The Sound of Wedding Bells

— OR —
Won After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER II.

"If you will wait here, I will go back and try and recover it," he says, quietly.

Poor Dulcie also has glanced at the crowd, and she puts her hand on her arm with a little shudder.

"Oh, no, no—I didn't mean that! Not for worlds!"

"Oh, but I will," he says, in exactly the same tone.

"No," she says, decisively; "it doesn't matter." Then her gratitude reawakens. "And I am very much obliged to you indeed for the trouble you have taken. I hope you are not hurt?"

"Hurt?" he says; then he smiles. "No, thanks; and you? Have you lost anything besides your shoe—your purse?"

She shakes her head.

"I hadn't one—at least I don't think so. I don't remember. What a fearful crowd it is. I had no idea—"

"Or you would not have faced it alone?" he says, interrogatively, and with a curious look at her face—that much of it which is to be seen under the absurd little mask.

"Alone!" and she stares at him with wonder that is almost indignant. "But I wasn't alone, sir—a gentleman was kind enough to bring me; I am afraid against his will—a smile, grim and significant, hovers about so much of his lips as the heavy mustache will permit to be seen—"he said we should get into trouble, and so we have; at least so I have. I wonder what has become of him?"

He looks around in that vague fashion which one assumes when looking for something unknown, and shakes his head.

"Probably back at the hotel, or wherever you started from," he says.

"Then I cannot do better than follow him," Dulcie says, and she gathers her domino round her and looks about. "I wonder where it is?"

"What is the name of the hotel?" he asks.

Dulcie hesitates a moment, and she notices her hesitation, and smiles again the same grim smile.

"The Hotel de Vincel," she says, looking at him, no defiantly, but with something like bravado.

"Oh!" he says. "Yes, I know it. If you will permit me I will see you safely there."

There is something in his tone which rouses Dulcie's spirit, always lofty and on the alert.

"Thanks. If you will tell me where it is, I dare say I can find it. You have had trouble enough."

He does not deny it, but he looks at her curiously.

"I am afraid you will not find it so easily," he says. "You had better let me take you there. Your brother will be anxious."

"He is not my brother," said Dulcie.

"I beg your pardon, your father."

"Nor my father," she says, with a strong inclination to laugh.

"Pardon again; your husband," he says, with cool politeness.

At this Dulcie laughs outright.

"Nor my husband," she says. "To dispense with further questions and conjectures, he is nothing belonging to me."

"Oh!" he says, and the "oh!" is significant.

Dulcie colors, and her lips twitch.

Who is this stranger that he should presume to feel shocked?

"He is a very amiable and agreeable gentleman," she says, "and he kindly offered—er—well, consented to take me and see the Square and the illuminations."

"And kindly left you in the lurch!" he says, grimly.

A hot flush stains her face, and her eyes flash.

"Indeed he did not! Some carriages passed, and the crowd made a rush, and—and—it was no fault of his!"

"I beg his pardon," he says; "if you will take my arm I will restore you to his care."

But this Dulcie will not do; instead she draws herself to her full height, and walks beside him, her left hand holding her mask, her right clutching her domino.

So they walked along. He does not repeat his request, he keeps a solemn silence, and Dulcie, wounded in her tenderest part, her pride, stalks, or limps rather, by his side. Up to the present she had scarcely seen him, they have been standing almost in the dark, in a dusk made dark by contrast with the light in the Square, but she has quite made up her mind that he is an old fogey, stuck-up and disagreeable, and too intensely shocked by her impropriety to be even polite.

With this estimate fully formed, she does not trouble to glance at him for some time, but suddenly they come into the blaze of light proceeding from a gay and illuminated café, and she turns her head. As she does so a swift transition passes over her. He is not old; he is not by any means a fogey. He is young, he is handsome. More, far more than that, he is distinguished, noble-looking.

It is a surprise, so sudden, so complete, that she stops short.

Instantly his glance, which had been absent and preoccupied, falls upon her; and the same question which he had put to her in the Square forms on his lips.

"What is the matter?"

She falters.

"I have hurt my foot, I'm afraid," she says, woman-like, quick at subterfuge.

He offers his arm instantly.

"Lean on me," he says.

"No, thanks," she says; but with a quiet air of command he takes her hand gently enough, but still irresistibly, and draws it through his arm, and, wonderful to relate, Dulcie does not snatch it away.

Then they walk on in silence; they cannot walk quickly, for the crowd still possesses the street, but he steers her so deftly that she feels no inconvenience.

Presently they come to the hotel, and Dulcie stops.

"Thank Heaven!" she exclaims.

"And now for Aunt!"

He looks at her questioningly, and she laughs.

"My troubles are not yet over, but I am afraid you cannot assist me any further."

"I am sorry," he says, calmly.

"Thanks," she says, in her musical voice, "you have been very kind, very," and she emphasizes the last word. "But for you I should not have got home at all, I am afraid."

"Oh, yes," he says, in the conventional tone; "the Roman crowd is not like an English one—it is particularly polite."

"But it treads on your toes all the same," she says, with a laugh. By this time they have entered the hall of the hotel. Waiters are bustling to and fro, the crowd at the door has dispersed, whereby Dulcie knows the table d'hôte has begun.

"But, as you say, I am lucky to have escaped with the loss of only a shoe. Thanks, very much," and as she speaks, all unthinkingly, all unconsciously, she slips the mask from her face.

He has been looking at her coolly, coldly enough, hat in hand, but as she slips off the mask and flashes her bright, youthful beauty upon him, he starts—absolutely starts, and stares. All unconscious, she puts up her hand and smooths her hair.

"I don't think I was ever so hot in my life," she says, smiling down at him from the stair on which she has stopped. "I wanted some excitement. I have had it. Good-night, and thank you, once more;" and she holds out her hand.

He takes it, his eyes fixed on her face—the face which he has not seen for more than a minute, the face which has stricken him dumb and motionless.

"Good-night," he says, at last.

"But—but perhaps we shall meet again."

"Perhaps," she says, lightly; "who knows?" and with a smile that lights up her face, she turns and runs up the stairs.

He watches her until the thin, slight figure disappears, then, with a shake of the broad shoulders, he walks out into the street; but he stands a moment meditating, then comes back and re-enters the hall, and accosting the hotel clerk, enquired in the mahogany den at the bottom of the stairs, hands him a card.

"You have a room for me?"

"Quite right, sir," says the clerk, taking the card; "Number 49."

Your Boys and Girls.

Very often the mother, bent on training her child in the very best way, overlooks what is right before her eyes in straining to see into the future. She looks away ahead, forgetting that in the present she is laying the foundation of her child for that future.

For instance, when her baby is still in her arms, in the earliest days of its infancy, the mother should begin to teach it good habits, for it is at this stage of life, before any counter-influences can get in their work, even those of personality, that things are learned with the greatest possible ease.

It is not fair to dangle and play with a baby continuously while it is small and light and easy to manage, and then suddenly expect it to manage itself without any attention. Just so in everything. Try not to form habits in your child which are apt to be broken quickly or, rather, always avoid sudden changes for your baby.

HEAVY FIGHTING STILL IN PROGRESS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. The heavy fighting for the possession of Monte San Gabriele and other important positions northeast of Gorizia is still in progress, but the Italians are pressing home their attacks, despite desperate resistance. Although suffering heavy losses, the Austrians are battling tenaciously for the heights and positions. General Cadorna's latest report says that the Italians' pressure is continuing. The Italians have added 200 more to the number of prisoners taken in the fighting here. On the Carso and in the region of Hermada the Austrians have stopped their unsuccessful attacks, but the artillery battle rages, making the whole region an inferno. Only local infantry actions for the purpose of straightening out their lines is being carried out by the Italians. In the present drive the Italians have already taken 30,000 prisoners, and the total losses of the Austrians are estimated at 130,000. North-east of Gorizia the Austrians have been on the defensive. On the Carso and in the region of Hermada their offensive efforts have failed with great losses. The ground over which the Austrians charged this week in an effort to keep the Italians from advancing farther toward Trieste, is heaped with dead. German cavalry have been engaged with the Russian rearwards 40 miles east of Riga, but apparently the German advance guard has been slackened. Around Friedriehstadt, about 50 miles south-east of Riga, on the Dvina river, the retreating Russians set fire to several villages. There has been no infantry activity on a large scale on the western front. North of Breitenburg, in the Ypres region, the British have been compelled to withdraw from the positions occupied on Thursday. Around Lens the Canadians have been engaged in a hard fight with the Germans. On a part of the sector west of Lens, German counter attacks resulted in gains, but on the southern end of the sector the Canadians held and extended their positions. The Canadian front held now is a serious menace to the German positions. Along the Souche River on the French front, there was no infantry activity on Friday. Along the Aisne, in Champagne, and on both sides of the Meuse, the opposing artillery continue active.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 7. A special commission of the Ministry of War has published a draft of law restoring capital punishment in the area of the fighting front. The law is applicable to both soldiers and civilians for the same offences, for which capital punishment already has been restored at the front.

GERMANS ATTACK HOSPITALS.

LONDON, Sept. 7. The Germans yesterday made an aerial attack upon the American hospitals occupied by the St. Louis and Harvard contingents, situated on a coast village, killing one officer of the U. S. Army Medical Corps and wounding three others severely. Two others of the rank and file were killed and 16 wounded, five of the latter being Americans.

GERMANS DROP POISONED CANDY.

MONT BULLARD, France, Sept. 7. German aviators are continuing to drop poisoned candy in this region. Some poisoned sweets are wrapped up in paper bags. Other chocolate is wrapped up in lead coated paper. Strict orders have been issued to prevent the consumption of this candy.

ENEMY SHOW FIERCE RESISTANCE.

Canadian Army Headquarters in France, Sept. 7 (By Stewart Lyon). The enemy has shown fierce resistance at these forward moves, and has shelled our entire front heavily, using larger shells than has hitherto been seen in this area. Against clouds of gas released in this way, our men's masks are a perfect protection. A lying story that the Canadians take no prisoners, and that therefore, the Germans who meet them in battle may as well resist to death because they will be killed after capture, cropped up again to-day, this time in official enemy documents. Orders issued by the First Guard Reserve Division, as seen by recently captured prisoners, state that Lens is to be held at all costs, and that the Canadians attacking the city take no prisoners. The resistance put up on this part of the front is due in part, the prisoners think, to their belief in this statement. A measure of its untruth is seen when it is learned that since the beginning of this year's offensive in April, considerably over 7,000 prisoners have been taken by the Canadians. The lie may be necessary to preserve the fighting spirit of the men for the grim work of house to house warfare, in which the losses are always heavy in proportion to the number engaged. A single company of the regiment to which these prisoners belonged lost 16 killed and 18 wounded in one day's house to house fighting this week and came out after a few days in the front line with only 50 per cent. of its strength. Rifle grenades and bombs have been the principal cause of these casualties.

LOYD GEORGE.

BIRKENHEAD, Eng., Sept. 7. "England drew the sword in honor of her pledged word," said Lloyd George. "Far from being despondent about the crisis in the eastern theatre," the Premier said, "people should look forward to Russia with hope, because she would recover and play a greater part yet before the war is over, in saving the world from Prussian domination. Dark as may be the clouds in the Russian sky," he said, "there is sunshine on the banners of the Allies in all other theatres of the war. Germany may boast of her victory in the east against unresisting armies, but she has her reply in the success of the Allies in the west, especially in the recent success of Italy. America, who has now come into the conflict, has never known defeat, and on this occasion, too, she, with her allies, will triumph over her foe. For all these reasons I ask you to be of stout heart. There may be stony paths to climb, but we will climb them. The footpaths may be stained with blood, but we will reach the heights, and then in front of us will be the rich valleys and plains of the new world."

Concluding his speech, Lloyd George said: "With the whole united strength of our people we will win, but we shall only just win. It will need all our strength, so don't let us throw it away. It is a mighty foe which has set itself to destroy this Empire, and it will take all of our strength to beat it."

CARSON TALKS.

LONDON, Sept. 7. Coincidentally with the announcement that Premier Lloyd George will deliver an important speech on the war aims of the Allies at Birkenhead to-day, prominence is given by the newspapers to the statement by Sir Edward Carson to a correspondent, in which he declares: "There is a great deal of very loose and mischievous talk about peace. Some people seem to imagine that we have only to conclude a treaty with Germany and all will be well; but I should like to ask what will happen to them? Are the nations of the world to proceed with the preparations for the next conflict, to pursue their researches of science to the creation of still more deadly weapons of warfare, to spend their resources in the creation of enormous cohorts of airplanes and submarines for the destruction of unfortified towns and the murder of innocent women and children that inhabit them, to take advantage of the experience gained in this war in the improvement of lethal and poisonous gasses for the destruction of humanity; and are we to live in daily terror that at any moment another conflict may arise which might almost lead to the extinction of civilization?" Carson asserts that if this war is to end and end to all war, German militarism must be sufficiently crushed to make fresh aggression by her impossible for a long time to come, and until it is no longer possible for the German people themselves to be deluded by the legend of their invincibility in arms. In conclusion, Carson said that it was obvious that Great Britain must carry on the war until such victory is attained as will remove all danger of war in the future, and any man who tried, whatever his motive may be, to distract the attention of the country from this goal of deliverance, is the worst enemy of real peace.

PLOTTERS TO BE RELEASED AND EXILED.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 7. Newspapers to-day print a report that the Government has decided to release and exile abroad as the result of the recent exposure of the counter revolutionary plot, Grand Duke Michaelovitch, Grand Duke Paul, Mme. Veruboka, confidant of former Empress Alexandra, former Minister of Interior Kravstov and former Palace Commandant, General Voytkoff. Former Premier Sturmers, Secretary of the notorious Manassevitch Manulov, was sent abroad yesterday. It develops that the arrest of Madame Hirirov, said to have been one of the first conspirators in the plot, was effected when she was caught trying to enter the prison of former Emperor Nicholas, at Tobolsk, with a letter. Her correspondence was seized and she was dispatched to Petrograd. The Government has sent three commissaires to Tobolsk to watch the ex-Emperor.

FRIENDLY RELATIONS.

LONDON, Sept. 7. One of the most pleasant features of news of the week has been the details of the close and intimate friendly relations between the British and American troops in France, said Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, in his weekly talk to-day with the Associated Press. Nothing could be more gratifying to us, added Lord Cecil, than to know that the soldiers of the two countries are setting their seal of approval on our alliance. A number of officers have been assigned to assist in training your troops in France and you can be assured that we will do all in our power to aid and encourage this friendship and mutual assistance.

RIG'S PROTEST.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 7. "I am absolutely opposed to it," declared R. A. Rig, Secretary of the Trades and Labor Council, referring to the Franchise Legislation. "The country is talking into the grip of autocratic rule. The last semblance of democracy is vanishing, and if they are to continue along the lines they are now following, aristocracy will undoubtedly be firmly established in this country."

CUSTOMS COLLECTOR MALONE RESIGNS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7. Dudley Field Malone, customs collector of New York, tendered his resignation to President Wilson to-day, in protest against the failure of the President to advocate the passage of the Federal Suffrage Amendment, and because he permitted the imprisonment of the women who had been picketing the White House.

EFFECT OF ELECTION ACT.

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 7. The new Franchise Act, introduced in the Commons, makes a clean sweep of twelve hundred names from the voters' list in this Riding. It was learned that a strong appeal was made to Sir Wilfred Laurier to-day to vigorously oppose the measure to the interests of the electors in North Waterloo, both in the Commons and the Senate.

AN OFFICIAL DENIAL.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 7. The Dutch Foreign Minister denies the reports that Holland is being pressed by Germany for permission for submarines to use the River Scheldt. The minister adds that Holland under no consideration will allow the Scheldt to be used for naval purposes by any belligerent.

Turkeys, Ducks and Chicken at ELLIS.

WILL GET BASEBALL NEWS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7. American and Canadian troops in France are to receive a detailed cable description of the world's series of games, President Johnson, of the American League, said to-night. These stories of probably one thousand words, will be cabled daily at the conclusion of the games. The National Baseball Commission will stand the expense.

NO MORE WHISKEY!

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7. Manufacture of whiskey will cease throughout the nation at 11 o'clock to-morrow night, when the prohibition clause of the Food Act becomes effective. Millions of bushels of grain which would otherwise be ground up for whiskey will be released for food.

STIRRING STORIES OF BRAVERY.

LONDON, Sept. 7. Most stirring stories of bravery are related by the Official Gazette in announcing nine new Victoria Crosses. Five of the recipients are dead. The most remarkable was that of Sgt. Lieut. Thomas C. Ferguson, of the Northampton. A very bad situation had come up. It was impossible for his company to adhere to its original plan of deployment, and owing to the difficulties of the ground and the enemy's wire, he found himself with a Sergeant and five men only. Nevertheless, he carried out the attack, capturing the enemy trench and disposing of the garrison, after which his little force successfully resisted a heavy counter attack. Then assisted by an orderly only he attacked and captured an enemy machine gun and turned it upon his enemies, killing many of them and driving many others into the hands of the adjoining British force. Later, assisted by a Sergeant, he attacked and captured a second machine gun. He was then joined by other portions of his company, and so was able to consolidate the position. His conduct throughout is an amazing record of dash, gallantry and skill, for which no reward can be too great in view of the position won. The gallant officer was shortly afterwards killed by a sniper.

ITALIAN PRESSURE.

ROME, Sept. 7. Italian pressure against the Austrians in the region northeast of Gorizia is becoming decisive, the war office announced to-day. The enemy has suffered extremely heavy losses for several days in his desperate resistance.

VIOLENT ARTILLERY FIGHTING.

PARIS, Sept. 7. Violent artillery fighting occurred east of the Champagne and on the Verdun front, says to-day's official announcement.

RAIDS REPULSED.

LONDON, Sept. 7. Hostile raids were successfully repulsed in the vicinity of Arrmentieres and near Lens, says to-day's official statement.

FRENCH MINISTRY RESIGNS.

PARIS, Sept. 7. The resignation of the Ribot Ministry was decided upon to-day.

BY CARL ED

Remington U.M.C.

Duck shooting days are coming!
Can't you feel it in your bones? Better pay a hurry-up call to the Remington U.M.C. dealer and get ready for the "big drive." He'll hand you the right "dope" so your good gun will surely get its share of the feathered beauties.

If it's a Remington U.M.C. Shot Gun—you're safe!

The good, "old reliable" Remington U.M.C. Pump Gun, with its bottom ejection, solid breech and easy sliding positive action, 6 shot, is sure a result getter. It's a beauty. Its easy balance and fast sure work give you that "old shooter" feeling. You have confidence in your arms and ammunition and your "bag" shows it.

If you want Fast Smokeless Shells try the steel-lined, aristocratic "Arrow" or "Nitro Club"—sportsmen nickname them "speed shells". All the drive of the powder is behind the shot, where it ought to be. You'll like the "Remington," smokeless, too. Popular for field and trap.

But—see the dealer who displays the Red Ball trade mark of Remington U.M.C. He'll supply your every arm and ammunition need.

ADDRESSES CONSTABULARY.

At 9 o'clock this morning there was a full dress parade of the Constabulary for the purpose of receiving the new Inspector General, Mr. C. H. Hutchings, K.C., J.P. The members of the Police Force and Fire Department were drawn up within the Barracks Square under command of Supt. Grimes. On entering the grounds Mr. Hutchings was received by a salute, after which he addressed the officers and men in encouraging and happy terms. He said he recognized the responsible duties and the class of work the appointment cast upon him and in the fulfilment of those duties he had no doubt he would receive the undivided support and loyalty of the members of the Constabulary as was accorded his predecessors. He also referred to the fact that the work to be done by both branches of the service should be such as to ensure the sympathy, respect and confidence of the general public. He regretted that a great number of people were disposed to regard members of the police force, who were entrusted with protecting their lives and property, as their enemies. They were not the enemies of any man but the enemies of offences committed, and he expressed the hope that by exercising deference and courtesy a good opinion would be created and that the high position occupied by the force would meet with the respect deserved. He also informed the men that he considered it an important part of his duties to look after their welfare, comfort and advancement, and assured them that as far as it lay in his power it would be done, at the same time expecting their devoted attention to duty, strict adherence to discipline and cheerful obedience to all orders and commands. He pointed out that he did not come amongst them as a stranger or a novice, as the number of years he was in the Justice Department, which brought him in contact with the administrative work of the police force, his knowledge as a legal practitioner and his 12 years' experience in city military service would be advantageous to them as well as to himself in the conduct of matters respecting his new position. He then paid a tribute to Mr. Sullivan, after which he put the men through the manual exercises before dismissing them.

Finance Extraordinary

The Advocate continues to correct us and to present original views on finance. They remind us of a story of a certain bridge-player, who had so high an idea of his proficiency as to write a book on his favourite game expounding some of his theories. He sent it to a well-known expert for an opinion and received in due course a note in which the writer stated that "it appeared to be an interesting game, but he preferred bridge." The Advocate's ideas on incomes and profits are decidedly new and interesting, but we prefer the accepted theories. It concedes us the honesty of calling attention to the obvious flaw in our argument of Thursday, viz., that incomes are not profits. We are glad that we possess some honesty, but we certainly had not the stupidity to make any such statement. Of course incomes are not profits. They are losses, we presume. A man's income is what he loses on the year. It may interest the Advocate to know that Webster's dictionary says that "Net income is subdivided into interest on the capital invested and PROFITS over and above this interest, or net income in the narrow sense." Evidently a revised edition of Webster is necessary.

But the matter is quite irrelevant. The question to be answered is not whether incomes are profits, but whether profits are incomes, whether, in fact, a tax on profits is not a tax on incomes, a tax on business profits a tax on business incomes. Anyone but the editor of the Advocate will admit that it is. The strongest champions of the Act have admitted it. The Minister of Justice on August 17th stated in the House that "This tax is really an income tax and does not take into consideration capital at all." What do the profits of a business represent but a collection of incomes? Those interested in the profits on which the tax is paid are paying a tax on their incomes, pure and simple. The comparison with the foreign income taxes is perfectly just and pertinent. The sole difference between the two systems is that in Canada and the States they have adopted the sound principle of taxing the incomes after, here the vicious and unsound principle of taxing them before, they are distributed.

How are we concerned in any way with the incomes of any "workers," on whom the Advocate lavishes black type, we cannot see. They are not even concerned with them in the States and Canada unless they amount to $4,000 or more. How many employes in any business make $4,000 a year? Strange as it may appear to the Advocate, we were discussing the cases of those who pay the tax, not of those who do not. We will crystallise the whole matter in a specific example. It is felt in the States and in Newfoundland that business men are making large incomes and should contribute part of them to the treasury. Let us suppose that a man doing business in New York makes $7,000, and another doing the same kind of business in St. John's makes the same amount—that is, would make it but for the tax. Is it not fair to compare the taxes which they pay? The forger pays an income tax of $180. We do not know what the local man pays unless we know what his share is of the profits of his business. Let us assume that it is one-tenth. In that case he will pay an INCOME TAX (the capitals are for the benefit of the Advocate) of $1,340—only seven and a half times as much as the other! Call the tax by any name you choose, there are the facts and there is the comparison. One of the worst absurdities of the Act is the fact that the amount such a taxpayer will pay must depend on his share of the whole profits. If, in the case given, it was less than the one tenth we have assumed, the tax will be even higher; and in no case will it be less than $800. That was the whole gist of our "boistered up argument," which the Advocate has fallen altogether to understand.

Finally our contemporary states that those liable to the tax have openly announced that they do not object to the amount of the tax. That sort of statement is probably good enough for the Advocate's public, who are expected to swallow anything. Three or four individuals at the outside, who are among those who will be the least severely hit by the Act, may have made such an announcement. The number of those liable to taxation under it must run into thousands. It would be better to wait until next March to learn how many are satisfied with the justice of the tax. In conclusion, we advise the Advocate, before it pronounces any argument "palpably weak," to try to understand it, and as to its own, to consult a dictionary for the meaning of the difficult words it uses.

Barbour of the mail steamer Hawk, plying on the Northern Labrador, wires as follows to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries:—"Got to Eclipse, end of schooners, last trip; fish scarce from Ramah; north from Ramah south fishery extra good; majority of schooners well fitted; quite a number of schooners north of Ramah. Coal vessel reached destination Sept. 2nd; when we arrived practically all gone; no account of any wreck or weather storm past few days."

Rule As to Motor Car Headlights.

Motorists' attention is called to the following, which was agreed to at the last regular weekly meeting of the Municipal Council:—"It is desirable in the interests of public safety that the headlights on motor cars and motor cycles should be fitted with lenses which diffuse the light, such as the "Warner" and "Safer-Light" lenses, and owners of cars are hereby requested to furnish themselves with the same as soon as possible. It is further suggested that, as this type of lens does not project a ray of light to any great distance, the use of such lenses shall be considered a compliance with the regulation respecting the reduction of such headlights."

A letter was read from the Minister of Justice stating that he had taken steps to have the traffic laws improved in accordance with the suggestion of the Association.

H. W. LeMessurier, Esq., C.M.G., also wrote saying that the H. C. L. Commission had investigated the high cost of butterine and came to the conclusion that the present prices were justified. The matter will again be taken up at the next full meeting of the Board of Food Control.

West Coast Circuit Closed.
The Supreme Court on circuit on the West and South West coasts completed the work at Placentia yesterday. Hon. Justice Kent and the officials of the Court, Sub-Sheriff W. J. Carroll, Clerk of the Court Simon Butler, and Crown Prosecutor C. E. Hunt, B.L., are due to arrive in the city by the Placentia train this afternoon. Messrs. L. E. Emerson and Leo Carter, representing the Bar, and Crier John Cahill arrived yesterday by the Placentia. The Court left St. John's on Aug. 9th by train for Bay of Islands, where they joined the Fions and proceeded to Bonne Bay. Leaving there they called at the chief settlements along the west and south coasts to Placentia. The circuit was the busiest for many years.

NORTHERN COURT STARTS MONDAY.

His Lordship the Chief Justice, accompanied by Sub-Sheriff W. J. Carroll, Clerk of the Court, D. F. Kent, and Crier John Cahill leave for the Northern Circuit on Monday morning. Mr. C. E. The first session will be held at Tilt Cove and the continuing sessions at the important places along the coast as far south as Trinity.

Tea Prices AGAIN ADVANCING!

Shipments just to hand of Our Celebrated MOUNT VIEW TEA
Cost us 5c. per lb. over previous shipments. We have a limited quantity left from previous shipments which we shall retail till cleaned up at 55c. per lb.

and the price will then be 60c. lb. This Tea is well worth 60c. lb. but the early buyer can save 5c. per lb. We trust that our customers will appreciate the fact that we have advised them ahead when tea prices were advancing and have protected them as far as possible. The tremendous freight rates are responsible for the rises in the price of teas. Today the freight and insurance on a pound of tea from Ceylon is 16 cents per pound. This compares with about 3c. in normal times.

We have cheaper teas in stock than our "Mount View," but the higher grade teas are the most economical and "Mount View" Tea is becoming a great favourite and we would like you to try it.

A School of Arts and Crafts.

On our front page appears an advertisement announcing the opening of a School of Arts and Crafts by Mr. James Murdoch, late Art Master of the Methodist College staff. Mr. Murdoch fills a need that has been keenly felt here for some years past, particularly since the death of Mr. Nichols. He has opened a studio at "Sunny-side," Rennie's Mill Road, and has a comprehensive prospectus to offer, including lessons in fine art, drawing, and painting, and in many kinds of artistic commercial work. His tuition should appeal both to those who have an amateur fondness for art and to those who wish to train their talent and turn it to profitable account. He makes a specialty of interior decorating, which he studied for three years with a big London firm. He is a graduate of the Royal College of Art and so is well qualified to give expert tuition. Those whom certificates do not convince would be most favorably impressed by a visit to Mr. Murdoch's studio and an inspection of his work. We bespeak for him the patronage which his abilities and enterprise and the cause of art deserve.

THE LION AND HIS CUBS.
LONDON, To-Day.
Reuter's has received the following authoritative statement regarding the respective parts played by the Dominions and Great Britain in the war:
"In America and elsewhere the fable is current that large numbers of trained soldiers fit for service overseas are retained in idleness in the United Kingdom. The authors of this fable would like to spread the report that Britain's reserves of men are exhausted. This is entirely fictitious.
Millions are stated to be in reserve in this country and include all men trained and training to be in readiness to provide British drafts in the five theatres of war; also sick and wounded, those unfit for service, training staffs and labor and administrative units necessary at the main base of the Empire. As regards the comparative efforts of the Motherland and Dominions, in the actual war areas, excluding troops garrisoning India and defending ports throughout the world, the proportion of troops of the Motherland to the troops of the Dominions is between five and six to one. It must be borne in mind that this preponderance of troops of the Motherland is natural, since the proportion of the white male population of the United Kingdom to that of the Dominions is over three to one. Some had thought that the Dominions troops were being more freely used than those of the Motherland. This was a fallacy. The proportion of the Motherland troops of casualties on the western front is higher than that of the Dominions. Following are the figures in the four big battles of the Somme, Arras, Ypres and Messines.
The divisions engaged from the Motherland and Dominions respectively are: At the Somme, five to one; Arras, three to one; two to one at Ypres and seven to one at Messines. Two to one is the ratio of the casualties per division of the Motherland and Dominions respectively: At the Somme, five to four; Arras, seven to six; Ypres, five to one, and Messines, eleven to thirteen.

U. S. GREAT SHIPBUILDING PRO- GRAMME.

WASHINGTON, To-Day.
The United States Government will build a great fleet of merchant vessels from ten thousand to twelve thousand tons, capable of attaining a speed of 16 knots or better, in its efforts to defeat the German submarine, supply its troops in Europe and carry foodstuffs and munitions to its allies.
Not less than 150 cargo ships, aggregating from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000, will be built under the new shipping board plan, and not one of them will make less than sixteen knots an hour, while many of them will be capable of eighteen knots.

ONLY 3 ITALIAN SHIPS SUNK.

ROME, To-Day.
Only three Italian ships were sunk during the week ending Sept. 2nd, it is officially announced. On all seas, says the statement, three steamers were sunk and one small auxiliary sailing vessel was damaged by a torpedo attack. It was towed into port.

ROUNDING THEM UP IN AFRICA.

HAVRE, To-Day.
The following official communication dealing with the campaign in East Africa has been issued by the Belgian War Office: The Germans have retreated to the south bank of the Kellimero River in East Africa before a convergent advance of Belgian and British troops.

SMALL FRENCH LOSSES.

PARIS, To-Day.
The official weekly report of French Merchantmen sunk by mines or submarines during the seven days ending Sept. 2nd shows that three vessels of more than 1600 tons were sent to bottom. No vessels in the category of less than 1600 tons were sunk.
One vessel was unsuccessfully attacked by a submarine. No fishing vessels met with disaster.

THE POPE'S MOTIVES.

LONDON, To-Day.
The Daily News prints an article by a diplomatic correspondent in which an interview with Pope Benedict is given regarding peace. The account of the interview shows that while the Pope is Austrophile, Austria did not dictate the recent peace proposals. Distrust of Russia and the fear of offending powerful German Catholics are alleged as some of the motives behind the appeal.

POLICE COURT.—Six motor car owners were before court to-day for driving contrary to the regulations.
Three defendants were fined, two cases dismissed and another postponed.

U. S. EMBARGO ON GOLD.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
President Wilson to-night placed an embargo, effective on September 10th, on the exportation of coin bullion and currency. At the same time he authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to license such exportations where, in the opinion of the Federal Reserve Board, they are not harmful to the public interest. The effect of the embargo, which applies to all nations, will be to place absolute control over gold exports in the hands of Secretary McAdoo and the Federal Reserve Board. Officials believe that the measure will go far toward conserving the huge store of gold accumulated in this country since the beginning of war, a store which recently has been drawn upon rather heavily by Japan, Mexico and Spain. Strict adhesion to the embargo is regarded as unlikely and undesirable. Curtailment of the free movement of gold to the Orient appears probable.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, To-day.
The official statement from British Headquarters in France and Belgium issued to-night reads: On the Lens front our line of advanced posts before Avion and east of Fleu Leauvete have been pushed forward. Except for the shelling of some of our positions at La Bassee and east and north of Messines, the hostile artillery has shown less activity. On Thursday bad weather caused a diminution of the great aerial activity of the previous two days. A certain amount of bombing was carried out during the day, and over a hundred bombs dropped on the various fronts.

Two enemy machines and one German observation balloon were brought down. Two other hostile machines were driven down out of control.

fought Frank Moran, of Pittsburg, in a 10-round bout here to-night. Smith weighed 180 pounds and Moran 195.

MIGHTY QUEBEC!

QUEBEC, To-day.
At an anti-conscription meeting which was attended by eight thousand people to-night, Armand Lavor-gne was the principal speaker, while the other orators were chiefly young lawyers. The ex-member for Mont-agny said conscription was the result of the false and criminal principle that the Colonies should take part in an Imperial War, which principle had been recognized by different political parties. "Only one man can save the nation," Mr. Lavorgne said, "and that man has to say is that the province

BATTING AVERAGES SETTLED.

Editor Baseball Column:
After a very careful perusal of Spalding's Baseball Guide, and several hours of careful study of all the dope between its covers, I was near stricken with a brainstorm, I accidentally came in contact with the following item which I may say gives our genial friend—Doc Power—the decision over me on strikes, and my most profuse apologies are his. This is taken from Spalding's Official Baseball 1916 Guide, page 189, and is as follows:—

"Notes: Groh and Griffiths of Cincinnatti played 160 games (including 164 scheduled and 6 tie games) being the greatest number of games participated in by players in a regular National League championship schedule."
Both these players averages were made up. I find, on the number of times at bat in the full 160 games, so that the averages made by the players in the B. I. S.-Wanderers game will count.

I may say in conclusion that I cannot find any rule in reference to keeping averages, but was under the impression that as a tie game was called "No Game" the batting and fielding averages did not count.

Yours truly,
FAN.

WATCH MONDAY'S COLUMN.

In view of the above the batting averages in the tied B.I.S.-Wanderers game will count, and therefore we propose to publish on Monday the also a guest. An enjoyable concert

Accidents Will Happen.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Accidents will happen" is the best regulated families; they do in ours." There is a dear lady in our town who has a way of quoting that quaint old saying whenever something unforeseen and upsetting happens in her household. For instance, one of the children, with childhood's characteristic awkwardness, born of its characteristic eagerness, tips over the cream pitcher. "We'll have it cleaned up before you know it."

"Never mind," says this dear lady quickly, "accidents will happen in the best regulated families; they do in ours, get the cloth of the second nail under the sink and bring me the wash basin full of water and we'll have it cleaned up before you know it."

And then, while the child obeys, she turns the conversation to some interesting topic.

Could anything be a greater contrast to the way minor accidents are so often permitted to cloud the sunshine of the household? A sharp rebuke from the mother, an impatient remark from the father, tears from the child. Awkwardness for every one else. A meal or a day spoiled just for the lack of patience not with deliberate naughtiness but with an entirely unintentional blunder.

The Family Custom To Exaggerate Small Mishaps.

Nor is it only with children's mistakes that this impatient, irritable attitude is taken. There are many families in which the habit of being irritable and impatient when anyone makes a mistake or has an accident of any sort, is the family custom. Instead of seeing how easily they can pass over any such mishap, they seem to try to see how much they can make of it, how uncomfortable they can make the unfortunate cause of it. And in return, the unfortunate cause of it deals out the same treatment to other members of the family when they make some slip.

They Feel Badly Enough Anyway

When I praised the dear lady for the gracious way in which she dealt with her daughter's mishap, she said, "The way I feel about it is that anyone who has made a slip like that feels badly enough anyway. That is no time to make them feel worse."

That's pretty good philosophy, isn't it?

Of course if anyone, child or grown-up, is deliberately, selfishly careless and uncontrolled, that's another matter. But even in that case, I think that it is better to devise some way to let them share in the inconvenience caused (as the lady did by having the child help her clear up) than by flinging irritably out at them at the time.

Placentia Notes.

Fearn's sch. Mary and Mildred, Capt. Jim Kemp, arrived here to-day from St. John's. She loads fish for the foreign markets. Her appearance is very much improved since her rig has been changed.

The new vessel being built for G. C. Fearn by our capable and now famous builder, Mr. Palfrey, is nearing completion, and it now looks as though she will take her first dip early in October.

Repairs to the steamer Beverley are about completed, and she now looks a first class ship and will be sufficient proof that her purchase was not the work of an ass. We wish that more men the type of Mr. Fearn would come to our Bay to do business. Thanks to his ability and enterprise Jersey Side is to-day a Beehive of industry. Scores of men are employed around his premises, and the sound of the hammer and saw, caulking mallet and axe can be heard from daylight till dark, which are sure indications of prosperity in any of our outport settlements, and in Mr. Kemp his agent here, he has a most capable and reliable man. We wish his firm abundant success.

The firm of James Murphy & Sons are also making things hum this summer. Frank and Phil are not too slow, and are not to be found in bed after sunrise. Judging from their store and staff their business is rapidly increasing. They are doing a big business in cod oil this year, having secured a splendid American market which warrants their paying fancy prices. Murphys deserve to win out.

Mr. Alex Collins, who bought Bradshaw's property on the Point, has made some extensive improvements there this summer, and as he is a hustler and a great believer in a bright future for "Ye Ancient Capital" as he believes (as I do also) that in the very near future Placentia will again become the centre of the Bank fishery, and rumor says that a Banker will operate from Collins' Point in 1918. God speed the day. I will have more to say on this subject later on.

Two very pleasing events took place here during the week, when Andrew Whelan, son of Thomas Whelan, Jersey Side, and Joseph Connors, son of Michael Connors, of the Swans, Placentia, who are students for the Priesthood at Holy Heart Seminary, Halifax, and are spending their vacation here, were met at their homes by friends and presented with beautiful and useful gifts, thus showing the high esteem in which they are held by their fellow-townsmen. Mr. Whelan was given a complete set of fifteen volumes of The Catholic Encyclopedia and his class mate Mr. Connors received a purse of gold—both leave in a few days to resume their studies.

Our zealous and highly esteemed Parish Priest, Rt. Rev. Monsignor Reardon, never tires of adding to the beauty of our magnificent Church and surroundings, is now installing an electric plant to light the church, and two memorial windows are soon to be placed in the church in memory of Fathers Irvine and Clancy, both of whom were at one time Parish Priests of Placentia. I understand that His Grace will be here some time this

I notice by to-day's Herald that the genial Frank Morris has been appointed a Judge. Yes, Frank is "a good judge," and though I was not on his side of politics in the last election, I gave one to Frank, dropping out Mr. Summers, but I see now that Mr. Summers has dropped in. I wish them both a long and successful career in their respective positions. I do not know the other appointees, but hope that their administration may be blessed with prudence thus assuring success. It is also rumored that Mr. Devereaux and Mr. Walsh are likely to get their plums when the tree ripens a little more. By all means gentlemen take it while it's fresh and ripe, for nothing but sour grapes awaits you in this district.

I see that Honourables McGrath, Gift and Bennett are gone to Canada. When is the Premier and Honourable Mr. Coaker going? Oh for the Grand Old Liberal Party and the incorruptible Sir Robert Bond. Bond! Your King and Country need you! This is a win the election slogan, pass it to the trumpeters. VIGILANCE, Placentia, Sept. 6th, 1917.

WEEK END NOTES.

(I. C. M.)

In November last when I wrote a tribute to Theobald on his retirement from the Telegram columns, I had not the least idea of continuing my writings weekly, nor did I dream of having sufficient to write about for so long a period; but each week seemed to suggest something worth while, and the result has been that instead of finishing in the winter, I am writing into the autumn.

I have been enabled to do this by the encouragement of the kind friends who from time to time have spoken to me, and written to me. From far and near words of approval have come, and if these notes have been worth while, and if they have done any good, then some of the merit must be attributed to those who read them, for they have helped the writer very much by telling him they thought his notes were "clean, independent, and impartial." They were meant to be clean, independent and impartial, and when those principles cannot be upheld, there will be at least one contributor less to our press.

My one object in writing has been for the good of our fair land. From the first year that I began to travel around our Island Home I have held the opinion that we do not know her, and that we have a misconception of her beauty and of her possibilities. The best has never been done for her, and at the critical moment in her history, when development should have taken place, the tide turned in the wrong direction, and stagnation took the place of industry; and then followed migration, and migration has sapped the vigor and beauty of our population; and between it all, we now have one quarter of a million people, when we should have a million and a quarter, the least we should have.

The question of population for Newfoundland is one that must not be overlooked, because certain it is that we are annually losing a lot of our people, and season after season they pour across the Gulf. We think the loss by war a large one, and so it is, but our steady migratory loss is greater than that of the war. But there are certain causes for migration, and if it is to be avoided, and the leakage stopped, these causes will have to be abolished. Our readers are aware that those who leave us belong to the juvenile class, and mostly to the female sex of the working people. I know this class of people well, and for fifty years I have worked with them, and know their burdens, and have felt their disappointments, and I know just how it is with them. They all have but one common burden, but one common struggle—it is the struggle for bread, for existence, the struggle to make both ends meet.

The struggle of the working man and his family will never be known, nor can it be known, only by those who feel it and endure it; and into whose soul the iron has entered. The average working man has to send his children to work at an early age; and it is at this point that the cause of much of our migration arises. A girl goes to work in a shop, or in a factory, or in an office, and she is offered the menial pay of six or seven, or eight dollars a month. She offers as a nurse in our hospitals and she gets four dollars a month, but is found in food and lodging. A lad goes into a shop or an office, and he is expected to give two or three years service for less than will support him; or he goes at a trade, and we offer him enough to starve him—in my time it was a dollar a week and take it up, and put in seven years, the most of which was akin to slavery—for boys had very little rights: or at least I found it so.

This matter of small pay for girls and lads is one of the principal causes of our migration, and it should be looked into and remedied by the proper authorities. Surely an apprentice boy ought to be worth at least three dollars a week to begin with, and he ought to be worth six dollars a week towards the end of his apprenticeship. Why oppress him? Why keep him poor? Why wrong him? Why not give him a chance to feel his birth-born, right and instill into him the feelings of a true citizen and a loyal Briton? Why take a girl's labor for pay that will not give her a livelihood? To do so is but to discount her worth, and to degrade her womanhood. It was meant that men should toil for their bread. Why then not give them enough to buy bread? And why not the beginners get sufficient to enable them to help their parents?

This may seem an indirect cause of migration, but it is a cause and a vital cause at that; and it is one of the hardships in our family life. Every lad and every girl who goes to work is an asset to our commercial life, and to our industrial institutions; and they should be counted as an asset to their employer, and as a help to their parents or guardians. In vain we educate them and qualify them for life's duties; when they step out into the arena of life's toil, and take their places in the labor market, we give them for their services the pay of slaves. For this age of advancement it will not do; and if our young people are to be kept at home, and if they are to be encouraged to love their own land, they will have to get a higher rate of wages when they begin their work.

No monetary value is to be compared to the lads and lassies of our homes; they surpass all the gold of all the banks, and not one of them could be replaced by the wealth of the State. They are the nation's life and the country's hope, and unless they be shown that their worth is recognized, and that they are of some help to their parents, and some value to themselves, it is not to be wondered at if they lose heart, and seek a home elsewhere, and thus give to other countries that industry which should be given to their own.

Newfoundland is worth the best her sons can give her, and her sons are worth the best that she can give them. She is rich in mineral wealth, and forest growth; and her fisheries have yet to double their value. She is a rich country. Let us see to it then that the best is done for our young people, and that we bequeath to them a better chance than it was possible for us to have had. It is their right, we owe it to them; let us then do our duty towards them.

Indian Island Notes.

The schr. Carrie Steer arrived from the Labrador last week, she hails for 450 quintals.

Five of our sick folk left by the Prospero to go to St. Anthony. Today we had the sad news that one of them, Mr. George Kendon, died at the hospital just after arrival. He leaves to mourn a wife in delicate health and three small children. The sympathy of the whole community goes out to the sorrowing family.

During the past few days two of our oldest inhabitants have passed to the Great Beyond, namely, Mrs. Julia Colish and Mrs. George Perry. Both served their day and generation well and will be greatly missed; funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. A. Wilkinson.

Mr. Harold Perry left by Clyde on Wednesday for Bishop's Falls, where he will teach during the year. We wish him much success.

Mrs. W. Blundon has ordered a monument in memory of her son, Thomas, who was killed in action while serving with the Canadians in France. It will be erected in the Methodist cemetery.

Man Killed; Another Drowned.

Patrick Ryan, an aged and sickly man, fell over his fence near his dwelling house at Plate Cove, Bonavita Bay, on Monday last, and was instantly killed. There was no sign of life in the body when picked up.

John Wesley Edwards, a fisherman of Change Islands, was presumably swamped while returning from the fishing grounds in his boat recently. He was in a punt by himself and was seen by some men from the hills to hoist a sail, but after a few minutes his sail disappeared. The accident happened a mile from shore and the punt was the last to leave the fishing grounds. It was too risky for boats to go in search of the body as the water was too rough. The following day the punt was found near Fogo Island Point, but the body was not recovered. The deceased fisherman leaves a wife and two children to mourn his loss.

Information of the above tragic occurrence has been received by Deputy Minister of Justice Summers.

Typhoid Outbreak at Change Islands

THE LIGHTNING ROD.

The lightning rod is a substitute for fire insurance which answers every purpose except when the hired man lights a cigarette in the hay-mow. It is one of the noblest protective devices on the market, being far superior to an accident policy which prohibits the owner from being killed outside of the country in which he resides.

The lightning rod was invented and brought to its present state of perfection by Benjamin Franklin, a former Philadelphia citizen with a taste for mechanics and rye bread. Mr. Franklin was the first American to discover that lightning could be handled with the bare hands without leaving any unpleasant effects or funeral expenses. When we think of the large number of new red barns which have been saved from destruction by the lightning rod, we are forced to believe that Mr. Franklin performed a greater service to humanity than the man who gave us the non-stalling gas meter.

The lightning rod consists of a long stretch of wire which protrudes above the roof at so much per foot. When a lightning bolt attempts to pass it, it is impaled upon the rod and thus prevented from raining the family cow, and other agricultural implements. Some farmers are so skeptical concerning the merits of this device that they will not have a lightning rod on the place, and they will not be converted even when lightning creeps down the chimney and cremates an unsuspecting St. Bernard dog. Does anybody suppose that the Chicago fire would ever have happened if Mrs. O'Leary's cow had been equipped with a lightning rod, properly installed?

The bolt is impaled upon the rod and thus prevented from ruining the family cow.

If the lightning rod could be adapted to the human form and sold on a small payment down, fewer people would be killed while standing under a catalpa tree during a thunder shower. The number of people who now curl up and crawl under the bed-clothes every time the lightning begins to show its teeth at the window would also be reduced. A lightning rod might be a trifle uncomfortable to sleep in, but it can't be any worse than a pair of pajamas which have come from the laundry with a six-ply coat of starch.

It is highly discouraging to the owner of a new lightning rod to have a stroke of lightning miss the rod entirely and set fire to a barn with twenty-foot posts. The man who can retain his faith in science after such a trial as this ought to have no trouble in believing that woman sprung from man's rib.

LOSING A FRIEND.

I had a friend, I loved him well, we ne'er had fuss or friction; he'd sit with me in my hotel, and talk of verse and fiction. We'd talk of Shelley, Moore and Scott, of Coleridge, Burns and Dickens; such conversation hits the spot, the jaded mind it quickens. Now nearly every modern skate will only talk of getting, of stocks and bonds and real estate, of rents and contract letting. And so I loved the man who spied of books and those who perused them, from Homer down to Eugene Field, to roast them or defend them. And then one night he sought my den, and told a tale of sorrow, and ere he left he borrowed ten, which he'd return to-morrow. 'Twas long ago, and nevermore my friend and I forgot; he does not knock upon my door, but shuns my portal, rather. No more he makes the keen remark that set my pulses rumbling, but slides into an alley dark where'er he sees me coming. I can't get close enough to say, "That debt I have forgiven; oh, visit me, the good old way."

Barbers Itch Eczema

BARBERS' Itch is in reality a form of eczema. The delicate skin, becomes irritated from shaving, a little infection gets in, and soon burning, stinging eczema is set up.

Fortunately, there is cure for Barbers' Itch and Eczema in the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and once you have made the acquaintance of this soothing, healing ointment, you will always keep it on hand to apply after shaving. Not every time, but whenever there is roughness or irritation of the skin.

Mr. Chas. A. Darbury, Westford, Ont., states:—"While out in the Northwest I caught barbers' Itch, and anyone who has had it will admit that it is not at all pleasant. It began on my neck below the chin, and spread until I became almost blind. It itched so bad that I had to scratch it, and that only made it worse."

"A friend of mine told me to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I did so. The application of this ointment gave prompt relief to the itching, and it was not many weeks until I was entirely freed of this annoying ailment."

Some of the ingredients of Dr. Chase's Ointment are very expensive, and for this reason imitations and substitutes are offered because they afford greater profits to the dealer. They will only disappoint you. The genuine Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment will positively cure.

THE BEAUTY SLEEP.

Night is the physiological time for beauty culture. It is the time for erasing the care lines of the day and making ready for rebuilding. It is the time for recuperation, of gaining strength, of repairing nerves. If you wish to rise with a sunshiny face, go to sleep with a mind free from in-harmony. Put away all envy, hatred and malice. Set yourself at peace with the world, yourself and your fellow men and women.

Take relaxation in simple exercises for tense muscles. Don't tumble into bed with the tired thought. You have to breathe whether you are tired or not. Twenty five deep breaths with quiet nerves, start the circulation and loosen the tension of body and mind. A warm bath will do as much good as an hour's sleep.

Brush your hair with long, even strokes, breathing rhythmically meanwhile, then massage the scalp. It will clear your head and take away that feeling of being "bound with bands" which is the sign of a tired brain. Sit before the mirror in a strong light and very carefully smooth out all lines of worry or perturbation or unhappiness. Work over the lines about the eyes and across the brow with some simple lotion. Try this one:

Half an ounce each of lanoline and coconut oil, quarter ounce each of white wax and spermaceti, one ounce of oil of sweet almonds. Melt together and, while stirring, add half an ounce of orange flower water and a few drops of benzoin.

Household Notes.

If cereal is a regular breakfast dish let it be different every morning.

All dried vegetables must be stored where they are safe from moisture.

Mushroom can be dried as well as other vegetables, but must be dried fresh.

For young children the iron in vegetables is safer than the iron in meat.

In buying split peas always get those that have had their skins removed.

Keep a paper or pasteboard funnel with which to fill the coffee grinder.

Use light colored manila paper to singe chickens and there will be no smoking.

When you eliminate one article of food remember to replace it with another.

A heavy meat salad should always be regarded as the main dish of a meal.

Put the garbage can on wooden casters and it will be found a saving of energy.

Children should be trained to be particular about washing their hands before meals.

Velour hats are trimmed with cross stitch.

A Strong Plea for the Regiment. A Duty and Our Neglect of It.

August 31st, 1917.
Editor Evening Telegram.

In writing this letter I fully realize that I am handling no light task, but that, in itself, cannot deter me from the undertaking, so "quod scripsi, scripsi."

I have watched, as we all have who are interested in the great cause of Right battling for life against Might in bloody Europe, the doings of those splendid boys of ours in Gallipoli and France. How they have won honor upon honor and carried a thrill to the hearts of the whole Empire.

But now that we have shouted "Rule Britannia and sung God Save the King" (the occupation of "killing the Kaiser with our mouths" being still, however, a favorite one) what then? The 1st Nfld. Regiment is still in Flanders. The last casualty list, yet imperfect as I write, show the need of reinforcements for that regiment, and our answer last week was—three men!

There is, outside of St. John's, not the slightest attempt being made at recruiting. The Government declines to bring in any Selective Draft Bill, yet it has been proven beyond peradventure that recruiting is too spasmodic and uncertain to keep up the steady stream of recruits necessary to fill the gaps.

It is common knowledge that once before our Regiment came near having to be withdrawn and sent to do pioneer work, and it was no secret among the boys that mutiny was talked of in such an event. Ours is the responsibility of not keeping reserves supplied, and now that the new post of Minister of Militia has been created the responsibility rests with the Government. Why does not the St. John's press with all its power get into the game with the same vigor as that with which it would wage an election campaign? With the exception of the Telegram there has been a half-heartedness about its efforts. Why? Do the papers fear something, or what is the inexplicable reason they are neither cold nor hot? Hon. Mr. McGrath, that dauntless of election fighters, where is his vigorous style in beating the recruiting drum? That master of vituperation, who flays his political adversaries so pitilessly—Hon. Mr. Coaker—where are his virile words; and why does one always miss seeing his name among the speakers at any patriotic function?

What did Sir Edward Morris mean when on his return from the Imperial Conference he told us that measures would be immediately taken to keep up the strength of the 1st Nfld. Regiment? Surely the appointment of Hon. Mr. Bennett to the war portfolio was not the "measure" he referred to. Is there a nigger in the wood pile, and why can't he be located?

It is argued by those who do not stop to think, and by some who do not escape responsibility, that the Selective Draft system would upset our fisheries and trade. Admitting it did—though not for a moment will I admit such—that is nothing to the use they would get if Germany won. But the Selective Draft does nothing of the kind. So far by recruiting enough men have been obtained to keep up the Regiment's strength. Selective Drafting does nothing more, but will, with a little of the expense suggested by a recruiting campaign, it simply selects the men who can best be spared. Every place contributes its fair quota.

The recruiting system is ruining our Colony. There was always a scarcity of men with an average education, and these are the very fellows that first answer the recruiters' call, while the ignorant and vicious remain. Why kill our culture first? The Selective Draft dislocates no service, it does not upset the country's trade a whit more—it is as much as the voluntary system. The country is ready—may waiting for it, "why is its chariot so long in coming?"

We have read recently some very enthusiastic speeches of gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly, who were so brave when there were only nine Councillors to face. With what virtuous wrath did they denounce the want of patriotism of those benighted nine! To find the money to finance the Regiment they were ready to make the trade pay to the uttermost farthing; but what of the men to keep that same Regiment to strength? Was there a word said of that?

Although under forty and married I have not enlisted, but I can say in all sincerity that not a day passes over my head but I wrestle with my duty to my dependents and that I owe to my country. Ah, if many other men find it as difficult as I do to decide the right path, no wonder they lective Draft to solve their difficulties. I have watched with feelings of pride the doings of our noble Regiment. I have wept with the mothers when those sad casualty lists come in; but I could not weep for those brave fellows who have gone out; my only thought was that I, too, might answer the final call with as stout a heart and as brave a smile as they.

Will the Nfld. Regiment have to be withdrawn because we neglect to keep it to strength? Gentlemen of the Press and of the "National" Government, can any words move you to a sense of your responsibilities?

BULL.

Thoughts

During the week the Labrador fish fell from $6. This is a very serious matter for the fishermen may well be alarmed. What is the Government doing to prevent this? All that Mr. Coaker has done is to raise the price of shore fish to $10 a week as last. Most of the week the price of shore fish was $9.50 per qtl. The Government had to "stand the board" and knows that the tonnage of the difficulty we have to face. Advocate assures us that the Government has been solved. The Government has sent the Norwegian steamer VII, and the decision of the Government in sending VII, with a capacity of about 200 each. The fishermen will be price, under the circumstances mentioned, to remain in the foreign market and do not warrant the result. Advocate says "the fishermen gratulate themselves that the ests are provided for." The fishermen will do no such thing.

Thoughts Upon the Times.

(By PATRIOT.)

During the week the price of sloop Labrador fish fell from $7 per qtl. to $4. This is a very serious drop to happen so early in the season and the fishermen may well view it with alarm. What is the National Government doing to prevent this? Above all, what is Mr. Coaker doing? The price of shore fish is not so good this week as last. Most of what sold during the week on the tal qual basis fetched $3.50 per qtl. That which brought $10 was "picture" fish and had to "stand the board". Everybody knows that the tonnage problem is the difficulty we have to face, but the Advocate assures us that this problem has been solved to a large extent by the Government having chartered the Norwegian steamer Haakon VII, and the decision of the Italian Government in sending two steamers with a capacity of about 20,000 qtls. each. The fishermen will expect the price, under the circumstances above mentioned, to remain up. The prices in the foreign market are good and do not warrant the recent drop. The Advocate says "the fishermen can congratulate themselves that their interests are provided for," etc. The fishermen will do no such thing. Mr.

Coaker is now in charge of the Government and is Dictator, with Dr. Lloyd acting Premier. He should, if we are to believe all he said in the past, be able to keep up the price of fish. Anyway, if the prices do not go down in the foreign markets, he will be expected to keep up the price in Newfoundland by getting after the "Combine" which he claimed existed to keep down the price.

Is not this the argument used by Mr. Coaker, brother fishermen, before he got the Government?

The Business Profits Tax Bill has been in operation these days with a vengeance. And who is paying the tax? Why the consumer, on the recent increase in the prices of butter, hard bread, biscuits and kerosene oil. This is exactly what was pointed out to the Government when the Bill was before the House, but they shut their eyes and refused to see it. The people now are paying the price. It is one of the most iniquitous measures ever brought before Parliament. What is needed is an income tax, and the Government should have profited by the experience of the Canadian and United States Governments in trying to enforce a Profits Tax.

The "National" Government has now been in power two months and nothing has been done yet to compel the Reid Newfoundland Company to reduce their freight rates on their trains and bay boats. The people are literally groaning under the heavy rates which they have to pay this wealthy corporation. When the Liberal-Union party assumed control of the Government the public, at least those who supported them, naturally expected something would be done to redress their grievances in this respect, but up to the present time nothing has been done, and what is more, nothing is likely to be done.

The "weather prophets" of the States predict some heavy equinoctial gales this year. It may be remarked that whenever we have had long, fine summers like the present the autumns have generally turned out stormy.

Congratulations to Dr. Lloyd who, in the absence of Sir Edward Morris, becomes Acting Premier of the Colony. It is said that Sir Edward Morris will not return from England before next February. During the interval Dr. Lloyd will be expected to guide the good Ship of State safely through the many dangerous shoals pointed out in these notes yesterday, which surround her. Already, as there are nine vacant seats in the Legislature and fully one-fourth of the total population of the country have no representation in the House of Assembly. It is not probable that a general election will take place before November, 1918—a long time yet. Why not hold bye-elections in the outport districts which have no representation at present. It would be only fair to the people and would serve to indicate whether they approve of the Coalition Government and its policy. What of the people of these districts themselves? Will they be satisfied to remain unrepresented?

To Enter Indian Service.

Lieut. G. M. Johnson, who made application for the Indian Service, has been notified to prepare for the East and will leave England to take up his new work next month. When war was declared he was studying medicine at Edinburgh, where he enlisted in the Royal Scots and was granted a commission in the Cameron Highlanders. He served with his regiment at Ypres, Farnelles, Neuve Chapelle, Festubert and Loos. At the finish of the last campaign his battalion was disbanded. Early last year he asked for a transfer to the Newfoundland Regiment, which was granted in May. At Combes he was taken seriously ill while in the trenches but has since fully recovered. He is the second St. John's boy within the past year to be honoured with so important a position as a commission in the great Imperial Service of India, for which only marked men are chosen. The first officer was Lieut. Len Stick.

We congratulate Lieut. Johnson on his promotion, as well as his proud parents, Hon. Justice and Mrs. Johnson.

Ought We to Forgive Them.

CHRISTIANITY AND THE CRIMES OF THE HUNS.

By Canon Anthony C. Deane (Vicar of All Saints, Ennismore Gardens).

Ought we to forgive the Germans, and can we if we ought?

I have reason to think that many people are troubled as they face that question to-day. And they are distressed because the only answer they think possible seems to menace their religious belief.

On the one hand they have been told that to forgive our enemies is a fundamental law of Christianity. On the other, no mere passing wave of indignation, but the considered judgment of their moral sense, pronounces such forgiveness to be impossible.

"How can we forgive," they cry, "a nation guilty of unspeakable crimes? How can we pardon those whose devilish record stands naked in the eyes of the world? How can we forgive the butchers and out-ragers of women and children who gloat over the agony of their victims?"

"It is to make a demand as grotesque as impracticable. Our attitude is unchristian? Well, in that case, unchristian it must be. We do not question the historic truth of that religion, or deny the beauty of its ideals. But it will not serve as a working creed for the world as we find it to-day. Christianity requires us to forgive our enemies. We find such forgiveness flagrantly impossible. We are driven, therefore, to abandon Christianity."

That is the dilemma. It seems real enough, yet it arises from a strange misconception. Our ideas of the divine teaching are based too often upon a rather hazy recollection of isolated "texts" instead of upon a careful study of the Gospels as a whole.

It is perfectly true that the Founder of Christianity taught us to forgive our enemies. It is perfectly untrue that He taught us to forgive wrongdoers while they remain impenitent. Emphatically He makes repentance the condition of forgiveness.

"If thy brother sin against thee, and he repent, forgive him" is a maxim widely different from that which popular imagination attributes to Christ. I will not multiply quotations; the reader has only to study the Gospels with care to find how universal in them is this principle. Without it, indeed, the whole moral law would be stultified. And I need not dwell upon the tremendous warning which this principle involves for ourselves. But here is the fact. Forgiveness, whether human or divine, can only follow, in Christ's view, upon repentance.

And "repentance" implies far more than "regret" or "remorse." It translates a word meaning literally "a changed will." The penitent person (or nation) not merely owns to his misdeeds, but by definite action breaks with his past, admits his wrongness, and makes reparation for it by every means in his power. Is this the attitude of Germany to-day? The question, unhappily, supplies its own answer.

The Principle of Collective Guilt.

But the plea is sometimes heard that we must not condemn Germany as a whole when only a fraction of her inhabitants are really responsible for her actions. So it is worth while to remember how clearly the principle of collective guilt is recognised by Christ. There were numbers of quite excellent people, no doubt, in the cities which He denounced "because they repented not," yet this fact did not save Chorazin or Bethsaida from His unsparring condemnation. Because there was no collective repentance, there could be no collective pardon.

"Ought we to forgive?" Here, then, is the reply to our question. I have dealt with it apart, obviously, from all considerations of political or commercial expediency—considerations which, important as they may be, belong to another and a lower plane. My aim has been simply to show that our moral instincts and the teaching of Christianity do not, as many people fear, supply conflicting answers. To forgive an unrepentant Germany, so far from being a religious action, would be flatly to contradict both the teaching and the example of Christ.

Cotton for Shells.

It is estimated that it takes 400 lb. of cotton to make the powder for one shot from one of the German 17 in. guns. The same quantity of cotton would provide ammunition for 400 shells from a field-gun, or 80,000 rounds from a rifle.

Some idea of the consumption of cotton in the war may be gathered from the fact that 1,000 tons a day are required to supply the German and Austrian armies with powder. The British cordite consists of two-thirds gun-cotton. The raw material is dipped into nitric acid, washed and dried, and the material thus supplied becomes the base of the explosive. Gun-cotton can only be made from raw cotton; woven cotton is of no use, and any attempt to use it would be fraught with danger.—Tit-Bits.
