the groom by his brother, Royal Burgess, of Petrolia. Little Miss Vera Rosenberg, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl. Rev. Mr. Dye, of the Baptist church, officiated. After the ceremony the happy couple left for their home in Battle Creek.

The presents were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held.

SUMMONED

Death Carries off one of the Maple City's Brightest Model School Students.

The sad and untimely death occurred Saturday night at 11 o'clock at the residence of his parents, Merlin, of Paul Guttridge, aged 18 years. Paul was well known in Chatham, having attended the C. C. I. for several years and was up to three weeks ago attending the local Model school.

He had been suffering for some time and for several days before his death symptoms of brain fever had been threatening, coupled with a steady failure of the heart's action, which took an alarming increase Saturday afternoon, terminating in his sad death by night.

The deceased was a genuine Christian lad and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Guttridge, of Merlin, and nephew of Thos. and Jos. Guttridge, of this city. The Model school, in esteem for him, was closed this afternoon and a delegation from the school went to the funeral this afternoon.

FIERCE FRACAS

It Occurred in the Brooklyn Precincts of This Metropolis and Court Case Will Result.

That distinguished section of Chatham, known as Brooklyn West, which adds so much to the central region of the Maple City, was in a blaze of excitement, late Saturday afternoon. Hilarious sounds of conversation arose, likewise the strenuous shrieks of male combatants, one a depizan of the city, and the other a stranger within the gates, hailing from Chatham township.

A philosopher who attended the function declared that it indicated merely the prevailing fancy of the public for light entertainment.

Chief Young was sitting in his office Saturday afternoon, when he was hastily summoned to the vicinity of the Aberdeen Hotel, where he was told that Pete Browning was being murdered by Alf. Simmons. When the chief arrived on the scene, the principal actor had disappeared, but the officer learned from the spectators and from Pete Browning, the story of the fracas.

Alfred Simmons came in from Chatham township Saturday, and he was Pete Browning alleged, suffering from too long a gaze in the bowl from which flows cheerfulness and headaches. About this time Simmons met Pete. Armed with a rack stake, the man from Chatham township landed on Browning's skull, striking from the rear. The blow brought Browning to the ground and details were being filled in when spectators interfered. Browning said that he didn't see his assailant coming, or he would have been out of the way. The only reason he could give for the attack was that Simmons had had it in

IONE:

A BROKEN LOVE DREAM

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

Author of "A Broken Betrothal," "Parted by Fate," "Parted at the Altar," "Heiress of Cameron Hall," "Miss Middleton's Lover," Etc., Etc.

CHAPTER III.

"Who are you?" demanded the heiress, watching the lovely young face keenly.

"I am Ione Lawrence," answered the girl, her lips trembling.

"You cannot see him to-night, that's certain," said Miss Elaine Granger, idly. "You should remember a gentleman's residence is not the place to call on business matters—that is, if it is a business matter you wish to consult him about. He has an office for that purpose, where you can find him usually during the day."

The heiress turned haughtily away, and Ione found the door closed summarily in her face.

There had been an amazed listener to this dialogue, no less a personage than Arthur Rochester himself. He was coming down the broad stairway, his footfalls making no sound on the thick velvet carpet.

Peters fell back in dismay when he saw his young master.

"You were to take your orders from me when visitors called for me as to whether you were to admit them or send them away!" he said, sternly. "Open that door."

"Do you wish me to recall the person, sir?" asked Peters, abashed.

"I will do so myself," said Arthur.

"You forget, Arthur, that you are needed here to help receive our guests," cried the heiress, angrily. "What is this girl to you that you should follow her out in the storm? Is she some presumptuous flame?" she added, with a keen touch of spitefulness.

The blood receded from Arthur's fine aristocratic face.

"Elaine—Miss Granger," he cried, "you forget yourself."

"It is you who forget yourself," she retorted with blazing eyes, "encouraging such creatures as that to come here to call for you, and disgrace the house."

Arthur Rochester gazed at the indignant, wrathful beauty in grievous amazement, and for a moment, and in that one moment all the brotherly liking he had for Elaine Granger died out of his heart.

"Stop," he said, with stern reproach in his voice. "That young girl, although she works for a livelihood, is as noble a young girl as ever lived. God forbid that any one should deem it a disgrace that she should enter this house."

"That's right," sneered the beauty, champion the cause of the working-girls.

"I will, just as long as I live," replied Arthur. "My respect for those honorable young ladies who earn their bread by their work is profound; it is a proof, to every sensible man, that they are pure and true."

Like a flash he was gone, leaving the heiress fairly quivering with rage and terrible jealousy.

He quickly overtook the slim figure, and soon learned the cause of Ione's woe.

"You shall return to the mill to-morrow," he said. "I will be there in the morning myself. I will soon settle the matter. I missed you during your absence. I thought you had left the mill on your own account, Miss Lawrence."

He did not add how greatly he had missed her—that night and day he had been haunted by her sweet, pure face—and that he had found himself continually wondering if they should ever meet again.

No one can picture, indeed, how great was poor Ione's joy at the prospect of being reinstated in the mill. She thanked him in a voice choked with tears.

"It is not a reasonable hour for a young lady to be out alone, unattended," he said. "You will permit me to place you in a coupe, and send you safe home."

Ione demurred, but firmly and gently he overruled her objection. He was too truly a gentleman of honor to take advantage of the situation and ride home with her.

He raised his hat with a grave, courteous bow as the couple rolled away, and turned his face homeward. The heart in his bosom was beating strangely, and there was a tender light in his bonny blue eyes.

That evening he moved about among the guests with happy smiles on his lips. Pretty girls watched him with yearning eyes; coquettish belles did their best to flirt with the handsome young heir; but even while he talked with them he was thinking of

PHYSICAL EXHAUSTION.

Brought This Woman Near to Death's Door—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Made her Feel Healthy and Young Again.

There is cause for rejoicing among women on account of the marvellous assistance given to them at the trying times of life by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. By instilling into the blood that vital principle which goes to create nerve force, this celebrated food cures gives energy and vitality to every organ of the body, and ensures strength and regularity to the peculiarly feminine organism.

This portion of the anatomy is a mass of nerves, and health and regularity depend almost entirely on the condition of the nerves. For this reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proves of incalculable value to women from maidenhood to that time of life when changes come to the female functions.

Mrs. Charles Keeling, Sen., Owen Sound, Ont., writes:—"It is a pleasure to tell what benefit I have derived from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I am 55 years of age, and for about five years my life was one of great suffering from nervousness, weakness, and extreme physical exhaustion. I could not sleep, and hot flushes would pass through my body from feet to head. I consulted many family physicians and two other doctors, but they told me that about my time of life I was likely to be troubled that way. I continually grew worse, and despaired of ever being cured. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food came to my notice, and as we have Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have confidence in the doctor. I was so surprised at the help I received from the first box that I bought three more. They built me right up and made me feel healthy and young again. They have proved a great blessing to me, and I hope this testimonial will be of help to some weak, nervous woman suffering as I did."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, by Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Even the spiral stairway—the only means of reaching the poor girl—swayed to and fro on its fastenings, awaiting but another avalanche of stones to send it whirling down with the rest of the wreck. No man dared trust his weight upon it; and then the wheel—to be in its path one moment more would mean certain death.

The crowd below saw this, and realized it. Strong men turned away with hoarse, shuddering cries. Women faintly outright, their bitter cries mingling with the hoarse rumble that shook again through the doomed wall.

Looking down at the surging mass of horrified faces, Ione saw but one—the face of Frank Lyons, her lover—and to him, in that vital moment of life or death, she looked for help. He shrank back.

"No! no!" he panted hoarsely to himself. "I could never risk my life to save hers. It is not to be thought of."

"Back! Give me room!" cried a clarion voice in the crowd.

A young man who had just appeared on the scene took in the situation at a glance.

"Back!" he commanded, in a voice like a bugle blast; and the crowd parted.

In a flash he had sprung up the swaying spiral stairway to the girl's rescue.

"Oh, God!" was the cry of a hundred voices in the crowd. "It is Mr. Arthur Rochester!"

"Come back! come back!" they cried in terror. "It means death! Better one should die than two!"

But he heeded them not. Up, up the swaying stairs he sprang, his face blanched when he saw the horrible wheel; but he pushed onward.

"Ione!" he called. "My poor girl, can you hear me and understand? I have come to save you, or die with you!"

Superstition Among Thieves.

The thief born and bred in the slums is always superstitious and cowardly. He believes in the power of witches, omens and the protecting properties of amulets, talismans and charms, and when searched at the police office there are usually found in his pocket or concealed about his person bits of coal, rusty horseshoe nails, lucky stones and rings.

He parts with these articles, on which he relies for safety in the hour of peril, with the greatest reluctance and stipulates with the turnkey to have them returned either to himself or friends.

A Long Felt Want.

An American once went to Windsor castle and insisted upon seeing Queen Victoria. He was told that it was quite impossible, as an audience with the queen could be had only by appointment. Still he persisted, and then they told him that before seeing the queen he must state the object of his visit. He said he wanted to show her a new piece of furniture, a throne bed—a perfect throne by day and a perfect bed by night.

Fatal Prosperity.

A street peddler who sells shoe lacings on a Washington street corner had his string of laces wound around his neck like a scarf.

One night recently business was good, and he sold as many as four pairs of laces. The change was too rapid, and the peddler caught cold in his neck and died of pneumonia.

CHAPTER IV.

It was a moment of thrilling intensity to the breathless throng that watched below. They had heard Arthur Rochester's voice crying out over the hoarse rumbling of the falling stones: "Courage, Ione! I will save you, or perish with you! Hold on a little longer!"

Ione heard, and realized that help was at hand. She stretched out her arms to him with a piteous sob, falling in a deep swoon at his feet. In an instant her heroic rescuer had raised her, and faced about; but the vast throng below dared not cheer, or scarcely breathe, for the perilous descent was a thousand times more dangerous with his burden than the ascent had been.

Would the swaying spiral stairway bear them, or would it break, casting them down headlong into the yawning depths that seemed eager to engulf them?

There was a terrible hush—an agonized straining of upturned eyes. Those who witnessed that scene never forgot it in its horrible intensity.

Step by step Arthur Rochester made his way down the swaying stairs with his lovely burden. The slight fastening which held him was strained to its utmost tension, and when the noble rescuer had reached within twenty feet of the ground, it snapped asunder with a crash.

A cry of horror rose from every throat; but in that instant, quick as a flash, Arthur had made a terrible leap, by a single hair's breadth escaping the crumbling edge of the pit—for it was little less than that now—and had staggered forward, laying Ione down, amidst mighty cheers, in her companion's arms. And at that moment the great wheel fell, but the noble rescuer, and the lovely girl he had periled his life for, were safe.

There was one who stood by, watching the thrilling scene with lowering brow.

"Rochester is to the fore again," he muttered through his clenched teeth; and although he was heartily thankful that beautiful Ione's life had been saved, he turned away, bitterly chagrined to know that Arthur Rochester had made himself the hero of the tragic affair.

When Ione opened her eyes, she found herself in her own apartment, at Mrs. Gregory's, where she had been conveyed.

"Is it a dream?" she cried, raising her dark, curly head from the pillow, and gazing in terror about her.

"It was real enough, poor child," replied Mrs. Gregory, adding: "You must not talk. You are still trembling with nervousness."

"But who saved me?" persisted Ione. "Was it Mr.—Mr. Lyons?"

"No, indeed," replied Mrs. Gregory. "It was Mr. Rochester. He blessed his dear heart. He periled his life to rescue you."

Ione turned away, uttering no word, though deep in her heart she felt, sadly disappointed to think it was not Frank Lyons who had saved her.

"He sent you a bouquet, however," continued Mrs. Gregory, placing in her hands the flowers Frank Lyons had left at the door an hour before.

Ione took the roses eagerly, and, as she buried her face among them, she found among their fragrant depths a note which read as follows: "It was Mr. Rochester who saved you. I shall count the hours until I see you. Do not refuse me, I pray you. I have so much to say to you."

Could she refuse him when her young heart yearned for him? Ah, no! And much to Mrs. Gregory's annoyance, the afternoon brought him.

The thrilling scene which she had gone through flashed upon her nerves, leaving her pale and weak, but she was by no means ill.

Frank Lyons found her seated at the window, with the bouquet he had sent, close beside her.

He came forward eagerly, clasping warmly both the girl's fluttering white hands.

The rose-flush deepened on her face. He could not help but note how her eyes brightened when he spoke.

"You do not know how jealous I am of the man who rescued you, Ione," he said, in an agitated voice. "The moment I saw your peril I darted across the way to secure a rope and a ladder to make the descent sure. Then I saw, when I returned a moment later, that Rochester had headed me off; but the fellow was mad to risk bringing you down those steps instead of waiting for the ladder to be put up."

POSTMAN AND CHINAMAN.

New Carrier Worried When John Signed His Name.

A comedy of errors over a special delivery letter occurred in Chinatown the other morning all because the carrier of the letter was not familiar with the ways of the Chinese and the Chinaman to whom the letter was addressed had never received such a message before.

The carrier was a new man at the business. After he had delivered a number of the special delivery letters and taken his receipts for them he went to the Chinaman's place of business, which was a laundry.

The carrier found the place locked, but he pounded away on the front door, and finally a sleepy looking Chinaman answered him. After slipping down several bars and opening half a dozen locks the Chinaman opened the door.

The unsophisticated carrier handed him the letter and then let loose a terrific yell. The letter carrier's hair stood on end as nine Chinamen in various stages of undress came tumbling into the room. They chattered away excitedly as they passed the letter about and carefully examined it.

Finally the bewildered carrier said to the Chinaman to whom the letter had been addressed:

"Sign this book and hurry up."

More chattering followed, and finally the owner of the letter comprehended what was wanted of him. He seized one of the brushes he used in making up his laundry accounts and, dipping it into a pot of ink, proceeded to make hieroglyphics all over the page of the special delivery receipt book.

"Here, stop that! That book's no laundry check!" cried the now wildly excited letter carrier as he saw visions of trouble when he returned to the postoffice.

"My names," blantly responded John, as he continued to daub up the book. The carrier then insisted on the Chinaman entering the time of the receipt of the letter in the book. This the laundryman could not understand, and after ten minutes' argument on the subject the carrier entered the time himself.

When he got back to the postoffice, he told his troubles to friends and said: "I suppose I will be sacked for violating the rules and letting that Chinaman make a puzzle out of the book. If I am not, I never want to deliver another special to a Chinaman."

He was assured that it was always customary for the Chinamen to sign as this one had done and that no trouble would come to him.

THE CONDUCTOR KNEW HIM.

Good Story Told by a Former Kansas Attorney General.

One of the best stories General Archie Williams ever drew from his vast repository is told on himself. Many years ago, when attorney general of Kansas, Mr. Williams had occasion to make a trip to the east. He had no railroad passes east of the Missouri river, so he borrowed an annual over an Illinois road from his old friend Jake Smith. It happened during the first stretch through Illinois that the conductor of the train on which the Kansas man rode was a former schoolmate of his. The conductor recognized Williams, but Williams didn't recognize the conductor, and about this fact the fun of the story hangs.

"Mr. Smith," said the conductor, after working his train and returning to have a chat with his passenger from Kansas, "I see you are from Topeka. Did you ever know a man out there by the name of Archie Williams?"

"Yes, I knew him very well," responded the pseudo Smith, after struggling hard to steady his nerve and regain his composure. "Yes, Williams is considerable of a fellow out there. He's attorney general of the state."

"Was Williams?" Attorney general? Well, I'll be —!" ejaculated the conductor. "What kind of people are they out there in Kansas to elect a chucklehead like that for attorney general?"

"Why, sir, I used to know Williams back here in Illinois—grew up with him, you might say—and of all the dundie pated, slab-sided, step on himself and fall over fellows you ever saw, Williams was the worst. That man, attorney general? Why, if you will believe me, Mr. Smith, he didn't know law enough to wad a shotgun. He was run out of here because—"

"Stop it! Stop it!" cried Williams, springing to his feet. "There is your blankety blank Smith pass. Take it up and collect fare if you want to, but you can't abuse me any longer!"

The Business Instinct.

On one occasion in a London theater the business instinct came out strongly. A relative of the lessee was enacting the part of an indignant father whose son had got into the hands of the money lenders. In the interview with the money lender the father severely lectured him, and then demanded his son's bill. "There, sir," he said, "is my check for a thousand pounds."

The money lender was just reaching out for the check when a voice came from the pit: "Don't you take it, old chap. I've got one of his now for six pound ten, and he's asked me to hold it for a fortnight."

Use For His Head.

While a certain infantry regiment was stationed at Aldershot it had among the recruits a country yokel who was such a great duffer that the sergeant could not beat anything into him.

One day, while the recruits were being inspected by the officers, the countryman seemed more awkward than ever. At last the angry drill sergeant shouted to him:

"Man, what is your head on for?"

"Why, to keep my collar from slipping off," was the ready retort.

Holding a Wasp.

Two farmers recently laid a wager that one could hold a wasp longer in his hand than the other. The man who rubbed chloroform on his hands expected to win, but the other happened to know that male wasps do not sting and accordingly got one of that sex. They sat and smiled at each other, while the crowd wondered, until the chloroform evaporated, and then the man who used it suddenly let go his wasp. The other man got the money.

FROM GASPE

Comes an Interesting Tale of How Envy and Sluggishness May Leave His Troubles Behind him.

The sons of Gaspe are a hardy race. Nature has done much for them, and no more cheerful, buoyant, hearty men are to be found anywhere in this broad Dominion.

Occasionally, however, sickness will strike its inroads in the most robust community.

A case in point, is that of Mr. Joseph J. Arbour, of Percé, who for six months had been suffering severely with stomach trouble. Dyspepsia had him so tight in its grip that he says, he would be obliged to go for days without eating anything at all.

He was feeling very discouraged—Dyspepsia always makes a man feel blue—until one day a local druggist recommended Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, on the strength of what they had done for some of his customers.

Mr. Arbour resolved to use them, and now he is very glad that he did. He says:

"I have suffered from Dyspepsia for six months. The pains were so great that I would be obliged to drink of milk for days at a time."

"Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets were recommended to me, and I determined to try them. I used one box and was much relieved, and bought another box."

"Before the second box was all used I was well again. They completely cured me. I can eat anything, and feel better than I have for years."

"I can highly recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets as a sure remedy for Dyspepsia."

A remedy that can cure a case like Mr. Arbour's and which has received the very highest endorsement of the druggists and physicians, is surely worth trying.

Do you still doubt? Doubt and fear are symptoms of stomach trouble. Be assured Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will never disappoint.

They have promptly relieved and permanently cured many cases just as bad and worse than yours. Then why delay and suffer on, when there is a remedy at hand?

Every druggist sells them. Every druggist recommends them, tells the same story as Mr. Arbour. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are no experiment, and you are taking no chances of any kind. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure you.

Mother—If you marry him in haste you will regret it to leisure.

Daughter—Well, I can't bear to think of any other girl repenting at leisure with him.

THE WATCHWORD OF WOMEN.

Modesty is woman's watchword. Whatever threatens her delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits diseases of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of unpleasant questioning, or of local treatments, which some physicians find necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter, have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to modesty any sick woman may write to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence, all letters being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential, and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has had been long hailed as a God-send to women. It makes weak women strong, and sick women well. "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither cocaine, opium or other narcotic.

Imagination deceives itself by imputing its ideal joys and sorrows to humanity at large.

ACHES AND PAINS.

You know by experience that the aches and pains of rheumatism are not permanently, but only temporarily, relieved by external remedies.

Then why not use an internal remedy—Hood's Sarsaparilla, which corrects the acidity of the blood on which rheumatism depends and cures the disease?

This medicine has done more for the rheumatism than any other medicine in the world.

ADVENTURE WITH A MOOSE.

The Big Animal Displayed Both Cunning and Carefulness.

One day when Henry had gone on a solitary cruise to look out a new trail somewhere, Albert, the cook, went with me canoeing. We floated quietly along, and presently I heard the splashing of some large animal walking slowly through the slush close beside us.

Frederic Island in Scribner's Magazine. Watching an opening in the evergreen growth, I saw the shape of a large bull moose, with his new antlers already grown a foot or more. I saw he would come out at the head of a little bog not far away.

We paddled as far as possible to the nearest point, and, jumping on the ice, I went ashore with the ever present canoe. In front of me was a little hill covered with scattering spruces. From the top of this the ground fell to an open barren, but along the water's edge the growth was thick. The moose was not sighted, and I stood a couple of minutes watching for him to cross the open in front, hoping to make a picture.

The snow on the land side of the hill was drifted very deep. The footing seemed fairly secure, and I walked along the edge of the drift toward the bushes, where I knew the moose must be. With-out preliminaries the snow gave way, and I was floundering in the soft mass. Then it was that, looking over my right shoulder, I beheld at my side the great, motionless moose, with ears thrown forward, nostrils distended and eyes solemnly bulging, a black statue of dignified curiosity.

Even in my momentary panic I could not help noticing how cunningly he kept a bush between himself and me. This habit of the moose is one thing which makes him so hard to photograph. But I was chiefly concerned then to get out of that soft snow. Had the moose some of his brothers whom I had slain in former years. Two jumps would have put him on me. But he only pulled his gray muzzle back into the bushes, faced about and stole away without making a sound.

I took the camera to the canoe and shook the snow out of the bellows. Then Albert and I went to look at the tracks, and we saw that the moose had placed each foot where the walking was best and so taken himself away without turmoil.

NAPOLEONISMS.

I made a great blunder in not erasing Prussia from the map of Europe. After my fall the voice of fortune bade me die; honor compelled me to live.

I hate illusions. That is why the world meant for me always the fact and not the right.

There is no future for me except when I shall be no more. Calumny can reach me only so long as I live.

I have been compared to many celebrated men, both modern and ancient; in point of fact, I resemble none.

When I had done with the revolution, I made public opinion, and succeeded, to the intense astonishment of the revolutionists.

Had I wished to be merely chief of the revolution my part would have soon been played. I became its master because I had a sword.

I have been extravagantly praised, like all sovereigns who achieve extraordinary feats, but I always knew what my intrinsic value was.

The word "liberal" that has so much charm for ears of ideologues has been invented by myself. If I am a usurper, they are plagiarists.

From the moment I became chief of the government I looked to myself for advice and did well. My mistakes date from the moment I began to listen to advisers.

I have three great days in my life—Marengo, Austerlitz and Jena—unless I would add as fourth that on which I gave audience to the emperor of Austria in a ditch.

Kings never lack cavaliers about them. I never allowed criticisms. You ask a physician to cure a fever, not to satirize it. Have you remedies? Administer them! You have not? Hold your tongue!

Europe copies my laws; my institutions are imitated, my works bought; one apes my politics and even the tone of my court. My government has not, then, been as absurd and as bad as was given out.—From "Maximes et Pensées du Prisonnier de Ste. Helene."

The Indispensable Man. Some of the most successful business men in this country make it a rule to dispense with the services of any man in their employ, no matter how important his position may be, as soon as he comes to regard himself as "indispensable."

This may seem harsh and even unbusinesslike, but if we look into it we shall find that there is wisdom in this practice. Experience proves that the moment a man looks upon himself as absolutely necessary he usually ceases to exercise to the fullest extent the faculties which have helped him to rise to that indispensable point. He becomes arrogant and dictatorial, and his influence in an organization is bound to be more or less demoralizing. Many concerns have been seriously embarrassed by the conduct of managers, superintendents or heads of departments after they had reached positions where they thought no one else could take their places.

A Potent Plan. "Huggins is your name, eh?" said the magistrate to the defendant, who was a trifle deaf. "Married or single?"

"Married," replied the defendant in a low voice.

"H'm! What's your excuse for being drunk? Speak louder."

"I say I'm married," the defendant shouted this time.

"Ah! That's sufficient excuse. I'm married myself. Discharged!"

A Drunken Man's Boomer. Once when Sir Horace St. Paul was at college he found a man lying drunk in the quadrangle and tried to make him get up.

"You're drunk," he said. "You don't even know who I am." "Yes, I know very well who you are," said the man. "You're the fellow that wrote an epistle to Timothy and never got an answer."

This is often quoted as one of the naturally clever retorts of drunken men.

A curious custom prevails in Korea. If a man meets his wife in the street, he ignores her presence and passes her as if she were a stranger.

When a man flatters himself he knows a woman, he flatters himself.

MALT BREAKFAST FOOD

IS A BOON TO DYSPYPTICS

The weak, erratic stomach of a dyspeptic demands nourishment that can be retained and that affords strength. Malt Breakfast Food is the only grain food that perfectly fills the bill, because it agrees with the weakest stomach and is easily assimilated and ready to be taken up by the natural process of absorption.

Malt Breakfast Food Gruel is acknowledged to be the most refreshing and appetizing dish for the poor suffering dyspeptic. Its use for a few days will tone and strengthen the stomach and digestive organs, after which the patient may commence with regular Malt Breakfast Food porridge, which will soon banish all trouble and establish a healthy and natural appetite.

The best physicians, instead of prescribing medicines, are strongly advocating the use of Malt Breakfast Food for impaired digestion. If your stomach is weak, try Malt Breakfast Food for a week; results will be so pleasing you will never give it up. Grocers everywhere.

KING'S BIRTHDAY

It was Royally Observed by a Capital Sons of England Concert Last Night.

The King's birthday was right royally celebrated last evening by a social and concert given by the local Sons of England. The concert was held in the S. O. E. Hall, which was very prettily decorated with flags, bunting and pictures of royalty.

Ex-Mayor T. A. Smith made a very genial and good chairman, contributing short speeches about the incidents of his European trip between the items on the program.

The instrumental solos given by Miss Maggs were greatly applauded and she had to respond to several encores.

The songs rendered by Miss Primeau captivated the large audience. Clarence Terry's solo showed that his prospects in the musical world were great.

Mrs. Chamber's reading was very much enjoyed.

The singing of Miss Gertie Potter was very commendable; Miss Potter is the owner of a very sweet voice.

Alfred Wrigley, the well known comic singer, rendered one of his comic songs.

It is not necessary to mention the ability of Harry Horstead as a singer as it is well known, suffice to say that he was at his best last evening.

Miss Annie Clements, the talented young singer, rendered two solos to a highly delighted audience.

Mayor Sulman gave two of his laughter forcing readings.

Mr. A. Green's songs were highly appreciated and well applauded.

The solo by Little Miss Wrigley was very pleasing from such a small creature.

Mr. Fenning's reading was very good but when he took the cake (this was just before luncheon) was a melody by the Sons of England Trio.

Coffee and cake were then served and the social broke up, every one delighted with the evening's entertainment.

The committee of the Lodge desire to heartily thank those who took part and made it such a delightful success.

The program was as follows:
Instrumental solo—Miss Maggs.
Vocal solo—Miss Primeau.
Solo—Miss Clements.
Reading—Geo. Sulman.
Solo—A. Green.
Solo—Wrigley.
Instrumental solo—Miss Maggs.
Solo—H. Horstead.
Reading—A. Fenning.
S. O. E. Trio.

HARVEST HOME

Successful Services Held in Christ Church on Sunday—Excellent Music Provided.

The annual harvest home services held in Christ Church on Sunday last were very bright and appropriate. The church was tastefully and appropriately decorated and for this Mrs. Eritchard and Miss Maud Heyward deserve much praise. The choir rendered bright and attractive music, which was much appreciated.

Mr. Polson is now choir master, and Miss Hayne, of London, organist, and the choir is now doing good work although recently organized, and Christ church will soon be able to boast one of the best choirs in the city. Miss Maud Oliver sang very sweetly and effectively.

The sermons were preached by Rev. Canon Richardson, rector of St. John's Church, London Township. The reverend gentleman is a very earnest and effective preacher and his sermons yesterday were much enjoyed by the large congregations present. In the morning Canon Richardson selected for his text Genesis viii. 22: "While the earth was reaped, seed time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease." The preacher spoke of God's goodness as manifested in the rich provision made for all our temporal necessities, and how right and necessary it was to show our gratitude. He mentioned some national and individual blessings and pointed out many of the advantages enjoyed by the citizens of Canada. In the evening Canon Richardson again occupied the pulpit and chose for his subject the parable of the rich fool, delivering one of the most earnest and touching sermons ever heard in Christ church. All present were deeply impressed and will not soon forget the earnest words that fell from the lips of the preacher.

HER SHARE.

"O, Lucy, where did you get that lovely new hat?" asked Mrs. Fosdick of Mrs. Keedick.
"Frank gave me the money to buy it. It's my share out of a fortunate investment he made with a Mr. John Pott."

A HOSPITABLE RECEPTION.

Public receptions have begun in Canada to extend even to horses. The homecoming of the pacer, Harold H. was made the occasion of a popular demonstration in Wingham. At the station the horse was presented with a floral collar, after which a procession was formed, headed by the Lucknow brass band, and Harold H. was escorted to his stables. Thousands of people were on hand from different places and there was enthusiastic cheering for Canada's fastest pacer.

WARMING UP

The Argument Between Ex-Ald Marx and Barrister Martin is Developing Somewhat Rapidly.

Our reporter asked G. G. Martin what he thought of Marx' little tale.

"Q." said the literary critic, "you know that in politics patriotism is the last refuge of the scoundrel. In a literary discussion, the last refuge of the ignorant and vulgar is slang and personal abuse." Marx reminds one of the old Irish fish-wife, Biddy, who assayed to tongue-thrash the great Daniel O'Connell. Biddy was up and at it all right until Dan hurled a whole Niagara of geometrical and trigonometrical terms at her, when Biddy collapsed and threw a stinking fish at the victor Dan, who then walked off in majestic triumph. When I worried this cunning Israelite in argument, what does he do? He starts the nucleus of a menagerie by borrowing a ravin and nightingale from old Aesop for the aviary department, and he enters a cage himself, puts off the plug hat, which is a la mode of a rain water tank, and there he poses as Aesop's jackass, in persona propria. This is the "Fiasco" that he offers in reply to me. That I noticed him at all in a question of English or any other literature has given Brer Marx the swelled head, and an importance that is another fiasco. Nobody ever suspected Brer Marx of knowing anything about the English language, or much of anything else except money bags and 25 per cent. Brer Marx speaks English with a guttural lisping cross-cut saw sound that resembles a bad mixture of Mohawk and Algonquin argot.

The best way to answer my definition of "Fiasco" is to accept my challenge. Aesop's jackass will not deny him. The fact that Baslam slugged with a shillelah spoke just once, and then quit. Marx insists upon jawsmittin' right along. Strange that these two members of the same family differ so much. I offered Marx his choice, as a judge out of three of the most honored and best educated gentlemen in Chatham, and he replies by saying that he would rather lose than leave the decision to a Jackass. Will Brer Marx arise and sprache mit us und dell the beeps which of these gentlemen is the Ass, or if all three are Jacks? "Come around and see me again, Brer Marx."

The Right Thing

A New Catarrh Cure, which is Rapidly Coming to the Front

For several years, Eucalyptol, Guaiacol, and Hydrastin have been recognized as standard remedies for catarrhal troubles, but they have always been given separately, and only very recently an ingenious chemist succeeded in combining them, together with other antiseptics into a pleasant, effective tablet.

Druggists sell the remedy under the name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and it has met with remarkable success in cure of nasal catarrh and in catarrh of the stomach.

Mr. F. N. Benton, whose address is care of Clark House, Troy, N. Y., says: "When I run up against anything that is good I like to tell people of it. I have been troubled with catarrh more or less for some time. Last winter more than ever. Tried several so-called cures, but did not get any benefit from them. About six weeks ago I bought a 50 cent box of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and am glad to say that they have done wonders for me and I do not hesitate to let all my friends know that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are the right thing."

Mr. George J. Casanova, of Hotel Griffon, West 9th street, New York City, writes: "I have commenced using Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and already they have given me better results than any catarrh cure I have ever tried."

A leading physician of Pittsburg advises the use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in preference to any other treatment for catarrh of the head, throat or stomach.

He claims they are far superior to inhalers, salves, lotions, or powders, and are much more convenient and pleasant to take and are safe and less than little children take them with benefit as they contain no opiate, cocaine, or other poisonous drugs.

All druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at 50 cents for full size package, and they are (probably) the safest and most reliable cure for any form of catarrh.
