SALT AT EXETER.—The following was received from Exeter on Monday: "Salt was struck here at 1,125 feet—about 80 feet of solid rock. Drilling is still going on, and the drill is not through the rock yet. About 10 pounds of first-class salt was made from a little over half a pail of brine."

The last sentence is rather hard to believe. Ten pounds is just a little heavy.

The following in reference to singers has a very wide application. Singers who have great ambition and small voices are much to be pitied. They are like folks whose prospects in life have been more or less blighted. They are handicapped from the start. Still they are ignorant of the fact. Indeed most of them imagine themselves great.

They suffer from lunacy in a mild, but none the less dangerous form. No one ever saw a poor vocalist who was not conceited "and waiting for a chance."—[Ex.]

A horse belonging to Mr. Robert Reynolds, took fright at sight of a bicycle on Wednesday morning last, and dropped on the Square. Spectators assisted it to arise, and with the aid of a little "long oats," it started off at a rapid gait.

BEARS AROUND.—On Thursday last a had named John Scott, grandson of Mr. Dunlop, who lives on the Bayfield road about five miles from Goderich, went into the swamp to look for the owls, but was terror-stricken to find himself confronted by a large she bear. The animal was accompanied by a young cub, and got on its hind legs, and prepared to fight the intruder. The boy fled precipitately, and left the swamp to the bears. The animal was observed in the same place about six weeks ago.

BLACK CHAPTER MEETING.—The annual meeting of the Grand Black Chapter of B. A. Royal Black Knights of Ireland, was held in Orangeville on July 26-27. W. H. Murney was the only representative from Huron. Perth and Bruce, he returned last Friday. Among the Sir Knight officers for the ensuing year we find several from this County:—Associate Deputy Grand Master, W. H. Murney; Grand Lecturer, J. B. Edward; Grand Purveyor, G. Hawkins, Port Albert; Grand Committee W. Magill, Blyth; Henry Perkins, Gorrie.

OBIT.—We are called upon this week to record the death of John Henderson, for many years a resident of Goderich, at his home near Westfield. The deceased was born in Lanarkshire, Scotland, and emigrated to this county in 1837. He came to Goderich in 1859, and lived here for about 16 years working at his trade of carpenter. About seven years ago he moved on to a farm owned by him in West Wawanosh, which he had purchased as early as 1851, and resided there with Mr. W. A. Harrison, his only son. He was ailing for only two weeks, and died on Wednesday at the advanced age of 73 years. He was a member of the Methodist church, a sound Reformer, and a man who commanded respect.

KIDD'S IRON-JAWED MAN.—A few days ago Mr. P. Farr, managing cooper of the International Cooper Shops, Goderich, having wagered a certain sum upon the strength of his teeth, held up two hundred pounds of flour on an empty salt barrel made by himself for the occasion out of suitable material, for one minute, being allowed to rest in the hardwood staves where he took hold as though they had been gnawed by a sledge. He also shook five dollars in the faces of all present that he could throw a filled barrel of salt weighing three hundred pounds over his head with his teeth, but found no takers.—[Mitchell Advocate.]

We copy with pleasure the following reference to a former resident of Goderich, taken from the Emerson International: Archibald MacKay, formerly of Goderich, but lately with Bain & Blanchard, of Winnipeg, has leased rooms over Bird & Walton's hardware store and hung out his shingle for the practice of law. Mr. Mackay appears to be an active and resolute young man, of the right stamp to grow up with a place, and we hope will succeed in building up a lucrative practice. In connection with his law business a loan and insurance business will be carried on under the name of Mackay & Mackay, the other member of the firm being Mr. J. D. Mackay, lately of Morris.

OBITUARY.—Master Robert Elliott, who died on Sunday morning aged 16, was the nephew of Mrs. Samuel Bowden of town, and Mrs. Patrick Carrol of Colborne, and has been of a very delicate constitution since his birth is father the late Mr. John Elliott having died of consumption. The little fellow asked permission from his aunt to visit Clinton on the 12th July with some friends, and came home complaining of feeling unwell. Dr. McMicking was summoned but he gradually grew worse, and on Saturday lock jaw set in, and death ended his sufferings on Sunday at 6 a. m. Inflammation of the brain seems to have been the nature of the disease. Mrs. Bowden has the sympathy of the public in her bereavement, as she cared for him during life as a mother, and is severely tried by his loss.

THE IRON CIRCLETS.

The Quoting Fever Still Rising.

Mr. H. Martin, of Salford, beat a commercial traveler by 8 points in a game the other day. Mr. Martin can throw a pretty quoit.

QUOITING.—Last Saturday J. McNair, of Goderich, beat D. Cumming, of Colborne, at single game 21 to 1. Cumming pitched with strange quito.

On the afternoon of Saturday last J. Symington and D. Cumming beat J. McNair and R. McLean, in three games of 21 each, with a gain of 5 points, in Goderich.

CHALLENGE.—In reference to the challenge issued in Star and Signal by J. McNair and E. Martin, for a game of quito, to be played in Goderich, and return game to be played in Colborne, we J. Strachan and D. Cumming, accept the same, and will give those gentlemen an opportunity of trying their skill in Goderich on Wednesday first at 2 p. m.

The quoting ground near Martin's stables on Newgate street, is occupied every evening, and some fine shots are frequently made by such enthusiastic pitchers as E. Martin, A. McNair, R. McLean, A. Colborne, Grierson and a half dozen others. The challenge of the Colborne pair will probably lead additional zest to the practice between now and Wednesday.

A GIFT OF SILVER.

A Well Deserved Testimonial to an Energetic Church Worker.

When it became known that Mr. E. F. Moore, who for the past seventeen years has been identified with the Methodist church in Goderich as a zealous officer and faithful member, was about to remove to Chicago, a number of the members of the congregation decided to get up a testimonial to present to him as a mark of their esteem for his Christian qualities, and his devoted work in their midst. On Friday evening, at the Young People's meeting, the presentation took place, after Mr. Moore had uttered a few parting words. When the friends stepped to the front and presented the handsome silver ice-pitcher and goblets valued at over $40, and Mr. W. R. Robertson read the address, the recipient, who was completely surprised, could not master a sentence in reply. His silence, and the emotion which prevented speech, told more eloquently than words could, how he had been touched by the expression of affection shown him by his old associates. The following is the address:

To E. F. Moore, Esq.

DEAR SIR:—We, the Sabbath School, members and adherents of the Methodist Church of Canada, Goderich, Ont., desire to manifest our appreciation of your valuable services to us as a Sabbath School and Church, while Sabbath School Superintendent, Class Leader and Steward.

We have noticed in you that executive ability, firmness of purpose, aptness of illustration and untiring zeal, combined with that Christian urbanity which are essential to an officer of worth in any Christian enterprise, and we feel that in your removal we are losing not only a worthy citizen and church official, but a warm friend and efficient laborer in the Vineyard of the Master.

As a small token of our appreciation of your lengthened and successful labors,

CHESHIRE SALT MINES.

The System of Working Them.

The present state of the salt mines in Cheshire, owing to the signs and sinkings constantly going on, and which promises ultimately to swallow up a vast area of ground now covered with houses and buildings, gives to the district a more than ordinary interest. Little more than a year ago, near Northwich, there was a subsidence of a most extraordinary character, so that the River Weaver, and what is known as the Top Brook, were lowered fully a foot over 160 acres in about four hours, whilst there was an enormous sinking like a vast shaft, into which it was computed that not less than 600,000 tons of water rushed. The shaft or hole, formed by the subsidence was fully 200 feet in diameter, and sloped gradually down, and in addition to the water it absorbed about 40,000 tons of earth. Not so long since a church, a chapel, and some other buildings were condemned as unsafe, and as the brine and salt are drawn away the subsidence will go on increasing in a corresponding ratio. The prospects of the Cheshire salt mines are, therefore, by no means cheering for the mines at almost any time are liable to be inundated with water, and on the occasion to which we have referred to the water rushing into an old mine, forced the separating barrier, between it and one that was being worked; the men, however escaped, but the foreman, who afterwards went down the shaft to ascertain the amount of damage, found the water up to his breast when he got into one of the chambers at the bottom. In modern salt mines there are generally two shafts, from 12 to 16 yards apart, with a pumping shaft for clearing the surface water, which only goes down as far as the latter descends. The surface work is covered over as a protection from rain and snow, and the shafts are tubed below the point where the surface water is likely to penetrate. The cast-iron tubing is similar to that used for coal mines, but instead of being cast in segments it is now cast in complete cylinders. The beds of salt varies from 15 to 18ft. in Cheshire, and the mode of working is by driving out in the upper part between 5 and 6ft high, and this is called the roofing, which is followed up by what is termed the benching, so that pillars of the rock salt are left where they are considered necessary. In driving the roof some holing and cutting is done with the pick; but this is not much, as powder is usually resorted to, and then the roof is made into shape with the pick. The benching varies from 9ft 3 in. to 12 ft 3 in., and is blown off by a succession of shots fired in a slanting direction from top to bottom. In one of the largest mines the number of men employed is about 90, and amongst that number about 1 cwt. of powder is used daily. In making shot holes the drills used are some 8ft in length, pointed at each end, and the diameter being larger in the middle no hammer is required. Whilst uncharging the shot the powdered salt made in drilling the hole is put next to the powder, and then coarser grained salt upon that; the charge is then fired by a straw filled with fine powder lighted from a candle. Unlike what is usually the case in coal and other mines, the men only retire a few yards whilst the shot goes off, for the salt does not go far away when it is brought down. Extensive pillars have to be left, and that on an extensive scale.

At the principal mine in Cheshire the pillars are in an oval form, some of them 640 yards long by 280 broad, extending over about 40 acres. The height of each pillar is about 5 yards, and of various breadths and lengths, and are set at various distances apart. The thickness of strata they have to support from the base to the surface is more than 100 yards. At another mine where the height of the working is about 6 yards, and where the rock salt roof is not quite firm the pillars are 10 yards square and 25 yards apart, but there are some 12 yards square and only 18 yards apart, so as to more perfectly render the roof safe. Iron tramways are used underground for the conveyance of the rock salt, but the rails are often fixed to pegs let into drill holes in the rock salt, so that in such cases sleepers are not used. The workings are, as a rule, free from carbonic acid and at only one place has fire-damp been met with, and that on only one or two occasions. The labor is by no means exhausting, and as the ventilation is always good and the air pure, to such an extent, indeed, is this the case butcher's meat, it is said, keeps quite good underground in the warmest weather for eight or nine weeks. The bottom parts of the shaft are slightly bell-mouthed, so as to allow of the bucket ascending without catching. The ventilation, notwithstanding the smallness of the shafts and the want of ventilating powers and partitions for sending the air round the workings, is usually good, excepting it may be for about two months in the hottest part of the summer, when the air occasionally becomes stagnant, and this may continue until the cold weather sets in about September and October. The winding is done by ordinary steam-engines, some of them being provided with indicators to show the position of the load in the shaft, and have good brakes, which when the steam is set up for winding rock salt are used for lowering and raising the miners by counterpoise. The hemp ropes used in the shafts are of iron which the salt causes to rust, and in some of the square timbered shafts a signal wire is placed with staples in one corner of the case part, so that the buckets which are round do not touch it, and when the shafts are circular but without metal tubing the wire is let into a groove cut in the marlstone and rock salt. But where the shafts are small and cased with metal cylinders, which have no such groove, then a signal wire is not used, as the buckets would catch it. It has, however, been found by experience that a signal wire may be dispensed with, seeing that the rock salt together with the metal tabbing are good conveyers of sound, so much so that the men when shouted to from the surface to the bottom, nearly 300 yards, can understand what is said. The deepest salt mine now being worked is stated to be the Dunore, in the north of Ireland, which is 295 yards from the surface, the thickness of the rock salt being 40 ft. The pillars are 10 by 12 yards at the top widening to 14 to 12 at the bottom. As to pressure, it has been found that at 110 yards from the surface with a thickness of 22 yards of rock salt left above the pillars, a width of 25 yards has been found to stand secure, and the proportions of 10 by 10 yards equal to 1,000 square yards for each pillar left in each area or 35 by 25 yards, equal to 1,225 square yards, being in the proportion of one pillar to every 12 1/2 excavated. In the case of crushing, it generally begins by cracks or breaks at the corners of the pillars, and then cracks come on in the roof; but in this state the rock salt generally adheres together, but the roof "creeps" nearer to the floor and the parts of the shafts which are in rock salt become smaller in diameter.

The temperature of the rock salt mines is very moderate, and must be pleasant at all times to work in, so that eight hours' labor daily cannot be considered a hard task. In Cheshire the temperature, at depths between 110 and 160 yards, varies from 48° to 55° Fahr. with the dry bulb thermometer, and between 44° and 53° with the wet bulb, the hydrometrical difference between the wet and dry, bulbs varying between 1° and 6° but variations have been found with both bulbs, depending upon the part of the mine in which the observation was taken, the number of miners, lights, shots, etc. As to the actual thickness of the rock salt, in some places in Cheshire it is said to be nearly 30 yards thick in the top bed and the same in the bottom one; but at Marston and Wincham it is about 30 yards, whilst further south the top bed decreases 3 yards in a quarter of a mile, and at the most southerly pits the top bed is only 16 yards in thickness. But the total thickness of all the beds and lumps is estimated at about 180 ft. At the present time work is going on much as usual; but no one can say how long this will be the case, for the subsidence going on not only threatens the immediate locality of the mines, but the town of Northwich is felt by the inhabitants both in the town and district, seeing that the locality is completely honeycombed by abandoned salt mines, whilst the subsidence has been such that houses and buildings and chimney stacks that once were connected with the salt works have disappeared, or merely show what were once their lofty summits.

The Muskoka election perplexity is not yet set at rest, although it has been before the Judge of this county for three days past for settlement. The recount has resulted in a tie between the candidates, with the reserved decision of the Judge upon certain written and disfigured ballots. The rejection of the written ballots will give Mr. Miller a majority of fifteen, but their acceptance, and the rejection of the disfigured ballots will elect Mr. O'Brien by a still larger majority. The election law very clearly points out, however, that the ballots must be printed.

Children's Week.

The Fresh-Air Society, Children's Week and other associations in cities for sending children into the country during some part of the summer, have been more busy this year than ever before.

Fatiguing stories are told of the surprise of some of these poor little creatures who had never been out of the crowded alleys and courts where they were born, at their first sight of the woods and farms.

"Oh, look!" one cried, "there's apples on trees!"

She had never seen them except in trays at provision shops.

Another child stared delightedly at the grasshoppers jumping through the hot meadows. "Are they rabbits?" she said.

Another followed the farmer as he went out for vegetables for dinner, and came back excited to her companions.

"He dug the potatoes out of the ground and didn't pay a cent!"

Many of the children make warm friends among their kind entertainers and are invited back summer after summer to the same houses. One little deformed girl, ill with lung disease, was taken three years ago to a breezy farm house on the hills of Clinton County, Pennsylvania. She was only invited for a week, but her gentle ways, and pale, appealing face, touched the hearts of the good farmer and his wife, who kept her during most of the summer, trying the effects of the country—good nursing and above all, wholesome food, upon her she began to mend.

The next May, with the first warm day, the farmer drove the spring wagon into the miserable court where she lived for "little Nelly." He saw her mother, a widow, who supported three children by slop-work. The friendship grew between the families, who were honest, God-fearing people. This summer the widow is in a tenant house on the farm and is well provided with work which pays her well. She is comfortably settled for life, and little Nelly is growing stout and strong. Hundreds of such incidents could be told to show how widespread are the good effects of this most beautiful of all charities.

Pure Speech.

If there is anything which makes a person repulsive and loathsome to those of pure, clean mind, it is the indulgence in coarse, low speech. It is a fault which would meet with no quarter, because it is a heinous sin in God's sight. "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God," and the reverse of this is just as true. A God of purity will not receive into his house of light those who habitually indulge in such vileness. Parents cannot be too watchful or guarded in this respect. A child should be checked as quick for a low word as for a profane one. He should be made to see its sinful, degrading tendency, no matter from whose lips he has caught it. A father's example even should be no excuse, though it is hard making headway against such an example. A good mother will try, however, and never give over trying while life lasts.

It is most emphatically true that "as the mother so is the daughter," and so is the son to a great extent. She gives the keynote to the moral tone of the household. Never let a word or a thought cross your lips that could sully the white page of a child's heart. There should be no middle ground here; the parleying with evil. A mother who loves her child as she does her life may blacken its soul to all eternity by her thoughtless speech. Do not let neighborhood scandal be rehearsed in your child's hearing—no, not if you offend the greatest gossamer in the place; and I know it takes some courage to face her wrath, but it is better than to destroy your child's purity.

"Never think the city has the whole monopoly of moral evil," said a lady to me very sadly about a bright young nephew. "The boy was ruined by the talk of the men in his father's hay field."

If inquiry comes in like a flood, thus is it doubly difficult to set up a standard against it. It is not hard; only make the fountain pure. "Abhor that which is evil, and cleave to that which is good. Never let a low jest in your presence to pass unrebuked, and never a word from your own lips that is not pure and sweet. However bad the world may look to the children when they go out in it, let there be one bright, fair memory of perfect purity to which they can always revert. Let "my mother" be the synonym of all that was excellent and of good report, in standing refutation of the slur that there is no true goodness in the world."

Phosphatine

Is a wonderful thing, yet so natural, so reasonable. Why? If you have feelings of gloominess; too weak and dragging; too nervous to sleep; an appetite hardly sufficient to keep body and soul together; headache, with pains across the back; the whole system relaxed; perhaps coughs and sore lungs; and will see the bottles of Dr. G. L. Austin's Phosphatine as the case may demand; it will not fail to make you an enthusiastic friend. Why do we say thus? Because Phosphatine supplies a want, the very properties the system is lacking and yearning for. It is not a medicine, but nutriment instantly converted into blood, bone and tissue. It is also delicious to the taste. Try it. The result is as certain as that cause and effect go hand in hand. All druggists. Lowson & Co., Sole agents for the Dominion, 55 Front St. East, Toronto.

If Catarrh has destroyed your sense of smell and hearing, Hall's Catarrh Cure will cure you. 75 cents per bottle. All druggists sell it. For sale by George Rhyas, sole agent, Goderich. 1843-3m

An honest medicine is the noblest work of man, and we can assure our readers that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is not only reliable, but is almost infallible to cure Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Canker of the Stomach and bowels, and the various Summer Complaints, whose attacks are often sudden and fatal.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally. It acts directly upon the blood and the mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75 cents. For sale by George Rhyas, sole agent for Goderich. 1843-3m

Margaret, the Mother of Criminals.

E. V. Smalley describes "A Great Charity Reform" in the July "Century," which has been done in the conception and mainly in the execution of the charitable work of Miss Louise Lee Schuyler, of New York city, the leading member of the "The State Charities Association."

Throw up your hands. "Gentlemen will please throw up their hands." Such is the polite manner in which a Missouri train robber usually addresses a car load of passengers as he appears at the door, playfully covering them with a revolver extended in each hand.

Throw up my hands! "Throw up my hands!" said a man who was relating an experience with train robbers that he had been through. "I had $10,000 in a belt round my body, all that I had made in six years of mining in California, and when I heard the command and realized how useless resistance was, as the gang surrounding the car was armed to the teeth, I not only threw up hands, but the thought of losing my money made me so sick that I nearly threw up my boots."

The situation doesn't admit of a moment's hesitation, and every man knows it. A movement in the direction of a weapon would not escape the alert eye of the robber, and it would be the immediate signal for a shot. Brave men think and braggers boast of what they would do under such circumstances, but when suddenly confronted by a cocked revolver and the stern command that signifies surrender, the hands are very apt to go up, though the situation be a humiliating one.

Those affected with weak Lungs, Sluggish Liver or Derangements of the Kidneys, should procure a package of Dr. Carson's Liver and Lung Compound. Each 50 cent package makes three pints of Syrup. It is a valuable collection of Roots, Herbs and Barks, and its results are wonderful. For sale by all Druggists. Geo. Rhynas, agent, Goderich.

Smith's German Worm Remedy. R. Morrison, of the Dominion Electrotype Foundry, 577 Craig street, Montreal, says one dose of Dr. Smith's GREAT WORM REMEDY removed 13 large worms from his child, 4 years old. For sale by Jas. Wilson, Goderich.

The Fashions.

Heliotrope is again in fashion. White is as much worn as ever. English polks are in high favour. White bonnets are again in fashion. Large and small collars are both worn. The sunflower dies hard, but it is moribund. Tinted veillings are more worn than white ones. Bonnets are gradually encroaching over the ears. The brims of children's hats are wider than ever.

White alpaca, trimmed with velvet, is coming in vogue. Society in Paris is adopting English styles, habits and customs. Brandedburgs and fourages fasten and decorate many corsets. Bonnets with back curtains falling over the chin are revived.

French lawn and organdis muslins divide favour with mulls for white dresses. Anno Domini 1882 will long be remembered as the dress-as-you-please year. Shirred sunbonnets in the Kate Greenway styles are much worn by little girls. Neat and pretty porcupine straw and chip hats are revived for 25 cents a piece.

Japanese ornaments are as popular as ever for summer household decorations. The bouquet pin is an improvement on the lace pin for fastening the corsage bouquet. Large bustles are worn only by women who are outside the charmed circle of society.

Young ladies on the other side dress almost exclusively in white on all festive occasions. Jet embroidery, combined with chenille pompons is one of the chief novelties of the season. Plain null dresses are made effective by flounces and trimmings of polka-dotted embroidery.

Very small bonnets were worn by the ladies at the Ascot races; very large ones at the Grande Prix. White ostrich plumes are worn on white chip, English, Dunstable, Italian, Manilla, and Panama braid hats. Student blue is a lovely shade of pale gray blue, much in demand for light woollen suits for country wear.

Hats and bonnets of white dotted muslin are shirred on white spots and trimmed with flowers, feathers, and lace. Dressy suits for children are made of satens, plain and figured, and trimmed profusely with lace and embroidery. Dark blue or gray blue gimpes or yokes and sleeves are worn with pale blue and pink singham dresses by children.

In spite of the effort to introduce bonnet skirts, paniers, and bustles, the outlines of all costumes remain about the same. Flowers are worn to excess not only on all festive occasions, but also in the morning, at home, in the street and for carriage toilet.

Children wear Mother Hubbard and Kate Greenway dresses of Turkey-red calico, with white muslin yokes or gimpes and sleeves. The corsage bouquets of the moment are of white daisies, with yellow centres and yellow daisies with black centres or dwarf sunflowers.

We do not often make any editorial mention of the proprietary medicines advertised in our columns, but we believe it to be a duty we owe to our readers to call their attention to the advertisement of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Ague Cure which appears in this issue of our paper. We know from sad experience that nothing is more disheartening than the insidious approaches and periodical attacks of malarial and miasmatic disorders. The remedy prepared by Dr. Ayer & Co. has been in use many years, and has proved a positive antidote for disorders of this nature. It is, without a safe and harmless one to take, being composed entirely of vegetable ingredients, without either quinine or minerals, and consequently incapable of producing the deleterious effects which follow the use of these drugs. Our Western people owe a debt of gratitude to Dr. Ayer for the production of this valuable medicine. Its timely use will save much suffering, and we recommend it with the greatest confidence in its ability to do all that is promised for it.—[Atkins, Ark., News.]

HOARSENESS AND FAILURE OF VOICE from congestion of the vocal cords, follicular disease of the fauces, or minister's throat, are often the results of bronchial troubles, extending up the trachea and larynx, affecting the whole mucous tract of the air passages. These diseases are the outcome or complication of nervous debility and blood impurities from overworking the system and excessive use of the organs involved. Here constitutional treatment is required to restore nutriment and nerve power, and WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calumina has been successfully used by singers and public speakers.

Clinton.

PROFUSELY FLOWERED.—Mrs. Walter Cook, of Princess street, has a cactus now in bloom, on which are one hundred and sixty flowers.

THE BICYCLE.—On Monday afternoon H. Grant and Thos. Chaloner, of Strathroy, passed through town on bicycles, on their way to Wingham. The distance from Strathroy to Clinton, in a direct line, is nearly 60 miles, and this they made in a little over six hours. Between Exeter and Clinton they only dismounted once, and then it was "to smile" at Brucefield.

Our readers will regret to learn of the death of Miss S. Weir, formerly of this town, and for some time a teacher in this county, which occurred in the county of Lambton last week, at the residence of her father. She was a young lady of estimable qualities, and her death will be regretted by many friends.

SAD ACCIDENT.—One day last week a son of Mr. J. L. Sheppard, watchman at the foundry, met with a sad accident while he was visiting some friends near Exeter. In the orchard the young sprouts coming through the ground had been cut off with a scythe, leaving the sharp points sticking up, and while he was playing in one of the trees he fell down, when one of these points entered the right eye, and completely destroyed the sight, although the eye-ball did not appear to be injured. The little fellow, who is only 19 years of age, bore his painful injury bravely.—[New Era.]

Hint to Candidates. A citizen who lately built himself a residence was the other day showing a friend through it, and when everything had been noticed and discussed, he asked: "Well, do you see any place you could improve on?"

"Yes, I noticed a bad error right at the start," was the reply. Being asked to explain, he continued: "You have no balcony in front."

"But I didn't want one." "Well, perhaps not, but when you are running for office and the band comes up to serenade you, and the populace call for a speech, you will either have to go to the roof or come down to the ground to respond. A balcony is a sort of middle ground—just high enough to escape making speeches, and not too high to propitiate all sorts of reform. Ought to have a balcony, sir—regret it if you don't."

The Truthful Reporter.

The new reporter was sent to the school exhibition. His report read pretty well, but there were a few things in it which did not meet the approval of the local editor—such for instance as these: "The essays of the graduating class were good whoever wrote them;" "The floral offerings were excessive, and from the number received by Miss Simplegush we judge her father owns a first-class greenhouse;" "The young lady who read the valedictory to the teachers has in her the making of a fine actress. She simulated sorrow so accurately that the writer might have been misled had he not subsequently heard the young lady speak of this same 'dear teacher' as a hateful old thing."

Not That Doctor.

A well-known medical man of this city was called up by telephone the other day when the following conversation took place: "It has come, doctor?"

The doctor thought he knew the voice, and, wondering what he had been sent for, shouted back: "Is it all right?"

"It's a very small pattern," answered the voice, which was that of a woman, "but it will do if we take pains." The doctor caught the last words and called distinctly: "Give it paregoric!"

There was a mumbled discussion which we could not hear, and then the voice called: "Is this Doctor —?"

"No! It's Doctor —, of Fort-street." Then he heard a chorus of mirth and was informed that he was in communication with a fashionable dressmaking house, and that it was a silk dress for Doctor —'s wife that was under discussion, and that he was the wrong man, which, under the circumstances, was rather a relief to the Fort-street physician.—[Detroit Post.]

GOLD—Is excellent for filling decayed teeth; but "TEABERRY" prevents the decay, makes them white, and make people lovable. 5 cent samples.

A Remarkable Escape. Mrs. Geo. C. Clarke, of Port Dalhousie, Ontario, states that she had been confined to her room for a long time with that dreadful disease, Consumption. The doctors said she could not escape an early grave, but fortunately she began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and in a short time was completely cured. Doubting ones, please write Mrs. Clarke, and be convinced. Trial bottles free at Rhynas' drug store. Large size $1. (3)

I. F. Smith, druggist, of Dunville, under date of June 1st, writes of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry: "It sells immensely in fact has the largest sale during the summer of any patent medicine in stock," and adds that he can heartily recommend it to the public. The above named remedy is nature's grand cure for Cholera, Dysentery and all summer complaints.

Review of The. A good article that has achieved success, and attained a world-wide reputation by its true merits and wonderful results, is always imitated. Such is the case with Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Already unprincipled parties are endeavoring to defraud an unsuspecting public, by offering imitations of this most fortunate discovery. Do not be deceived, but insist on having the true remedy, and take no other. Trial bottles free at Rhynas' drug store. Large size $1. (5)

"THAT HAT."

Mr. F. W. Johnston, the Aspirant for West Huron, anxious to attract attention, had the following item inserted in the Star last week:

AN UNANSWERED REQUEST.—The following enquiry was sent to the political and fashion editor of the North Street Journal this week:

Well, a copy of Mr. Johnston's epistle never reached us, but we saw the Aspirant at the picnic in all the glory of his new "store clothes"...

For those who did not particularly notice the Aspirant at that occasion—and the vote for the cane proved that many were oblivious of him and his "good clothes," too—we will attempt a brief description:

Everything was gotten up to match. The pants, vest and coat were of a light grey color, with hat to match. The light hat matched the light calibre of the head upon which it sat jauntily.

One thing, however, was lacking. The Aspirant did not carry the cane which he usually swings so gracefully in his saunterings. If he brought it to the grounds that day he must have stowed it away carefully while the voting was going on, for during the contest he was minus a cane.

After the election contest he was minus "the cane." We understand his heart was set on getting that cane. He did not bring his customary cane because "when he got the cane by the popular vote," he would be encumbered with canes, so to speak.

The old adage, "Between two stools you come to the ground," came true in his instance. Between two canes he went home without any.

A heavy heart and a light pocket, and no cane! A light hat on a light head, and no cane! Alas! poor Yorick (F.W.J.)!

It has been said, "The tailor makes the man," but in the Aspirant's case the aphorism was sadly out of joint. Art did its part to make him show to advantage at the picnic, but neither light suit nor light hat could compensate for Nature's shortcoming.

Clucas, the local cartoonist, can alone find fitting use for the Aspirant. The artistic efforts to exhibit F. W. J. as an advertisement for "champagne cider" and "cream soda," or as an enticement for a liquor store, have proved eminently successful.

The reason for the success of the cartoons, is not far to seek. In the portrait, F. W. J.'s mouth is in repose. The Aspirant would pass for an ordinary young man were he to keep his mouth in repose. When he speaks his shallowness is apparent.

Shallow-minded persons like to be kept before the vulgar stare—by cartoon or otherwise. They pant for notoriety. The late Mr. Charles Jules Guitteau was a notable example of this peculiarity.

The squib from the Star, which we have quoted above, is a fair index of the Aspirant's powerful (?) mind. He was anxious to shine, even if he were forced to lie, or inspire a lie, to do it.

All will admit he has shone! Were he wise, he would have let the light hat question alone. We have no quarrel with the light hat; it is the light head we find fault with.

As the auld Scotch wife once remarked: "It's no' th' bonnet; it's the heid that's in't."

WEST HURON.

The readers of THE SIGNAL in due time will be put into possession of the tactics of the West Huron protest conspirators. The plot is a deep one, but we expect to be able to fathom it, and show up the conspirators in their true light.

Some of the Conservatives of this Riding met at Goderich, on Monday, and it is said, the result of the meeting was a decision to protest the election of Mr. Cameron, on the grounds of personal bribery and bribery by agents.

Those interested in salt can read a very interesting description of the Cheshire salt mines, on our 2nd page. The system of mining, as opposed to the pumping of brine practiced in Canada, is well worthy of consideration.

The subscription list formed in order to raise the $1,000 to protest Mr. Cameron's election in West Huron would be very interesting, if published. "It would be seen that those who put up their hard-earned dollars last time fight shy of the present collection. Now, as before, the bulk of the funds collected will go into the pockets of one or two hungry lawyers."

Among the charges to be laid against Mr. G. W. Ross, the well-known parliamentarian and educationist, is one in effect that Mr. Ross, or some one for him, promised to secure a good wife for a Tory voter if he would vote for Ross.

The London Advertiser pricks a Tory wind bag in the following pointed fashion:—"Our esteemed contemporary the Hamilton Spectator expresses the belief that Mr. Mowat should be condemned because of this refusal to secure to Ontario the territory which belongs to her."

"WHERE will you find a Protestant who is connected with the Land League?" triumphantly asked Rev. Mr. McDonagh on the 12th of July to an enthusiastic assemblage of Orangemen at Clinton. THE SIGNAL immediately answered the rev. enquirer, and told him that among the members of the Land League were to be found Chas. A. Parnell and Capt. Dugmore, the latter of whom was well known in Canada as a devoted member of the Church of England.

Mr. McDonagh, or a person who assumes to speak for him, writes in reply to the Star, and defends the rev. orator's language by alluding to the "family relations" of the members of the Land League, also averring that "these men and their families are by both birth and marriage closely related with Romanism."

It is the first time we heard of the marriage of Mr. Parnell. Perhaps the rev. gentleman is privy to a clandestine marriage of the great Land Leaguer! But putting the onus upon one's wife's relations is rather a poor way to try to crawl out of the difficulty. It is also something new in ethics for a man to be held to account for the religious and political opinions of all those of his own blood. The insinuation about our own religious views has nothing whatever to do with the question under discussion. Editors, like good preachers, keep to their text.

Herman Schomayer, of East Texas Pa., has been arrested for fatally shooting Samuel Zimmerman, a small pox nurse, who stopped at his house to enquire his way.

Hamilton, July 28.—This morning at 8 o'clock one of those terrible accidents which only too frequently cut short human lives occurred at the Ontario File works, on the corner of Cannon and Mary streets. The unfortunate victim of the accident was Joseph Edge, an Englishman by birth, but late from Buffalo. The deceased at the time of the accident was grinding a file at a stone about 5 feet 10 inches in diameter and 11 inches wide weighing 3,300 lbs.

This stone almost touched the ground in its revolutions and was run by a belt from within the establishment. Edge was sitting, about ten inches over the circumference of the stone, on what was called the "horse." The deceased was sitting with his back to the door and with the stone revolving from him when it burst into three large pieces, knocking Edge against one of the rafters of the roof about eleven feet high, the concussion breaking up the shingles of the roof. A small piece of the stone also passed through his head, mangling it frightfully. He fell back into the place where the "horse" was, dying instantaneously. The "horse" was thrown through the top of the door, taking all the boards along with it. It struck a wood-pile, about twenty-five feet distant, with such force that it knocked the wood inward six inches. The stone at the time was going about 225 revolutions per minute.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.—The Grand Trunk Railway Company is rapidly extending its lines towards the North West and will compete sharply with the Canada Pacific. Having obtained control of the Midland system the Grand Trunk is pushing to obtain connection with South St. Marie. They have opened another portion of their Georgian Bay and Lake Erie line from Tara to Warton, the section being on Colpoys Bay out of which a line of steamers will run to the Sault and Lake Superior. It is said that the Grand Trunk will ultimately connect with the Northern Pacific at Duluth or Marquette. It is also believed that the Manitoba Southwestern Railway charter, which was vetoed by the Dominion Government, was really a Grand Trunk charter, the latter company being anxious to obtain an independent through route to Winnipeg—Winnipeg Times.

TORONTO EXHIBITION.—The advertisement announcing the date of the Toronto exhibition which has obtained the sobriquet of "Canada's Great Fair," appears in another column. It is to be held from the 5th to 16th September next, and promises to be of greater magnitude than either of its predecessors. The prize list has been increased and attractions are promised of a novel and interesting character. Cheap excursions and reduced rates will be granted during the exhibition. Parties desiring prize lists can obtain them on dropping a post card to Mr. Hill, the Secretary at Toronto.

The Rules of Canada.

From the Toronto World. We in Canada are not ruled by kings, venerated with the surroundings of royalty. We have neither palaces nor courtyards.

Hangings of silks and satins; silver metal work; crystal mirrors; the polished woods of lairy lands; velvet carpets; divans and chairs in the highest art of the upholsterer; cabinets stocked with cigars from Havana and wines from the best fields of France; everything magnificent, costly.

The Kings of Canada. They own or will own all our railways; they own millions and millions of our lands; they control our largest bank; they make our parliaments; editors many are in their pay; they enjoy monopolies and immunities of various kinds.

The Federal Parliamentarian. The leaders of the Conservative party are still in doubt as to what to do with Mr. Plumb. It is suggested by some of his friends that he should be put into the Local Legislature to help Mr. Meredith. If he were elevated to the Senate the eternal fitness of things would be complete, and it would be hard to say which was best fitted for the other—the Senate for Mr. Plumb or Mr. Plumb for the Senate.

As for the proposition to put Mr. Plumb in the Local Legislature, it would be a mistake. Mr. Meredith is not a particular strong man, and has all he can do to carry Mr. Morris, without having Mr. Plumb hoisted on his shoulders also. It is quite possible to have too much of a good thing, and Mr. Plumb's eloquence in the Local Legislature would be much too much. He is a man of great talents and abilities, but if the truth must be told, even his own friends admit that he is a great bore. This is one of the drawbacks of a man taking to politics late in life.—(Toronto Telegram.)

A Field Administration. The Moncton Transcript has been drawing an amusing picture of the Dominion Cabinet: "On the question of Protestant and Catholic, Sir Hector's ultramontane views are admirably balanced by ex-Grand Master Powell, of the Loyal Orange Association. And then on the temperance question, there is Sir Samuel, the Finance Minister, who advocates the Scott Act, and the Hon. John Carling, who, when the Scott Act is to be voted on telegraphs authority to draw on him for $5,000 or so to defeat it. Then there is the Hon. Mr. McEwen, Englishman by birth, but late from Buffalo. The deceased at the time of the accident was grinding a file at a stone about 5 feet 10 inches in diameter and 11 inches wide weighing 3,300 lbs.

This stone almost touched the ground in its revolutions and was run by a belt from within the establishment. WAR IN EGYPT.

London, July 31.—A despatch to the Daily News from Marseilles reports the French Government has ordered that the infantry brigade... starting for Egypt be disembarked, and that transports be withdrawn.

The following resolutions have been adopted for the movement of war correspondents in Egypt.—All correspondents are, under the provisions of the Mutiny Act, required to have licenses from the Duke of Cambridge; are not allowed to go to the front without permission. Cipher despatches are forbidden. The staff officer supervising telegrams may stop or alter them.

AN UNFORTUNATE CAPTURE. Alexandria, July 31.—Mr. Bishop Dechair was taken prisoner to Arabi's camp by the treacherous natives furnished him as an escort by the Khedive. He carried important despatches containing Seymour's directions regarding the proposed reduction of the Aboukir forts, all endorsed by the Khedive.

STILL PARLEYING. Arabi is still parleying with the Khedive. The latter intimated that no terms would be acceptable except unconditional surrender.

GERMAN TROOPS FORBIDDEN TO LAND. The commander of the German gunboat, at Port Said, has been instructed on no account to land troops, but if necessary to take German subjects aboard.

THEY CAN HOLD THE PORT. Alexandria, July 31.—There are troops enough here to hold Alexandria against any attack by Arabi, though scarcely enough to drive the enemy back to Cairo. Arabi has organized a committee of five officers in Cairo to prepare for national defence. A large number of the worst class of Bedouins are marching from Mariout towards Alexandria.

THE SINEWS OF WAR. The Porte is negotiating for a loan of 100,000 Turkish pounds, and contracting for the equipment of 6,000 troops about to proceed to Egypt. A small contingent of the troops will start for Alexandria shortly, to be employed as a guard to the Khedive.

Constantinople, July 31.—It is now announced that the Turkish fleet is now going to Egypt.

THE FRENCH FLEET LEAVES. The French gunboats sailed to-day, the Consul-General being ordered to withdraw the entire fleet from Egypt.

WHITE FLAGS. A reconnaissance is about to be effected to ascertain the meaning of the white flags flying on the Aboukir Forts. One of these forts is said to be the strongest of its kind in existence. It is understood that Seymour has been instructed to demand the surrender of the Aboukir Forts, and in the event of refusal to bombard them.

Port Said, July 31.—The English vice-consul has received a letter, declaring, as he aided the Governor at Port Said to escape Arabi Pasha's vengeance, he has been condemned to death.

Paris, July 31.—The Suez Canal Company has sent to the press the following telegram from Ismailia:—Bedouin chiefs of the eastern region, comprised between the Suez Canal and Nih have placed them at the disposal of De Lesseps. Arabi Pasha has counselled them to obey De Lesseps. De Lesseps has volunteered to the commander of an English ironclad to go on horseback into the country around Ismailia to prove that the country is safe, and there are no Egyptian troops in the vicinity. With a passport signed and sealed by De Lesseps any one may travel freely in Egypt as far as Cairo. Merchants who had abandoned their business profit by these passports.

The state of affairs in Cairo is growing worse. Six murders took place in the street last night, one victim being a young woman who was foully ill-treated. It is clearly the design of the Ulemas to force a religious war, and their supremacy carried the day in Cairo. Their convictions have been forced upon the Sultan, and they have gone so far as to urge that all available Turkish troops be despatched to Egypt and placed under the command of Arabi Pasha, and a common was waged against England. It is not improbable under the present serious complications that the Turkish troops sent to Egypt will be arrayed against the British forces. A feeling of general alarm and insecurity prevails in all classes except the Mussulman fanatics, who are courting strife.

Anxiety and dread rule at Port Said and in the interior. None know when an outbreak may take place, or who will be on hand to quell it. The French have given up all idea of even acting as police, all their ships being off here, indeed, but ordered to observe the strictest neutrality. On the English, therefore, must fall the whole burden of protecting the lives and property of the Europeans. The rebels swarm all round and are doing all they can to erect fortifications in the neighborhood. Every place suitable for a garrison or a rallying point has been seized upon and earthworks are being thrown up. The guns and are either on the way or are stowed away safely. Arabi has managed to secure a large following, of whom many are trained soldiers. To these, it is feared, will be added a host of irregulars whose savagery is more to be feared than the national troops. For instance, it is reported that the Bedouins here have undertaken to furnish Arabi with 60,000 men. The chiefs are to remain as hostages in Arabi's hands. The prevalent idea was that the Bedouins were unfriendly to Arabi. It would seem they are not.

The Porte has received a petition signed by two thousand Egyptians, imploring the Sultan not to ratify the dismissal of Arabi by the Khedive.

The case of R. E. Porrier, advocate, for libel, is in progress. He claims that Le Minerve called him a Freemason, with a view to damaging his chances of election. Father Gibad, of the Seminary of St. Sulpice, was examined as a witness. He quoted Pius Ninth, showing that Freemasons, or Carbonari, are excommunicated. It would greatly damage a man in the opinion of the Catholic public were he represented as a Mason.

"Annabella."

MR. EDITOR.—In last week's issue of THE SIGNAL my attention was called to an article headed "Trouble in Dungeness," and signed by one "Annabella," whose evident desire was to slander "Conrad." For instance, in one place he called him "infamous," while further on he flatly contradicted himself by giving "Conrad" credit for possessing good moral habits. I think that "Annabella" was a little "too previous," or he would not have made such a mistake as this; and, judging by the whole tone of his article we are led to believe that he and the notorious "Snodgrass" could go arm in arm in their course of this slander. In one place he mentioned about "Conrad" misrepresenting the true facts of the case. There could be nothing further from the truth than what was contained in his article of last week. Still in another place he tries to make light of "Conrad's" composition; and if he take his for an example, we don't think that it stands him in hand to throw stones, for it would take a "Philadelphia lawyer" to make out the sense of the latter part of his (Annabella's) article. We are of the opinion that he was writing in expectation of receiving eulogiums from the young ladies of Dungeness for being the defender of their cause. But he does not receive the expected eulogy! Far from it! They denounce him one and all in the strongest language as a person not fit for respect. Again, he says that "Conrad" deserved to be horsewhipped for his so-called misrepresentations. We are inclined to believe that if he who styles himself "Annabella" had justice meted out to him, he would be treated to a free ride on a rail. In conclusion, I would just say that it would be far better for such ambitious writers as "Annabella" to ascertain the correct facts before resorting to the press. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space in your valuable paper, I remain,

A CITIZEN.

The Bitter Bit.

MR. EDITOR.—"Whom the gods destroy they first make mad," was uttered centuries ago, but the sentiment is as strong in his truth to-day as then. In the meanings of "Annabella" we recognize the thoughts which impelled the boy to cry for the moon. He sits amid dissolving thoughts, views the shifting of ideas and the development of genius, and because he has not kept pace with his more worthy and energetic neighbors, both in learning and in gaining the respect and esteem of the public, large, he in desperation sets up a hue and cry, hoping by slandering through the press, to attract attention to himself. He tries to make us believe no virtue exists save that which has been chaperoned by him, and no genius displayed except that displayed by his bigoted self. In his article of last week he signs himself "Annabella." Why? Because he is not man enough to come out and give his own name, but instead must hide himself behind that of a woman's, in order to do his back-biting. In one place he says: "Several parties were seen last Friday night vainly trying to find the meaning of own gross self, and that such expressions were entirely 'too previous' for the inhabitants of a place like this." Now, if "Annabella" is the scholar he claims to be, and if such remarks are an example of his education, I should say that he was a little "too previous" in quitting his tuition, and should consult his dictionary before making a laughing stock of himself. He insinuates that I found the quotation in some old spelling book or dictionary. This evidently is intended as irony—but oh, what a mistake. Could he open his eyes and look the facts straight in the face, he would perceive that the world is moving onward. Since he left school the standard of education has been elevated, and what satisfied him some years ago (he has made no progress since) does not supply the wants of the present generation. Possibly he has become a convert to the theory of Mr. Jasper, the negro preacher of Richmond, Va., who claims "That the sun do stand still. If so I excuse him. Again, he says I claim to belong to the 'upper ten.'" This, like the other statements of this "grand luminary," is obscured and eclipsed by the truth. I defy him or any one else to prove I ever said I belonged to such a party. As for showing "blue blood," you could scarcely find a more consequential person in the place than he who styles himself "Annabella." I also deny there being any trouble in the village with the exception of what he has stirred up himself. None will thank him for what he has done, but the majority will condemn him, both for his silly and untruthful article, and ineffectual attempt to create contention among the young folks of the village. He evidently is a man who never sees a good quality in another. He is a human owl, vigilant in darkness and blind to light, coolly walking about the livelong day with sneering lip, uttering sharp speeches in the quietest manner, transfixing every character which is presented, his words are softer than oil, yet as drawn swords. Again, he says I "hold the young ladies here up to ridicule." This is an entirely false assertion. Nothing was farther from my thoughts, I only gave a humorous, yet truthful account of the games that were played; nothing was meant outside the plays, and no harm was intended. But this man had not common sense enough to see it in that light. Why? Because he is always mousing for vermin, and never seeing blind game. He leaves his worst piece of slander for the last. He states I was "endeavoring to cast dishonor upon these young ladies." Does he really expect sensible persons who know me to accept such twaddle as the truth? No, a thousand times, no. I reverse and respect the sex too much to cast dishonor upon them. Instead, I would give honor to women, the full blown flower of creation's morning; God's latest, best and brightest gift to man. In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I must state that "Annabella's" effusion of ignorance and impertinence has already inspired all the contempt it merits. So, should he repeat his insolence, I shall deem it quite unnecessary to treat of the subject further. Apologizing, sir, for occupying so much of your valuable space, I subscribe myself, (feeling confident that if not entirely blameless, I am at least innocent of the charges brought against me.)

CONRAD.

WILL YOU EXCHANGE a case of ZOPESA for Biliousness for 75 cents? It is awfully unwise to postpone the cure of the many ailments arising from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Stomach and Liver, when this offer is made to you in your own home in all sincerity, and with an absolute certainty of curing you. ZOPESA (from Brazil) cures Dyspepsia and Biliousness. A single dose relieves; a sample bottle convinces; a 75 cent bottle cures. It acts directly upon the Stomach, Liver, and Kidneys. Cleansing, Correcting, Regulating, Zopesa gives energy and vim to the Brain, Nerves, and Muscles, simply by working wonders upon the Digestion, and giving activity to the Liver. Cut this out, take it to your dealer in medicine, and get at least one 75 cent bottle of Zopesa, and tell your neighbor how it acts. It is warranted to cure Biliousness and Dyspepsia.

WITH HIS OWN WEAPONS.

"What are you thinking about, Maude. You have not spoken a word for five minutes. I can't say that you are remarkably entertaining this evening."

"Certainly I do." "Very well, then. No woman is satisfied with a man's devotion, even if she knows it to be genuine, if he appears to slight her in the presence of others; and I think, my dear George, that I occupied the position of a slighted woman last evening, when you devoted yourself so openly to Clara Vaughan."

"I only danced with her three times," said George. "And sat out three more with her," supplemented Maude, "while I, owing to the lack of men, was obliged to play the part of wall-flower. Do you think that was a pleasant position for an engaged young woman?"

"My dear child, how plainly you talk," cried George, disconcerted by her frank appeal. "Why not? Pique should not be allowed to interfere between lovers—you know pride's chickens are an expensive brood to keep. I confess that your conduct made me very unhappy. I was not jealous, remember—I have perfect faith in you; but I felt neglected and annoyed that you should give Clara the opportunity to triumph over me, even in semblance; for she delights in such victories—little coquette that she is."

"Maude," said George, seeing his chance and improving it at once, only too glad to bolster up a weak cause, "I am surprised to see that you dislike Miss Vaughan. Why is it women never uphold their friends? I know she is a sweet girl, without an atom of coquetry about her."

"Then you have less discrimination than I gave you credit for possessing," rejoined Maude, quietly, though her deepening color showed that she resented his words. "But we will not discuss Clara, if you please—I wish to talk of ourselves."

"What do you want me to do?" cried George, irritated at the cool way in which his attack was met. "Surely you would not tie me to your side every moment of the time?"

"Not one moment of it, sir, if it is your wish to be free," he haughtily exclaimed Maude, now really angry. "You can leave at once—I shall make no effort to detain you."

"What nonsense!" the young man rejoined, in a much humbler tone. "You know I could not live without you, Maude. But you are unreasonable; I can't promise never to speak to another girl, you know."

"Nor do I exact such a promise; only I wish others to see by your conduct that you have sworn allegiance to me. I am only a woman, and have all a woman's vanity. George, suppose our positions had been reversed last evening; would you have liked to see me asopenly pleased with another man's attentions as you were with Clara?"

"Pretty girl, indeed? As if I should be interested in her!" said Clara, in disdain. "No indeed—it's a handsome young man—none other than your old admirer, Maude—Stephen Black."

"Is it possible!" cried Maude, with a blush of undisguised pleasure. "Why, yes—there he is, sure enough! And how handsome he is looking!"

"Humph! Women have strange ideas of beauty," grumbled George, by no means delighted with this turn of affairs. "Oh, we don't expect you to see how charming he is," Clara flippantly answered; "it would scarcely be natural under the circumstances. But Maude and I think differently. And oh! he's put his name on my card for three dances?"

Maude said nothing, but her quiet smile meant volumes. George spoke little while dancing; he was nettled by the marked change in Clara's manner. He did not care a straw for the girl, but his vanity was wounded. He furtively watched her as she danced with Stephen Black—a singularly handsome man, he acknowledged to himself—and observed all her airs and graces—the very arts that she had employed to please him not long ago.

Ten minutes after, when George, mercifully snubbed by Clara, disconsolately sought his betrothed, his smarting vanity needing the balm of her unwavering devotion, he found her talking gaily with Mr. Black, who made no effort to conceal his appreciation of her society. With easy grace she introduced the two gentlemen, who bowed stiffly to each other, then resumed her conversation, which consisted of old reminiscences in which George had no share; therefore he could take no part in their talk.

In one moment he had forgotten all about Clara and his petty annoyance on her account, while a pang of real jealousy seized his heart. For the first time in his knowledge of her he saw Maude entirely engrossed with another man, that man a former suitor, and his experience was not a pleasant one. He stood beside her for some time, waiting for a word or look; but she had seemingly forgotten his very existence. By and-by he quietly touched her hand.

"Will you give me your card, Maude?" he asked as she looked around. "Certainly," she smilingly answered; "but I am afraid all the dances are gone." He looked at it without a word; as she said, there was not one dance left.

"I told you when we entered the room that you had better secure as many as you desired," she said, in answer to his look of reproach. And remembering this indifference, he could answer nothing.

That was the most miserable evening George Campbell ever spent. Maude, in the gayest of spirits, was so absorbed by Stephen Black that he had no opportunity to exchange more than half a dozen words with her during the entire evening. Nor was he the only sufferer; Clara Vaughan, always on the lookout for fresh conquests had determined to secure Stephen's attention, and was made furious by his side for three consecutive minutes, her blandishments tell powerless on this man of the world, who knew every phase of a coquette's art, and thought Clara a rather clumsy work-woman, though she did very well for a village girl. Maude's simple frankness and absence of self-consciousness suited him far better, and he remained as much as possible by her side.

But Clara had determined upon one grand effort, and late in the evening proceeded to make it. Mr. Black and Maude were still laughing and talking together in a corner of the ball-room. Near by stood George Campbell, his face dark with anger, when Clara came tripping towards him, her face wreathed with artificial smiles. "Oh Mr. Campbell!" she cried, "I am in such a quandary! Uncle and aunt have gone home without me, and I have no escort; and it is so late!"

"Thank you, Mr. Black; that will adjust matters nicely," she said with a bright smile. "You need give yourself no concern on my account, Mr. Campbell, but attend to Clara, if you please."

"What could George say? His face grew darker than before as he stammered out something about being 'glad to oblige all parties,' then offered his arm to the no less discomfited Clara, and strode rapidly away. And it is certain the little coquette never had a less entertaining escort than young Campbell was that night."

An hour later, Maude stood on the steps of her house, bidding Stephen Black good night. "And I may call to take you to ride to-morrow?" he said on parting.

"Yes, I shall be delighted to go," said Maude; and then Mr. Black sprang into his carriage and drove rapidly away. Maude turned to enter the house when a well known voice arrested her. "Maude—one moment—I must speak to you!"

A gleam of amusement crossed the girl's arch face as she turned to confront her lover. Not that there was anything calculated to create amusement in the young man's appearance, for he was absolutely white with passion and jealousy. "Why George! is that you?" asked Maude in innocent surprise. "Where is Clara?"

"Confound Clara!" he exclaimed, too much in earnest to appear ridiculous. "If it had not been for her—but never mind that. Maude, you are going to ride with that fellow to-morrow?"

"Certainly I am," she coolly answered. "Why not?" "Because I forbid it!" he hotly answered. "My dear boy, you have as yet no right to forbid me to do anything," was the lofty response.

George ground his teeth together in impotent rage. He felt that it would not do to take too high a hand with the girl in her present mood. "I think," said Maude, as he remained silent, "that you have forgotten our agreement of last night. If you remember—"

"I remember nothing except that I was a fool, Maude!" burst out George, seizing her hand and holding it tight. "My darling, I have suffered so much to-night that I can understand how unfairly I treated you when I flirted with that artful little coquette—"

"My dear George," said Maude, solemnly, "I am surprised to see that you dislike Miss Vaughan. In my opinion she is a sweet girl, without—"

Christianity's Good. A deal of discussion is taking place in the United States over the life of the late Ralph Waldo Emerson. That deep theologian, Bishop Huntington, of Northern New York, takes the ground that Emerson belongs entirely outside the domain of distinctive Christianity; temper and conduct were moulded upon principles belonging to universal morality, and not distinctively to the gospel or Kingdom of Christ; but yet that he was regarded not only with confidence and admiration but with affection. Not a blemish was ever supposed to disfigure the beauty of his moral life. He was kind to the poor, just to those from whom he differed, patient toward his critics, almost passionless in his purity, and temperate in all things. Thereupon a journal of free thought exclaims, upon this eulogium of a Bishop: "If a character like that of Emerson, if a life like his can be produced outside of what Dr. Huntington and his associates call Christianity, what advantages are there in Christianity anyway?" Bishop Huntington judges Emerson from a rigid theological standpoint, and therefore his estimate is low. But what of his opponents' views? What good thing do they possess that they do not owe to Christianity? What would Emerson have been if he had been brought up by a pagan father and mother, outside the pale of a Christian community? A religion of universal morality would not have been possible to him for lack of example and emulation. This religion of morality would scarcely be possible in any but a Christian country, because the restraining influence and example would be gone. Witness a western mining or cattle outfit in the present day, and yet it is peopled by men reared in centres of Christianity, but now free from the bonds or teaching of religion. Characters like Emerson's, would be quite impossible without the surroundings of Christianity.—[Kingston Whig.]

A Petrified Body. J. R. Johnston, of Canaan, was last week on a visit to friends in the village of Oregon, Lewis County, N. Y. A Catholic cemetery in the village was about being used for other purposes, and the bodies were being removed. On Saturday last the workmen came to the grave of a German woman buried 28 years ago. The coffin was in a good state of preservation, and the body had turned into stone. The features were so perfect and life-like that the husband would have recognized her anywhere. The body was of a bluish marble colour, and so solid that on being struck with a spade produced the same sound as if the spade had been struck on a rock. The body was viewed by hundreds. It was buried in the new cemetery in the coffin used 28 years ago. The soil where the petrification occurred was a dry light sand, with no water in the vicinity, nor any extraordinary mineral content.

Miserable for Thirteen Years. In order to acquire the rights of full citizenship in the United States, the native born must have reached the age of 21 years, and have gone through two full, but short courses—of rheumatism, says a glower at our elbow. In Canada, however, the courses of rheumatism are not so short, running, it would seem, as long as thirteen years—at least in one instance, that of Mr. James Maloney, Sr., of Orillia, Ont., who says: "I have been a sufferer with rheumatism for the past thirteen years, and have tried, during that time, very many of the remedies advertised for it, but without effect. Upon recommendation I was induced to buy a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. The first application relieved me, and upon the second application the pain disappeared entirely and has not since returned. It affords me much pleasure to make this statement of my experience with St. Jacobs Oil and I sincerely wish that every sufferer could know of its wonderful virtues."

There would be little if any sickness during the hot months of July and August, if every one would take Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters, as they prevent and cure all derangements of the Stomach and Bowels. Sold in large bottles at 50 cents by all druggists. Geo. Rhynas, agent, Goderich.

A Word of Caution. As is usually the case where an article of true merit has attained a world-wide reputation by its wonderful results, as the celebrated Electric Bitters have done, certain unprincipled parties have endeavored to imitate them, and expect to induce an unsuspecting public to purchase their fraudulent wares. Ask your druggist for the genuine Electric Bitters, that are guaranteed to cure, and take no others. Sold by Geo. Rhynas, druggist, at 50c.

Never be Without It. Tourists and all who are subjected to a change of climate, water, diet, &c., should never be without Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, the infallible remedy for all Summer complaints. Burdock Blood Bitters is an excellent preparation, gives entire satisfaction, and sales increasing every day, it sells on its merits.—Burdock Blood Bitters cures Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia and Kidney complaints, in the worst form.

Colborne.

ROAD REPAIRING.—The township fathers have let the job of gravelling the Lake Shore Road in places needed, to Mr. John Beacom. Mr. Jas. Strachan, sr., oversees the job on behalf of the township.

Saltford.

UNPROTECTED.—There is no railing of a temporary kind at the approach to the iron bridge on the Goderich side. The town fathers of the proxy town should attend to this, or an accident may lead to law suits.

Auburn.

On Wednesday morning last Mrs. J. Young and Miss Young went out driving and the pony became unmanageable, throwing the ladies out. Both of them received some painful bruises. The pony received a bad cut on the hind leg, and the buggy—well, it was the best smashed buggy seen round here for some time.

West Wawanosh.

At about 6:30 p. m. last Thursday, the barn of Edward McGuire, lot 25, con. 5, was struck by lightning and consumed with about twelve tons of hay. Mr. McGuire, wife and child were in the barn at the time of the accident. They were badly stunned and insensible for some time, but were all recovered. The hay was insured by the Wawanosh Mutual Insurance Co. for $400.

Leeburn.

Capt. Gibson, of Goderich, preached in the Presbyterian church here last Sunday.

VISITORS.—Miss Evelyn Crowe, of Guelph, Miss Ida Hume, of Galt, and Miss Rosa Phillips, of Niagara, are visiting at Mr. Clutton's. Miss Amy McDonald, of Blyth, is the guest of Mrs. John Stewart.

RAIN.—The heavy rain of Tuesday checked harvesting a little, but was joyfully received. People are so busy now that they have hardly time to see one another, and so local news items are hard to pick up.

Benmillar.

Mrs. John Stewart is recovering from a long and severe attack of bronchitis.

Mr. Isaac Fisher, who for so long time past has been laid up with congestion of the lungs is able to be at work again.

Mr. J. C. Lotouzel has shown us an excellent oat called Celertual. The head measures 22 inches in length.

PERSONALS.—Mr. Alex. Lissalie, of Toronto, paid a visit to his friend, Mrs. John Stewart, recently. Mrs. James McLean, of Kincardine, was visiting friends here this week. Miss Minnie Campbell, of Kincardine, is the guest of Mrs. Heddie.

Rev. J. C. Sanderson, of Brussels, has taken charge of the Benmillar circuit of the M. E. Church, as Rev. J. P. Mordeu who was recently appointed, was unable to fill the charge, on account of ill health.

Dunlop.

VISITORS.—Miss Sarah Barker, a former resident, now of Windsor, is visiting friends; also Mrs. Chas. Hawkins, of Bay City, Mich.

AHEAD.—Our Leeburn cousins, we noticed, are ahead in wheat cutting and also in oats this season, but not in barley. Mr. James Tobin cut his on Friday, July 28th.

ABLE TO CRADLE.—Our jovial engineer has so far recovered from his recent illness as to be able to cradle (not a bairnie, but to swing a scythe), and cut the first fall wheat in this section ten minutes ahead of the Leeburn farmers.

Mr. J. C. Allen wound the first sheaf.

DEPARTURE.—The camp at Mount Elizabeth has broken up. During its progress, a brother tourist going up the lake became weather-bound and sought a refuge amongst the occupants of the camp, and was hospitably entertained.

Several of our residents visited the camp, and met with a pleasant host and hostess. An Irishman who paid a visit to their "medicine chest" and took a draught of "cognac," said it was far superior to the "tonic" of our now celebrated sick committee.

Clinton.

QUICK TIME.—On Tuesday morning the early train on the Grand Trunk ran from Seaforth to this place in the unprecedented time of nine minutes; distance eight miles. The reason for running at this rate was a desire to reach this station before 8 a. m.

Last Thursday a load of Clintonians went up to the Point Farm to spend the day, one among the number getting his feet wet, took off his shoes and socks and placed them near a bush fire to dry; returning soon after he was more than surprised to find nothing but a few ashes, and had to borrow an outfit to return home.

WELL DONE.—One day last week Mrs. Ferguson, of this place, a lady 77 years of age, undertook to bind one side of a field of fall wheat, and accomplished it as easily as one of younger years would. She also stooked it. The work was done for pleasure alone.

During last week the condition of Mr. John Hodgson was so critical that all his brothers were summoned to his bedside, but on Friday evening he took a change for the better, since which time he has steadily continued to improve, and it is expected that in the course of a couple of weeks he will be able to be out again. He has had a very severe and prolonged illness, and his hosts of friends will be pleased to hear of the improvement in his condition.—[New Era.]

Carlow.

Farmers are busy with their wheat, and pronounce it to be the heaviest they have yet seen in Huron.

ACCIDENT.—A serious accident happened to Mr. Young, of the 8th con., Colborne, on the 27th inst., while he and his brother were driving to one of their farms. When only a short distance from their gate, one of the whiffle-tree hooks came off and the tongue fell down, starting the horse.

The sudden jerk them both out, Mr. Young falling on his shoulder, the fall completely stunning him. Medical aid was at once summoned and his injuries attended to. He is now in a fair way of recovery.

STRAWBERRY.—On Thursday of last week, Mrs. Gordon Young, while attending to the duties of the house, suddenly became very faint and her mind became temporarily deranged. Medical aid was sent for, and the doctor pronounced it to be sunstroke. Mr. Young is very poorly, but good hopes are entertained of her recovery.

Music in the schools.

To the Editor of THE SIGNAL.—The Sarnia public school has a Music Director who gives vocal lessons to the pupils twice a week. Can our school trustees not profit by the example, and secure the services of a professional teacher? De Caro.

A Letter From Manitoba.

Deser't, July 15, 1882. MR. EDITOR,—I would like a little space in your valuable paper, to give your readers a little information about this country. I promised several of my friends to write to them. I have not had time to do so, and I think a letter in THE SIGNAL will do for all at present. We had a hard time getting here. It was just a month from the time we left Goderich until we got into our new home, and we never had our clothes off all that time. I would say for the benefit of intending emigrants, never coming during the month of March. It is said to be the worst month in all the year. September is the best time to come; then you have plenty of time to prepare for winter and you are ready for the spring, with far less trouble in moving through the 40th of April, but had to stay in the cars all night, as there was scarcely any accommodation for man or beast. Now our Goderich party was scattered like a flock of birds. Myself and family, Mr. McKenzie, Mr. Robinson and family, Mr. Washington and wife, Mr. Gordon and Mr. Aboen started for the Turtle Mountain District as fast as our teams could take us. We stopped at a place for dinner, but it wasn't much. I am an Englishman, and like something good and plenty of it, but we had neither, although the charge was rather high, $5 for our family. Reaching our next stopping place, we lay all night on the floor—$7.50. Started again in the morning, went 20 miles, and after remaining overnight drove to Brandon after another load. Returning again to the same place, I left my family there for six days while we went on our new home in the stove up and the place ready. The charge for my wife and children's accommodation for six days was $40—a general system of robbing, I call it. We had to break 15 miles of a new trail, and the snow was very deep. Mr. Rooney, of Winnipeg, took the lead with his two teams. We had five horse teams in our party, and drove on intending to make Mr. Nicholl's store; but we got lost, and kept going south until nearly night when we saw a house in the distance. Mr. McKenzie wanted the party to stop, but I suggested that we drive on a little further before dark. Little did we think that it was my horse we had left behind, so we pushed on until we came to two shanties just put up, and then we put in our horses. We thought we should have to make our bed with the horses, and have nothing to eat, but we were wrong in the distance, and all made for it. We found it to be in the abode of a young man keeping "back." He and Mr. McKenzie took a lantern and set out to look for a man and woman lost on the prairie. The night was bitterly cold, and when the woman was found she was nearly frozen. We all gathered around the fire, and then made our bed on the floor. Next morning we returned to the house we had left the night before, unloaded our sleighs, started back to our families, and soon had things comfortable again. I felt like singing "Home, sweet home." We felt lonesome for while, until the snow went away. And we saw neighbors coming in around us. I never saw a better farming country than the Turtle Mountain region. Some people think, perhaps, that it is a high mountain. It is said to be 300 feet higher than Emerson, but it is so gradual one cannot see it. The soil is a deep black loam with a clay bottom. There is a lot of limestone and other stone, and on every half section, as a rule, I think there is enough stone for the purposes of any buildings, etc. The land is rolling, and where you see rolling land you generally find good water. I sunk a well 17 feet deep, and I have ten feet of water in it. It would make you Goderich folks smack your lips to have a good draught of it. I see one of our Goderich men, a Mr. Newton, has been running down the country. He would like to know what a man knows about this Province who has only been at Winnipeg and Brandon, stopping a few days, and returning home again? We know this is not a country for kid gloves men, but it is the place for men of courage and pluck. As for timber, we are blessed with lots of it, oak and poplar, and I don't think there will be any scarcity for a long time. We have one stationary saw mill and two portable ones. Lumber is scarce just now, as so many want to build. It is worth $20 to $25 per thousand. As for fall, we shall have two grist-mills and a steam thrasher on the Mountain. I am satisfied that we can grow all kinds of small fruit. I see wild gooseberries growing along the bush and along the ravines, smooth the skin, and just as nice as our tame gooseberries in Ontario. And any amount of black currants, and raspberries, strawberries and cranberries are to be found here. Hazel nuts are abundant, but I do not think apples will flourish here. They have tried to grow apples around Newville, but there is a complaint that the trees die on the south side, as the sun is too powerful for them. It has been very backward this year, but I cannot see much difference between the weather here and in Ontario, although the wind is higher, as there is nothing to break it. We have had a fine season for breaking. We have had lots of rain for the past three weeks. I have broken 52 acres, and Mr. Rooney, 125, Mr. Washington has 30 acres broken and a good frame house. Mr. McKenzie has a good frame house, and his horse parts; he has also a good frame stable. The breaking season is over now. The crops look splendid on the "backsetting," but the crops on this spring's breaking are not so good. I have ten acres of oats. I should judge about half, but I am sorry I did not know if they can do better here than in Ontario. I say they can, and I also say that men renting farms and paying from $3 to $5 an acre rent when they can get 100 acres for nothing, but remember that a man cannot bring $1,500, and everything is so expensive. Of course many start with less, but they work at great disadvantage. But if a man has a farm of his own, and is out of debt, and would enjoy comfort he ought to remain in Ontario. As for myself, I like it first-rate here, and I am sorry I did not have seven years ago. We are a mixed multitude—English, Irish and Scotch, but the majority are Canadians from Huron and Bruce, very many coming from around Wingham. We have two neighbors named Linklater, brothers to the wife of Mr. W. Young, Reserve of Grey. They are settled on railroad land. There are no homestead lands to be had within 80 miles of here. There are 16 sections of homestead and pre-emption, and 16 sections of railroad land in every township. The railroad land is not in the market, but people have squatted on almost every section of land, waiting to buy it; so if the railway company undertakes to take this land, I expect there will be a little rebellion. Now, as regards stock-raising, I believe it will pay well. We can grow the grain with far less expense than in Ontario, and we have an abundance of grass in the summer. I never saw cattle fatten so quickly on grass as they do here. Those who have sheep find they do well around this part. I hope you won't think our whole mind is engrossed with land and grain growing, and that we forget the other things in Ontario. There is nothing here by the Presbyterians, and I understand that the Methodists are sending a minister here. We have a Sabbath school in our midst, and we meet every Sunday afternoon and have what we Methodists call a "good time." Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie, Mr. Washington and family, Mr. Gordon and Mr. Aboen, as well as all the young men in the settlement, between thirty and forty of us altogether, meet here from Sabbath to Sabbath. This is not bad for a new country. We are all well and enjoying good health. I will be happy to reply to any who may write to me for information.

I am, yours truly, SAMUEL OKE.

SOLID SALT. 115 Feet Thick of Solid Crystal Salt Rock Drilled Through at a depth of 1,700 Feet.

MARINE CITY, July 22.—The drilling at the salt well has ceased, but not until 115 feet of solid salt had been passed through. Impressed with the belief that there were large quantities of brine or salt beneath us, the Marine City State Company, thinking that the manufacture of salt in connection with the manufacture of staves and heading, on account of refuse and cheap fuel, barrels, excellent shipping facilities, etc., decided to sink a salt well, and now their most sanguine expectations have been met, and they have a well second to none in the country, and unquestionably the best in Michigan. At a depth of about 750 feet brine was found, after which a quantity of mineral water (some of which has been preserved) similar and equal to the Mount Clemens and St. Clair waters. At a depth of 30 feet, something rare in the shape of sulfur, in hard, clear chunks, was pumped from the well. Since 500 to 1,000 feet were reached the nature of the strata were hard, mostly lime rock, and probably dry. At 1,633 feet there were indications of salt and clay dipping of the rock were brought up. From then until the present depth, 1,778 feet, the grindings pumped out were pure salt. The stove company will put in tubing to about 1,000 feet, shutting off the mineral water, which comes in above that depth, and if there isn't brine enough in the salt bed, fresh water from the St. Clair river will be run or pumped into the well to dissolve the salt after which it will be pumped up and evaporated into salt. The supply can never be exhausted, and the capacity of the well will be several hundred barrels daily without doubt. At present the well will lie idle, and the salt block will undoubtedly be built the coming fall.

Why he Didn't. "Speaking about high figures on freights," said a Chicago lake captain as he crossed his legs and rolled his quid. "What do you suppose was offered for carrying corn from Chicago to Buffalo in 1865?" "Give it up."

"Ten cents a bushel, sir, and vessels scarce at that. Any sort of a schooner clear $800 to the trip."

"And didn't you get rich at that?" "Oh, no; at that time I was husking that same corn at four cents a bushel and boarding myself!"—[Ex.]

Summer time is the time of partings. More families are broken up, and more friends separated in the months of July and August, than in the rest of the year together. A time of partings should be a time of kindly feeling, of chastened memories, of outlooking and uplooking. The parting is sure. God alone knows when and how the reunion will be—if at all. Let the parting words be in tenderness. Let nothing be said, or left unsaid, that would prove a cause of regret if never another occasion comes for saying or for forgetting. A life memory of sorrow or of gladness may hinge on the parting words of to-day.

Persons will oblige us by sending in the names of summer visitors. Address: "The Signal, Goderich."
