Petrolia town council has appointed five special traffic officers for duty on each corner in Main street business section on Saturday evenings. Since the fatal accident there a few weeks ago, these special officers have been so placed, to educate metorists. officers have been so placed, to educate motorists to park properly, drive slowly and otherwise obey traffic regulations. A decided improvement is already manifest. Ingersoll has also named two officers to regulate motor traffic on the Main street on Saturday nights. Watford found the proper solution to this problem long ago, when the town officials issisted that on Saturday vening or any other busy period evening or any other busy period, cars shall park on side streets, leaving Main street clear for traffic. This plan has worked admirably. The Saturday evening shopper may safely park his car in any of the selected areas and pursue the family areas and shopping, neighborly visiting and amusements as long as he desires. The street has never become dangerous for pedestrians to cross, because the view is entirely unobstructed and moving cars have their proper space on either side of the roadway. In these days with traffic congestion in-creasing each month, every motorist should assist in keeping the busy thoroughfare as clear as possible for moving traffic.

WATFORD'S DRAMATIC TALENT SHOULD BE EXHIBITED MORE FREQUENTLY

Miss Sarah Gibney, the accomplished professional actress, and her local associate players, presented the finest amateur offering Watford has witnessed in many a year at the Lyceum on Friday and Saturday evenings under the auspices of the local Tennis Club.

Miss Gibney's artistic capabilities were well exhibited in the beautiful stage setting of a living-room in an old English Manor, her portrayal of the title role of "Peg" O'Connell, the the role of "Peg" O'Connell, the heroine, amply demonstrated her dramatic talent which has carried her to an enviable position in her profession, while her services as director and producer of the play were largely responsible for the most capable manner in which the local members of the cast interpreted their respective roles.

It is surprising that such a pretentous play could have been prepared and produced by amateurs in a short two weeks, and the very efficient manner in which every member interpreted their part testifies to Miss Gibney's efficiency in developing dramatic talent and to each member dramatic talent and to each member of the cast for their quick adaptions to the respective characters.

The play centres around a young Irish girl, "Peg" O'Connell, who has been brought to England from New York, under the terms of the will of an uncle, to be given a home and educated by her aunt, the haughty Mrs. Chichester (Mrs. W. G. Connolly), whose daughter, Ethel (Mrs. R. P. Brown) and son Alaric, (Jack Kinnell) reflect all the mannerisms and superior attitude usually attributed to the English aristocratic family.

Chris. Brent, (W. G. Connolly), a neighbor of the Chichesters, has forsaken his wife and child, and is seeking to persuade Ethel to elope with him.

Mr. Hawkes (W.W. Ballard) is a fine type of English lawyer who brings "Peg" and explains the conditions of the will.

As may be expected "Peg" has a most difficult time of it in a home where no one will tolerate her. Her Irish wit and ready repartee make for many amusing situations in the play.

It is to be hoped that in the coming fall the Tennis Club, or some other organization will be able to persuade Miss Gibney to pay Watford a return visit. Amateur dramatics are always thoroughly enjoyed by local audiences, and for the participants assuming the various roles tend to develop those qualities of poise, grace and ease in public roles tend to develop those qualities of poise, grace and ease in public speaking which have proved to be almost an essential attribute of the present generation of young people.

TORONTO'S FLAG INCIDENT

H. Rider of Cleveland complained H. Rider of Cleveland complained to a police inspector in Toronto that a traffic officer in that city had pulled an American flag off his car and tossed it into the lap of one of the occupants. The gentleman from Cleveland felt so disturbed about it that he threatened to go to the U.S. consul and lodge another complaint. It must be a gueer patriotic germ consul and lodge another complaint.

It must be a queer patriotic germ that stings many of the U.S. tourists into action before they leave home.
A fairly wide observation in a number of American cities fails to recall that cars there, when they are travelling around in their native air, carry a profuse decoration of flags, but when they turn the rudder of the ship toward this land the flag business becomes as essential as a jack ness becomes as essential as a jack and spare tire. The license plate on the car will tell Canadians where it's from, but that is not sufficient. There must be a fluttering of the national emblem at the mast-head as the driver makes mileage over the good roads provided by the Canadian people.

Many of the visitors go halfway.
They get a little British flag and it waves alongside the Stars and Stripes. That seems to modify the stripes. That seems to moonly the display to about the right degree—it announces that the occupants of the car are from United States. Fine, glad to see them, and it is also an acknowledgement on their part that they recognize that they have crossed over into another land that has a flag too.

a trifle past the control point. There are no hard and fast rules about the carrying of flags on cars, but it's a plain fact that it would be more courteous for U.S. visitors, if they must have flags at all, to use the emblems of both countries while over here or else eliminate the flag business on cars entirely. They would find that their mileage on a gallon of gas would be just as satisfactory without the bunting.—London Adver-

My Six Little Ones Used Baby's Own Tablets

Mrs. John A. Patterson, Scotch Village, N.S. says:--"There are six children in our home, and the only medicine they get is Baby's Own Tablets, and I have not known the over into another land that has a flag too.

The average Canadian going on a trip to United States would not dress his car up in flags of this country, at least we have not noticed many of them so decked. If they felt moved to do so we are quite certain that once across the line they would have the courtesy, if they still desired to fly flags, to see to it that an American emblem was given a place in the setfly flags, to see to it that an American emblem was given a place in the setting.

The traffic officer in Toronto probably was a little wearied of directing cars that had nothing but a U.S. flag. He had no idea of starting an international episode. His method of rebuke may not have been the most diplomatic move that could be imag-

APRIL and May have been exceptionally busy months in your local printing plant and many of our customers have been by our being unable to get their orders through on time.

While we have constantly endeavored to give all our customers prompt delivery of their printing orders, the capacity of any plant, no matter how large, can be easily

We appreciate the splendid co-operation and consideration extended to us by all our customers after they were aware of our splendid rush of business; we also appreciate the compliments extended by many who were apparently surprised with such service as they received under the circumstances.

The month of June is always a very heavy one for printers, and this year promises to be no exception to the rule. WE WOULD, THEREFORE, ASK ALL OUR CUSTOMERS TO PLACE THEIR ORDERS AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE, in order that we may maintain that prompt delivery service which is so essential to both the customer and ourselves.

The One Sure Way to Good Health

Is Keeping the Blood Pure by Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Impure, weak blood is the cause of Impure, weak blood is the cause of most of the troubles that afflict people. This is the cause of the wretened feeling of langour and faintness, pains in the back and side, headaches and breathlessness, that afflict women and make her daily life a torture. To get new health and strength the blood must be enriched. What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do in cases of this kind is told by Mrs. Augusta Emery. Woolford station, Alta., who says:—"Living on the prairie, and knowing that there are thousands of women like myself miles away from a knowing that there are thousands of women like myself miles away from a doctor. I want to tell them what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. After my first baby was born I seemed to have little energy. I felt weary and run-down and unable to do even the ordinary household duties, I felt I needed a tonic and as I had long seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised I decided to try them. I got a supply and carefully followed I got a supply and carefully followed the directions and before long the result was wonderful. Day by day I regained my former strength and energy. The pills seemed to give me a keen appetite and I gained in weight and soon was able not only to do my work about the house but to help with many chores on the farm. For this reason I would advise women, particularly those on the prairie of the farm, to keep a supply of these pills always on hand. One trial will convince you of their worth. I have recommended them to many of my friends and never have they failed to produce good results."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A petition with over one hundred signatures requesting that a bridge be constructed over the Sydenham river at Beecher to replace the ferry, which was said to be inadequate to handle the increasing traffic, was referred to the advisory board and county road superintendent.

Whiting's Good Work

High county constable R. J. Whiting presented a report of his work for the last six months setting out that he had turned into the county a sum of $748.20 in fines since December 1, 1924, and had made 46 arrests with 38 convictions registered against the efforders.

In connection with his application

In connection with his application for an increase in salary on which no action was recommended by the finance committee yesterday, Mr. Whiting laid stress on the cost of operating his car. The council subsequently decided to reconsider the application. Several tributes were paid to the efficient work of the high constable.

Prior to noon recess there was a brief discussion of the banking system in use by the county. Reeve Kerr, of Courtright, suggested that it might be good policy to divide the account among the various banks. County treasurer, John E. # MOORELINE PEOPLE PRESENT-ATION TO REV. FORSTER

Departing Pastor and His Wife Honored by Rural Congregation

On Friday evening last the people of Moore Line church gathered to honor their pastor, the Rev. J. C. Forster and Mrs. Forster, who are leaving the charge.

During the four and one-half years Mr. and Mrs. Forster have been at Moore Line their sincere interest in the spiritual and temporal interests of the congregation and their loving sympathy in times of sorrow have endeared them to the people.

After a little music interspersed with words of appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Forster's services and regret at their departure, an address was read by Clarence Dowler. A bouquet of roses was presented to Mrs. Forster and a purse to Mr. Forster, the presentation being made by Mrs. H. Ruckle. Mr. and Mrs. Forster made fitting reply. A lunch was served by the ladies at the close of the evening.

Mr. Forster preached his farewell evening.

Mr. Forster preached his farewell sermon last Sunday and will assume his new charge at Kirkton, near St. Marys immediately.

He is a former pastor of Watford and Knox Presbyterian churches.

The park, which is situated next to the parsonage, is the outcome largely of the efforts of the board of trade and the women's institute, who raised the funds to purchase the land and equip it. Already a fine baseball diamond has been laid out, and swings and teeters constructed for the children. Prettily decorated floats and children in comic and fancy costumes, featured the parade. The prize for the best entry was awarded to Miss Ella McMahon, whose car was a real feature. At the park speeches were made by Mayor Arthur Woods, Rev. M. Diehl, of St. Paul's church, and Rev. R.A. ## SHORT LESSONS IN LAWN TENNIS

by Captain R. Innes-Taylor (Copyrighted 1925)

22. Where to Take the Ball.

There is no doubt that the best position to take the ball in its bound is above the knee at least. H. L. Doherty, one of the world's greatest players, always took the ball just above his waist, considering it best to strike it at the very top of its bound. Tilden takes the ball just a little above the height of the net and Johnston takes it just a little below the height of the net. It is my opinion that the best height to take it is on a level with the net.

Always meet the ball; do not let it meet you, In other words attack it, do not merely stop it. Let the racquet follow through in the direction you wish the ball to go. It is important to be able to run back and forward quickly and to get into position, if possible before the ball reaches you, so that you can wait for it and then make an effective return. In judging your strokes it is good practice to (Continued from last week) so that you can want for it and then make an effective return. In judging your strokes it is good practice to play by yourself against a wall, trying to hit the ball in the centre of the racquet. When receiving do not wait until the ball starts dropping. Take it at the top of the bound and if a man is beating you with a heavy twist service, step into it, and take it on the rise, as Wilding and Parke did with McLaughlin's service, when they beat him.

23. Running Round the Ball.

J. O. Anderson, the famous Australian player, has this to say about a man running round a ball to play it on his strong side; "If I have time to get the ball on my forehand, and know that then I can make a decisive stroke, why should I not do so?" When one thinks of Anderson's forehand, with the terrific pace he gets hand, with the terrific pace he gets on it, one is almost inclined to ans-wer this quest with, "Yes, why not?" But I don't agree with the general principle of running around a stroke. There are, of course, times when you get an easy ball on your backhand that you feel you could kill with your forehand. Then perhaps the taking of it on this side is justified. But that is only one in a thousand shots. As a only one in a thousand shots. As a rule you will simply get yourself so much out of position that you leave your court wide open for a fast driving return.

Not only that; you have to run around so quickly that as rule you do not get your feet into correct pos-ition to take the ball in the line of its flight. For it must be remembered that in taking position or stance for a shot you have to place yourself at the correct distance from the spot where the ball will be played, varying the space between your feet according to the amount of power you intend to put on the ball. The wider you have your feet aper the more power you have in your stroke as i makes a firmer foundation for a powerful swing.

24. Return of Service.

There are several ways for you make your return against a man who is serving to you and running up to the net. We will presume he is very fast on his feet and gets well into position to handle your return. You can utilize four strokes. Either pass him by a short cross court shot, pass him down the line, lob over his head to the base line, thus driving him back, or else drive the ball straight at him low and fast, close enough to the net so that he killing volley of it. The easiest stroke, of course, is to

The easiest stroke, of course, is to pass him down the line, if you can, and if your ground strokes are sufficiently fast and accurate. This makes him stretch as a rule to reach for his return and he is more liable to send an easy return back to you.

If he is a really fine volleyer, has a good service, and is very fast, I think the best way to break up his game is a good deep lob, over his left shoulder and then vary your return by cross-court and line drives. This will have the effect of making him feel uncertain as to what you are going to do, and in consequence he will ing to do, and in consequence he will ing to do, and in consequence he will not come up so fast. The Australians are wonderful at return of service.

25. Return of Service.

The great success of the Australian double teams is due I believe to not what is known as the Australian formation but to the wonderful return of service which has been most noticeable in their last Davis Cup matches against the United States. After all return of service is perhaps after the service, the most important stroke. This stroke is restricted in that it is the only one in the game in that it is the only one in the game that must be played off the ground. There is no doubt that the man who is serving has pretty nearly a twenty per cent. advantage over his oppon-ent, and you will notice in most des-criptions of matches a big point is made of breaking through an oppon-ent's service.

Let us consider the best way to handle service. It is necessary to examine it under two lights; first, when the server runs up to the net and secondly, when he stays back on the base line to take a return from there.

the base line to take a return from there.

If your opponent stays back and you know his back hand is weak, make your return of service deep to that part of the court, and immediatly take the net. If he is good all round, vary your returns, cross courting some, and then lining others. Watch carefully which type of returns he sends back the easier for you to handle. A player may for instance have a wonderful forehand cross-court shot from the right court, but he would be unable to use this forehand for a true drive.

26. Receiving the Heavy Twist Service.

In receiving service presuming your opponent is sending over a ball with a top on it you will do well to emulate the example of Anthony Wilding. That is, if yourfind you cannot handle the ball by taking it at the top of the bound or on the drop move up near the servicel line and eideavor to take the services as the ball is rising. It was this that Wilding did in the world championships some years ago when he defeated McLaughlin, and Parke employed the same method when he played and defeated the famous American comet. In taking a ball on the rise you do two things. First of all you eliminate a certain amount of the spin put on it, and secondly you return the ball more quickly. You consequently give your opponent less time to get into position for your return. A ball is harder to handle if it has a lot of spin on it, when it is hurling through the air slowly, than when it is going fast. You might hit a ball with spin on it fairly hard, otherwise it will jump off your racquet.

27. Running up to the Net.

your racquet.

27. Running up to the Net.
Running up to the net is a great deal more difficult to accomplish sucdeal more difficult to accomplish successfully in the singles game than in doubles, and unless it is done in singles most intelligently and on the right stroke it is not good policy. The fact of the matter is that nearly all our great singles players have founded their game on base line play, and only go up to the net in a singles match when the return is sent very deep to their opponents court and in match when the return is sent very deep to their opponents court and in a difficult position. There are, of course, exception to this, such as Lindley, Murray and McLaughlin, both of whose games are based on terrific services, which they immediately follow to the net. The terrific strain of this type of game eventually told; neither of them could play successfully through a hard first class tournament today.

You can run up to the net successfully only on a deep driven ball or on a high bounding fast service. It is useless to attempt it on short balls.

S. H. Smith could beat any volleyer in his day, and although H. L. Doherty was a brilliant volleyer, it was his beautiful ground strokes and base line play that enabled him to beat Smith whenever they met.

Sick a Year. Got Great Benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bloomington, N. S.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and backache, also for nervous-ness, sick headaches and sleeplessness. I was troubled in this way for over a year, and a friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and induced me to take it. I must say I have received great benefit from it and am able to do my housework new I tracemmend the my housework now. I recommend the Vegetable Compound myself and am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonal."—Mrs. WILLIAM MORSE, Bloomington, Annapolis County, N. S.

Bloomington, Annapolis County, N. S.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

Mrs. Morse is simply another case of a woman receiving "great benefit." Women suffering from the troubles so common to their sex should listen to what other women say who have experienced the same sufferings and found relief. Give this dependable medicine a chance—and at once. It is sold at all drug stores.
