150 miles, thus giving connection with the Lewis or Yukon River, and an all-Canadian rail and steamboas route from a port on the Pacific coast to Dawson City. This road must be completed and in operation by Sept. 1 next. The contractors must also construct a practicable sleigh road from the mouth of the Stikine River to Teslin Lake, and provide suitable shelters and stopping places for travelers at intervals of not more than 25 miles along this road, and the road and shelters must be available for use not later than six weeks from now. The contractors must also provide steamboat transport of freight and passengers between Teslin Lake and Dawson City.

The Government proposes to grant 26,000 acres a mile of mineral lands, or 8,750,000 acres in all, to the contractors. 500 acres in all, to the contraction of the Lands shall be selected from the Klondike provisional district and from that part of the Northwest Territories lying west of the Mackenzie River and Laird River and north of the 60th parallel of latitude. But it is provided that all lel of latitude shall be reserved.

she selection of lands for the contractors, and alternate block shall be reserved for the Government.

In addition a royalty of 1 per cent. will be laid upon all the precious metals produced from the lands alienated to the company, as compared with 10 per cent. Imposed upon ordinary placer mining. The contractors are not to receive a cash subsidy, but, on the other hand, are required to put up a deposit of a quarter of a million of dollars as a guarantee for the executions of their contract.

No portion of the beds or of the banks for 25 feet on each side of high-water mark shall pass to the contractors under any selection of lands to be made under the agreement. The shores and all landing places, few and far between in that rugged, rock-ribbed country, and, therefore, very valuable, are withheld and the free rights of passage and use along all navigable or floatable streams may not be impeded or obstructed by the company, and are absolutely reserved to the people. In case the contractors divert any stream from its natural channel they must provide an equally convenient navigable or floatable channel in lieu. All mining claims held and recorded by free miners within any block of land selected by the contractors shall be excepted from the grant and shall not pass to the contractors.

The tolls to be collected on the railway between Stikine River and Teslin Lake will be first fixed by the Governor-General in Council, and, as so fixed, shall not on the medico-legal aspects of embalming fluid.

Assuming that an individual had been poisoned with arsenio, it would be in the interest of the murderer, the dootor stated, that the corpse should be arterially embalmed with arsenical fluid. The subsequent discovery of arsenie in the viscera by a chemical expert would be of no legal value. The proof that the deceased had been poisoned would then rest on evidence of the symptoms exhibited during illness and the post-mortem appearance of the mucuous membrane of the stomach and intestines.

The majority of the undertakers did, not know the composition of the embalming fluids, as they purchased them from jobbers who kept the formulae secrot. The arsenical fluids being cheap and reliable were most used. Embalming had become so common in Ontario that no suspicion attached to its practice. In cities and towns 60 per cent. of corpses were so treated and in the country 40 per cent.

London, Feb. 1.—Sir Daniel Lysons, who was sent to Canada to organize the militia at the time of the Trent affair in 1861, is dead.

General Lysons was born in 1816. He entered the army in 1843 as an ensign in the First Royals, and four-year's later was sent to Canada, where he served through the Mackenzie Robellion, 1838-39. He was in the engagements at St. Denis and St. Eutache, for bravery in the former of which he was mentioned in despatches. General Lysons served throughout the Crimean War, and was in the battle of the Alma and Inkerman. He assisted in the capture of Balaklava, and took part in the siege of Sobastopol. He led the main column of attack on the Redan and was engaged in the final assault, in which he was severely wounded. on the medico-legal aspects of embalming fluid.

Assuming that an individual had been poisoned with arsenio, it would be in the interest of the murderer, the doctor stated, that the corpse should be arterially embalmed with arsenical fluid. The subsequent discovery of arsenio in the viscera by a chemical expert would be of no legal value. The proof that the deceased had been poisoned would then rest on evidence of the symptoms exhibited during illness and the post-mortem appearance of the mucuous membrane of the stomach and intestines.

The majority of the undertakers did not know the composition of the embalming fluids, as they purchased them from jobbers who kept the formulae secret.

The arsenical fluids being cheap and reliable were most used. Embalming had become so common in Ontario that no suspicion attached to its practice. In cities and towns 60 per cent. of corpses were so treated and in the country 40 per cent.

Such being the fact, Mr. Mackenzis thought that a fittid quite as effective for the embalmer's purpose and devoid of objectionable qualities from the legal standpoint should be introduced. Such a fluid was a 40 per cent. solution of formaldehyde, commonly used by sanitary authorities for disinfecting purposes. The body of a sheep trusted with this fluid had been kept two years. The Government should declare embalming with arsenical fluids illegal.

The race and pursuit lasted for 60 miles, every rod of which was covered at a gallop. The girl was riding straight into the accomy's country, and at sundown she determined to go no farther. As the reached the creek flowing around the east base of "Thompson's fort," which is a hill standing by itself, she threw herself off her hore and took a long drink and then led the animal to the creet of the hill. Fortunately for her there was a sink or beain at the top, with many loose rocks lying about, and in a short time she had done all that a soldier could have accomplished under the circumstances. As the Indians same up they spread out to endrole the hill. They had run their victim to earth and were in no hurry to face her rifle.

From dark to dawn the heroine was not disturbed, and she afterward related that she slept fairly well. She had a soldier's canteen full of water, plenty of provisions and ammunition and was not at all dismayed over the situation. When morning came, the Indians demanded her surrender, giving her much praise and promising to escort her to one of their villages unburt. This they would likely have done, but she did not propose to become a captive while able to give a shot from rifle or revolver. Two hours were consumed by the Indians in trying to negotiate a surrender, and then, finding the girl inflexible, they made their first attack. At a given signal the 12, who were under the command of a subchief named Little Horse, rushed for the crest of the hill. They gained it, but after a fight of two minutes were driven off with the loss of two warriors killed and one wounded. This last was the chief himself. THEODOR MOMMSEN.

The Great German Historian Bas Just Reached His 80th Year.

Theodor Mommsen, the greatest living German historian, recently celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary. He is the Curtius, Sybel, and Freitschke.

Mommes is living now quietly at Charlottenburg. Occasionally a carriage drive through the shady avenues of the part and beside a friendly feminine face appears the white-haired Mommes. So full of character and dignity is his face that many a stranger passing by involuntarily little his hat to the historian of Rome.

Upon his last birthday, Nov. 30, arrangements were made to celebrate it with due pomp. The great historian of Rome, however, is as modest as he is noted, and dislikes ceremonies of this sort. He escaped from his usual haunts on his birthday; was "not at home" is sither a conventional or a literal sense; nobody knew where he had gone, and the congratulations of the learned world of Europe were left to await his return after the stoorm had blown over. So, too, was the honorary title of "his excellency that was granted him by the Emperor.

Memmen's greatest work is his "Bomen History." The first volume appeared in 1854. Since then the second, third, and fifth have been issued. The fourth has not yet been published. This is not only Mommesn's greatest but his most popular pieces of writing. The style is animated and lucid. He has succeeded in detaching himself entirely from the ultra-liberal prejudices of modern German historians and scientists. He appreciates to the full the value of the despotic Caesarian reign.

The German pattern, shown below, however, does not seem as practical as does the Toronto Bay idea, because, for one thing, there is altogether too much to it and there are too many braces—as a sailor would say—to watch out for, and it seems almost impossible to beat to windward with it, while such is possible with the Queen City contrivance, yet, even where possible, it is very hard and laborious work. The idea of the umbrella-sail probably emanated from the idea of the parachute, or vice-versa, but the same fault may be found in it that makes the German idea apparently not practical. However, with the wind at his back, a skater using the umbrella-sail is canabled to make wonderful speed.

A BORDER HEROINE. BY CHARLES B. LEWIS. We of Custer's command were swinging around to reopen the overland trail, every station of which in western Kan-every station of which in western Kan-sas had been captured by the Indians. We had gong into camp one night after a continuous ride of nearly 100 miles, and everybody but the sentinels was fast asleep, when there came riding in from the northwest a girl, 18 years old, named Mary Thompson. She was rid-ing a pony without saddle or bridle, and she was hatless and without shoes. Most of the men had been aroused, and Most of the men had been aroused, and were anxious to hear her story before she reached the general's tent. Her report was terse and to the point. Ten miles to the northwest was a party of nonears. 8 waynes 20 mea. and 40 miles to the northwest was a party of pioneers—8 wagons, 20 men and 40 women and children. The camp had been attacked by Indians an hour before, and the girl had mounted her pony, dashed through the lines and galloped in search of aid. She had been followed for the first three or four miles by mounted Indians, but had distanced them.

Custer interrogated her concerning the situation of the camp and the strength of the Indians, and, believing the pioneers could hold their own through the night, the num were ordered back to their blankets. It was about an hour before daylight when we moved, the girl riding at the head of moved, the girl riding at the head of the column with the general and two or three secuts, and we were within half a mile of the camp when the dark-ness faded away and gave us a view of the situation. Then it was a swift dash at the hostiles, a sharp fight for ten minutes, and we had sent the band scur-rying away.

In and about the wagons lay six dead and four wounded men—ten dead or wounded women and children. Every horse and mule was disabled, and had we waited a quarter of an hour longer the Indians would have "rushed" and carried the camp and wiped out every soul. At midnight they had cut off two of the outer wagons for a moment and made captive a boy 10 years old—Mary Thompson's own brother. Her father and mother were among the dead, her brother carried away by the warriors as they fled before us. The soldiers and pioneers crowded about the girl, and gave her words of sympathy, and for gave her words of sympathy, and for a few minutes she hid away in one of the wagons to be alone with her grief. When she reappeared, her tears had vanished, and she announced her resolution to make an effort to recover her captive brother. General Custer advised and argued with her, but she refused to go back to a point of safety with the surviving pioneers. She did not ask to go with the command, but intended to depend upon herself alone. I think she d upon herself alone. I think she depend upon herself alone. I think altered upon herself alone. I think altered the pioneers had she remained with us a few minutes longer. While the people were making ready for a start the rank and file learned of her determination. We outfitted her pony, handed her over a winchester rifle and a revolver and plenty, of ammunition, supplied her we otherest rife and a revolver and plenty of ammunition, supplied her with food for several days, and mothing was lacking when she rode out of camp in the direction the Indians had taken. Knowing that her brother Jimmie would be sent to some village among the hills to be held captive, she gave all her attention to dodging war parties and hunting out villages. On the old maps of Kansasthere used to be a creek salled Thompson creek, and it was named after the girl. One morning after a night spent in riding over the plains she entered a grove of willows and cotonwoods on a little island in the midle of the stream to lie up for the day.

wood, and the girl planned a feat which the most daring scout would have hesitated to attempt. It was to carry the boy off in the face of the village, and it was not her fault that she made a failure of it. He was one of the first to reach the teland, and she rode boldly out of shelter and called him by name and moved toward him. He was so surprised at sight of her that he ran away. She overtook him and seized and tried to lift him on to the saddle, but he broke away from her and the Indians sounded the alarm. As many as a score of old men and boys mounted ponies and attempted to capture Miss Thompson, but after wounding two and being chased for five miles she made her escape. She did not go far, however. Having located the village in which the boy was held, she determined to hang about until her mission was accomplished.

The mound known as Thompson's Fort was also named after May Taemp-

Andres. As Andree was about to depart on his polar balloon he was asked how soon tidings from him might be expected. His answer was, "At least not before three months, and one year, perhaps two years, may elapse before you hear from us, and you may one day be surprised by news of our arrival somewhere, and if not—if you never hear from us—others will follow in our wake until the unknown regions of the north have been surveyed."

sr a night spent in riding over the plains she entered a grove of willows and cottonwoods on a little island in the middle of the stream to lie up for the day.

About 10 o'clock in the forencon an Indian band numbering about 20 old men, women and children came along and made their camp on the east bank of the stream and within pistol shot of the hiding girl. Among the boys she saw her brother for the first time. He had been clothed in Indian dress, but she identified him at once. He was among the score of lads sent across to the grove to cut lodge poles and firewood, and the girl planned a feat which the most daring scout would have hesitated to attempt. The Cost of Projectiles.

Projectiles used in the United States army for its great modern guns cost as follows: Solid shot, eight inch, $69.80 each; ten inch, $144.50 each; 12 inch, $313 each; 12-inch mortar shells, weighing 800 pounds, $114 each; 12-inch mortar shells, weighing 1,000 pounds, $195 each.

It has been calculated that a gold coin passes from one person to another 2,000,000,000 times before the stamp or impression upon it becomes obliterated by friction, while a silver coin changes about 3,250,000,000 times before it becomes entirely effaced.

THE LOCATION OF PORT ARTHUR.

Russia has practically held the place ever since, though she has not officially occupied it. Russia has always been covetous of Port Arthur because it is ice free all the year round, which is not the case with the present headquarters of the Russian fleet in the East, Vladivostock.

Situated at the extreme southern point of the Liactung Peninsula, Port Arthur, in its prefortified days, afforded convenient shelter for wind-bound junks employed in carrying timber from the Yalu River to the ports on the guifs of Pechill and Liactung. At that period it was merely a small village consisting of about sixty to eighty mud houses, an occasional shop and three or four inns. Now the population is reckoned at about its thousand, exclusive of the garrison, the number of houses has been multiplied more than tenfold, and there are two large temples, two theatres and several banks.

KING OF WHEAT PIT.

YOUNG LEITER INTERESTED IN $1-

000,000—just one million for every year of his life.

Young Leiter calls himself a self-made man, and in a sense he is. With the first million he purchased a large and varied stook of experience. He bought it in large chunks and profited by it. Then he turned it to good account. He cornered the market in experience. He had secured all there was to be had, his money was nearly all gone, and then he began to realize on his investment. He began unloading large blocks of experience on others and realized a handsome profit.

To-day he is the king of the Chicago wheat pit. He went into the deal six months ago a novice. He now holds all the cards. The veterans who in other times have won through sheer force of money, and have alaughtered opponents in the grain arena without mercy or pity, find themselves up against the hardest game of their lives.

They were rather inclined to pity the verdant youth thrown in their path. One of the veterans said he had once read something in the Bible about a lamb being led to the slaughter, and the other veterans enhuckled as they thought of the big prices the newcomer would pay for his experience. They forgot that he was now on the other side of the market when it came to dealing in experience.

When young Leiter began trading in wheat he already knew a great deal more about it than any one supposed. He had studied it as he had previously studied mines and street railways. He lacked practical experience, but it didn't take him long to gain that. Leiter went along smoothly and easily. When the bears felt the squeeze and looked about to see who was applying the power they could scarce Young Leiter's career is all the more YOUNG JOSEPH LEITER.

the squeeze and looked about to see who was applying the power they could scarce believe their senses.

Young Leiter's career is all the more remarkable in that it differs in every essential from that of the average young man born with a silver spoon in his mouth. As the son of old Levi Leiter he might have become one of the jounesse dore of the Windy City. The old gentleman is credited with possessing a barrel of money, made largely in the dry goods business. His wife and daughters have social asgirations, and are now occupying the Blaine house in Washington.

Joseph Leiter is a Harvard man and a member of the famous Hasty Pudding Club. He came home from Harvard with a degree, and the elder Leiter didn't know what to do with him. He remembered that he went through years of training—very humble at times—to arrive at his age of financial discretion. Joseph had no such experience. He never had sold goods over a counter, nor worked from a clerkship to a commercial dictatorship. His early life had been spent in private schools and at the university—a course very different from ploneer life in bringing out the qualities which make skilful money handlers.

He never had been against the hard ing out the qualities which make skills money handlers.

He never had been against the hard wall of making his own money. The father concluded to go slowly—slowly as a man of his wealth would estimate it. He placed $1,000,000 in his son's hands. It was a lot of money for an inexperienced Hasty Pudding man to start with. It was such a plece of good luck that there were men on all sides crazy, willing, solicitous about its investment—men loaded down with advice and suggestions.

He invested in advice until his million had nearly dwindled into nothluguess. But he never whimpered. He attended strictly to business. He rosisted most of the temptations to which the gilded youth succumbs. He learned a great deal of the ways of promoters and speculators. He became, however, an expert in rail-ways and mining, and then the remnant of his million acted like a magnet. With his practical knowledge of street rail-ways and mines his fortune began to increase rapidly. The elder Leiter, who had been covertly watching the boy's course, rubbed his hands and no longer referred to his son and heir as a "college dude." A year ago he turned over to the youth nearly all his holdings.

When the financial werld learned that a young fellow, not yet thirty, had absolute control of $30,000,000 worth of property, it was aghast. His fortune is divided among the best institutions in Chicago. It extends to railroads, ranches and mines.

Scrofula

Makes life misery to thousands of people. It manifests itself in many different ways, like goitre, swellings, running sores, boils, salt rheum and pimples and other eruptions. Scarcely a man is wholly free from it, in some form. It clings tenaciously until the last vestige of scrofulous poison is eradicated by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the One True Blood Purifier.

Thousands of voluntary testimonials tell of suffering from scrofula, often Gharles Reade Wendered Why They Wee So Large In America.

"Edwin Booth In London" is the title of an article in The Century by E. H. House. Mr. House tells of an interest-ting meeting between Booth and Charles Reade and reports the following conver-sation relating to the appearance of Booth and Irving together:

"Is it true that the prices will be changed?"

"Doubled, I believe. Irving says they must be. That is one of the risks I speak of, but he is full of confidence. He does it more for my sake than any-myself. The conditions are all different from what I am used to."

"I understand. We are too slow—and thrifty, I suspect—to run the swift American pace. Yet I can't see why there should be such an amazing difference in your theatrical business and ours. The stories we hear of New York profits sound fabulous. I should say they were fabulous if I had not seen the returns of Wallack's when one of my plays was produced there. A hundred pounds a night is nothing to you, it seems."
