BRANTFORD, CANADA, SATURDAY, MARCH 28, 1914

GENERAL VILLA IS A HERO AT JUAREZ TO-DAY

Believed That He Fought and Won a Terrible Battle in Mexico.

Is Looked Upon as the Military Genius of Southern Mexico.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] JUAREZ, Mexico, March 28.—Strong in their belief that General Francisco Villa and his rebel force had captured Torreón, after a night battle, Constitutionalist officers and sympathizers here were jubilant and momentarily were expected to work from the front that the end of what has come to be looked upon as the decisive battle of the revolution had been accomplished.

Latest advices from both Villa and newspaper correspondents, indicated that the rebels had carried their assault into the very heart of Torreón and that the federals were hard pressed. At that time it was General Herrera's force of 4,000 men who were reported to have entered the town from the east and the counter march of General Villa into Torreón from the north was expected to throw the federals into utter rout. No military official in Juarez to-day doubts that the battle which General Villa has waged against Gomez Palacio, now his and Torreón has been the most desperate of any engagement of this or any other revolutionary movement in Mexico. General Villa went to the front with 12,000 seasoned men, well equipped for a vigorous, smashing assault against any resistance the federals might offer. News despatches indicate that the federals fought heroically and that the loss in dead and wounded to both sides was enormous. Lack of hospital facilities, the heat and the desert wind and the four days of strenuous work, practically consisted in his being the "Pan" of the Villa were believed to have amassed a large casualty list. General Villa himself has become a hero. Everywhere in Juarez his praises were being sung to-day. By Maderistas and Constitutionalist he is looked upon as the greatest military genius in the southern republic, and great confidence is expressed that he will push his triumphant way with his rebel army to the very doors of the national palace in Mexico City.

Services At St. Basil's

Father McCandlish gave an excellent address at the St. Basil's Mission room last night upon the ten commandments and the six precepts of the church. He dwelt upon the great value of the commandments and said as dutiful Christians we ought to obey the law of God. Special stress was upon the observance of Mass on Sundays. It was the holy sacrifice of man, being the great object of the Lord's sacrifice on Calvary. All dutiful Christians should be anxious to assist in this, the most important work of the church. It was an important act of religion to be observed by all faithful men and women. If they did their duty all would be well and their sure reward would follow. A large audience was inspired by the reverend Father's address.

KIDNAPPED BOY FOR WHOSE RECOVERY REWARD IS OFFERED

Warren McCarrick, Mayor Blankenburg, of Philadelphia, issued a proclamation calling upon the residents of Philadelphia and other cities to exert every effort to aid in the search for Warren McCarrick, seven years old, who has disappeared. The Mayor calls attention to the $5,000 reward offered by the city for the recovery of the boy or the arrest and conviction of his abductors. The offer of the reward was decided on by the Councils. There was already a reward of $1,000, offered by friends of the McCarrick family.

CAMBRIDGE CREW WON HISTORIC BOAT RACE TODAY

Favorites Romped Home By Four and a Half Lengths.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, March 27.—The Cambridge crew today won a historic boat race from Putney to Mortlake with great ease, the annual eight oared boat race on the Thames. The distance of 4 1/2 miles was rowed in the quick time of 20 minutes, 23 seconds and Cambridge crossed the winning line 4 1/2 lengths in the lead. The Cambridge crew had been the favorite during the training and justified the predictions that it would win by making the race a procession from the firing of the starting pistol till the end of the race.

LETTER CARRIERS ASK HALF HOLIDAY IN SUMMER TIME

Executive of Association Puts Request Before Postmaster General.

OTTAWA, March 28.—The executive of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers of Canada, composed of W. H. Hoop of Winnipeg, A. McMordie of Toronto, E. Sergie of Montreal, C. Bradshaw, Ottawa, met the postmaster-general, Hon. L. P. Pelletier, and Mr. Hector Vorrett, the assistant deputy, yesterday laying before them the requests as decided upon by the letter carriers' convention. Among the most important features advanced were: Asking for increased salaries. Iso one-half day per week holiday during the three hot months—June, July and August. In connection with this request consent for the same has been obtained from the business houses in the majority of the large cities of the Dominion and favorable consideration is expected from the department for this concession.

A SECOND ARREST

REGINA, Sask., March 28.—A second arrest was made last night in the alleged attempted bribery of Alderman Wessel, C. Hogg, inspector in the provincial license department is locked up. It is alleged he offered the alderman money for the latter's influence to secure an appointment as city police chief for Provincial Chief of Police C. A. Mahoney.

ASQUITH MINISTRY IS STILL FLOUNDERING

If French and Ewart Insist on Resigning, Government Will be Wrecked—An Effort Made to Get Them to Reconsider Resignation.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] NEW YORK, March 28.—A cable to the Tribune from London says: "The Cabinet crisis continues, and the immediate outcome depends on the decisions of Sir John French and Sir John Ewart with regard to their resignations. If these officers refuse to withdraw their resignations, and persist in retiring into private life, the immediate fall of the Government is regarded as inevitable, but if they can be induced to retain their military posts the Cabinet will probably carry out the plan of proceeding with the Home Rule and Welsh Church bills and appeal to the country about June or early in July.

The importance of the issues depending on the decisions of Sir John French and Sir John Ewart explain the remarkable efforts made within the last 48 hours to induce them to withdraw their resignations. It was understood last night that both officers had been persuaded to abandon their intention to retire, and it was also understood that Sir John French, dictating his own terms to the Cabinet, had declared he would persist in his intention to resign unless adequate reparations were rendered to him for the humiliation inflicted on him by the Government's repudiation of two paragraphs of the document to which he, in common with Colonel Seely and General Ewart, had appended his signature. He stipulated, it appears, that his reputation should be saved by the issue of a new definition of duties of officers and men in circumstances similar to those of the present position, and the new army order which Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons yesterday was the Government's response to this demand.

All day long the House of Commons was on tenter-hooks and provided the almost unprecedented spectacle of a crowded chamber at noon, for on Fridays the attendance is usually of the scantiest. Not a Cabinet Minister, however, was in sight, and when the Scottish whip, John W. Gulland, rose to announce another postponement till 5 o'clock of the eagerly-awaited statement, murmurs of disappointment were heard all around. On the Opposition benches the resentment displayed deepened when the Speaker made it plain that the rules rendered impossible any adjournment either of the debate or of the House. Mr. Bonar Law protested that the situation was public scandal, but there was nothing for it but to wait till 5 o'clock, so for five hours a thin House talked about feeding school children, while the fortunes, not only of Field Marshal French, but of the whole government were known to be at stake outside. From 4.30 p.m. onward, the house began to fill rapidly in anticipation of Premier Asquith's statement, the peers' gallery was thronged. Lord Lansdown, whom nobody had even seen watching the proceedings of the House of Commons before, occupied a prominent position in the gallery and looked down with curious interest on the animated scene below, so different from the dull, lifeless proceedings in the Lords. Other peers present included the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Courtney, Lord Denbigh, Lord Middleton, Lord Montagu, Lord Lytton and Lord Lamington. A touching and exciting scene occurred just before the House adjourned for the week end. When Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition had concluded his criticism of Premier Asquith's new army order, Major Morrison-Bell rose and insisted on making a statement on behalf of the officers and men of the army. A determined attempt was made to shout him down, and he was encouraged by his Unionist friends and with the aid of a powerful voice he eventually compelled the House to listen to him, speaking in stentorian tones and with great feeling he said: "The statement we have just listened to is the grossest insult to the army that has ever been offered to it."

CHIEF SLEMIN WILL BE DEFENDANT

Chief Slemin will be proceeded against at the High Court of Assize on Tuesday in connection with the second trial of the action for damages of Gladys Meredith, the Holmedale girl. Papers were served yesterday on the Chief, Officers Chapman and Boylan are not being proceeded against.

STRATHCONA AND HIS FEES FROM C. P. R.

MONTREAL, March 28.—Lord Strathcona always boasted that he never had cashed in a cent from the C.P.R. in the shape of director's fees. After his death a number of cheques amounting to around $50,000, and covering his 32 years' directorship, were found among his private papers. They represented the usual payments to him as directors and had not been cashed. As the cheques were received by Lord Strathcona they were filed away without endorsement. The executors have now notified the company that these cheques drawn upon it are held by the estate, and a formal claim has been filed.

TEMPORARILY INSANE

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., March 28.—Evidently temporarily insane while on board a C. P. R. train, John Bennett, of Bank Head, Alta., slashed his throat with a razor while the train was passing Ruby station. A point about 50 miles from here. One of the train crew rendered first aid, and clamped the terrible wound together with pressure points, until Bennett was brought to St. Joseph Hospital in Port Arthur. He had in his pocket a third class ticket for Glasgow, Scotland.

LIFEBOAT AND PATROL IN MAD RACE TO LORNE BRIDGE LAST NIGHT

About half-past 10 last night two women on Lorne bridge saw a man acting suspiciously on the bridge. He was leaning over the parapet, and every few minutes he would put his foot into the fence-work and withdraw it, as if he was deliberating upon a jump into the dark, turbid waters. One of them screamed, but it had no effect upon the man, who still leaned over, and finally tried to mount the parapet. One of the women then regained her presence of mind and phoned for the police, telling them what the man was doing. With all possible speed the lifeboat was hurried to the scene of the apparently impending desperate deed, and the gallant rescuers were prepared for valiant action. The bridge was reached, and there was found the supposed suicide, who was still dangling around the fence-work of the structure. He was surrounded, and then it was discovered that he was none other than Pete Adams, and that he was only feeling the effects of a convivial expedition and was trying to get rid of them as is customary upon ocean liners. So the lifeboat was not launched, and no soul was saved from a watery grave, but Pete Adams was taken to a dryer place for the night and will appear in the dock charged with being drunk.

Another version of the affair says that Peter actually did jump over the bridge, but he was not near the water and struck the embankment on the north side of the river. The firemen assert he went over, but as the man is not injured, and the police deny that he did, it is not likely that he ever got over the parapet.

NOBLE GRAND IS CLEAR RIGHT UP TO GALT

Ice Came Down Very Quietly Last Evening, Causing Little Trouble.

River Rose Only Four Feet Above Normal Level.

The ice in the Grand river at Wilkes' dam and at Galt last night broke up and came down the river quietly. This morning, except for an occasional chunk of ice, some drift wood etc., the river was clear. The river rose to four feet 10 inches above normal up till 9 o'clock this morning when it started to recede.

The break came about 8 o'clock last night, when the first of the ice slipped over Wilkes dam and went quietly down the river. It was not long before all the ice at that dam was washed away. About 10.20 p.m. the first of the Galt ice appeared at Lorne bridge and slid over the dam without any damage being done. All the time the water in the river was steadily rising. At two o'clock the gauge at the headgates registered 4 feet 7 inches of water above normal and it was rising fast.

This morning Kerby island was partially covered over with water which cleared out the channel of all remaining ice. The City Engineer had a number of watchmen at the headgates all last night, but their services were not needed.

The flats in Eagle Place are this morning one mass of water, but so far no damage to property has been recorded. On the Newport road three feet of water is rushing across making traffic impossible. As yet nothing has been heard from Caledonia as to the condition of the ice there. City Engineer Jones stated this morning that when the ice gets free from the headgates and Wilkes dam the city had little to fear of any damage to its property.

The annual spring flood on the Grand River occurred this afternoon, the ice breaking up at 2.30. The rain of yesterday and to-day caused the river to suddenly rise, and under the pressure of the high water and the jam of ice up the river, the ice on the dam gave way and passed down on its way to Lake Erie without doing any damage. The manufacturers along the river's edge had made preparations for the freshest but this year's flood did not come up to the mark of last year. The absence of snow was responsible for the water not being of as great volume as the previous two years.

The members of the cabinet separated to-day for the week-end, and most of them have gone on visits to various parts of the country. It is hoped that when the present difficulty in regard to the army has been settled, both parliament and the country will return to the main issue, namely the position of Ulster with perhaps a greater disposition to find a method of settlement by consent.

COUNTY COUNCIL HOLD A BUSY SESSION FRIDAY

Toll Roads and Prison Farm Scheme Were Discussed.

Financial Difficulties Too Great in Purchase of the Road.

The County Council of Brant met yesterday at the Court House, when the principal item before the Council was the report of School Inspector T. W. Standing. The body decided that no action would be taken with regard to the purchase of the toll roads in the county. It was admitted by the Council that the payment of tolls by farmers was a hardship, but nevertheless the Council did not see their way clear to purchase the roads, which they thought would practically be on their hands, a dead weight. This decision was come to after a discussion after the annual statement of the Brantford-Oakland toll road had been read. Two other communications to be placed on the file were those inviting the county to join a joint counties prison farm scheme. The question of the county's contribution to the maintenance of the Collegiate Institute was considered, but not finally dealt with. The city has estimated that for last year the county is in debt to them to the extent of $399 over and above the payment of the proportion already asked. This matter will be further investigated. The auditors have had a busy time with the accounts this year, and it was decided to increase their remuneration. Other business of minor importance was transacted, and the Council adjourned, having been in session for one day.

Those present were: Reeve Cook of Oakland, Reeves Jennings of Brantford, Stroud of Park, Watc of South Dumfries, Walker of Onondaga, first Deputy Reeve McCann and second Deputy Reeve Greenwood of Brantford, first Deputy Reeve M. Burdiss of Burford, and first Deputy Reeve Evans of Paris.

SIR LYMAN JONES MAY LEAVE PARTY

Opposition's Support of Free Agricultural Implements Given as Reason.

OTTAWA, March 28.—Sir Lyman Melvin Jones, president and general manager of the Massey-Harris Implement Company, and a number of other companies, and a member of the senate, is stated to have severed his connection with the Liberal party, and will no longer lend to that party his support. It is understood that he has been a close friend of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Will Prevent a Fashion Parade On Easter Day

[By Special Wire to The Courier] WASHINGTON, March 28.—Designed to check what is declared to be a growing tendency on the part of the American people to make the Easter season the occasion for displaying fashionable clothes, a movement was launched here to-day to form the "Society for the Prevention of Easter Desecration." The members of this society would pledge themselves not to wear new articles of clothing beginning with Palm Sunday, until after Easter Sunday. In proposing the new society, the district of Columbia Christian Endeavor Union declares that the real meaning of Easter is often lost sight of now a days because of the popular craze for new and fashionable clothing, and predicts that the movement will vastly increase the calm devotional spirit of that season.

The struggle at Washington over the appeal of the exemption clause in the Panama Canal Act was begun in the House of Representatives.

NOT A CELLAR
FLOODED IN PARIS

Grand River is on Unusual
Good Behavior This Year.

PARIS, March 28.—The last of the ice in the Grand river passed out quietly yesterday afternoon when the Galt ice passed through Paris from 4 till 6 o'clock. The river this year has been on its good behaviour in this section not even a cellar being flooded. The water is still high to-day but no damage can result from it now. Geo. Tindall, a well known Woodstock young man, appeared in a huge court on Thursday to answer for a "bit of a time" he had here last Saturday. He pleaded not guilty and two sessions of the court were necessary to gather all the witnesses. He was finally fined $1 and costs, amounting to nearly $18.50 in all. Tindall also informed the court that it was his companion named Watt who broke the Hydro globe at the station and a summons has been issued for his appearance on that charge.
A mock trial, "Did he steal the rooster," will be given in the Town Hall on Thursday next by best local talent.
Mr. John Jefferson who went west last summer is renewing old acquaintances in Paris.
The funeral of the late Albert Lane, who was drowned on Tuesday, was held Thursday afternoon from his parents residence, West River street, and was very largely attended, the boy being a favorite with all who knew him.
Mr. James Cassidy of Falkland fell in his barn a week ago and fractured his leg.

Mrs. Lloyd Harris As "The English Beauty" in
"A Night in Dreamland"

"Rosebug" is the title of the heart-felt song which will be offered by the soloist, Miss Hilda Hurley, in a trained evening gown and picture hat in the second part of the coming musical comedy "A Night in Dreamland," with local talent, and the story is made complete with tableau which presents the thought of the singer in a most realistic form. The picture presents a magnificent theme of natural foliage where is discovered Mrs. Lloyd Harris as the ideal of the singer's story—a English beauty—draped in rich crimson material with a huge bouquet of red roses. On each side of the throne girl are two posing models, draped in soft white material, who pose with long stemmed red roses. The posing models are the Misses Edna Ashbury, Mary Fawkes, E. S. Gilmour and Miss Monahan.
"The dance of the Models" is also presented in connection with this act, in which will appear six beautiful girls in trained gowns, picture hats of latest models, who present their dance with the aid of tall ebony staffs, trimmed with large bows of tulle. The young ladies in this dance are the Misses Helen Lloyd-Jones, Kathleen Buck, Norma Coulson, Miss Evelyn Buck and Miss Grimstadt. They will also introduce in Brantford for the first time the new "Duff-Gordon" colored wig. This dance is said to be very artistic and with the tableau described, the act will be one of the big features of the production.
Interest increases with every rehearsal. Every one is enthusiastic. The production is all that Director Wellington promised, i.e., of professional merit, and the Brant Chapter will present one of the most ambitious local productions ever staged in Brantford.
The advance ticket agent is meeting with great success in his house-to-house canvass with tickets, which go to show that the interest is not only confined to the organization and members of the local company, but has gone abroad as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Harris left yesterday afternoon for Atlantic City.
Mrs. G. H. Ryerson will receive for the first time in her new home in the O. I. B. grounds Tuesday March 31st.
Dr. and Mrs. Yates sailed yesterday to spend three months in England where their children are at school.
Bros. J. S. Williams, G. R. B. A., Ed. Lankin, R.W.G.M., and W. H. Tuck, G. L. W. of the Masonic lodge Toronto were guests at the local lodge last night.
The members of the Girls Auxiliary of Grace Church are holding their annual tea on Tuesday afternoon, March 31st, from three to six o'clock. There will be a sale of fancy work and home made cooking.
The Talent Tea held on Thursday under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of Alexandra church, at the home of Mrs. Robert Balfour proved a very pleasing success. There was a large attendance, a general contribution and a splendid programme.

A new Chapter of Daughters of the Empire has been organized amongst teachers in Toronto. Archdeacon Cody in an inspiring address said: "What impresses one is the splendid type of young woman we have in our Toronto teachers, enthusiastic, brisk and business-like women of the highest order of intellect and refinement and one's inner conviction was that amongst them will develop probably the most forceful of all the Chapters of the Daughters of the Empire."
Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Passmore entertained the unmarried members of the Collegiate Institute staff and several of their friends last evening at 97 Charlotte street. The guests sat down to dinner at six o'clock after which four tables of progressive euchre served entertainment and merriment. Miss Bell of the Public School won the lady prize, while Mr. O'Neil of the Collegiate staff was victor among the gentlemen. Mr. J. R. Cornelius and Mr. Haynes and others contributed much to the evening's enjoyment by instrumental and vocal music.

Mourn the Loss.
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Townsend mourn the loss of their infant daughter, Mary, who passed away yesterday at their home on Henrietta street. The funeral takes place to-day to St. Joseph's cemetery after funeral services have been conducted at St. Basil's.
City Must Settle.
Mr. Douglas Davidson, secretary-treasurer of Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, replying to City Clerk Leonard's letter regarding the city paying for the treatment of a local girl in that hospital says that the city must settle for her treatment there, and it is up to them to collect the fee from her father, who is an employee of the Cocksbutt Plow Company. Her father, on account of sore eyes, is unable to work steadily and draws a very small salary.

DANCING CLASSES
HOLD CLOSING

Very Successful Event Was Held at the Empire Theatre Last Evening.

Bible Class Is Entertained

The members of the Bible Class of the Congregational Church were the guests last night of Miss Henry, 106 George street, and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all. During the evening a number of the members expressed great satisfaction at the progress the class is making and at the continued increase in membership, and the benefit each attendant at the class meeting received from the teachings of its leaders Messrs. Ward Foster and H. P. Hoag and also the increased confidence in them, and appreciation for their faithful and efficient services and the hope that the class may long retain them in the positions they so ably fill. A hearty vote of thanks was unanimously tendered Miss Henry for the very enjoyable evening, by each of those who were fortunate enough to be able to avail themselves of her hospitality.
The falling water in an electric fountain for table decorations that a Boston man has invented supplies the power for changing the color of the lights.

Perhaps the feature of the entertainment was the dancing of Miss Grace Lloyd-Jones in the Folly Dance. Miss Lloyd-Jones acquitted herself in admirable fashion and performed one of the prettiest dances of the evening.
Miss Noria Coulson was also exceptionally good especially in the rose-basket scene where she acquitted herself with an ease and grace which was admirable.
Miss Edith Trenwith in her aesthetic waltz, was also good, winning much applause from her splendid performance.
The dancing of the junior girls, was also exceptionally well performed and the beginners going through the hard steps with great ease and beauty.
Besides the dancing, a one-act play-let entitled "A Pair of Lovers" by Mrs. George D. Yatt and Mr. Feldcamp was very good and provoked a lot of amusement. A reading by Miss Annabel Ryerson was also well rendered.
The classical dancers consisting of the Misses Norma Coulson, Edith Trenwith, Edith Sanderson, Alice Brooks, Alice and Edith Harley and Grace Lloyd-Jones performed a number of classical waltzes, two steps, hesitation waltzes, one step and tango steps which were well performed and highly appreciated.
The Highland Fling by the entire class was also well rendered.
Others who took part were Misses, Edna Spence and Edith White in a piano duet and the Misses Mary Marquis, Helen Marquis, Isabel Duncan, Dorothy Batcheller, Frederica Potts, Jean Milne, Annie and Bertha Fair, Helen Cowan Louise and Mary Bell Weeks Isabel Adams, Isabel Ritchie, in skirt dances dutch dances and waltzes were well rendered and highly appreciated.
The stage was tastefully decorated with green draperies and the stage effects were excellent.
Miss Sternburg deserves untold credit for her efforts in perfecting the dances of her class. Many bouquets were passed up during the evening for the different dances.

Before a well filled house the dancing classes of the Conservatory of Music were brought to a fitting close by an entertainment of classical and National dances by the pupils of Miss Sternburg of Toronto, the teacher of the class.

MOTOR BUS SERVICE
GREAT CONVENIENCE

Messrs Humble Bros., proprietors of the 20th Century Motor Bus Company, wish to inform the ratepayers and public that they have secured a Provincial license, delivery license, carter's license, motor license and chauffeur's licenses, and claim they are entitled to run their motor buses in the city. Residents of Terrace Hill claim the bus line a great convenience, and any attempt on the part of certain individuals to stop same from running before the street railway system is inaugurated in that section of the city would meet with much indignation.

At the regular meeting of the Water Commissioners held yesterday afternoon in the city hall, there were present: Chairman, John Fair, A. G. Montgomery, Mayor J. H. Spence and Secretary, Fred Frank.

The secretary was instructed to advertise the Berry Farm for rent and was also instructed to have the fences on the farm repaired. The commission also granted Yardley Bros., a five year lease on the land west of the dyke at an annual rental of $80 to be paid half yearly in advance.

Communications were read from J. H. Birckett, Kingston, regarding steel pipe; Chipman and Power regarding extensions; Boiler Inspection and Insurance Co., reporting the condition of the boilers. The Y. C. A. directors asked for a reduction in the water rate all of which were filed. A list of accounts were passed.

Adams Had No Suicidal Intentions Three drunks were the sole business of the court this morning, and they included Peter Adams, who was fined three dollars and costs. He pleaded guilty to being drunk, but said he had no intention of taking his life. He simply felt sick on the bridge and took a rest. Nothing was farther from his thoughts than the suggestion of suicide.

CANADA'S FIRE LOSSES.

The Monetary Times gives the following tables of fire losses in a number of Canadian cities:

Table with 3 columns: City, Per Capita Loss, No. of Fires. Lists cities like Hamilton, Vancouver, Calgary, Regina, Halifax, Toronto, Brantford, Winnipeg, London, and Saskatoon.

When the figures are contrasted with those of a similar list of British cities the showing is one that ought to make Canadians do some thinking.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

The only thing which is stopping joint action by the powers with regard to Mexico is the "Monroe doctrine."

James Monroe was the fifth President of the United States, and he entered the revolutionary army at the age of 18, taking part in several battles. Then he took up law, and was only 24 when elected to Congress.

THE TRANSCONTINENTAL SCANDAL.

The following special despatch from Montreal recently appeared in the columns of the Toronto Star (Liberal): "Lost—$41,000,000. You can easily do it in railway building—by over classification, over-break, firing in the trestle work as you grade, millions of filling it in from car load off the rails themselves; sub-letting, extravagant plans of building, and so forth."

BRUTAL MURDER

Was Uncovered by the Police Department of New York City To-day.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] NEW YORK, March 28.—One of the most brutal murders in the history of the police department was discovered to-day when the body of a man known only as "Red" was found in the ruins of a boat house at 161st Street on the Hudson River, which was destroyed by fire. The man was killed with a hatchet or an axe. A long knife was found imbedded in the victim's skull.

COMMANDER EVANS AND MR. COCKSHUTT, M.P.

House of Commons, Ottawa, March 27th, 1914. R. H. Reville, Esq., Brantford, Ont. Dear Mr. Reville,—I wired you yesterday that I found it impossible to be in Brantford on Tuesday evening to preside at Commander Evans' lecture.

I had the pleasure of meeting Commander Evans yesterday, and hearing him address before the Canadian Club. His presence and remarks evoked intense enthusiasm from the large and influential body that he addressed, which included the Premier of Canada and other gentlemen high up in the public service.

I trust that Brantford citizens will receive with great enthusiasm this distinguished hero who speaks in the Opera House, Brantford, on Tuesday evening next.

Tarzan of The Apes

years ago in the alley back of Porky Evans' barn. "Ark!" gasped the astonished Mr. Phillander.

Mr. Phillander dropped the professor's arm and broke into a mad cry of speed that would have done credit to any varsity track team.

With streaming coatails and shiny silk hat, Professor Archimedes Q. Porter followed, while from the shadows peered two keen eyes in interested appreciation of the race.

He knew the two men were safe enough from attack in so far as the lion was concerned. The very fact that Numa had foregone such easy prey at all convinced the wise forest craft of Tarzan that Numa had already dined.

So Tarzan swung quickly to a lower limb in line with the approaching fugitives, and as Mr. Samuel T. Phillander came peering and blowing beneath him, already too spent to struggle up to the safety of the limb, Tarzan reached down and, grasping him by the collar of his coat, yanked him to the limb by his side.

Another moment brought the professor within the sphere of the friendly grip, and he, too, was drawn up to safety just as the baffled Numa, with a roar, leaped to recover his vanishing quarry.

For a moment the two men hung, panting, to the great branch, while Tarzan squatted with his back to the stem of the tree, watching them with mingled curiosity and amusement.

"I am deeply pained, Mr. Phillander, that you should have evinced such a paucity of manly courage in the presence of one of the lower orders. As I was saying, Mr. Phillander, when you interrupted me, the Moors—"

"Professor Archimedes Q. Porter," broke in Mr. Phillander in icy tones, "the time has arrived when patience becomes a crime and mayhem appears garbed in the mantle of virtue. You have accused me of cowardice. Believe me, sir, I am tottering on the verge of forgetfulness as to your exalted position in the world of science and your gray hairs."

"The professor sat in silence for a few minutes, and the darkness hid the grim smile that wreathed his wrinkled countenance. Presently he spoke.

"Look here, Skinny Phillander," he said in belligerent tones, "if you are lookin' for a scrap, peel off your coat and come down on the ground, and I'll punch your head just as I did sixty most unbecomingly struck, they pitched headlong from the tree, locked in fraternal embrace.

"It was quite some moments ere either moved, for both were positive that any such attempt would reveal so many breaks and fractures as to make further progress impossible.

At length Professor Porter essayed an attempt to move one leg. To his surprise it responded to his will in a daze gone by. He now drew up its mate and stretched it forth again.

"Most remarkable," he murmured. "Thank heaven, professor," whispered Mr. Phillander fervently. "You're not dead, then?"

"The tut, Mr. Phillander; tut, tut!" cautioned Professor Porter. "I do not know as yet."

With infinite solicitude Professor Porter wiggled his right arm—joy! It was intact. Breathlessly he waved his left arm above his prostrate body. It waved.

"Most remarkable; most remarkable!" he said. "To whom are you signalling, professor?" asked Mr. Phillander in an excited tone.

Professor Porter deigned to make no response to this puerile inquiry. Mr. Phillander had not moved from where he had fallen. He had no word to say.

"One eye was buried in the soft loam; the other, rolling sidewise, was fixed in awe upon the strange gyrations of Professor Porter.

Professor Porter rolled over upon his stomach. Then he sat up and felt of various portions of his anatomy.

"They are all here!" he ejaculated. "Whereupon he rose, and, bending a scathing glance upon the still prostrate form of Samuel T. Phillander, he said: "Tut, tut, Mr. Phillander; this is no time to indulge in stilted essays. We must be up and doing."

Mr. Phillander lifted his other eye out of the mud and gazed in speechless rage at Professor Porter. Then he attempted to rise, nor could there have been any one more surprised than he when his efforts were immediately crowned with marked success.

He was still bursting with rage, however, at the cruel injustice of Professor Porter's indignation and was on the point of rendering a tart rejoinder when his eyes fell upon a strange figure standing a few paces away, scrutinizing them intently.

COUNTY COUNCIL HOLDS BUSY SESSION ON FRIDAY

Communications Received.
Among the communications received were the following: The Council was asked to send a representative to the Joint Prison Farm Conference to meet on Tuesday, April 10th, in Berlin. This was received and filed. A letter asking for joint co-operation in the matter of an industrial prison farm for the county was received from Mr. L. E. Weaver and filed.

A White Elephant.
The statement of the Brantford and Oakland Road Co. was received, endorsed by M. C. McCausland. It showed that the cost of the road was $57,016, whilst the tolls received amounted to $3,477.27 and the expenses amounted to $2,534.50. The communication was filed after a brief discussion upon it took place. The sympathy of the Council was with those farmers who travelled the road, but they could not see their way clear to take over what was virtually a "white elephant." The large amount necessary for the upkeep of the road, apart from the original cost, did not justify the purchase. Mr. Walker thought some of the farmers who often used this city as a market place should receive some consideration.

Councillor McCann knew of a man who had paid no less than $35 last year and Mr. Greenwood remarked it would be better if the farmers would pay by the year. It was unfair to the farmers which ever way it was looked at. The owners thought Mr. Watts, county clerk, would sell the road for the cost of the bridge provided that the purchasers agreed to keep it in good shape. However, the councillors saw no reason why they should purchase the road and the letter was filed.

Children's Aid Grateful.
Mr. J. L. Axford, thanked the Council for their donation of $25 to the Children's Aid Society and he earnestly solicited a continuance of the favors. Consideration was deferred until the 1914 estimates were struck.

Mr. John Buskard wrote re the privileges of non-resident members of the Collegiate Institute. Letter filed.

Collegiate Institute.
The statement of the authorities showing that the council's share of the upkeep of the Collegiate Institute for the past term is $2605.50. This was referred to the committee to report upon. Galt Collegiate estimate that the County council owes them was $187.65 in regard to pupils for 1914. This was also referred to the committee to report on.

New By-laws.
Readings were given to a by-law which will allow the trustees of the Brant Sanatorium to borrow money for the maintenance expenses until various grants are due.

A by-law enabling the county deputies now issued to have interest coupons attached was passed.

George Cook, Acting Warden.
In view of the indisposition of Warden Milmine, Councillor Cook will act in that capacity and yesterday he occupied the Warden's chair. The council adjourned for the afternoon session after the afore-mentioned business.

Maintenance of Schools.
Upon the resumption of the question of the contribution to the House of Refuge was taken up. The city council had estimated that the county owes the city $399, the cost of maintenance of inmates of the house during 1913. Mr. Watts, clerk of the council then quoted at some length from a foolscap folio, dealing with the agreements concerning the liability of the county and their respective relation to the contribution and liability of the city. Figures quoted showed that the city's share was twice as large as the county while the population of the city was $5,333 and the whole county including Brantford 45,000. The city was owed the money and it was to be considered. Nobody can object to paying an honest debt said Deputy Reeve Evans to which Reeve Cook remarked that that they did not want to take a baby and find it on their hands. He implied that if this $399 was paid to the city council they might come back for the same amount for previous years as this shortage might be applied to more years than last. "If we owed it to them there would be no reason why we should not pay it," said Mr. Evans. "If you were in business and found a man owed you a sum and had done so several times for different years would you let it pass." "I would" completely remarked Reeve Cook. There are many more details with regard to the question which will have to be looked into after the discussion was therefore left until the next meeting.

Auditor's Remuneration.
The auditors had this year asked for extra remuneration, as they had a great deal of extra work upon the work of the council. This was owing to the House of Refuge estimates. The statement of extra work was verified by Mr. Watts, and it was seen that the auditors had owing to some poor system of bookkeeping had a difficult task this year. Reeve Stroud moved that the usual fee of $100 be increased to $60, as an addition of $20 was considered not too large in view of the extra work done. It was pointed out however that the extra payment should be given and

Building Permits Issued.
A building permit was issued this morning to W. C. Ward, 71 Emily street for a frame addition to a brick cottage.

Mayor Will Preside.
His Worship Mayor Spence will occupy the chair at Commander Evans' lecture in the Opera House next Tuesday evening. Commander Evans will arrive with his private secretary, Mr. Mather, in the city Tuesday afternoon and will be met by Mayor Spence on behalf of the city at the Grand Trunk station.

Football Meeting.
Optimistic, indeed was the feeling which pervaded at a meeting of the football club of the 25th Dragoons held last night at the Borden club. It was announced that 22 men had been signed up for duty for the coming season and they included all of last season's stand-bys with some new players, who were young and would make an impression of youth and virility in the ranks of the team. The soldiers now have the making of a good team and although they are confident of making things hum they make no rash profession of winning everything in sight. The officials are sure of their ability to accomplish something worth while. A practice game will be played in the East Ward next week.

St. Basil's Mission.
At the Catholic mission last night a large audience listened with interest to a strong discourse by Rev. Father O'Reilly on "Eternal Punishment." Father O'Reilly described vividly the horrors of hell, and the great torture which awaits the sinful man who did not serve the Almighty God. People of to-day should take precautions to prepare for the day of reckoning which everyone has to face. Symptoms once started can never be retrieved, and therefore people should be careful to live virtuous lives on this earth. The fear of hell in a great way contributed to make man live a good life, but the love of God is greater than that fear, and that is the greatest asset is making man pure and guiltless.

Lantern Lecture.
The young men of the Riverdale Baraca Class gave a very delightful egg supper and entertainment last night at the Riverdale Baptist church. In spite of the disagreeable weather a large company gathered to enjoy their evening's entertainment. After ample justice had been done to the supper, Rev. W. Reid of Paris, was called upon and for an hour and a half held the close attention of the audience as he took them for a trip through the great National Park of the United States, the Yellowstone Park. During the lecture Mr. Reid showed one hundred beautifully colored slides of the park. The slides were splendid and the speaker had a way all his own in giving the lecture. At the close a vote of thanks was tendered the ladies and Mr. Reid for providing so enjoyable an evening. The proceeds which amounted to $50 are in aid of the Building Fund. The boys are to be congratulated, also Mr. H. A. Pettit who is the efficient teacher of this class.

stated specially to be for extra work which had been occasioned last year, otherwise it would have been creating a precedent, and the auditors would look for the larger fee when they had not done extra work. This amended view was acceptable to the whole body. It was then moved and seconded that the sum of $1200 be paid to the auditors in recognition of their extra work, and this was carried.

Coal for Court House.
It was decided that the council advertise for coal tenders for the supply of coal to the court house buildings. An adjournment for 15 minutes was made.

Upon resumption, Reeve Waite presented the report of the finance committee for the month. It showed a balance to be carried forward of $4,160.87. Report adopted.

The printing committee reported that they had found the bill of the McBride Press to be correct, and recommended payment. Moved and carried.

School Inspector Report.
The report of the education committee found no fault with the report of T. W. Standing, school inspector which they were adopted. They regretted that owing to an unfortunate accident, Mr. Stanling was himself unable to be present as hitherto. They remarked upon his good work in the schools and hoped for his speedy recovery and return to duty. His report called for no special recommendation. The question of the Galt and Brantford Collegiate Institutes and the council's liability in these matters needed more attention and the committee asked their report be heard next meeting. Moved by J. C. Walker, seconded by First Deputy McCann, report was carried.

Auditor's Report.
The auditors had made a full examination of the books for the year 1913 and found them correct and in accordance with bank balances. The cash in the bank on December 31st, 1913 was $8,437.79, less checks to the amount of $210.40, leaving a balance of $8,227.39. The insurance on the court building was $1,000 whilst the boiler was insured at $4,000 and the treasurer's security bond was $10,000. No further business was found to be dealt with and Councillor Stroud moved the adjournment of a brief and interesting sitting.

City News Items.

NEW CLAIMS TO OLD PEERAGES

The Lords Privileges Committee Reports to the King.

LONDON, March 28.—The House of Lords has ordered the Committee of Privileges to lay before the King its reports on the claims of Viscount Gage and Sir Robert Bourcier, Sheriff and Wrey to the Barony of Dynant, Martin and Fitzwaryn.

With respect to the barony of Fitzwaryn, their lordships report that it is an ancient barony in fee, and Sir William Bourcier Wrey was summoned to Parliament as a peer of the realm in 33 Henry VI. (1455) as Lord Fitzwaryn, and sat as such in his own right and was entitled to a barony by writ descendible to the heirs general of his body. On the death of Edward, fourth Earl of Bath and Lord Fitzwaryn, in 1637, the barony fell into abeyance between his three daughters Lady Elizabeth (who died without issue), Lady Dorothy, and Lady Anne.

The co-heirs of Lady Dorothy are now (a) Viscount Gage (b) Colonel Hugo Montgomery-Campbell (c) the great heiress, if any, of Mary Mackworth (who was living unmarried in 1681), and the sole heir of Lady Anne is Reginald Joseph Weld. The committee further report that the Barony of Fitzwaryn is in abeyance and at his Majesty's disposal.

As to the Barony of Martin (claimed by Viscount Gage), the committee report that it is an ancient barony in fee and that William Martin was summoned to Parliament as a peer of the realm by writ 23 Edward I. (1295) and sat in Parliament, and was entitled to a barony by writ descendible to the heirs general of his body. Their lordships find that the co-heirs are Henry Rainald, (Viscount Gage), Colonel Hugo Montgomery-Campbell, and Reginald Joseph Weld. Also that the barony of Martin is in abeyance and at his Majesty's disposal.

With respect to the barony of Dynant (also claimed by Viscount Gage) their lordships report that no evidence has been produced of the existence or descent of the alleged barony.

The committee will proceed to hear the part heard Strabolgi claim, and also the claims to the Saint John barony.

Was A Friend Of The Poor

Millionaire Who Criticized the Extravagance of His Own Class.

LONDON, March 27.—By his death which occurred in London on Sunday, of Mr. F. T. Martin, the American millionaire, the poor have lost a good friend. He knew practically every monarch in Europe. But the one great hobby of his life was to observe the motto of "One good turn a day." His generosity led him into the queer places of the world, and the slum dwellers at Whitechapel knew him as intimately as the slum dwellers of Chicago.

Once Mr. Martin journeyed to the East End from his fashionable West End hotel to redeem a poor woman's blankets and household goods at the pawnshop. He once said, "I shall count myself supremely happy to be known as the poor man's friend." He did scores of good deeds, but self-advertisement he hated.

In his book, "The Passing of the Idle Rich," he criticized his own class mercilessly. He told a story of a wealthy American woman who owned a pet monkey that was treated like a king. Twelve servants were engaged to wait upon the animal, which had its own valet, dining table, and solid ivory bed. It ate from solid silver plates, and cost its mistress three thousand pounds a year.

Instances such as this caused Mr. Martin to protest vehemently against the extravagance of American society in general; yet, paradoxically, he remained one of its most popular leaders until the end.

The Allan liners Mongolian and Carthaginian are to ply between St. John and Liverpool in the summer, and the Furness Line may also give an all-year-round service to St. John.

SIGNALLERS AT ANNUAL PARTY

They Had a Merry Time Last Night—Supper Was Enjoyed.

The signal corps of the Dufferin Rifles held their annual theatre party and supper on Friday evening. After falling in at the armories at 8 p.m., they marched to the Brant Theatre, and there occupied nearly all of the boxes and thoroughly enjoyed the excellent bill put on by Manager Moule, both the pictures and vander-ville being of extra high class. After the show they marched to the Tea Pot Inn, where mine host Cramback had an extra fine spread awaiting which the boys certainly did ample justice to as usual.

Captain Dunlop then in a short speech, regretted very much that he happened to clash dates with A. Company, and Corpl. McKie read letters of regret from officers of the staff and others, that they could not be with us. The boys then manned their glasses and drank toasts to the King, the commanding officer and the sister companies. Then speeches were made by Capt. Hicks, Capt. Miller, Capt. Dunlop, Col. Sergeant Prior, Col. Sergt. Pilley, and Col. Sergt. Davis.

The officers all complimented the corps on their high standing for 1913 being champions of Ontario and second in the Dominion of Canada. After songs by Pte. Murphy of the bugle band and Col. Sergt. Mack, Col. Sergt. Hart proposed a toast to the signalers, and Sergt. Hamilton, Sergt. Coale, Corpl. McKie, Corpl. Housion and Corpl. Hart were heard from, they all laying plans to win Dominion honors for 1914. This was followed by a short speech by late Lieut. J. E. Janet, and Captain Dunlop said he would like to get several more real-good recruits for the season.

The evening came to a close with more songs and recitations by Irish friend, Murphy, and other and the entire gathering, over fifty strong, sang God Save the King.

After four days' desperate fighting, General Villa re-established his headquarters in Gomez, Palacio.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back Its Color and Luster with Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores. Known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Agent, T. George Bowles.

HAT AND

CRAVAT IDEAS FROM PARIS

Jeannette Hope Paris

SPRING and a new hat are inseparable in the mind of woman. The first expression of the spring fever that woman gives to the world is the change in millinery, and though March winds do blow and, yes, though we may have snow, we put on our new hats and go forth to greet the spring. Paris has sent to you these ideas in hats and those necessary accessories, cravats, for you to copy and to wear with a smile of satisfaction.

Plaid is a favorite in millinery. See how it is used in the beret cap at the top of the page. The brim is of natural colored straw, and puffed silk above this gives a youthful line that will be becoming to many faces. At one side there is a loop of taffeta held under a knot of the same and wired to stand out at the left.

The cravat is made of white charmeuse. The long ends are arranged to cross in front. At the ends are silk tassels, and trimming the silk bands are pleatings of white tulle.

In the crossing of two quills at the front of the turban there is sounded a new note in millinery. This is made of changeable dark green taffeta, and the two quills are white with green ends. The neckpiece is of white linen hemstitched and trimmed with flat pearl buttons.

The high turban with the two wings is a favorite in Paris. It is soft silk and straw, and the crown is of draped silk that ends in the points that are wired up into a high bow. This can be as high as you wish, by the way, some of the extreme models rising to a height of eighteen inches. Figured tulle forms the neckpiece and has a cravat of dark blue moire ribbon. This crosses in an attractive line at the lower edge of the revers. The collar has wide points at the sides and is filled in with ruffles of lace that give the softening effect that women love.

A suitable model for a young girl is shown in the rolled hat of white linen with a crown of figured foulard. The colors in the silk are the new pink and mauve on white. A soft bow at the side finishes the top. The collar of white linen has a double effect; the points and edges are hemstitched, and a cravat of foulard that is detachable and matches the foulard on the hat completes this clever idea. Do not forget the pompons when trimming a spring hat. They are very popular in Paris, and when in black on white they make an effective combination. In the hat at the end of the top row there is a crown of corded silk. The pompons are placed directly in front and at the back of the hat. The neckpiece gives the effect of a vest and is a combination of white and black satin and tulle. Ivory ball buttons are used down the front of the vest. They reverse of white add a touch that is attractive, while the ruffles of tulle that fall in soft grace from the shoulders down to the point of the front are a feminine touch that you will welcome.

In military effect is the turned-up turban at the side of the page. The shape is of tete-de-negre silk, a popular shade of dark brown, and there is a binding of straw. At the front of the hat there is a rose of dull-gold metallic tissue which you can make. The new high collar is of tete-de-negre velvet trimmed with ecru lace insertion, and at the side there is a large bow of brown tulle.

Below is a model of a draped hat in ivory-white moire. The high turned-up brim has a point at one side, and over the foundation there is a puffed covering of moire. At one side there is a bow of black velvet. The cravat of tobacco-brown taffeta is finished with pleatings of ecru lace of fancy tulle.

The last model of dark green straw has a bow of amber-colored velvet at the side front. This shape is round, with a high, deep brim, and is always simply trimmed with ribbon, taffeta or moire. The high collar and jabot are of white lace that rises in a soft cascade down each side. The narrow bands of black are of satin, and black chenille tassels drop at the ends.

Such is the story of the hat in Paris. The variety assures a becomingness to all types; the simplicity is copyable, and the fact that expensive feathers are conspicuously absent insures a lower cost than in other seasons. Do you like these models?

THE NEW SILHOUETTE

IT BEGAN with the pettop, and has grown to such decided lines in the new models that the figure has been lost, so far as the natural proportion is concerned, and the only hint of the silhouette of a year ago is at the feet. The important thing to be remembered in building a gown for spring is that the skirt at the feet is still narrow. Above that it can be as full as you can plan.

There is a difference between the curves and general bouffant line of the seventies and the fullness of the new styles. First, there is a softness of line that makes for grace. Stippled taffetas and drapable silks are fashionable, and these contribute to easy and becoming effects that will soon be adopted. How soon do we cast off a favorite of fashion for something new?

One of the popular means to the end is the drapery of silk, chiffon or mousseline at the upper part of the skirt. This can be in puffings in swathed lines that are here and there allowed to burst out from the hip line. The double and triple tunic is another good idea to change the silhouette of an old gown. In many of the silk models the fullness is allowed in the pattern, and the folds and gathers are disposed of by draping on the figure before the belt is attached. Deep overskirts are now used, and, after being attached to the underslip, they are puffed up at intervals and caught in place with the greatest fullness at the back, to suggest the bustle gown that has come upon us with a rush.

One model of striped black-and-white taffeta has a straight skirt with a narrow lower line. Around the upper part of the skirt there is a straight piece of taffeta, with the stripes going in the horizontal direction and contrasting with the vertical ones of the foundation. There is fullness at the back, and the top extends out from the hips in a narrow line. At the back, the lace is wired and trimmed with ribbon. The fullness in the flat bow that seems to be associated with the full line.

A butterfly gown has the drapery disposed at each side of the front, so as to produce the effect of wings. It is of gauze, and here and there are motifs of beads that simulate the spots on a butterfly. A long panel at the front gives the effect of a body, and yet is unobtrusive.

Even in the manteaux there is the full line that must necessarily come in order to wear them over the full dresses. Dolman-shaped wraps have ruffles at the lower edge and flounces that give the greatest width at the bottom. Sleeves have large armholes, and full lines at the top give voluminous effects that are to be the accepted thing in the spring and summer styles.

The folded skirt in which the upper part is folded in a deep tuck and the fullness gathered around the waist line and bunched at the back is another expression of the full lines in the new silhouette.

Panniers, tunics, overdrapes and flounces are here, all contributing to the extended effects of the spring gowns. Yes, it will mean that you must purchase about twice as much material; but fashion is a commanding thing, and you will obey the edict without a murmur.

An Odd Combination

ONE would, at first, scoff at the idea of combining green and brown in an evening gown, and yet on a woman of the right complexion it is bewilderingly beautiful. At a ball given at one of the fashionable resorts such a gown was worn by a woman with an auburn hair. The effect was not stunning; it was a degree more—electric. All eyes in the room were drawn by the perfect harmony which was expressed by gown and wearer. The gown itself was of leaf-green crepe meteor. The bodice was combined with oak-leaf brown chiffon. The draped skirt was without the popular tunic, and yet one knew instinctively that the gown was not one of last season, or even a hang-over from the beginning of the present season. The high-draped waist line was simply a continuation of the skirt, and the brown chiffon of the bodice rested against the red-haired beauty's white neck. Angel sleeves hung from the shoulders to below the waist line, opening about three-quarters of the full length of the skirt. The skirt lengthened the long points of satin sleeves. A single topaz hung from a gold hairlike chain about the red-haired woman's neck.

FRENCH FASHION NOTES

PARIS, Feb. 19. THIS week was notable for the number of exhibitions of portraits painted by celebrated artists, who specialize in transferring the charms of lovely women to canvas. The walls of the salons were covered with drawings and paintings representing the best efforts of the talented men, and a constantly changing crowd of handsomely gowned women admired the portraits. A Parisian creation of exceptional beauty challenged the pictures to dispute its perfection in line and coloring. It was of ash-brown moire. The skirt had voluminous draperies about the hips, but retained the narrowness at the feet. The bodice was relieved by touches of midnight-blue silk and cream lace. The hip-length coat hung in straight lines from the neck, rippling in full at the hem. A collar of the blue silk finished the neck line, extending only across the back.

The taffeta frock was well represented, and one of the loveliest was of a delightful tone of hunter's green. The skirt opened in front to disclose a petticoat of cream lace, and the straight breadths were drawn back and loosely puffed below the waist to form a bustle. This was surmounted by a large bow made of the silk and lined with dull rose. The Y-shaped opening of the bodice was filled in with lace, and the front and back bloused over a girde of the rose silk. Frills finished the short Louis XV sleeves.

The spring fashions have been "casting their shadows before" for many weeks, and they become more interesting as Parisiennes appear in the new costumes. The mannequins can exploit the models and we view them with half-doubtful eyes, but when the costumes are worn by friends, they are accepted and admired.

The veils which attract the most attention are of heavy lace over the nose and mouth and clear net over the eyes. They are becoming and chic. Gloves are not being worn at the dances. The tango is responsible for this. In the smart little shops devoted to the sale of accessories there are displayed many novelties. For instance, the minaret parasol shows a puffed tier of cotton combined with a puffed founce of taffeta; there are collars of lace or cobwebby material, shaped or wired to resemble lilies, and little lace bolero jackets to wear over the summer frocks. These jackets are trimmed with tiny frills or bands of shirring of net or mousseline de sole.

There is a decided revival of the fringed neck. The shops are showing a worthy col-similarity to those worn by the lovely Empress Eugenie. An evening gown of this type is made of white charmeuse and filmy lace. The skirt is rather soot, but four founces of the lace, each overlapping the other, effectively trim it. The bodice is loosely fitted, and the décolletage adorned with lace. The same material is used for the short tuckled in at the corners contributed a fascinating touch of color.

The new summer velvet, worn on a gauze foundation, is much used by the couturiers to fashion handsome gowns. A Redera model is of a lovely shade of blue. The bodice is a combination of the velvet and tulle of the same tone, and is trimmed with silver embroidery. A short tunic of the tulle is also adorned with the embroidery, and a flat bow clasps the belt of velvet.

The vogue for strange and violent combinations of color seems to have died a natural death. The designers at present strive to create effects of perfect harmony. Flounces of lace in soft tones appear on the latest models.

The colors of the new season are being much discussed, and the soft, bright tones are favored. Yellow and green and the soft, greenish yellow, such as citron, bamboo, almond and apple, occupy an important position. All tints and shades of rose and pink, blue and violet will also be worn.

Cotton duvetine and cotton cote de cheval are among the materials that smart women will wear during the spring and summer. These are shown in plain and figured designs of exceptional beauty.

Among the semitransparent fabrics is rice cloth. It derives its name from the knots of yarn thrown up on a loosely woven surface, which closely resemble grains of rice. The veils which attract the most attention are of heavy lace over the nose and mouth and clear net over the eyes. They are becoming and chic. Gloves are not being worn at the dances. The tango is responsible for this. In the smart little shops devoted to the sale of accessories there are displayed many novelties. For instance, the minaret parasol shows a puffed tier of cotton combined with a puffed founce of taffeta; there are collars of lace or cobwebby material, shaped or wired to resemble lilies, and little lace bolero jackets to wear over the summer frocks. These jackets are trimmed with tiny frills or bands of shirring of net or mousseline de sole. The shops are showing a worthy collection of spring hats, and the small models of moire, taffeta or silk, crepe predominate for early spring wear. There are daintier hats of straw or lace to accompany the costumes of summer, which appear strangely like the hats adorning the Watteau ladies. They are flat, sometimes tilted over the eyes and sometimes to the side. Flowers, ribbons and lace are combined artistically to trim these exquisite pieces of headgear. One pretty model of ecru straw has a low flat crown swathed at the base with a scarf of lace. Above this appears a band of plaid-edged ribbon of a tapestry-blue hue. On each side of the brim is placed a cluster of tiny flowers in tones of palest blue, pink, yellow and lavender.

Lewis presents a new turban of moire draped to form a peak directly in front. From this highest point springs a large bunch of paradise plumage.

Waistcoats are playing an important part in the new season's fashions, and the prettiest models are made of satin, moire, taffeta or crepe of some brilliant color. Frequently they are trimmed with piping or cordings of a contrasting color, and extend over the skirts in the form of basques or peplums. The fullness is confined about the waist with a belt of the same material fastened under a buckle or a stiff bow. Sometimes the belt is placed at the normal waist line, and again it produces an empire line. Brocade ribbons, in plain and plaid designs, are used for these waistcoat belts, and the moire designs are particularly favored. Scotch plaid ribbons, like those worn in 1895, are employed to fashion stunning waistcoats.

The bolero jacket appears on the frocks Jeanne Lanvin has designed for little girls. They are elaborately embroidered or braided or they are lined entirely of lace, all-over embroidery or finely tucked material and trimmed with narrow frills or lace edgings.

Smart Parisiennes are wearing a new coiffure which leaves the ears exposed. The hair is drawn high at the back of the head and is then coiled in a soft knot. In front the hair is parted or dressed in a loose pompadour. A large comb of tortoise shell or amber adorns the back.

A pretty old-fashioned style that is coming back is that of mixed color. In the new season there are four or five colors combined in one costume. Moire and taffeta ribbons are to trim charming frocks, gathered through the center openings, which border tunics.

The regular meeting of St. Elmo No. 11 G.R.C. was held in the chapter rooms, Heyd Block, on Wednesday, the 25th inst., with a good turn-out of officers and members to wish all speed and say goodbye to one of the active officers who is leaving our city to fill a more lucrative position in the south, and one member was given the first degree by the V. E. C. Sir Kt. Vernon R. Cowten, ably assisted by the V.E. Sir Kt. Financial Chancellor Henry Fielden and a willing staff of officers. The reports from the Grand Chancellor was acted upon and the appointment of delegates to the G.C.G. next month was laid over for our next regular, Thursday, April the 2nd and conferring degrees on new applicants. With one accord, all members voted a very profitable evening well spent.

It Costs Over Twenty Dollars Per Pupil Each Year in County Schools

Report of Rural School Inspector Standing Was Submitted to the County Council Friday Afternoon.

The annual report of County School Inspector Standing was submitted to the county council on Friday and read as follows:

To the Warden and members of the County Council of Brant:

Gentlemen,—I have the honor to submit my annual report on the public schools of the county for the year 1913.

Rural Schools

Financial statement:

Receipts.

Balance on hand from 1912 ..... $ 34,835.70
Township and County Grants ..... 22,840.49
Government grants ..... 6,590.34
School taxes levied on sections ..... 28,398.84
Special funds, loans and all other sources ..... 46,279.66
Total ..... $150,945.09

Payments.

Salaries of teachers ..... $ 45,739.16
Sites, buildings, etc., and interest ..... 41,063.38
Libraries, maps and other equipment ..... 565.54
Fuel, caretaking, loans and other expenses ..... 14,932.67
Total ..... $102,300.73
Balance carried over ..... $ 36,644.36

Deducting from the total payments above, the approximate sum of one thousand dollars for repayment of loans, and thirty-five thousand dollars for amounts raised by debentures for new buildings in the suburbs of Brantford, the ordinary cost of maintenance would be sixty-six thousand three hundred dollars.

This averages a little more than $800 per teacher employed, and is equal to $20.25 per pupil enrolled during the year. Less than one tenth of this cost of maintenance was met by Government grants, the remainder, together with the expenditure on the capital account being met by county, township and section rates, except where special township funds are available.

The total amount of county, township and section taxes for school purposes would be covered by a rate of 4-8-10 mills on the dollar.

Teachers, their Salaries and Qualifications.

There are 62 rural schools in the county with 78 departments during the first half of the year and 81 during the latter half. Two of these departments were made necessary by the union of the Grandview section with the city. Of the 81 teachers 11 were men; the remaining 70 included the 10 assistant teachers.

The highest salary paid was $900 to the principal of the Bell View School, he average rate of salary for the 62 principal teachers was $606.50; for the 10 assistants, $515; the total average being $582, an increase of 38 over the preceding year. The average for the 71 men was $652, for the 70 women $572.

Of the teachers employed at the close of the year 7 held first class certificates, 65 second class, 7 third class and 2 temporary. Eight had attended the Normal College or the Faculty of Education and 67 had attended a Normal school. Only two were without professional training, and they had taught only part of a year. A new record has been established for the county when upwards of nine-tenths of the rural teachers have had a full year's course of training at a Normal school. In one important respect however, namely, length of service in the same school, the average is low, and frequently changing of teachers detracts seriously from the efficiency of the schools.

Attendance and Classification of Pupils.

The number of pupils enrolled during the year was 3,273, of whom 1,691 were boys, an increase in the total of 86 over that for 1912. They were classified as follows: Primer, 782; First Book, 451; Second, 603; Third, 716; Fourth, 685; beyond the Fourth, 36. The average daily attendance for the full school year was 2,054, an increase of 157 over the average for 1912. In per cent. of the enrollment, but in 1912 the average attendance was 59.5 1913 it has increased to 62.7 per cent., which is much the best ratio of average to total attendance yet achieved.

The following thirteen schools report an average for the year which is 70 per cent. and upward of the enrollment, the highest being No. 1, Oakland (union), with 78 per cent.; Nos. 1A, 7, 8, 16 and 20, Brantford; 1, 24 and 25, Burford; 11 and 12, S. Dumfries; 1, Oakland; 4 and 5, Onondaga. By townships the results are as follows: Oakland, 3 schools, 71 per cent.; Onondaga, 5 schools, 65 per cent.; S. Dumfries, 12 schools, 63 per cent.; Burford and Brantford, each 21 schools, 62 per cent.

School Work.

The regular course of study has been pretty well taken up in all the schools as far as the Senior Fourth Form. The subjects of art, nature study and physical training receive less systematic treatment, probably, than any others. There has been a decided improvement in the teaching of history, and most of the schools give good attention to writing, as well as to the other standard subjects of the school course. A few schools give definite teaching in Agriculture and in Household Science—the former in connection with school garden or home plots. The number of pupils reported as taking these studies was: Agriculture, 221; Household Science, 27. The schools that had gardeners were: Bell View (23, Brantford), Burford, and Burford Village for a part of the year.

Accommodations.

The growth of population in the suburbs of Brantford has caused further expansion of the schools affected by this increase. The new Union School at Grandview has been organized since September 1913, to accommodate the pupils of the City as well as those from the section, and it has now a Kindergarten department in addition to several rooms covering the eight grades of the Public School course. The school at Bell View, too has been enlarged to an eight room building and seven of these have been occupied by township pupils since the beginning of the present year. The growth of population is showing itself, too, in the Cainsville, Echo Place and Farrington districts. In the rest of the County there has been little change so far as the rural schools are concerned. Reference will be made later in the increase of attendance in the Paris Public Schools.

A comparison of the grading of the accommodations of last year with that of three years previously, shows a great improvement in certain important respects. In 1913 first-class grading was given 34 schools for heating, 32 for ventilation, 32 for water supply, 28 for desks and 35 for blackboards. Three years previously only 10 received grade 1 for heating, 10 for ventilation, 30 for water supply, 21 for desks and 19 for blackboards. Unfortunately only 11 received the highest grading for well-constructed and well-cared-for closets.

Advanced Classes in Rural Schools.

In this, and in previous reports attention has been directed to the need of better provision for continuing the education of rural children beyond the Fourth form. There are only two centres in the County which have regularly and to a considerable extent provided such a course of study, namely St. George and Burford. There is a possibility that St. George will not continue under the new regulations to maintain its rank as a Continuation School. These and other suitable centres should be encouraged to keep up the advanced classes. In Grey, the county grant to Continuation Schools is 150 per cent.

of the Government grant. In Huron it is double the Government grant. The regulations require the County to give at least the equivalent of the government grant, but it might improve the educational facilities in these and other rural centres if this county should follow the example of Grey and Huron and give increased support to schools which maintain advanced classes.

Paris Public Schools.

The schools of Paris report an enrolled attendance of 576 for the year, an increase of 35. The average attendance was 416, this being 72 per cent. of the total enrollment. One result of the increased attendance has been the appointment of an additional teacher for 1914.

The schools have had a successful year under the supervision of the principal, Mr. B. T. Dickson, whose large class exceeded unusually well at the Entrance examination last summer. The Kindergarten and the special departments of Manual Training and Domestic Science have been maintained efficiently throughout the year. The pupils in the Third and Fourth forms have had the advantage of these special classes in addition to the other work of their grades.

At the close of the year a very creditable and successful school concert was given by the pupils to raise funds for further equipping the school, which already has a reputation for its excellent building and appointments.

In conclusion, I may say that while educational conditions are still unsatisfactory in many respects, a review of the year is encouraging rather than otherwise. There has been improvement in buildings, accommodations and teaching equipment. The pupils have attended more regularly, and the teaching staff has been strengthened. It is difficult to estimate results accurately, but there is reason to believe that the schools are improving in efficiency. Much has been said and written recently in disparagement of the condition of rural schools. Most of this is merely an echo of criticisms made in the United States of conditions there, which are not in any sense a parallel to ours. Very few of our schools are small, the average attendance enrolled being 40 to every teacher employed. Our teachers are well educated and nearly

How Sufferers from RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO and SCIATICA, may find speedy, welcome relief and certain cure

KEPHALDOL

Pronounced KEPH-AL-DOLE

At last the victims of these torturing complaints—men and women whose lives are long-drawn-out agony—may look with hope, confidence—certainty—to pain's most glad departure.

In Kephaldol is offered, for the first time, a remedy which not only has medical endorsement for its efficacy in all cases of RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, and SCIATICA, but is also guaranteed to be a perfectly safe pain-killer, containing nothing to injure the heart or any other bodily organ.

Kephaldol is prompt and reliable, causes no intestinal irritation, and has none of the characteristic after-effects of quinine and phenacetin. Kephaldol brings, indeed, untold blessing to pain-wracked humanity; joy of perfect life again to those who, perhaps for many years, have dragged through a tormented existence. Kephaldol is prescribed and praised by doctors, and gratefully appreciated by sufferers.

MR. JOS. WOOD, Derby Road, Mareday, Eng. tells of his remarkable recovery. His own words are:—"I have been off work three years and six months, and nothing I could get did me any good. I was suffering from Lumbago and Sciatic Rheumatism. Had six weeks in the hospital, but the doctor said he could do no more for me. "I got some Kephaldol on Friday. On the morning of Wednesday I had no pain and no painful joints. I felt a new man, and have had no return of it. "One of my workmates was off work 12 months. After taking Kephaldol he tells me he has now no pain. Another who had been laid up 11 weeks is also free from pain now. Every day I am asked for the name of the stuff that has sent me to work again. Kephaldol is now taken for three or four miles around here."

KELLEY DECIDES ON HIS PITCHERS

Herbert and Ritter Will Do the Flinging Against Waco To-day.

MARLIN, Texas, March 28.—After six hours of the hardest and most useful workout the team has yet had, Manager Kelley decided to send Herbert and Ritter against the Waco team to-day. Gaw will work on Sunday, and some of the recruits will be sandwiched in. Sullivan and Graham are both anxious to work. The infield will be intact, but they are hardly in shape to display their best wares. Fitz and Fisher both complain of their arms.

Catcher Kelly this afternoon sustained a painful bat bruise, and was spared in the workout.

Waco has been going very fast. They have the advantage of several games against the Giants, and a strong local team, and the contest will give the Leafs a chance to look over the first real pitching of the season. Herbert has been six weeks with Brooklyn, and showed great speed and perfect control yesterday. Ritter has not got started to hook them, and has no idea of his real calibre. He is the biggest man on the pitching staff. He has great speed and youth in his favor.

Snell continues to improve and may give Kelly a tussle for first position if he continues. The infield was kept at work after the other players had returned to their hotel, and their work was exceptionally fast, despite the fact that Fisher is sparing his throwing arm.

Shultz has been worked in both field and outfield, and will be a hard man to keep off the team. Druce is recovering control, and may be given a chance to show Kelley at Waco. He is extremely anxious to get back with Toronto. Wilson is going well, and may displace Kroy. The latter, however is working like a Trojan for his position. O'Hara will have no competition in the sun field according to present prospects.

The team is beginning to shape up, and bears out the early predictions of having every indication of a winning combination.

In the new Simplan tunnel, now being built paralleling the old, numerous cross cuts will be made connecting the two to equalize the air pressure and decrease the resistance to trains in them.

OTTAWA HOLD-OUTS HAVE SIGNED UP

OTTAWA, Mar 28.—Pitcher Frank Kubat and Infielder Frank Smykal, both of whom are University of Illinois boys, signed up yesterday with the Ottawa Ball Club. They were holdouts but the Ottawas finally reached their figures and they sent in their contracts. The Ottawa infield is thus complete with Crowder the only absentee from last year. Dolan will play first, Smykal second. Tesch, short and Bullock, third.

Manager Shaughnessy emphatically denies the charge from Hamilton that Fort Wayne drafted Pitcher Fred Bramble from Berlin and Shortstop Brant from Peterboro, with a view to turning them over to the Senators. President Varnell asked Shaughnessy to recommend a shortstop to replace Fabrique, who went to Providence, and he at once advised him to land Kint. He also recommended Bramble, but there is no truth in the Hamilton kick that Fort Wayne bought the two men for Ottawa. Tesch was signed for shortstop position last year, and while Bramble would be welcome there is little possibility of the Ottawas getting him. Shaughnessy refuses to act as a "farm" for any big league club. The following players will report at Chatham on April 20. Manager Shaughnessy; Dolan, first base; Bullock third base; Tesch shortstop; Smykal second base; Lage catcher; Kohl pitcher; Powers outfielder; Kubat pitcher; Murphy infielder; Lill pitcher; Kane, pitcher; Newman of Toronto, a pitcher; Bernlop pitcher; Donovan pitcher; Burke outfielder; Fhill shortstop, and Anderson, third base.

"Lefty" Rogers has been ordered to report, but he wired back that he was out of the game.

Baseball

It was not the size of the score at Mabile that made Frank Chance so pleased with the afternoon sport, but the manner in which the triumph was accomplished, which proved the peerless leader a very shrewd judge of green timber. He has maintained all along that he will have a pretty fair club this season. He has predicted a rare pitching staff and both of his arguments seem more and more logical with every new appearance of his clan. Nothing could have been more encouraging to a man who had to trudge entirely a hopeless tailender than the form of Ray Keating and King Cole. Mabile scored a run off each.

The Mobile earned the count of King. They had no license to nick the lusty spitball tosser from Bridgeport and but for an outfield miff never would have seen the midway while he performed. Cole served the last four rounds and save for the eighth was inscrutable as the Sphinx. After the first two had been turned back in this part Keeley, a pitcher, started a batting rally. Three consecutive blows redeemed the tosser but he as well as his predecessors, must have carried a rabbit's foot. Both the first two hits were mealy Texas leaguers to right accidentally effected while the batters were trying to dodge the ball.

Ray Keating had perfect command of a spitball that was breaking as tantalizingly as that of Ed Walsh in summer fettle. The Mobile batters were completely mystified. Eleven of them fanned in the five innings Ray foiled. In the third and fourth sections he got the entire side.

Eric Dispatch: Some of the Erie Yankees will take part in one baseball engagement this summer that they probably will remember and talk about when the snow flies next winter. During the old home week at Brantford they will play against the Philadelphia Athletics, the world's champions.

Old home week in the Canadian city is some affair, and the backers aren't at all stingy with their coin, so they hied themselves down to Philadelphia, saw Connie Mack, and by coming across with a guarantee secured the promise of the wily manager that his regular team would play there on August 11.

Now the promoters want to pick a team from the Canadian League, but as it is hardly likely that chances will be taken by most of teams during the campaign. Erie and Brantford players will form the outfit to combat the world's champs.

Walter Johnson took his daily workout yesterday morning. It was a fifteen minute affair, during which he displayed such remarkable speed that even Clark Griffith was astounded. Ainsmith did the catching. Having had a day's rest, Johnson was at his best. Griffith, in speaking of his performance said:

"Never before in my experience have I seen such an exhibition of pitching as Walter gave this morning. I did not think it was possible for any human being to put so much speed on the ball as he displayed. It was a marvellous performance and proves to me that Walter is rounding into his best form early this season. I look for him to have the best season of his career. Walter has been taking these daily work-outs, and his arm is already as strong as it will ever be, and by the time the season opens he will be ready to duplicate his performance of last season when he pitched fifty-six innings without being scored on."

B. C. I. Cadets Shoot Last Miniature Match

High Score of 97 Was Made by Sergeant Smith—Cadet A. C. Burh Wins Dufferin Rifle Cup.

The last miniature match in the Canadian Rifle League was fired Friday, March 7. This completes the 8 matches. The scores were very high, the best being 97, made by Sgt. Smith. In connection with the match there was a three-man team competition, which aroused great interest and enthusiasm among the boys. Three silver cups were the prizes, to go to the team making the highest aggregate score in the 8 matches. Roy Patton's team won the competition with 2,055 points out of a possible 2,400. This is a remarkably high aggregate score. The team was composed of R. Patton, apt. W. Fraser and Ralph Braund. Competition was very keen for these cups. The runners-up were Percy Braund's team with 2,039, composed of P. Braund, G. Kew and A. Weir. Bennett's team with 2,020 was third. His team was composed of M. Bennett, N. Lake and E. Simpson. The scores of these three teams show what a high brand of shooting was accomplished.

There was also a large, handsome silver cup presented for the highest individual score by the Sergeants of the Dufferin Rifles. This cup was won by Cadet A. C. Burt with a score of 739 out of a possible 800, or an average of 93 for the eight matches. This is the highest total ever attained in the winter matches, and Cadet Burt deserves great credit for such excellent work. Cadet Burt presented a silver medal to the second highest individual total which was won by Cadet Patton with 716.

This winter's shooting is the best the Cadets have ever done and they have hopes for a high place in the Canadian Rifle League. Practice for the Bisley team match starts next week and the Cadets expect to get two men on it if possible. The shooting is very hard being rapid fire in most of the events.

The scores for yesterday's match were:

First Team—Sergt. Smith 97; Cadet K. Ruddy 96; Cadet Burt 95; Cadet T. Ruddy 95; Cadet Braund 95; Cadet Weir 94; Cadet Matthews 94; Lt. Lake 93; Cadet Cassidy 94; Cadet Dempster 92. Total 944.

MR. ASQUITH LAYS DOWN NEW RULE

His Address to the House of Commons Yesterday.

LONDON, March 27.—The resignations of Field Marshal Sir John French and Lieut.-General Sir John S. Ewart have not yet been withdrawn and Premier Asquith after deferring his statement twice was only able to announce in the House of Commons this afternoon that the government still was waiting the reply of the army officers to the cabinet's request that they remain in their posts.

of general staff, Field Marshal, Sir John French. The premier said matters in the question involved great complexity and difficulty and seemed to the government to require very full consideration. A partial or provisional statement would be unsatisfactory. Sir John French and Lieutenant-General Sir John S. Ewart, the adjutant-general of the forces, had intimated a wish to be relieved of their offices, Mr. Asquith said, not because of any differences between their views and those of the government as to the conditions under which the army should serve or should be employed in the aid of civil power, but having issued the memorandum to Brigadier-General Gough they thought this course incumbent upon them. Premier Asquith then added: "The government has conveyed to them its wish as there is no difference of opinion on any ground or policy they should not persist in their request, the carrying out of which the government would regard as a serious misfortune to both the army and the state. We still are awaiting their reply. "These two gallant officers believe in the circumstances that they were justified in believing their action was in accordance with the instructions of the cabinet and that they were transmitting those directions to the officers concerned. "It is clear to us and to them there has been a misconception—a genuine misconception in regard to the intention and purport of the proceedings in Ireland out of which these difficulties have arisen. "In view of these misconceptions and to obviate the possibility of their recurrence in the future the army council has to-day—Field Marshal Sir John French and Lieut.-General Sir John Ewart being present—unanimously determined to issue a new army order." The Premier continued: "The new order to the army is headed "Discipline." It has three articles which are as follows: "1.—No officer or soldier shall in future be questioned by his superior officers as to what attitude he will adopt or as to his action in the event of his being required to obey orders and dependencies in future or hypothetical contingencies. "2.—An officer or soldier is forbidden in future to ask for assurances as to orders which he may be required to fulfill. "3.—It is the duty of every officer and soldier to obey all lawful commands given them through the proper channels either for safe-guarding public property or to support the civil power in the ordinary execution of its duty or for the protection of the lives and property of the inhabitants in case of a disturbance of the peace. "Mr. Asquith continued: "That is an order issued by the Army Council to-day which has now been approved and which regulates the conduct and discipline of the army in the future." Proceeding with his speech the premier remarked that he must repeat what ministers in both houses of parliament had said several times this week, but in view of the wild legends current it needed to be repeated. He said: "It is altogether untrue that the government or any member of the government ever contemplated active operations of an aggressive character in Ulster or any operations which now or in the future would impose on the army any duty or service which was not amply covered by the terms of this order. To that I have only to add that the government adheres to all the declarations that it has made."

Representatives were then by vote appointed to the Rifle Association, Mess Association and athletic associations. Col. Sergt. Bolt was re-elected as secretary-treasurer. JUDGE SPEAKS ON POLICE TRAPS Remarkable Address to Jury in Charge of Blackmail.

The final stage of a Central Criminal Court trial in which a rubber and oil journal was involved was reached on Thursday, before Mr Justice Darling. Thomas Walter Carter, aged 26, accountant; Edward Beall Boyle, 63, motor agent; James Merchant, 67, accountant, were indicted for feloniously with menaces, demanding money from Mr R. W. Barnett and the Roman Consolidated Oilfields, Limited. The allegation was that the money was demanded as the condition for the cessation of attacks on Mr Barnett and the company in a paper called "Rubber and Oil." The prisoners were found guilty and sentence was postponed pending the hearing of another charge against the accused. The judge, in summing up gave a remarkable address to the jury. He said the charge before the court of demanding money with menaces, might roughly be described as one of blackmail. What blackmail was, he said, was perfectly well known. It was a process carried on since the time when it was indulged in by the Barons on the Rhine, referring to the words, "with intent to steal" in the Statute, the judge quoted from Romeo and Juliet. The astrologer was asked to supply a poison. He did it. What he said was the most pitiful thing that a man could be brought to say, "my poverty and not my will consents," and the cynical retort: "I pay thy poverty and not thy will." A man, the judge pointed out might do what he did not consent to do. He might part with his poverty and might not consent. A man might take money from his pocket and give it with his own hand to a highwayman, and yet he did not consent; and if the highwayman were caught the man who parted with his property would say: "I charge you with stealing my property." Illustrating the point that the same man might at different times and in different circumstances be incapable of yielding to a menace, the judge told a story he read long ago, written, he believed, by Prosper Merimee, of a French officer, who had a quarrel with another man, and a duel was decided upon. The time of the duel arrived, and the man who was to have the first shot found the other absolutely careless and indifferent, eating cherries which he had in his hat. The first man put his pistol into his pocket and announced his intention of coming another day for his shot. The other man meanwhile got married and when a year or two later the first man returned he found his foe in his library with his back to the picture of his young wife. "Good morning," said the first man. "I have come to have that shot that I didn't have a year or two ago." The other man trembled and said, "Well, I didn't mind. If you had shot me then I should not mind, but I will apologize and do anything you like. Take what you will; don't shoot me now." The other officer picked up his pistol and sent a bullet through the heart of the picture, remarking, "I am quite satisfied." Alluding to a trap which, according to the prosecution, was set, and which was commented on by counsel, the judge asked did they expect Scotland Yard to write to a criminal: "We have received information that you have committed a theft, a swindle or a murder, and are going to arrest you. Will you please call at Scotland Yard at once?" If they had a trap they must bait it or they would not catch anything. "If you take up the line that a man who sets a trap is not to be believed on his oath, and if we are to have that sort of doctrine, we might as well sell this place altogether, or turn it into a Sunday school. No people would be tried for anything at all except attempted suicide." A Belleville citizen promised five thousand dollars towards a new children's shelter. Are Beating Feds. Gleaning over baseball dope from the southern training camps, and reading between the lines, having in view some of the players with the Cleveland Naps, especially Dunlop, who while not quite ready for the big show will not be disposed of to the Cleveland American association team for some time to come. Truly, the Federal league folks are a pesky lot. Not only are they causing the major league magnates to spend a lot more money than they would have done and raising the salaries of players with an abandon (but makes fat purses lean, but they are also keeping many ball players in the majors who otherwise would be doing their stunts in minor leagues. For example, among the Naps are a number of players who would greatly strengthen "The Spiders" (Cleveland A.A. team) but neither Birmingham nor the Nap management cares to switch these men until the Feds have shown their full hand and indicated just what they will do. Shortstop George Dunlop who was one of the cheapest ball players ever secured by any major league club, when Cleveland paid $1,500 for him to the London Canadian League team last season; Gene Paulette and Jack Knight are a trio who would greatly strengthen Jimmy Sheppard's Spiders. Their chances of doing anything else with the Naps than warm the bench unless fate deals Joe Birmingham the worst sort of an accidental deal, are practically nil. It is an open secret that if it were not for the Feds, two of these men would not be training over at American instead of Athens. —Hamilton Spectator. Take a Lesson From the Hotel Man!

THE best lighted room in a hotel is the lobby, not because it is a general meeting place for the guests, but because it is the first room they enter on their arrival and the one from which they get their initial impression of the "House". For the same reason, care should be taken in lighting the front hall of your home—it is there that your guests are received. Electric light and Holophane Reflectors will add much to the visitor's impression of your home—the electric light giving the warm glow of welcome and the Holophane Reflectors making this light most economical. In many homes the hall is practically a part of the living-room, a place that, above all else, should be bright and cheerful. And it is here that Holophane Reflectors can be used with especially good effect. The telephone, usually, is in the hall, and an electric light placed near the instrument will save many steps. # Some Strange Fishes Which Carry A Light

At first thought it seems strange to hear of an inhabitant of the sea being provided with a light, but such is the fact, and there are very many other curiosities about as startling to be found deep down in that vast watery storehouse of wonders.

However extensively and beautifully Old Sol's rays cover the ever-changing surface of the great waters, they fail to penetrate beyond a hundred yards these interesting specimens of deep-sea fishes, to be later described, are secured by a system of dredging. These large dredges are attached to cables of great length, and let down and dragged along the sea bottom for some distance, when they are hoisted and their contents examined. It was on an expedition of this nature, directed by Mr. Wyville Thompson of Her Majesty's Steamship "Challenger," in about the year 1878, that the darkness is continually present. Gunter writes that these "bathybiol sea devils" are degraded forms of Lophius, their surface representatives. The substance by which their light is produced is unknown. Their bodies are extremely light and thin in texture and all other parts of their bodies are so loose in texture that the specimens feel flabby as a dish-rag when brought to the surface of the water. This sort of non-resistant body is the hodies which are so very loosely constructed. Both jaws are armed with medium-sized sets of sharp teeth, which have the novel peculiarity of being depressed at the will of the individual. The vertical position of the mouth opening is very convenient for its possessor, but not so much so for any friend who happens to "get taken in."

The outlines of these fishes are anything but graceful, and it is clearly evident that such bulky forms are not fitted for rapid travel. The relation, as far as comparative form is concerned, of these bulky fish to the graceful and narrow trout, might well be compared with that of the canal boat to the sloop-yacht.

There are two other illustrations which give two views of another grotesque specimen of the same family, called "Linophryne Lucifer." At the time his picture was taken he was suffering from the effects of an over-feeding, as will be observed by a careful examination of his distended base line! His mouth points strongly to this weakness of his, and as illustrated, he has actually eaten a fish whole, measuring longer than himself! The drag line hanging from his under chin is not his mother's apron string, as one might imagine, but serves the purpose of a sense organ as it drags along the ocean bottom, letting its possessor know when he has passed some morsel which is worth stopping for. One would think the lantern-like mouth of his eyes would disturb his vision, but we may suppose he is used to it, as it appears to be built there to its side, but was apparently unable to swim away with such a cargo as it encompassed. After such a find as that, the captain gave up turtle hunting, and roved back to the ship where he placed the little fish in spirits for safe preservation. It was later presented to the museum of the University of Christiania.

The grotesque specimen called "Melanocetus Johnsonii," named after its discoverer, Mr. Johnson, who found this strange little fish at Madeira, is the only known specimen so far procured.

Its light-bearing spine is much shorter than some of the other members possess, but the measurements of the mouth would seem to make up for any lack in other possessions. This huge mouth enables the fish to take in other fishes much larger than itself, and to accommodate such "heartily" meals, the sack with which the abdomen is provided may be greatly distended as the stomach requires more room.

This fish is mostly made up of head, and when the mouth is closed, both jaws take the vertical position. The position of the mouth and overhanging light show very clearly their relation to each other and disclose the manner in which this strange fish procures its food.

The peculiar fishes described above belong to the large order of "Angler" fishes, also called "Frog" fishes, a hideous specimen of which is pictured herewith. These latter fishes are found all over the sea bottom, from the depths to more shallow places, and from their unprepossessing appearance it is probably just as well that they reside far away from the gaze of those who enjoy forms which are more pleasing. They lie submerged in the muddy bottom of the ocean, waving the tiny flag with which their long front spine is tipped, and when a too curious customer happens along to investigate the matter, he is "scaared away" by a surprise which is especially prepared for him. It is interesting to observe what long use and natural selection have done in modifying the side fins of these grotesque fellows, so that they partake more of arms than of fins, and are only used to shuffle about among the weeds and grasses of the ocean's bottom in the more shallow places. You will notice or so, therefore, the ocean bottom, even in comparatively shallow places, rests in a darkness so intense, that our darkest night may not be compared therewith. Lieutenant Perry described the darkness of the long polar night as so dense that one seemed to really feel it, but we may imagine that the darkness of the ocean bottom is more complete than even that of a polar night.

The ever-wakeful and constant activity of curious humans, in its best and most intelligent efforts termed "science," is responsible for most of the knowledge that is preserved to us from the past, and is constantly bringing to light added knowledge and theories developed from findings of the present.

In the study of the great fish family, with its wonderful variety of forms and colorings, ranging from the beautiful to the grotesque and hideous, there is provided a large subject of surpassing interest.

There are many varieties of fishes which live near the surface of the sea continually, while others are found deeper down, and still others at great depths. The fishes which form the subject of this article, however, are of the lowest order, in one sense at least, in that their lives are spent most of the time, on the very bottom of the "athomless deep," in that total and intense blackness of everlasting night which continually bathes the vast floor of the ocean's depths.

Certain valuable fossil remains and first specimen of "Mancallia," as one variety of these strange fish is called, was taken. This remarkable specimen of light-bearing fish was brought up at a point in the Middle Atlantic, between the Canary and Cape Verde Islands, where the sea measured 2,400 fathoms in depth, or a trifle over two and one-third nautical miles down! This single specimen secured at this time was described in 1878 by the English naturalist, Sir John Murray, and is preserved at present in that great storehouse of curiosities and treasures—the British Museum. It is not a large fish, being only three and one-half inches in length, and of a uniform blackish color. The general appearance of the specimen referred to may be seen from the illustration of a very similar specimen called "Mancallia Shufeldtii."

lar to these deep sea fishes is the location of the gill openings, which is back of the side, or pectoral, fins. The gill openings are so small in the specimens shown that it is not very easy to find them. The mouths of all the species are huge, and the tiny black eyes of most of these fishes are conveniently located near the top of the head, where they may "keep an eye out" for any creature that is attracted by the suspended light. The black skins of these strange little fishes are completely covered with minute, embedded, conical spines which afford some protection for "Whoever you are as you read this, Whatever your trouble or grief, I want you to know and to heed this. The day draweth near with relief.

No sorrow, no woe, is unending, Though heaven seems voiceless and dumb, Remember your cry is ascending, And an answer will certainly come.

Whatever temptation is near you, Whose eyes on this simple verse fall, Remember good angels will hear you, And help you, so sure as you call!

Who stunned with despair, I beseech you, Whatever your losses, you need, Believe when these printed words reach you, Believe you were born to succeed.

It is often hard to tell, in the modern skirt, which is back and which is front. The skirt pictured here seems actually to have slipped around to one side; but the look of being all askew is considered particularly smart just now. The costume is a new spring model from Doucet and is of green Egyptian crepe with collar and cuffs of Pompadour brocade. The hat has a very new straw brim enclosing a puffed silk crown and the latest type of buttoned boot with high heel and top of cloth, completes the costume.

Sir William Bennett, the famous Mayfair surgeon, whose recent marriage to Miss Gladys Stewart Harrigan was celebrated in St. George Square, London. The bridegroom's request, which was endorsed by his bride, that no presents would be accepted, came as a surprise. The bold lead will no doubt be followed by many couples in the future. On being asked his views on the subject of wedding presents, Sir William Bennett said he had none in particular, he merely held the personal feeling that he did not want to tax his friends. Practices for "The Night in Dreamland" go on apace, with much enthusiasm and lots of enjoyment thrown in. "I'm to be a regular chorus girl," said a pretty maid, as she tiptoed with her feet on the sidewalk, "and there's no end of fun in it." A saving grace of humor is a great gift of the gods. It will no doubt be an enthusiastic audience that will see knighthood in flower again, with lance and gold lace, befeathered caps, ye knights of old, brave and bold, back to earth. Spring Styles Meet Need of Every Type

By Madge Marvel

NEW YORK, March 11. AFTER viewing gowns for spring and summer till my head reeled with ruffles and tunics and flowered stuffs, I tried to conjure up the mental image of the woman who might reasonably complain she had been left out of the reckoning when the styles of the season were created. The effort was fruitless.

There is homage paid to every age and every type. There is an encouragement of individuality, which reflects the mind freedom of the era. We are given a voice in the matter of what we shall wear. It is made a personal responsibility whether we are going to look well or not. We are neither commanded nor asked to become slaves to any set mode.

A bewildering range of models is offered, and we are encouraged to adapt them to our own needs. The well dressed woman is the one who makes the style suit her instead of trying to recast herself to fit the style.

Most New Styles Sane.

They say in the best shops women were never buying so many gowns so early in the season. Summer frocks are being selected in generous manner, and the spring gowns were picked up before they were ready for exhibition.

There is no attempt to deny the extremeness of some of the raw modes, but the majority are so delightfully sane no one has the slightest reason to revile or ridicule the few which do not make personal appeal. It is like so much the way in which serge and taffeta are combined in the plain street gown.

A model in dark blue is ideal for the business woman, and practical for any woman. The bodice, cut in one with the sleeves, blouse slightly over the waist. There is a shawl collar of silk with silk revers, which extend to the waist line and are brought forward in such a way as to give the effect of a vest. There is an inner vest of embroidered mullu. The sleeves are long and have turned back taffeta cuffs.

The tunic of serge has a decided ripple. It hangs free from the left over a foundation skirt of thin silk. It reaches below the hips and falls over a six-inch ruffe of taffeta, which gives the look of a second tunic. Below the serge skirt is narrowed toward the feet, but has a cunningly concealed inner inverted pleat at the hem which gives comfortable room.

A Smart Taffeta Model.

One of the smartest frocks for afternoon wear I saw on a girl in Sherry's. It was of flowered taffeta, the dull blue ground strewn with pink and yellow pinroses. The skirt was draped full at the hips in the exaggerated peg-top style, and drawn in close at the hem. The bodice evidenced the snugness which is growing more popular each day. It was quite plain with a vest cream lace, a touch of gold and an arrangement of dull rose silk repeating one of the shades of the flowers just at the bust line. The long sleeves were set in at the shoulder with a half-inch of heavy silk heading done by hand.

Two young women in the Litz at the tea hour wore gowns illustrative of some of the newest fancies. One was of dark blue chambrase with three apricot ruffles winding around the skirt in cork-screw fashion. Her hat was a tiny affair of blue straw, with pink and yellow trim around the crown and a cluster of them under the brim at the side which turned abruptly up. The other friend wore a taffeta, changing green and silver, with a tight fitting bodice and a berth of lace drawn well down on the shoulders and fastened with a silk rose.

About the knees was a wide double box pleated ruche of the silk, the edges being pinked. The hat was of black straw, one side of the brim turning up on the crown so it gave the effect of being all crown and at the highest point was poised a bright green wing.

The Kind of Girl a Man Likes

BY NORVELL ELLIOTT

The Girl's Mother SUCH a tiny little domicile it was, only three rooms, a bath and a porch the size of a canary bird cage. Yet the neighborhood was the best in the city, and the apartment house itself catered to high-class tenants.

"Since we cannot have quantity we've insisted on quality," said Anne and her mother when they certainly got, quality in both apartment and in the kind of people who dropped in at all hours of the day and evening. As for Anne's beaux they were ALWAYS on hand, and two or three of them practically made the room a party headquarters.

On balmy evenings the tiny porch was called into use, and a hanging basket or two, a soft light, a pretty tea table, a few chairs, presto! Anne had as ideal a spot in which to be made love to as any girl could wish. That Anne certainly was "made love to" was never a subject for argument. It was a simple and undisputed fact. Anne was made for love, and there were never less than four men at a time ready to put their savings bank accounts and their hearts at her feet.

As my bachelor friend and I left the apartment Mrs. Ragsdale came to the door with us, while Anne and her latest triumph waved good-bye from the porch. "I wonder if Anne appreciates her husband the man by my side as we strolled leisurely along in the unusually balmy air. "Anne is attractive, I will admit, but alone she never would be as popu-

JUST an artist's whimsical notion—a bon-bon box crowded with beauties. And yet, Mr. Cynic, there is something rather pretty about the notion, if you don't mind. The bon-bon box means sweetness—you'll admit that. Then ask yourself, Where shall you look for the sweetness of LIFE, with more certainty of finding it, than in the unspoiled youth of womanhood? Much given, you will say, to the friveries of fashion, and laughing at the world over which you frown so frequently. But what WOULD you have her do with this droll world? If she brings it the promise of spring, the fragrance of the flowers, the music of happy nature, the gentle gayeties of confident cheerfulness, is not the world so much to the good? Find your bon-bon box—that's the game for you. Welcome sweetness where you find it, and see that YOU do nothing to turn it sour.

A "Blarney Stone" Dinner

By Jeannette Young Norton

FOR a Blarney Stone dinner on a cloth of white silkoline covered with stone gray chifton. In the centre place a large glass plate and on it a fair-sized imitation Blarney Stone, bank the edge with early white and yellow hyacinths and galax leaves, and in the glass lake effect at the base of the stone put some tiny boats with red sails. By each service plate place a flat wreath of the galax leaves with white hyacinth growing in a thumb pot, having the place card tied to the handle. Gray and white china is the best to use, and yellow candles with shades green and red.

These favors may include tiny serpents, pigs, potatoes, white high hats, little shamrock plants in Belek pots, cotton cheese and any number of other attractive novelties. The jellies, sauces, creams and other edibles must be in the red and green coloring as much as possible to carry out the effect. The Blarney punch may be served right through the dinner, but beware not to take too freely, for it is as deceiving as the stone in the centre of the table in its blandishments.

Daddy's Good Night Story. By GEORGE HENRY SMITH. Illustration of a man and a child.

THERE is a good wind today," said Sammy Squirrel to Billy Bunny. "Let's make a kite." "Why not make an airship while we are about it?" replied Billy. "Because an airship will not fly on a windy day like this," said Sammy. "I know a lot about airships. I made one once." "Did you?" exclaimed Billy. "How did you do it? Jack and I have always wanted to have an airship." "Well," answered Sammy. "The way to go about it is to start learning all about kites." "Come on, then, and let's make a kite," said Billy. When it was finished they both went out into the wind. The kite was nearly as big as Sammy, and when they stepped out of the door the wind almost took them off their feet. "Be careful not to get tangled up in the twine," cautioned Sammy. "I'll look out," replied his companion. Soon the kite was soaring high in the air, first Sammy holding it, then Billy. A sudden gust of wind caught the kite and carried it higher and higher so fast that Billy could not play out the line, and the kite carried him right up over the tops of the trees. "Hold on! Hold on!" shouted Sammy, running after Billy. Suddenly the kite dropped a little, and Billy landed in the top of a tree. "Wait! Wait!" shouted Sammy. Billy held on fast to the limb of the tree until Sammy scampered up beside him. "I don't like flying kites," whined Billy. The twine was caught in the tree and sammy gnawed it with his teeth until the kite was loose. "Here you," he said to Billy, "pass this around you and I will let you down to the ground. What use has a rabbit for himself when he's in a tree?" "I don't know," answered Billy. When Sammy lowered Billy to the ground he hopped down the tree beside him and said: "Now let's make an airship." "Not today!" exclaimed Billy, as he hopped off home.

March Winds Dangerous for Weak Throats

By Dr. L. K. HIRSHBERG

A. B. M. A. M. D. (Johns Hopkins). Copyright, 1914, by L. K. HIRSHBERG.

IN spite of the early looks of March and threats of more wintry weather, the moist earth is nursing trailing arbutus, lilacs and April violets. Of all its desolate domain, one of the widest of the March horrors is a dread malady of childhood and youth, which spreads a gloom like the dead vegetable kingdom of dumb winter through the habitations of man. St. Vitus dances in this needy, hollow-eyed, sharp-looking wretch of an infection; a living graveyard of malicious microbes. It assails youth and childhood through the tunnels of the tonsils. Thence it ravages the human tapestries like the busy needles of medieval Gobelins households.

Tonsillitis is lightly thought to be "only a sore throat." Like narrow brooks that rise with sudden showers tonsillitis swells in haste and falls again, only to leave the fertile solum in your veins and arteries teeming with venomous bacteria of inflammatory heart maladies, inflamed al-bow and knuckles and St. Vitus dance. The present day dancing is a graceful, useful art, which is saving modern civilization from undigested supper and fatty degeneration of the abdominal bow window.

The Ghost dances of the North American Indians and the decky camp meeting dances are types of hysteria useful for riots, mob-outbreaks, religious fanaticism and emotional excitement. It was in Strassbourg in 1418, that the name St. Vitus dance was given to yet the epidemic of jerky convulsive movements. St. Vitus was a Sicilian youth who was martyred by the Roman Emperor Diocletian in 303.

Nowadays this March microbe is recognized as bacterial in nature. Star-eyed science thus distinguishes between a dangerous infection from a much scored and disdained ailment of the shaky muscles. Beware, then, the germ-flying winds of March. Hold tight the liping lips lest the lascivious, lurking virus set sail for the sugar-lip tonsils. Once in there, weeks in bed and worse worries will be yours.

In The World Of Labor

A Budget of News For Those Interested in Labor

By G. A. M.

Gleaned From the Exchanges and Other Sources

What Trade Unionism Has Done For Woman

Trades unionism in the face of the bitterest opposition has always consistently fought the battle for the elevation of womanhood, and, what is more, it has always fought alone. Organized labor insists that woman has a right to equal remuneration with men for equal service or work performed. It is unfortunate that in the past this truth has not been recognized by those on whose behalf it has been waged. Everywhere and upon every occasion, organized labor has asserted the equality of women. Its agitation has gained her better wages and forced unscrupulous employers to treat her with respect. Before the advent of the United Garment Workers of America, the lot of the sewing girls and women in the big centres was a veritable hell on earth. The only place in which female labor as a rule was employed was the detestable sweat shop. It was next to impossible for a girl to earn an honest livelihood. Organized labor to a large extent changed all that. The union shop, and the union label of the garment workers became a powerful weapon in enforcing recognition of female labor. For the first time the unorganized and helpless girls and women of the large cities found the doors of unions open to them and thousands of workers ready to battle on their behalf.

disorganized mass of undisciplined workers, the sweatshop employer found that his girls had an organization behind them, and the result was that hundreds of sweatshops were abolished and the female workers emancipated. It is true that the sweatshop still exists and that thousands of women and young girls are still exploited, but the good work of the U. G. W. of A. and organized labor in general has changed conditions for thousands upon thousands of female workers the majority of whom have never joined a union or realize what organized labor has accomplished in their behalf. The wages of the female workers have doubled and have been open to them. If there is a class anywhere who should appreciate and uphold the principles of unionism, it is the female worker. It has always been recognized that the reason why women were oppressed and received small wages was because she was unorganized and powerless to protect herself, and it was only after a powerful union opened its doors to her and took up the battle on her behalf that her wages were increased and her status improved. In union there is strength. When the union women understand the truth they will be eager to join hands with the only organization on earth that has persistently and always fought in their behalf.

Fighting Tuberculosis

Trades Unions the Pioneers

We hear a great deal these times on the question of the prevention of tuberculosis. The doctors assure us that the disease is preventable and the best antidote is plenty of good, wholesome, nourishing food and pure air and sunshine. By a strange sort of irony or inconsistency, call it what you like, the very people who are most directly responsible for the existence of the dread disease are the individuals who pose as philanthropists and who are contributing large sums to combat its appalling ravages. For many years past the trades unions have made a special study of this question. The Typographical union, in connection with the Printers' Home in Colorado Springs, Col., has a hospital annex where members of the craft, suffering from tuberculosis, can secure scientific treatment. Statistics of various international unions, in particular the Cigarmakers and Typographical union, show most conclusively that the reduction in the working hours has been followed by a most marked decrease in the death-rate from tuberculosis. The most fruitful source of tuberculosis or consumption is the unhealthy sweat-shops of labor that prevail in many vocations. Thousands of children are contracting the dread disease who would grow up to be healthy men and women, but that work and confinement have made them easy victims by undermining their constitutions and sapping their energy before arriving at the years of maturity. Millions of workers have to labor ten and twelve hours per day shut out from pure air and the invigorating sunshine; other millions do not earn sufficient wages to buy the necessary food to wage off disease. These are the main causes for the alarming prevalence of tuberculosis and kindred diseases, and the real remedy is shorter hours of labor, sanitary workshops and a living wage and it is these very objects that trade unionism is organized to obtain. Did you ever think this up

Don't Be Afraid

You can't make a real success without making real enemies.

You can't hold a strong position without strong opposition.

You won't seem right to any, if you don't seem wrong to many.

A useful life can't be entirely peaceful and carefree.

You must do your duty as you see it.

Every earnest man in every generation has paid the price of individuality.

You can't dodge.

The greater you are the greater the penalty of your progress.

The further you go the wider your range, the more you increase the points of contact with which you must reckon and, therefore, you multiply your battles against misconception, slander, envy and malice.

No man without enemies ever does anything for labor.

Honest, sincere and consistent officers should be continued in office.

Experience is a very good teacher.

In every sphere men gibe and sneer, even the peace of the ditch digger is threatened by the unemployed laborer who covets a job.

So long as you aspire others will conspire.

So long as you try, others will vie.

You'll have hostilities to face in every place and at every pace.

Go straight to your goal.

So long as your conscience isn't ashamed to acknowledge you as a friend don't give a rap for your enemies.—John H. Baker in Painter and Decorator.

A WINTER'S TALE.

"Cornelius Husk was called one winter morning before dawn and told to go and harness the mule to the deadborn.

"The lad was too busy to light a lantern, and in the dark he didn't notice that one of the cows was in the stable with the mule.

"As he tried to harness the cow his father, impatient at the long delay shouted from the house.

"'Corney, Corney. What are you doin'?"

"'I can't get the collar over the mule's head,' he boy replied, 'his ears are frozen.'"

A Decrease

The Department of Labor's report for February shows a slight decrease in prices as will be seen from the following index number:

February, 1914	136.1
January, 1914	136.5
February, 1913	135.8

The numbers, it will be understood, are percentages in each case of the average price level prevailing during the decade 1890-1899, the period selected by the Department as the standard of comparison throughout its investigation into wholesale prices. Some 272 articles, carefully selected to represent Canadian production and consumption, are included in the calculation.

The Department's index number showed a slight decline in February, as compared with the preceding month, as a result of lower prices in dairy products (especially eggs), in animals and meats (chiefly in poultry). Grains and fodder, however, were somewhat upward. Textiles, were down slightly, but lumber, paints and oils, and furs averaged slightly higher.

The chief increases as compared with the same period a year ago were in animals and meats, dairy products, textiles, hides leathers, boots and shoes and house furnishings. Decreases appear in fish, miscellaneous groceries, metals and implements, furs and sundries.

Labor Conditions—General Summary

Industrial conditions were quiet during February. The slackening of outside work was more noticeable than usual, owing to the severity of the weather. As a result there were many unemployed throughout the country, the localities chiefly affected being Montreal, Toronto and some of the Western cities, notably Vancouver. Little was done on the farms and the fishing industry was generally quiet, adverse weather prevailing on the Atlantic coast. Good progress was made in the lumber industry. In some parts of New Brunswick the season's cut was completed considerably earlier than usual. Reports from the Nova Scotia collieries were not so favourable. The industry was hampered also on Vancouver Island by the long continued dispute. Manufacturing in some lines was more active; the general output, however, was smaller than usual. Railroad construction was discontinued in some sections, but a revival of activity is looked for with the opening of the 1914 season. Transport workers experienced a decline in activity, the earnings of the important railroads falling off as compared with the previous year. The building trades were very quiet, and the number of unskilled workers available was considerably in excess of the demand. There was no marked commercial activity. Immigration was not so heavy as during 1913.

Be Good

The other day we told a story of a poor girl in Chicago, only 19, alone and dependent on her small earnings for whatever life was to bring to her. The little girl turned on the gas one night, but they revived her enough for her to talk before she died, and she asked the doctor a "funny" question: "Did you ever live on fifteen-cent dinners for six months?" A sad little story testifying to human suffering that must make us ask: "What have we to do?"

Now comes another story of another working girl in Chicago. She is 18 years old and making her own living in a bindery. When she does well she can make $6 or $7 a week. She used to make a little more making ties, but she fell ill, and the doctor told her she must give up standing on her feet all day. And $6 or $7 do not go very far. In a little $2-a-week room this girl cooks her own meals,

The Wrongs Of Centuries

MUST BE RIGHTED.

The impoverished condition of the masses of the people has become the great problem of the age and the problem must be met and solved peaceably, or those who have felt the agony of want and hunger will little longer suffer in patience while a comparatively few revel in incident splendor. The time is near at hand when the wrongs of centuries must be righted peaceably, if possible, or by the united power of a class who have borne the burden of the world while their patience has been wrecked by the speers and insults of a master class.

Large bodies move slowly, but when such bodies move, their power is irresistible and invincible. The struggling millions of the earth will little longer bear the pangs of poverty in mute submission, while the war-houses of every nation are bursting with the necessities of life which labor has produced, but which labor cannot buy. The impoverished masses are realizing that the filled warehouses of the world are the result of labor being underpaid and robbed by an oligarchy of merciless despots who have climbed to loftier heights as human being have sunk lower into the dregs of degradation.

Industrial tyranny must die, and upon its ruins must be built a real democracy where man can "love his neighbor as himself."—Miners Magazine.

A MISERABLE OLD HUMBAG

If I hire a number of girls for a miserable pittance of a couple of dollars a week and grow rich on the work they have done for me and I give away thousands in charity (sham) I may, of course, and probably will, be called a Christian and philanthropist (sham again), but all the same away down in the bottom of my heart I feel, and my conscience assures me I am, a miserable old humbug and contemptible hypocrite turn some of that money to the girls. First I ought to be honest and, whose labor created it, but then, it's the way of the world, and besides, there are other lines in which smart girls ought to be able to earn a little more money and get good clothes. Anyway I am respectable and move in good society, and what I do is proper and perfectly lawful, and there are a whole lot of people, in fact, the majority who get a chance, who act just the same as me, if no worse. This is a free country, and if the girls don't want to work for the wages I give them they can quit, they would not work for me anyway if somebody else would give them more, so even if I am a miserable old humbug and contemptible hypocrite, it's the plan on which our twentieth century civilization is reared, and it is eminently respectable. It is money that counts and keep you in the swim. "How can I pay my girls decent wages and be a philanthropist and Christian at the same time? That's what I want to know?"

Unionism's High Aim

Labor unions stand for the shortening of the hours of labor, for the abolition of child labor, for the changing of conditions which make enforced idleness necessary, for the education and enlightenment of the youth of our land, for a better citizenship and for wages that will make these things possible. Show us another class of organization that aims so high, so patriotic, so fraught with good for everybody.

UNION STEAM AND OPERATING ENGINEERS

The members of the local union of International Steam and Operating Engineers are naturally taking a great deal of interest in the new insurance system being introduced into the organization. Under its provisions the heirs of a deceased member will receive the sum of $1,000. Under the terms of a new contract agreed upon between the general executive and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the latter guarantees to insure the entire membership of the organization at the rate of $125 per month or $1,500 per year. All members, no matter how young or old they may be, come under its operation. There is no medical fees or examination whatever. The increase in the dues will only be an amount to cover the actual cost of insurance and the rate of $15 per year is looked upon as a most reasonable one. Death benefits will be paid in all cases after September 1st, 1914.

TENACIOUSLY GOOD

Is there any institution in the world to-day more splendid in its ambitions and more doggedly struggling to achieve them than the labor movement. Is there any other cause calling to its aid more unselfish and loyal character than this same labor movement? Is there any other organization more persistently and viciously misrepresented by its enemies? Is there any movement for the uplift of humanity progressing more steadily and surely? Is there any set of men less vindictive and more forgiving of their enemies than those engaged in guiding the destinies of the humble toilers?—Ex.

A COUNTRY WHERE MEN AND WOMEN HAVE EQUAL RIGHTS

A Close Study of the Position of Norwegian Women and How They Won Suffrage Without Militancy, Described by a Student.

(Special Dispatch.) CHRISTIANA, March 28.—THE first and most vivid impression received by the student who moves among Norwegian women is the position of women. It seems to differ from their present position in any other country of Europe. They are not submissive, like the English or American women, and yet they are not aggressive. They are neither timid nor loud. They dress with modesty, and they dress fittingly, as when they are out for sport. But the great fact is their social position. Here they really seem to move among men as equals; and that position seems to be now accepted without any real damage either to the womanhood or the manhood of the country. On the contrary, both seem to be better for it. The achievement of the voting power by Norwegian women is only a part of this vast movement, which is represented by a claim to equality in society as a whole. The women of Norway have worked for that greater aim simultaneously with the suffrage agitation ever since 1885, and they have achieved their aims together. Practically all the professions are now open to women in Norway, except the priesthood and the army. Men and women are educated together at school and college. They form clubs and societies together for sports, pleasure and serious objects. The young men, indeed, are now said to refuse to have separate societies, and the two sexes are more and more working together in all spheres of life. Women sit on juries, and there is now one woman judge. And yet Norway does not sink into the sea. On the contrary, she has, by general consent, never been so prosperous.

The vote is the banner and the emblem of this movement, the crown of woman's claim in Norway. The story of the way in which the women of Norway secured the vote will be deeply interesting at the present moment. There was no violence of any kind—not even interruptions of meetings. The women obtained the vote without losing their womanhood. The victory came in the end quite peacefully and by the consent of all parties. The Prime Minister was asked and every article was marked in the way usual at Selfridge's.

On another afternoon the Duchess of Marlborough lent Sunderland House for a concert in aid of Princess Christian's Mother Home, but was unable to be present to receive the Princess, owing to mourning. Her place was taken by Lady Blandford.

WHEN THE DIVORCE COURT IS BUSY IN ENGLAND

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, March 28.—MATRIMONIAL litigation was the only kind in which, according to official figures issued the other day, an increase is to be recorded. The main interest in the figures lies in a detailed analysis of the cases that came before the Divorce Court of London. The total number of divorce petitions for the year 1912, the latest for which figures are available, was 291, the largest number ever recorded in London. Of these 196 were brought by husbands and 144 by wives. In addition to these cases there were 122 petitions by wives for the extinction of conjugal rights, "many of them doubtless intended to found claims on account of desertion."

Other kindred matrimonial cases brought before the court were 1,128, and an analysis of the duration of the marriages involved gives the following result:—Under 1 year.... 17 10 to 20 years.... 440 1 to 2 years.... 25 20 and more.... 153 2 to 3 years.... 45 Unknown.... 1 3 to 10 years.... 275

Thus it is evident that the great majority of marriage failures are not discovered till at least ten years after the wedding. It is noteworthy, however, that the parties in the 1128 cases included fifty-eight husbands and 254 wives who were twenty-one years of age. In nearly two-thirds of the total number of marriages concerned there was either one or only one child, while in only ten cases was there a large family. Here are the figures as to the number of children:—

Table with 4 columns: Children, Cases, Children, Cases. Rows include None, One, Two, Three to six, Four, Five, Six or more.

An analysis of the occupations of the husbands suggests that professional employments most often lead to divorce. The figures are as follows:—Professional employments.... 38 Trade.... 347 Manufacturing.... 211 Navigation.... 24 Domestic service.... 24 Agriculture.... 24 Inland transport.... 17 Mining.... 17 No occupation.... 71 ind airs and graces of these women, who are the marks of their struggles to reach the counters of the titled saleswomen and now wanted to monopolize them for the day in selecting cheap notions. But while coining the new idea a great improvement on charity bazaars, the saleswomen said some persons were very hard to please.

The King is a "perfect glutton for work." He began the week in delectable style. Maudslayi was a particularly busy day. Always an early riser, he was at Olympia early in the morning for the zero show and passed two hours there, being especially interested in the seat planes, which now look more like motor boats with wings added. The King wanted to know what happened to the mechanism when a biplane fell on the surface of the water and was crumpled by a big sea. He was very curious about the weight lifting capacity of Britain's new arm in the first line of defence and was much amused by the remark that the makers did not despair and the day was coming when they will be able to lift the weight of the Mauretania.

After a hurried luncheon, accompanied by the Queen, Princess Mary, Princess Victoria and Prince Waldemar of Denmark, he attended a matinee at the Palladium in aid of the Chelsea Hospital for Women. The Queen looked charming in a ruby velvet dress and toque of the same shade, trimmed with feathers to match. She wore a long black velvet coat, with a deep border of sable. Princess Mary looked simple and sweet in a cyclamen, pink and white hat, bordered with pink velvet. Princess Victoria wore a slate blue velvet and blue hat, and a black velvet coat.

EXPERT'S CRITICISM OF GERMAN WAR SHIPS

MODERN German war ship design is discussed in a highly critical article in the Engineer. The writer makes some striking comments on the fighting power of German battle ships. The earlier German Dreadnoughts, he says, "may justly be said to be unsatisfactory in general design, even as regards their own naval service. Compared with the vessels of the British Superb class which were laid down in the same year, they are markedly inferior."

Wise Dog Knows Its Own Master

English Magistrate Permits Little Animal to Decide Question of Ownership. A man named Frederick Morris was brought before Mr. Gillespie, charged with having in his possession a dog which a Mr. Terris, of Custom House, claimed as his.

When Terris called the dog and found it "Morris," he called to the dog, "Judy," said Jackson to the Magistrate, "my old bitch. You remember her, sir? This man bought her off me."

When Terris called "Floss," the dog wagged out of the Magistrate's arms and made for its master in a great state of excitement. "So," said Mr. Gillespie, "the dog has decided the case for itself."

Criticising Father. Washington Star: "Father used to have to hurry through his work in order to get to the golf links in the afternoon," said Maude. "Yes," replied Maude, "and now he has to hurry away from the dancing party in order to get his breakfast and go to work in the morning."

CROWN PRINCESS TAKES A PROMINENT PART IN BERLIN'S SOCIAL LIFE

With Her Husband She is in the Front of Public Interest—Kaiser Attends a Performance at Which a Dialect Playlet Is Produced and Enjoys the Entire Evening.

(Special Dispatch.) BERLIN, March 28.—THE Crown Prince and Princess have been in the forefront of public interest this week, having given a series of very brilliant soirées besides attending the Russian ballet. The Crown Princess, who is a great patron of music, was among the listeners to a programme of Beethoven sonatas, given by Mr. Edgen of Albers and Mr. B. Hutermann. At the second command theatrical performance for the Crown Prince at the palace a one-act dialect comedy by Dr. Ludwig Ganzhofer was rendered at the request of the Kaiser, who was present and enjoyed the spirit of the playlet.

On Wednesday evening crowds gathered about the entrance of the palace, hoping to catch a glimpse of the guests invited to participate in the costume fete. Among the guests were the American Ambassador and Mrs. Gerard and the Ambassador's private secretary, Mr. L. Lanier Winslow, who was in the dress of a sixteenth century duellist.

The Circus Busch, one of Berlin's widest known institutions, had a red letter day this week before closing its doors permanently on April 1 on account of the heavy recreation tax imposed by the Prussian government. Society in large numbers gathered at the huge amphitheatre to witness a gala performance for charity. The repertoire was carefully selected. The big spectacle, "The Fall of Pompeii," brought the programme to a close. In the absence of the Kaiserin, who is in Brunswick with her daughter, the duties of representation devolved upon the Crown Princess.

Beautiful Coronation Tapestry, 'Arming of the King,' Nearly Done

(Special Dispatch.) LONDON, March 28.—THE coronation tapestry, "The Arming of the King," which Queen Mary, Princess Mary, and Prince Albert have been to see at Messrs. Morris & Co.'s works, Merton Park, has taken two years to weave. Began soon after the coronation, it will be finished next May, and almost daily in the course of this period four skilled workers have been engaged on it. Except for the looms there is no machinery in Messrs. Morris' works. Everything is done by hand in accordance with the ideals of the founder.

The tapestry is a rich mass of beautiful colors, and the basis of its design was obtained from a cartoon in Punch by Mr. Bernard Partridge—King George, in steel armor, stands on a dais under a canopy, which the arms of the crown are suspended. Around him are four maidens—Fortitude, Justice, Wisdom, and Prudence. Behind him stand St. Edward and St. Edmund, the figures are slightly more than life size, while the whole tapestry is about fifteen feet by twelve feet.

Countess Author of New Cook Book

Lady Dudley, After One Successful Experiment, Gives More Recipes to Housewives. (Special Dispatch.) LONDON, March 28.—GEOFFINA Countess of Dudley is about to publish another cookery book. The Countess, believing with Milton that "nothing lovelier can be found in woman than to study household good," has been collecting recipes for many years, jotting them down at odd moments on scraps of paper. Some of these were printed five years ago in a "Dudley Cookery Book," which has run into so many editions that the Countess is now encouraged to issue the remainder in an additional "Book of Recipes."

Although Lady Dudley knows much about recipes favored by royalty and cooks with extravagantly ornate dishes, most of them are quite intelligible to the average cook, while the ingredients are not prohibitive to persons of ordinary means. The volume already issued is given a literary flavor by the inclusion of numerous apt quotations such as Oscar Wilde's "After a good dinner one can forgive anybody, even one's relations," and Dr. Wharton's quaint rhyme, "Muddle at home makes the husband roam."

The aristocratic cook was in her hey-day the most celebrated beauty of mid-Victorian times. Previous to her marriage at the age of nineteen to the fabulously wealthy Earl of Dudley, her senior by some thirty years, she was famous as one of the seven Montefit sisters, whose loveliness made all London talk in the late sixties. During her married life she entertained all the royalties and celebrities of the day at Dudley House.

Charity Bazaar Is Voted a Great Success and London Enjoys the Idea. (Special Dispatch.) LONDON, March 28.—THE pre-Easter court functions have now come to an end, society, especially that portion unable to send along applications in time, is looking forward to future events, but with the exception of two days, when racing enthusiasts deserted town for the Wolverhampton steeplechases and hurdle races, London has been wonderfully lively. The King and Queen continue to set a good example by going about much to entertainments in aid of charity or lending their patronage. Society naturally is following, with much benefit to the institutions concerned.
