FOUL MURDER AT DETROIT; VICTIM ROBBED OF GEMS

Assassins Enter Store at Dusk—Beat and Stab Proprietor to Death and Take $1,000 and Diamonds.

Detroit, July 28.—Within 100 yards of the central police station, Joseph Moyer, the pawnbroker at 42 Monroe avenue, was struck down by robbers early last night, the place looted of almost $1,000 in money and a large quantity of diamonds and watches.

The crime was committed between 6:15 and 6:20 o'clock, when Moyer was alone in the pawnshop. The time of the attack upon the pawnbroker is fixed almost to the minute by an entry which he made in his books just before he turned to meet his assailants.

Trophy Went to Ridgetown; Toronto Victorias Defeated

Canadas Won Novice Match on Last End—Granites Took Association Cup.

Ridgetown has won the Labatt trophy. After an exciting match against the crack rink from the Toronto Victorias, the four from the Western town came out on top at the tournament yesterday afternoon.

Everybody agrees that Ridgetown deserves the trophy, and no one was more so when Ex-President Jackson handed over the well-worn cup to the clever skip from the west, Hurrah, for Ridgetown!

O, those Bawdens. How they did play. It seems as if they have started a new era in the bowling world. Seadly, relentlessly, they placed their bowls, with a few exceptions, just exactly as the skip ordered.

Bowling Tourney Ended; Greens Are Now Deserted

Londoners Win Doubles—Singles and Consolation to Outside Players.

The big bowling tournament is ended. At 2:30 this afternoon the last bow was played in the doubles' match, and the greens, which for the past week have been the scene of so much excitement, presented a somewhat deserted appearance.

not leave anything to be done. Del Marr was ready with the goods when needed. He certainly proved to be a skip who knew just about all there is to be known about handling a rink effectively.

Just here it must be remarked again that the score in a bowling contest is less indicative of the nature of the game than is the score in any other kind of sport.

The Toronto skip himself is a player of the very first water. Put him and Ned Weld and Jim McDougall against each other in singles, and extra ends would have to be played to decide the winner.

G. B. Woods played the game which has attracted general attention since he came to London five days ago, but he was up against a very hard man, namely, the invincible Pete.

Perhaps the closest individual contests in the game took place between the two seconds, Jack Bawden is not quite as wonderful a player as Brother Fete, but still he is a "corner." This appellation may also be applied to Jones, the Toronto second.

Table with bowling scores for semi-finals and consolation matches, listing players and their scores.

The New Home of the Liberals of London; A Commodious Structure Is To Be Erected

The plans for the extension of the Liberal Club house, corner of Queen's avenue and Clarence street, which are in the hands of Mr. H. C. McBride, are now almost complete, and tenders will be called for very soon.

The present clubhouse, will be an immense improvement upon the structure. It will contain about as much floor space as the present building itself.

When not being used for any of the above-mentioned purposes, the hall will be furnished with numerous chairs and tables. A feature of the Liberal Club in the winter time will be a monster whist tournament between representatives of the various subdivisions.

The basement, which, as can be conjectured, will be very roomy and light, will contain billiard and pool tables, and a couple of fine bowling alleys will run along the west side.

The exterior of the structure will be imposing. The auditorium will be built of brick and stone, and its west side, about 100 feet in length, will be about 25 feet nearer the street than the present house.

The auditorium will be the same height as the present club. By reason of its length and the fact that the west side will contain a succession of large windows, the extension will present a handsome facade to Park avenue.

Berlin, July 29.—The South Cameroon Company, whose traders and their agents, it is now admitted, came into conflict recently with French Senegals, soldiers on the frontier of the French Congo over the question whether certain territory is French or German, reports to the foreign office that in the fighting which took place three Germans were killed and four were taken prisoner.

Windsor, July 29.—There is friction between the county judges of Essex County over the selection by the Windsor Council of Junior Judge McHugh to hear the appeals of private persons from the rulings of the assessment revision board.

Panic Spreads O'er South; Fear of the "Yellow Jack"

New Orleans, July 29.—The most disquieting news in the yellow fever situation today is the evidence that panic is increasing in the smaller towns of Louisiana and Mississippi, and that a disposition is growing to revive the disastrous commercial quarantines of 1857, when some of the country towns even refused to receive ice or hardware from New Orleans.

If the movement to quarantine freight spread New Orleans will suffer much more seriously than from the fever itself. Up to the present time there has been no local apprehension of a dangerous epidemic, and it was believed that if the boards of health in other states lived up rigidly to their agreements not to place any restrictions upon the transportation of freight there would be only a slight reduction of business, and the chief inconvenience would be the inability of the country people to come here and of New Orleans to go into the southern towns and cities.

New York, July 28.—Wayfarers along a country road not far from New York passed at dusk last night to listen to a woman's voice unlifted in an old Scotch ballad. The notes were of surpassing beauty, clear and limpid.

The singer stopped at the sound of footsteps on the gravel path. She sat just within the cabin, a blue-eyed, ruddy-faced Scots woman of 30, holding a book to her breast. Her sleeves were rolled to the elbow and the hands were rough and stained with toil.

WRITES OF LOVE TO MISS ROOSEVELT A U. S. Army Deserter intends to Marry the President's Daughter.

New York, July 29. — The mysterious quest of a deserter from the U. S. Army to President Roosevelt's daughter was explained yesterday when it was learned that the man is serving a term of imprisonment in Castle Williams for desertion, and is planning to escape on a special order and examine the President's daughter.

The climax came when Jones sent a short note to Mrs. Roosevelt in which he said that he had written her step-daughter and himself. He declared that Mrs. Roosevelt would surely give her consent if he would crown the life of the President's daughter with the happiness she craved.

This letter was received at Oyster Bay last week and the deserter immediately dispatched one of his guards to investigate the man's identity. The detective has been on Governor Island for several days, but has kept his mission a secret.

The deserter, whose name is not known, is a young man of about twenty-five years of age, and is said to be a native of the State of New York. He is a member of the United States Army, and has served in several campaigns.

A REAL MONARCH VISITS NEW YORK

Sole Lawgiver of the People of the Calf of Man in the Irish Sea.

New York, July 28.—A king came to New York, yesterday, a really, truly king, but there was no visiting delegation to meet him as he came up the bay, and the hotel where he and the queen consort took apartments failed to have any room for the king and his family.

Legend has it that an ancestor of the present owner held his own shield over the head of his king in a desperate battle when the king was sorely wounded. He saved his sovereign's life, but was himself wounded, and in recognition of his bravery and devotion the island kingdom was conferred on him and his heirs forever.

Great Britain made an attempt during the rule of the present owner's father to tax the island, but the sturdy resistance of the present king led to its failure. He learned to "hustle" in the Western world and the quiet ways of the Manxman did not do him wrong.

"The Steady." The gift of a tender and true touch to the possession of Harvey J. O'Higgins, who had written and carried out to the McCreche's midsummer fiction number. Prize Money of Old Days.

Sea battles of the present time do not result in such great rewards of prize money as formerly. English sailors in times past have won great fortunes home after their successful cruises. In the war with Holland, 1654-57, English ships were sent to have taken 1,700 prizes, worth $30,000,000 in 1857 the Standard's London correspondent writes that they set 28,200 men to gold and jewels that it took 28,200 men to carry the treasure from London to London. In 1701 came the historic capture of the Hermione, the Swedish treasure ship from Lima. The silver and copper received as their share $25,000,000; the best of the $65,000,000 war-prize coffers about $40,000,000 officers' shares, $10,000,000, and even the common men $2,000 each. On arriving at Portsmouth the sea-birds, and even the common men, were given a share of the booty from the galleys first.—New York Globe.

Justified Alarm.

Very much excited and out of breath, a young man who could not have been married very long rushed up to an attendant at one of the city hospitals and uttered a long and a long and a long between breaths that it was his wife whom he felt anxious about. The attendant looked at the restorer and realized that there was no Mrs. Brown in the hospital.

A Shining Mark

CHAPTER V. It was high tide, and the waves were buffeting the remains of the pier and lashing the rickety parade. Two or three nursemaids with their children were sauntering up and down the beach...

Once she reached the breezy heights above the houses and could let the wind buffet her cheeks, she felt she could forget Clifford Raven and every other troublesome subject—even Lord Carr-Lyon, and quickening her light, springing walk almost to a run, she scaled the narrow path...

She had almost reached the recess, and almost forgotten Clifford Raven, when suddenly he appeared before her. He was sitting on her seat, his hands clasped behind him, a pipe in his mouth, looking out to the sea with an expression of dreamy sadness...

He looked at her with grave scrutiny. "What had the major told her? Not that England after spending ten years in America—in Australia, he is apt to find that his friends have disappeared—or forgotten him."

"Well, yes; but—she paused—'Major Meddon and I are mere acquaintances.' My father said you were an old friend, and he said, 'He told me—' then she stopped."

"What was it, then, that I did not know where you were going?" "You don't know where you are going," she said, "you speak as if you had no home."

"Well, I haven't," he admitted. "Or friends," he echoed, with a smile that was not particularly mirthful. "You see," he added, quickly, as if deprecating her pity, "when a man comes back to England after spending ten years in America—in Australia, he is apt to find that his friends have disappeared—or forgotten him."

"You found your way back last night?" she said, almost unwittingly; then, as she saw the singular expression cross his face, he crimsoned, and would have spoken, but she checked him with the words, "Well, yes; but—she paused—'Major Meddon and I are mere acquaintances.' My father said you were an old friend, and he said, 'He told me—' then she stopped."

"Do not think me," she said, almost impatiently, "I have done nothing but would you."

"You have done a great deal better than that," he said, "I can tell you all you have done; but I shall carry the remembrance of you with me wherever I go, and as long as I live, his voice faltered, but he steadied it instantly. "As long as I live I shall remember your face as it smiled upon me last night, and your kind words will be as a star to me."

NORRIS & ROWE'S GREATER CIRCUS

The remarkable rapid growth of the Norris & Rowe Circus organization is one of those marvelous accomplishments that the latter-day American people keep absolute faith and honesty with the public and each season continue adding to the interesting artful features higher salaried acrobats, gymnasts, equestrians, posturers, jugglers, athletes, sensational equestrian feats, trained animal acts, and so forth. That policy was to start in modesty, keep absolute faith and honesty with the public and each season continue adding to the interesting artful features higher salaried acrobats, gymnasts, equestrians, posturers, jugglers, athletes, sensational equestrian feats, trained animal acts, and so forth.

HELPED THE VIOLINS

At several of the chamber music concerts held during the past musical season, the music critics on the daily press took occasion to mention the admirable balance between the piano and the other stringed instruments. There seemed to be a sympathetic blending of the two instruments, and as pleasing as it was unusual, the piano used on these occasions was a "Gourlay" and while the critics contented themselves with simply noting the circumstances, the artists went to raptures. They said that the tone produced by the piano seemed to support and intensify the violins and 'cello, thus producing an effect of unparalleled beauty and sweetness. Nor were these praises mere formal ones, for a number of the best known string players in the city hastened to secure a "Gourlay." Among those who now make constant use of that piano are Mrs. Drescher, Adairson, Mr. Frank E. Blachford, Miss Lena M. Hayes, Miss Lois Winlow and Mr. H. S. Saunders, Toronto. These names are known and honored by every music lover in that city. They stand for the highest ship and excellent taste. When it is considered that the "Gourlay" is so admirably fitted for the violin or 'cello, it will be readily understood that the vocal accompaniment, it is simply ideal. The relationship between the voice and all instruments of the violin group is exceptionally close.

THE BAD HABIT OF STARING.

The haughty and scornful stare is the most common among the rich; they have usually little curiosity. It is almost impossible to arouse any special interest in them regarding any natural object or any invention. Among the middle class, so called, anything out of the common is enough to draw their attention. A man or woman exceptionally well dressed enters a car. The eyes of a dozen people follow the harness person to his or her seat, and remain glued there until something new and striking is observed. If instead the newcomer is not well dressed, but very ill dressed, or over showily, two dozen people take up the matter, and there is a general concentration of regard, and many instances without any apparent consciousness of impropriety, upon the

PERHAPS some of my readers will scoff at the idea of farming as a beautifier. But stop a minute and think what it means—a simple life spent in the fresh air, regular meals and plenty of exercise for every member of the body; these are golden rules for health and beauty seekers. Possibly no class of women are keener about going in for anything to preserve their bodily health and beauty than actresses, and it speaks well for farming in this respect that many prominent actresses have taken it up and more are joining the ranks each year.

We cannot own an acre, all of us, nor can we always live where the acres grow. But most of us can manage to spend a week or two at a time on a farm in summer. And when you can do this, try to conform your life to the surroundings and leave all city ideas behind with dusty streets and high buildings.

LEND A HAND

First of all, rise just as early as the farmer himself, and then as nearly as possible follow his regular daily routine. If there is hoeing or raking to be done, lend a hand, and if it happens to be hay time, you are in luck, for nothing could be better exercise than helping to stack the delicious new-mown hay. Of course, to reap the fullest benefits from farm life you should be properly dressed for it.

A blue and white checked gingham dress, reaching barely to the ankles; a fetching sunbonnet or a wide-brimmed farmer's hat, and sturdy, comfortable boots form a practical costume, and dressed in this garb you may join the farmer in almost any task he undertakes. You are sure to become interested, and even when you are tired, you will find pleasure in seeing that the livestock is fed and watered before you go to your own evening meal, that you will if you have really gone into the country with the proper spirit and with the idea of getting the best out of your outing. If you are fortunate enough to be able to own an acre, let me tell you that outside of a place to restore health and dispel the blues you also possess a means of financial income.

Perhaps you will be surprised to know that, unless you are farming for the markets and need to produce the highest and best grade, you can almost live on the crop that an acre will yield for you. Of course, it will require work and care and knowledge.

TWO ENDS GAINED

That out-of-door work is healthy for women has long been acknowledged by physicians, and any one who has watched the peasants of Europe working in the fields could not fail to have been impressed by the strength and vigor shown even by women of an older age, who were engaged in the performance of the heaviest tasks.

In a little town in Germany, not far from Berlin travelers are frequently attracted by the sight of young women swinging with buoyant step through the streets, dressed in quaint blue gingham dresses, with wide-brimmed straw hats, carrying rakes or hoes over the shoulder. Clearly, they are not of the working class, but women of refinement and culture, and upon inquiry you discover that they belong to one of the most unique establishments in Germany, a school of agriculture for cultivated women. Health and Hygiene for Women Getting the Benefit of Lawn Tennis

Copyright, 1905, by A. S. Barnes & Co. BY DR. EMMA E. WALKER.

PROBABLY most girls go through with the same stages in tennis. The long upward stretches that come into the playing of tennis are beneficial, even if this were all the good it brought. However, every muscle of the body has its part to play in vigorous game of tennis. The free swing of legs and arms brings grace and agility. The shoulder joints and the wrist are made supple, and the sinews of the wrist are strengthened.

Tennis is a splendid exercise for both mind and body. To be a good tennis player one must begin right at the outset. The foundation must be correctly laid, or even practice will not make perfect.

The successful stroke does not always consist in the force that is applied to the ball, as much as it does in the manner in which that force is applied. The ball must be hit at the right time, and in the right way. The stroke must be timed correctly, and this depends entirely upon the eye.

All correct strokes are made by free and easy movements, which are bound to be graceful and natural; so do not aim at grace or effect. Never hold your wrist or elbow stiff.

The long upward stretches that come into the playing of tennis are beneficial, even if this were all the good it brought. However, every muscle of the body has its part to play in vigorous game of tennis. The free swing of legs and arms brings grace and agility. The shoulder joints and the wrist are made supple, and the sinews of the wrist are strengthened.

Tennis offers splendid opportunity for deep breathing. It develops the muscles of the arms and legs, as well as those of the chest.

The tennis costume should be convenient. The dress should be of light weight, and loose, while the weight of the clothing should hang from the shoulders. The sleeves should be loose, and the collar low.

A round of tether tennis is almost as good as a Russian bath. There are few games that are its equal in this respect. The strokes have to be given in such rapid succession that the player soon becomes very much overheated.

This game is more appropriate for the cooler days than court tennis, especially when doubles are played. It requires great quickness of eye and agility; otherwise there is a good chance of being hit with the ball.

You must be certain to wear your sweater when you play this game, because of the danger of getting chilled after perspiring.

Other various advantages in this sport over old-fashioned tennis. Very little space is necessary, an area of twenty feet square is quite sufficient; the balls do not have to be chased, and you do not have to waste precious minutes in looking for a lost ball. Neither does the umpire have the nice decision to make that often come up in the older game.

The expense of the game is far less than that of court tennis. There are no nets nor back stops to be provided. It is interesting, invigorating and rapid, and can be played by girls as well as boys. It is on account of these various advantages deservedly popular.

NETHER TENNIS

Tether tennis is an agreeable change from the old-fashioned court tennis. It can be set up in the smallest yard, or at the seashore. Some one was ingenious enough to tether the ball, so that you never have to run after it.

Women's Questions Answered by Mrs. Symes—Health and Beauty Advice

To Make the Bust Firm

Will you kindly, either personally or through your department, give me a recipe or directions to make the bust firm? I am quite large, that is, weigh about 150 pounds, and about 5 feet 3 inches tall. I have a nice bust, only it is flabby, or inclined to be more so than I desire.

JULIA R.

Massage the bust upward and outward morning and evening, particularly the muscles underneath, which give support. Bathing frequently with cold water also helps greatly in making the bust firm.

Letter From Grateful Correspondent

I am an interested reader of your column, and I must thank you for the pleasant growth of my hair. I have used it with good success, and I am glad to hear that others are also pleased with it. It is a very good remedy, and I am glad to hear that others are also pleased with it.

look more presentable? I know I had no business using the peroxide, but it is too late now. Will you kindly tell me what to use for a shampoo which will be perfectly harmless, as my hair is very wavy.

S. T.

The shampoo for which I am giving you a formula is excellent for keeping blonde hair light. I do not know that it will improve the appearance of your peroxide tresses, but it will be good for the new hair, and you will have to wait patiently for this to grow out.

Shampoo.

White castle soap, in shavings, 1 ounce; water, 24 ounces; potassium carbonate, 30 grains; borax, 15 grains; cologne water, 2 ounces; bay rum, 2 ounces.

Dissolve the soap, water and all the other ingredients. Rub well into the roots, rinsing thoroughly in several waters. Then dry carefully.

About Henna Stain

Will you kindly let me know how long to leave the tea made from henna leaves on the hair, or whether you do not wash it off after turning the hair auburn color? My hair is a little light in color on the ash shade.

R. D. Q.

The stain should be applied to the hair with a brush and allowed to remain. Of course, retouching becomes necessary as soon as new hair appears. The average woman must use some of the stain at least once in every six weeks.

For a Dry Skin

Some time ago I read in your column a recipe for blackheads. I am about to try it. Will the orange-flower cream be a good one for softening the skin before pressing out the blackheads? Is it a good cleansing cream, and will it cause hair to grow on the face? I am troubled with superficial pimples, and I would not like to use anything on my face that would cause it to grow more.

Sometimes my face gets very dry, so much so that at times the skin cracks and makes my face rough. Will the use of the skin before removing the blackheads. It is one of the best skin creams known, and positively will not promote the growth of superfluous hair. When your skin becomes dry I advise you to rub the cream well into it at night before retiring. Also to use it before exposing your face to the sun or wind. Wipe off with a soft linen cloth and it will not be perceptible.

About Hair Stain

I had the preparation for hair stain put up by a druggist according to the formula given in your column. I find it leaves a black stain on the scalp, and as my hair is very thin around my face, especially on the temples, I am a little worried about its immediate use; consequently it does not color the roots of the hair. The color of this preparation is slaty black. Is it as it should be?

J. S.

When the dye is applied with a small brush, according to directions, it is not necessary to get much on the scalp. This small quantity can be carefully removed by soap and water without injuring the color of the hair.

Hair Falls After Fever

I write to you for a favor, seeing your advice to others. I am a man 20 years old, and for some time past my hair has fallen out to such an extent that I have to use some tonic on the market with no success whatever. My health is normal. What would you recommend in this case as I suppose a strenuous case needs strenuous treatment?

ALMOST BALD.

I am giving you formula for an excellent hair tonic; but I am afraid this will be of very little use in your case without massage. Your scalp needs friction to restore a healthy circulation of the blood. If it is not possible for you to have the services of an expert, try doing it yourself. The proper movements have frequently appeared in this department.

essence mask, 5 or 6 minutes. Agitate until solution is complete.

Face Too Fat

I have been massaging my face to reduce superfluous flesh, but do not seem to obtain very good results; it also makes my face very red and coarse looking.

Do you know of anything you can rub on the face to keep it from getting red, or do you know of anything you can use on the face to make it thin without injuring the skin? Or do you think massaging is the best thing to do, thanking you in advance for any information you will give me.

WARRIED.

There is nothing better than massage to reduce the superfluous flesh on your face. It will not make the skin coarse, and any redness it may cause is only temporary and will soon disappear.

Hair on Face

We have taken your paper just a few weeks, and I am very much interested in your beauty column. I take the liberty of asking you if you know of any remedy for killing superfluous hair. I think it was caused by putting on glycerine for chapped lips and face.

WARRIED.

If the growth of hair is not very heavy, try bleaching it with peroxide of hydrogen and ammonia, which will make it almost imperceptible. Electrolysis is the best method of permanently removing superfluous hair. If you cannot afford this, try using the plaster stick, which has been very beneficial in many cases.

Worried by Falling Hair

I am a constant reader of your department, and I thought it possible that you might be able to help me. I have tried so many remedies for my hair, and none helps me. It falls out in great abundance—that is, every time I comb it—I fear I fear I am soon to be bald. I am young and in perfect health, and it bothers me awfully. Will you do as hope you can give me a remedy for it through your valuable column.

About Orange-Flower Cream

I am a very interested reader of your answers to correspondents on beauty and health, and have profited very much by them. In last week's paper I saw a recipe for an orange-flower cream. Would you please let me know if the use of that cream about once in every three weeks while using the tonic. The egg shampoo is excellent, but hot water and a good soap are sufficient.

Rub the tonic in well with the tips of the fingers, giving a rotary movement. This will promote a healthy circulation, and will make a healthy, curly hair; it may take a little time to accomplish results.

To Whiten the Skin

Will you kindly tell me what to do with my face? It seems dry and coming out like a good tonic, something that would not make it darker. Also give me a good formula for a skin food. I am having wrinkles on my forehead. I would also like to have something to whiten the skin. I do not mean a wash. I never use powder or anything of that kind. Thanking you in much advance for your help.

LILLIAN.

The formula for dry, falling hair will be found elsewhere on this page. The skin food I am recommending is excellent for removing wrinkles, and will whiten the skin.

Wants Prescription Analyzed

I am inclosing you a sample of cold cream some of your recipes printed in the paper, and will ask you to analyze and print same, and print, if convenient, in next week's paper.

I have no department for analysis, so cannot comply with your request. If you can remember a few of the ingredients given in the formula, and will write me what they are, I will be able to identify the recipe.

Regrets Use of Peroxide

I am going to ask you to bestow some of your valuable advice on me. I put some peroxide (which was very strong) on my hair—just enough to make it a golden own personal opinion, after having used this cream for years.

To Curl Baby's Hair

As I am a constant reader of your paper and you assist so many, I appeal to you for a little advice. Could you name in your paper a fluid for keeping a three-months-old baby's hair curly?

ANXIOUS MOTHER.

I think the best way is to train the baby's hair by brushing it the "wrong way" and constantly curling it over the finger. However, I am giving you a formula for a liquid which is harmless, although I do not advise putting a lotion on the head of so young a child.

Solution to Keep Hair Curled

Take of gum arabic, 1 ounce; good moist sugar, ½ an ounce; pure hot water, ¾ pint. Dissolve. When this solution is cold add alcohol, 2 fluid ounces; bicarbonate of mercury and salicylic acid, 6 grains each. The last two should be dissolved in the alcohol before admixture. Lastly add enough water to make the whole measure 1 pint. Perfume with cologne or lavender water. Moisturize the hair with the fluid before putting it in papers or pins.

Lost Formula for Hair Stain

I had the recipe of the physician's prescription taken from last week's issue, but have lost it, through my neglect. Am sorry to trouble you, but if you will kindly give it next week, I will be very thankful, as I cannot remember the quantities. About how much would you reduce the pyrogallol stain? Is it as good as the darkest brown? Thank you in advance. I am a reader of your paper, yet not of the darkest brown. Please, if you can, send me the formula. I have been most anxious to see it.

MAY.

Restore the Natural Color of the Hair

(A physician's prescription.) Sugar of lead, ½ ounce; sacchar, ¼ ounce; essence of bergamot, ¼ ounce; alcohol, ½ pint; glycerin, 1 ounce; tincture of camphor, ½ ounce; ammonia, ¼ ounce. Mix all in one pint of soft water. Apply to the roots of the hair, which must be brown. The dye should never be applied if there is any irritation or abrasion of the scalp.

We were fairly accustomed to receive weird telegrams at Baker Street, but I have a particular recollection of one which reached us on a gloomy February morning, some seven or eight years ago...

"Please await me. Terrible misfortune, right wing three-quarter missing, indispensable tomorrow.—Overton." "Strand postmark, and dispatched 10:36," said Holmes, reading it over and over...

"And are you prepared to meet the cost?" "I have no doubt, sir, that my friend Godfrey, when we find him, will be prepared to do that."

"These theories take no account of the telegram." "Quite true, Watson. The telegram still remains the only solid thing with which we have to deal, and we must not permit our attention to wander away from it."

"What did you do?" he asked. "I wired to Cambridge to learn if anything had been heard of him there, I had no answer. No one has seen him."

"So that is the tail end of the telegram which Godfrey Stanton dispatched within a few hours of his disappearance. There are at least six words of the message which have escaped us, but what remains—'Stand by for God's sake!—proves that this young man is a formidable character, which approached him, and from which someone else could protect him."

"The young woman separated one of the forms." "It is it. There is no name," said she, smoothing it out upon the counter.

THE OLD-TIME PARLOR HAS SEEN ITS DAY ANOTHER INSTITUTION THAT IS DOOMED TO DISAPPEAR

A writer in a furniture trade journal refers to the fact that the old-fashioned parlor has seen its day and is not to be found in modern homes.

And so the old parlor is passing. Maybe it is all right for it to go. But we shall ever remember it with tender feelings.

True Outdoor Living Which Will Bring Happiness and Health

ONE of the most sensible of modern fads is what a flip-pant talker called in my hearing just now, "the fresh-air craze."

I say "fad" with deliberate intention. The King of Lexicons gives as one definition of the fashionable monosyllable, "An important matter imperfectly understood, taken up and urged with more zeal than sense"—an interpretation that covers my subject to a nicety.

People who will tell you complacently that they are "fresh-air fiends," meaning that they take fifty deep breaths daily and an air bath every morning, standing in the middle of a steam-heated bathroom with one window open—sit habitually in hot rooms, stuffy with stale air and French perfumes; receive friends, in broad daylight, in the scented glooms of drawing rooms heated by shaded lamps and, when one window is let down an inch from the top in their bedrooms, at night, draw a screen between it and their beds lest they should feel the draught.

Right comprehension of the "important matter" before us impels yearly hundreds and thousands of family men to buy or rent summer homes, handsome or humble as their means warrant, in locations remote from popular caravansaries and rural "neighborhoods."

ORIGINAL COST IS SMALL

Every season, too, more people take real outdoor life for two months—some until frost dashes the forest with vivid color and crisps livid grasses upon the hillsides. Some are camps in name alone and in rustic architecture more expensive than lowland brick and carved wood. Others, and each year in larger numbers, make a "feast of booths" of the hottest months, dwelling in huts and tents. If there be invalids or growing children in the home of our man of moderate means, he cannot do a wiser thing than to transfer such of his household gods as are represented by plenty of summer reading, a scanty outfit of furniture and plain wardrobe to a family camp.

For less than one hundred dollars

A large family tent, sixteen by twenty feet in the clear, with a fly attachment for kitchen and dining room, varies in price according to elegance of finish (and the reputation of makers) from $34 to $80. A substantial affair, water-proof and ten feet high at the peak, may be bought for from $40 to $50. A board floor, raised a few inches from the ground, may be laid at a trifling expense and assures dryness. A coal oil stove for cooking, with a few utensils, will be from $5 to $6 more. A sleeping tent for boys or girls, ten feet square and eight feet high, costs from $18 to $25. Should the mother prefer a separate tent for cooking so far removed from the sleeping quarters that flies and odors will not trouble the inmates of the latter, the $7 saved thereon may be left out of the calculation, and the $7 saved thereon may be taken out of the purchase of a $7 by 9 tent, open in front when desired. Price, from $10 to $12. Upon fine days the cook stove may be taken outside, or cooking may be done after the more primitive style of surveyors and Adirondack guides, over a fire of bark and dry sticks.

This tent, when opened in front, is the general lounging place of the family. At the back, and along one side, are piled hemlock, cedar, pine or balsam twigs, packed regularly and firmly into the form of a divan, broad and low, and covered with sea rugs. Here may be had siestas, small of delicious, with the tonic smell of resinous boughs; here one may lie, propped by pillows filled with balsam "needles," and read by the hour, conscience lulled to rest by the knowledge that one is fulfilling that for which one came into the wilderness—living in the open air, resting upon the very heart of the Nature who is to give back to her children growth, strength and the pure zest of living.

Here, mother and daughters may have their camp chairs and the rockers without which the American matron is never at her most comfortable estate, and while father or brother read aloud, knitting and crocheting go noiselessly on, and the tapestry pattern grows under deft fingers. Here the whole tribe collects for afternoon tea, the kettle boiling in true gypsy fashion; a little way off, the voices of the children playing in the woods leaving no room for regret at the absence of song-birds or the forests remote from the all-the-year-round haunts of man.

Vegetables and perishable foods are brought from the nearest village; in one corner of the tent is an improvised cupboard stocked with biscuits, sweets and "relishes." Muffins and griddle cakes are baked upon the stove—and outdoor appetites make amends for the lack of course dinners. "Everything tastes good in camp" is the unanimous testimony of young and old.

If it be possible for the thorough-going, native-born American to find anything to enjoy in "The Simple Life," he knows it in the family camp.

To Whiten Piano Keys

For your convenience, will you kindly drop the piano keys and get 10 cents' worth of black asphalt and use as a polish for her steel range. If too thick, use a little turpentine. Of course there will be some odor, but it will quickly disappear. I use this on my steel range and find it all right. Please report success. — R. L. D.

Tea as an Eye-Wash

TO THOSE subject to sties or inflamed eyes: If they will wash the eyes in warm tea several times a day, and at night put the wet grounds in a light bag and put on the eye, they will find relief. If used in time it will cure. Put in a day or two. It is also good to drop the tea into the eye. If sore. — Mrs. S. B.

The Use of Corrosive Sublimat

WILL corrosive sublimate destroy those horrid little creatures, bedbugs, and, if so, what is the quantity of water to put with one tablet? I read of the "sure cure," but cannot easily procure the gasoline. Can I use the corrosive sublimate in a long-nosed oil can with success, or is there a better way? — Mrs. H. P. L.

half gallon, is one of the best liquid bedbug destroyers that I know of. Inject into crevices, and spray the edges of the base board, the joints of the bedstead and seams of mattresses with it. Shut the room up for a day after doing this. The alcohol and corrosive sublimate are, both of them, deadly poisons to children and careless servants. Use the common oil can with long spout.

My Best Cure for You

AT the risk of writing at too great length, let me tell you that "Mrs. W. H.'s" expression of surprise that one so old as yourself should conduct your department, really made me smile (audibly). I wonder why you should necessarily be old because you are a grandmother? I know a grandmother who was just 35 at the birth of her first grandchild. But admitting that you are old, why shouldn't you have the education, mental force, common sense, experience, progressiveness and sympathy necessary to make your department a success and endear yourself to such a large circle of readers? Happily you have not reached the stage where you ought to be "sterilized"!

Allow me to suggest to "G. H." the use of newspaper in sweeping carpets. Tear the newspaper into bits, and put them into a bucket of water. Take out handfuls, squeeze as dry as possible, and scatter over the carpet. Then sweep. I prefer this way to using tea leaves or salt, and I consider it second best to your Italian chambermaid's aesthetic method of sweeping by the aid of rose leaves. I would choose the rose leaves surely were it not that my rose garden still suffers from having felt last spring the clutches of a severe blizzard, with snow three inches deep. — T. B.

esteemed correspondent whom we welcome to our Circle after a protracted absence. Let us hope that her roses stood up before this meet her eyes proved their superiority to the snows and frosts which typify old age to the pessimistic imagination.

Send in Your Recipes

HERE is a bit of cheery common sense for the family-at-large: Friends! I know you are all glad that housecleaning is over, and living. But if I am young in the business, I never let my loved ones come flex the temper for some place to sit when turned upside down, for nothing ruffles the temper more than to have to look around for some place to sit when they come and the family are to be cleaned. The curtains may be at the cleaners, but we can sit over clean floors and the furniture may be in place and you can look neat yourself. I would like to tell the Circle of some neat spring cleaning tips. If they would like them. — Mrs. C. M.

METHOD NEEDED IN PACKING HOUSEHOLD GOODS

Careful Memoranda of the Contents of Boxes and Barrels Will Prevent Much Annoyance When Unpacking Time Comes

By Miss M. E. Carter

Copyright, 1905, by A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.

Barrels are excellent for almost all packing purposes, and they are easy to get, safe and excellent for tableware, ornaments and whatever is not too large for them. They hold considerable, are easily handled by porters, cheaper and safer to move than heavy boxes. Delicate crystal ware carefully packed in a barrel can be sent from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast intact. Nothing will be cracked on the way unless the barrel itself should be broken, which is unlikely without a railroad accident. Of course, there must be no stinging of the excelsior. Safe and orderly packing insures prompt, orderly unpacking, and tends to promote general good humor. Whoever has seen the faces of people when, upon opening badly packed goods, they found some of their best belongings broken will appreciate skillful packing and realize that any other sort is time and material, as well as transportation, wasted.

The packer should always take a list of all things stowed away. Packages and lists should be numbered alike. This method simplifies unpacking and settling because it prevents anything from being opened by mistake too soon and saves things from lying about in danger of damage before a suitable place can be prepared for them. It also expedites the finding of whatever may be needed at once.

Every memorandum taken should be put into one notebook devoted to that purpose, and so inscribed on the cover that any one wishing information regarding the whereabouts of an article needed can easily recognize the book, which, however, ought to be in safekeeping, while at the same time easy to get at for reference, by trustworthy persons. It is some trouble to keep these strict memoranda, but it pays.

MISS M. E. CARTER

so happened that the silver was some that was never used, except when a very large evening entertainment was given by the mother of the young girl. As a matter of course, the box was sent to a closet, where glass and china for extra-large evening entertainments were kept. The little girl, upon her return from abroad, naturally inquired for the jewelry. After searching every box of valuables in vain, the lady, while quite certain that the things were safe and would turn up some time, gave up looking, but did not give up racking her brain for some clue to the mystery. Her memorandum had she made of that particular parcel's whereabouts. After several devastating days of hunting and puzzling over the matter, all at once she had promptly made a note of it, she flashed into her mind the strong oak box, there, to her own immense relief, behind the packages; but the point is, if, at the time of taking it in charge, she had promptly made a note of it, she would have spared herself mental wear as well as much loss of time that was spent in searching more than once in places where the missing baubles were not. Therefore, all the way along we should make a note of every thing kept and also in the more quiet housekeeping days after the home is in running order. The fact is that no mind should be charged with a lot of things to be recalled, when needed, by reference to memoranda, since there is so much valuable knowledge which can only be acquired by exercise of the memory. The first are only for temporary use, and may then be dismissed from one's mind; but the other is forever in the mind and memory should be devoted to storing up what is worth keeping and thinking about, not spent on comparatively trivial matters. It is something of an effort, and worth cultivating.
