PIANOS.

The tendency in prices of all manufactured goods has for years been steadily downward. In most lines the quality has gone down with the price. The public has gone mad.

We deplore the fact that this spirit has invaded the fine arts—and people are buying pictures, and people are buying pictures, books and musical instruments at "so much a square yard." But there is no royal road to true culture. A highly artistic musical instrument cannot be made by the "hit or miss" process, and sold for a trifle. A good piano is the result of painstaking, intelligent effort, and costs a fair price. It is cheaper at a fair price than cheap stuff is at a trifle.

THE NORDHEIMER PIANO represents the highest possible standard of merit at the lowest possible cost. Not a dollar put in for the non-essentials, and not an essential left out. A full assortment of these artistic planos always on exhibition in our warerooms. Sold on easy payments.

British Government Sends Relief to St. Vincent and Martinique.

Enthusiastic Crowd Attends the Anti-Corn Tax Meeting -Russian Quarrel With Corea.

FOR WEST INDIAN SUFFERERS.

London, May 16 .- Mr. Balfour announced yesterday in the commons the measures which had been adopted by the government for the relief of the people of St. Vincent and Martinique. Mr. Dillon failed in an attempt to move the adjournment of the house in order to discuss the matter, but he undoubtedly scored a point when ne stated, for Mr. Balfour's edification, that the house had voted £100,000 for the relief of the sufferers by the Lisbon earthquake in 1755. There was a precedent for the government. The first lord of the treasury thought, however, that the earthquake was not a in audience the foreign missions apsufficiently recent occurrence. The government was not prepared to grant a vote, but would let the lord-mayor receive subscriptions for the relief of distress in the British Island, and would send provisions and medical comforts for the unfortunate people in the French colony. Already £6,000 has been received at the Mansion House in response to the lord mayor's appeal.

ISLANDERS NOT OUT OF DANGER

No One Able to Go Within Eight sinking of the ocean floor. Miles of the Volcano's Mouth-Race of Natives Wiped Out.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, Tuesday, May 15. The numerous fissures in the Soufriere Mountain's sides of it. Already 1,000 bodies have been continue to throw out vapor, and the subterranean murmurings and trem- that are mantled over the island. From blings indicate continued unrest. During the afternoon of Monday a dense May 7. volume of steam and smoke rose from the volcano, and the whole island was covered by a peculiar moisture. SICKNESS SPREADS. here is increasing the spread of sickness. An ambulance corps from the Island of Barbadoes has arrived here. Starvation threatens the poor class of the afflicted district. Nearly every remaining negro huts in the Carib country contains dead bodies, and the horrible stench is driving people away. mutilated bodies are tied with ropes and dragged to trenches where they are buried. Sometimes bodies are cremated.

The local government is feeding and sheltering about 3,000 refugees. Subscriptions for the relief of the sufferers are being raised in all the British West Indian Islands.

VEILED IN FIRE. Fort-de-France, May 15 .- The situation on St. Vincent is veiled behind a wall of fire. Nobody can approach the neighborhood of the volcano of Soufriere, and it is certain that all within radius of several miles of the firespouting mountain are dead.

Among the other victims are the last Carib aborigines of these islands. Word of the destruction of the Carib village, which was near the center of the death zone at St. Vincent, was brought here by Mr. Renshaw, a rich merchant of St. Lucia. The Spanish Islands aborigines were killed off, but the British fostered the remnant on St. Vincent and helped them maintain this village. There were only a few dozen of them. So this volcanic upheaval has

WIPED A RACE FROM THE EARTH for there is not now a Carib alive in the world. An old Indian prophecy that the Caribs would be sac-rificed to the fire god which they worshiped has thus been fulfilled. Of the Caribs only a few individuals remain on the islands of St. Lucia and

They have seized the telegraph office, whence they issue clamorous demands to the porte for the arrears in their pay. Bread riots have broken out in Aleppo, in the northern part of Syria, in consequence of the increase in the price of this food due to the operations of speculators in grain. LORD PAUNCEFOTE'S CONDITION. Washington, May 16.-Dr. Franz A. R. Vessels of all nations now in these waters are apprehensive that the channels have changed, there must be new reefs to correspond with the enormous subsidence of the sea bed, which dropped 600 fathoms off the coast of Martinique. The theory is that the terrific casting out of material from the bowels of the earth by Mont Pelee made a gap that the bottom of the sea fell in to fill. The waters receded from the coast 300 feet after the eruption, leaving the bottom exposed, until a back rush, much slower, covered it again. It may be that this rush of water was to fill a hole caused by the

For three hours the ship was practically helpless in a cloud of smoke The inhalation of noxious vapors and sulphurous gas. When Kingston was finally reached at daybreak it was found panic-stricken. The streets were covered two inches deep with ashes from the crater which ejected the stone. GREAT DISTRESS. From Chateau Belaire comes word that the distress was great. Word was sent to a clergyman and one was taken up by the Wear. Down the sides of Morne Soufriere were flowing hundreds of streams of lava, which, uniting and separating, formed a network from which there was no possible escape for any living thing caught within its grasp. From a distance dozens of craters can be seen, now opening and again closing near the crest of Morne Soufriere. The force of the eruption seems to be lessening, but the danger is still great. The most vioeruption stopped in the afternoon of May 10.

ANOTHER ERUPTION PREDICTED. W. I., May 15.-Scientists who have come here from Trinidad predict another volcanic eruption on St. Vincent within a short time. The damage done to St. Vincent by the eruptions is than was at first estimated. The uneasiness of the inhabitants of the island is increased by the continuous action of the volcanic craters. Friday morning, May 9, large stones and volcanic dust fell in the neighborhood of Georgetown for two hours, terrifying the people there. A cloud of hot vapor then passed over that port. Two eruptions of less magnitude tervals from the craters. PHYSICAL CHANGES. Interesting discoveries have been made in regard to the physical changes

It is believed that the Rabacci crater in the Windward district of the island has also erupted. CAPPED BY DARK CLOUDS. La Soufriere, though less violent, still wears a cap of dark clouds, which is illuminated every now and then by flashes of red light. GRUESOME SPECTACLE. Bodies have been discovered in houses in life-like attitudes; these present a gruesome spectacle. There are decomposed bodies in many houses, and in order to guard against disease it will probably be necessary for the authorities to burn these dwellings down. Hundreds of bodies have not yet been interred. Wide areas of land which formerly produced foodstuffs have been devastated. There is today abnormal demand for breadstuffs, and as a consequence a scarcity of food. The prices of food are advancing. The destruction of the live stock of the island has also caused a rise in the price of meat.

Man Killed by a Stone That Fell Nine Miles From Crater-Soufriere at Present in Repose.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, Thursday, May 15 .- Afternoon .- A correspondent of the Associated Press has just returned here from a visit on sufferers, large army tents have been horseback to the devastated district of this island, during which he traveled 50 miles and penetrated to within five miles of the Soufriere crater. The ashcovered area of St. Vincert exceeds that of Martinique, which the correspondent has also explored. SEVENTEEN HUNDRED DEAD. The most conservative estimate of the death rate here now places the fully from thirst and uttering, when number at 1,700. About 1,300 bodies have been already interred. The entire northern part of the island is covered with ashes to an average depth of eighteen inches, varying from a thin layer at Kingstown to two feet or more at Georgetown. The crops are ruined. Nothing green can be seen, the streets of Georgetown are cumbered with snowdrift-like heaps of ashes, and ashes rest so heavily on the roofs that in several cases they have caused them to fall in. There will soon be five thousand destitute people in need of assistance from the government, which s already doing everything possible to relieve the sufferers. There are a hundred injured people in the hospital at Georgetown, gangs of men are searching for the dead or rapidly burying them in trenches, and all that can be done under the circumstances is being accomplished. TONS OF SUPPLIES. The British cruiser Indefatigable brought 25 tons of supplies here and returned to the Island of Trinidad today for more. The governor of the Windward Islands, Sir Robert Llewellyn, is here, supervising the work of the authorities. SEA ENCROACHED TEN MILES. SOUFRIERE IN REPOSE. Since midnight Tuesday the subterranean detonations here have ceased and the Soufriere, on Wednesday, relapsed apparently into perfect repose

no smoke arising from the crater and the fissures emitting no vapor. The stunted vegetation that formerly adorned the slopes of the mountain has disappeared, having given place to gray-colored lava, which meets the eye on every side. The atmosphere is dry, but somewhat agitated. Rain would be welcome, as there is a great deal of dust in the air, which is very disagreeable and irritating to throats

The inhabitants naturally are anxious to know whether the repose of the volcano is permanent, or whether it is the lull which usually precedes greater paroxysmal activity. Some people anticipating further volcanic eruptions

This batch consisted of a hundred persons, whose charred bodies exhaled fetid odors and whose loathsome faces made even the hospital attendants shudder. All these burned persons were suffering fear-strong enough to do so, agonizing cries for water. It is doubtful whether one of the whole party will recover.

The death rate among the people in the hospitals is still very high. DISAPPEARANCE OF A LAKE. The report that the volcanic lake which occupied the top of the mountain has disappeared, appears to be confirmed. A sea of lava, emitting sulphurous fumes, now apparently occupies its place, and several new craters have been formed.

As this dispatch is sent, it is excessively hot here, and the northern hills retain their foggy appearance. HOPETOUN HAS RESIGNED

Gaslight and Ventilation.

[London Telegraph.]

An attempt has been made of late to convince the public that the burning of gas in dwelling rooms is not nearly so deleterious a proceeding as it is usually deleterious a proceeding as it is usually thought to be. The warmth of the gas flame is extelled, and air that has passed through it is, of course, germ-free. Then a little extra carbonic acid is rather soothing and pleasant, and any excess can be got rid of by opening the window of the apartment an inch or so at the top. All of which talk is pestilent non-sense. As if the proper way to prepare air to pass through a gas burner? To mix the products of combustion with the air we breathe is, as Dr. Parkes said half a century ago, barbarous. A single burner will devitalize the atmosphere by removing its oxygen and charging it with carbon dioxide as much as four or five moving its oxygen and charging it with carbon dioxide as much as four or five persons would do. The position of gas as an illuminant has been enormously improved by the use of the incandescent mantle; the light is purer and the combustion more complete. On one condition it is superior to electric light, the condition, namely, that it shall be burned in a chimney and the products of combustion instantly carried off into the open. Then the flame becomes a ventilator; instead of deteriorating, it is constantly improving the quality of the air by renewing it, and the more gas is burned the better for the salubrity of the apartment. Unfortunately, not one room in a thousand in which gas is burned is thus treated, and in every other the air is contaminated, and noxious products are breathed until by accident rather than

Oiling the Streets.

Boiling oil was sprinkled on Richard treet this morning from Hotel to King, and then a coat of quarry sand was spread over the oil. Now the street is ready for use, and it will be carefully watched for results. It is hoped that the oil will make a solid surface, on which there will be no dust. The oil was distributed from an ordinary street sprinkler. It was first heated to 112 degrees and a heated coil was placed in the sprinkler to keep it hot, so that it would readily run from is quite thick, and it would not run an interesting letter: from the sprinkler. The hot oil this morning ran like water, covering the street with a coating of black. Only a very light sprinkle was given, care being exercised to avoid making oily mud, that would cause trouble to pedestrians, vehicles and bicycles. It is expected that the oil and the sand will combine and form a sort of paste or coating that will give out no dust.

Guatemala's Earthquake Belt.

Extending across the western part of Guatemala from northwest to southeast are the ranges of the Sierra Madre Mountains. Still nearer the Pacific, and only 30 or 40 miles distant from it is a belt of volcances more nearly parallel with the seacoast than with the Sierra Madre behind it. This volcanic belt extends clear across the country. The cones of the volcances rise in a long, broken row, nearly all of them plainly visible from the sea.

The volcances along a part of this line are still active, but most of the eastern volcances are now extinct.

The country along the base of these old volcances is very frequently disturbed by earthquakes, most of which do little damage, but occasionally they are very severe. It is in the neighborhood of this volcanic belt that the recent earthquake shocks have occurred. The towns which have suffered so severely from the

Nervous Dyspepsia

Can Never Be Cured by Mere Temporary Aids to Digestion-The Nerves Must Be Restored and Filled With Vitalizing Nerve Force.

You know that certain drugs, such as pepsin and bismuth, bring about artificial digestion, and if you have dyspepsia or indigestion, it is possible that, like hosts of others, you have taken these into the stomach, hoping that they will take the place of gastric juice and other digestive fluids, digest the food, and by resting the stomach, effect a cure.

Did you ever hear of a bodily organ being strengthened by inactivity? It is to the organ that is exercised that the new, rich blood is conveyed in order to restore the tissues wasted by the functions of that organ, and so the stomach that is given rest does not get stronger, but the gastric juice gradually ceases to flow, and you are finally compelled to resort to the con-tinual use of artificial digestants. If, instead of these temporary aids, you seek permanent cure, you must treat the nerves, because nerves that control the glands of the stomach, and only when the supply of nerve force is liberal is digestion right fully performed, and the body properly nourished. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is no experiment, as you know if you have read the hundreds of testimonials that are appearing in the daily press. We recommend it for nervous dyspepsia and headache, because it has actually cured the pipes. When cool, crude petroleum scores and hundreds of cases. Here is

Damp-proof

Moist feet are cold in winter! Sole leather is cellular, and carries street fluid to the foot as the wick carries oil to a lamp.

Two-thirds of street moisture, which reaches the foot, comes up through the outsole, in ordinary shoes.

Between insole and outsole of the RESILIA shoe is placed the cushion centre-sole of live rubber, through which moisture cannot pass, making it wetproof, as well as springy and ventilated.

Its cross channels permit the air to dry the inner sides of both outsole and insole.

It thus prevents the retention of moisture, cracking, hardening, mouldiness, and keeps the feet dry, clean, hardy and healthy.

Antigua is also included in the list of sufferers. It present damage, however, cannot be compared with the effects of the terrible earthquakes of 1773, which overthrew nearly every building in the town. Antigua is not far from the city of Guatemala, which through severely shaken, has escaped without much injury.

Santa Lucia, also severely damaged, is a large town which became famous through the discovery there of statues and curious bas-reliefs, in which the local Indian artists displayed a talent at least equal to that of the Azteo and Maya sculptors.

On the Atlantic coast of Guatemala earthquakes are quite rare and of little severity. It happens, however, that the larger part of the population and the enterprise of Guatemala is near or along the Pacific coast, where the frequent earthquakes de much damage.—New York

THE TRADE IN WILD ANIMALS.

How Beasts for the Manageries and Zoos are Obtained.

Farm Where Animals Are Restored to Health After Their Trip Across the Ocean.

Out of the vast range of human in-dustries it would be difficult to select a calling which at first sight offers less in the way of remuneration than that of the man with a literal elephant on his hands to dispose of, says a New York paper. There are so few people want an elephant, in the first place, that it is hard for one not versed in the secrets of the business to see how the regular barter and sale of these huge beasts can be a source of profit. For all this, the fact remains that the trade in not only elephants, but ostriches, camels, tigers, leopards, and any other kind of wild animal, is better today than ever before, and large fortunes are being made at it by concerns all over the world.

Not far from Jersey City, on the road to Newark, there is a cluster of rough, unpainted barns, surrounded by a high board fence, which at first glance bears a close resemblance to the out-houses frequently seen on old New England farms. A closer inspection, however, reveals the fact that one of the buildings is of an unusual height and built entirely of roughly squared logs, heavily spiked together A most unearthly din, made up of squeaks, roars, yelps, and bays in every conceivable key, proclaims still

"When I first opened my present plant, we had three small sheds and a lean-to, where we kept the cattle and deer. That was fifteen years ago, and the demand for animals was so small that it was all we could do at first to eke out a living. So many new parks have been started with zoological gardens attached, in different cities of the country, within the last ten years. however, that we always now have all the orders on hand we can attend to. Ferrozone will make you strong and capable of doing a heavy day's work without fatigue. It is a marvelous remedy, and does marvelous things, as the following testimonial proves:

"After my baby was born I was left in a weak, sickly condition, totally un-fit for a mother's household duties. I was excitable and nervous, and trifling things bothered me very much. I somehow would not gain strength, although I took malt extracts and tonics all the time. A lady friend recommended Ferrozone, which I used with splendid results. The first box helped quite a little and when I had taken six boxes my former health, ruddy cheeks and good spirits, were fully restored."

You can't spend 50 cents to a better advantage than on a box of Ferro-zone, and the sooner you get Fer-rozone, the sooner you will get well. Don't accept a substitute, but insist on your druggist supplying the genuine Ferrozone which sells for 50 cents a box, of three boxes for $1 25. By

Besides myself there are two other trainers, and since we opened the school we have turned out three different troupes of dogs, six monkeys and a troupe of ponies. At first thought, that does not seem like much to show for a year's work, but when you consider the length of time it takes to make one animal perfect in his specialty, the size of the job is apparent. We have had our greatest trouble so far with the ponies. It is a remarkable fact that of all the animals that come under the hand of the trainer, the HORSE IS THE MOST DIFFICULT

TO TEACH. Dogs, monkeys, cats and elephants have quite highly developed reasoning powers. This is, of course, particularly true in the case of the elephants. You show a dog what you want him to do, and handle him in a proper manner, so as not to destroy his spirit, and in nine cases out of ten he will take to his trick as naturally as a duck to water. With a horse, however, it is different. Every step in the progress of teaching him even the simplest thing has to be gone over and over until it has become a matter of instinct for him to do the things taught him, each at its given signal. I have known a dog, on the other hand, to go off in a room by himself, and go through his performance without a word of comnand, purely for the love of it.

"An old trainer friend of mine, by he way, had a dog that developed a A Distracting Condition That trick of his own, which put thousands of dollars into his owner's pocket. A DISASTROUS POLICY.

The credit for the best speeches of the campaign has been given by more than one journal to the Premier and to Mr. Newton Rowell, whom London may claim as a local product. Mr. Rowell, speaking at Watford the other last. evening, made the most complete statement of the pulpwood question that has yet been given to the public. He pointed out that the Opposition's policy was embodied in an amendment moved by Mr. Whitney on March 29, 1900, to this effect: "This House is of opinion that all grants of pulpwood lands should be made subject to public

This policy, Mr. Rowell went on to show, involved a new and startling departure from the traditional method of the Government in dealing with its timber areas. Heretofore the Government, in dealing with the timber, had never sold the land. In the case of pine it simply sold the timber on the land, reserving the title of the land to the crown. In the case of pulpwood it had simply sold the right to cut the wood. Mr. Whitney's policy would give the purchaser both the pulpwood and the land. If the purchaser thought the timber would increase in value he might hold it for years to come, shutting out all settlement or agriculture and tying up the new districts of Ontario. The new growth of spruce 30 years hence would pass to the owner of the land in perpetuity, the Province gerting not one cent.

This policy had been tried in Michigan, once the greatest timber state in the Union, with the result that the great bulk of its timber resources had passed from public control and the the insensate powers of the earth perisupply was well nigh exhausted. Today the Michigan lumbermen were sighing for new lands to conquer. Mr. Whitney's policy had been also fol- answerable to forces that see in us lowed in New York State with the re- only a transitory and perishable assult that the state had parted from its timber lands. So serious had the ques- omy of nature than some boulder or tion become there that to prevent the treetrunk.' sources of its streams drying up, the state was buying back its timber lands at a substantial sum per acrelands which had been sold for a small price years before

In 1884 certain American lumbermen attempted to buy up members of the Legislature supporting the Government, with the object of securing legislation which would give the purchasers of pine timber the land upon which it grew. The Ontario Government. then, as now, would sell only the right to cut the timber. Yet the policy which American lumbermen tried to boodle through the Legislature and which has almost destroyed the forest wealth of Michigan and New York and dried up a source of public revenue, is the one Mr. Whitney would apply in Ontario.

A FRUITFUL SESSION.

The session of the Dominion Parliament, which has just closed, was shorter than usual, but it brought some important legislation to the surface. The measure of greatest consequence was Mr. Blair's bill for the appointment of a railway commission to regulate freight rates and exercise other wide powers over the railway companies. Mr. Mulock's bill for the compulsory arbitration of disputes between railway companies and their employes was another advanced idea, and has, on the whole, won favorable comment from the organs of public opinion. It will be pressed next year.

session owes its chief interest to the discussion of Imperial questions, preparatory to the London conference next month. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has taken a straightforward position. He plainly says he is not enamored of any scheme of Imperial defense, which would draw Canada into the vortex of militarism, but he believes we should provide for our own defense and relieve the mother country as far as possible of any concern as to our ability to take care of ourselves in the event of war. As to Imperial trade relations. Sir Wilfrid deems it a duty to urge that the colonies be exempted from the new British duties on breadstuffs, in return for differential treatment in the colonial markets. With that position the Opposition does not

The Duluth Herald contains fuller particulars of the purchase by several Duluth, Minneapolis, and Iowa capitalists of 1.000,000 acres in the Saskatchewan valley. The syndicate will proceed at once to place the land upon the market for colonization purposes. It is a large portion of the land grant of the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan Railroad, and is in a location which has a first-class reputation for wheat-raising.

The men in the deal are all strong financially and are also rich in experience derived from large land transactions, which have contributed towards the development of several of the Western States. The new company purposes erecting elevators and providing all necessary facilities for shipping the products of the farmers who settle upon the lands. The Herald

"There will undoubtedly be a feeling of regret that men of such capital and experience as these are to devote their capital and energies toward the development of territory outside the United States, but the Canadians are undoubtedly to be congratulated at ecuring their co-operation in the colonizing and settling of the great empire in the Northwest.

British Aristocracy. [Boston Globe.]

At the crowning of King Edward the greatest aristocracy of Europe will parade its pride and magnificence before the world. No other nation could equal the display which the nobility of Great Britain will make at West-minster on that occasion. There are said to be 20,000 nobles in Spain, but comparatively few of them could make themselves presentable at a court function. The paragrapher's joke in which Italian counts figure as barbers is not without the sting of

DELIBERATELY PLANNED. DELIBERATELY PLANNED.

Washington, D. C., May 15. — The kidnapping and subsequent arrest of Gaynor and Green at Quebec was the result of a carefully laid plan of Chief Wilkie, of the secret service. It was decided that the state department should send men to apprehend the fugitives but it was later learned that Drink Grano Cereal Coffee fugitives, but it was later learned that every time of need.

Kidnapped by Strangers in Que-bec and Taken on a Tug Inspectors Bennett, Burke, Taylor, and three others had been assigned to the case. The capture was planned to come off yesterday, and the whole arrangements were perfectly car-ried out, even to the issuance of the warrants by the judge on the application of Chief of Detectives Carpenter of Montreal.

It is stated that it is not unusual for United States secret service men to go over the line into Canada in order to watch the movements of persons wanted for offenses committed in the United States, and that frequently this is done with the knowledge of the Canadian officials.

INCEPTION OF THE PLAN. The inception of the plan to secure the arrest of Gaynor and Green dates back to the time those men left the United States and took up their residence in Quebec. The officials here then immediately began consideration of the question to have them extradited and brought to Sa-States detectives. Greene was hustled tion treaty between Great Britain and into a cab at the Chateau Frontenac, the United States was carefully studand Col. The arrangements made by Mr. Erwin contemplated the chartering of a boat to take Gaynor and Green from Quebec to Montreal, after they had been arrested in the former place. The confident belief of the officials here is that this government will be able to secure the extradition of the two men, in which case they will be taken to Savannah for trial.

IT WAS A LONG CHASE

Chief Wilkie, of U.S. Secret Service, on the Kidnapping Case.

Chicago, May 16.-Chief Wilkie, of the secret service, discussing the Greene-Gaynor case, said of the fugitives: "This is but another chapter in a long chase. It was more than two years ago magistrate of this district before the arrest could be made here. Messrs. Fleury, Turgeon and Buteau and a few provincial police left by the 1:30 train for Three Rivers in pursuit of the captors.

The three detectives who made the formula to the following that the dash should be made on Wedner and two years ago that the men were indicted for conspiration that the men were indicted nesday. Frank Burke reached the Canadian city on March 10. He went under the name of Bennett, and at once began to study the movements of the men. For to study the movements of the men. For a time their daily habits were erratic. They had no set movements, as it were. Then, a few weeks ago, they became more firmly settled in their life there. About the time the couple were apprehended one was accustomed to take a walk to the postoffice or to the Victoria; the the property of at the Fronthe other usually remained at the Fron-tenac Hotel. The matter was talked over and it was believed that the best chance to make the arrest offered at this time. to make the arrest offered at this time.

"Five days ago Operator Taylor, of the Washington office, went to Quebec to Join Burke," continued Chief Wilkie. "Our men could not serve the papers, so it is presumed the men who aided them were Canadian officers—possibly the Dominion police. Two plans had been discussed, one involving the use of a boat, the other of a special train. It was understood that the events of the twenty-four hours prior to the dash should govern which means would be adopted. "Had the special train been used, it was planned that the men should be laded in a cab twenty minutes before a regular train left for Montreal."

Chief Wilkle said there was no intentional beinging the men to the United tion of bringing the men to the United States. All that was wanted was to get them to Montreal where extradition proceedings could be instituted.

A Physicians Testimony For Labatt's Stout.

Dear Sir :-ALEXANDRIA, DEC., 20th. 1901. Speaking from personal experience I can state that your Stout is excellent in building up the system-I was very much run down and was advised to use Labatt's Porter-this I have done for some time and I large. ly attribute to its effects my steady improvement in strength and weight. I deem it but justice to you, and it certainly is a pleasure to me, to add my testimony to its sterling qualities, and I gladly recommend your Stout as an excellent tonic and food in cases where such is required. AUDITOR OPPOSES ANY REBATE Plan to Secure Freedom From Future they claim are not sound. Payments Considered Unjustified.

A movement will culminate at the meeting of the city council Monday night, which has existed without attracting much notice, but may nevertheless have very important results. It is the attempt that is being made by a number of Horton street ratepayers, championed by ex-Ald. Carrothers, to secure freedom from future payments upon the sewer which is in that thoroughfare in front of their residences. Twenty years ago a peti-tion was sent in for this sewer. It was granted, and debentures issued to repay the outlay, to extend over a period of 25 years. Everything in connection with the matter was open and above board, and the petitioners were well satisfied. Had they not been, they might have taken advantage of their right to appeal to the court of revision, but they did not. Three years ago ex-Ald. Carrothers went to the council, and said that the cost of constructing the sewer was then overpaid, and asked that the ratepayers be absolved from the necessity of continuing the payments which were still to run for some years. Upon the strength of a report upon the subject prepared by Auditor Jewell, the council set its foot down upon any such action. The ton University, was elected moderator application was repeated a few weeks of the general assemebly of the Presago, and Mr. Jewell prepared a second byterian Church. He was elected on report, which was equally against the the second ballot. proposal. To grant it would mean the destruction of a city asset amounting to nearly $8,000, but its effect as a precedent would be more far-reaching. It would unquestionably mean an influx of petitions for similar privileges which should in justness be received by the council with equal leniency. For instance, this would be possible, probable, in the case of cement sidewalks, which were constructed in 1898. The citizens before whose homes they pass, are paying two-thirds of their But a year later a bylaw was passed which provided that ratepayfortunates who had walks built in assembly at this morning's session. 1898 are still paying two-thirds of the cost. Already they have petitioned that they be granted the lower rate, but this has been denied them. if the council allows the Horton street request, it could not very well refuse this, or similar ones. The disposition of the majority seems to be favorable to the Horton street application, notwithstanding the city auditor's negative opinion, and the belief expressed in council that it is iniquitous, justified on neither legal nor equitable

WILL COMBAT DECISION

Non-Jury Sitting of Assizes Sifton Electric Company to Make Strong Protest.

Docket Will Be One of the Shortest Claim Arguments Against Them Are Unsound.

> The summary dismissal of the Shuttleworth application for permission to have wires strung across Clarence cure electric power from the Sifton Company, somewhat astonished those who have been following the spirited this young and ambitious company is making, in the face of continuous opposition. Although the board of works filed the application, and had power to do so, the matter will not rest there, but will come again before the city council when it meets on Monday night. It was considered by the aldermen two weeks ago, but as it was then obscured by some legal haze, which the city solicitor was looking into, it was sent to No. 2 committee, with power, the intention being that if the Sifton Company were legitimately entitled to this privilege, it should be granted to them without unnecessary delay. The city solicitor sub-mitted his opinion last night and it was that the Sifton people had the right, under the council, of stringing their wires, yet the committee refused to grant them the privilege. The board's decision will be combatted by the company. They will ask the counwhen neither Mr. Shuttleworth nor Mr. Sifton were told of it, and therefore were not represented at the meeting. They will ask, also, to be allowed to answer some of the arguments advanced by their competititors, which

A NEW CLEARING HOUSE

Bank Managers Will Establish One Here.

At a meeting of the local bank managers yesterday it was decided to establish a clearing house in this city. Its location has not been fixed.

A clearing house is an establishment in which banks make an exchange of checks held by each against the others, and settling differences of accounts. It is a convenience for the banks, and will dispense with the necessity of going from bank to bank to make settlements and deposits. It is probable that the banks will in time supply a manager for the new institution.

THE BOERS' DECISION

Awaited With Anxiety-Rumors Plentiful, But No News.

London, May 16 .- The result of the conference of Boer leaders at Vereeniging is anxiously awaited here. The government is hopeful, if not sanguine. The uncertainty with regard to the decision of the Boers, and the fear that negotiations may be still further pro-longed, are interfering seriously with business. When the delegates left Pretoria nearly a month ago to consult the various commandos with the countenance and assistance of the British mil-Efforts Will Be Made to Bring Out itary authorities, most people thought the long-looked-for end was at last in sight. Various rumors, some hopeful others despondent, have been current ever since, and today the situation is as clouded as ever. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach says the government is unaware among the commandos during the last few weeks. But the next words of his companion enlightened him upon the subject.

"Well, it isn't wonderful that he didn't care to give you a history of the scape-grace of the family. He and I never hitched very well, either, for he was one of your goody-goody sort—the gentleman, in fact, of the house of Remington, while I was just the reverse. It wasn't in me to be good; the devil seemed to be born in me; I suppose I inherited it from my mother, who was a kind of a Tartar, and I just had to let the devil have his way; a pretty dance he has led me, too,

His name was Maxwell Dexter Remington, and when I was born my father, who was a poor man, named me after him, hoping he'd give me a slice of his wealth. The other family, who, by the way, were not on the best of terms with ours—my mother was jealous and overbearing, and it was hard getting along with her—had a son, too, about the same time, and followed my parents' example in naming him, doubtless with a similar hope. Well, the other Maxwell was a golden-haired, blue-eyed cherub, and the black-eyed, swarthy-hued Max, which was myself, was a young devil, as I have previously intimated.

"Of course, the character has been our home ever since."

"He died, as I told you last night, when I was an infant only a few months old." Max said, in reply. "He had brain fever which resulted in a prolonged mental trouble. At that time he was living in Pennsylvania; but, a few years later, my mother removed to Chicago, which has been our home ever since."

"Let me see—I believe I heard that he married a very handsome woman," said Mr. Remington, musingly.

"Yes, my mother is a very beautiful woman," Max replied, with an earnestness which betrayed his own unbounded admitted their. I lost sight of him after our uncle died and he came into possession of his money-bags. We were not remarkably congenial, you know, especially after that"—with a significant wink—"so our paths naturally diverged."

as I have previously intimated.
"Of course, the cherub won the heart of his rich bachelor uncle. He was bright and keen, loved study, and was always at the head of his class. He went to church every week, also to Sunday shool, and said his catechism like a nice shool, and said his catechism like a lifety little man. He never swore nor told lies; as he grew up he neither smoked nor chewed the filthy weed, nor 'looked upon the wine when it was red,' while dice and cards, in his estimation, were among the unpardonable sins. He went to college and graduated with honor, and was of course the nattern par excelwas, of course, the pattern, par excel-lence, of a fine young gentleman. "The reverse was the character of the other Max, and—well, to make a long short, there was nothing evil that he wasn't steeped in, and instead of graduating creditably, he was expelled from college six months after entering, and, from that time, had to shift for himself, though this rich grand-uncle had given both boys the same chance, and hinted that, if they did well, they should share alike in his will. But, when the old man died, the blue-eyed cherub was made his sole heir and lived in clover while the black-eved scapegrace went to the devil—yes, went to the devil; went, going, gone, to the dev—"

The man's voice had been growing gradually more subdued, while he occa-sionally made long pauses in his rambling tale, which, as he went on, took more of the form of a sollloquy, as if he were simply reviewing to himself the events of his early life, instead of relating them another person.

His mind seemed to have been entirely diverted from his illners by this meeting with Max, and the revival of leng dormant memories, and they appeared to produce the very effect which his medi-ine was intended to achieve; or, perhaps, It was both combined, for tired nature seemed suddenly to assert its claims in the middle of his rambling, and he drop-ped off to sleep, like a tired child in the midst of a song.

Max had plenty of food for meditation to keep him awake after that, weary though he was, as he sat in that quiet though he was, as he sat in that ouiet room, wondering at the strange fate that had thrown him across the nath of this relative—this scape-goat of the Remington family, as he called himself.

Now he could understand much that had seemed inexplicable before: he could now comprehend how Laura had managed to claim the fortune which she had aged to claim the fortune which she had

d go home to his mother the bearer of blessed tidings.
Strange, he thought, that he should never have suspected that there might never have suspected that there might be two men bearing the same name: stranger still, that his mother should never have told him of the fact. But, possibly, it was as this man had intimated—that the cultivated, proud, and sensitive gentleman, who had abrunk from his wild and dissipated cousin durates his early life had also shrunk from ing his early life, had also shrunk from revealing the fact that one who had been only a disgrace to his family and friends bore the same name to which he friends bore the same name to which he answered.

Yes, it was true that there had been two Maxwell D. Remingtons of about the same age; one the noble Christian gentleman, who had married Adele Fontain and loved and honored her as long as he lived; the other a scheming, dissolute vagabond, who had lured Anna Pomeroy into a secret marriage, hoping thus to gain an entrance into a wealthy family, but who, upon discovering his error, had heartlessly deserted her. "Now my mother can be set right," was almost the first thought that came to Max when he realized all this. "When this story is known, no stain can rest upon either her or her loved husband's memory. She need no longer shrink from the society where, for years, she has shone a brilliant and honored woman, and where she would again be warmly welcomed by the many friends who have been so faithful to her in her time of trouble.

who have been so faithful to her in her time of trouble.

"And Laura—for of course this man must be her father," he continued, "could she have known the story of these two lives? Yes, she must have known it, and how cunningly she has used this knowledge to secure to herself the wealth that her father had forteited by his that her father had forfeited by his reckless career! How artful she has been from beginning to end! How cleverly she has carried her plot to completion! at now, of course, since the truth is nown, she will be compelled to restore known, she will be compelled to restore the stolen possessions." Max realized, however, that he would

Max realized, however, that he would have to work quickly to secure this result, for he had learned, when he was last in Chicago, that she intended to sail for Europe within a few weeks.

His resolve was speedily taken.

He would take this wreck, this "scape-grace of the Remingtons," home with him, build him up a little, until he should get control of his nerves, then he would bring him face to face with Laura, prove their relationship, and thus secure his mother's complete vindication and the restoration of her property. restoration of her property.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Max's patient slept quietly for two hours, and then he began to move restlessly and to mutter incoherently.

The young man quietly administered his drops, and then noiselessly returned to his seat by the fire, hoping that he would drop asleep again.

The man lay drowsily watching him for a while, occasionally muttering something about the "blue-eyed cherub" and the "old bachelor's favorite"; but he finally grew quiet and sank into a restful slumber once more. He did not wake until daylight, when the clerk came to relieve Max, who at once repaired to his room, where, throwing himself, without undressing, upon his bed, he slept until eight o'clock.

After he had had his breakfast he went to the office to inquire how the invalid was, and the clerk informed him that, to the surprise of everyone, he seemed very comfortable. Max then told him that he had discovered a hitherto unknown relative in the stranger, also that he would assume his hotel expenses and the care of him, a bit of news that seemed to greatly re-woman, Max replied, with an earnest-ness which betrayed his own unbounded admiration and affection for her. Then, anxious to learn more regarding his com-panion's personal history, he continued: "But how about yourself, sir—were you never married?"

The man colored hotly, as if the question had aroused exceedingly disagreeable memories, and his black eyes had a fierce, vindictive glare in them as he responded with emphatic pre "Married? Yes." profanity:

"Married? Yes."
As if to assuage the unpleasant sensations he experienced he hastily lifted the glass that contained his dram, and drained it at single draught. Then, leaning Max, he assumed a confidential air and remarked:
"You've treated me like a gentleman, young man, and, even though you are the son of my rival of whom I was bit-terly envious in my youth, I don't mind telling you something of my life. Yes, I married, as you would naturally expect a man of my caliber to marry," he said. a man of my canteer to marry, he said, with a bitter sneer. "I hunted around urtil I thought I'd found a girl with plenty of money—for I'd no notion of working hard to support either myself of a family. The girl's folks were rather opposed to me, as a son-in-law so I invited her one fine day to take a ride with me, and—I never brought her back. I had a marriage license in my pocket, and we were made man and wife before sundown. A little later we sailed for Europe, where I had to go on business for the firm in whose employ I was. But that was a bad day's work for me, for the girl hadn't a red cent of her own, nor wasn't likely to have; she was only the step-daughter of the man whom she called father, though she was called by his name, and he had a son who would inherit all his money. I could have stood it with a bitter grace," the man went on, with a vindictive scowl, "though money was the main thing that had tempted was the main thing that had tempted me, if the girl hadn't been such a Tartar, for I was really rather fond of her. But she had a tongue like a nest of nettles, and she knew how to use it, too in a way to drive a fellow wild. Well, I stood it for a while, but one day, when she it for a while, but one day, when she got worse than usual, I walked off—took "You deserted her?" Max said, involun-

He was so indignant and disgusted with the man's flippant, heartless style of relating his treatment of his wife, that he found it difficult to control himself, and this plain statement of the fact came out almost before he was aware of it.

The elder Remington flushed, with a sudden sense of shame, beneath the words. He had conceived a great liking for this handsome young fellow who bore his name and conducted himself in such a manly, straightforward way, and, for the first time in his life, perhaps, he realized how his treatment of his wife appeared to the eyes of honorable men.

Fandom was shaken with emotion vesterday by the news, sent broadcast over America from New York, that Christopher Matthewson's salary arm has gone lame again and that as a result the mighty collegian will be untention to Matthewson's extraordinary record as a ball-player. Though but 21 years, he is without a doubt the greatest and the most scientific ball curve on a ball that will curl feathers, and if, when at bat, you see one of his hot ones coming, you think it is a thirteen-inch shell out on a holiday."

Mattie's prescription for success on the diamond is very simple, but it embodies, nevertheless, the very necessities which most candidates for baseball honors overlook. Here it is in effect:

Take one good physique; Add one quick-action thinker; Mix all with horse-sense and good habits of life. There's the secret. The dose doesn't look hard to take, yet it is a painful fact that there are heaps of players—amateur, as well as professional—who don't know the taste of it. "The main thing, of course," remarked Matthewson to the afore-mentioned admiring biographer, "is the harmony with which the players work, but it doesn't all depend on that. It is a hard thing to tell. Sometimes it may be one thing and then another. Now in the case of the Pittsburgs, it is natural ability that put them where they are. Boston and Brooklyn are good because of their work in hitting and running, bunting and double plays. The Philadelphians have other points in which they excel and so it is with the other clubs. Now the club that has the greatest number of these points must be the best club. The trouble is the men work together and to be free cost him quite a sum. from petty jealousies.'

The wholesalers have some excellent material within their ranks. and their friends are confident that they will play quite as fast a game as the City League teams.

OPENING OF WHOLESALERS' LEAGUE.

The executive of the Wholesale Base ball League held a meeting last night their season at Springbank Park. Two games will be played, one at 2:30, between the London Printing Company and Perrins, and the second, at 4:15, between Southams and Carlings. The first game is put for 2:30 so as to let the public get down to the park in time to witness the ushering in of the season; but in future the first game will be started at 2 o'clock precisely, and in order that the games may be as snappy as possible, it was agreed clude as near 4 o'clock as will make even innings. The second game will then begin at once.

McNamara developed the fact that it is a fair Quaker maiden rather than mere fear of a prison cell that stands between Napoleon Lajoie and the Detroit team. Most people who have been to Philadelphia have found that life would be bearable without a return visit. But in Napoleon's case, the fear that the courts might forbid his visits to the state in future has an especial significance, and—well, anybody placed in the same position will appreciate Lajoie's predicament

WON FROM IRISHMEN.

Belfast; May 16 .- The touring lacrosse team from Canada played their first match in Ireland yesterday, and won without much difficulty. One thousand persons, nearly all new at the game, gathered at the Ards recreation ground to watch the twelve men from the county Down play the Canadians. Lacrosse is comparatively new in Ireland, but it has a number of enthusiastic admirers, and yesterday's match will benefit the devotees of the new sport in this country. The weather was rainy and the ground poor. In the first period the Canadians scored four goals and the Irishmen one, and at half-time the standing was: Canada, 7; County Down, 1. In the last half the Irish team surprised the Canadians, and put enough dash and energy in their play to score four goals 40 minutes, while Canada only tallied three. The Canadians won the match by ten goals to five. Early yesterday the Canadians, along with a number of the Ards Lacrosse Club, whose guests they are, drove to Mount Stewart.

Revelstoke ran with Barrie, another Dyment first part of the journey was very fast, and Barrie had all he wanted before the half-mile was reached. He slowed up and the other pair went on, Revelstoke ten lengths in front of his stable companion. The mile reached in 1:461/4 (exceedingly fast time for platers), but the pace told, and Revelstoke began to slacken up. Amahaga finished fully four seconds behind Revelstoke, while Barrie never finished at all. The fractional times were: 12¼, 25, 27½, 51, 1:04, 1:17¾, 1:32, 1:46¼, 1:59 and 2:16. died in Usborne township, near Exeter, was born in this city in 1865, and lived here until October, 1901, when he moved to Usborne township. He was married to Susie C., fourth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Heaman, of the London road. Besides his wife and three little daughters, he leaves a father, three sisters, Mrs. Peter Frayne, of Exeter; Mrs. Silas Madge, of Win-nipeg; Mrs. John Basset, of this city, and four brothers, William, of Toron-to; Samuel, of Hyde Park, and Philip and Edwin, of this city. The remains were interred in the Exeter cemetery. -A pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at 530 Talbot street, when Miss Oliviea A. Morrison, of Tilsonburg, was united in marriage to Mr. John Bower, of Ingersoll. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. T. Sowerby, Ph.D., LL.D., in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends of the young couple. Miss Maude Westervelt, organist of Talbot Street Church, played the Wedding March. At the close of the ceremony the company partook of a dainty lunch, after which Mr. and Mrs. Bower took the 4:35 train for Tilsonburg, where they will reside.

HAD STRINGS IN BAND

How a Shrewd Englishman Won Wager From Friend.

From England comes a good story of an incident which occurred during the triumphal English and continental tour of Sousa's famous band, which comes on Monday night next to the New Grand. Two Englishmen engaged in a heated argument at a Sousa con-King's organization was a "wind orchestra," pure and simple. The argument led to a considerable wager, and at the conclusion of the concert Mr. Sousa was asked to allow the question to be definitely decided, to which he readily assented. The first man made his way through the musicians who crowded the stage, and, picking up the snare drum, he turned it over and showed the several strings that span the under head of the instrument. The argument was over, and with a laugh the "wind" champion agreed that he had lost.

"ARIZONA" TONIGHT. The big event of the last half of the theatrical season will be this evening's engagement at the New Grand of Augustus Thomas' play, "Arizona," which comes fresh from its record-breaking run of 150 performances at the Academy of Music, New York. "Arizona," as the name would indicate, is a stage-told story of the lives and loves of men and women name would indicate, is a stage-told story of the lives and loves of men and women living in that picturesque section of the United States, which is now knocking at the doors of commerce with the demand for the dignities of statehood. The characters are typical of the sturdy civilization of a new country. Canby, a splendid old ranchman who dominates the Aravatpa Valley; his kind-hearted but peppery-tempered wife; their two beautiful daughters, children of the plains, veneered with San Francisco culture; the officers and soldiers of a frontier cavalry post—these are the principal types which move and live and have their being in as graceful a story of love, hatred and Phone 1024. 515 Richmond Street.

The entire New York company will be seen in the production here, and the mounting of the play will be as correct and as elaborate in every detail as that which characterized the long and successful runs at the Herald Square Theater and the Academy of Music. The company includes: Grace Ellison, Dustin Farnum, J. W. Cope, Grace Thorne, Frazer Coulter, Alma Bradley, Frank Campeau, Ada Craven, Dodson Mitchell, Jane Bliss Taylor, Ben Deane, William Haezltine, Stanley Murphy and Clement R. Kirby.

BLANCHE WALSH.

Blanche Walsh, who will be seen at the New Grand on Tuesday evening next in H. J. W. Dam's play, "La Madeleine," has not always been essaying the strenuous, tragic roles with which she has of late years been identified. Her first stage appearance was as Olivia, in "Twelfth Night," to Marie Walnwright's Viola. She created the role of Dlana in Bronson Howard's "Aristocracy," and later appeared as sweet Kate Kennion in "The Girl I Left Behind Me." During Nat Goodwin's Australian tour she played Lydia Languish in "The Rivals," and her Trilby is of somewhat recent memory, while only a few months ago she impersonated the love-lorn Romeo in a revival of "Romeo and Juliet" in Denver.

He suggested that the places now in need of repair be replaced with brick or scoria block. The company were anxious to get down to something lasting. Patching would, of course, be unsightly. In a year or two he believed it should all be taken up. The company will be asked to repair their portion within two months with either scoria or vit-rified brick. No change will be made in the proposed Beaconsfield avenue line, and the committee filed the petition of the residents on King street for a gravel roadway between Wellington and Waterloo streets. The petition was sufficiently signed and was vigorously supported by Ald. McMechan, but the board, nevertheless, would not agree to the proposal. The tender of the Barber Asphalt

Children of Nervous Temperament Are Usually the Sufferers.

Paine's Gelery Compound

AN INFALLIBLE CURE FOR THE TERRIBLE DISEASE.

While Chorea is common with children of nervous temperament, it also affects older people. It has its origin in debilitated nerves. Parents can easily note the leading symptoms-unusual movements and jerkings of the limbs, and twitchings of the muscles of the face. Frequently the limbs are so seriously affected that the gait becomes awkward and unsteady. The hands and arms fail to obey the will, and the victim is un-in them a lack of care on your part which allowed bodily disablement and disease to make them weak and wretched.

ELDER CURRIE PREACHES

Detends Strongly the Doctrine of Election.

Two Types of Professing Christians Jew and Greek

Elder H. M. Currie, of Ohio, pastor of the Covenanted Baptists, preached in the Baptist Church, South London, last night. His text was from John. iii., 3. Commenting on the necessity of a new birth, he said that there was this similarity between the natural and spiritual existence, namely spiritual growth could no more proceed from the individual will than could organic development from the will of plant or animal. Spiritual birth and growth, like organic growth, was the free gift of God, and depended in no way upon the will or the good works of man. The speaker said that he had been bowed down with the lowness of his own life, but felt that he was not alone when he had read Paul's cry for deliverance from a similar condition. "You talk about a religion based on hope," said he, "but I would rather be two thousand years behind the times, in the company of such men as St. Paul, than be in the van of so-called religious progress. There was no better evidence that one had been born again than that he had acknowledged his sin. God had his own way of convincing people of sin by writing his laws on their hearts. I will put my laws on your hearts,' said God. It is the law that makes one know that he is a sinner." Outside of God's election, continued the speaker, there is no salvation. Hope based upon anything else than God's eternal purpose was a vain and false hope.

Elder Currie went on to deal with two types of Christians to be found in the world today. "We preach Christ and him crucified, to the Jews a stumblingblock, but to the Greeks foolishness.' Those who depended upon their good works for salvation were essentially Jews, and to them Christ was a stumbling-block. The ancient Greeks were lovers of wisdom, but it was worldly wisdom. There were those today who the application of J. R. Shuttleworth laid great stress upon the wisdom of their weakness, and that nothing was they did theirs they would be saved.

Dear parents, when any of the symptoms just mentioned are manifest, it is your imperative duty to exercise all necessary care, and have your dear ones use Paine's Celery Compound, the great nerve feeder and nerve bracer.

Paine's Celery Compound has already achieved a marvelous record in the cure of St. Vitus' Dance. It has made strong boys and girls out of puny and almost helpless children, and the hearts of thousands of fathers and mothers have been gladdened.

Bear in mind, dear parents, that it is folly on your part to delay the use of Paine's Celery Compound when you note the symptoms of nervous troubles in your children. The great medicine will free them from disease and enable them to grow up strong, happy and contented. Do not make it possible for your children to look back upon their childhood years and find in them a lack of care on your part which allowed hedily disablement and roll relationship of the parties whose tenders are hot accepted.
