ENTERTAINMENT—A SUGGESTION

THE STRESS and high character of the Redpath Concert given in Assembly Hall Saturday suggests to many that entertainments of a high order would be appreciated and patronized.

COUNTY PRINTING

THE NEW STAR, on behalf of the County Council or its spiritual adviser, attempts to justify the action of that body in the matter of public printing.

"We happen to know something of this matter and the facts are simply these. The county clerk on Friday night mailed requests for tenders from the publishers of the ACADIAN, Western Chronicle and New Star, and from Jas. Bowes & Sons, Halifax, for the printing of 5,000 copies of blanks.

We would like to ask why—when it was expressly stated in the "request for tender" that tenders should be in by Monday noon—the clerk should wait until Tuesday. Had not all an equal chance? "The Chronicle did not tender" in all probability because it knew it was of no use.

In regard to the remuneration for the publication of the minutes of the Council being only a tardy recognition of past services, we can say that before the Star was thought of we sent a representative to the Council on several occasions, and published their minutes; and that it was only owing to a press of other business in which there was money for us, and the fact that this has always been money out of pocket, and consequently we could not afford the loss, that we did not send a representative this time. Had the Council met next day we would have had a reporter there. That the Council should have needed such a reminder to keep it on the side of right and fair-play is nothing to its credit, to say the least.

We again say that the public printing has been, and is being, jobbed, and that we shall try to get further into it before we drop it.

—WE HAD OCCASION to cross the iron bridge spanning the Gaspeau river near the White Rock mills one day this week, and were surprised to find the approaches in such a condition.

—DURING THE past week Gaspeau fish have been in the river in larger quantities than have been there before for a number of years, yet the fishermen are not happy.

—TO AGITATE for better terms for Nova Scotia is perhaps justifiable and might lead to favorable results, but how any body of sane men, let alone business men and statesmen, could expect any favorable results to flow from the insubordinate resolution introduced by Hon. Mr. Fielding on Saturday last in the local legislature in the re-dissolution of the Dominion, is something entirely beyond our comprehension.

—THE FRENCH settlements in the Horton township were not ignorant of the value of the valuable intervals on either side of the Gaspeau river at some distance from its mouth, as many valuable farms were cultivated by them there. In a line directly south of the eastern part of Wolfville there may be found to day on an old French farm the remains of an old orchard containing now over one hundred trees, vigorous and productive, which is probably the largest of the old French orchards now to be found in this Province.

A CHAPTER OF ACADIAN HISTORY

—BURIED TREASURE AND WHO DUG FOR IT—SOME OF THE TRADITIONS

EARLY SETTLEMENTS OF THE ACADIANS—BURIED TREASURE AND WHO DUG FOR IT—SOME OF THE TRADITIONS

The general opinion is that at the time of the expulsion of the French Acadians from Horton there was a large village at what is now known as Grand Pre, and that few resided elsewhere in Horton. It is true there that was a few French houses in that locality, and to-day there may be found perhaps a dozen old cellars which are said to be of French origin; some two or three old French roads may be found leading towards the marshes, by the sides of which are yet growing the willows imported from France by the people of the Grand Pre station.

J. W. Ryan is closing out Spring Stock during May at still greater reductions. See new adv. this week.

Mr. Dodd, of Halifax, who moved to Wolfville a few days ago, and is living in the Armstrong place, is about opening a dry goods store in S. P. Heale's building.

Latest styles Stiff and Straw Hats at Borden's.

HONEY SOLD—Mr. Kinsman Palmer of Long Island, sold this week to Mr. C. R. Bell a fine "Nelson" brood mare, twelve years old, for $200.

Having recently imported a "Perfection Shear Sharpener," I am prepared to sharpen and put in first-class order shears and scissors of every description. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed. J. M. Shaw, Wolfville.

The weather this spring up to Saturday last has been remarkably dry. On Saturday the rain began about noon and continued until Monday morning, the greater part of the time falling in torrents. The grass in consequence has been started up finely and cattle have been turned away to pasture this week.

C. H. Borden is showing a splendid assortment of Gent's Neck Ties, Embroidered Linens and Lawn Hdkfs. Lowest prices.

The entertainment given by Acadia Lodge took place, as announced, on Friday evening last. An appreciative audience assembled at the appointed time when a fine programme consisting of vocal and instrumental music, readings, tableaux, a dialogue &c., was presented.

Choice Imported and Domestic Cigar at 3, 4, 5, 7, 8 and 10 cents at J. M. SHAW'S.

Another disastrous fire occurred at Annapolis on Tuesday morning last by which all the buildings on the north side of St. George's St. between McCormick and Corbett's wharves were destroyed. Total loss is estimated at upwards of $200,000. An investigation as to the cause of the fire is being held today.

Call and see our fine assortment of Men's, Women's, Misses and Children's Boots, Shoes and Slippers. The best assortment in Wolfville at the lowest prices. C. H. BORDEN.

THE 24TH—Great preparations are being made for the celebration of the Queen's Birthday in this town. The Dramatic Company have begun rehearsing their play "Wrecked in Port," and will no doubt give a good account of themselves. Horizontal bar performance, tumbling, and aerial ring feats are to be attractive features at the rink.—Annapolis Spectator.

Call at Borden's and see those Unlaundried Shirts for 75 cents 85 cents and $1.00.

Mr. W. D. Tanton, a native of Prince Edward Island and a graduate of Prince of Wales College, has become editor and manager of the Annapolis Spectator. Mr. Tanton served his time on the Charlottetown Herald and besides being a journalist, is an experienced and thorough practical printer. He was editor of the New Glasgow Pictorial during its existence and subsequently became one of the publishers of the Pictou News. Annapolis is one of the wealthiest and most intelligent counties in the province and the Spectator has always been one of the leading provincial weeklies. We wish Mr. Tanton a large measure of prosperity in his new undertaking and feel assured of the success of the Spectator under his efficient management.

Local and Provincial.

We notice a great rush to Borden's for Hats.

Mr. J. W. Biglow will please accept thanks for bundle of New York papers.

"Burns' Best," the best Flour in the market, at Trenholm's.

In another place will be found the notice of the marriage of our former genial townsman, Mr. J. A. Paysant. We wish him and his fair bride a prosperous and happy life together.

Lace Curtains and Sets, Beautiful Patterns, low prices at Burpee Witters.

Don't.—In the report given of Prof. Robert's lecture in the May number of the Acadia Athenaeum paper, a very striking reproduction is seen of several sentences from a report of the same lecture in our columns a few weeks back. Boys don't plagiarize.

Everybody should see Burpee Witter's fine stock of CLOTHS before making their purchases.

The Guardian, of Truro, in its last issue published an article from our columns for which its editor failed to give us credit. This may or may not have been done through neglect. At any rate it is not the first time that we have had occasion to refer to the Guardian in this connection. When a paper goes to the trouble and expense to secure an article or item which will be of interest it is not pleasant to have it "goldbilled up" by an unscrupulous contemporary. This is not a subject which is pleasant to write about and we hope it may not occur in the future. We are always willing and pleased if our brothers of the pen can find anything in our columns which they think will be of interest to their readers but we must insist that we have due credit for them.

The Celebrated Electric Dyes are the most lasting of all colors. Warranted strictly pure. 10 cents at Druggists and Grocers.

We are pleased to see that the plan in regard to tree-planting, proposed in our columns in a late issue has been carried out by one of the students. Tuesday afternoon the Junior class planted seventeen (17) trees—one for each member of the class. These trees were planted in the form of the figures 87—the year in which the class graduates. After all were planted, Mr. I. W. Porter read a short address in which he spoke of the past history of the class and of the feelings which its members would probably experience when in after years they should walk over these grounds, and should think of the changes which had occurred. The class then joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne," after which they separated.

C. H. Borden has just opened another lot of these Hand made CRICKET SHOES.

The Faculty of Acadia College should have the thanks of all who had the pleasure of being present, for giving them the opportunity of listening to people like the Hephath Concert Co. This company appeared here for the first time on Saturday evening last. The night was wet and disagreeable as were also some of the students, but in spite of that quite a large number turned out from the village. It would be impossible for us to do the concert justice but we can say that we never heard before in Wolfville (if perhaps we except the 101st Regiment Band) a concert in which classic music seemed to be so thoroughly appreciated by a miscellaneous audience. Miss Chamberlain as a scientific whistler is a novelty in the way of musical talent—as rare as it is marvelous and beautiful. She was encored every time. Miss Christie's performance on the violin was very fine showing capital training and great musical ability. Mr. Gilder is the best pianist we have ever heard. Mr. Reynolds as a humorist was good and his selections were well taken. His songs too were well sung and he was encored for every piece. To sum up, the concert was one of the very best if not the best ever given in College Hall and we congratulate the faculty on their enterprise in favoring Wolfville with such music.

TAKE NOTICE.—If your razor is dull, take it to J. M. Shaw's Barber Shop, and he will put it in first-class order for the small sum of 15c. "TR" of Weymouth, Sept. 14, 1885.

DR. NORTON: Dear Sir,—For twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Salt Rheum, and last Summer my head and part of my body was in a fearful sore. My husband employed at different times three doctors, which failed to do me any good. In August 1884 I commenced taking your Dr. O. W. Norton's Burdock Blood Purifier, and after taking three bottles, am ably cured, as I have not the least symptoms of it since. The Blood Purifier has also cured Capt. Brooks of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint.

There is no medicine known to the medical fraternity that has cured so many of Liver, Kidney and Nerve Diseases as the medicine that composes Norton's Burdock Blood Purifier. Sold by most of the dealers in medicine throughout the country, and by G. V. Rand, Druggist, Wolfville, at $1.00 per large bottle.

LOVE AND DEATH.

BY LOT J. BEAUCHAMPE.

They say she is dead, that her life went out Last night as the clock struck eight That the birds of a year at the altar stood Again with another mate; A mate called Death, who bore her away To a couch more quiet than mine. Where the love kiss comes from the lips of the worm, And the grave-damp symbols the wine. 'Tis false, and the haze who speak it know That they lie, for she left me but now, With the old time light shining out of her eyes And the old time kiss on my brow. Death wants her body 'tis his, I say; Her love and her kisses are mine, And the love is as sweet as the love of God's, And his kisses are sweeter than wine.

LEARNING TO BE A MAN.

Boys, look out! Only a few days ago I heard of four boys who were off in a secluded part of the town, smoking cigars and drinking beer—boys whose parents had no idea of what they were doing. These boys had had the best of training from Christian parents, and were members of the Sunday-school. I would not have believed it if I had not had the information from the best authority. When they were asked what they were doing, and were reprimanded with far such conduct, they said they were "learning to be men." O what a mistake! What a man who is addicted to these habits had will tell you, if he speaks what he knows, that such habits are a hindrance instead of a help to manhood. It seems a strange coincidence that while I was pondering over this sorrowful tale I had heard, that a letter came to me from a young man away out on the western frontier; and this is what he wrote: "I feel that some of the best years of my life have been in a measure wasted. I thought when I was a boy that being a man was to learn to smoke and drink; and on that idea I have spent my youth. I regret that I have not had a better education, which would have given me the ability to interpret the rudiments of things. The morning of forty years ago was confirmed, the other day, by reading the reminiscences of the Rev. C. A. Wilkins, the English chaplain to the King of Hanover. He met Jenny Lind just after she had signed her contract to sing in the United States. In the course of their conversation, she mentioned the great ignorance of the lower classes in Stockholm, and their indifference to the education of their children. "I have," she said, "determined to enroll schools for those poor little children. My motive in going to America is to raise thirty-six thousand pounds, which I intend to hand over to trustees, who will carry out my plans. "May I not, sir, hope for God's blessing upon this work, undertaken for the sake of Christ's flock? My daily prayer is that I may be spared three years, so that I may carry out my plans for my poor children in Stockholm. Is there anything in that prayer inconsistent with submission to the will of God?" One morning, after a church service, which she had given, the clergyman found her consulting and reading the money received, preparatory to distributing it among the poor. He began complimenting her, but she cut him short by saying: "It is the only return I can make unto the good Lord for the gift He has bestowed upon me, which is the great joy of my life, I can only repay Him through the poor and the suffering. This I desire to do."

When Bishop Stanley, of Norwich, the father of Dean Stanley, was asked for a reply to a professional singer in the Episcopal palace, the "profession" being Jenny Lind, he replied: "I always wish to honor virtue and talent wherever I may find them. As to my friendship with Jenny Lind, I have no hesitation in saying that I consider that I am the person benefited. For I never converse with her without feeling myself a better man."

The chaplain says he endorses that compliment as the literal truth, for he himself never departed from her society without feeling himself a better man for having conversed with her. Her soul and heart seemed absorbed in the thought of obeying St. James' rule: "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unstained from the world."—Youth & Companion.

ROAD-MAKING.

On the farm, in the house, in the Orange, and elsewhere, what is worth doing at all is worth doing well. Yet this rule is disregarded, in a thousand things—especially in road-making, a performance that in country districts is a letter that is a hindrance rather than a help. Poor roads are made worse and good roads spoiled, simply because common sense is utterly abandoned in the methods of performance. Every good farmer knows well, when he goes out on the road with team, plow or scraper to work out his tax, that the usual course in road-making is a foolish waste of time, but only here and there may be found one who is bold enough to denounce the folly and insist on a better method. There are hundreds of road districts in which waste of time, ostentatiously given to road-making, is great enough in five years to make every rod of road permanently good if the work was judiciously planned and faithfully executed. The stupidity of the annual waste is amazing, especially when one considers the fact that every person who is taxed, even a single day of road work, is directly interested in securing honest performance. How long will the present stupid method prevail? It is a pity that they will repeat annually the senseless blunders that make the use of highways difficult and costly, an exorbitant tax on patience and a burden.

Where stone is not available for road-making what next? Gravel is good only as it is composed of stone of larger size, smoothed on the surface with suitable depth of stone beneath. But what shall be done where neither is available? Why plainly recourse must be had to earth. The first necessity in such cases is efficient drainage. It takes water and earth to make mud. Then if water can be kept out of the road as well as off its surface, earth as material is not absolutely bad. The right way to proceed is to under-drain the road bed itself, except in situations where the earth is compact enough to shed water, and there the hard material should be rounded high enough to secure quick surface drainage laterally. In any case water must not stand in the road nor can it be permitted to run along the wheel tracks. At the sides deep, wide, open ditches, must be constructed with suitable decline in their bottoms and frequent provision for discharge. Along these ditches no wheel should ever be permitted to pass, hence the necessity for making them so deep that the water failing man through a foot shall know enough to keep out. Now with all this care a passable highway can be constructed and maintained with no better material than common earth. Of course labor will be required to make repairs more frequently than if better material were used. After all the cost will be less than by the slipshod methods now in vogue. A road-making machine is the proper agency where earth roads are used.—Hudsonian.

JENNY LIND'S MOTIVE.

Years ago we heard Jennie Lind sing in the Messiah. She revealed, by her rendering of "I know that my Redeemer liveth," the ability of song to interpret the rudiments of things. The morning of forty years ago was confirmed, the other day, by reading the reminiscences of the Rev. C. A. Wilkins, the English chaplain to the King of Hanover. He met Jenny Lind just after she had signed her contract to sing in the United States. In the course of their conversation, she mentioned the great ignorance of the lower classes in Stockholm, and their indifference to the education of their children. "I have," she said, "determined to enroll schools for those poor little children. My motive in going to America is to raise thirty-six thousand pounds, which I intend to hand over to trustees, who will carry out my plans. "May I not, sir, hope for God's blessing upon this work, undertaken for the sake of Christ's flock? My daily prayer is that I may be spared three years, so that I may carry out my plans for my poor children in Stockholm. Is there anything in that prayer inconsistent with submission to the will of God?" One morning, after a church service, which she had given, the clergyman found her consulting and reading the money received, preparatory to distributing it among the poor. He began complimenting her, but she cut him short by saying: "It is the only return I can make unto the good Lord for the gift He has bestowed upon me, which is the great joy of my life, I can only repay Him through the poor and the suffering. This I desire to do."

THINK OF THIS, WORKINGMEN.

A correspondent of John Bennett's Paper, the organ of the labor unions, calls attention to the claim of the brewers that they give employment to 500,000 men, and says: "Think of this working-man! Half a million men employed in destroying food, in rotting grain, etc., turning it into poison. This makes men drink wine, whiskey, children's organs, the industrious lawyer, the intelligent manufacturer, and sends women and children to work instead of men, thus filling the land with temper and loafers, for workers to support. If it is true that every person who produces nothing beneficial to society is no better than a pauper, then all labor, employed in producing, handling or selling such drinks is wasted, and people so employed are paupers and makers of paupers. The brewers, distillers, liquor, wine and beer dealers, are among the worst enemies of workingmen; the temperance people are their friends. The former rob them of their health, happiness and life; the latter want to see every man, woman and child well housed, clothed and fed. The objects of temperance are the abolition of poverty, crime, disease and premature death."

To those troubled with Dyspepsia we recommend a dessert, to be taken daily, consisting of Junket, made with Eagle's Wine of Amber. It will cure many cases of Dyspepsia without medicine, by supplying, in the form of an elegant dessert, the real digestive principles.

The adulteration of condition powders has got to such a pitch that one can now buy a pound pack of dust and oil for 25 cents. There is only one kind now known that are strictly pure, and those are Blount's "Eagle" Powder. Small packs 25c large ones $1.00.

This is the season of the year when everybody should take an alternative. There is no medicine selling in the market that is making so many cures of the liver, kidney and blood diseases as Dr. Q. W. Norton's Burdock Blood Purifier. See Testimonials in adv. 3c.

Instantly is none too quick to relieve croup. Many children have died while a fire was making. Johnson's Anodyne Linctum gives instant relief and is a cure cure. Half teaspoonful on sugar. Every family should keep it in the house.

Many visions passed before him,

In the silent night thought, So on he went, and still not knowing, Ere he reached the solemn spot. Yet to God his heart was given, As he climbed the fatal tree. But it was God's will to take him, What he will, will sure to be. See them in the forest looking, There in tears and grief so great. But that still, small voice is saying, God he doth do all things right. In the wild woods silent praying, As they say his heart had come, Heaven, bless them, they are crying, Yet they say they will be done. I am coming blessed Jesus, Where you are, I too shall be. Friends on earth, I've loved most dearly, Death has parted you and me. Father, mother, sisters, brothers, Can I leave you all, farewell, Oh! be ready and in glory, There to meet me and to dwell. They will meet, and they will miss him, There will be one vacant chair, They will linger to cross him, When they breathe their evening prayer. Farewell Lawson, farewell Lawson, Oh! so hard to leave you here, Adieu, to earth the youthful bloom, God hath said come follow me. JAMES G. WARD.

A REASONABLE CHAPTER.

Man that is born of women is of cold days and full of trouble. In the morning he ariseth with the alarm clock, girdeth up his suspenders and says in his heart: "Lo, the sun shineth! Spring is here, and I will do my summer underclothing." And he does so. And, verily I say unto you when the shadow of the day is at hand, the air is exceeding cold and the north wind bloweth through his whiskers. Yes, he is chilled even to the marrow of his bones and he chideh himself for a fool that he did not clothe himself in the flannels that were his own. He ariseth on another morn and seeth snow upon the ground, and he saith: "Behold it is chill, and I will have a good head and wear my winter overcoat. And he does so. These things he saith and he doth, and he lamenteth that he did not wear his new spring coat of nobby goods. He carrieth his chestnut winter coat on his back, and the daughters of men deride him, saying: "Behold, he goeth forth to sell his winter garment, that he may get the garment which is of the spring from the hands of the brother of his father." Verily he knoweth not wherewith he should be clothed, for whosoever he putteth upon him he is left with equal loathsomeness.—Chicago Rambler.
