RUSSIAN PLACERS

Are Very Greatly Exaggerated, Says U. S. Consul General Hollway.

THE AMERICANS ARE NOT FAVORED

Nor Is Any Ukase Likely to Be Issued Favoring Them.

MANILA'S MINERAL WEALTH.

Expert William Odun Says It Is the Richest Country in the World.

Petersburg, April 17, via Skagway, April 24.—U. S. Consul Gen. Hollway is in receipt of numerous letters from Americans regarding the probability of their being permitted to mine in Siberia. He stated to an Associated Press representative that he had conferred with the heads of the Russian government and that no ukase has been issued or is likely to be issued favoring Americans. The consul suggests that petitions might be addressed to the czar asking permission to prospect in Siberia or other Russian territory, but it would probably take two years to get a reply. The value of Russian placers, says the consul, is very much exaggerated and, in fact, Russia has no advantages to offer Americans.

Manila's Mineral Wealth.

San Francisco, April 18, via Skagway, April 24.—William Odun, who has visited every mining country from South Africa to the Klondike, has just reached here from a trip to Manila, where, he says, are the greatest indications of mineral wealth he has ever seen. He is convinced that the richest mineral country in the world is on the island of Luzon.

Odun is here for the purpose of organizing a company of ex-soldiers, who have been in Manila and who are anxious to return for the purpose of prospecting the Vigan mountains and other parts of that country.

Immigrants Coming West.

St. Paul, Minn., March 28.—Four thousand immigrants passed through St. Paul today and tonight, requiring 300 cars to convey them. Of this number 200 go to Washington, 500 to Manitoba and the remainder to North Dakota.

The Northern Pacific has a party of about 1000 to go to Washington in April, and others to follow later. Cape Nome travel is gaining daily.

The Danish West Indies.

Washington, March 28.—The state department adds its denial to that of the Danish foreign office relative to the Paris story that the United States had completed the acquisition of the Danish West Indies.

There are indications that the negotiations which for so long occupied the attention of the two governments at intervals may be attended by success at a reasonably early date, but it is certainly premature to announce their conclusion at this moment.

Praise for Hay's Diplomacy.

London, March 28.—The afternoon newspapers here unanimously applaud Secretary Hay's diplomatic achievement in establishing the doctrine of the open door in China, and say his success is much more considerable than hitherto realized.

Assistant Health Officer.

It is currently reported that the authorities are contemplating the appointment of an officer whose duty it will be to inspect meat, supervise the cleaning of disorderly premises, and assume control of the derelict matter on the waterfront. It is asserted that Sheriff Eilbeck will probably be appointed to fill this position. He is eminently qualified, and his appointment would give entire satisfaction to the merchants and property owners of the city.

Around the Reservation

Many substantial improvements are being made on and around the government reservation where the barracks are situated in the upper portion of the city. The sidewalk is being continued on to the point where the business houses begin on the street south of the commissary building; another walk is being constructed to the telegraph office, and many short cross walks are being put down.

A new six-foot paling fence has been erected on the north and a portion of east-side of the reservation, and will be continued on around, so as to also enclose the south side as far as the telegraph office.

A ditch from five to eight feet deep is being dug for the purpose of draining the drill ground in the square of the V. F. F. department. The spirit of progression and public improvement is more apparent on and around the reservation than in any other portion of the city at the present time.

CROWDED COURT THIS MORNING

Schedule Price Is $10, With Court Costs Added.

DID HE STEAL A HOUSE?

Pair of Plain Drunks—A Variegated Optic—Hard Hitter Pays $20 and Costs.

This was sanitation day in the police court, and if sickness in Dawson during the summer can be prevented by rigid enforcement of the health ordinances, there will be an era of unprecedented healthfulness enjoyed in the metropolis of the broad, white north.

Albert E. West, on the charge of not cleaning up the filth about his premises on Second avenue, plead not guilty; but the evidence of Constable Barrows, the prosecuting witness in all the cases, corroborated by a fellow officer, left an impression that the premises in question are in bad sanitary condition. However, the case was continued until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

"Kowkane," the Jap proprietor of the Hotel Northern on Second avenue, plead not guilty to the same charge; postponed until this afternoon.

Isaac Buren, a First avenue merchant, with the many gestures and gesticulations common to his race, denied that his back yard next to the Dawson City hotel, is littered with cans, bottles, eggs, rags, slops and other filth which the constables swore emit a strong and offensive odor. Isaac's case was continued until this afternoon, but he persisted in explaining how it "was" until peremptorily ordered to quit and sit down.

Justin Stewart also plead innocence of the same charge and will be heard this afternoon.

J. L. Hill, on the same charge, will be heard at the session of the court this afternoon.

F. C. Thompson plead guilty and paid a fine of $10 and costs. He admitted that the premises in question were not pansy beds.

F. Kelly plead not guilty; but the evidence indicated that he was. He also paid $10 and costs.

Geo. Larsen allowed his case to go to trial, but he traveled the same road as his predecessors—$10 and costs.

J. M. White will defend the charge of not cleaning his premises this afternoon. As White has occupied the place but a few days, he will plead in extenuation that the filth is not of his making.

For not discerning between respectable intoxication and beastly drunkenness, Geo. Slocum was fined $10 and costs.

J. H. Elliott had followed Slocum's smoke until he also became "d. and d." Ten dollars and costs of his money were required to appease outraged law.

Some years ago a Chicago man stole a brick block and succeeded in moving it several blocks and locating on his own lot and occupying it several weeks before being found out by the owner; but it has remained for a Dawson man named De Lodge to be arrested on the charge of stealing a log cabin and moving it bodily from the premises of Johansen, the owner. The case was continued until Friday at 10 o'clock. In the meantime De Lodge is in the royal jail.

Alphonso Bouly, with his face in a sling and an eye that looked as though it had been put forward to stop a B. & O. coal train, was in court. The artist who had given the color to the optic was also in court in the person of "Kid" Parks, who conducts the games at the Madden house. The defendant attempted to prove justifiable assault in that Bouly had persistently annoyed him for an hour or more. The court informed Parks that when a man became troublesome in his place of business it is his duty to call on a policeman to enforce order; that under no circumstances is he justified to assault a man in his place, and that, therefore, a fine of $20 and costs would be imposed.

To Branch Out.

Ed. Harrison who, with five others, has been building up a dump on the hillside opposite 27 on Bonanza since the first of last July, which dump is among the largest in the district, is in the city for the purpose of procuring for himself and partners two or three pack horses for use on the Koyukuk cut-off when navigation opens. The "Big Six" has decided to send two, possibly three, of its members to the new fields as soon as it is possible to get there. In the meantime the big dumps opposite 27 is still growing, the work of sluicing not having yet been begun.

Heel and Toe Race.

On Tuesday the first day of May, at 7 o'clock, p. m., will take place the one-mile heel and toe race between Messrs. Fred Thoenner and Bert Ford. The starting point will be on First avenue, near the postoffice the laps being a certain distance to be measured off up and down the street. The race is for a purse of $250 a side with $50 forfeit now up in the hands of Tom Chisholm. It is probable that the referee for the occasion will be Montague Martin.

Wood Is High.

The price of wood for fuel still keeps up to $25, and but few dealers are handling it at any price. For a few days in March the price dropped from the winter price—$18 to $16, but only for a very short time when the disappearance of the snow making hauling difficult, it went up to $20, and has since raised to $25, which, with $5 for sawing, makes a cord of wood ready for splitting and use cost $30, which is more than average people can afford to pay. The day is not far distant when coal will be the accepted fuel of Dawson, as two large veins are developing well within a few miles of the city.

Will Arrive Tonight.

If no bad luck is visited upon the incoming mail between here and Selkirk, which point Manager Davies was informed the consignment left yesterday at noon, it will reach here late this evening. But in case it does not arrive by dark, it will probably not come before morning for the reason that the condition of the trail is such as to preclude night travel. There are now many open places in the river and travel is not particularly pleasant even in the broad open light of the day.

Another Quartz Ledge.

A ledge of quartz of prepossessing appearance has been discovered on the ridge between Dominion and Sulphur creeks. The ledge is well defined and carries galena. The samples of ore, which have been extracted, assay $14 in gold per ton and 30 ounces in silver. Some development work has been done on the ledge and its width is two feet and ten inches; it has been opened to a depth of eight feet. Within the past few days, a number of locations have been staked and recorded; old quartz prospectors assert that this ledge is the most promising one in the district.

HEAVY WEIGHTS

Selected as New York's Delegates at Large to Republican Convention.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW, PLATT, ROOSEVELT

Prefers Second Term as Governor to Vice-Presidency.

DEMOCRATIC NEW ORLEANS.

Hosher Gives His Side of Torrence-Embezzling Story—Murray May Succeed Clark.

New York, April 18, via Skagway, April 24.—At the Republican state convention Odell was elected chairman of the state central committee. Platt, Depew and Governor Roosevelt were elected delegates-at-large to the national convention. Roosevelt has been tendered second place on the national ticket, but declines. He prefers a second term as governor of New York.

New Orleans Democratic.

New Orleans, April 18, via Skagway, April 24.—The city election here was a great Democratic landslide, W. W. Hearl, candidate for mayor, who headed the ticket, being elected by the largest majority given any candidate in the past ten years. The entire ticket was elected.

Hosher's Story.

Seattle, April 19, via Skagway, April 24.—Hosher, one of the men arrested for embezzling a large sum of money from Torrence, who represents a Klondike company, has told his side of the story which is that Torrence sold mining claims belonging to him (Hosher) for $43,000, and that the money he is charged with taking from Torrence was only a payment on account, and that Torrence still owes him $22,500. Hosher is still in jail.

"Jim" Murray Mentioned.

Helena, April 18, via Skagway, April 24.—James Murray, a wealthy mining man of Butte, and a very prominent citizen of the state, is prominently mentioned as Clark's successor in the United States senate. Murray is in high favor with the governor and has all the Clark-backing and influence behind him.

CONCERNING "SCOOPS."

Our esteemed contemporary, the News, has a marvelous way of "scooping" its rivals in the newspaper business. An instance of this kind occurred last week, when our contemporary, after much and arduous labor, and with many furbelows and trimmings, gave to the world the story of the salted gold mine. A great deal of the reportorial talent, which the News so ruthlessly squandered in producing the story, might have been saved by a very simple expedient. Had the News reporter come over to the Nugget office and examined the files, he would have discovered the same story published in the Nugget some months ago. The only difference is that the Nugget's story had more facts and less romance than the News' article, but we presume that our contemporary felt that the public, having once read the facts in the case, would not read the story again with any degree of interest unless a little fiction was thrown in on the side.

PROBABLY INSANE.

The dispatches yesterday announced the arrival in Victoria of a Nome mail carrier. He brought with him the somewhat startling news that when he left, on January 8th, there were 300 cases of typhoid at Nome; also that 30 deaths had been reported among people who were bound for Nome over the ice. We do not place any confidence in either of these statements. It will be remembered that during the month of February Messrs. McCrae and Nagle passed through Dawson en route from Nome to the coast. These men left Nome on January 6th, and both agreed in statements to representatives of this paper that there was but little sickness in the beach camp. They left only two days ahead of the mail carrier, and it would be something remarkable if such an epidemic should break out in so short a time.

As for the other story, of so many deaths on the trail, it is, if anything, more improbable. In fact, it can be stated that it is absolutely untrue. Mail has come up regularly from the lower country, and no hint of any such wholesale disaster has been given.

This mail carrier must either be insane, or else be possessed with an inordinate desire for newspaper notoriety.

Property owners have shown much enterprise in complying immediately with the provisions of the ordinance requiring the construction of sidewalks. New walks are being built on all sides, which, when completed, will give Dawson a very metropolitan appearance. It now rests with the Council to connect the new sidewalks with suitable crossings. Crossings are as important as the walks themselves, and their construction is a matter which should receive prompt attention. The sidewalk at the corner of First street and Second avenue still continues to be a menace to all pedestrians who pass that way. The walk terminates in a sheer descent of about six feet, and it is very much of a wonder that someone has not fallen off and broken a limb already. In the course of time this will undoubtedly happen, and then we will see a rush made to place a railing around the walk, or some other means taken to protect the public from the danger which confronts everyone who goes that way.

Dawson presents a spectacle today which should cause the gods to weep bitter and briny tears. The "government organ" has been sued for libel by a former government employe! Now let the heathen rage, and the winds blow and crack their cheeks. Despair is abroad in the land, and hope has fled. We had thought that Dawson had one newspaper that was immaculate and infallible, but, alas, for ideals and cherished fancies! All are shattered, and have disappeared as though made of thin air. Another ideal has been smashed into nothingness, and we are again brought rudely into contact with the stern fact that man, though, perchance, he be of military antecedents, is, after all, but mortal, and human nature is, as of yore, still prone to err.

Before leaving on his South African campaign, Gen. Buller had his French chef prepare a dinner menu for each day that he expected to be on the field. Buller's epicurean inclinations may account largely for his lack of success as a military commander.

Uncle Sam has the largest exhibition of any of the foreign nations which are participating in the Paris Exposition. Considering the fact that such a wave of indignation spread over the country at the time of the Dreyfus trial, this is something rather remarkable.

Many claims are all ready to sluice, and waiting only for the water to reach a sufficient volume to justify the miners in beginning operations. The weather has been so variable of late that the expected arrival of large volumes of water has been deferred.

The Sour Dough.

"Yes, stranger," said the old sour dough, "things have changed greatly the last few years and a man has to keep up with the procession, but I wouldn't give up those old days if I had my choice. I'll give you an instance of what, for one thing, made me sore on civilization. I was prospecting 3 years ago on the Fortymile and had for a partner a squaw man. Now, I didn't like the idea at first of having a squaw around me but when it came to doing anything and everything well, Sally she was just the thing. Dust wasn't accumulating to any amount in our rocker and it looked as if we'd have ter move when Jim he ups and gets sick. Sally helped me put the boat on the river and we took Jim to Fortymile, but the post was deserted and after waiting a week or so a steamer came along and we came to Dawson. The hospital wasn't much then so we fixed Jim up in a tent and got Doc Chambers to talk medicine over Jim. He said as how Jim was a pretty sick man and should have every attention paid him. I told Sally one day I'd go to the diggings and get some dust and be back in a week. Sally said 'I look for Jim. Bime bye you come Jim he's all right.' 'So away I went. When I came back Jim were getting along alright but Sally she was just all broke up. I asked her what was the matter, and this is what she told me. 'Chechako talk too much' For you know it was the year of the big rush, and hundreds were camping around me. 'He's go to Jim talk Injun girl duty no good. What you got Injun girl for. He no good; you sick. Lot men come. Maybe some women. He talk no good to Jim. Maybe Jim he's not like me, I go away. And sure enough they had talked to Jim and he had listened, for he said he'd better have a white nurse, and, while Sally meant well, she didn't do things she had been told was necessary. I guess they had made their talk good for Jim said, he wanted Sally to go away, and he'd get white nurse.

"I told Sally she'd better go to her folks and stay awhile and I'd take care of Jim. But she wouldn't have it that way, so I came out flatfooted and told her all. Well, sir, she cried and cried and kicked about going, but finally she picked up her few trinkets and went away. I rustled around and after considerable difficulty found a white woman to nurse Jim. She stayed two days and said she wasn't going to nurse a man in a tent. I told her he was too sick to move, so she said she wasn't. I asked her how much I owed her and she said $20-$10 a day. I paid her and found another woman to take her place. As my sack was getting low, I told her I was going to the gulch for two or three days to get some more money, and gave her all I had left. I chopped up some wood and left everything in plenty. I was gone a week instead of three days, and when I came back Jim was alone. No one had been near him for a day and a half and he was pretty low. He told me the woman had stayed four days, and thinking I could not raise the money she said she'd take what was in the sack, about two ounces, and call it square. Not one of the fellows who lived in adjoining tents had even called. But about three hours before I had come Sally had looked in the tent, but when Jim turned to see who it was, she turned and ran away. I rustled up Doc Chambers and went after Sally. When I got back the Doc was leaving and he told me Jim was just about good for three days. Sally came along shortly, and following the doctor's instructions, never left Jim's side for three days. The Doc called each day and Jim was soon getting better. Sally stayed right with him for a month, or until he got well. In a month and a half Jim was ready to go the diggings, and so was Sally. But Jim got soured on squaws hearing so much talk about squaw men. So he told her he'd give her $100 and for her to stay in town. She refused the dust. Jim told her everybody joshed him, and he didn't care about listening to them. Well, she went away crying. Jim and I went to the diggings that day, but I never had the same feeling for him, and one day it would be up by us splitting up.

"It was about two months before I seen Sally again. It was in town here and then she told me her trouble. 'White ooman she's come; no like Injun girl. I like Jim. White ooman talk lie to Jim. Say Injun girl no good for sick man. White ooman she want money. Two white ooman come Jim, she's sick. No stop, want money. Injun girl stop Jim, he's no sick. White ooman give medicine, no work. Injun girl get wood, water, everything. Jim he's not like Injun girl no more. White man talk me, say some white ooman no like Injun girl, he's no good ooman outside. What for Jim leave me.' 'Well, stranger, she was right, and when Jim, a few days later, came to town sick again, she was the first one to him. But don't me, christian or no christian, I wouldn't go near him. He died in about a week, and he's planted on the hill there, and when it come to fixing him up for burial, Sally was the only one to be found.

"I was broke and what little money he had she told me to buy 'nice clothes for Jim with.' 'A Jury With an Appetite. A Billville citizen who happened to get on a locked up jury addressed the following note to the judge: 'We, the jury, being hungry and locked up eight hours without eating, which has been our regular habit since we showed ourselves, respectfully find ourselves guilty of waiting to eat a recommendation that our sentence of imprisonment be commuted to the liberty of 12 square meals, a throwin of ourselves on the mercy of the court for them same, after which we hope to find the defendant guilty.'—Atlanta Constitution.

THE DAWSON PLAY HOUSES

Are Producing Creditable Performances This Week.

"The Diamond Necklace" at the Orpheum "Stillwater Willie's Wedding Night" at the Palace Grand.

Large audiences attended the performances at the local playhouses last night. The entertainments are exceedingly good; and the actors and actresses are exerting their best efforts. Theatrical managers are to be congratulated on the excellent quality of amusement which they are now affording the people of Dawson.

At the Orpheum the performance commences with the production of the melodrama, entitled "The Diamond Necklace." The realistic situations in the play are produced in the most vivid manner by an extraordinary strong cast of players. The roles of Lazare and Count de Morney are ably assumed by George L. Hillier. Blossom plays very creditably the parts of Madeline and Adrienne. Dot Pyne displays ability in the interpretation of Valentine; Miss Pyne is exceedingly capable and her honest efforts are much appreciated. Julia Walcott portrays, in her very clever way, the character of Duchesse D'Aubeterre. Frank Gardner appears as the Viscount Raoul de Langey. Mr. Gardner is a conscientious actor, whose earnest endeavors have placed him above the mediocre class of performers. Alf Layne and Robert Lawrence are cast in important roles and acquit themselves most creditably. Other players who assist in the successful production of the drama are Daisy D'Avara, Ruth Laverne, Lulu Waits, Mamie Hightower, Fred Breen, Charles Brown, Sam Jones and little Cassie Carter.

The olio is comprised of nine numbers, each of which is a feature of excellent vaudeville. Beatrice Lorne evokes great applause by the perfect rendition of operatic selections. The clever specialties of Sadie Taylor are very entertaining. Lulu Waits evidences talent in the line of comic songs and rag time negro melodies. The sweet and simple sentimental ballads, as sung by Nellie Forsythe, are received with exceptional favor by the theatrical patrons in Dawson. Dot Pyne displays as much ability in vaudeville parts as she does in legitimate dramatic work. The Drummond Sisters perform a clever dancing turn. Eddie Dolan is one of the leading attractions of the city; his original wit and humor are a source of amusement. The comical eccentricities of Fred Breen are productive of much merriment. Charles Brown appears to advantage in a buck and wing dancing turn.

The performance concludes with the production of a one-act Irish comedy entitled "Hurley and Crowley's Troubles." The piece is full of mirth and appropriately terminates the evening's entertainment.

The initial feature at the Palace Grand is a burlesque on high life in the Klondike, entitled "Stillwater Willie's Wedding Night." John Mulligan and Gussie Lamore portraying the characters of the bridal couple; their efforts are funny and exceedingly ludicrous.

The olio is composed of 12 special features, which are varied and entertaining. Bessie Pierce appears in a difficult contortion turn. Garnett displays great versatility; she sings well a negro song, and responds to the encore with a neat hornpipe dance. Jacqueline, and Eyaline are excurtiatingly funny in the characters of two Irish hod carriers. Conchita performs several very interesting turns. Cecil Marion renders some excellent vocal selections. May Miner entertains her audience with two pleasing specialties. Mulligan and Linton produce an amusing original skit. Munis Leo executes wonderful feats on the trapeze with an ease and grace that is surprising. The O'Brien family give a character sketch, entitled "The Minicers," which serves to introduce original songs and sayings. Robert Wingate and Louis Simonsen perform a musical turn which is novel and entertaining. These two performers are exceedingly clever, and their specialty work is meritorious.

The entertainment concludes with the Irish drama, "Kathleen Mayourneen." The play is well staged. All the performers are proficient in their respective parts, and the piece is produced in a masterly manner. Conchita appears in the title role. Mulligan assumes the part of Terence O'Hare. These two capable players are supported by a strong cast, including Carrie Linton, Babe Pyne, Garnet, James Duncan, Doc Howard, J. Leo Shaw, Eddie O'Brien and Archie Leigh.

The performances which have been given at the Palace Grand during the past few weeks have been a credit to Dawson. The present management have successfully endeavored to secure the best of local talent; such efforts have been appreciated and rewarded by the public. It is to be regretted that circumstances require a change in the management of the house just at a time when it has been placed on a paying basis.

Theosophists Meeting.
The Yukon Theosophists will entertain again on tomorrow evening, when Dr. Burry will deliver a lecture on "The Gods."

PERSONALITIES.

President Loubet of France has bought an automobile and takes a ride in it every day, frequently operating it himself.

The oldest consul of the United States in point of continuous service is Horatio J. Sprague, who became consul at Gibraltar in 1848.

Justice Harlan of the supreme court lives fully three miles from the capitol, but frequently walks the entire distance to his home.

William Waldorf Astor is said to resent the fact that his fellow countrymen in England drop his prefix of honorable, which he had until he was naturalized.

Although now a fluent speaker, Senator Mason of Illinois was in earlier days so much a victim of stage fright that it was only by severe and constant training that he made himself an orator.

Congressman J. P. Dolliver of Iowa always carefully prepares his speeches, writing them out a day or two before delivery. He confesses to a certain degree of stage fright, yet is one of the best speakers in the house.

The Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, who published the Topeka Capital on a "Christian" plan, was educated at the Andover academy, Brown university and the Andover Theological seminary. His special studies were chiefly pursued in London.

Gen. Wheeler's features are quite like those of Gen. Grant, and when shown a rough sketch of the former, drawn in the Philippines, Gen Miles said the other day, "I never thought of it before, but if it wasn't for the hair this might be Grant."

Mayor Ernest Girardot of Sandwich, Mich., probably holds the record for a long tenure in the office of mayor. He has been elected ten consecutive times. At several elections the vote for him was unanimous, and never has he had less than two-thirds of the 300 votes cast.

John Ruskin was decidedly brusque to those who he thought were guilty of the shams of modern life. His contempt for the money getting propensity of Americans once led him to say that Prof. Charles Eliot Norton of Harvard university was the only gentleman in the United States.

One of the features of the present congress is the friendship that has come into existence between Littlefield, the successor of the late Mr. Dingley, and Judge De Armond of Missouri. The former is a Republican, and the latter is a Democrat, but they have become what is called inseparable.

He Took a Walk.

There were three of them, and as they entered the German saloons on the corner the tall young man, who wore rattle dazle clothes and posed as "fast," remarked in an undertone to his companions that he would "show them something good."

They lined up at the bar, and the tall young man ordered three 5 cent drinks. When these were disposed of, he laid down 10 cents on the bar, at which the German proprietor remarked, "Nein, fuffteen." The tall young man repocketed the coin and thus addressed the German:

"I just gave you 10 cents, didn't I?"
"Yah," responded the German.
"Well, here's 10 cents. That makes 20, so you owe me 5," added the young man, depositing the dime on the bar.

The German looked bewildered, but placed the dime in the money drawer and handed the tall young man a half dollar, with the request that he deduct therefrom the 5 cents due him. The tall young man had just the correct change, 45 cents, left in his pocket. This he promptly handed to the German and received the half dollar. Then the three companions repaired to the street and indulged in a mighty laugh, while the tall young man swelled up like a prize turkey on parade. Everything went lovely until they parted company and the tall young man boarded a car for his home in the suburbs. Imagine his feelings when the conductor handed him back the 50 cents which he tendered in response to the request for fares with the information that the piece was "bad." It was all the money he had and he could not persuade the conductor to trust him, so he was ejected at the next corner and had to walk the remaining five miles to his home. — Chicago Journal.

WILL HAVE ROUGH TIMES.

Early Travelers to Nome Will Wish They Were Back.

Experiences on Yukon Last Year Will Be Repeated—This Year on the Outside.

Editor Daily Nugget:

When I saw in your paper of yesterday that ten steamers are billed to sail this week for Nome from Seattle, I could not refrain from ejaculating: "Poor devils." I think I can imagine just the experience they will have when they get up to Bering sea and have to lay to perhaps a month, possibly six weeks, before they can proceed to their destination. As the passengers will have paid their money to be landed at Nome, the shipping companies will have to perform their share of the contract; but I can imagine the fare the passengers will get while lying to awaiting the opening of navigation ahead of them. If there are not uprisings and mutinies among the passengers of these early steamers before Nome is reached, then will I disdain all pretensions to prophecy.

Perhaps the fact that I was treated to a dose of early travel experience last year causes me to be in particular sympathy with those who are starting fully a month too early to accomplish their journey without long and tedious delay.

I was a passenger for the outside on one of the early boats to leave for up the river last year. I will not mention the name of the steamer, as she is still on the river, and I am sorry to say, on top instead of under the water. Her owners may have some relations who are nice people, therefore I will refrain from naming them. There was a full load aboard when she cast off her lines here and headed up the Yukon. There were sleeping accommodations for perhaps 25 or 30, while the remainder slept on the saloon floor and anywhere they could find a place in which to stretch their limbs.

We got along fairly well until Five Fingers was reached, which was on the fourth day out from Dawson. The grub so far had been none of the best, but so long as we were making headway, even if it was slow, we did not complain. But from Rink Rapids to Five Fingers the machinery of the tub was too weak to stem the current, and six days' time was required to make a run of not over 25 miles. Then is when men forgot their early training and cursed like deep-water sailors. And not without cause, for I never saw a set of people treated as barbarously in my life. The previously scant table was curtailed until actually the only thing to eat we could beg, buy or steal from the cook's galley was mush made from musty oat meal and corned beef. The mush we were forced to eat without either sugar or milk.

One towel had to last for three days, which, on an average of one wash per passenger each day amounted to 528 wipes to the towel. When we went in committees of fives, tens and twenties to remonstrate with the captain at the treatment accorded us he coolly told us to go plumb to Helena, Montana. He even suggested that if we would get out and rustle wood for the steamer it would give us a better appetite for what he was kind enough to let us have. We at length reached Bennett on the 14th day out.

I wrote a letter for publication in a Skagway newspaper in which I detailed our experience to the best of my limited ability, and 138 of my fellow passengers signed it. In the letter I warned people against even shipping live stock by the steamer on which we had traveled. When I took the letter to the paper office in Skagway a man who had shared the captain's bed and board all the way from Dawson to Whitehorse was talking with the editor. The latter took my letter and said he would look over it. The next morning that office sold over 150 copies of its paper to those of us who had only arrived the previous evening. But instead of my letter with its 139 signatures appearing, was the following:

"Nearly 200 Dawsonites arrived in the city by last night's train from Bennett. They came up the river in that elegant floating palace, the "Heavenly Satellite," and so delighted were they with the treatment accorded them on the trip that a substantial present was made on arriving at Whitehorse to the gallant skipper as a slight manifestation of the high esteem in which he was held by all who were privileged to make the trip on the "Heavenly Satellite." VICTIM.

THE RIVER ONE YEAR AGO.

Conditions Are About the Same Now as Then.

The Ice Went Out May 17th—Many Opinions as to When Navigation Will Open.

Many opinions are being expressed daily as to when the ice will leave the Yukon river. Persons who have resided in this territory for several years, assert that the past winter was similar to the season of 1897-98; the ice in the spring of 1898 moved from the river on the afternoon of May 8th. The winter of 1898-99 was mild in comparison to the season just ended; but nevertheless, the river did not break last spring until May 17th.

The Nugget herewith publishes some references, which it made about a year ago respecting the condition of the river ice:

Saturday, April 22d—Water is rising quite rapidly in the Klondike and the ice between Hunker and a point some miles down is covered to the depth of several inches, compelling pedestrians to take to the old summer trail on the shore. The ice still remains firm, however, and as yet shows no indications of breaking up.

Wednesday, April 26—The ice on the Klondike river is covered with a foot or more of water, and crossing is not considered safe.

Wednesday, May 10th—Monday the running water from the Klondike succeeded in cutting a channel some distance into the ice of the Yukon and immediately the open space was surrounded by fishermen, whose efforts, however, were not rewarded.

On Saturday, May 13th, a horse broke through the Yukon river ice near the mouth of the Klondike. The animal was rescued after considerable difficulty.

A Young Financier.

He will be a mighty monopolist, a confidence man or something else. At present he is a trifle shorter than a yardstick and has a face like a cherub. This little rascal stood at the front door of a Second Avenue residence, a snow shovel in one hand and a broom in the other.

"Walk cleaned, mum?" he asked briskly. "Clean it fur a dime."

"This is a very narrow lot, lubby. I never pay but a nickel."

"That's what the lady next door said, that you'd beat me down to a nickel. She said you was closer'n the cover on a baseball."

"She did, hey? I'll show her. She's so stingy that she works her potato parings into hash. Close, am I? How much did she pay you?"

"Fifteen cents, mum."

"I'll pay you a quarter. When you're through, come in and have a warm piece of mince pie. Poor little fellow!"

The program was carried out to the letter, and the little boy with big blue eyes, fair face and golden hair went whistling down the street. When the two women faced each other over the line fence, they glared. "Told a mere baby that I was mean and would rob him, did you?" began the woman who had furnished the pie.

"I told him nothing. What did you mean by advising him to make a bargain with me first or I'd only pay him 2 cents and to look out that I didn't give him a plugged coin?"

"Why, I never did. He went to your house first. Did you ever see or hear of such an angelic looking little villain?" and they talked the whole matter over. Two maternal strong tight hands are itching for that cherub to show up again.—Detroit Free Press.

Alas the Poor Chinaman.

San Francisco is somewhat stirred up over a new phase of the Chinese question. San Francisco is always discovering new phases of the Chinese question.

This latest is a tax which the See Yup Society has been levying for two years past on every Chinaman who embarks on a ship, and the fact has only just been discovered. It appears that a committee of See Yups turns up at the pier before the sailing of each ship. Every Chinaman who presents himself as a passenger, having been warned in advance, dutifully deposits a dollar and a half with the committee before he is permitted to embark.

This new species of imposition was discovered by the finding of a circular a few days ago. It was printed in Chinese characters, and the finder, on learning its purport, took it to police headquarters.

The circular goes on to say that if any Chinese is found attempting to go on board without a receipt from the See Yups he will immediately be arrested, and in case relatives or friends offer to interfere in any way they will be severely dealt with. The police took immediate steps to break up the practice.

A Possibility.

The London Standard in its principal editorial indulges in the hope that many Boers may yet become British soldiers. It says: "The Boers are proved to have a remarkable turn for soldiering, and there must be many young Boers who will be reluctant to return to a dull pastoral life after the excitement of the campaign. If they are willing to adopt a military career we will find room for them in a safer and more satisfactory enterprise than armed rebellion. We may yet hope to see some future Cronje or Joubert leading British troops on the battlefield side by side with generals of Irish, Canadian and Australian origin. Army commissions are to be given to Australians. Similar privileges must be granted to the other colonies, including those of South Africa."—Victoria Times.

Britain's Siege Train.

A British view of what can be done with the Pretoria fortifications is found in the following description of the siege train which is now in South Africa. This is the second train of its kind sent out by England during the last 40 years. The last occasion was when 60 heavy guns and mortars were sent from Woolwich for the siege of Sabastopol, where, with 50 ship guns, they took part in the bombardment of that city in connection with the French siege train. The Russian defense, however, developed so rapidly under the inspiration of Todleben that before the final assault, which placed it in the hands of the allies, the number of guns in position in the besieging batteries had been raised to 806. The train now on its way from England comprises 30 howitzers, 14 of 8-inch calibre, eight 5-inch and eight 4-inch. The number is not formidable in itself under the old condition in regard to explosives, but if they are, as may be inferred, intended to throw lyddite shells, and unless the Boers are in possession of projectiles charged with melinite or some similar high explosive with which to respond to the British fire the siege of Pretoria should not be of very long duration. It is calculated that the investment will require fully 42,000 British troops, leaving the remainder of the army to guard the communication, occupy certain strategic points and operate against that part of the Boer army not required for the defense of Pretoria. This part of the Boer army is expected to fall back into the north in the Zoutpansberg mountains, which the Boers are reported to intend to make their stronghold, and where, before the surrender of Cronje, they expected to carry on the war against England indefinitely.

The Boers call the ranges about Pretoria Magalies. The town was laid out after 1836 by them and named after Pretorius, one of their first and strongest leaders. He was the first president of the republic and commandant general of their army. The real growth of the town did not commence until after the victory at Majuba Hill in 1881. Johannesburg is the centre and home of the Uitlanders—the nervous, adventurous element of the Transvaal. But Pretoria is essentially the center of the pastoral Boers. Tropical flowers and plants cover the valley in which it lies, and willows grow in every direction. Most of the buildings are white in color. On the dome of the capitol is a golden statue of Liberty. The Witwatersrand mines, which yield $100,000,000 annually, are but a short distance from the capital. The universal prevalence of the bicycle in Pretoria, of the telephone and the electric car indicate Boer contact with civilized nations outside.

Manager Jansen Sick.

Since last Saturday, Mr. F. Jansen, manager of the Ames Mercantile Company, has been confined to his room with a very severe attack of la grippe. Mr. Jansen's illness is regretted by his many friends and acquaintances, and it is earnestly hoped that the estimable gentleman will soon be able to resume his regular business.

Territorial Court.

The case of James McKenzie and John Miles, as plaintiffs, vs. Mrs. M. I. Davidson and J. L. Davidson, as defendants, still occupies the attention of Justice Dugas in the territorial court. It appears that the hearing of testimony will be concluded today. Tomorrow, the attorneys will submit their arguments on behalf of the respective parties to the action.

The next case to be tried is that of Rogers vs. Reed.

J. C. Cantwell is enjoying a short vacation in the city.

W. M. D. Ames, from Bonanza creek, is in the city on a short visit.

W. A. Munroe will be in Dawson until the clean-up season commences.

Mrs. Alex McDonald has been confined to her room with a slight attack of illness.

The flow of water on the Yukon from the Klondike has greatly increased during the last 24 hours.

Today the fire department boys are employed in flushing the drain ditches with the assistance of the department horse apparatus.

Preparations are almost completed for the production of the lady minstrel show, to be given at the Palace Grand theater next Thursday evening.

To Nome on Horseback.

George B. Swinehart, who is well known in Dawson as a newspaper man, arrived from the outside several weeks ago. He will remain here until the opening of navigation, immediately after which he will proceed to Cape Nome.

Mr. Swinehart expects to conduct and manage a newspaper. His press and plant were shipped from Seattle several days ago.

He will leave here on one of the first river boats. He has purchased a horse, which he will take with him on the steamboat. At this end of the Kaltag portage, he and his animal will disembark; and Mr. Swinehart contemplates riding his horse over the cutoff. He hopes to reach Nome city during the latter part of May.

While outside, the gentleman visited the principal cities in the United States; he reports that throughout the Union there is much excitement respecting the resources of Nome, and that the stampede of people to the Alaskan camp will be greater than the rush to the Klondike was in the spring and summer of 1898.

Mail Is In.

At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon two sled loads of mail reached the local postoffice from up the river. This is the same mail which is spoken of elsewhere in this paper as being due some time tonight or tomorrow morning. The postoffice will be open for distribution in the morning.

Paste in Your Hat

For the benefit of those whose business it may be to prognosticate weather in future years and for future residents in this portion of the mundane sphere it should be made a note that this morning, the 24th day of April, 1900, more snow fell in ten minutes than during the same period at any time during the preceding six months.

The above will furnish a foundation on which to base a fabrication that may cause future generations to stand aghast in open-mouthed wonder.

Dr. Lee Returns.

Dr. Hallvard Lee, the well known Dawson dentist, has returned to town from the creeks, where he has been engaged in mining since the disastrous fire of last fall. The doctor will resume his professional practice in this city. He has engaged a suite of rooms in the second story of the Monte Carlo building, where he will be pleased to meet his former patrons and acquaintances.

George Butler's Dispensary.

It may be found a pleasure and even a necessity in this country to look upon the red hooch in the glass. But the rub is where to get the genuine article. By the number of people who patronize the Pioneer it would seem that popular resort has the call on the clear thing.
