A GLIMPSE OF METHODISM

(Montreal Witness).

The seventh General Conference of the Methodist Church will meet in St. James Church, St. Catherine street, to-morrow, and the sessions are expected to extend over two weeks. This is the supreme governing body, the legislative assembly, of the Methodist Church in Canada. The annual conferences embraced in the jurisdiction of this General Conference are as follows: Toronto, London, Hamilton, Bay of Quinte, Montreal, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, Manitoba, Assiniboia, Alberta, British Columbia, Japan and the West China Mission—fourteen in all. The last time the General Conference met in Montreal was in 1890.

The arrangements for the opening of the Conference next week are well advanced. The Conference arrangements committee has been holding daily sessions all this week in the office which has been established in the parlors of the church. A telephone, "Up-ton 3096," has been installed and by the time Conference opens telegraph instruments of the C. P. R. and the G. N. W. will have been installed in the building.

A large part of the arrangements in connection with the General Conference has been made by the Rev. Melvin Taylor, who is president of the Montreal Conference chairman of the Montreal district and chairman of the local arrangements committee.

St. James church, St. Catherine street, is the largest and most costly Methodist Church in the Dominion. It is an imposing example of Gothic architecture of the style of the fourteenth century. It is built on the fourteenth century site, with the main 120 feet long and transepts 90 feet. The total length of the church proper is 160 feet, and including the Sunday School hall in the rear, is 228 feet. The beautiful front facade is 100 feet wide. The greater tower is 192 feet high and the lesser one 142 feet. The exterior is of Credit Valley stone, trimmed with Nova Scotia sandstone. The exterior measurements are: Length, 228 feet, transepts, 106 feet, height to ridge of roof, 92 feet. The interior leaves nothing to be desired in point of comfort or convenience. The pews are arranged in full view of the pulpit from every point, including vast galleries on three sides. There is seating accommodation for 2,500 and a thousand more have crowded into the edifice on special occasions. The choir and a powerful organ are situated behind the pulpit.

The edifice occupies an entire block of ground. It was commenced in 1827 and was opened July 16, 1829.

St. James Church is the fourth of the series of church homes this congregation and its immediate predecessor has been occupied. Organized Methodism in Montreal dates back to 1592, but it was in 1808 that the first Methodist church was erected in this city. This church, the cradle of Methodism in Montreal, was situated on St. Sulpice street, which was at that time called St. Joseph street, and stood immediately adjoining the present Notre Dame Church. The second Methodist Church in Montreal was built for the same congregation on St. James street at the corner of St. Francis Xavier street, where the C. P. R. ticket office is, and parts of the old church may be seen in the present building. The congregation took the name of St. James Church while in these premises. Like its predecessor this church in time became too small and in 1845 a church that is still remembered by many Montrealers was erected on St. James street near St. Peter street, on property now occupied by the Temple Building. This church cost $50,000 and seated 2,500 persons.

During the pastorate of the late Rev. John Philip, M. A., D. D., the officials observed the movement of the population towards the uptown district and the property formerly the grounds and residence of the late Sir Hugh Allan was purchased for a church site. The present edifice was commenced during Mr. Philip's pastorate. He was succeeded in 1888 by the Rev. James Henderson, D. D., who thus was the first pastor of the present church. The present pastor is the Rev. W. R. Young, B. A., D. D.

HOW THE SCOTT ACT WORKS SOMETIMES

The Sydney (C. B.) 'Record' says: The leading liquor dealers of the city are beginning to become alarmed over the turn Scott Act affairs have taken in the last several weeks, when no less than three small dealers have been sentenced to imprisonment without the option of a fine on charges of selling liquor.

For the last several years it has been the custom of a majority of the large dealers and hotel keepers to admit the charge when a Scott Act paper was served on them and pay the fine to the inspector without the case being brought into court.

Yesterday (August 31), however, a leading hotel keeper was served with a paper, but on his admitting the charge and agreeing to pay the fine without further trouble, he was told that all the cases would have to go before the court in the future and he is now naturally uneasy lest he should be found guilty and sent to prison in the same manner as the two dealers who were sentenced last week.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

TO SAY BENEDICTION OVER HIS OWN BODY

Fairfield, Ill., September 8.—If the wishes of an old man are complied with at his death the unusual feature of a man delivering his own benediction will be presented.

The Rev. Daniel Bassett Leach, aged eighty-nine, of Bone Gap, Ill., twenty miles east of this place, has requested that the concluding act and ceremony of his funeral shall be the rendering of a paraphrase of a benediction composed by himself.

The Rev. Mr. Leach has been a Methodist clergyman for more than seventy years, or since he was eighteen years of age, and has been noted for the length of his prayers.

He has recently had placed on a graphophone record his favorite benediction, which he is wont to deliver in a stentorian voice that can be heard two blocks.

DREAM REVEALS LOST CORE TO OPEN SAFE

Pittsburg, Pa., September 9.—"Sixteen, five, twelve, forty-eight," muttered William Farrell, a city employe, as he entered the Allegheny City Hall head down and on the dead run. Those who knew him thought he had "gone daff" or was walking in his sleep, imagining himself in a football game.

"Sixteen, five, twelve, forty-eight," he continued to mutter half aloud as he dropped on his knees before the big safe in the reception room of Mayor Kirsch's office and began to twist the knob. Then the old timers did shake their heads in earnest. That safe had not been opened for sixteen years, and since that time the big safe had defied every one.

"Sixteen, five, twelve, forty-eight," continued Farrell, as he gave the rusty knob a final twist. There was a clink of long unused tumblers, and the big safe doors swung open. Farrell instead of being judged crazy, was at once surrounded by city employes, who wanted to know all about it.

"I've gone nearly crazy in the last ten years trying to open that fool thing," said Farrell, "and early this morning I had a dream that sixteen, five, twelve, forty-eight was the number that would win and I ran down town right after breakfast before I forgot it."

The Tariff.

The Canadian tariff commissioners have framed a new tariff bill and will have it ready for presentation when parliament meets in Ottawa, Nov. 15. The idea is to have a maximum tariff to apply to those countries whose tariffs are hostile to Canada such as the United States and Germany, a minimum general tariff to apply to countries which are disposed to trade with this country on fair terms, and a preferential tariff for Great Britain and such of the colonies to which it may be deemed expedient to extend the benefits of the preferential.

Canada's trade returns for the past year show increase of imports only from the United States of $14,000,000 and from Great Britain $5,700,000. The total imports from the United States during were $180,729,458, while those from Great Britain were $60,296,751. The excess in the American over British goods imported by Canada is also greater on the duty free goods or, in other words, raw materials for manufacture, of which the United States sold to Canada about $3 worth to Great Britain's $1 worth. The fact that the Imperial government has sent a special commissioner to Canada to look into this subject is taken as an indication that the British is awakening to the importance of the Canadian market.

HYMENEAL

Healy—Elliott

A wedding of considerable interest to Lynn and Everett residents was solemnized at high noon on Wednesday Aug. 29th at the Congregational parsonage, 7 Orchard St., Everett when Mr. Holland Percival Healy, of 25 Orchard St. Lynn, and Miss Beatrice Amelia Elliott, of 17 Liberty Street, Everett, were quietly married by the Rev. W. J. Sweet.

The ring service was used, and the ceremony was witnessed by the sister of the groom, and two sisters of the bride.

The bride was dressed in grey travelling suit with hat to match and carried bride roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Healy left after the ceremony for New Hanover where they spent their honeymoon on the shores of Lake Umbagog. On their return they were given a reception by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Healy, parents of the groom.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Healy, at 35 Orchard St. was the scene of a joyous gathering on Tuesday evening, the occasion being the wedding reception of their son, Holland P. Healy, and his wife, who were recently married in Everett. The reception and dining rooms were artistically decorated with palms and other potted plants and there were fragrant bunches of cut flowers in profusion decorating tables and stands. The chandeliers were twined with evergreen and on the dining table there was a beautiful center piece. In one of the parlours a bay window was transformed into a bower of verdant beauty, tall stately palms and rubber plants being prettily arranged. In front of this background Mr. and Mrs. Healy received felicitations of about 60 of their relatives and friends between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock. The ushers were Frank S. Pratt and Robert Buss of this city.

During the evening there was a general intermingling of the guests and piano music was furnished by Miss Mabel Healy, a wedding lunch prepared by a local caterer, was served during the hours of the reception and before the hour of departure the guests showered the happy couple with confetti and wishes for their future happiness and prosperity.

In the back parlour was displayed an endless variety of valuable gifts, including cut glass, silverware, china furniture, etc., and one or two gifts of money. This room was presided over by Mrs. J. A. Healy, mother of the groom. The guest book, in which all present were requested to register was in charge of Miss Mabel Healy. Guests were present from Lynn, Framingham, Everett and Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Healy were married two weeks ago in Everett, where the bride belongs, and next week the couple will leave Lynn for Oakland, Cal. where they are to make their home and Mr. Healy enter into business.

McCurdy—Elliott.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Leander S. Elliott of Clarence was the scene of a very pretty event on Tuesday morning Sept. 11th at half past eight, when their youngest daughter Etta May, was united in marriage to Edgar H. McCurdy, of Bowdoin, Maine.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. H. Saunders pastor of the church assisted by the Rev. John R. McCurdy brother of the groom, and the Rev. R. B. Kinley of Port Lorne.

The home was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and plants, a den and erected in the corner of the parlour, with the letters E. and M. neatly worked in the back ground.

Mendelssohn's wedding march was rendered by Mabel Elliott, cousin of the bride. The bride entered the room leaning on the arm of her father, and looked charming in a costume of white chiffon mesalme-silk with lace trimmings, veil, orange blossoms, and a shower bouquet of cream roses and valley streamers.

The bride was attended by Miss Laura Kinney of Yarmouth, classmate of Acadia, dressed in pale blue silk, and carried pale carnations. Grace Elliott niece of the bride was little flower girl and Bell Marshall ring bearer, carrying the ring on a silver tray. The groom was supported by his brother George L. McCurdy of Waterville, Maine, Malcolm R. Elliott served in the capacity of master of ceremonies. The brides travelling gown was of very deep purple broadcloth with trimmings of apple green and hat to match.

The presents received were costly and numerous, testifying to the high esteem in which the happy couple are held by their many friends. Among the very large collection of wedding gifts was a Burmese teak peacock table, hand carved in Burma, the gift of Rev. and Mrs. Seldon B. McCurdy and family. Also a beautiful set of Isabella furs, from the father and mother of the bride. The groom's gift to the bride was an elegant gold lined silver tea service.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a very beautiful and daintily served breakfast was given, and the happy couple amid showers of rice flowers and the best wishes of many friends were driven by Mr. Anderson, in one of his fine turnouts with milk white horses, to Bridgetown

Pandora Range

SAVES FUEL AND HELPS TO PAY FOR ITSELF.

It is not the price you pay for a range which makes it cheap or expensive, but the fuel it consumes after you get it.

If you buy a range which costs $5 to $7 less than a "Pandora" and it burns a ton, or only half a ton of coal more in a year, what do you gain? Nothing, but you actually lose money, besides putting up with all the inconveniences, troubles and extra work which are a certainty with a poor range.

The "Pandora" is equipped with many fuel-saving features which are not found on any other range. Hot-air flues are constructed so that all the heat from the fire-box travels directly under every pot-hole and around the oven twice—every atom of heat is used, and only the smoke goes up the chimney.

Red Rash, Eczema, in fact any skin disease, disfigures the complexion because the bowels are constipated—or because the kidneys do not rid the system of waste—or because the skin itself is unhealthy.

Ointments, salves and soaps are useless. Because the trouble is with the blood.

Owing to defective action of bowels, kidneys or skin, the blood becomes laden with impurities. It is these impurities—deposited by the blood—that make boils, pimples, and painful, disfiguring skin diseases. It is because the trouble is with the bowels, kidneys or skin, that FRUIT-A-TIVES cure these diseases.

Fruit-a-tives

act directly on the eliminating organs—correct their irregularities—strengthen them—and thus clear the skin and make the complexion clear and soft.

If you have any skin trouble—or any fault with constipation, liver trouble, biliousness, headache, indigestion, rheumatism—care yourself with Fruit-a-tives. They are made of fruit juices and taste—and never fail to cure. Get a box of 6 boxes for $3.50. Sent you receipt of price if your druggist does not handle them.

The concert in aid of the Home for Aged and Infirm Masons, which took place in the Court House on Friday evening last, was considered by those present to have eclipsed anything in that line ever before held in this town. It would be impossible to particularize owing to the great space reserved for this notice, other than to say every number on the programme was not only loudly applauded but cheered. The thanks of the Committee are especially due to Mrs. Dr. Prouse for the artistic decoration of the stage. After paying all expenses something over $30 will be added to the fund already subscribed to by the Masons of Robbsey Lodge for this very worthy object.

During this period in company with his agent, Abram Young, he visited many places in the county, and in conversation with the Monitor yesterday, said that he found the apple crop in a very satisfactory condition. He says the English market is better than anticipated, and the Ontario and American crops having turned out so well as expected.

SUFFERING WOMEN

Need Just the Rich Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

Frost's glances to middle life the health and happiness of every woman depends upon her blood. If her blood is poor and watery she becomes weak, languid, pale and nervous. If her blood supply is irregular she suffers from head aches and back aches and other unspeakable distress which only women know. At every stage of woman's life Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are her best friend, because they actually make the rich, red blood which gives both strength and tone to every organ of the body. They help a woman just when nature makes the greatest demand upon her blood supply. Mrs. H. M. Wood, who for twenty years has been one of the best known residents of St. Roch, Que., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a blessing to me. I was weak, worn out and scarcely able to do anything about it. I suffered from headache and dizziness, my appetite was poor, and to attempt housework felt me utterly worn out. I slept badly at night, and what sleep I got did not refresh me. For nearly three years I was in this condition, and was constantly taking medicine, but found no benefit from it. One of my neighbors, who had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with much benefit, advised me to try them. I sold in the words 'I am well again.' There are times yet when I take the pills for they seem to me a cure against the troubles from which so many women suffer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not get on the bowels. They contain just the elements that actually make new blood and strengthen the nerves. That's why they cure anemia, indigestion, neuralgia, rheumatism, lumbago, headache, backache and heart palpitation. That is why they are the greatest rest help in the world for growing girls who need new blood and for women who are troubled with irregular health.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

More Trouble.
The Monitor is certainly "up against it." This time our type-setting machine has gone back on us, the metal set having developed a serious leak, and of course cannot be run until repairs arrive. No doubt our readers have often read Mack Twain's and M. Quaid's writings on the country press, where the Editor speaks of the "foreman," "who is ourself." That is our position just now. It is a case of "The Editor (who is ourself)." The Foreman (who is ourself), "relief." The Pressman (who is ourself), "The Manager (who is ourself)." The Devil (who is some one else—but we certainly feel like His Majesty).

Next Sunday in St. James' Church the annual harvest festival will be held. Services at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. The proceeds will be for the Rev. Canon Watson, D.D., of King's College, Windsor. Collections for the Episcopal income fund.

Friends are requested to send their contributions for decorating the altar in the school-room on or before Saturday morning.

Wm. I. Troop,

LA GRIPPE

This distressing and unfortunately very common malady easily takes rank among the very "meanest" of the diseases to which people living in this climate are liable.

La Grippe is no respecter of persons; it attacks the young and the old, the rich and the poor with the utmost impartiality.

Except in the cases where Pneumonia develops, La Grippe is seldom directly fatal; the real danger lies in the after effects. Even when the patient has fairly well recovered from an attack (and it is very hard to tell just when he has fully recovered), the muscles are relaxed, the nerves unstrung, the heart and lungs weak, the throat and bronchial tubes irritable and tender and the whole system depressed, run-down and in no condition to resist the attack of any other disease to which it may be exposed.

This condition is fraught with danger and demands instant and intelligent attention, the system must be built up and restored to a normal and healthy condition—advice easy to give, often very hard to follow.

The appetite is liable to be poor and the digestion impaired so that it is almost impossible to consume and digest sufficient ordinary food to do the work quickly and effectively. What is required is a concentrated food, palatable, easy to digest and containing the elements necessary to repair the waste which La Grippe has committed.

Just such a food is found in

a scientifically prepared emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus, palatable, digestible and effective. FERROL contains just what the run down system needs and all it requires. Cod Liver Oil to restore the lost flesh and make what is left firm and healthy, Iron to enrich the impoverished blood and restore elasticity and firmness to the relaxed muscles, Phosphorus to tone the nerve and brain as nothing else will.

Two or three bottles of FERROL, taken after the acute stage of La Grippe has passed, will do more to repair damages than can possibly be accomplished in any other way. Try it and see.

The Wings of the Morning

By LOUIS TRACY
Copyright, 1903, by Edward J. Clode

"You must break the proge wine you are here, Miss Deane. It is often very cold at night in this latitude. A chill would mean fever and perhaps death."

She covertly watched his preparation. He tore a dry leaf from a notebook and broke the bullet out of a cartridge, damping the powder with water from a pitcher plant. Smearing the composition on the paper, he placed it in the sun, where it dried at once. He gathered a small bundle of withered spines from the palms and arranged the driftwood on top, choosing a place for his bonfire just within the shade. Then inserting the touch paper among the spines he uncrawled one of the leashes of the binoculars, converted it into a burning glass and had a fine blaze roaring merrily in a few minutes. With the aid of pointed sticks he grilled some slices of ham, cut with his clasp knife, which he first carefully cleaned in the earth. The biscuits were of the variety that become soft when toasted, and so he balanced a few by stones near the fire.

Iris forgot her annoyance in her interest. A most appetizing smell filled the air. They were having a picnic amidst delightful surroundings. Yesterday at this time—She almost yielded to a rush of sentiment, but forced it back with instant determination. Tears were a poor resource, unimpaired of God's goodness to herself and her companion. Without the sailor, what would have become of her, even were she thrown ashore while still living? She knew none of the expedients which seemed to be at his command.

"Can I do nothing to help?" she exclaimed. So contrite was her tone that Jenks was astonished.

"Yes," he said, pointing to the dish cover. "If you polish the top of that with your sleeve it will serve as a plate. Luncheon is ready."

He neatly dished up two slices of ham on a couple of biscuits and handed them to her with the clasp knife.

"I can depend on my fingers," he explained. "It will not be the first time."

"Have you led an adventurous life?" she asked, by way of polite conversation.

"No," he growled.

"I only thought so because you appear to know all sorts of dodges for prolonging existence—things I never heard of."

"Brotted ham—and biscuits—for instance?"

At another time Iris would have snapped at him for the retort. Still humbly regretful for her previous attitude, she answered meekly:

"Yes, in this manner of cooking them, I mean. But there are other items—methods of lighting fires, finding water, knowing what fruits and other articles may be found on a desert island, such as plantains and coconuts and certain sorts of birds."

When the meal was ended Jenks sprang lightly to his feet. Rest and food had restored her faculties. The girl thought dreamily, as he stood there in his rough attire, that she had never seen a finer man. He was tall, sinewy and well formed. In repose his face was pleasant, if masterful. His somewhat sultry, soft contained expression was occasional and acquired. She wondered how he could be so energetic. Personally she was consumed with sleepiness.

He produced a revolver.

"Do you mind if I fire a shot to test these cartridges?" he inquired for "The powder is all right, but the fulminate in the caps may be damaged."

She agreed promptly. He pointed the weapon a cluster of coconuts, and there was a loud report. Two nuts fell to the ground, and the air was filled with shrill screams and the flapping of innumerable wings. Iris was momentarily dismayed, but her senses confirmed the sailor's explanation—"See him?"

"Can you use a revolver?" he asked. "My father taught me. He thinks every woman should know how to defend herself in need."

"Excellent. Well, Miss Deane, you must try to sleep for a couple of hours. I purpose examining the coast for some distance on each side. Should you want me, a shot will be the best sort of signal."

"But you?"

"Oh, I am all right! I feel restless—that is, I mean I will not sleep until night comes, and before we climb the hill to survey our domain I want to find better quarters than we now possess."

Perhaps were she less fatigued she would have caught the vague anxiety, the note of distrust in his son's voice. But she lay very seductive. Her eyes closed. She nestled into a comfortable position and slept. Her head was on the man's shoulder. The man moved the revolver out of harm's way to a spot where she must see it instantly, pulled his son's wrist and laid it on the table.

Jenks must have stood many miles before he perceived that the skeleton was headless. At first he imagined that in rummaging about with the stick he had disturbed the skull. But the most minute search demonstrated that it had gone—had been taken away, in fact—for the plants which so effectively screened the lighter bones would not permit the skull to vanish.

No weapon was visible. He could form no estimate as to the cause of the death of this poor unknown nor the time since the tragedy had occurred.

But the most minute search demonstrated that it had gone—had been taken away, in fact—for the plants which so effectively screened the lighter bones would not permit the skull to vanish.

Then she frowned on the sailor's face became threatening, thunderous. He recoiled and ran to save you. When I got here I saw something, a thing with waving arms, and I was killed, and then you came.

"What is the matter?" he gasped. "Oh, I don't know," she walked brokenly. "I had a dream, such a horrible dream. You were struggling with some awful thing down there. It was not near the place," he said laboriously. It cost him an effort to breathe. His broad chest expanded inches with each respiration.

"Yes, yes, I understand. But I awoke and ran to save you. When I got here I saw something, a thing with waving arms, and I was killed, and then you came."

The sailor walked slowly to the rocks, where it shivered steeply from the shore.

Iris followed him. "See?" she cried excitedly. "I was not mistaken. There was something here."

A creepy sensation ran up the man's spine and passed behind his ears. At this spot the dreary Lascars were lying. Like an inspiration came the knowledge that the cuttlefish, the dreaded octopus, abounds in the China sea.

His face was livid when he turned to Iris. "You are overwrought by fatigue, Miss Deane," he said. "What you saw was probably a seal. I knew the ludicrous substance would not be questioned. Please go and lie down again."

"I cannot," she protested. "I am too frightened! By a dream! In broad daylight!"

"But why are you so pale? What has alarmed you?"

"Can you ask? Did you not give the agreed signal?"

"Yes, but—"

prospect before, which sometimes rattled and cracked beneath his feet. Looking down, he was horrified to find he was tramping on a skeleton.

Had a venomous snake coiled its glistening coils around his leg he would not have been more startled. But this man of iron nerve soon recovered. He frowned deeply after the first involuntary heart throbs.

With the stick he cleared away the undergrowth and revealed the skeleton of a man. The bones were big and strong, but oxidized by the action of the air. Jenks had injured the left tibia by his tread, but three fractured ribs and a smashed shoulder blade told some terrible unwritten story.

Beneath the mournful relics were fragments of decayed cloth. It was blue serge. Lying about were a few blackened objects, brass buttons marked with an anchor. The dead man's boots were in the best state of preservation, but the leather had shrunk, and the nails protruded like fangs.

A rusted pocketknife lay there, and on the left breast of the skeleton rested a round piece of tin, the top of a canteen, which must have reposed in a coat pocket. Jenks picked it up. Some curious marks and figures were punched into its surface. After a hasty glance he put it aside for more leisurely examination.

No weapon was visible. He could form no estimate as to the cause of the death of this poor unknown nor the time since the tragedy had occurred.

Jenks must have stood many miles before he perceived that the skeleton was headless. At first he imagined that in rummaging about with the stick he had disturbed the skull. But the most minute search demonstrated that it had gone—had been taken away, in fact—for the plants which so effectively screened the lighter bones would not permit the skull to vanish.

Then she frowned on the sailor's face became threatening, thunderous. He recoiled and ran to save you. When I got here I saw something, a thing with waving arms, and I was killed, and then you came.

"What is the matter?" he gasped. "Oh, I don't know," she walked brokenly. "I had a dream, such a horrible dream. You were struggling with some awful thing down there. It was not near the place," he said laboriously. It cost him an effort to breathe. His broad chest expanded inches with each respiration.

"Yes, yes, I understand. But I awoke and ran to save you. When I got here I saw something, a thing with waving arms, and I was killed, and then you came."

The sailor walked slowly to the rocks, where it shivered steeply from the shore.

Iris followed him. "See?" she cried excitedly. "I was not mistaken. There was something here."

A creepy sensation ran up the man's spine and passed behind his ears. At this spot the dreary Lascars were lying. Like an inspiration came the knowledge that the cuttlefish, the dreaded octopus, abounds in the China sea.

His face was livid when he turned to Iris. "You are overwrought by fatigue, Miss Deane," he said. "What you saw was probably a seal. I knew the ludicrous substance would not be questioned. Please go and lie down again."

"I cannot," she protested. "I am too frightened! By a dream! In broad daylight!"

"But why are you so pale? What has alarmed you?"

"Can you ask? Did you not give the agreed signal?"

"Yes, but—"

Verdict for Dr. Pierce

AGAINST THE Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1904) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the humble, growing retraction, with its inconspicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the standard and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of woman's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $50,000.00 damages.

Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business; furthermore, that no alcohol, or other harmful, or habit-forming, drugs are or were used, contained in his "Favorite Prescription"; that said medicine is made from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients whatsoever; and that Mr. Bok's malicious statement were wholly and absolutely false.

The retraction printed by said Journal they were forced to acknowledge that they had published the article containing the same, and that they were greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with great display headings, while the humble retraction, set in small type and made as inconspicuous as possible. The matter was, however, brought before a jury in the Supreme Court of New York, which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and his base notions were refuted.
