without any trouble. Other cars with passengers in them, were sent over. The device seemed to be working to perfection, and as the various cars, one after another, went down the steep slide, and came up with a round turn, Moritz fairly shouted for joy. The dream of the last twenty-six years of his life was realized, and his face beamed with delight as his friends alighted from the cars and pronounced the construction a suc-

> Inspector Rittenhouse and Charles Otis, a friend of the inventor, rode in the last car to be tested. Moritz stood at the foot of the incline. The car had nearly reached the top, a distance of about seventy feet. There was a cracking sound, a shout and Rittenhouse and Otis shot backward, Their car had failed to hold the steel dog until the top of the incline had been reached. It came down with great velocity, straight for the place where Moritz was standing. The car was almost upon him when he turned to get out of the way. It was too late. The heavy vehicle struck him in the back, knocking him through a wire netting and out into the Bowery walk. He died two hours later. Rittenhouse and Otis were uninjured.

MEN DROWNED

The Sad Ending of a Pennsylvania Fishing Party.

Kittaning, Pa., June 13 .- Two men lost their lives and a third was probably fatally injured at Rosston ves terday in one of the saddest drowning accidents known in this vicinity. The dead : Andrew Hileman, aged 35 years, married; Kirk Bailey, Jr., aged 19 years, single. The injured: Dwight Bailey, aged 43 years, married. The Bailey and Hileman families, about 16 in all, left their homes in Rosston and went to the banks of Crooked Run. a short distance away. While fishing with a net for minnows, the net became entangled in a snag. Young Kirk Bailey swam out to see what the trouble was, and his feet became entangled in the net. Andrew Hile-man started to the rescue, and he, too, became caught in the net. Dwight Bailey, the boy's father, jump-ed into the water to aid his drowning son, and also became entangled. Young Bailey and Mr. Hileman were drowned, and Mr. Bailey will prob-ably die. During all the time the men were struggling in the water their wives and families were on the bank in agonizing helplessness. The people are prominent in Armstrong

FLOWER MISSION

The "Flower Mission" tea held by the W. C. T. # CONSPIRACY IS NOW CHARGED

Action Taken Against Many Nationalist Members of Parliament.

Beginning of Struggle Between Organized Landlords and United Irish League.

Dublin, June 13 .- At the instance of Lord Defyrne, writs have been issued against a large number of members of the Irish Parliamentary party on the charge of conspiracy in connection with the tenant troubles of the Defyrne estate, Roscommon county. Among the defendants are Jos. Redmond, John Dillon, W. J. O'Brien, J. G. Swift, MacNeill and Connor, O'Kelly and the members of the standing committee of the United Irish League, which includes Michael Davitt and a number of former members of Parlia-ment. The Freeman's Journal is also a defendant. Lord Defyrne seeks an injunction and damages.

Forty farms on Lord Defyrne's estate were sold by the sheriff Feb. 19 of the present year, the tenants having refused to pay rents. A large number of "clearance sales" were then pending as a result of the "no rent campaign," at that time being car-ried on by the United Irish League, and it is said that many hundreds of other tenants were to be proceeded against. John Redmond at the time said the country thereabouts was alive with police and that fifteen re presentative public men of the dis trict had been imprisoned merely for taking part in meetings of a peace-able nature. He attributed all the trouble to the Government's refusal to permit legislation giving power to the Government to buy out the Irish landlords and thus restore the land to the Irish people. Altogether thirty writs have bee issued in the Defyrne action, which is really taken by the Landlords' Association, and is the beginning of a struggle of the organized landlords against the United Irish League, which is likely to be severe and far-reaching, as the landlords have ample

FINAL COURT

London, June 13. -KingEdward and Queen Alexandra held the fifth and final court of the season at Buckingham Palace this evening. It was raining hard, and a cold wind was blowing and the weather was worse, if possible than that which marked the four inclement nights of the previous courts.

The scene inside Buckingham Palace was particularly brilliant, however, as the Japanese and Corean embassies to the coronation of the King, who have just arrived in England, and who attended court, were quite as splen-didly attired as were the Indian princes present. The latter were the feature of this, as they have been of previous courts.

The royal party included the Princess Victoria and the Prince of Wales. All the members of the special miscoronation of King Edward were present, and the officers were alt in their full dress uniforms

THE ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

They Will be Held in Chatham and West Kent on June 25, 26 and 27.

The Government's Peculiar Instructions--Simple of Ross Regime.

The Entrance Examination Board for Chatham and West Kent held their meeting this week. The Board consists of D. S. Paterson, M. A., principal C. C. I., chairman; Robert Park, I. P. S., secretary; Miss F. M. Hillman and Mr. W. J. Twohey.

It was decided to hold the examinaions in the class rooms of the Collegiate Institute and not in the assembly hall as heretofore.

The Board deemed it inadvisable to change the dates for the examination as suggested by the Minister of Education. The dates for writing here will accordingly be . Wednesday Thursday and Friday, the 25th, 26th and 27th of June.

tions, for London will be held on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, June 25, 27 and 28. It was originally intended to have them on June 25, 26 and 27, but as June 26 (Thursday) is coronation day and a public holiday to be made. A circular was sent out by the Education Department, notifying the boards of examiners that the Friday and Saturday, instead of Thursday and Friday, June 26 and 27. whe suggestion was agreed to.-Lordon Free Press.

Ed. Note.-The above furnishes an interesting commentory on the methods of the Education Department of the Ross Government. The official circular alluded to in The Free Press, while suggesting the dates mentioned adds.-"Any other arrangement which examiners, after consultation, prefer, may, however, be followed, with the understanding that Wednesday be the first day of the examination."

These instructions followed out will, of course, simply make a farce of the examination, excepting only in so far as the papers of the opening day are concerned. The examinations in Chatham will precede those in London and other points and the muddle will furnish papers to students and teachers in the later centres prior to the examinations. Two years ago the Government undertook to punish somewhat severely a local teacher who "opened the bag" prematurely. Now it is officially "opening the bag"

The Planet believes the decision of the local Board is a wise one in holding the examinations on the first dates. A change would seriously inconvenience the country pupils and lay the students and teachers open to the charge that they had previously the charge that they had previously about one hour and a half afterwards, examined the papers, which they could The father, David McCallum, is at easily do. The local Board should be upheld in the decision to keep their examinations free from the suspicion that the Government has created.

TOO LATE FOR RECOUNT.

Walkerton , June 14 .- The Centre Bruce recount is off. The application was too late, agreeing with the contention of the Conservatives that the pone his declaration, and that the application for a recount must date from the original day fixed for the declaration. # THREE RECOUNT APFEALS FILED

North Grey, East Middlesex and Lennox-Adjourned For a Week.

Evidently a Pretence of a Government Inquiry Into North Grey Crookedness.

Toronto, June 13. - Three recount appeals have already been filed at Osgoode Hall-Lennox, East Middlesex and North Grey. In the first so far it is not a victory for either Mr. Madole or Mr. Carscallen, and the returning officer is not permitted, under the act, to decide the tie by his casting vote until the appeal is decided. That was fixed to be heard to-morrow before Mr. Justice Maclennan, but by arrangement between the parties it will not be heard until a week from to-morrow. In East Middlesex there is a majority of 21 against Capt. Robson, the Conservative and appellant, and in favor of Dr. Routledge.

In North Grey, the latest of the three, Mr. Boyd, the Conservative, has appealed, though the ballots and documents have not yet reached the court here. The recount just concluded before Judge Morrison reduced A. G. McKay's majority of 9 to 5.
At leat four ballots are in serious dispute, all being marked clearly for Mr. Boyd, but having light crosses marked under and about the name of

McKay. The second recount of North Grey ballots, before Judge Creasor, at Owen Sound, fixed for to-day, was postpon-ed, owing to the judge being engaged in another court.

Mr. Harcourt, acting as Attorney-General, has commissioned Aemilius Irving, K. C., to proceed at once to North Grey and make an enquiry into the irregularities concerning four bal-lots polled in division No 9, township of St. Vincent.

MOTHER AND SON DROWNED.

Ottawa, June 13 .- Mrs. D. McCallum and her little son, aged about eight years, were drowned at Portage du Fort this morning at 7 o'clock. It appears that the little fellow had been playing in a boat, and was out on the water with it, when he fell out. The mother, hearing his cries, went to his assistance. She waded into the water beyond her depth and lost her footing. A thirteen-year-old son put out a pole for her to catch, but she did not appear to see it. The bodies were found present working on the sweep at Snow Boom for the Upper Ottawa Improve-ment Company. The McCallums lived on the bank of the river.

BOERS AS BRITISH SUBJECTS.

Over ten thousand Boers and Cape Colony rebels have surrendered and given up their arms since peace was declared in South Africa, and it is said that some two thousand have not yet come in. The conduct of the burghers who have surrendered up to date seems to indicate a willingness to submit to the inevitable that was scarcely expected. Instead of being silent and taciturn over defeat, they admit it cheerfully and are apparently sincere in their expressions of loyalty. A significant feature of the wholesome contempt of the burghers for the French and German officers who fought with them, and their anger against these officers for advising them to continue fighting, in the hope of European intervention. Some even go so far as to express willingness to fight with Great Britain against either France or Germany

It certainly looks as though firm and kindly treatment now is all that is needed to make the South African burghers good British subjects.

SOMEWHAT AT SEA.

It is very hard to please the Tory organs in this recount business. the North Grey case the judge found that four ballots given to Mr. Carscallen, the Conservative candidate, bore a light cross for Mr. McKay also, returning office utter fairness, counted these for Mr. Carscallen, yet the papers howl about corruption and make the silly state ment that these ballots were doctored after being counted .- Banner. As usual, the local Ross organ is somewhat at sea. But, leaving aside its clumsy blunder in declaring Mr. Carscallen the Conservative candidate in North Grey, this great home journal merely desires to focus its attention upon the fact that it was his honor Judge Morrison, before whom the Liberals themselves sought the recount, who summed up with the "silly statement" that he was "clearly of the opinion that these ballots had been tampered with since they were counted on election night, and would allow them for Mr. Boyd, the Conservative candidate, if persuaded he had jurisdiction in the matter."

If the Banner would only try to get near the truth sometimes!

A BAD BLUNDER.

The Chatham Planet on June 10 published an article taken from the Detroit Tribune in which it stated that the Canadian Sugar factories course of erection have a capacity as follows:

Walaceburg Sugar Co, Wal-Dresden Sugar Co., Dresden ....... 350 Ontario Sugar Co., Berlin ..... ... We can hardly understand why

The Planet should wish to belittle the Dresden factory after publishing time and again from information received from a reliable source that the Dresden factory has a capacity of 600 tons. We wish The Planet to distinctly understand that our factory is just as large as any being erected in Canada, and as regards architecture sugar making machinery and completeness is every way it is superior to them all .-Dresden Times.

Our Dresden contemporary is quite right in taking this great home journal to task for the blunder-but it is somewhat severe. The Times probably did not note that the day following the reproduction of the article from the Detroit Tribune, The Planet drew attention to the error and rectified the figures. The mistake was first noticed by Mr, Sandy Mc-Vean, who at once courteously drew

The Planet's attention thereto. Dresden has reason to be proud of her extensive sugar manufacturing industries.

Rodney is to have a new industry in the shape of a basket factory. Mr. James Drake, late of West Lorne, has located here and will begin operations at once. The warehouse on the M.C.R. grounds and adjoining Furnival street has been moved to the north end o the town by Mr. Wm. Flater and in this building the new factory will be located. Mr. Drake is bringing a number of families here with him.— Rodney Mercury.

A serious accident happened to Elm er Everitt on Wednesday morning of last week. He was erecting a frame residence on the lot adjoining L. Peters residence, and while working upon it had the misfortune to fall, breaking his thigh bone and inflicting other injuries. Mr. Everitt, who is improving as well as can be expected, was fortunate enough to take out an accident about a week previous to his mishap.-Dresden Standard.

There was a lively time at one of the Northside livery stables on Mon-day. On entering the stable the proprietor discovered a male resident of the town treating three squaws from Walpole Island to copious draughts from a bottle of whiskey. He took part in the fun, with a horse whip to assist him, and it is said that the man with the bottle established a new record for a hundred yard dash. -Wallaceburg Herald.

Mr Jas Pegg met with a serious ac ident last Monday. He was sitting on his verandah when in some manner he became overbalanced and fell off striking his head on the gravel. He did not feel badly hurt at the time but a short time afterwards went to On Monday night he became unonscious and at last reports was still in an unconscious state. Mr.
Pegg's condition, considering his advanced age, is looked upon as very serious.-Blenheim Tribune.

HELD UP FOR ONE DOLLAR. Walter Welsh, Jr., of Windsor, late of Tilbury, an agricultural implement agent, was driving into town early Monday morning when he was accosted on the Tecumseh road just outside the city by a man with a heavy club. "Hello! old man," said the assailant, "I want your money. Rather than precipitate an unpleas ant fracas with the determined-look ing individual who wanted his "collateral," Welsh gave him a dollar and was allowed to proceed. It was very dark and Welsh could not see his unexpected visitor and hence is unable to give the police any accurate description. It is not probable that man will be apprehended .- Tilbury Times.

'I hat Makes Living a Pleasure. If you are sick and out of sorts If you are sick and out of sorts in June, it is in your power to make yourself healthy, strong and happy.

There is not the slightest reason why you should go through the hot summer weather feeling sickly, miserable, languid and melancholic. To be well and strong, means happiness and true joy, and this is the season when you should be bright, hearty and cladsome. If you are sleepless, rheuome. If you are sleepless, rheumatic, neuralgic, dyspeptic, or have the shadow of disease hovering over you; if you are not as bright, energetic and strong as you were some weeks ago, the use of Paine's Celery Compound will tone up and fortify your whole system, cleanse the blood, correct digestion, sharpen the appe tite, and conduce to restful sleep Saturday morning.-Ridgetown Thousands once in a half-dead con dition, owe their present good health to the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

A Bank on Wheels.

NE of the most brilliant ideas of modern times has just occurred to the local authorities which administer the public moneys of the town of Mezieres, in the Ardennes. The new scheme consists in an "automobile savings bank." The term requires some explanation.

The inventors apply it to a new sort of motor car which they are having built. The vehicle is propelled by elec-tricity and contains four seats, one in front and apart from the others, for the driver. The three places behind are arranged round a revolving table in the middle of the car, one at each side and one at the rear of the vehicle. Writing desks are fitted over each of the three seats and devised in such a way that they can be either folded flat against the sides of the carriage inwardly or opened outwardly. The central table also contains desks, besides bookshelves and a small metallic strong-box. Such is the new automo-The use to which the authorities of Mezieres intend to put their invention is as follows: The car will travel round the country, making stoppages of an hour or so on prearranged days in the different localities of the department. The pas-sengers will be two clerks of the local treasury administration and a cashier. They will carry with them a complete collection of savings bank books, regis-ters and forms, and the third of the above-mentioned officials will be empowered to receive moneys. Your readers will have now divined the purpose of the financial authorities of Mezieres. It seems that these gentlemen, assembled in council lately, came to the conclusion that something should be done to encourage thrift among the peasantry of the Ardennes. On the other hand, it was recognized that the saving propensity was already very marked among the country folk. What was needed was that the administration should meet their wants halfway. The peasants put by their earnings thriftily enough, but frequently fail to invest them in savings banks because, especially in the busy summer months, they have little time for journeying to the few principal towns where the offices are situated. So the authorities determined upon sending the savings bank to the country folk instead of waiting any longer for the latter to find time to come to the office.

The description of the vehicle which the authorities have had built, according to their own designs, requires no further explanation except to say that the movable desks are intended for use by the public, hence the arrangement by which they can be opened outward over the road. It is reported that the scheme meets with the unqualified approval of the savings bank clerks, whose days hitherto throughout the fine season have been spent in musty offices. But, contrary to what might have been expected, the public does not look upon the innovation with unalloyed delight. Some suspicious persons have spread a rumor that the adminis-trative motor car will not always convey savings bank clerks, but will occasionally bring-more often, perhaps, than would be desirable—that unwelcome visitor, the tax collector.

The Phraseology of Sport.

HE London "Outlook," in a recent number, while conceding that every sport and pastime should, naturally, have as especial phraseology, deplored the fact that this phraseology is becoming mere jargon. In its "palmy days" the P.R. could boast a language of its own; and one regrets to notice that the picturesque reporter is now doing the same disservice to cricket. When an eleven makes a bad start it is suffering from "rot and rout." One batsman is "breezy," another plays with "graceful assurance," a third is "cheaply dismissed." A score that progresses unevenly is "streaky," and very favorite formula runs that Soand-So "played excellent cricket." This might reasonably be expected on a cricket field, where Bridge or Pingpong would be somewhat out of place. After all, however, it is the billiard reorter who most savagely dislocates the vertebrae of the King's English. Not long ago one of the brotherhood varied the monotony of life by describing the red ball as a "pinky round."

After all, the most glaring examples idiotic phraseology in the English papers are exceedingly tame beside those of our own, says the "Bookman." For instance, let us take the American equivalent for the English game of cricket. The knowing reporter writing description of a game of baseball never makes the mistake of calling the ball "the ball." To him, of course, it is the "sphere," the "pellet," the "pea" or the "leather." A batsman never makes his base on balls; "he strolls" or he gets "a free pass to the first cor-He does not make a base hit, but "he singles" or he "slams the pea to the center garden." He does not strike out, but "he fans" or "he pounds the air." The pricher does not pitch; he does "slab duty" or he "bends them" or he "passes them up." might continue in this strain indefin-

To refer to a baseball team repre senting a certain city by its proper name would be to betray a woeful lack of knowledge and experience. A few years ago, after the veteran ballplayer Anson relinquished his leadership of the Chicago team, that team was, for a short time at the beginning of the season, without any nickname whatcountry were in a state of chaos. The Chicago newspapers opened their col-umns to suggestions for a suitable sobriquet, and matters generally were unsettled and unsatisfactory until the significance of the desertion of Anson dawned upon one ingenious scribe, and the Chicagos immediately became "the Orphans." During the first two years of its career in the National League the New York team was known as the "Maroons." In 1885 this title was dropped for that of "the Giants," a dropped for that of "the Giants," a term which at a period when the team was unpopular was modified to "the Foints." The Bostons are, of course, "the Beaneaters;" the Washingtons, "the Senators;" the Baltimores, "the Orioles," or "the Birds;" the Brooklyns are "the Trolley Dodgers."

The poet's exclumation: "O Life! I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves are among the most unfortu-nate. They do not live, but exist; for to live implies more than to be. To to live implies more than to be. To five is to be well and strong-to arise. feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them—to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessings, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. ### BOLD "HOLD UP"

Walter Welsh, of Windsor, an exlilburyite, was one of the principal actors in what might have been a highway tragedy last Monday morning. Driving into Windsor before daylight, and when just near the city, he was accosted by a desperate looking individual with, "Helloa old man I wan to speak to you. I want your money." To prevent any close acquaintanceship with the stranger, Walter gave him a dollar and they both proceeded on their ways. Owing to the darkness, it was impossible for Walter to give a clear description of his assailant, hence he is not likely to be located by the police.-Tilbury News.

QUEEN'S STATUE

Toronto, June 14.-The first sod for the foundation of the Queen Victoria statue was turned at 10 o'clock yesterday by the Hon. Richard Harcourt, acting Premier, in the presence of a somewhat small audience. The site selected for the statue is at the east front of the parliamen't buildings near the encircling sidewalk, and here at the hour appointed, 9.30 a, m., a large number of interested citizens had assembled. Mr. Harcourt, was however, late in arriving, having been delayed at the Union station, where he had gone to bid good-bye to Premier Ross, who was leaving for England, and as the moments slipped by the spectators scattered, and comparatively few witnessed the simple cere-mony. The acting Premier took the spade in hand like a master, drove into the earth, and deftly raised and turned the sod and thus commenced the work of preparing the spot on which is to stand the statue of the late Queen. There were no speeches The statue, which is now on the way across the Atlantic, it is expected, will be in position in about six weeks.

FAMINE IN SIBERIA

St. Petersburg, June 13.-The famire n Siberia is spreading with increasing rapidity. Reports from Irkutsk show that an enormous number of faminestricken people are flocking to that city. They are camped in the open, without shelter of any kind, are clad n rags, and are dependent entirely on private charity, which is quite indaequate to cope with the distress.

The latest crop reports from western, northern and central Russia show the conditions in those parts of the empire to be flourishing. Reports from Orel, Kieff, Kazan and the provinces in the northwest are satisfactory. On hand, the conditions are very bad in the transcaspian territories, owing to drought, and locusts, which will necessitate Government relief and re-sowing to the amount of $250,000. Cattle plague also prevails in the stricken districts.

It is a good many years since the good wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills was first recorded in the col omns of the Sun, but during that period the sterling merit of the mediine has increased its reputation and every day adds to the number of those who have found health through the use of these famous pills. Many Toronto, Ont. in this town have freely spoken of the benefit they have derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and to these another is added in the person of Miss Victoria Widdis. To a reporter of the Sun, who had heard of her cure, Miss Widdis said: "Several years ago I became very much run down. I felt tired all the time, my blood was watery and I was in what the physicians called an anae mic condition. I was always wears and worn out, not able to do any thing and yet not sick enough to be in bed. My heart bothered me with its constant palpitation, brought about by my extreme weakness. My appetite failed me and I was gradually growing worse. I had heard and read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to give them a trial. EASY FOR CHATHAM. The lacrosse game yesterday after-noon between Cnatham and Rodney re-sulted in an easy victory for the home

Both teams made a pretty appearance on the field, Rodney with its purple and white and Chatham with its green and white. The game was a slow one and minus excitement from startite finish. Chatham's six or seven goals were scored by Wilson, Jahnke and Angus, Jahnke having three to his credit, Angus two, and Wilson the balance. Rodney could not score as the defence was almost per-fect. The Rodney boys lack in shooting and combination, but this is their first season, and they made a good showing. Of course they could not expect to win the trophy, but there are other seasons coming, and, if they continue, they will no doubt have good chance for first place. The line-ups were as follows-

A Thrilling Story of Love and Adventure.

CHAPTER I.

It was many years ago-before this era of steam, telegraph and electrical and mechanical development in fact, just previous to that very queer war of 1812-that in a quaint old Dutchbuilt village of southern New York, lying not far from Hudson's noble river, there was living one Jacobus Bruyn, a substantial farmer, of the purest Dutch

On a beautiful sunny fall afternoon farmer Bruyn was sitting on the front. porch of his fine old Dutch farm-house, lolling at ease in his great chair, and smoking his long clay pipe with an expression of perfect contentment resting in his stolid features. He could well afford to take his ease. His broad acres of fat valley land had borne unusually abundant harvests, and his capacious farm buildings were filled to overflowing. As he sat and allowed the wreaths of blue smoke to curl up about his swarthy, honest face, he was listening with satisfaction to the beating of the flails of his threshers in the great red barn not many rods distant.

The house of farmer Bruyn was built on the substantial, comfortable style of the well-to-do Dutch burghers of the colonial period of New York history. It was a large stone building, whose heavy walls had been laid by those who evidently intended them to last for generations. The great roof mounted up to a high peak, and sloped nearly to the ground in the rear. The numerous windows, with their many little green panes of glass, hinted of light and cheerfulness within. Everything about the place was neat and orderly. Along the garden fence, at the end of the low kith n was a bench, on which a row of shin ing milk-pans were sunning themselves. In the rear a tall, sloping churning ma-chine hinted at one of the domestic occupations of the place. The yard was not particularly spacious, but showed the supervision of some one with a love for order and beauty in clumps of for order and beauty in clumps of shrubbery and beds of late blooming flowers. It was evident who was the presiding spirit of this horticultural display, for a young maiden was wandering among the flower beds, dallying with the plants in a patronizing way that declared more plainly than words the deep interest of affection and guardianship. This was Rosa, farmer Brnyn's only daughter, whose age, it was apparent from her looks, could not be far from eighteen. Moving gracefully about under the soft light of the clear autumn sky, her plain, neat house-dress contrasting with the brilliant verdure about her, the young girl presented a charming object to the eye—and so thought farmer Bruyn, as he watched her from his seat on the porch. Her figure was plumb and comely, although perhaps a trifle under size, and perfect health was indicated in the full, graceful curves of her form, the rosy bloom upon her cheeks and the liquid clearness of her soft grey eyes. A wealth of rich brown hair hui; about her shoulders in natural rin ets, unconfined and untied, free to the kisses of the sun and the toyings of the gentle zephyrs. No fairy creature was Rosa Bruyn, but a substantial bodily presence, who might have sat for the Madonna of some old Flemish paint-

ly to succumb to any trial or duty of The house of farmer Bruyn sat some distance back from the road. Several tall poplar trees threw their shade tall poplar trees threw their shade-along the roadway in front, and, at the upper edge of the yard, some clumps of shrubbery acted as a partial screen to a lane that led to the outbuildings in the rear of the house. The road in front wound down a gradual hill and down the hill the tall form of a young man could be seen drawing near. Rosa's man could be seen drawing near. Rosa's wandering gaze had detected his approach, and, with a sudden flush, she drew slowly away from her position among the flower beds, and proceeded, as if inadvertently, up to the lane fence among the shrubbery. Her movements were evidently observed by the young man for he entered the lane and draw. man, for he entered the lane, and, drawing near, placed his hand on the fence, gave a light spring, and bounded over. In a moment he had taken the blushing maiden in his arms, and pressed a kiss upon her brow with all the ardor of an accepted lover. As they stood thus in the shade of the bushes, no handsomer youthful couple could have delighted the eyes of an artist who wished to sketch some some of rural love-making. The young man was of a form and style of manly beauty to contrast well with the plump, rosy girl. He was tall, and his form was lithe and graceful. His face was frank, open and handsome, and the features were chiseled in outlines of almost Grecian beauty. Ringlets of fair, flaxen hair escaped from beneath his cap, and curled over a broad, white brow. Clear, mirthful blue eyes lit up a countenance in which the expression of geniality was offset by a certain air. of over-confidence that almost indicated recklessness. "And how's my little sweetheart?" he asked, releasing her form from his arms, and gazing upon her with undisguised admiration.

"I am well, Claude," she replied. "Little need there is to ask. And you appear well, too. But how is your aunt to-day?" "Aunt? oh, she is growing worse," he replied. "The doctor told me since dinner that she is falling slowly but surely, and cannot possibly survive long. Indeed, it looks as if I were soon to be free." "Free!-why, Claude, what can you mean? One might suppose that you rejoiced that your aunt is worse-perhaps upon the brink of the grave." A peculiar shadow passed over the young man's face.

"Do you think so kindly of me, Rosa?" he asked. "Or—but, no; ou read my feelings, and you misinterpret them. Suppose aunt should die—can I help it? I shall sorrow for her as sin-cerely as anybody; but I must own that there is a sense of freedom in the thought of my being my own master and coming into my fortune. What is the use of denying or concealing it? I do not wish her dead; but I cannot deny that the grief I should feel is tempered by the thought of the scope that will be opened to my hopes and ambition. There, there, httle one-don't look so grave. Remember, I have not been brought up to be sensitive. Aunt has not wasted any tenderness upon me, although I know she loves me

"But, Claude, think how it would grieve her to the soul to dream for a moment that you could count up the gain her death would be to you." "But she will not dream it, little monitress. No act or word of mine shall add a pang to her dying hours. I. shall do all and be all that duty and affection require. But can I help my natural feelings? I am not an angel in human guise, like yourself, Rosa. I profess only one virtue—a desire to be honest, and not to hide my real feelings for mere appearance's sake. It is not in my nature to play the hypocrite. I shall feel very badly if aunt dies. She has always been kind to me-in her way- and I truly believe has loved me her whole heart But it is only just to remember that her way has always been a strange one, and that her guardianship has deprived me of the rights and privileges in a large measure to which I was born. A strange, gloomy, eccentric woman, fixed in her ideas and immovable in her resolves, no one can tell the tyranny her government has exercised over me. And, by a strange fate, I have no escape from tyranny so long as she lives except at the peril of my fortune. Look at it! with all her wealth, her farms, her boats, her ferries, her mills (there is an immense fortune stowed up somewhere, and I the prospective heir), what pleasure or privilege has been mine in life that the veriest country lad in the region could not enjoy? Aunt's love of hoarding has run away with her judgment till her household has been kept as if we were predestined victims of poverty. Rolff House has been abandoned to decay. As for me, the eccentric whim of my father has made me more subject to her than the veriest servant—dictated to in my education, curbed in every natural wish and ambition, and left to dream of freedor and happiness only as possible through her death. My name—the name Rolff — has become a very by-word fhrough the country. Half the coun-try folk believe Rolff House to be haunted, and it is not two years ago that I thrashed a burly lout who taunted me with my aunt being a witch. If aunt dies, I come into absolute proprie-torship of all the Roiff estates and wealth-and not till then. Ah. Rosa, can I help contrasting my present po-sition with what it will be then? Is it in human nature not to desire to throw off the burden that has weighed upon my hopes and aspirations for so many

"I will not try to answer your ques-tions, Claude," replied the young girl, with a pained expression of coun-tenance. "I know that it is wrong, years? very wrong, for you to talk and think as you do. If I did not believe you to be truer at heart than you represent be truer at heart than you represent yourself to be, I should almost lose my faith in you. As for your aunt, al-though she is peculiar in many things, I know that she loves you too much to have curbed you needlessly or oruelly, Perhaps your fancy has painted you treatment in exaggerated colors. Your ambition is intense; you are proud and not a little willful; and it may be you are not the proper judge of all that is good and necessary for you. I fear, if your wishes are now realized, and you are given the freedom and opportunity you seem so to desire, you will only demonstrate the wisdom and prudence of your aunt's treatment of you." An expression of gloom passed over the young man's countenance.

"You judge me severely, Rosa," he said; "but I do not care for that. I do not plead the propriety of my feelings, but only that I cannot help them. Yet why should I not gratify my ambition? I am the son of a wealthy man, and in the line and right should be undisputed. justice and right should be undisputed master of my father's estate. I do not long for vulgar display and pleasure. No. no; my desire is to travel; to store my mind with observation; to develop my taste; and, above all, to give myself opportunity for the study of the art that is my ambition and delight. You forget that'I inherit a right to art. But has aunt ever encouraged me in my ambition? No; she has repressed it in every way. She would make of me nothing but an overseer of laborers, and a hoarder of money. My soul loathes the life she would have me lead. Oh, Rosa, you cannot know how I long to be away, spending my days among the great galleries of Utrecht, of Mu-nich, of Dresden, of Venice and Rome, drawing inspiration and knowledge from the works of the mighty masters of art. How can I help the spirit that is within me? At the mere thought of being able to fulfill my dreams, my soul is filled with an ecstacy that seems to banish far from my sight every other feeling and consideration." "And to feed that ambition, you would banish me, too, from your thoughts, Claude, and leave me for your art?" "Why-yes, Rosa; to be sure-that for a little time. It would not long; we are both young, and do not contemplate speedy marriage; so there seems no reason why I should not deote my time to improving myself, so that I may become more worthy of your love. I can't stay here, in this dismal little village, to rust and fret myself to death. I must cultivate my talents. I desire to become a great painter. As soon as I am in a position to carry out my plans, I will tell you all my dreams, and I am sure you sympathize with me, and take delight in my purpose to achieve talent and fame. It will not be so long that I will be separated from you; and we are young, Rosa, and can bear up under separation, and wait patiently for the happiness that will be ours when I return with some part of my ambitio achieved to claim you as my bride." The eyes of Rosa Bruyn lit up for moment, but she dropped them quickly to the ground, and was silent. At last she spoke quietly: "I hope your aunt will get weil soon, Claude.

The young man bit his lip and turned his face impatiently away. But his anger was only momentary. Turning his gaze back to the fair, grave oung face before him, an expressio deep tenderness took possession of his handsome countenance.

"You do well to reprove me, Rosa," he said. "Yes, I, too, hope aunt will get well, and live many years. Then all my fine plans will be scattered to the winds, and I shall be sure of noth-Ing-not even of you."

Chatham Branch of the International

Motto-Good cheer. Have you had a kindness shown? Pass it on. 'Twas not given for you alone-Pass it on. Let it travel down the years, Let it wipe another's tears, Till in heaven the deed appears—

Our Juniors have been busy workers during the last two or three weeks. They find so many opportuniies and do so many little things in the name of Sunshine that it is hard to remember all their reports. However, two of them told how much they enjoyed carrying pieces for a quilt and some other material to the old ladies at the Home. By the way, this is something the members of the older branch might take note of. There are several at the Home who employ their time in doing such work as quilting. One makes braided mats, and another bead work and so on. They would alw is find a use for nything our mer. rs might take. Those who have one time to spare might make a practice of going down to the Thursday services at the Home. These services, with their music and short addresses by the city clergynen, are much enjoyed by the innutes, and they would no doubt take an interest in Sunshine as well.

We do not talk about Sunshine enough, that is we do not stop to ex-plain. We are surprised when people say, "Well, what is Sunshine?" but it takes a little time maybe to explain it, and so we let the opportunity pass. Tell these enquirers that Sunshine is open to anybody who has the desire to make others happy. It is not necessary to attend meetings and pay a small fee as the original club is loing, unless they want to. As soon as their interest in the work is known, and the desire to work is expressed, their names are enrolled. When there is work to be done, they will possibly be called upon to help But it is so much nicer to watch for our own opportunities. Most of us will not have to think very long before we remember some home where flowers, toys, books, even a pleasant visit from a Sunshiner, would be welcome. If our list of friends does not contain such, we should make it our business to find some. In the meantime, there are still the hospitals to take all the Sunshine you can give.

At a meeting held Wednesday it was decided to give a lawn social one week from next Monday night. Furher arrangements will be made the next meeting to be held Monday next. The President would be glad to see all members present, and all who are interested.

It was also decided to use some of the cash on hand to beautify the Sunshine Room in the General Hospital. In the summer is a good time to do this, when there are not so many more pressing demands on our small fund,

Old revenues in blocks are getting so scarce that not many new collectors of such stamps can even get started. It is high time for revenue collectors to get the 1898 revenues in blocks and strips. A collection of these will always be good property. The scarce confederate locals of Baton Rouge were issued in July, 1861, and remained in use until De-1861, and remained in use until December of the same year, when the general issue was received. Upon the capture of Baton Rouge by the union army all the stamps on hand were destroyed by the postmaster who had issued them.

Two of the principal qualities necessary to a perfect stamp collection are beauty and order. If a collector had but 100 of beautiful stamps and had them arranged in perfect order they would afford much more pleasure and instruction for those to whom the album was shown than if a thousand varieties were stuck on the pages in "any old way."

CORONATION CONTINGENT

The First of a Series of Letters From Capt. E. W. B. Morrison

Camp Levis, June 2 .- (Special.)-The Canadian coronation contingent is camped in a pretty valley flanked by wooded hills, about three miles outheast of Point Levis. To northeast the valley opens on to the St. Lawrence, and there is a magnificent view of the mighty river where its waters divide around the Island of Orleans. On the distant high land of the further shore a great white gash in the face of the cliff shows where the Falls of Montgomery tumble in a smother of foam to the hurrying current below. Occasionally the hoarse bellow of an ocean liner draws attention to a long dark, redfunnelled craft plodding steadily up against the current, with a trail of wake and black smoke behind her. Quebec and its citadel are hidden from view by the grove on that side of this pleasant valley, but the sound of its many church bells muted and mingled by the distance add melody to the glories of the sun set, and at noon and "lights out" the boom of the gun from the ramparts of the old fort reverberates with a housand little echoes through the

To-day at moon the gun sounded a usual and everyone looked at his watch to check the time, for we are almost as isolated from the world in this out-of-the-way spot as though we were camped in some "poort" in the South African hills. After a minute's pause a second gun boomed from the citadel. Faces were turned about expectantly. Boom! Another gun, and the men who had just turned in from morning drill came swarming out of their tents. Boom! again. What could it be! Boom-m-m!

Then somebody yelled:
"Peace is proclaimed!"
And as the truth suddenly dawned on them-for we hardly ever see a newspaper up here-a burst of cheering ran round the camp from corps corps. The officers strolled over to the mess tent and drank to the peace that is, and, under their breath,

The last few years has been full of wonderful changes for Canada and dramatic coincidences in connection with the war just ended. Thirty-one months ago to-day many of those now in camp here heard the guns from old Quebec citadel the last time. The first contingent of troops furnished the empire by Canada was on board the Sardinian pulling out into the stream while cheering thousands lined the heights, flags fluttered everywhere and the grim old fortress was wreathed in smoke as with thunderous shocks the big guns spouted flame through the cloud of fleecy vapor. The only fear of the lads on board was that the war would be over before they reached Cape Town. And that particular Monday was lack of it will add interest to their apthirty-one months ago, and the war pearance. Lieut-Col. Pellatt, commandonly over to-day. Not a few of hose who watched them go envious eyes and keen disappointment in their hearts as they thought hey saw their "chance" slipping away from them, have since fought or even two years on the veldt, and are now here again, at old Quebec, inder canvas, getting ready to go to the coronation of Edward VII., and now they hear the guns celebrating the peace they expected then in a month! You remember how the very next morning, after the Sardinailed, came the news of the retreat from Dundee, the disaster at Nicholson's Nek, and Ladysmith cut off; followed by Magersfontein, Stormberg, the Tugela—and then the or less damp tents, surrounded by all our glad clothes, civilian and military, with which we were to cut such a shine in London, fearful less the gloss will all be washed off them be-fore we get out of Canada. The most curious part of it is that not a quarter of a mile away are the Engineers' barracks, a large collection of neatly painted wooden buildings, capable of holding 800 men. These barracks are heated with stoves, have a good parade ground, flagstaff, guns for firing at reveille, and "lights out," large storehouses for issuing cloth-ing, a military tailor shop for fitting it, a hospital building and all the conveniences that go to make a model rendezvous for such a force as the And here we are living out in tents, wading about in the mud and suf-fering all the discomforts of troops going on campaign. But worst of all is the risk of spoiling all our good clothes, which all will admit would be a most disappointing and undesirable thing in connection with a purely show trip such as this is. If we had even come out prepared to rough it, with rubber boots and a general rough weather camping out-fit, such as the troops take to camps

Luckily the weather is not both cold nd wet, as it was at the beginning of the camp, but we have had rain every day, alternating yesterday, with hot sun, and, as mentioned before, to-night there is a teeming downpour. The un-fortunate state of the weather has interfered very much with the drills, of which we have four daily, but good progress is being made. The contingent is composed of a fine lot of men, about half of whom are South African or Northwest veterans. All have arrived except the detachment of Northwest mounted police who are expected to-morrow. One man of the Strathconas came from British Columbia, He was detained by a landslide in the Rockies, but got a horse, rode forty miles, swam a river and caught the train on the other side of the obstruction. The infantry, rifles, and artillery are tolerably uniform in appearance but the mounted infantry and cavalry present a bewildering variety of costumes on parade. There are 200 of them, including the dragoons, hussars, khaki mounted infantry, redcoated mounted infantry, mounted police, Strathconas, and a few samples of rangers and other fancy corps. Lieut. Col. Turner, V. C., who is in charge of the mounted troops, is at his wits' end trying to arrange them into some sort of £20. On the other hand, some of uniformity, but to many the very of the kindest and best men have fawith the task of organization which is much more difficult than would be generally supposed. He is assisted by Lieut-Col. Thompson and Capt. Panet D.S.O. and Capt Benyon as adjutants. There is not doubt that when the contingent complete and the artillery and cavalry mounted as they will be in London, the force will present splendid appearance and do credit to

It was evidently a time for action and despera-ation filled my breast as I thought of all my glad coronation duds exposed to a respectable imitation of Noah's deluge. If anybody thinks it is joyous paddling around in bare feet and pajamas and a gale cold enough to cut the heart out of you, malleting tent pegs and double reefing guy ropes, our views on the gaieties of life differ. If we were out on campaign tural, but to start out on a giddy holiday show and go up against this sort of thing is calculated to afflict you with almost a sense of personal jury. To-day the camp is sodden, cold, and more or less miserable. However, as the text book says: "The soldier's life is one of extreme hardship, unremitting toil and——" I forget the rest of the quotation; but I could say a whole lot of other things that I do remember.

DIVINE FACE OF JESUS

CHARACTER AND THE FACE

Some of Christ's Mental and Spiritual Characteristics Recounted-A Sympathetic Face-Forgiveness in His Features-Record of the Scars-Illumined by Leve-Divine Love Not Blind.

Entered According to Act of Parliament of Can-ada, in the year 1902, by William Bally, of To-ronto, at the Dep't of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Chicago, June 8 .- A pen picture of the lineaments of the divine face of Christ is presented by Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage in this discourse on the text, II Corinthians iv. 6. "The face of Jesus Christ." Character is stamped upon the human face. By that I do not mean a good man necessarily has a beautiful face and a bad man a homely face. Some of the most sinful men have the handsomest faces. The morally corrupt and evil minded Edward IV. of England had a face of such singular beauty that it became the idol of When the king asked a rich lady for £10 to help carry on the against France, she replied, "For the comely face thou shalt have twenty." When the king kissed her with his smiling lips, the rich old lady made the gift £40 instead lack of it will add interest to their appearance. Lieut-Col. Pellatt, commanding the contingent, is hard at work

But when I state that character can be read in the face I man is a good man there is generally something in the smile of his lip, the glance of his eye, the wrinkles of cheek, the set of his jaw, which suggests that he is a good man. If an is bad, there are telltale signs n the face which prove that he is a

By long and bitter experience you have learned that the revealing power of the face is true. You have also learned that your wife can read the character in the human face a great deal better than her husband. When inger man, you used to bring your friends home to spend the even-After those friends had gone you would turn and say, "My dear, now did you like Mr. So-and-so?" Your wife would answer: "I do not like him at all. He is not a man to he trusted. You had better beware and not get mixed up in any business dealings with that man. I do not like his face." Or your wife would answer: "I like that man. wish you would invite him up again to the house. I like his eye and the curve of his lip. I like his face." almost every case, as you found out later, your wife's estimate of your friends' characters was right. She judged them by the face.

Now Paul declares that the glory of God was revealed to men in face of Jesus Christ. As we have no authentic picture of Jesus I would try to paint a word picture of the divine face by recounting some of Christ's mental and spiritual char-

This was the method by which we obtained a picture of my brother af-ter he was dead. For years before his demise he had not been to, a photographer. So after the funeral we took to an artist all the pictures which my brother had taken in his boyhood. We also took a lock of his hair. We told the artist about my brother's happy nature, told how the jokes which he perpetrated would be revealed in his smile and laughing We talked about his nature, so that the artist might paint that nature in the young man's face. Emperor William I. of Germany wanted an artist to paint the face of his mother, Princess Louise, as she was in the prime of her physical beauty. He took all the different pictures of the dead empress to the artist's studio. There the royal son told that artist the characteristics of his mother. From his verbal por-traiture that artist painted the famous ideal picture of Princess Louise May God help me to-day to paint aright the face of Jesus Christ! Jesus must have had an intelligent face. Phrenologists teach that the seat of the brain is under the dome of the skull. They assert that certain characteristics of the brain can be read by the contour of the skull, as a blind man with his fingers reads by the raised letters of the Braille alphabet. But the intelligence of the brain can be traced in the face, as well as upon the top of the head, in the formation of the mouth as well as in the phrenological charts map-ped off upon the back of the skull. The thin lip of the Caucasian is en-tirely different from the thick lip of overhanging brows of the university scholar are totally different from the twinkling eyes and narrow frontal bones of the Australian aborigines. Some men's faces are so expressive that when they turn their keen eyes upon you they seem to bore a hole right into the heart of your very being. If you try to deceive them, the look upon their faces reveals the fact that they know you are not telling the touth ing the truth.

Jesus Christ's face was also a sym pathetic and forgiving face. How many men we have seen whose faces represented intelligent power, but without mercy-faces such as you could easily imagine a Robespierre might have had or a Frankenstein or any of the great leaders of the in-quisition! Those were the faces of men like Napoleon, who, hearing a marshal of France after a bloody battle express regret over the awful slaughter of human life, replied: "Oh that is nothing. In order to make an omelet you must break a few eggs." Those were the faces of men Prince Nawab, who drove British prisoners into the Black Hole of Calcutta, a stifling room only eighteen feet square, and left them bere until the misery of all but twenty-three was ended by suffoca-tion. Those were the kind of faces that must have been possessed by men like Nana Sahib, the fiend of Cawnpur, and women like Catherine de' Medici, the evil spirit of St. Bartholomew's massacre, when 30,000 French Huguenots were slain in one day, and by Deliliah, the betrayer of a Samson, and Jezebel, the destroyer of a Naboth.

But all strong faces are not evil faces. Some of the strongest faces we have ever seen have been the sweetest and most magnanimous. These faces had a love attracting power for the beholders, like the face of old Dr. Plumer, one of the strongest men the American pulpit ever produced. Dr. Plumer's face was a sweet and tender and loving face, although one of the strongest of faces. One day, as he was walking across a Pittsburg park, a little child ran up to him and took his hand; then, looking up into that great good face -a face that never had any bitterness against any one, but only for-giveness—the child asked, "I say,

So we must not think of Christ's nister, are you God?"

face only as an intelligent face, a face of power, but also as a loving, sympathetic, forgiving face. We must think of him as having the same kind of a face your earthly father may have had. You remember when, in the past, you did what your father had forbidden, you came to his side and buried your face in his lap and cried, "Father, will you forgive me?" Then you remember how he took you up in his great, strong arms. What sweet look came into his loving face! How his lip trembled and his eyes filled with tears as he said: 'My boy, my dear little son, I was in hopes that you would come to me as you have done. My heart was almost breaking, my child, because you did wrong. But it was breaking the more because my little son did not come to his father and ask to be forgiven. And then you found that the tears which trickled down your cheek were not those which came from your eyes alone. Mingled with were the tears which flowed from your earthly parent's eyes. Yes, our Christ's face, although a strong face, was a sympathetic face. And my Christ's face must have been a forgiving face because it was such an intelligent face, He knows all that we have done and suffered He also well knows how hard some of us have struggled in our own strength to do right. He knows how we have grappled each of us with his own besetting sin, which we dare not tell to any human ear. knows-yes, he knows-how impossible it is for us to succeed in battling that sin in our own strength when we come, to Christ to for help to resist the evil present and to avert the evil future as well as to wipe out the evil past, oh, then, the strong face of Christ becomes tender, sympathetic, forgiving face. Our Saviour's eyes will fill with tears of joy. Our Saviour's lip will quiv-Our Saviour's look will be one of pardon and of unutterable love.

Christ's face is a scarred face. 'No, no," says some one; please do not tell me that Christ's face is a scarred face. I have always thought of Jesus' face as the most beautiful ever owned by man; I have always believed his face was as beautiful as the Christ face described .in the exquisite portraft carved upon an emerald by the order of Tiberius Cae 'His forehead was plain and very delicate; his face was without spot or wrinkle, beautified with a lovely red; his nose and mouth were so formed that nothing could be reprehended; his beard was thickish, in color like his hair, not very long, but forked; his look was innocent and mature; his eyes were clear and quick. He was a man for his singular beauty surpassing the children of But, my friends, that portrait of Christ's face which was carved upon the emerald by Caesar's orders has been proved by the archaeologists to have been a description taken from a spurious tablet. It was a forgery and was not written until 200 years after Christ's death. So, in order to find whether or no Christ's face was a scarred face, we must turn to the words of the Bible. Was his fore-head scarred? Oh, yes; the crucifiers plaited a crown of thorns upon his head. As the sharp thorns were driv-en into the white skin the blood must have flowed: the skin must have been lacerated. Read from Isaiah liif, 14, "His visage was so marred, more than any man, and his form more than the sons of men." Turn to the fourteenth chapter of Mark, "And some began to spit on him and cover his face and to buffet him and to say unto him, Prophesy, and the servants did strike him with the palms of their hands." After the agonies of the crucifixion could Christ's face be other than a scarred

And Christ's face is a scarred face because it is the face of one who realized the awful nature of sin our sins by the sacrifice of blood, yet he could not take away the punishment for sin. So he offered his own face to be lacerated. He offered his line his lips to become parched and bleeding. He offered his eyes to be-come glassy in death. Yet the scarred and disfigured face of Christ wil be more beautiful to the redeemed spirits in the heavenly land than if those divine features were without spot or blemish. The scars upon his face will appeal to us in the same way that the wrinkles upon our mother's face touched our hearts when she lay asleep in the casket. We looked at the wrinkles and said: "That wrinkle came when she took care of me while I was sick with diphtheria. This wrinkle came when my brother died. That other wrinkthe came when she was preparing my clothes for college. Yonder wrinkle came the night I was married and teft home." Therefore to us children hose wrinkles were beautiful because they told the story of her vicarious love and suffering. Yes, in heaven we want to see our mother's wrinkles, that came as the battle scars of life while fighting for her children In heaven we also want to see the were cut into his fair skin while sufering for our redemption The scarred face of Christ is an llumined face. Have you ever seen sad countenance light up with a mile? Have you ever heard a little child burst forth into a laugh in the midst of a fit of crying-laugh when a tear is yet glistening upon the wet cheek? Well, Christ's face, though in one sense a sad face, a scarred face, is yet an illumined face It has joy in the eye, joy on the lip, joy on the cheek, joy everywhere, when one of his loved ones has been saved by the sacrifice of his blood. There is more joy in that divine face over one sinner that repenteth than ninety and nine just persons that need no repentance.

scarred face of Jesus, which scarr

If Christ's had not been an illum-ined face the little children would not have loved to run to him. Children are attracted by a smile. They are afraid of tears. Yet everywhere, as Jesus' smiling face appears, we can hear the children calling to one another: "Come, come! Here is Jesus! Come, come!" If Jesus' was not an illumined face he could never have spoken such triumphant words as those which he spoke to him sick of the palsy, "Son, be of good cheer; thy sins are forgiven thee." He could never have spoken such words of commendation as those he spoke reference to the centurion, "Verily, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel." And, O my brother, if our sins are making the Saviour's face such a sad face and if our repentance will make Christ's face such an illumined face, should we not be willing to brighten up our Saviour's face since it has suffered so much.

But the sweetest thought to me of all is that Christ's face is a face that wants to be loved. Some portraits have an indescribable about them which proves that those faces crave affection. If the closed could speak, they would say 'I live for others in order that other ers might live for me. I love in order that I can be loved. I suffer in order that others can be made hap-And being happy, they can pour out their gratitude upon I only awoke to the fact a few years ago that Christ's face was a face that wanted to be loved. I used to think that I must love Christ be cause Christ could and would save me If I asked him. But now I have learned to love him because he loves me and wants me to love him. He loves me with a love that passes all understanding. But that love is incomplete unless I respond to it love as I am loved. Mr. Moody told a pathetic story how a short after his father's death his elder brother ran away from home. Then he described how his mother used to be continually watching for the return of the prodigal, how she would send the children every day down to the postoffice to find out if there was a letter from her absent boy. They would hear her praying at night for the return of her son, that he might Well, to-day give her his love. Christ's face is a face craving affection But, sad to relate, after all Christ has suffered and done for us, his face may be a condemning face. The vine love may be great enough to surpass all human understanding, yet the divine love is not blind. The spirit of God will not always strive with man. In Ezekiel we read, face will I also turn from them. the awful moment when Christ's face on account of our unrepented sins, shall become a condemning face! This is one characteristic of Christ which all unrepentant sinners and some ministers preaching in the sacred pulpits are trying not to see. But it Jesus is not to have a condemning face for the unrepentant sinner how can you account for the parable of the shepherd separating the sheep from the goats? There is going to come a day when Christ shall gather before the judgment seat of God al the nations of the earth. Crash crash ! crash ! will go every tomb stone. The mausoleums shall rock and heave as the Philippian jail trembled during the night of Paul' and Silas' incarceration. Every gate and slab door will fly open. The tall cemetery shafts shall tumble as did the walls of Jericho at the blast of the ram's horn. The bodies of th sailors sleeping by the coral reefs the emigrants who died when cross ing the prairie, the arctic explorers buried under the snow and ice, the missionaries who died up the Con-Congo-they shall all come up. dead which slept under the dome of a Taj Mahal and the poor unknown ratient who died in the county hos-pital and whose hody was buried in the potter's field shall come up. The bodies of the rich and the poor alike the black and the white, the Jew and the Gentile—they shall all come up. Then Christ shall separate this multitude which is gathered before him as a shepherd separates his sheep from the goats. Towards the sheep the Saviour will turn a riving face, but towards the goats he shall turn a condemning whin he says, "Depart from me, ursed, into everlasting fire."

If theist is not to have a con enning face to those who have not repented of their sins, how can you account for the scene in the parable of the ten virgins? As we read that parable we see the five foolish virgins who had not prepared for the Bridegroom's coming standing with-out and pounding upon the door of the banquet hall. We soon hear them crying: "Lord, Lord, open to us! But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you. I know you not."
Two men shall be working in the fields; the one shall be taken and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken and the other left. Two immortals shall be standing at the marriage altar; the one shall be taken and the other left. Oh, my friends, I beg and plead with you to look into the forgiving face of Christ while there is yet time! Do not let the Saviour's face ever become you a condemning face.

This lesson gives us the first attack on European idolatry by Soldiers of the Cross, lead by the (Spirit) Lord Jesus. His soldiers cannot conquer unless they are led by the Spirit, who directs them to Phillipy. The Jewish religion was known wherever they were scattered by its distinctions from idol worship. Scouting and reconcitering in Phillipy they find a company of Jewish women attending a service in the First Presbyterian prayer meeting. Why do women at- Church, in a body, to-morrow evertend such meetings more than mer, and are in the majority in the church? Is it because girls are taught submission, obedience and self-denal more than boys that therefore it is easier for them through life to yield to God and be led by ite Sairit than for we men? We have three samples of the work of God in converting sinners in ability as a scholar and speaker. portance is taken nowadays one may be sure that a good its nose. For two years or more Cap-tain Dreyfus has had offers for what he might ultimately choose to publish. The business of offering advances and royalties to authors is not usually attended with a great amount of personal danger. But there is an American woman, a journalist, living in Paris, who could tell a different tale, says the "Saturday Evening Post." Two summers ago, just as the great trial was drawing to its close, she was in London, and there met an enterprising "American" publisher. Conversation turned, as did all conversation that summer, in either England or France, upon Dreyfus, and the pub-lisher confided to the lady his desire to publish something veritably from the pen of Dreyfus. The lady, it happened, was on terms of some intimacy with the inner circle of Dreyfus' friends, and when she left England for Paris she was commissioned to do what she could to get something for the publisher, either from Captain or Madame Dreyfus.

Two days after she left London man approached the publisher with the positive assurance that he could arrange the whole affair within a fortnight. (In parenthesis it may be said that such men were not uncommon that summer.) The publisher, remembering the proverb concerning a bird in the hand, rushed to the nearest telegraph office and sent a message to the lady in Paris as follows:

"Suspend Dreyfu negotiations for the present. Will weite." The telegram was delivered, but almost simultaneously the lady was walted upon by a polite representative of the police department, with a de-mand for an explanation. What negotiations was she carrying on and with whom? She told her story and felt that it was received with the blandest incredulity. She promised to show the police the letter from London when it came, and reminded her visitor of her "American" citizenship. The official departed. Unfortunately, the press of business sent the publisher scurrying toward Scotland, and he, not realizing how important it was, neg-lected to write to the lady in Paris. She soon discovered that she was being "shadowed," and that her every movement was being watched by mys-terious people. At first she laughed, and merely sent a little note of en-quiry to London. No answer came, and the watching continued. Her nerves began to give way, and finally she went to the United States ambas-sador with the whole story. The shadowing ceased. It would be interesting

"Sit down, I've got something to had a relapse; I'm not feeling well toseum downstairs and I've seen the Italy. I don't know whether it is on I cannot see straight, or have not mental veracity, as you say a great Englishman named Carlyle called the an be given with absolute safety to sick and tired and utterly disgusted with the exposure of the naked human figure in Italy and France. In Italy you see these naked old Greeks and Romans everywhere-in the shops, museums, picture galleries. They are un-fit for anything but the bathtub. Do you suppose that I will let my two young daughters see these things? Not for all the riches of the great State of Ohio would I do it. I gave a groan whenever I saw young American girls going through those museums and galleries. I never saw Italian, French, German or English girls—only American girls-looking at Jupiter as the swan and Leda, for instance. "Now I am sitting here looking at that lovely Joconde, dressed nearly up to the neck, with her charming smile and interesting face. That's all I want to see of a woman, or a man-the face. Ralf Stanzio painted one picture of a voman, not a Madonna, dressed up to the neck; La Fornarina, she was a oakereenee the guide told me. He loved her; think of loving a woman who stood all day in front of a roaring furnace, baking bread, in hot summery Italy. He painted another one of her showing her-well, not dressed up to the neck. But my wife says I must not talk of such things. I have seen five thousand such naked ladies in Italy-of course I mean in pictures and statues-and I'm tired of them. I prefer looking at cow or horse pictures. It

"But isn't that Joconde picture a beauty! That's the way to paint men and women, dressed up to the neck. When I see naked pictures in a man's house, I think there's a coarse streak running through him. When I see them in a woman's house-it disgusts me. When I get back to Chicago I am going to send five thousand nightshirts to the Italian Government as a present, to cover the naked statues, and I am going to give them my pyjamas, too-that new-fangled scheme my wife makes me wear. She says they are fashionable. What's the use of being fashionable when you are in bed?— nobody sees you. My father slept in his jeans, and he lived till he was eighty, too.
