Why Corns Hurt

Note this diagram picture of a corn. Note its conical shape. The cause of the corn is pressure. And pressure makes it hurt. The point of the corn is pushed into the nerves. Applying a Blue-jay plaster instantly removes the pressure. Note the felt ring (A) in the picture below. The ring gives barefoot comfort in the tightest shoe.

But that is temporary. One should not continue a ring. The corn should be quickly ended.

The bit of B&B wax in the center of the ring does that (marked B in illustration below). In two days, usually, the whole corn disappears. It stops the pain, then ends the corn. And it wraps the corn so the action is undisturbed.

Then the action of the B&B wax is centered on the corn. Held there by the rubber coated adhesive tape (C) which wraps comfortably around the toe. Healthy tissue is not affected.

These are the reasons why millions of people have adopted the Blue-jay method. Keeping corns is folly when this easy way can end them. Treating them in cruder ways is inexcusable.

For your own sake, convince yourself by applying Blue-jay to one corn.

B&B Blue-jay Stops Pain Instantly
Ends Corns Completely

CHAPTER XXXIII
OUT OF THE PAST.

"And you intend to marry him and go with him! What on earth shall I do without you? What shall I do? What a wicked girl you must be to entice me into loving you so, and then to leave me! Why, I didn't expect this dreadful marriage to take place for at least two years, and now—Two weeks! You must love him very dearly, Doris."

"I respect him very highly," said Doris. "He is not like some men"—she sighed—"he is true and steadfast, and he—he really cares for me I think." In a low voice. "Why should I not make him happy if I can?"

"Really care for you! Yes, I should think he does! Why, child, he worships every inch of ground those little feet of yours tread on. And so he might, considering the many others who would be only too happy to take his place. And why should you make him happy? Well, I don't know. But it seems to me, dear, that you are one of those women who consider that they were only born to make others happy. I only hope that you will make yourself happy."

"Oh, yes; I shall be as happy as I deserve," said Doris, with a faint smile.

"And you have quite made up your mind?" demanded Lady Despard.

"Quite," said Doris.

"Then the only thing to be done is to grin and bear it, for I know the stiff-necked, resolute kind of young person you are. Oh, there is one other thing we must do; we can set about getting your things ready."

"I shall not want many," said Doris. "We are both very poor, you know."

"Yes, I know," said Lady Despard, drily. "All the same, I suppose you will go decently clad."

"And the wedding is to be very quiet," said Doris, pushing back the hair from her forehead with a weary little gesture; "quiet. I don't want any bridesmaids."

Lady Despard shrugged her shoulders.

"Can't see anyone this afternoon," said Lady Despard, "unless they understand and can undertake plain sewing. Who is it, dear?"

Doris took the card.

"The Marquis of Stoyte," she answered, falteringly.

Lady Despard rose in her usual languid style.

"The marquis! Oh, I think we must see him, dear. He has come to pour out his gratitude—"

"It isn't the marquis, my lady, but his valet," said the footman.

Lady Despard sank back into the midst of the whirlpool of muslin.

"Oh, well, show him in."

"Here, my lady?"

"Yes. I'm too busy to go to anyone short of a marquis."

The valet—a grave, distinguished-looking man, who might well have been taken for a marquis, or, for that matter, a duke—entered a moment or two afterwards, and bowed.

"His lordship's compliments, my lady, and he would be glad to know how Miss Marlowe is."

Lady Despard jerked her thumb lightly towards Doris.

"That is Miss Marlowe."

The valet bowed respectfully—very respectfully—to Doris.

"His lordship is very ill, miss, or he would have done himself the honour to wait upon you to thank you for your great kindness to him," he said.

Doris's face flushed for an instant.

"I am sorry," she said, bending over her work; "but did very little, as the marquis knows."

"He is very ill, miss—that is, he is very weak—and—he hesitated—and he requested me to say that he should deem it a very great favour, indeed, if you would come and see him. He wishes me to say that, if he could have crawled—crawled was his word, my lady—turning to Lady Despard—"he would have come himself. But he is quite confined to his room, and perfectly unable to leave it. The marquis is an old man, you see, my lady, and has been ill, very ill."

Lady Despard looked at Doris and seemed to wait her reply; and the valet crossed his hands and also seemed to wait, respectfully and patiently.

Doris's white brow wrinkled painfully, and she laid a tremulous hand upon Lady Despard's arm.

"I—I don't know," she said, in a troubled voice.

"His lordship has spoken of you several times, miss," said the valet, in an earnest tone; "indeed, he has talked of little else since he came home. He is very old, you see—"

Doris's gentle heart melted at the repetition of this simple formula.

"What shall I do?" she whispered to Lady Despard.

Her ladyship shrugged her shoulders.

"I suppose you had better go. Of course you will go. Why, you know you couldn't resist an appeal of this kind!"

Doris looked before her with wistful, troubled eyes for a moment or two, then she laid down the work she was engaged on.

"I will come with you," she said.

When she re-entered the room, with her hat and jacket on, she looked round, and taking some flowers from one of the vases, quickly rearranged them, and then said:

"Oh, very well; have it all your own way. You shall be married at midnight, and in darkest secrecy, if you like. And in a fortnight! Great heavens! Why, it scarcely gives one time to make a couple of dresses."

"Which are all I shall require," said Doris, with a smile. "Dear Lady Despard, you forget that it is not your sister who is going to be married, but only your companion."

Lady Despard moved away with a despairing gesture.

"I only wish you were my sister. I would show you if you should make ducks and drakes of your future in this way."

"Don't let us talk about it any longer," said Doris, rising and stretching out her arms as if she were ridding herself of some incubus.

"No, the better thing to do is to act, and not talk. Put on your hat, and let us go down to the shops and see if there is anything decent we can buy. A fortnight! I rather liked Percy Levant on the whole, but now I feel as if I hated him. I wish to Heaven, Spenser Churchill had not sent him with us!"

Apparently the Pescia drapers had something decent on sale, for her ladyship made purchases so extensive as to alarm Doris, who, when she remonstrated, was told to mind her own business; and the next two or three days were occupied in consultation with dressmakers and milliners; and Lady Despard had quite forgotten the Marquis of Stoyte and his promised visit.

But Doris had not. And often as she sat, surrounded by "materials" and bonnet shapes, she thought of the strange meeting with the man who had stepped in between her and Lord Cecil and robbed her of her lover.

How surprised he would have been if she had said:

"Yes, I know, my lord. You are the man who has wrecked my whole life and broken my heart!"

And yet that was what he had done; for in losing Cecil Neville she had lost all that makes life worth living.

Was there a single night in which, in feverish dreams, she did not hear his voice and feel his passionate kisses on her lips? Was there a single morning on which she did not wake with that dull aching of the heart which some of us know so well? And she was to marry another man in a fortnight!

During these two days Percy Levant was absent. He, too, had to make preparations for the approaching wedding, and, strange to say, Doris missed him. He had been so like her shadow for months past, always near her and ready, and promptly ready, to forestall her slightest wish, that his absence made itself felt.

On the third day Lady Despard and she were sitting in the former's boudoir, literally up to their knees in millinery, when a footman brought in a card.

IT REALLY DOES

end pain, prevent festering and heal. This is why those who have once used Zam-Buk will never use any other ointment.

Miss Viola Hubler, of Upper Goshon, N.B., writes: "My sister had a sore on her foot that commenced like boils and then discharged. She suffered such intense pain that she could not wear her shoes and had to remain in the house. We commenced using Zam-Buk and the pain soon disappeared. Then the sores stopped discharging and before long the places were entirely healed over. We shall never be without Zam-Buk again."

For eczema, blood-poisoning and piles, cuts and burns Zam-Buk is equally good. All dealers, 50c. box.

"I am ready."

"I will get a carriage, my lady," said the valet; but Doris shook her head.

"It is no distance. I would rather walk."

Lady Despard waved her hand to her with a smile made up of affection and amusement.

"Another conquest, my dear," she said. "It's a pity Percy Levant isn't a curate; you would have made such an admirable district-vicar."

On their way through the quiet streets the valet, answering Doris's questions, gave her some information respecting the marquis's condition.

"It was the excitement of the grand party, you see, miss," he said. "The party given in Lady Grace's honour, the young lady who is to marry my Lord Cecil—that did it. His lordship isn't used to excitement, and it was quite against Lord Cecil's wish that the party was given; but the marquis was so delighted at the engagement that he would insist. I'm afraid I'm walking too fast for you, miss," he broke off, as he glanced at Doris's face, which had grown pale and wan.

"No, no," she said, quickly. "It is rather warm. Lady Grace is very beautiful, is she not? Yes, I know she is beautiful."

"Oh, yes, miss; her ladyship is one of the acknowledged beauties, as I daresay you are aware."

"Yes," said Doris, raising her nose to her face, to hide the quiver of her lips. "And—Lord Cecil?"

"How little the man guessed the effort it cost her to speak the name!—he is very much attached—"

She stopped, remembering that it was rather indiscreet to discuss his master's affairs with this man.

"Attached to her ladyship, miss?" he said, with perfect respect. "Yes, oh, yes! How could he be otherwise?" He seemed to hesitate a moment, then he said, rather reflectively, "Lord Cecil has rather changed of late."

"Rather changed?" said Doris, faintly.

"Well, yes, miss. He used to be rather wild, and certainly always in the best of humours—what would be described as light-hearted. I used to say that it made one laugh one's self to hear his laugh, so free and blithe—some it was, so to speak. But he's got quieter of late and we hear him laugh scarcely at all now. But perhaps you know his lordship, miss?"

Four Reservations Adopted by United States Senate

To Peace Treaty --- Bolsheviki Have Sufficient Munitions for Ten Years--- Trouble in Ireland--- Premier Hughes Arrives Home.

TINKERING WITH THE TREATY.
WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 4. Four reservations were adopted late today by the senate foreign relations committee dealing with the Monroe Doctrine withdrawal from the league of nations, domestic questions and article ten of the league covenant. By a vote of nine to seven the committee adopted a reservation regarding article ten providing that the United States "declines to assume any territorial obligation or mandate without express resolution of congress. The Monroe Doctrine resolution adopted by eleven to six declares the United States shall be its interpreter. By the same vote the committee adopted the resolution providing that tariff, immigration and similar domestic and political affairs of the United States shall be determined by that nation alone without intervention of the League of Nations.

WANT WOMEN ON BOARD.
LONDON, Sept. 4. (via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—At a conference of Women's organizations in London on motion of Mary McArthur a resolution was adopted urging representation of women on each of the governing bodies of the League of Nations, and also that governments of the various countries consult the most representative women's organizations in making the appointments.

THE HORRORS OF BOLSHEVIKI RULE.
LONDON, Sept. 4. (Reuter's despatch)—Commander Col. John Ward arrived in London yesterday having been summoned from Russia by the War Office for consultation. In an interview he stated that the horrors of Bolsheviki rule had been far from exaggerated. It was, he said, doubtful as to whether the story of half the atrocities in Russia had yet been told. The secret of the prolonged regime of the Bolsheviki was simply terrorism. Everyone in Russia lived under a fear of denunciation and of a horrible death. Besides there was no food, clothing or other necessities of life for those refusing to profess Bolsheviki views. Again the Bolsheviki controlled the rich manufacturing districts and all attacks on them had to be made from the sparsely populated areas. Hence it was important that General Denikine should be supplied with munition as should Kolchak. The Bolsheviki forces states Commander Ward, have practically unlimited supplies of munitions as only a small portion of the munitions supplied Russia by the allies before the revolution fell into the hands of the Germans. Ward said he believed that the Bolsheviki had sufficient munitions for ten years.

HUGHES' WELCOME HOME.
MELBOURNE, Sept. 4. (Reuter Despatch)—Premier Hughes has arrived here from the peace conference at Paris amidst scenes of unparalleled enthusiasm. It was the most remarkable demonstration to an Australian statesman ever witnessed in Melbourne. Enormous crowds thronged the gaily decorated streets while returned soldiers drew the premier's car slowly through to the town hall where a civic reception was held. Great applause from parliamentary, civic and other notables greeted him. Replying to an address of welcome by the Lord Mayor seconded by the Premier of Victoria, Premier Hughes stated that the welcome had greatly stirred him. After paying a tribute to the Australian forces he said I have not in my mind any easy plan for the salvation of this country. In the future we have yet, I fear, to drink a bitter cup. Later addressing a meeting of returned soldiers, Premier Hughes stated that the fruits of victory by the soldiers had been safe-guarded by his colleagues and himself. The Pacific Islands, he declared, were necessary for the safety of Australia.

MAJORITY FOR STRIKE.
DETROIT, MICH., Sept. 3. Strike referendum of United Brotherhood of maintenance of way employees and shop leaders completed Wednesday, shows that three hundred and twenty-five thousand members favored walkout unless their demands for wages increase of approximately one dollar per day per man are granted. Brotherhood officials announced today. Five thousand voted against the strike. Union officials expressed confidence however that an agreement will be reached with railroad administration without resorting to strike.

THE THRACE QUESTION.
PARIS, Sept. 4. Premier Venizelos will leave Paris this afternoon for Deauville, where the British Prime Minister, David Lloyd George, is stopping. It is believed the Greek Premier will take the opportunity to talk over the question of Thrace with the British statesman. The Italian foreign minister recently conferred at Deauville with Premier Lloyd George, according to Paris advices of August 31st. It was understood that the question of the disposition of Fiume was taken up at this meeting.

TROUBLE IN IRELAND.
DUBLIN, Sept. 4. Large military forces have arrived in the Tipperary district to-day following further evidences of differences between the residents and the British authorities. A constabulary sergeant was shot in the head and a constable critically wounded on Tuesday night by assassins who fired from shrubbery on the roadside.

Movie Realism.

When we go to the movies for our 17 cents' worth of art and war tax, we should endeavor to make the glad occasion as helpful as possible. We should take to ourselves golden lessons in observation and perception, for, in the turmoil of our every day existence we are quite prone to overlook many little details that should not be lost sight of.
For example, in the movies all bankers come down to business in the morning wearing silk hats, and all lady vampires are long and rangy. Yet how few of us, in the rush of daily life, observe these apparently trivial facts! Likewise, all film physicians wear long, foreboding Prince Alberts and have their faces garnished with luxurious side whiskers. Movie heroes, though always poor and frequently out of work, manage to have a different suit of clothes for each 100 feet of film, and every farmer carries a pitchfork and rides around in a buggy.
Let us accept the movie as a powerful educational force in helping us to see life as it really exists. Let us not go merely to "hear the piano or for the purpose of ascertaining who gets hit in the face with a custard pie or what great artist, with consummate skill, reclines on the top of a hot stove.—Thrill Magazine.

Last Night's Smoker

An enjoyable smoker was held last night by the St. Andrew's Society, in their clubrooms when the prizes won in the card tournaments last winter were presented. A large gathering of members were present. Mr. R. G. Ross acted as chairman. After a most enjoyable concert was gone through the prizes were then presented as follows.—A. Brown, an outfit; W. B. Eadie, John Gunn, L. Calvert, L. Taylor, pipes; Alex Ross, thermos bottle, and L. Calvert, a job. The singing of the National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne brought the evening to a close.

Stokers Withdraw

At a meeting of the Firemen's Union last night, some fifty members decided to withdraw from the N. L. W. A. of which they had also been members, and stick to their own Union. The nominating of their officers for the ensuing year will take place on the third Tuesday of this month.

At the Majestic.

Three features will be screened at the Majestic Theatre this evening, when George Beban in "One More American," a comedy entitled "The Chase," and an interesting cartoon will be shown. The feature of the show is the first picture, "One more American." Luigi has come to make a home in America for his wife and little daughter. The Marionette Theatre has made good, and sends for him to join them. Meanwhile, he has opposed Regan, the ward boss, refusing to pay tribute, and injuring his political strength. Regan prevents him from getting his citizenship papers, at the same time having the wife and daughter turned back. In the end, however, Luigi is triumphant and is successful in taking out his papers, thereby becoming "One more American."

AUSTRIANS' REQUEST GRANTED.

BELFAST, Sept. 4.
The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference has decided to grant the request of the Austrian Peace delegation for two days delay in the time for presenting the Austrian answer to terms of peace.

FRENCH SOCIALISTS WILL OP- POSE RATIFICATION.

PARIS, Thursday.
Paul Mistral, Minority Socialist,
during the debate in the Chamber of Deputies, this afternoon, on the ratification of the Peace Treaty, with Germany, declared that he and his party of about thirty-five members would vote against ratification of the Treaty.

WILSON BEGINS CONTINENT TOUR.

COLUMBUS, Ohio,
Thursday.—President Wilson, who arrived here shortly after eleven o'clock, opening his country wide speaking tour for the Peace Treaty, declared in an address here to-day that his purpose was to "go out and report to my fellow countrymen."
The President said that it also seemed increasingly necessary that he should make such a report because he had read many speeches about the Treaty and was unable to gather from them much of what the Treaty contained.

NO CHANGE IN S. AFRICAN CAB- INET.

CAPETOWN, SOUTH AFRICA.
Sept. 4.—(Reuter Ottawa Agency.)—
There has been no material change in the Cabinet Portfolios as a result of the change in the premiership, excepting that General Smuts has also taken the Portfolio of foreign affairs in addition to that of defence.

WITHDRAWING SOLDIERS FROM RUSSIA.

LONDON, Sept. 4.
(Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—It is authoritatively stated that the decision to withdraw the British troops from North Russia has not been altered. The recent offensive operations against the Bolsheviks were undertaken solely to weaken the enemy and ameliorate the situation to the greatest possible extent for the Russian volunteers after the departure of the British.

GERMAN TROOPS WITH RUSSIAN UNIFORMS.

LONDON, Sept. 4.
(Reuter Ottawa Agency.)—Reuter is informed by the Polish Authorities in London that the transfer of German troops to Russian formations in the Baltic provinces is still continuing, despite the numerous official German denials, in this connection the following remarks, made by the German Independent Socialist paper, Freiheit, are interesting. The Freiheit says that the official communique is a lie from beginning to end. "We consider it to be an undoubted fact that the whole German formations, with complete equipment, have passed and are passing over to the Russian army, and the whole of Courland is full of German soldiers in Russian uniform.
That Gen. Von der Goltz is doing his utmost to assist the reactionary Russian troops is proved by the fact that German doctors receive circulars from the Record Office in Leipzig informing them that doctors and military nurses are necessary for the Russian army, which, in co-operation with Genl. Von Der Goltz and other well known German soldiers, is carrying on the fight in the East. In the light of these revelations the Freiheit considers that the denials published by the German Government and the military authorities be a matter of interest to the German working class, which,
the paper, would under no circumstances tolerate such action in the East.

CARSON MAY COME TO AMERICA.

BELFAST, Friday.
Sir Edward Carson announced last night that he was undecided whether to visit the United States soon. The announcement was made during an address at anti-Home Rule meeting.

RUSSIAN FORMER AMBASSADORS COMING TO ENGLAND.

ARCHANGEL, Sept. 5.
(Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—All the former Ambassadors and Consuls who arrived here from Petrograd last year have left for England on the Kilkennan Castle, which also carries the last batch of conscript British troops. The Russians have issued a proclamation to the effect that all Bolshevik prisoners be enrolled in the Russian National Army. The most recently taken prisoners are well conditioned and wear good great coats.

AUSTRIANS INDIGNANT AT PEACE TERMS.

GENEVA, Sept. 4.
The Austrian peace terms have been received in Vienna with the greatest surprise and indignation, according to advice received here.
It is believed that the Renner ministry will fall as a consequence. Mon-archist circles consider that terms have definitely killed any hope of the return of Hapsburgs. Former Emperor Charles, who received news from Paris soon after the reply of the Allies was handed to the Austrian commission, has decided to leave Switzerland.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.

The campaign against food boarding and profiteering in Greater New York has forced food prices down to such a degree that further reductions by the Government on its surplus agricultural food are necessary if its prices are to remain attractive. It was learned to-night.

LABORERS' DEMANDS.

LONDON, Sept. 4.
(Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The Triple Entente has decided to postpone the ballot on direct action and to adjourn the whole question until after the trade union congress at Glasgow, next week. The triple alliance also considered a recommendation by the miners executive to proceed to a ballot on the question whether direct action should be taken to compel the Government to repeal the conscription act, withdraw the British troops from Russia, release conscientious objectors from prison, and refrain from military intervention in trade disputes. A motion that the discussion be in public was overwhelmingly defeated.

BOTHA MEMORIAL SERVICE.

LONDON, Sept. 5.
(Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—An impressive memorial service for the late General Botha was held at Westminster Abbey. General Birdwood represented His Majesty and among others present were Rt. Hon. A. Bonar Law, Hon. Geo. A. Roberts and various

One day last winter I went he had become very sharp in a

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DOESN'T IT MAKE YOU SAD.

There is a great sadness to me in the way people who are, or pretend to be friends, talk about each other.

Take a half dozen couples who live in the neighborhood together and go about to gether, dine at each other's houses and perhaps belong to some neighborhood club, and let any two of those couples get together and the way they will talk about the other four is a caution. Especially—and this I must admit, champaign of my sex, though I am—the women folk.

The Things She Said About Those People!

One day last winter I went to lunch with an old friend of mine who had come to town to pay a round of visits. We talked of all our old friends and acquaintances and she had a great deal to say about a certain couple with whom she and her husband felt that the man had greatly changed and wasn't at all the man he used to be. They considered that he had become very sharp in a business way and they felt very bitter against him for a deal in which they had been involved and in which they felt he had acted more like a crook than a friend. As for the wife, well, she also had changed. You couldn't depend on a word she said nowadays.

But They Were All Right For a Host and Hostess.

"Isn't that too bad?" I said, "I always liked Jack and Miriam in the old days. They have a nice new house, by the way—I don't suppose you're apt to see it under the circumstances."

"Oh, yes," she said, "we are going there to-morrow for the week-end." Apparently, I did not look as surprised as I felt, for she did not seem to feel that this statement required any explanation, but went on to some other subject.

Just think, she went about saying that the man had cheated them and that the woman was in the habit of lying! And yet she considered them sufficiently close friends to visit!

Of Course We Must Talk About People.

Of course, it is inevitable that people should talk about each other.

Why shouldn't they? Aren't people the most interesting thing in the world? And of course it is inevitable that all one says even of one's friends should not be unalloyed praise. But there is a difference between minor criticisms, tempered by words of appreciation and kindly feeling, and the malicious bitter criticism such as the neighborhood group of whom I spoke dealt out to the absent ones, or accusations of downright wrong doing such as this woman made in regard to her host and hostess-to-be.

REGRET.

I wonder if he knew that I was thinking of him all day long—The friend that was so soon to die—The while I mingled with the throng.

Now in his room the shades are drawn,
His brave voice is forever dumb,
And from his eyes the light has gone—
He cannot see me when I come.

His lifeless fingers cannot hold
The letter I had planned to write;
Out of his body, now so cold,
His soul has swiftly taken flight.
He shall not know that I am there,
Nor feel my fingers on his cheek,
He cannot guess how much I care,
He cannot hear me when I speak.

How trivial now appear the things
That kept me from him yesterday;
Had I but heard Death's rustling wings,
I should have put them all away.
I should have spurned the lure of gain,
Beside his bed to watch and wait,
To comfort him and soothe his pain,
Now I must go to-night—too late!

Swimming the Channel.

On September 5, 1911, William Burgess, a Yorkshireman, at his twelfth attempt, succeeded in performing the feat of swimming the Channel, which Captain Webb achieved at the second time of trying, thirty-five years previously. Burgess reached the French shore on Wednesday morning, after being over 22 hours in the water. He landed close to Le Chatelet, two miles to the east of Cape Grisnez, and it was almost full tide when he touched the shore. Getting out of the water, he stumbled for two or three steps, but then walked steadily without assistance. He looked remarkably fresh, considering the time he had been in the water. He at once wrote a telegram to his wife announcing his success, then, after having some refreshment, was overcome with sleep, and was taken on board the motor boat "Elsie" which left for the return journey at 12.30. Walmer was reached at 5.20, where the swimmer had a most enthusiastic reception. During the swim he consumed a couple of pounds of grapes, drank hot milk and chocolate, and had 20 drops of champagne given him every hour. After eighteen hours' swimming, Burgess got a little weak; he said he felt light-headed, and that if the party accompanying him did not sing to him he should "chuck it shortly." He asked for "La Marseillaise," and the whole party broke out into the stirring strains, which soon brightened him up. Soon, however he complained of muscular cramp near his heart, and changed his stroke. Then Jack Weddman, one of those on the "Elsie," dived in and swam alongside Burgess until they touched the shore. Burgess had also complained of being stung by jelly-fish, and, on landing, many ugly marks showed on the swimmer's arms, the result of their poisonous stings.

NIGHT.

The day is long and dreary, and sluggishly it goes; and we are spent and weary, and soon will have repose; the night upon us creeping will have us in its keeping, and we shall find in sleeping the balm for all our woes. Our tasks are hard and painful, and hours of rest are few; the world is too disdainful of all the things we do; our nerves are throbbing, leaping, and we're inclined to weeping; but one long night of sleeping will make us good as new. Through daylight hours we're toiling like Vulcan at his chore, to keep the kettle boiling and feed the children four; but one long night of sleeping, until the dawn is peeping, and doodle-birds are cheeping, will brace us up once more. This life is sore and trying, its paths are hard to tread; and in the end the dying is something none should dread; night takes us in its keeping, its richest blessings heaping upon the people sleeping, and thankful they are dead. I like this old world, butly, it's strictly a success, and I endorse it fully, and boost it more or less; but tiring is the reaping of harvests worth the keeping; the goal of all our weeping and striving and distress.

Press Comment.

NORTHWEST MOUNTED POLICE.

Toronto Globe: Measures are now being taken to increase the Northwest Mounted Police to a strength of over 2600 men. Such a force will cost several hundred million dollars a year more to maintain than the present police cost. Why should not the western provinces pay for their own policing? The eastern provinces do so.

LIES WITH THE INDIVIDUAL.

Stratford Daily Beacon: At the very time when the world is demanding the utmost from every man, when each worker is urged to exert himself to the ultimate limit so that production may be increased, men are showing a restiveness in harness. The remedy for all this lies with each individual man and woman. The old ambition for work must be restored; we must fear again the "joy for working." High wages are not the panacea for our unrest, nor are the incessant strikes, sent along the pathway that leads to contentment.

NATIONAL PECULIARITIES.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The American traveller is not averse to putting on his evening clothes at sea, but if he travels upon an unfashionable steamer he is inclined to omit dressing for dinner. The Englishman dresses for dinner because he cannot imagine eating dinner in tweeds any more than he can imagine eating without a knife and fork. At a pinch he might eat soup with chop sticks, but he could not eat dinner in a sack coat.

Disraeli.

What was Dizzy in personal appearance? If I had known the fact, I do not think that I should have recognized him as one of the ancient race of Israel. His profile was not the least what we in England consider Semitic. He might have been a Spaniard or an Italian, but he certainly was not a Briton. He was rather tall than short but slightly bowed, except when he drew himself up for the more effective delivery of some shrill blow. His complexion was extremely pale, and the pallor was made more conspicuous by contrast with his hair, steeped in Tyrian dye, worn long, and eked out with artificial additions.

He was very quietly dressed. The green velvet trousers and rings worn outside white kid gloves, which had helped to make his fame in "the days of the dandies," had long since been discarded. He dressed like other men of his age and class, in a black frock-coat worn open, light-colored trousers and a black cravat tied in a loose bow—and those spring-sided boots of soft material which

A PURITY LEAGUE NECESSARY.

Daily it is becoming more evident that some sort of an organization to combat and conquer the increase and spread of certain conditions in this city is highly necessary and highly desirable.

The most optimistically-minded cannot attempt to deny the presence of these conditions for it has been demonstrated to us over and over again. The police records, impossible to be ignored, prove conclusively that there is something unwholesome eating out the very vitals of the city and the city's morals. Time and time again the reading public has been made aware, by guarded items in newspapers and other means, that certain conditions really do exist here and are on the increase.

Always, in every city that ever came into being, increase of wealth and of prosperity on one hand brought into being this regrettable condition on the other. We have seen that St. John's is no exception.

Can public-spirited, patriotic, citizens, who love their city see this happen? Can they remain apathetic and uninterested and unconcerned?

In other cities where the condition in reference has existed and raised its head to strike, organizations of the people—Purity Leagues—to purify and cleanse the city, have been formed. Every patriotic citizen enrolled and the League co-operated with the police. Records were kept and raids made.

Whole sections were wiped out and cleaned up. The city was purged, cleansed, purified. Clergymen and church officials took leading parts in those leagues and were foremost in calling for their formation.

If this or something else is not done here St. John's will wake up one of these days to be confronted with a terrible problem.

Let us anticipate that and strike now, "while the iron is hot!"

Withdrawing British Troops.

At last the British authorities have decided to withdraw their troops from North Russia, so that they will now be able to return to their homes and well-earned rest. Their stay in Russia was by no means pleasant and there will not be one of them sorry to leave that frozen land. The usual incentive to fight and endure hardship was there missing and they did not even know for what they were fighting. They were not alone in their ignorance.

A Mysterious Case.

Elderly Man Missing For Four Months, Found Dead.—Either Starved To Death or Suicided.

On Wednesday the body of Brian Ryan, aged about 60, of Turk's Gut, a few miles this side of Brigus, was found in a thicket a mile outside the place by a man who was searching for stumps and firewood. The man Ryan has been missing from his home for four months. It seems that he had had trouble in his family circle, it being alleged that he was badly treated by certain parties. This so played on his mind that he left some four months ago and never returned.

It appears that no search party was sent out to find him until two weeks later and on Wednesday his body was found quite by accident, in a wood rarely or never visited by anybody. The body was in a putrid state.

The man Ryan was married with a grown family.

Liner's Passengers Hold Concert.

The passengers of the liner Rosalind held an enjoyable concert on Wednesday night, Mr. M. J. Devine of this city being its organizer. In opening the events, Mr. Devine referred to the erroneous impression of many people aboard as to Newfoundland and people. He hoped that the round trippers would take back with them true and accurate reports. In this hope Mr. C. R. Duder joined. Mr. G. L. Stone, a prominent director of the Nova Scotia Steel Co., now on a visit to this country, also spoke. A collection, to be divided between the local and the New York Seaman's Institute, was taken up.

At Grand Falls.

Mr. Hawermale received a message from D. Duff, as follows: "Arrived at 4 a.m. ok, weather cleared; will play first game to-day; all the boys feeling fine."

An Appeal

TO THE GAME AND INLAND FISHERIES BOARD.
Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Through the medium of your paper I should like to ask the Game and Inland Fisheries Board, to give one reason, only one, in support of their action in enforcing the close season for Beaver for 1919.

In this section of the Island the feeling is very strong on this subject and I am going to give a few reasons, patent to most people intimate with this section of the Colony's natural resources. Why the season for 1919 should be an open season for possibly the Reserve, near Sandy Lake, which might be made a permanent Game Reserve or Sanctuary.

Some reasons why an open season should be allowed are as follows: 1.—Beaver skins worth only about $4.00 a few years ago are now worth $20.00.
2.—It is generally thought that this price is unlikely to remain as high very long, and from an economic standpoint, common sense would suggest selling.
3.—The close season, which the Game and Inland Fisheries Board very wisely and thoughtfully enforced, has been in operation for some years. Beaver have increased tremendously in that time, and even if the Close Season act was generally well observed, it would appear to most people, a wise course to sell at this time.

4.—When we know, and it is common knowledge, that Beaver are being slaughtered, illegally, by the hundred every year, by a certain class of trapper, one would naturally expect the Game Board to confess its inability to keep watch over the whole island, with the limited number of wardens at their disposal and to remove all restrictions for one year, thus giving a fair show to every trapper.

5.—When it is known, and it is generally known, that the Beaver skins, illegally taken, are sold by the Trapper at insignificant prices, and that the purchasers export surreptitiously and sell in Foreign markets at several hundred per cent. profit, it should be another strong incentive to the Board for action.

Come gentlemen of the Game Board, you acted wisely in enforcing close season for Beaver, now act just as wisely; tell the people how you have fostered this industry; that it is now worth thousands of dollars, where formerly it was worth one; that it was done for their benefit only, and that you are now going to allow them to reap that benefit. If you act thus, the people will begin to realize that the Game Board is really what it was always meant to be, and that all the regulations it enforces are made primarily for the benefit of the people and posterity; then gentlemen your position will be justified and when you are introducing measures to prevent the extermination of our caribou, you will not have as many forces opposed to you as you otherwise might.

Thanking you for giving this matter publication, I remain, Mr. Editor, Yours truly, NIMROD, Seal Cove, Stephenville, Sept. 2, 1919.

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Council held its regular weekly meeting last evening. The Mayor presided and Councilors Mullaly, Ayre and Vinnicombe attended. After reading of minutes, etc., the following business was discussed:

The Minister of Justice sent a communication regarding the Telephone Contract, and it was ordered to be taken up again for discussion.

The Minister of Agriculture and Mines wrote that he was investigating the matter of the Quidi Vidi Road property. He will be visiting explaining the matter.

Margaret Higgins, Military Road, complained of the condition of the roof of the water store which was damaging her house. Repairs were ordered to be done.

E. J. Horwood asked for street line to build a fence Victoria Street. Line was ordered to be given.

Frank Young, on behalf of A. J. Andrews, asked for permit to build a concrete wall and sidewalk opposite house 192 New Gower St. Permission was given subject to the specification of the City Engineer being carried out.

A. G. Worrall called attention to the side drain, Monroe St. This will be attended to.

Jas. H. Bowden, Casey St., asked attention be given to the drain front of his house. Engineer will examine.

Hector Ross, Victoria St., was given permission to repair roof of house.

A. Stevenson applied for water and sewerage under the Small Homes Act. He will be asked to see the Secretary.

A telegram was read from the Solicitor in which he stated he would be home on Saturday. It was decided by the Council to instruct him to take legal proceedings against a large number of residents who have failed to take notice of the Council's orders to install water and sewerage. These people can afford to do so and their failure to comply must now be the subject of Court proceedings. The Council must insist on the houses having water and sewerage.

The following permits were ordered to be given:

A. Marshall, fence, Cochrane St.; A. G. Barnes, garage, Park Row; John Scott, repairs, New Gower St.; A. W. Pickett, extension, Howey Avenue; Thos. Ferrill, house, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100.

S. A. Darby asked permission to build an office on Marshall Bros. wharf; this could not be granted unless fireproof material is used in construction.

Plan of addition to Mrs. J. E. Farrell's house, Murray St., was deferred for block plan.

Jas. Murdock submitted plan of house on Alexander St.; approved.

W. Trelogan was given permission to raise roof of house, New Gower Street.

N. Withers was given permission to repair house, Hayward Avenue, if water and sewerage is installed.

Application of Mrs. Hicks, Fleming St. to repair house; passed, if water and sewerage is installed.

The City Engineer's report for the week was read and dealt with sewer and grading work Prince of Wales Street; work at services and repairs during the past week.

The Health Officer's report was read, and after disposing of some routine business, passing pay rolls and bills, the meeting adjourned.

Coopers Nominate Officers.

At the meeting of Journeymen Coopers Union last night, the nomination of officers for the coming year took place as follows:

- President—W. Linegar.
- Vice-Pres.—J. Bennett.
- 1st Asst. V.P.—F. Comerford.
- 2nd Asst. V.P.—A. Harvey.
- Treasurer—R. Comerford.
- Asst. Treas.—Jas. Perchard.
- Secretary—M. Primm.
- Grand Marshal—W. Power.

The election will be held next Thursday night. There is only one alteration in last year's board, Mr. Perchard replacing Mr. Jas. Cantwell.

Collides With Vessel.

As the Rosalind was nearing Halifax on the way from New York she collided with a Lunenburg fishing schooner, the General Hag and several of her plates damaged on the starboard side above the water line. The schooner had her bowsprit and boom broken. A dense fog prevailed at the time. The captain of the steamer offered to tow the schooner to port but the captain refused and she was last seen heading in the direction of Lunenburg. While at Halifax the Rosalind's crew heard no report of her arrival.

EXPRESS PASSENGERS.

The following landed from the Gloucester Fort aux Basques yesterday and are on the incoming express:—Mrs. L. Henderson, Mrs. A. McCready, S. Childs, Miss N. Barrett, M. S. Woodbury, D. A. Brallian, Mrs. Elizabeth Rev. W. Cotton, W. H. Hynes.

FLAVORING EXTRACT.

If you want Flavoring Extract for Cooking purposes and not "Dope" for drinking purposes, purchase the old reliable PURE GOLD EXTRACT, the favorite of so many householders for years.

The Pure Gold Mfg. Co., Ltd., have a reputation to maintain and they positively refuse to sell their Extracts to any but the legitimate Grocery trade, and only to members of the Grocery trade whom they are convinced will sell Pure Gold Extract for cooking purposes only and not for drinking purposes.

Orders from the Soft Drink trade have been turned down by the dozen since the Prohibition Law went into effect. No stock is carried in St. John's.

Orders will be booked from the legitimate Grocery trade with the understanding that Pure Gold Extracts will be sold to householders for cooking purposes only.

Sea Stories.

They that go down to the sea in ships, that occupy their business in great waters, see strange things from the point of view of landmen to whom they retail their experiences upon making port. Among the best of the sea stories of this summer are those brought to Philadelphia last week. The chief officer of the steamship Belair, from Lisbon to Penn's place, was the relator, and his talk was of whales. The Belair, jogging along through a moderate swell, came across them in a slick off the Azores. The school of whales was sighted not more than a mile away, and, as the ship passed, they turned and followed in her wake. They were fin-backs, and ranged in length from ninety feet to forty feet, the length of the smallest fish in the rear rank. It was shortly after nine o'clock in the afternoon of the following day when they left her, after having followed her 300 miles or more. In the meantime, the first school had been joined by two others, one led by the biggest whale of all, estimated by the chief officer to be at least 100 years old. The chief officer said that it was a pretty sight to see the school send up a fountain of vapor. Always the big whale was in the lead, and when they sounded he was the first to come up and the first to blow—in which latter feat he might have found the chief officer a formidable rival. Sometimes the whales would remain down for nearly half an hour, but when they came up it was found that they had lost none of the distance between themselves and the ship. Supplementing this account, which lacks no touch except that the big bull whale might have been equipped with wireless, comes another from the steamship Western Hope, Genoa to Philadelphia, the captain of which said that over 100 whales were sighted during the passage across. Later there was only ninety-nine, as the pharmacist shot and killed one of them with a revolver. That ancient sailor who was the crew and the captain, too, and the mate of the Nancy brig, might have embellished the story told by the chief officer of the Belair, but we can think of no lesser man who could improve upon it. —Hartford Courant.

Militarism Still Extant.

The following note from the Quarterly Review shows that militarism is still alive and kicking "in our midst." Despite the agitation against the use of submarines by Germany in the late war, we find Admiral Sims advocating the development of this barbarous instrument of warfare by the United States, and the New York Evening Post (June 3) says that "if another international conflict should occur, all participants would undoubtedly use not only submarines, but liquid fire, poison gas, and other weapons yet to be discovered, and still more horrible."

The Introduction of Printing

Printing is said to have been introduced to the world on August 14, 1437: John Gutenberg stands at the head of the early typographers, supported by the genius of Schoeffer and the generous patronage of Faust. Gutenberg used only blocks, and Schoeffer is due the movable type cast from matrices. Caxton, who introduced the art into England, began life as a mercer, but learnt printing at Cologne. The Introduction of Printing.

Printing is said to have been introduced to the world on August 14, 1473. John Gutenberg stands at the head of the early typographers, supported by the genius of Schoeffer and the generous patronage of Faust. Gutenberg used only blocks, and to Schoeffer is due the movable type cast from matrices. Caxton, who introduced the art into England, began life as a mercer, but learnt printing at Cologne. The first printed book on record is "The Psalter," which John Faust and Schoeffer published at Metz on this day in 1457.—London Chronicle.

Fads and Fashions.

Long gloves are worn with short-sleeved dresses for afternoon. The taffeta hat is now, as always, the fashionable midsummer hat. Fur trimming is a noticeable feature of the new coats and suits. High directed stocks are a dominant note of the new neckwear.

Who Will Act?

Another Opinion on the West End Cemetery Neglect.
Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I have been interested in the correspondence going on in your paper recently about the West End Cemetery, by the different writers, who are anxious to have the place put in a proper condition. I think they are on the wrong track in appealing to the Committee in charge, or to the clergymen. It is primarily a question for the people at large, and in conversation with many of the leading men of the city who have relations buried there, this view has been widely endorsed. The helplessness of the committee is now clearly established by the fact that no notice whatever has been taken of the many writers who have shown their concern to the extent of doing anything to remedy matters, short of actually nailing up the broken fences. The committee is, after all, I understand, only expected to look after the routine matters connected with the place and is not empowered to undertake extensive improvements. This, no doubt, explains its silence. The whole people, then, incur the responsibility for the present state of affairs and to them I herewith tender an appeal for organization and action—an appeal. I am sure, they cannot afford, in their own interests, to overlook. Let us ask ourselves, What would be the impression of a stranger who came into our city for the first time and viewed the surroundings of the cemetery? Would he not form an unfavorable impression of us generally? Could you blame him for wondering how little we must regard the living, when we have not yet learned the refined and Christian trait of tenderly caring for the dead? Casual visitors see more than the native and possibly also think mere on subjects of this sort, which fact it may be well for us to bear in mind. My object in entering this discussion is to suggest, Mr. Editor, some means to bring about the desired improvement. It occurs to me, from what I have heard around the city, that a movement is necessary on the part of some of our business men and leading citizens, and until this is done it is very evident that nothing can be hoped for from any other source. Our parks, amusement grounds and other beauty spots are commented on most favorably by visitors to our city, as well as by the public generally, and in all truth it is not shameful to think that while this is so, the sacred city of the dead can scarcely claim from us a passing thought, even though our nearest and dearest forever rest in its hallowed soil. It is just as well to give up wasting time and effort on the present helpless committee. Let us get together and devise means to effect a complete change in the existing conditions. The people are responsible and with proper organization and an energetic leader they are sure now, as always, to force matters to a satisfactory conclusion. Your correspondents mean well but they are only wasting time appealing to an impotent committee. Let the people themselves now get to work. The eyes of the whole community are concentrated on this sad subject and the respectability of the congregations concerned demands immediate action. Come on, gentlemen, who will be the leader?

Yours truly,
RESPECTER OF OUR DEAD.
St. John's, Sept. 5, 1919.

Berthing the Rosalind.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—The difficulty experienced by the Rosalind in berthing yesterday, when, but for the cool skill of the captain and the efficient way in which the engines were handled, serious damage would have occurred, ought to make the Harbor Master arrange his anchorage as in properly conducted ports and not as an obstacle race. Never in all the ports I have visited have I seen such a condition of impaired efficiency.
Yours,
HARRY P. LEWIS.

Some Day.

Some day I shall awaken
As from a quiet sleep
To find the dark'ning shadows
That pile, a tangled heap
Between my soul and sunlight
Gone, like the night cloud scrolls,
And I know I have awakened
Within the land of souls.
Some day this sound of turmoil
Shall drop to sudden calm,
The shades and storm-clouds parted
As by a mighty arm;
And, lo! the land of quiet
Where souls that here have striven
Shall find their rest forever—
The peaceful realm of heaven.
Some day life's waves and billows
Shall ebb in perfect peace
The noise and stormy howling
Of the chill wind shall cease,
And my life bark, the shattered,
Scarred hull, and canvas rent,
Shall anchor in the haven,
To which her course was bent.

The Journalist's Millennium.

Surely the millennium of the journalistic world has come into sight. In future Fleet St. will know none but the officially certificated. No journalist shall be journalist except he who has been through the course and passed the test which is being inaugurated under the mighty patronage of the Ministry of Labor, the Board of Education, and a host of very great hats in the profession. It may be all very well, this new departure in the journalistic profession. Possibly, it is something very good indeed. But somehow there is something incongruous in this erection of the straight gate "examination" as entry to Fleet Street's green and ancient pastures.—Christian Science Monitor.

Shakespeare's Will.

We are indebted to an English publication for a copy of the last will and testament of the late William Shakespeare. In the course of this document, we observe the following sentence:
"I give unto my wife my second best bed with the furniture."
We have no desire to find fault with the successful poet and dramatist of Stratford for this apparent discrimination against the Widow Shakespeare. What disposition he made of his first best bed is a matter that is not revealed by the copy of the will of the versatile author whose last testament is reported in the columns of our alert London contemporary. However, we don't think Mr. S. showed just the right spirit in giving to his wife his second best bed. O, why did he not give unto her his first bed, or his tea potte or his punch bowl, with the gilt butterflies, or his favorite wig, or his safety razor, or fountain pen, or bicycle—anything, in fact, but his second best bed.
No doubt Mr. Shakespeare had gone to bed with his boots on many a Saturday night in that very second best bed, and yet, hallowed as it was by such memories, one cannot but feel that the widow was treated unfairly. Perhaps Will's folks influenced him. As a cowriter we have only the highest regard and esteem for him. But we don't think he acted right about friend wife.—Thrift Magazine.

Ecclesiastical Trinity.

In addition to Trinity being historical and beautiful, it is also decidedly ecclesiastical, i.e., in the sense of having been and still being definitely associated with things pertaining to the church.

To the credit of our forefathers, one of their first collective actions was to build a church for the worship of God, and to provide for a priest to conduct the services, to bless their marriage unions, to baptize their children, to bury their dead, and to be in many respects their temporal, as well as their spiritual adviser.

As the large majority of those who first settled here were from the west of England, the Church of England, as its spiritual mother in the old land, was the church of their choice in the New-found-land, and from that date down to the present, it has been definitely associated with things pertaining to the moulding of character, and the deepening of spiritual life, on the part of 90 per cent. of the people, in what is known as Trinity Blight.

In my article on "Beautiful Trinity" I referred to the fact that St. Paul's Church of England stands beside a church-yard that is filled with the bodies of generations, and that it is also the custodian of the oldest church registers in Newfoundland.

The ecclesiastical history of Trinity since 1753 is largely bound up with those Registers of Marriages, Baptisms, and Burials, and profusely illustrated by the headstones in the church-yard.

The rector of the parish has kindly permitted me to examine those Registers for material for this article, and I find them so full of such deeply interesting records, that I hardly know how much to use and how much to omit.

Those registers date from 1753 and contain records of baptisms, and marriages that were performed by the priest of the Church of England of Trinity, between Greenspond on the north and Bay de Verde on the south.

The two great sources from which "youngsters" were procured for Trinity, as apprentices, and to become the men of the next generation, were Pool, England, and Limerick, Ireland. Those from Pools were members of the Church of England, and those from Limerick were Roman Catholics, but they were often apprenticed to the same master, and worked together in daily life, and their bodies lie side by side in the old St. Paul's churchyard, all of whom were laid to rest by the priest of the Church of England.

This was done till the year 1828, when permission was asked by "Roman Catholics and Protestant Dissenters" to bury their own dead, in the ground belonging to, and consecrated to the use of members of the Church of England.

This request was granted by Rev. William Bullock, and notice of his decision was forwarded to "the churchwardens and gentlemen of the vestry" on March 26th 1828.

The following is an extract from this notice: "In consideration of there being no place in Trinity set apart for the interment of their dead, and with a desire of promoting peace and good feeling among all denominations of Christians, I have granted permission (so far as I have the power to grant) to the said Roman Catholics, and Protestant Dissenters to use the said ground, until they shall be furnished with a separate place of their own."

Then follow certain provisions to be observed at the time of burial, such as were intended to prevent misunderstandings, and the document thus signed by Rev. William Bullock, was sent to Thomas Drawbridge and William Nelson, Esqrs., Church Wardens.

To-day there are three churches in Trinity—the Church of England, the Roman Catholic, and the Methodist. The present St. Paul's, Church of England is the third church building that has been erected in the old church yard.

The first, I understand, was a square building with what is known as a Cottage Roof, in accordance with the ecclesiastical architecture of the day. It stood in the middle of the old churchyard, and as Rev. J. Clinch was buried under its altar, his tomb as it now appears, indicates the site of the church.

The second church was a long high building with two rows of windows at the sides, and a square tower, with four pinnacles, each surmounted by a large copper cross at the west end, and interior galleries on its north and south sides and west end. This too, was a reproduction of the west of England churches of that day, and when it was built it was regarded as an up-to-date building. The bell in the tower (which is still in use) was given by Robert Slade, Esq., in 1833.

The present building, on the same site of the second church, is a beautiful gothic structure.

The plans from which it was built were procured from Canada, and it is a replica of the beautiful churches in Digby and Windsor, Nova Scotia. From the same plans, with local changes, several other fine churches have since been built in Newfoundland. The interior fittings of this church are among the best in the diocese. The altar was given by six priests born in the parish, and the Font cover is a replica of that in Notre Dame Cathedral, Paris. The east and west windows are memorials, and beautifully illustrate the crucifixion and ascension of our Blessed Lord, respectively.

The present Methodist Church is the second building erected by that denomination. The first was a square building with a cottage roof, and situated in the little graveyard, by which it was then surrounded, and in which lie buried the bodies of Thomas Locas, William Nelson, Jacob Christian, Wm. D. Cross, and other old residents of Trinity.

The oldest date on the stones there is 1828.

The present building is a combination of church and public hall. The Hall (one half the building) is used for the temporal activities of the congregation, and the other half for worship.

The Roman Catholic Church is a small building erected some 80 years ago, on land given by George Gerald, Esq., for that purpose. A few years ago a campanile was added to the property, to accommodate a memorial Bell—the finest in the town. There is a resident priest, and a priests' residence provided by the congregation, which is made up of people from Trinity, Trinity east, and Port Rexton.

One can hardly think of Trinity from an ecclesiastical standpoint without being reminded of the fact, that the hymn "We love the place O God" was written here by Rev. William Bullock, and sung for the first time from manuscript, at the opening of the older St. Paul's Church.

This hymn has found a place in nearly all the modern editions of hymns, and whilst it is very dear to a Trinitarian, and brings back sacred memories to him wherever he hears it sung, yet it is to him, as to others, a cause for deep regret that in the latest edition of hymns published by the Presbyterian Church in Canada, verses three and four, referring to the Sacraments of Holy Baptism and Holy Communion, are omitted.

Mr. John Mitchell, who was Provost of Ayr during the time our boys were over there, will arrive in the city by the s.s. Digby.

Again, as one looks at Trinity from the same ecclesiastical viewpoint, there pass in review a Bishop, and nine priests of the Church of England, one priest of the Church of Rome, one Minister of the Methodist Church, all of whom were born and brought up in Trinity, and of whom eight are living to-day.

The old "Parish Home" in which the priest of the Church of England lived in Trinity was condemned in 1833, and was sold for £68, at a parish meeting held on Easter Day 1836 it was decided to build a new Parsonage, and an agreement was made with one Robert Strathe for six months labor on it at five pounds a month, to diet himself and find his own tools. Ten thousand brick for chimneys, etc., were ordered from Hamburg, and the timber, etc., from local dealers.

The building cost £248.11.6. It was condemned and sold a few years ago, and a modern rectory has taken its place on another site.

The sexton's duties were to keep the church clean, to open and shut the doors and gates, ring the bell and hoist the flag, light and extinguish the candles, and attend to such other church services as may be lawfully required by the resident clergyman and church wardens.

In addition to his appointment as sexton he was also the official gravedigger, for which he was to receive five shillings for a grave for persons from 15 years of age and upwards, and under that age three shillings.

Next to the church wardens he was the most important layman, and an agreement, in which his duties were clearly defined at the annual meeting, was signed, sealed, and delivered by him and the churchwardens. For work as sexton he received five pounds, "providing his services were duly performed."

The expenses of the church were estimated at the annual meeting, and defrayed by an assessment on each seat in the church. At the meeting in 1832; however, it was decided to discontinue this method, and to adopt the system of voluntary offerings in church.

One of the important annual notices given to the following:—"The inhabitants of Trinity Harbour and places round about, are hereby requested to join in giving a haul of wood to the clergyman on Thursday 8th March. If the paths be good, or as early as convenient."

I am not quite sure as to whether we of the present generation are either better or worse than our forefathers; but from a perusal of their sayings and doings since 1753, as given in the church registers, etc., I am fully convinced that we are different from them in many important respects.

An article on the old churchyard will follow.

WOMAN SUFFERED 12 YEARS

Finally Made Well by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Emmitsburg, Md.—"I suffered for twelve or fifteen years, and was treated by a physician, but I could get no relief. I saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in my newspaper, so I thought I would try it, and I found more good than all the doctor's medicine. I am a farmer's wife and do my housework all the time, and I am better now than I have been for years. I am never without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the house and have recommended it to several of my friends. You are perfectly welcome to publish my letter for the good it may do other women."—Mrs. ETTIE WARREN, Emmitsburg, Md.

Backache and nervousness are symptoms of nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment.

Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Warren's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

St. John Woman Succeeds After Six Years' Effort

Spent Hundreds Seeking Relief—Tanlac Is Best Medicine On Earth," She Says.

"During the past six years I have spent hundreds of dollars trying to find a treatment or medicine that would give me some relief from my suffering, but my troubles were never overcome until I commenced taking Tanlac," said Mrs. W. T. Henneberry who lives at 185 King street, West St. John, New Brunswick, the other day.

"When I commenced taking Tanlac," continued Mrs. Henneberry, "I was so completely run-down and worn out that I could hardly do my housework. In fact, I would just have to do a little part of the work, and then go and lie down and rest for awhile before I could do any more. I would often have severe pains in my back, and just felt tired and worn out all the time. I couldn't walk any distance at all without getting out of breath, and would have to stop and sit down and rest. I was very nervous and hardly ever got a good night's sleep. I was under the best of treatment and took many different kinds of medicine, but my condition just gradually got worse all the time."

"Then I heard about Tanlac and made up my mind to give it a trial. Well, I must say that Tanlac has done me more good than all the rest of the medicine and treatments combined. It is simply wonderful the way I have improved, and my entire system has been greatly built up in every way. I never had a better appetite in my life, and am so well and strong that I do all my housework without the least trouble. My general health is better in every way than it has been in many years. I consider Tanlac the best medicine on earth for people who are suffering from a run-down worn-out condition, and since it has done so much for me, I am more than glad to recommend it to others."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative.

The Wonderful Wireless System.

"The next few years should see the establishment of a wireless telephone system enabling London to talk to any part of the world for three minutes at a maximum cost of one pound ($5)," the Evening News quotes Sir Godfrey Isaacs, manager of the Marconi Wireless Company, as saying, "provided the government's red tape does not strangle us. If it does it might easily take 200 years before the wireless telephone can be used just like the cable. But if the government does not deter us but gives us every opportunity to develop the system, there is a possibility that we shall be able to talk to Australia within 200 days."

Re Tanlac.

Special to Evening Telegram.

MO., ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 4.

The attack made on Tanlac in anonymous communication to St. John's 'News', is false and libellous and without slightest foundation in fact. Tanlac contains ten standard medicinal ingredients of recognized therapeutic value, each endorsed by United States Pharmacopoeia and National Formulary and carries only sufficient alcohol for legitimate purposes of extraction, solution and prevention of valuable ingredients. The preparation is so highly medicated that it is incapable of being used as a beverage, and if taken in excessive doses will produce nausea. Though extensively sold for years throughout United States and Canada there is not one case on record where Tanlac has been used as a beverage. Ontario Temperance Board and similar Boards throughout Canada, have approved Tanlac formula and their rulings are in accord with findings of Bureau of Chemistry at Washington. All testimonials are bona fide and from persons whose identity, character and intelligence will bear closest investigation. I have not paid one cent for the use of any person's name in my advertising, and all testimonials are on file in my office properly witnessed by two reputable persons. That my product and business methods are above reproach is evident by letters from hundreds of the leading newspaper publishers with whom I have been doing business for over five years. The attack in question is false and malicious in the extreme, and I cannot understand how any reputable newspaper would give space to such unjustly defamatory matter. Will appreciate it if you will do your best to set public opinion right in this regard, especially by giving publicity to facts sent you last Monday by mail. If you deem it necessary will send representative to St. John's for the purpose of protecting my interests.

The Banner of St. George

It comes from the misty ages: The Banner of England's might. The blood red cross of the brave St. George.

That burns on a field of white; It speaks of the deathless heroes. On fane's bright page encircled. And bids great England ne'er forget The glorious deeds of old.

O'er many a cloud of battle, That Banner has floated wide, It shone like a star o'er the valiant hearts.

That dashed the Armada's pride; For ever amid the thunders, The sailor could do or die. With tongues of flame leaped forth below, And the flag of St. George was high.

O'er many a flag beloved Unfurled in a strife unlost, But ever give strength to the righteous arm.

And hope to the heart's oppressed; It says through the passing ages—"Be brave if your cause is right." Like the soldier saint whose cross of red Still burns on your banner white.

Great race whose Empire of splendour Has dazzled a wondering world; May the flag that floats o'er thy wide domains Be long to all winds unfurled; Three crosses in concord blended, The Banner of Britain's might; But the central gem of the ensign fair Is the cross of the dauntless Knight.

England on Verge of Collapse.

Conditions in England are going from bad to worse and any sanity which the nation possessed before the war seems to have disappeared. A wave of degeneracy is sweeping over the country and all classes seem to be affected. No longer, apparently, is the phlegmatic nature of the British people able to cope with their new social disease which is making rich and poor alike. Men and women are flinging their honor and virtue to the winds and crime is rampant throughout the nation. A similar condition preceded the fall of the Roman Empire and a similar fate seems in store for England, unless the people ever return to the ways of decency and clean living. Lloyd George's gloomy speech, recently, gives an insight into the terror which is now in the hearts of thoughtful Englishmen, they see in the future nothing to reassure them, though millions of square miles have been added to the British Empire and indemnities equal to a kingdom's ransom have been pledged it by Germany. The cancer of social unrest has grown into a malignant disorder, which threatens the very existence of England and the complete break-up of her far-flung empire. The laboring classes of England have now the upper hand, but elements among them are so hindering the work of reconstruction by their excesses that chaos is the result. The nobility and the moneyed class have lost their poise and are indulging in orgies of waste and extravagance, which bodes ill for the future.

And yet, in spite of the alarming situation at home, Great Britain is engaged in several wars in various parts of the world, spending the funds which she now needs so badly in destroying the nationality of other peoples. It is safe to say that England is now regarding the harvest of her sins against humanity and the present crisis which faces her is an indication of the punishment which Providence in its own sweet time metes out to nations as well as individuals which disregard the laws of God and man in their dealings with the world at large. - Charleston American.

The "Philadelphia Lawyer's" Origin.

The phrase "Philadelphia lawyer" is supposed to pay tribute to the singular pertinacious astuteness of attorneys who hail from the Quaker City. But the origin of the phrase is known to few. John Peter Zenger was a German-born publisher in New York, who started in business in that city about 1700. His Weekly Journal which he began to put out in 1733 attacked the colonial Governor and was opposed by the authorities. It was decreed in council that certain of Zenger's offending publications should be burned by the common hangman, and that he should be put in prison on a charge of libel. The issue of the freedom of the press was at stake. Zenger's friends scoured the colonies for the ablest advocate obtainable. They finally chose Andrew Hamilton of Philadelphia, who with his son built Independence Hall. Hamilton was speaker of the Assembly of Pennsylvania in 1729, and held many other public offices. He rode over from Philadelphia on horseback, delivered speeches of fiery eloquence and close reasoning that held the jury spellbound, and overwhelmingly carried the day for the poor printer. The populace, who surrounded the building where the trial took place, were all for Hamilton from the start, and the verdict of the jury reflected the public sentiment. Hamilton was cheered to the echo, and sumptuously banqueted; and when he departed he was in the North River fired a salute. The prestige Hamilton thus acquired for the Philadelphia bar has attached to it ever since.

The Artful Dodger.

Lloyd George is one of those men who have greatness thrust upon them. He has always just failed to complete his most generous promises. He comes to power on the strength of his promises to the Irish and Labour Parties, and when in the height of his power, he gracefully denied his former friends. His shuffling methods have, however, been quite successful up to the present, and he comes back from Paris with added prestige as a successful political schemer. The Sydney, Australia Sun says of little Lloyd: "He has never been a courageous man in great decisions." He has a habit of balking at the last hurdle. If compromises can be reduced, or if the cost of giving in is not too great, he will abandon his policy." But Lloyd George cannot go on forever dodging fate on great issues. Necessity is close upon his train!
