E.W. GILLETTE COMPANY LIMITED

"KYRA,"

OR,

The Ward of the Earl of Vering.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Young Lovers.

"You get nothing cheap, nowadays, Charlie. No, it was very dear, Stephen said. Indeed, he was dead against my buying it, for other reasons than the expense and outlay. Poor old Stephen! It went hard to go against him, but I could not help it. Strange, is it not, that he should be so opposed to the purchase now, when he was as eager for it in my uncle's time as the old Earl himself. Land has grown more valuable, and a better investment, too."

"Stephen Gringe is very old," murmured Lillian, in the low compliant voice in which she always addressed Percy.

Percy nodded.

"Yes; but as clear as crystal in all things pertaining to the estate, save in this matter. He implored me not to make the investment, almost with tears in his eyes; and I am not quite easy about disregarding his prayer, even now, when it is too late for vague regrets. The land is bought, and Vering is so many thousand acres larger than it was yesterday."

And he laughed, rather wearily, Kyra thought.

"It is as large as the forest at the foot of Mount Shortall!" she murmured.

He looked at her quickly, then in a low voice, said:

"Always thinking of the past, little one. I wonder are you quite happy in this cold civilization of vice?"

She looked down for a moment and then up at him, frankly.

"I am quite happy now," she said, with a little stress on the word.

A light flashed into Percy's face for a moment, then, as his eye rested on the form of the young Adonis, the light vanished. Was it because she was near him that she was happy?

His next words came dreamily.

"Didn't I hear something about the holidays, the other evening? When are they?"

"In a fortnight," said Kyra, holding up her tiny hand. "Fourteen days only—and then—" she stopped suddenly and looked from one to the other. Then—what was she to do?

Lillian Devigne's low voice filled up the pause.

"And then, my love, we are all of to a pretty little box mamma has taken at Fairleigh. I have not asked Lord Vering for you, because I wanted all arrangements made first, so that he could not refuse."

Percy looked across at her with a glance of grateful appreciation.

"What do you say, Kyra?" he said.

Kyra smiled.

"Fairleigh is four miles from Vering is it not?" put in Lillian, quietly.

Percy nodded.

"And we are to go there!—you will take me?" said Kyra, her quiet smile intensifying immediately. "Oh, how delightful!—only a fortnight! How kind of you!"

And in her impulsive fashion, she put up her hand for Lillian's white one, and kissed it.

Lillian smiled, and, playing with the girl's hair, went on:

"You will not be dull, Kyra?" she said.

Kyra shook her head emphatically.

"Oh! no," said Kyra, pressing her hands together. How kind, how thoughtful of you! Is she not kind, my lord?" and she looked up at Percy.

He glanced at her fair face smiling serenely on the dark, enraptured one below it, and said:

"Too kind for thanks, Kyra. And so your holiday is disposed of. You said something about Germany, Charlie—are you still in the tourist vein?"

Charlie stretched himself, and looked rather down.

"Rather hot for the Hartz, Percy, isn't it?" he said, hesitatingly.

"A great deal too hot," laughed Percy.

"Where are you going when the season breaks up?" asked Charlie, with almost cold indifference.

Percy thought a moment, and answered, rather hurriedly:

"I thought of taking a turn in the Mediterranean; but the yacht is scarcely trim and taut, and Stephen Gringe wants me down at Vering, and Butterwick will hang about my tails over the new land. I almost think I shall go to Vering. Will you come down with me?"

Charlie hesitated, and looked palpably embarrassed.

"I half promised Norman Facewell that I would, if I did not go to the Hartz, stop and see him through his training for the sculls next month," he said.

"Well," said Percy, "there is little to entice you to Vering, dear boy; and a promise is a promise."

Then he rose and looked at his watch, and then at the sky.

"Let the wrath of Minerva House fall on us, Kyra," he said; "we will hasten to place you under the shadow of its wings."

Kyra rose at once.

"I will get my hat on," she said.

She generally rode over, and kept a dress or two at the Devignes to change.

"And I'll get mine," said Lillian, rising.

Charlie stretched himself, and struck his heel with his whip.

"You needn't trouble, Miss Devigne. I left my horse with one of Percy's men at the corner; I'll take Kyra home. Hi, George!" he called, as the groom who always fetched and returned with Kyra passed through the garden, "bring my horse round with Miss Kyra's."

Percy looked on, silent and impatient as a sphinx.

It was only a short ride, and the sun was still in the heavens. Two grooms would accompany them, and yet—Well, why should he, how could he, even in his innermost heart, object? He had no horse but his dashing steed or he would have found them.

"Good-by," he said to Lillian. "I shall see you at the countess's, I suppose? Good-by, Kyra."

She put her little hand in his, and her eyes sought his face with their ever gentle scrutiny; with that thrill of the heart that ever moved her at his touch. How cold "good-by" always sounded!

In ten minutes Charlie, whom love was turning rapidly into a diplomat, had borne his beautiful prize off, leaving Lillian Devigne to plan her farewell stroke.

"Good-by," said she, as Percy stood at the door looking after them. "To you remember, I always said that boy would be fearfully dangerous. Does he get handsome every day, or is it only my fancy? I told mamma that no young girl in the world could resist him," and she laughed.

"Charlie is fair to view," said Percy, quoting Scott, grimly, and walking off smiling, but smitten by the little arrow nevertheless. No girl could resist him; how then, with an impressionable, unsophisticated girl like Kyra?" was his reflection. "Well, well, why not? I have had my day! their's is to come. Dear old Charlie!"

There was very little said between Charlie and Kyra on the road to Minerva House; Kyra was all flight at the prospect of a holiday with Lillian, so near to her lord and chief, and begged Charlie to accept Percy's invitation. But Charlie was undecided and troubled. It would be very nice, and nothing would please him better than being near his "sweet coz," as he called Kyra, but where was Lady Mary to spend her holidays. By the time they commenced, the London season would be nearly over; where would Lady Darlington take their darling daughter, did Kyra know! Kyra did not, but she would ask, and so they came to the gates of Minerva House. While they were walking in the pretty lane for the same gates to be opened, Charlie looking pensively and languidly at the windows and round about the house, a tall, thin man, with a foreign air about him stood a little way from them under some trees, and watched them.

Charlie saw him, and was about to call Kyra's attention to him in a careless sort of way, but at the moment he got a glimpse of a beautiful face at one of the windows of the house, and instantly became engrossed. The face was only there an instant, but in its place appeared for a moment a page from a copy-book, on which was written in large text—"The Orchard."

That also was only there for an instant, but quite long enough for Master Charlie, who rather timidly declined to enter the portals of the temple, hurriedly said good-by to his charge, and, then, all at once assuming an air of supreme carelessness, told the groom that he might set back to the stables as soon as he pleased, and that he, Charlie, would take a gallop around the lanes.

Then, as soon as the groom had disappeared, Charlie made a detour by sunny lanes, and, riding very quietly and cautiously, gained the wall at the end of the orchard attached to Minerva House.

Standing in the strapps he could just see over the wall; and, after watching for a minute or two, with a heart that beat nineteen to the dozen, he fancied he caught the glimmer of a white muslin dress.

Then, with a slow, but obviously feigned carelessness of gait, the wearer of the muslin sauntered along the path, and at last stood by the wall, under Charlie's handsome face.

Charlie's heart beat twenty-four to the dozen.

"Lady Mary," he whispered.

Lady Mary, for it was she, turned her pretty face upward with a half-ashamed, but wholly pleased glance.

"Oh, hush! I am so afraid. They may all be looking through the window," she murmured, plaintively.

"But they can't see me, if they are!" urged Charlie, eagerly. "Oh, Lady Mary—oh, Mary, how can I thank you! If you knew how I was longing to see you! and how clever of you! I should never have thought of the copy-book—"

"Oh, it was overlooked, and—and if you say a word more about it, if you don't forget it this instant, I'll run away and never see you again, Mr. Merviale!"

"I've forgotten it!" responded Charlie, eagerly. "That is, I can't, I never shall forget it! how could I! and Lady Mary, Mary—I may call you Mary! Don't call me Mr. Merviale; my name is Charlie! Will you say it? do! oh, do!"

"Why should I?" persisted Lady Mary. "Charlie! then it's a very stupid, ugly name, and is that what you wanted to say to me, and what you begged me so hard to see you again for? I could have said that at Lady Devigne's the other day!"

"I wish you had then!" said Charlie—"stand still, you beast!" It is needless to say that this was addressed to the horse. "I wish you had. Ugly name! It's the prettiest in the world now you have spoken it—excepting Mary! Mary! No, that is not all I have to say—shall I tell you what it is?"

Lady Mary shook her head vehemently.

"But I must. I love you, Mary, dear, beautiful Mary!"

Lady Mary's face went from crimson to white, and to crimson back again.

Little Lectures by NURSE WINGARNIS (Lecture No. 1.)

"Nerves"

Our nerves are similar to an intricate network of telegraph wires. Controlled and nourished by a portion of the brain—known as the nerve centres—the delicate thread-like nerves radiate in all directions throughout the body. So long as the nerve centres are capable of continually supplying nourishment to the nerves, the nerves will remain strong and healthy. But directly the nerve centres become weakened by overwork, worry or anxiety, they are unable to transmit the necessary nourishment, and the nerves become worn out and "on edge." Then it is that a sudden shock makes you "jump"—you get irritable—you suffer from neuralgia—you are restless and depressed. In this condition there is nothing to equal

WINGARNIS

Because, being a powerful nerve food, "Wingarnis" gets right to the root of the trouble, and, by creating a supply of new nerve force, stimulates and re-vitalizes the whole nervous system. Try "Wingarnis" for "Nerves." It is wonderful. Over 10,000 Doctors recommend it.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Miss Casey, of the North River School, was one of the supervisors in this centre and not Miss K. Lynch as mentioned in our notes of yesterday.

Lawyer W. J. Higgins, of St. John's, was in town today to defend Mr. McGuire, who was summoned by Head Constable Sheppard for driving his motor car above the speed limit a few days ago in this town. The accused was fined $25.00.

Several deaths have occurred lately from measles owing to the having contracted colds.

Two schooners arrived this morning from Sylvest with coal to R. D. McTae & Sons.

Mr. Harold Carson, son of the late Joseph Carson, died yesterday at the home of his mother, Mrs. Thomas Stanley, Bear's Cove, at the age of 11 years. Mr. Carson had worked in Boston for six years or so, and being in failing health returned here in the spring and gradually weakened until the end came yesterday.

The heavy down-pour of rain today caused some of our citizens to exclaim: "Miserable weather, isn't it!" But that shower also caused the farmer to exclaim: "Oh, what delightful weather!" and so it is for the crops and they are showing the benefit derived from it.

Mr. Henry Whiteway goes to St. John's on Monday to enter hospital for treatment for some internal complaint.

Mr. Robert Brazil left for St. John's yesterday morning to consult the doctors at the General Hospital. He returned again by last night's train.

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is no wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylax and Zylax Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylax at your druggists."

Zylax, 60c a box; Zylax Soap, 35c a cake.

SHACKLETON'S STORY

Bergs Crushed Ship Endurance In Weddell

Sir Ernest Shackleton's Story of his Antarctic Expedition

London, June 2.—A polar ship from Liep, Sir Ernest Shackleton who arrived at Port Stanley, Falkland Islands, describes the misadventure which overtook his Antarctic expedition. His ship "Endurance" pierced by icebergs and sank Weddell Sea on Nov. 20, having abandoned by all hands on Oct. 21. Shackleton and his crew of 28 men, after a series of privations and dangers in the drift ice, several parties being then on the verge of physical collapse.

Owing to the seriousness of the situation and the impossibility of finding any very satisfactory place on the bleak coast, "Shack" decided to make an effort to reach the main party on Elephant Island, 760 miles distant, by charge of Frank Wild, the second in command.

Education and the C. H. E.

The year has brought round again the school examinations known to our childhood as the "C. H. E." and we note that it has brought with them the hard words which it seems to have become the fashion to use against the body properly designated by those letters. Knowing something both of the examinations and those responsible for them, we are glad of the opportunity to take up the cudgels in their behalf. The subject, too, is an important one—as important even as a Municipal Election.

In yesterday's "Daily News" Yorick prefers a scathing indictment of the Council of Higher Education, which embodies the spirit and a good deal of the substance of a large body of criticism which we have heard directed against the Council. We do not claim perfection for these men, and we see grave defects in their system. But we do most emphatically defend the broad principles on which that system is built and which are so constantly being assailed.

Yorick appears to share the common opinion that our young pupils are being taught quite the wrong things and in quite the wrong way. He says, "Facts have been crammed and banged into them," almost suggesting a surgical operation. Lower he informs us that "An unfortunate development of modern education is the tendency to theorize. The teacher to-day has to spend more time in explaining why two and two make four than in emphasizing the fact itself." Passing over the obvious inconsistency and the delicate distinction between "emphasizing" and "banging and cramping," which is the more important, the bare fact or the reason for it? This is a question (unfortunately given here too trivial an application) which goes to the very root of countless disputes and wranglings over the purpose and function of education. We respectfully cast our vote for the theory. Education, before anything else, should teach a child to think; if he will do that, knowledge will follow. Unfortunately, there is a very great tendency here to deny anything that involves the teaching of abstract theories and general principles. We lately read a violent tirade against Algebra. Geometry, of course, is the merest "frills." The problems of the Arithmetic text book are also frills, unless, by a little judicious adapting, the teacher can weave them around quintals of fish and pieces of cloth. As opposed to these sciences, the proper subjects of study appear to be such matters as Newfoundland Geography. The strange part of it, is that the fuculation of the former is invariably condemned as cramming. Now if there is one thing that it is quite impossible to "cram" into a boy's mind it is a Euclid proposition; he either knows it or he does not, and there is an end to it. He can only know it through a process of ratiocination, which is to say, by using his brains. What mental process is involved in getting by heart the names of some rivers and villages? It is a mere effort of memory, cramming in the true sense. These things are not even worthy the name of facts—they are mere accidents.

Again, Yorick says, "The fact of the matter is that in the schools thoroughness is largely sacrificed to the craze for examination results." We have often heard this phrase elsewhere, but we have never been able to understand it. It would seem that the less thorough a pupil is, the better results he will achieve in his examinations; we can interpret it in no other way. If it be a fallacy to suppose that an examination will test the thoroughness of a student's knowledge, it is one of which practically every educational institution in the world is guilty.

We agree thoroughly with Yorick about the need for elementary education. But we are also insistent upon the need at the other end. A student here can get a very good foundation, but that is all. When he goes to a foreign University it is his bitter experience to find that while he has a smattering of many subjects he scarcely knows more than the A B C of any one. We need a system which will allow our youths to measure up not merely to the standard of the C. H. E. examinations but to one very much higher. A very welcome sign is the rumour that our colleges are shortly to be affiliated to certain Canadian Universities. Let us hope it will be the first step towards the establishment of a University of our own. This would be a consummation that would denote more progress in the life of the Colony, and do more to advance it, than almost anything else we can think of. If any wish to point out faults in our system, let him begin with the most obvious one, the petrified absurdity of the public attitude which insists that every educational effort shall be so split up, divided into so many channels, and so wastefully pursued that the minimum of result is achieved at the maximum of expense. Perhaps the new movement will see the dawn of co-operation, but we are not too optimistic.

"The World is Beaten."

The fastest sustained long distance flight ever made on air, land or sea, was made by Ralph Mulford on May 2nd of this year. Never before in the history of the world has a human being travelled so fast or far in 24 hours, smashing the world's sustained record for this time made in 1907 at London by S. F. Edge at Brooklands in a "Napier" 6 cylinder car. Mulford did 1,819 miles in 24 hours, with the world renowned Hudson Super Six, beating the "Napier" record by 238 miles.

Mulford also broke the World's Stock Car Mile record with the Super Six at Ocean Beach, Daytona, Florida, April 10th, doing 103 miles per hour. Recently at Washington he won the Review Trophy for quick acceleration, speeding from five miles to thirty miles per hour in ten seconds, and five miles to fifty in nineteen seconds. All records made under supervision of the American Automobile Association.

Fifteen thousand Super Sixes have been sold the past three months, which is another world's record for high class cars. Mr. J. H. Monroe, of the Colonial Cordage Company, has one of these cars; another arrived by last Florida for Mr. Collishaw, and next week's Stephano will bring one for Hon. J. R. Bennett.

In value and comfort in riding, there is no car made to compare with the Super Six. jly11

"Terra Nova" Arrives.

RECEIVED SOME DAMAGE ON THE VOYAGE.

The S.S. Terra Nova, Capt. Kennedy, entered port this morning, after a run of 14 days from Cardiff. She is bound for Charlottetown with a part cargo of coal on board. A derangement in her machinery caused the ship to put in here. As soon as repairs are effected she will proceed to Charlottetown where she will load pit props. The Terra Nova has brought one such cargo leaving Lewisporte at 8.45 a.m. for a northern outpost.

The Argyll left Placentia at 5.40 p.m. for Red Island route. The Clyde has not been reported since leaving Lewisporte at 8.45 a.m. The Dundee left Bonavista at 5.45 p.m. yesterday, outward.

The Ethie left Port Saunders at 3.40 p.m. yesterday, coming south. The Glencoe left Burin at 3 p.m. yesterday, going west.

The Home left Fortune Harbor at 1.40 p.m. yesterday, outward. The Lady Sybil reached Port aux Basques to-day.

The Kyle leaves Port aux Basques to-day after arrival of the express. The Petrel left Hillview at 9.35 a.m. yesterday, outward.

The Meigle is north of Twillingate. The Sagona leaves for the Labrador at 4 p.m. to-day, sailing from the dry dock.

Our Baseball Column.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

"You can't teach an old dog new tricks," murmured the LIONS as they dived for the second division.

Many of the fans were hoping to see Kelly, the new twirler of the LIONS, in action, but we understand that he was barred by Manager Hartnett, of the WANDERERS, who was not satisfied with his qualifications under the residential clause.

And "St" Jenkins came back! Many people now wonder why the WANDERERS put any players in the outfield. They are only ornaments with King in the box.

Hiltz, however, is not downhearted. A tight infield with that terrible hole at short plugged, an elixir-of-youth plant, and an elevated street car service on the base circuit for "charley-hose" players, are his ideas now.

Tim played a grand game till he pulled the bone and permitted Jenkins to make his double play. Bill Cooney's pitching still is the poetry of motion as it used to be in his palmy days last year, but the bleacherites are of the opinion that there isn't the tremendous hop on his stuff that made his pitching the most fearful that went smoking across the plate.

Manager McGrath, of the B. I. S., and Manager Hartnett, of the WANDERERS, now that they have got a game each salted down, are looking quite happy these days. Perhaps, however, it will be the case of "the laughs best" and so forth, as with two rounds to go and each Club to play five games more, there is plenty of time for a slip from the Cup to the Wooden Spoon.

Next Wednesday morning's game between the CUBS and WANDERERS should be interesting, as the CUBS were the only team to defeat the blue and whites last year in their march for the 1915 pennant.

Owing to the St. Bon's Sports being run off for Patriotic purposes, we understand that the League will not produce any game for the afternoon.

Orr, who is just back from school, is going to guard third for the CUBS in their game on Wednesday morning. He attempted to play last year but the League ruled him ineligible. We suppose there can be no kick this year?

Owing to the insertion of the word "not" (through a typographical error) our remarks in Thursday's column about the LIONS being "cautious" rather lost its point. What we meant to say was that their base operations were very slow and they apparently "fell asleep at their posts" whenever they reached the bags, and if only they suffered from INSOMNIA on the bases their scores would have undoubtedly been greater.

We have to thank D. H. Mac, and J. W. M. for their prompt response to our request in Saturday's column for the famous Baseball poem: "CASEY AT THE BAT," and we give it herewith:—

There was ease in Casey's manner as he stepped into his place, There was pride in Casey's bearing and a smile on Casey's face. And when responding to the cheers he lightly doffed his hat, No stranger in the crowd could doubt 'twas Casey at the bat.

Ten thousand eyes were on him as he rubbed his hands with dirt, Five thousand eyes were on him as he rubbed them in his shirt; Then while the writhing pitcher ground the ball into his hip, Defiance gleamed in Casey's eye, a sneer curled Casey's lip.

And now the leather covered sphere came hurtling thro' the air, And Casey stood awaiting it with haughty grandeur there; Close by the sturdy batsman the ball unheeded sped— "That ain't my style," said Casey; "STRIKE ONE" the umpire said.

From the benches, black with people, there went up a muffled roar, Like the beating of the storm waves on a stern and distant shore; "Kill him, kill the umpire!" shouted someone in the stand, And it's likely they'd have killed him had not Casey raised his hand.

With a smile of Christian charity great Casey's visage shone, He stilled the rising tumult, he bade the game go on; He signaled to the pitcher and once more the spheroid flew, But Casey still ignored it, and the umpire said "STRIKE TWO."

"Fraud," cried the maddened thousands, and echo answered "Fraud," But the scornful look from Casey and the audience was awed; They saw his face grow stern and cold, they saw his muscles strain, And they knew that Casey would NOT let that ball go by again.

The sneer is gone from Casey's lip, his teeth are clenched with hate, He pounds with cruel violence his bat upon the plate; And now the pitcher holds the ball, and now he lets it go, And now the AIR is shattered by the force of Casey's blow.

Oh, somewhere in this favoured land the sun is shining bright, The hand is playing somewhere and somewhere hearts are light, And somewhere men are laughing and somewhere children shout, But there is no joy in Boston, MIGHTY CASEY HAS STRUCK OUT.

NERVINE NEVER FAILS.

When that cold comes, how is it to be cured? This method is simplicity itself. Rub the chest and throat vigorously with "Nervine." Rub it in good and deep. Lots of rubbing can't do any harm. Then put some Nervine in the water and use it as a gargle; this will ease the cough, cut out the phlegm, assist in breaking up the cold quickly.

There is no telling how quickly Nervine breaks up a hard racking cough, eases a tight chest, relieves a pleuritic pain. Why, there isn't another liniment with half the power, the penetrative qualities, the honest merit that has made Nervine the most popular American household liniment.

A large 50c. bottle of Nervine cures ills of the whole family, and makes doctor's bill small. Get it to-day. The large size is more economical than the 25c. trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere.

GEO. M. BARR St. John's.

Erring Son Prosecuted By His Mother.

A 20 year old laborer of Adelaide Street was arrested under warrant last evening charged with being drunk and disorderly in his mother's house—his third offence. Before being arrested he tried to make good his escape, but was easily out-distanced by Constable Woodford, who with the speed of a Longboat, gave chase and captured his man getting over a fence. The prisoner remonstrated and following a rough encounter in a cabbage garden, the officer came off best and in double quick time marched his aggressor to the lock-up. He appeared before Judge Hutchings to-day and promised to keep away from the house in future. His Honor remarked that he had already broken two such promises and added that he would keep his present promise for at least two months, for which period he was sent to the Penitentiary, without the option of a fine.

THE DIFFERENT "YOU'S."

RUTH CAMERON.

The extent to which we become different people in our relationship to our friends (and enemies) is a never-ending source of interest to me.

When I hear the other members of household talking over the telephone, I can often tell by the tone of their voices, without hearing a word of the conversation, to whom they are talking. That is because the different people on the other end of the line make such different personalities of them.

"I don't like that man if he is your friend." I once heard a woman say of her husband's friend.

"You never met him," said he.

"What do you mean?" said she.

She Never Met His Friend.

"The man I've always known, the man I go fishing with and tramping with, you've never met. It's an entirely different man that you meet, though he does have the same face and wear the same clothes."

How often that is true! We can never introduce the friend we love to some other friend, because the moment he comes into the other's presence he becomes a changeling.

The Eternal Barrier.

Especially is it true when the barrier of sex stands between. The man other men know, a woman never meets. "I can't see how you like that man," the Wants-to-be-cynic says to me with distaste. "Of course he can't. He doesn't know what a fascinating, interesting, almost caressing manner that man has when he is with women."

All he sees is a lank, rather plain-looking man who doesn't care for his beloved fishing and who isn't particularly successful in business.

The man who is gifted with the ability of bringing a touch of romance into his intercourse with women in a perfectly harmless and legitimate fashion, the Cynic never meets.

Can You Blame Red For Not Harmonizing With Purple?

Enough for the influence of sex. To return to the broader aspect of the subject, George Eliot says somewhere: "There are people so giddy in regard to you that their 'Good Morning' is charged with offence."

Now when anyone affects you thus, is it likely that you will present to him the same personality that you present to those who rub you the right way? Hardly! And is it your fault that you are affected in that way? Sometimes perhaps, and sometimes not. Is it the fault of red that it becomes hideous when it is placed beside purple? Or should we say that blue is an ugly color because it doesn't harmonize with certain shades of green? Some antipathies are just as inevitable.

Again, haven't you seen a blue that looked green when you placed it beside a yellow?

Even so you and I change according to the temperament of the person with whom we are in juxtaposition. The "you" one friend knows may be as entirely different from the "you" another pictures as one person from another. Wouldn't it be fun to be able to know some of these "you's" ourselves?

German Navy Now Crippled.

Famous British Expert Reveals Its Present Condition—Fourteen Left of 45 Cruisers—And the Majority of These Are Badly Damaged.

(By Archibald Hurd, Naval Expert of The London Daily Telegraph.)

London, June 24.—Three weeks have passed since the battle of Skagerrack, and it is possible, in the light of an immense mass of information from British and neutral sources, to form what will prove a verdict of the historians on one of the most splendid incidents in our naval annals.

The German high seas fleet, weaked by five capital ships, is so lame that it cannot move and so blind that it could not move if it dared to do so. That is a matter on which there can be no doubt.

Six Battle Cruisers Lost.

When the war opened, Germany possessed the following ships of the cruiser class (built and building) less than fifteen years old, those lost in the course of the war being given:

Battle cruisers—Original number eight, since lost six, comprising the Lutzow, Goeben, Seydlitz (a complete wreck), Bleucher, Hindenburg, and another of a similar type, which, it is believed, is the Von Der Hann.

Large cruisers—Original number seven, since lost five, comprising the Yorck, Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Friedrich Karl and the Prince Adalbert. The two remaining vessels are the Roon (launched in 1903, therefore thirteen years old), and the Prince Heinrich (1906). The Flieger Blomark (1898) is of no military value and can be ignored, owing to her slow speed and weak guns. She is believed now to be serving as a training ship.

Light cruisers—Original number thirty, since lost twenty, comprising the Karlsruhe, Madgeburg, Kohn, Mainz, Emden, Dresden, Nürnberg, Königsberg, Leipzig, Bremen, Undine, Rostock, Wiesbaden, Breslau, Frauenlob, Elbing, Ariadne and three others, the names of which have not yet been revealed.

Fourteen Effective Cruisers Left.

Out of the forty-five effective cruisers of all classes which Germany had built and was building when the war opened, she therefore possesses today only fourteen, and of these a large proportion was so seriously injured in the battle of Skagerrack as to be at present ineffective. Those fourteen cruisers have to suffice for duty as scouts for battle squadrons, parent ships for torpedo flotillas, and for patrol work in the Baltic.

No Bait—West Lobster Fishery Poor.

Late reports received by the Board of Trade concerning the cod, salmon and lobster fisheries are:—

June 24th. From W. Andrews (Great Jarvis Head to Pass Island).—The total catch is 2,500 qtls. with 400 for last week. Ten traps, 200 dories and skiffs and 2 boats are fishing. Prospects are not so good as last week and traps are getting only from 2 to 5 qtls. The caplin has gone off and also cod. The lobster catch is

The nets are not doing anything and hook and liners, poorly. There is a good salmon fishery.

June 24th. From T. Soper (Channel to Port aux Basques).—Prospects are very poor and there is no bait. The lobster catch is very poor. Owing to weather conditions the few fishers on the grounds this week met with poor success. The total catch is 6052 qtls. of codfish and 5721 pounds of halibut with 5 qtls. and 21 pounds for last week.

June 24th. From W. Hogan (Cape Frapes to Broad Cove).—Prospects were better than during last week and there was plenty of caplin. The catch to date is 1000 qtls. with 750 for last week. Six boats, 68 traps and 39 dories and skiffs are fishing. The majority of the fishermen are of opinion that a "brush" or small storm is necessary to drive the cod to the land. The lobster fishery is fair.

Got Ten Wales.

The whaler Cachalot, operating at Hawke's Harbor, has captured ten whales to date. This is considered good and compares favourably with her catch for any previous year up to this time. Her aggregate catch last season was seventy odd fish and she has yet ample time even to exceed that number, as she will operate up to about the middle of October next.

TO-MORROW'S PARADE.

The usual Sunday morning church parade will take place to-morrow. The C. C. C. Band will turn out.

"MEASLES."

Hundreds of children are suffering from "Measles" at the present time, and one has to be very careful in trying to avoid the complications that often follow them.

A heavy "Cough" is very prevalent during this present epidemic, and "Pneumonia" is the great danger. Avoid this by keeping a bottle of "Stafford's Phorotone Cough Cure" on hand.

Obituary.
Death had claimed as its victim one of the most respected and highly esteemed personages of Paradise, June 24th, when Mr. Daniel Ryan passed to the Great Beyond. Mr. Ryan was apparently in good health when he retired on the evening of the 23rd. About midnight his wife was awakened by his heavy breathing and saw at once that something was wrong. He did not return to consciousness, but died a few minutes later. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon and the attendance of a large concourse of people testified the esteem in which the deceased was held. The sorrowing wife has the sincere sympathy of the writer. R. I. P.

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

THE ELECTION.

"Antiquated" was a common word in use on Polling Day and it referred to the methods used to carry on the business of the election. What reason there was to put both ballots for Mayor and Councillors in the same box is not at all clear. It must have meant hours to get them separated again.

There were also far too few booths. Again there were many booths where the voters were treated in anything but a fair manner. By actual count it took one Deputy Returning Officer fifteen minutes to swear a man in and record his vote, and as the Voters' List was very incomplete, many men waited for hours for a chance to vote, and at eight o'clock I know as a fact that at least seven men were prevented from voting after waiting in the doorway of the booth for more than half an hour. Of course this was simply caused by the incapability of the deputy returning officer to do his work satisfactorily. There were, however, other Deputies whose work was done in a noticeably efficient manner.

Regarding the qualifications of voters, the public can now judge why so many hours were spent over the matter by the Citizens' Committee. They knew all the trouble that occurred in former elections, and the different interpretations that deputy returning officers put on the wording of the Act, and they wanted definite advice on the matter from the Minister of Justice. It was so difficult to get any satisfactory reply from that source that publication of all correspondence on the matter was contemplated. Now on election day I understand that a very broad interpretation was put on the words "and any interest therein" so that it almost became a manhood suffrage vote. I am told that the Municipal elections have always been conducted in this way, that is, all the male members of a family who contribute to the keep of the house have had a vote and not only the head of the house. By this is not the interpretation put upon the Act by all. Manhood suffrage seems the simplest way out and if the Poll tax which is provided in the Charter is sustained, it will practically mean that at the next election.

The election demonstrated that some provision should be made to give those at work ample time to vote. Many men have only the dinner hour and tea hour to vote and as these hours are the busiest at the polling booths it is easily seen that in an election such as yesterday hundreds of men were unable to vote.

Perhaps the hour of closing booths might be extended to nine o'clock.

MEAT.

The ever increasing cost of meat is causing a lot of anxiety to householders and many cannot afford much of it. With beefsteak at forty cents a pound and joints at thirty cents, a big hole is cut in the cash available for eatables. We are told that we should be just as well without it and it may be so with some of us. Unfortunately the man who works the hardest and the longest, and who needs strong sustaining food is the one who can least afford to buy meat. The man of means, of leisure, the man who works short hours with no great physical effort does not require much meat but is the one who can obtain all he wants. It is a part of the problem of inequalities which must be solved some day, whether we want it solved or not.

I do not know how much meat we eat in a year per capita. Australia is the heaviest meat eating country with seven and two-third ounces of meat every day for every man, woman, and child. Then comes Argentina and the United States. Then Canada which consumes about six ounces a day per capita. In the United Kingdom the consumption is five and one-seventh ounces; in Germany five ounces; in France three and a half ounces; in Norway and Sweden three and a quarter ounces; in Russia two and one-fifth ounces.

If private enterprise in Newfoundland cannot make us independent of foreign raised cattle, the Government might consider starting several large farms. Even if our meat cost as much as we could import it for, it would be comforting to know that our supply was assured. But we may be sure that cattle can be raised here just as cheaply as anywhere. The cost of fresh meat and its shortage have thrown us too much in the way of consuming such large quantities of barrel pork and beef, which are very welcome periodically, but not quite suitable for every day consumption.

PROFIT AND PATRIOTISM.

For a few weeks' work a man in Canada made a grab of a quarter of a million dollars in connection with certain shell contracts. He called it brokerage commission. What would you call it? But do you know that there are men here who do very much the same thing? They call it business. In connection with some war expenditure I know of one article which was purchased for $1.45 per unit and when it appeared in the public accounts the Government had been made pay $2.50 per unit. Just where did patriotism enter into that transaction? It makes one sick to hear of patriotism and perhaps from the very individual capable of grabbing such an unholly profit as this shows.

It is indeed time that Government purchasing should be placed on a proper basis. The spoils (for it is nothing else) now go to party supporters and economy in pricing is unknown. Business means as much profit as can be obtained. Unfortunately this is what a merchant means by "Business as Usual." We have heard, and we shall hear: "A brave Newfoundland boy gives his life for the Empire." Have we yet heard: "A rich Newfoundland gives his fortune to the Empire?"

Which is the greater sacrifice? The first? Then why do we hesitate at the second?

NOTHING IMPOSSIBLE.

The day when Man will be able to harness the forces of Nature and make her do his bidding is advancing rapidly. In Australia, they have hired scientists, to bring rain down on the dry parts of the country where rain seldom falls; and there seems every possibility for the success of the plan.

BROKERS ON MARGINS.

I am not an extremist in regard to gambling. While in any form it is bad, yet one cannot get rid of the fact that a great deal of our dealings are conducted with chance as a prime element. Our fishery is often spoken of as a gamble—the seal fishery especially and many enterprises are subject to conditions in which success or failure seems to depend on chance. Life or fire insurance or any insurance is nothing more than a bet with the insurance company. They give you big odds based on certain records by which they are pretty sure to win. But there is one form of gambling which is licensed in the city that might profitably be stopped. The City Council obtains $250.00 as a license from Brokers on Margins. These brokers do not sell stocks in the ordinary way. They do not pass over script for so many shares in a company. Their patrons do not obtain any interest in any company. Their patrons simply gamble on the fluctuations in the market value of the stock of a company. It is a business that does no good to the city and is a legalized form of gambling that we can very well do without. One method would be to tax it out of business, but the preferable method is to prohibit the license altogether.

SARCASM.

Sarcasm is mean. It turns the worthy thought into the unworthy. It is sharp and therefore stings. Sarcasm never convinces. It is brilliant at times, but lights up the bad without disclosing the good. Sharp rebuke, severity of tongue are legitimate weapons in certain kinds of warfare. They are as far above sarcasm as honesty is above stratagem. Sarcasm is not only of no advantage to Character but is a positive injury to noble growth. It is ungenerous, unkind and ought to be suppressed. It would be difficult to find an instance where it ever did the person using it any real good, or did the cause in which it is used any good.

Everyday Etiquette!

"Please tell me what a bride in moderate circumstances is expected to furnish for the new home?" asked Evelyn.

"It has been the province of the bride to provide the bed and table linen for the new home, but I think curtains would come under the head of house furnishing and should be purchased afterward and the bridegroom would pay for them," answered her friend.

Mysterious Disappearance.

No trace has yet been found of James Bulger, of West St. Modeste, who has been missing from his home since the morning of 10th inst. For more than a month Mr. Bulger had not been feeling well. When weather permitted it, however, he spent much of his time out-doors and usually took a walk in the mornings. On the morning in question he started for the mill, about half a mile inland. He appeared to be quite sound in mind and talked about where he was going. After he had been absent some two hours, parties went to look for him, and though a continuous search was kept up for over a week it failed to locate any trace whatever of the missing man. He leaves three sons and three daughters, for whom much sympathy is felt.—Western Star, June 28.

BRITISH LAUNCH GREAT OFFENSIVE

German Trenches and Prisoners Captured Over a 20-Mile Front.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, To-Day

A tremendous British offensive was launched at half-past seven this morning over a front extending for twenty miles north of the Somme. The assault was preceded by a terrific bombardment. The British troops already have occupied the German front line and have captured many prisoners. A terrific bombardment which preceded the attack lasted the whole of one hour and a half. It is too early as yet to give any particulars of the fighting, which is developing in intensity. The British casualties have so far been comparatively light, according to official reports.

The artillery bombardment of the last few days was concentrated this morning with a degree of fury and a number of guns which were unprecedented in the region of Albert and the Somme, with the French co-operating to the south at 7.30 o'clock. Rough clouds of smoke and dust hung over the whole field as far as the eye could see. Infantry sprang from the trenches for an assault over a front of twenty miles. Already it has gained possession of the first line of trenches and the advance is continuing.

New British mortars played a great part in cutting wire entanglements and destroying trenches. A large number of prisoners has been taken. Some of the prisoners who have been taken say the British curtains of fire prevented them from getting food for the last five days. A British staff officer who witnessed the advance at the junction of the French and British lines said the attack was launched as though the men were on parade.

[This offensive is probably taking place east of Amiens, where the line of battle crosses the River Somme. This river probably marks the junction of the British and French forces. The advance may extend northward and affect Arras, where there is known to be a great concentration of forces on both sides.—Ed.]

RIOTS IN GERMANY.

GENEVA, To-day. Swiss newspapers print stories of riots in Berlin, Stuttgart, Leipzig and Essen. Elsewhere in the German Empire riots arise from demonstrations of protest over the sentence of Dr. Karl Liebknecht for attempted treason. A disturbance in Potsdammer Platz, in Berlin, is described as a desperate struggle from sunset until midnight. The demonstration was only suppressed by large bodies of cavalry.

GERMAN SHIPBUILDING.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. The General Manager of the Hamburg-American Line says his company is building the turbine ship the Bismarck of 56,000 tons, which will be the world's greatest steamer. It is also building a steamer to be called the Triton of 30,000 tons and three other vessels of 22,000 tons each. At Bremen are building nine vessels, four of them having a carrying capacity of 15,000 tons, being the world's greatest freight steamers; at Flensburg two steamers of 13,000 tons, three large passenger and freight steamers, and at Geestemünde two freight steamers of 17,000 tons each for traffic through the Panama Canal.

ROBERTSON'S QUIBBLES UNAVAILABLE.

LONDON, To-day. The appeal failed in the case of Sir Roger Casement. It alleges three reasons for setting aside the verdict of guilty of high treason found against him, under which he was sentenced to death, as follows: First, that no crime had been committed under the Statute Edward 3, by which Sir Roger was tried, because no such crime as treason without a traitor was indicated in the statute; second, the Lord Chief Justice erred in the case of the term "aiding and comforting the enemy"; third, because the Lord Chief Justice in his charge to the jury did not properly set forth the defendant's side of the case. The Home Office announced to-day that King George has directed that Sir Roger be degraded from his order of knighthood.

BIG THINGS GOING IN FRANCE.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, To-day.

London.—Through raids covered by a continuous bombardment, the British this week have taken prisoners, and they have identified every German battalion opposite their lines. Some prisoners say the British fire has been so heavy it has destroyed the communicating trenches and the Germans have been unable to bring up food to their front line for three days. It is stated the Germans have withdrawn from their Verdun front the 14th Bavarian Division, the 22nd Reserve Corps from the Champagne front, the Tenth Corps for reinforcements to Field Marshal Von Hindenburg on the Russian front. It is stated it is probable also that three additional divisions were sent to Russia from the British front recently. One report has it that the 11th Bavarian Division refused to attack at Verdun again, whereupon an order was issued that every 10th man be shot, but that the King of Bavaria intervened. Emperor William decided the 11th division should go to the eastern front. There has been no cessation in the British bombardment along the whole line from the Ypres salient to the Somme in the last 24 hours. The weather continues overcast with now and then rain squalls. Wherever the correspondent has gone along the line, the British appeared to be firing two shells to the Germans' one. At some points in the fire of the British concentration the German guns have seemed strangely silent as if awaiting events. The fourth day of the British bombardment of German positions seems to have no diminution in the volume of fire which continues along the whole line without cessation day and night, cutting barbed wire entanglements, demolishing the first and second lines of German trenches, and placing curtains of fire on roads communicating with the trenches. Considerably over a million shells a day are being expended. There seems to be no limit to the supply of them. British infantry actions have been limited thus far to raids under cover of artillery and trench mortar fire, which ascertain the state of the German wire trenches. Last night the sky from 20 to 30 miles to the rear toward the east was brilliant, as though with a glare of the aurora borealis. From dusk to dawn this was the only illumination along the roads for the movement of trucks and automobiles, none of which carried lights. From a point near a group of batteries, the correspondent witnessed a scene of grandeur under the canopy of a "cloudless and moonless night, with broad shell flames and ugly flashes and darts of fire over the area of action. To-day the sun, breaking through the overcast sky for the first time in three days, is welcome to the artillery guns necessary to level the trenches and destroy the concrete shelters and machine guns.

TRADE'S CONGRESS IN SESSION.

LONDON, To-day. All day the Trades' Congress' resolution. The Congress also passed a resolution moved by William J. Thorne, Labor member for Parliament, calling upon the Government to take steps for the conscription of riches by large increases and to tax incomes by more than 500 (?) pounds yearly.

VICTORY FOR ASSOCIATED PRESS.

NEW YORK, To-day. After 23 years' unsuccessful effort to establish a proprietary news gathering and distributing organization in opposition to co-operation from the Associated Press, the New York Sun sold to-day to Frank A. Munsey, owner of the New York press and member of the Associated Press. Beginning on Monday next it will no longer try to gather its own news, but will receive the service of the dominant organization.

LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day.

Successes for the Entente Allies on the three most important European fronts in France, the Italian theatre and East Galicia are chronicled in the latest official communications. The French and British continue their raids against the Germans in France, the French again having captured the Thiabmont north-east of Verdun, and the British having kept up their bombardments of the German trenches and their incursions into the German positions by raiding parties. The Russians have Kolomea, an important railway junction, leading to Lemberg in Galicia. The Italians continue to advance against the Austrians in the Trentino region. The struggle for the possession of Thiabmont Wood taken by the German Crown Prince's forces from the French a week ago was most severe, the position changing hands several times. Incessant fighting and violent bombardments marked the fighting on the remainder of the front around Verdun, particularly on the sector of Hill 204. The British are keeping up their tactics of destroying by artillery fire the German first and second lines of trenches from Ypres to the Somme. It is unofficially reported that the British are expending over a million shells a day in this work. In addition to the capture of Kolomea, the Russians also have taken the town of Oberlin, northeast of Kolomea and several other villages north and south of that point. On the front of Russia from the Galician border to the region of Riga there have been battles at various points, but with no decisive results. The Italians have taken Griso, and several mountain positions southeast of Trent. Their advance against the Austrians, has also resulted in the capture of nearly a thousand prisoners as well as stores of arms and munitions. Vienna claims only the repulse of attacks in this sector. An unofficial report of a battle between the Russian and German squadrons in the Baltic, south of Stockholm, on Thursday night has been received at Stockholm.

NAVAL BATTLE IN BALTIC.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to Reuters' Telegraph Company from Stockholm says that steamers which arrived in port witnessed a naval battle on Thursday night, 15 miles south of Landsort, south of Stockholm. They reported a Russian squadron with a few torpedo boats, and torpedo boat destroyers was attacked by a German fleet composed of cruisers and large warships. At the outset the Germans were unable to defeat the Russians, but eventually reinforcements were obtained and it is supposed the Russians withdrew northward. The correspondent adds nothing was visible from the coast of the reported battle owing to fog, but gun firing was heard throughout the night and at six o'clock this morning a fresh violet cannonade began.

IRISH TROUBLE SETTLED.

LONDON, To-day. Details of the appointment of David Lloyd George as Minister of War have been settled. The Daily Chronicle says to-day the appointment will be announced shortly. The transfer of Lloyd George to the War Ministry, also will involve changes in the Under Secretarships now held by Harold J. Tennant and Henry W. Foster and will also bring a new Minister of Munitions. The Daily Chronicle also says the Irish situation is so far cleared up that it is able to assert that the Cabinet crisis is past, and that there will be no further resignations.

THE GERMAN VERSION.

BERLIN, To-day. An official statement issued to-night by the German Admiralty says on Thursday night German torpedo boats attacked Russian forces consisting of an armored cruiser, a protected cruiser and 5 destroyers between Havnage and Landsort (Swedish coast) in the Baltic Sea off Sweden. After a short engagement the Russians withdrew. Despite a heavy bombardment we sustained no casualties nor damage.

Train Notes.

Thursday's outgoing express left Crabbes at 10.20 p.m. yesterday, and had not been reported since owing to the wires being out of order. No doubt she reached Port aux Basques early this morning and that the Kyle sailed shortly after. The incoming express is due at 3.15 p.m. to-day. The train from Carbonear reached the city on time to-day. The train from St. John's reached the city at 9.30 a.m. to-day.

UNDESIRABLE ROUNDED UP.
"Joey" Baird, a well known character in police circles, who has a love for work, was landed in the tolls last night by Sergeant Noseworthy for theft. After stating that he hailed from Mandy's Pond, "Joey" added that he lived on "Tuesday's" Hill, opposite "Wednesday's" vale. During the course of his itinerary he purchased an overcoat, belonging to a man named Henry Ledrew, and sold it to another party for $10. The accused admitted the theft to-day before Judge Hutchings. Sentence was deferred on the request of the Inspector General, as the party who bought the stolen article will also get into trouble.

His Life For His Enemy

(From the Boston Herald.)
We all admire these words—which are among the noblest recorded as having been uttered at the founding of the Christian faith: "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends." What shall be said of the spirit of compassion which so moves a man that he shall lay down his life for his enemy? Rarely can such a height of self-sacrifice be reached. But it has been. An illustration comes from Vimy Ridge, that shell-swept and blood-soaked hill about half-way between Judge Hutchings' Sentence was deferred on the request of the Inspector General, as the party who bought the stolen article will also get into trouble.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

NEW YORK, June 30. A special cable to the World from London, says that the prospect that the Cabinet will reach an agreement on Home Rule without any resignations is distinctly better to-day. Lansdowne is understood to be holding out for guarantees for a Military Secretary of Ireland, under the scheme, which, of course, can be given. Active hostility to the Lloyd George plan of settlement is still being displayed by a strong section of the Unionist rank and file, but, if the leaders accept it, neither they nor the Lords will be likely to take the grave responsibility of trying to defeat it. RELIEF OF AMERICANS.

LONDON, June 30. Arrangements are being made by which American residents in Britain will be relieved of payment of the two shillings income tax on American securities deposited in the United States, according to a statement made by Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade. Details of the form of action which the Government in this connection is taking, have not yet been revealed, but it may be either through an amendment to the Act or an administrative order.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, June 30. In Belgium about midnight, after artillery preparations, the Germans attacked the salient of our line in the vicinity of the Neuport-Lombartzyde road. We counter-attacked immediately and drove them out of an element of trench where they had gained a footing. Between Chalmes and Roye a strong reconnoitering party, caught under our fire, was disbanded before reaching our trenches. Between the Oise and Aisne two other patrols shared the same fate; one before Quenevires, the other northeast of Vingre. In Champagne a small German grenade attack against our advanced posts, west of Butte Mesnil, was easily repulsed. On the left bank of the Meuse during the night, the Germans multiplied their attacks against our positions, from Avocourt wood up to eastward of Hill 304. They launched against the principal salients of our line a series of very fierce attacks preceded by strong bombardments and accompanied with flaming liquid jets. Between Avocourt and Hill 304, all their attempts were shattered by our fires, which inflicted on them heavy losses. East of Hill 304, after several unsuccessful assaults, the Germans succeeded in capturing a fortified work on our first line, the garrison of which had been buried by bombardment. About 4 a.m. our troops recaptured the work by a brilliant counter-attack. On the right bank the bombardment was very fierce in the sectors north of Souvilles and Tavannes especially. In Chenois region no infantry action occurred.

KITCHENER'S AUTOGRAPH LETTER SOLD.

LONDON, June 30. Earl Kitchener's autograph letter calling for 30,000 recruits for the new army, was sold to-day by auction, on behalf of the Red Cross, to Thomas Fenwick Harrison for £6,000. Harrison will present the letter to the nation.

LACK OFFICIAL CONFIRMATION.

LONDON, June 30. Overtone, the capture of which is reported in to-day's official Russian communication, is fourteen miles northeast of Kolomea. The occupation of this town by the Russians represents a further gain in their new drive over a 25 mile front, which, according to yesterday's Russian and Austrian communications, forced the Austrians to retire on part of the front. Although there are reports that the Russians captured Kolomea, they lack official confirmation.

A FORMAL ENQUIRY.

WASHINGTON, June 30. The State Department is preparing to make a formal enquiry of the German Government as to what punishment has been inflicted upon the submarine commander who torpedoed the Channel steamer Sussex. An informal enquiry through Ambassador Gerard brought no response.

THE ITALIAN OFFENSIVE.

ROME, June 30. The Italian offensive in the Trentino front continues unchecked. The War Office announcement says that in Arsa Vallova the Italians occupied Valmorbia line, on the southern slopes of Monte Spil. Along Pionia they captured Griso, Monte Galgaro and Monte Sogli Diaachi, on the upper cut they won possession of the summit of Zellokofel.

WAR BETWEEN SPAIN AND MOROCCO.

MADRID, June 30. Fighting has broken out again in Morocco between the natives and Spanish troops. Announcement is made to-day of a heavy engagement. The Moroccan rebels were repulsed with large losses. The Spanish casualties include two majors, three captains and many officers and men.

FRENCH RECAPTURE THIAUMONT WORK.

PARIS, June 30. French forces fighting in the region of Verdun, have recaptured from the Germans the Thiaumont work, northeast of the fortress, according to the French official communication.

KOLOMJA TAKEN.

PETROGRAD, June 30. The Russians have captured the town of Kolomea, east of Galicia, according to the Russian official communication issued to-day.

AUSTRIANS FLEEING IN PANIC.

PETROGRAD, June 30. In the region south of the Dniester we are pursuing the enemy. The Austrians, panic-stricken in their flight, are leaving behind a large number of convoys and military material. More prisoners have been brought in according to telegrams received here, and the town of Obeytine has been taken after a fight, as well as villages in the neighborhood north and south. Northwest of the confluence of the rivers Lipa and Styra, detachments under command of Colonel Grembezky, approached unperceived, and put the garrison of Coybane to bayonet. We took possession of the village, from which the enemy fled in panic. Some prisoners were taken by us.

GERMANS KEPT BEST.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, June 30. The long British battle line bombardment was maintained with great severity throughout yesterday and last night. Our patrols reported that the German trenches in several places were destroyed, and defense works and wire entanglements were damaged badly. At other parts of the German line, which is strongly held with great alertness, spasmodic outbursts of machine gun fire and rifle volleys indicating a condition of apprehension. The British infantry

Somewhere in England.

HEAD WAITER: Yessir, we are a bit old fashioned, as you say—but we find people like it so long as we make them comfortable. I haven't heard no complaints on that score.

QUEST: Good beds and good food, eh?

HEAD WAITER: Excellent beds and good wholesome food—comfortable Gas Fires and 'ot water in every room in the 'ouse.

QUEST:—Gas Fires, eh! That doesn't sound old fashioned. HEAD WAITER: No, sir, it don't. But we 'ad to move with the times, sir, and it's our business to give people what they want. If you'll excuse me, sir, that 'ave been 'ere all my life, I find that our people mostly want 'ot baths, 'ot water, well cooked food, good fires, good beds and no fussing. We couldn't do that with coal—not satisfactory as I may say. So we puts in gas—everywhere. We cooks by gas, we lights by gas, we 'eats the water by gas and we 'as Gas Fires. So you can 'ave a 'ot bath in ten minutes if you want it, sir, a fire in your bedroom and whatever you like to order for dinner, sir, punctual to the minute.

QUEST: That sounds top-hole—but where's the old-fashioned part come in?

HEAD WAITER: It don't come in, sir, so far as that's concerned. But there's the 'ouse, the furniture, the pictures and—if I may say so—the 'omeliness of the place.

QUEST: (a trifle bored) Well, well I'll have that hot bath right away—if you'll get the bathroom ready.

HEAD WAITER: The bathroom is ready, sir, always. There's plenty of 'ot water, you'll find clean 'ot towels in the 'ot cupboard in the bathroom and the Gas Fire lighted in your room.

QUEST: Right O!—and dinner at 8 sharp, please!

HEAD WAITER:—What'll you 'ave, sir,—a nice sole, leg of mutton and sweeties?

QUEST: Well, if that isn't troubling the cook too much—I'm rather late, I'm afraid.

HEAD WAITER: No trouble at all, sir. You see, sir, our kind of comfort means comfort for us as well as our people. We don't 'ave no coals to carry, no fires to make up, no bathrooms to attend to—this 'ere gas, if I may say so, saves money and time, and—

QUEST: You may say so at dinner time, please, I'm off to have that bath . . . (ascends stairs slowly) . . . Decent old boy, though he does talk a lot; and a real nice place. Thank heaven, I've struck a decent billet at last! (The bathroom door bangs sharply.)
