An Indispensible Favorite
OR
Wealth and Beauty at Stake!

CHAPTER VIII.

"I am not a titled lady yet, at all events," Yolande says, dryly, her hot cheeks fading in a pallor of emotion and chill disgust at Mrs. Sarjent's coarse speech.

"I don't think I ever saw or heard Aunt Sarjent more vulgar or unpleasant than she is this evening," Yolande thinks, with a spasm of angry despair swelling in her breast. "Oh, what should I do if ever Lady Nora or Captain Glynn had to meet her and know her?"

"And, as for a man above me in birth and position seeking me for my money, Aunt Sarjent," she says, aloud, with the dignity of insulted youth and purity in every outline of her pale, young face and in the stern gaze of her passionate eyes, "I would not marry any man, even if I loved him dearly, unless he earned truly for myself. I would not, if I died for it!"

"Oh, stuff and nonsense!" Mrs. Sarjent retorts, with a chuckle of ridicule. "Young men nowadays can't think of marrying a girl without a halfpenny in her pocket, however fond of her they are! You can't expect your dashing captain will be able to forget you have thirty thousand pounds, child. Of course he likes you; but he likes your money, too—and small blame to him for it, I say!"

But Yolande repeats, with gleaming eyes, and the soft girlish face growing rigid as marble:

"I would not marry any man, even if I loved him dearly, unless he loved me truly—or if I died for it!"

CHAPTER IX.

"Well, I don't think much of your viscount!" Mrs. Sarjent announces, decidedly, when she drives over to Fair View on the following afternoon.

Nobody has asked her how she liked the viscount; but it was patent to any one who chose to observe that between the self-assertive, vulgar, shrewd female partner in the firm of Sarjent & Son, jam and pickle manufacturers, and Lord Lyolph Glynn, not an atom of love was lost. For Viscount Glynn, languidly polite to every one, was rather icily polite to Mrs. Sarjent, and, altogether, made that bumptious, aggressive, opinionated lady feel snubbed and repressed for perhaps, the first time in her life.

"I hope your captain is nicer looking than his cousin, Yolande," she says, with waggish ferocity. "I never saw such a leathery-jawed, blue-looking man in my born days!"

"He is a very excellent man, Wilmot, my dear," old Miss Dormer puts in, reprovingly. "He is on half a score or charitable committees, and makes beautiful speeches at meetings and all that, and gives away prizes to working-girls, and—oh, I couldn't remember all the good work he does! I only hope—with a shy little affectionate glance at Yolande—that Captain Glynn is like his cousin in one respect. Viscount Glynn has a fine mid-end!" winds up Aunt Keren, with her usual formula.

"Ahem!" Mrs. Sarjent retorts, in a very dissatisfied tone, tossing her head, which is loaded with a grand be-feathered chapeau of crimson ostrich-tips and gold-colored velvet which does not in the least match her gown of two shades of heliotrope satin and her sable shoulder cape. "Very stuck-up, I call him! He never ate a thing on the table last night, and only put the wine to his lips!"

"He did not like the soup," Yolande says, in a distressed tone. "Cook did not make it right—she was rather hurried, poor thing! It was sticky, and not nicely flavored. I was so sorry!"

"Nor he didn't like the fish, nor he didn't like the roast goose, nor the beefsteak pie!" Mrs. Sarjent adds, sarcastically. "I wouldn't allow any one to behave so at my table, Aunt Keren. I can tell you!" she declares, turning to the older lady, on whose cheeks a streak of nervous red is beginning to dawn. But this does not stop the irate lady, for she goes on, "There was food enough for his betters on your table, and your stuck-up viscount turned up his nose at every thing!"

Poor Miss Dormer's looks very uncomfortable.

"Brother likes him very much, at all events, Wilmot," Miss Dormer says, deprecatingly. "He says the viscount is a most affable gentleman, and so sensible! And how well he and your Wilmot get on," she adds, brightening up as she thinks of a good argument.

"Why, they were all talking away together like old friends!"

"Yes; he wants 'em to put their money into the Pacific Salvage Company. He's a director. More fools they if they do!" Mrs. Sarjent says, snappishly. "They'll lose every ha'penny if they do, and I've told Wilmot so!"

"My dear, they're going to pay twelve per cent, brother says!" argues Miss Dormer.

"Of course they are! I shouldn't be surprised if they said twenty per cent.," retorts Miss Sarjent, curtly.

"Yolande, ring for tea, please, dear!" Aunt Keren says, in a meek tone of endurance, and then adds, "Mama-selle said she'd send it up some time ago. Take off your bonnet, Wilmot, won't you?"

"Yes; but I'm not going to stop long," Mrs. Sarjent answers, tossing off the grand beplumed headgear which Miss Dormer calls a "bonnet," and tossing her fur cape and gloves after it. She always ill-uses her grand expensive clothes in this fashion to create her velvets and silks her delicate silks; but her economic instincts and business principles prevent her from laying them aside unworn when so spoiled, or spending five pounds more than a certain sum yearly upon her wardrobe. "And, as I am about finding fault," Mrs. Sarjent continues, getting good-humored as she discovers that she has succeeded in making others depressed and low-spirited, "I'll find fault with that French governess you've got for Yolande, Aunt Keren. I wouldn't have her in my house for a thousand pounds!"

"Mamaselle!" Miss Dormer exclaims, indignantly, now getting really displeased. "Really, Wilmot, you are in a mood for finding fault this afternoon! What fault can you find with poor, mamaselle! A most obliging, clever, agreeable young lady we consider her. Such a nice mid-end, open to all good impressions!"

"I wouldn't have her in my house for a thousand pounds, I tell you!" repeats Mrs. Sarjent, setting back, with an air of gloomy importance, her rattling gold bracelets and bangles on her wrists, and closing her teeth and breathing hard. It is my duty to tell you so. I dare say you aren't pleased; but it's my duty, so I tell you. She's as artful as—Well, I won't say who! Wilmot would say a wagonload of monkeys, but that isn't a ladylike expression."

"Why, Wilmot liked her, Aunt Sarjent!" Yolande exclaims, vexed and grieved enough to cry. "He said to me how he should like to be able to talk French as well and fluently as mamaselle!"

"Of course he did!" Mrs. Sarjent admits, her eyes and cheeks firing with sudden wrath. "Wilmot's a good boy, and a sensible, well-brought-up young man; but he's just as great a fool as any other man where an artful woman is concerned. That mademoiselle of yours would get round any man living if she only had a chance! Don't you have her in your house when you're married, Yolande, my dear!" warns Mrs. Sarjent, with motherly severity. "If you do, you'll put sorrow, she's a snake!"

"A what, Aunt Sarjent?" Yolande asks, in tones of mingled curiosity and horror.

"A snake in the grass," replies Mrs. Sarjent, with portentous meaning, looking around with a nod of assurance at the frightened faces. "You don't know what I saw."

Bulls Without Legs.

When you hear the word "bull," you think of a big brown or black animal, with horns, and a switching tail, and fiery eyes, who roars, and is altogether frightful—an animal to be avoided. That is one kind of bull, but there is another kind that makes you laugh, and that is made of words. Recently a prize was offered for the best bull of this kind, and here are some that were sent in:

Extract from a speech made at a meeting to promote total abstinence: "The glorious work will never be accomplished until the good ship 'temperance' shall sail from one end of the land to the other, and, with a cry of 'Victory!' at each step she takes, shall plant her banner in every city town, and village in the United Kingdom."

An Irishman, in the midst of a tirade against landlords and capitalists, declared that "if these men were landed on an uninhabited island they

YOUNG DAUGHTER MADE WELL

Mother Tells How Her Daughter Suffered and Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Vancouver, B. C.—"My daughter is a young girl who has been having severe pains and weak and dizzy feelings for some time and had lost her appetite. Through an older daughter who had heard of a woman who was taking it for the same trouble, we were told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My daughter has been taking it for several months and is quite all right now. It has done all it was represented to do and we have told a number of friends about it. I am never without a bottle of it in the house, for I myself take it for that weak, tired, worn-out feeling which sometimes comes to us all. I find it is building me up and I strongly recommend it to women who are suffering from any of the troubles mentioned as I and my daughter have."

(Signed) Mrs. J. McDonald, 2941 25th Ave. East, Vancouver, B. C.

From the ages of twelve a girl needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give. Many a woman has suffered years of pain and misery—the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance of the mother who should have guided her during this time.

If she complains of headaches, pains in the back and lower limbs, or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter, make life easier for her. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for such conditions.

Not on Napoleonic Dreams.

London Daily Herald: Whether France can prevail against French belief in force, whether Mr. Baldwin can persuade M. Poincare to tell him that France really wants—is it money or the break-up of Germany seems very doubtful. But the French, at any rate, can see now that all reasonable opinion in this country is in favor of a settlement based on realities, not upon Napoleonic dreams.

Willie had swallowed a coin, and his mother was in a state of great alarm.

"Helen," she called to her sister, "send for the doctor. Willie has swallowed a sixpence."

The boy looked up imploringly. "No, mamma," he said. "Send for the tax collector."

"The tax collector!" exclaimed his mother.

"Yes; dad says he can get money out of anybody."

LONDON DOCKERS SHOW INDEPENDENCE OF LEADERS. LONDON, July 23.

The continuance of the dockers strike led to what was almost a unique incident in the history of trade unionism. The strike has not had the sanction of the official union leaders, and a meeting was called in East London to enable Ernest Bevin, Secretary of the Dock Workers Union, and Harry Gosling, leader of the transport workers, to explain their attitude in refusing to sanction the strike. Five thousand dock workers responded and crowded the hall to overflowing. When Bevin and Gosling ascended the platform there was silence, but before they could speak the storm broke, the entire assembly booing and hissing them. One unofficial leader arose and invited the audience to leave the hall as a showing of lack of confidence and faith in Bevin and Gosling. In seventeen minutes the hall was empty.

British Empire Exhibition

London Prepares for Next Year's Visitors—Pinding Room for the Millions Expected—Census to be Taken of London's Hotel and Boarding House Accommodation—Prices to Suit all Purposes.

Hotel and Boarding-house accommodation for overseas and provincial visitors to London next year is already engaging the attention of the British Empire Exhibition authorities. The Exhibition officials are in negotiation with the Incorporated Association of Hotels and Restaurants and the Residential Hotel-keepers and Caterers Association. With the help of these two bodies and others interested in providing temporary accommodation for the millions of visitors who will undoubtedly be arriving in London next summer, a Committee is to be set up immediately.

One of the first duties of such a Committee will be to compile an official list of hotels, restaurants, boarding-houses and private houses at which visitors may obtain good accommodation and service at a reasonable and approved scale of charges. Only such boarding-houses and hotels as are prepared to adhere to their usual scale of charges for the summer season will be included in this list.

It is proposed to collate and index a list of available accommodation for visitors within a ten miles radius of the West End, and in conjunction with the transport authorities to see that travel facilities are available until after midnight. All Middlesex and parts of Bucks, Herts and Surrey will be included, and as it has been suggested that many of the industrial towns in the North shall arrange to spend their "wakes" or holiday weeks in London, instead of at Blackpool or Douglas, it may be necessary to provide special holiday camps or hostels on the outskirts of London.

All these questions, however, will be fully considered and dealt with by the Committee appointed for the purpose. Of course, it will be wise for visitors to make early arrangements. London will be "full" all through the summer—no doubt fuller than it has ever been—but with the co-operation of organizations of such integrity as those already mentioned there need be no fear of inefficiency or undue high tariffs.

The Premier's Resignation is Forced By His Own Party

Hon. W. R. Warren Will Form a Ministry

Sensational as have been the political events of this country in the past, there is nothing in its whole history that compares with the page that has been written during the past twenty-four hours. Less than three months ago we had a Leader returned to power with a considerable majority. To-day we are presented with the spectacle of that Leader compelled by his own supporters to tender his resignation to His Majesty's Representative, and to retire from the limelight until such time as he has rendered a strict account of his stewardship.

What of the Future?

The curtain has rung down on Act One. What will be presented in the next? We know that His Excellency the Governor has requested the late Attorney General to assume the leadership; beyond that everything is speculation. There is, however, one aspect of the situation about which there is no uncertainty, let that be clearly understood by those who decide to assume control. AN INVESTIGATION IS DEMANDED, AND THE INVESTIGATION MUST BE IMMEDIATE AND THOROUGH.

Recital College Hall To-Night.

The programme arranged for the concert in the Methodist College Hall to-night is a very attractive one. Capt. Campbell will only be with us for a very short while, and Miss Eleanor Mews, who has kindly consented to assist, is doing so at great personal inconvenience, having interrupted her holiday.

Motorist Kills Cow.

Saturday night a lady prominent in entertainment circles whilst driving a motor car around Quidi Vidi Lake ran into and killed a cow belonging to Mr. Alfred Piercy. The owner of the animal has since been compensated for his loss.

In Passing.

Thousands of citizens spent yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of the Colonial Building in the hope that the Assembly would be opened and some pronouncement made regarding the resignation of Sir R. A. Squires and other members of the Squires' Cabinet.

For hours the multitude waited in groups and everywhere contradictory stories and versions were debated. For a period the tenacity of the political atmosphere was somewhat similar to those days of the Great War when an anxious people were eagerly seeking news.

From some groups alarming stories were favored with beliefs of a most sensational nature and expounded by the originators in a manner that would do credit to the most ardent follower of Fabian.

The announcement that the Assembly adjourned for want of a quorum was unwelcome news for the great mass of people who were congregated on the stone steps and in the spacious grounds to hear the latest news following the resignations. Hundreds remained on the scene for hours after and left with expressions of disappointment in the knowledge that no official statement would be forthcoming until this afternoon when the Assembly will meet at the usual hour.

Whilst the Hon. W. R. Warren was in consultation with the Speaker and other members of the Government in the Speaker's room, a message from the Government House arrived and requested that the late Attorney-General to call immediately upon His Excellency, who was pleased to request him to form a Ministry. Mr. Warren agreed to comply with His Excellency's wishes and estimated that he would be successful in submitting the personnel of his Cabinet within a few days.

Shortly after 5 p.m., Sir Richard Squires met his party in the Council Chamber when he personally and officially acquainted them of his resignation also that of the Government. Sir Richard before bidding one and all adieu delivered his valedictory. He did not in any way reveal his future intentions, as he did at a previous meeting, when his resignation was requested, and when he asked to be allowed to continue office until the close of the year, during which time he was expected to attend the Imperial Conference in London at which all the Prime Ministers of the Empire were invited to be present.

At a meeting of the Government party last night, Hon. Mr. Warren was unanimously elected leader, but no definite arrangements outside of the intention to open the Assembly this afternoon were considered. This afternoon's session will be a very brief one. Hon. Mr. Warren will officially announce the resignation of Sir Richard Squires and will inform the House that His Excellency the Governor has invited him to form a new Ministry and of his consent. Following this announcement he will move the adjournment of the House until next Monday, when he hopes to make known his future Executive and policy.

The Vanderbilt estate at Douglas, N.Y., served Hugh Ford, the director, well for some of the exterior scenes for "The Price of Possession," Ethel Clayton's latest Paramount release, which will be shown at the Star Theatre to-day. The scenes at the famous estate represent the vicinity of Silverdale, Surrey, England, where part of Whitford Hoag's story is located. Other scenes representing Barton Manor were taken on the picturesque estate of George Ahrens at Port Chester, N.Y. Both of these country places made admirable locations for the outdoor scenes and both Mr. Ford and Miss Clayton, who have recently returned from England, remarked on the many characteristic features of the English landscape which can be filmed in New York State.

The Reception at Hr. Breton

TO HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP WHITE. The following telegraphic message has been received by the Telegram: Special to Evening Telegram

HR. BRETON, July 23. His Lordship Bishop White arrived at Hr. Breton 5.30 p.m. on Saturday, and was extended a most hearty welcome. His reception was such as would make one feel proud and bespeak the honor, respect and esteem in which His Lordship is held by all. A magnificent arch was erected and from every mast flags floated and the whole town was alive to the occasion. On His Lordship entering the Harbor, cannonading, bells, and foghorns sounded in deafening peals and many of the townsfolk turned out to greet him. Sunday was a day to be remembered in church matters. The services were largely attended and quite a number came in from outlying settlements. His Lordship's addresses were most impressive, and no doubt had the desired effect. Confirmation service was held at three o'clock, when fifty-five candidates received the holy rite of the laying on of the hands. His Lordship left this morning for Great Harbour.

BERLIN, July 24. Inter-Allied Rhineland commission has issued a sweeping blanket ordinance according to press despatches reaching here, aiming to throttle passive resistance in the Ruhr and Rhineland. Punishment is provided even in the case of offering a sack of potatoes as an inducement for holding out against the occupational authorities according to the despatches.

Motorist Sent to Jail.

JUDGE MORRIS SENDS CITIZEN TO 30 DAYS IMPRISONMENT.

The case of a motor mechanic for driving a motor car at a speed dangerous to the public, which had been postponed for some days at the request of the defence, terminated in the Magistrate's Court this morning, when the defendant was convicted and sentenced to 30 days imprisonment without the option of a fine. The accused in this case had appeared before court on a similar charge about a month ago, when he was convicted and fined $50.00. At that time he received sufficient warning by the fine imposed to be have himself properly in the future, but on Monday last, the 16th inst., by the evidence submitted into court this morning, he drove his car at a great speed down Hamilton Street into New Gower Street between the hours of one and two o'clock, endangering the lives of anyone who might happen to cross that thoroughfare. The Sgt. and Fire Constable of the West End Fire Station, gave evidence to that effect. Witnesses who also gave evidence in court testified that the accused was driving his car under the influence of liquor, as about 10 minutes after he had passed down New Gower St., he ran his car up Job Street from Water Street at a rate of 12 miles per hour, and narrowly averted killing a child named O'Keefe. When the accused had swerved his car over to the left side of the road the youngster was partly under the rear wheel. Had it moved another foot, his little life would have been crushed out, but kind Providence ruled otherwise. Neither the accused nor his companions made any attempt to see whether the child had been injured or not. The witnesses, who were examined, gave their evidence in a very intelligent manner, while the accused tried to prove an alibi. Judge Morris

Protecting the Lobster Industry in Canada.

SIMILAR PRECAUTIONS TAKEN IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

The grading and standardizing of the product of the lobster canneries of the provinces is in progress, and ample time is being given to Dominion authorities to examine every canner to secure the requisite equipment. It is in the interest of the trade to be done. The export trade is a very important item, and it is most important that the reputation of all the porters should not be jeopardized by a few whose careless handling brings angry protests from home and foreign buyers. There is a stand demand for the delicacy these provinces can supply to a large extent, and the successful prosecution of the industry means a large expenditure of a large amount of money. There is always, of an element of uncertainty in the star fishery, and it is the most probable that the return should be satisfactory. The best way to ensure this is to produce from the canneries article of uniform excellence, keeping quality, and this may be done by adopting scientific methods, securing the proper equipment, and has been harsh criticism in the past of the conditions in some of the smaller canneries, by experts employed of the department at the time of the campaign of educational work in the industry ought to be carried out, and every canner should be urged to co-operate.

Produce and Provisions.

(From Trade Review.)
 Nothing of a nature calculated to show a change in the fish market, local or foreign, has occurred this week, though several sailings of vessels and exports by steam to foreign markets was a feature which is often recorded, no matter how dull the markets are. The shipments to Oporto continue, so that the market is heavily overstocked, as well as with Norwegian, a fact which tends to keep quotations down to the lowest figure. From the latest reports received from various locations it would appear as if there were a noticeable improvement in the trap voyage, with reasonably fair prospects for hook and line, and with present prospects for marketing many fear that this is not altogether an unmitigated blessing. None, however, look for a large shore or Labrador voyage, and if old stocks in Europe of both grades can be worked off at a reasonably early date, there is no doubt a good prospect for an increased trade and a stiffening of figures for the new season's catch. Exporters regret to say that there is yet a considerable quantity of Labrador in the markets of Europe, and that this has been put in cold storage till September, as there is absolutely no demand for it, and from present appearances few hope for any kind of profitable realization from it, and indeed fears are entertained that considerable losses will be incurred. Shore fish is moving slowly, and the best figure that can be obtained is 25 shillings. Rumor had it on the street Friday that some enquiries had been made within the past few days for new fish at an offer of 30 shillings, but this could not be verified. The following vessels sailed with cargoes during the week:—the schr. John from Rose-Blanche for Lisbon, taking 2,500 qtls., shipped by Wm. Horwood, the schr. Maxwell R. from Burn, taking 4,452 qtls. for Oporto, shipped by the Burn Import Co. the Maagen, from Fogo, taking 3,000 qtls. for Oporto from the Newfoundland Labrador Export Coy.; the schr. Harriet from St. John's, taking 3,000 qtls. for Oporto, shipped by A. E. Hickman & Co. and others, and the schr. Faustina, from Ramea, with 4,500 qtls. for Oporto, shipped by Penny & Sons. In addition there were shipped by the S. S. Rosalind for New York to be transhipped to the British West Indies, 3,776 qtls., or an aggregate of 21,118 qtls. The consumption of our fish in the Oporto market seems to be keeping well up to the average of previous weeks. Our stocks at Oporto last week were 65,600 qtls., and the previous week 49,085 qtls., the consumption being 7,143 and 7,985 qtls., respectively.

Cod Oil—During the past week the market in common cod oil has become much easier, and a drop of $25.00 per ton was noted in the foreign market, and sales were made at as low as $110 per ton as compared with $140 to $145 which have prevailed since last fall. It is estimated by dealers in this article that this season's output of common cod oil will not aggregate much over 2,000 barrels, and they base their calculations that there are not as many people as heretofore engaged in the codfishery as was the case the past summer or two. The slump in the price is undoubtedly due to the competition of foreign dealers to which reference was made in The Trade Review last week, and to a very considerable falling off of late for this class of goods, while, no doubt, the unfair methods used by competitors has had its effect, and it is a matter to which more than passing attention should be given. It is a fortunate circumstance that the local market is all but depleted, and that most sales were effected, while reasonably profitable prices could be secured. The following shipments of cod oil were made during the week by the Digby to Boston, 1 1/2 tons; by the Anna to Boston, 8 tons, and by the Rosalind to New York, 20 1/2 tons, a total of 30 1/2 tons.

Cod Liver Oil—In last week's issue of The Trade Review in our reference to the Cod Liver Oil market we made the following observation: "Though as in the cod oil market our cod liver oil must compete with the oil of Norway and elsewhere, there is a feeling abroad that our goods will be of an extra superior quality this year, and that good figures will realize from sales." We would point to the interview which our representative had with Messrs. Johnson and McQuilligan, of Evansville, Ind., U.S.A., printed in another column, for confirmation of our assertion. These gentlemen, expert chemists, thoroughly versed in the analysis of medicinal cod liver oil, speak in highest terms of the Newfoundland goods and especially of the renderings this summer. They noted with pleasure the cleanliness evident in the preparation of the oil, the excellence of the liners of the Newfoundland cod, and the care being given the production of our oil by the Department of Marine and Fisheries. They were not surprised over the very favorable report of it made by Dr. Zilvia and Mr. Graham and from what they will glean from them, when they will follow suite, their finding will be also of a favorable nature. There is no alteration in the cod liver oil market this week, and none was exported.

Seal Oil—As far as we can learn not much activity has prevailed in this market for some time past, and as a matter of fact little goods are now held here, mostly all of our oil and skins having been marketed. The schr. Alambi sailed during the week for New York, taking 311 tons of this oil.

Flour—Weather conditions for wheat in the United States and Canada continue to be ideal at this writing, and all reports received point to an abnormally large world crop. The aggregate in the countries named at it is believed will constitute a record. On July 24 the crop report of the United States alone, gave an estimate of 820 millions of bushels for that country, plus a very considerable quantity carried over from the crop of 1922. As far as can be realized, the Russian and Argentine crops will be extra large this season also, and the former country will have a surplus for export, so that relatively cheap flour should be an outcome. In the public despatch of Friday past it was stated that no less than 50,000 farm hands would be required this season to garner the crops in the Prairie Provinces of Canada, and when it is considered that this great number of men means an increase of some 15,000 over the number who were engaged in the same work last year, it should give an indication of the immense yield in wheat that will be accounted for in the Dominion this season. Contrary to the expectation wheat advanced during the week, in the foreign market 5 cents a bushel, equal to about 24 cents per barrel of flour here. Dealers, who are keen observers of conditions governing this market, say that, though the reports are favorable as to weather conditions, and that crops are undoubtedly flourishing, there is always a period of uncertainty as to whether such will continue till the time the wheat is harvested. The testing time is soon to come, when the weather will be doubtful and detrimental changes may affect the wheat before it is all milled. This, of course, would react on market quotations, which will not be uniform in character for some time yet. No flour shipments, as far as we know, came to hand this week, though several steamers arrived in port from Canada and the United States.

Pork—This market continues weak, as it generally is at this particular season, and prices are the same as when last quotations were issued. Stocks sufficient for all demands of the trade are held here, and very little pork is being imported here as there is little activity observable. It is too early yet to attempt a forecast of fall prices, but the market seems to promise a comparatively early upward tendency as reports from packing centres are that there has been some advance in the price of hogs of late. Only 30 barrels of pork were landed here this week out of the Rosalind from New York, and the prices rule the same from $24 to 28.50, according to grade.

Beef—There is little or no demand for this article of food, and the trade in it is sluggish, a generally prevailing feature in the summer season, and as the market is well supplied no immediate advance in price is looked for much before the fall season arrives. The same prices as last week hold, viz., Box Flank, $24.50; Family, $19.50; and Boneless, $19.50. The importations for the week were 115 barrels by the S.S. Anna and 366 by the Rosalind, or a total of 481 barrels.

Molasses—There were no molasses imports this week, and it now looks as if the crop at Barbados is pretty well cleaned up, so that with another shipment or so we in this country will have secured stocks sufficient to meet the fall and winter months' demand. Figures in the local market remain stationary, and are the same as those of last week.

Sugar—All indications suggest a very firm market in this article for the rest of the year as the consumption in the United States has been exceptionally large all the summer, and it is sustained and continues to the end of the year. It seems to be assured that on this account the supplies of sugar will not at all measure up to the demand, and that thus very firm markets are looked for. British consumption is at present and has been heavy, and the same applies all round, so that the large Cuban crop will be used up at a comparatively quick rate and prices will advance accordingly. The quotations are: Granulated, in barrels and sacks, $10 to 10.45, according to grade. There was landed here during the week 500 barrels by the Sable I. from Halifax, and 250 by the Rosalind; 750 barrels in all.

Defying Neptune.

One of the joys of a seaside holiday is a steamship trip. But many people fight shy of this for fear of "mal-de-mer."

This paragraph was suggested by a letter received from a Liverpool reader who sought advice. He was going on his first sea voyage—quite a short one—and was expecting to be seasick! That's half the trouble. Lots of people who prepare for a sea voyage also prepare to be ill—and are!

Here are some useful little hints for the would-be sailor. Heavy or rich meals should be avoided. Heavy or rich meals should be eaten. Some people think that well-done cold steak and bread (no butter) make a good breakfast to travel on, but it must be eaten slowly.

To travel on an empty stomach is almost as bad as travelling on a too full one. Having paid due attention to the welfare of one's inside, it is then barely a question of nerves. If you don't think you are going to be seasick and you can concentrate your mind on other things, you very probably will not be.

On the other hand, if you are going to worry, it is better to procure the little seasickness pills which are made up by all good chemists. These control the nerves of the stomach and are usually taken an hour or two beforehand and again just previous to embarking.

Many people prefer the top deck, where the fresh air helps them and they are away from the sound and smell of the engine. Travellers staying on deck, however, should be well wrapped up, as coldness increases the tendency to sickness. If a cabin is selected it should be as near the centre of the ship as possible.

"Please, kind lady, could you spare a poor man something to eat?" "I will call my husband."

"No, thanks, mum; I am not a cannibal."

Papyrus.

Papyrus was manufactured by the ancient Egyptians by taking a sheet of thin bark from a tree which it seems grew only in Egypt, and laying it flat upon a board, and then laying a cross layer over it. The materials having been previously moistened with water, made slightly glutinous. The sheet thus formed was pressed and dried in the sun. The placing of two layers of the bark in this manner across each other was intended to strengthen the texture of the sheet, for the fibres, it was found, were very easily separated and torn so long as they lay wholly in one direction. The sheet when dry was finished by smoothing the surface, and prepared to receive inscriptions made by means of a pen fashioned from a reed or a quill.

The rolls of paper and parchment were only used for important writings which it was intended permanently to preserve. For ordinary occasions tablets were used, upon which the writer traced inscriptions. The head of this instrument was smooth and rounded, so that any words which the writer wished to erase might be obtained by smoothing over again, with it, the wax on which they had been written.

Nature Notes: Spiders.

Our common house and outdoor spiders are worth studying. There is a small brown one which does not seem to weave a net, but just drops a single line down from some high place. Then there is a large one that has a very keen hearing, for it is almost impossible to get near enough to him to see him. He spins a web in a corner, always by choice, it seems, and it is as large as a corner bracket, so closely and finely woven as a lady's tissue veil, and of a delicate pearl colour. He sits back in the farthest corner and waits for flies. If he is very hungry he sucks the blood at once, and then rolls the body of the edge of his web, for he is a very clean housekeeper, and you seldom see the dead flies in his house. If not hungry he wraps the fly up tightly, like a mummy, with a cord he spins from his body, and lays him to one side till he has an appetite.

There is another kind of spider that lives in the grass. He is called the ground spider. His nest is beautiful. At his opening a web is spread, and from the centre starts a perfect tunnel, which leads to its retreat deep down in the grass. Sometimes it is three inches long, and always perfectly round. He seizes his prey, and runs down into his tunnel, and eats him in retirement. Spiders really do not eat insects; they only suck the juices from their bodies, and throw away the rest.

Film May Attack Your teeth tonight—while you sleep

There's a film on your teeth—a viscous film. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and decays. While you sleep, acids may be formed in it. Most tooth troubles, most cloudy teeth, are due to film. This is to tell you how to combat it, and offer a convincing test.

Film troubles
 Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.
 Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. That's why so few have escaped tooth troubles, despite all care.

New ways found
 Dental science, after long research, has found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring. Able authorities proved those methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. Those two new film destroyers were em-

A SECRET OF LEADERSHIP.

We were congratulating our young neighbour on having been elected president of her home town circle club, an organization noted for its worth while achievements.

"I hope I'll be able to fill the position gracefully," she said. "I don't worry so much about the civic work, for there are some splendid women with plenty of experience whom I can rely upon to put over the big things. What I am most concerned with is the avoidance of friction in my relations with the other officers. Tell me," turning to the elderly woman who had been listening with a quiet smile, "you have a reputation for tact, how did you manage when you were in club work? Can you give me some read rules, some leaves from your book of experience?"

Easier To Take Some Blame.

"It's nice of you to suggest that I might be helpful, my dear," said the older woman. "Youth is not often so open to suggestion from the older generation. But since you ask—well, I do remember one little trick that I think served better than almost any other to oil troubled waters. And that was taking on myself blame for things for which I was not actually responsible. The idea originated in laziness more than anything else. It was easier to take the blame than to get into a controversy over who was to blame for every little thing.

"If the secretary, for instance, failed to send out notices for a certain committee meeting it was easy to say, 'I should have reminded you, I guess that was up to me as much as to you.' And nine times out of ten the secretary would be so relieved at not having to assume the blame that she would begin protesting that she really ought to have remembered it herself. You see, she is then in a position to be magnanimous, and the rule is more to her taste than that of careless forgetfulness."

We Have To Justify Ourselves.

It seemed to me, the more I thought of it, that that is a rule worth remembering in other walks of life where we want to avoid friction.

We all do so hate to be in the wrong that we feel a rush of gratitude to the one who is willing to share the burden of disapproval or to make excuses for our carelessness.

One of the most primitive of all our instincts is the one which makes our resentment rise the moment someone finds fault with us. Watch a little child. "I didn't do it," or "I couldn't help it," to his inevitable retort when confronted with a fault.

So it is not to be wondered at that the little conciliatory trick proved so effective in that woman's club work.

Rubbing It In.

So often a person with a little authority finds a certain satisfaction in "rubbing it in" when he discovers a small blunder on the part of someone over whom he has jurisdiction, whether it is club workers or servants, or children or employers. What cynic was it who said, "There is something not altogether displeasing to us in the misfortunes of our friends?"

It instead of adopting the helpful-then attitude, we can find it in our hearts to excuse and overlook some of the small slips. We will be surer of smooth sailing and happier relations with our fellow workers.

And, by the way, although our modest old lady called it laziness, in that she preferred to shoulder the blame rather than get into a controversy, I believe that her real motive was more worthy than that. "A gentleman," says Cardinal Newman, "is one who will not willingly give pain to another."

Our little old lady is inherently a gentlewoman. That, after all, is doubtless the real secret of her successful leadership.

The Ocean's Mystery Creatures.

GIANT OF THE DEEP THAT WEIGHS FIFTEEN TONS.

Man has explored the land surface of the earth pretty thoroughly, and has classified most of its animals. But we know little about the world's oceans and their mysteries.

How should we? Ships stick to the same tracks between ports and there are millions of square miles of sea never seen. Even close to well-known shores, how are we to plumb the gigantic depths or discover what life exists in the abysses?

The mysterious sea monster captured recently off the coast of Florida has given naturalists a shock. They cannot laugh at it as they do at the sea serpent, for it has been lying on the beach for anyone to see, measure or examine.

A Healthy Appetite.

The giant of the deep is quite unlike anything ever seen before. It weighs 35,000 pounds (15 tons); its hide is three inches thick, and inside it was an octopus weighing 400 lbs., a black fish weighing 1,500 pounds, and nearly four hundredweight of coral.

Nor is this strange beast by any means the first of such mysteries which have been cast up on the shore or taken by man. Two years ago a monster was found ten miles from Bombay, which was a great puzzle to naturalists.

This evil looking creature was 25 feet long and its huge face had an uncanny human expression. The mouth was three feet long, with extremely sharp teeth. The body, dull black, was curiously ribbed. Its eyes were small and its great fins had the shape of an elephant's ear. Perhaps the strangest thing about it was that it was still alive after being forty-eight hours out of the water.

Elephant-like was the head of a creature caught in Port Fairy Bay,

Southern Australia, in December, 1902. This fish, totally unlike anything ever seen before, it was nine ft. nine inches in length, had a tail like a screw shaft, a nose like a rhinoceros, and a huge toothless mouth. Its fins were large, and its skin black and soft.

Much smaller, but equally puzzling to naturalists, was a creature landed two years ago at Yarmouth by a steam trawler. Its body was seal-like in shape, and it resembled a seal in that it had two flippers, but its head tapered to a sort of beak, and it had a tail shaped like that of a porpoise.

The mouth was furnished with a double row of sharp teeth and on top of its head was a blowhole such as whales have. The creature's eyes were mere slits. No one could classify this extraordinary specimen.

From its enormously thick hide and almost useless eyes, it is supposed that the giant Florida fish lived in the profound and chilly depths of the ocean.

For similar reasons it is believed that a fish taken some years ago on the coast of Maine was also a denizen of the very deep sea. The creature was six feet long and weighed about 200 pounds. Its head was extraordinarily wide, and its mouth like a great bag, with small but sharp teeth. It was practically boneless, the bones being represented merely by cartilage.

He was a young apprentice. She had announced that she wanted half a yard of calico. He had taken down at least a dozen pieces, and to each she had replied, "No, that one does not strike me."

As last she espied a larger roll. He rolled up the steps for it and fell over himself.

As the roll crashed down, knocking her hat over her eyes, he inquired, "Did that strike you, ma'am?"

Westminster Hall Opened by King.

FAMOUS STRUCTURE WAS BUILT BY WILLIAM RUFUS.

LONDON—In the presence of a great throng including members of Parliament and diplomats and representatives of the various sections of the empire the King reopened Westminster Hall after the restoration of its famous roof, the result of eight years work.

His Majesty pointed out that the dangers and defects in the roof had been made good with the least possible interference with the design or material of the original roof and he expressed the hope that centuries of new life had been given this masterpiece of British architecture.

piece of British architecture. Westminster Hall was built by William Rufus (1056-1100) and altered by Richard II. (1367-1400.) It was the only portion of the Parliament buildings that escaped being destroyed by fire on October 16th, 1834. Westminster Hall has a magnificent open roof of carved oak and is used as the vestibule of the Houses of Parliament.

Labor Proposes Increase

OF BRITAIN'S AIR FLEET.

George Lansbury, British Labor leader, announced that he will place the following resolution before the annual Labor party conference now in session:

"The proposed increase of the British Royal Air Force in competition with France is the preface to a new era of war. Therefore this party demands that Labor members in Parliament oppose the increase.

"It is, moreover, a crime against humanity to promote a new race of armaments within five years of the end of the last war, which the people of the world hoped was the beginning of a new era of peace."

The Labor party conference voted to reject the proposal that Henry Newbold, Communist member of Parliament, be affiliated with their parliamentary floor organization, by a vote of 1,227,000 to 212,000.

After discussion of Labor's attitude toward the liquor question a special committee report was issued representing any attempt on the part of the Labor party to commit itself to any particular panacea and declaring "The Labor party sees the key to temperance reform in taking the entire manufacture and retailing of liquor out of the hands of those finding profit in promoting the utmost possible consumption of it."

The Humber Development.

EIGHTEEN HUNDRED MEN NOW ON JOB.

In reference to men seeking employment on the Humber Development, Major Jennings, in an interview with a Telegram reporter this morning, stated that up to the present time the Sir W. G. Armstrong-Whitworth Company had 1,810 men employed on the various construction works and that others would be taken on as required. The selection of men, he stated, was in the hands of Major Butler, who had his headquarters at Deer Lake. According to Major Jennings the Armstrong Coy. abandoned the pass system which they found it was being abused by the members of the Legislature. Those seeking work must in future pay their own fares and only men willing to work will be employed. Questioned as to the number of people brought in from outside the county, Major Jennings stated that only about 22 imported men were on the job. Whilst the work is progressing rapidly and men are being taken on as soon as required, the maximum number will not be reached until next summer when a total of three thousand men will be engaged. The Power and Paper Co. will possibly start logging operations during the fall, according to Major Jennings and quite a large number of men will find employment in the woods during the winter. At the present time about 100 men are in the woods cutting piles. Work on the town site at Corner Brook is progressing. Its area will be about 200 acres. Much filling in of marsh pond has to be done before the place is completed for building on. Tenders for the State house will have accommodations for 42 officials will be called for in August, and it is hoped to have it completed by the end of the season. Work on the permanent hospital will also begin shortly. This structure will have 4 private wards and rooms for 15 beds. It will also have an emergency ward, X-ray room, and all the latest equipment.

Long Pond Bathing Houses.

The bathing houses at Long Pond were patronized by several hundred people of both sexes yesterday and although a large number of these were beginners, not the slightest accident occurred. For a place where such numbers of people congregate, excellent order prevails, although there is complaint that some men make a practice of taking their dip without wearing a bathing costume. The presence of a policeman would put a stop to the practice. The Municipal Council, having conferred a boon on so many citizens by providing the bathing houses and a swimming instructor, it would go one better if a few loads of gravel or sand were placed on the footpath leading to the bathing houses.

Fire Conditions Said to be Bad.

Provincial Authorities Say Blazes Occurring All Over Province.

Quebec, July 17—(Star special)—Reports obtained to-day at the Department of Lands and Forests indicate a return of the dangerous conditions which prevailed a short time ago which brought about the closing of the forest areas and fears are entertained that unless a change is immediate, it may be necessary for the Government to again cancel permits. One of the heads of the department characterized the situation as very serious indeed.

A very bad fire has broken out at La Loutre, in St. Maurice. An array of rangers is engaged in fighting the blaze, but up to noon it was regarded as still dangerous.

In the same district fires are reported as going up from Vandry to the top of Pinesau River. Other outbreaks have occurred near Lake Epinette, Lake Flammand, Lake Sancy, River Moisiere, and the surrounding country. The blaze reported several days ago from Escalona is still raging despite the efforts of the fighters to quell it.

In the Abitibi region many small fires are reported as having been started by settlers, and these, in addition to being put out, are being investigated. It would appear from the general run of reports that while the drought has been fairly general throughout the province the north-western sections are the only ones that have been severely affected by forest fires since the last great series of outbreaks which covered practically the entire province.

Hudson Bay Trip Has Been Cancelled.

Winnipeg, July 7.—The Hudson's Bay cruise of which it was planned to carry 300 tourists from Montreal to Fort Churchill and Port Nelson, the sea ports of Northern Manitoba, has been cancelled. Less than half the required number of passengers made reservations for the tour since its announcement months ago by the Hudson's Bay Tourist Syndicate. The organizers met and decided to call off the trip, cancel the charter of the steamer and refund $10,000 to those who had wished to make the trip. The syndicate will be dissolved.

Politics, the disinterested attitude of the Manitoba Government and lack of support from Manitoba people generally, L. Thomas, secretary of the syndicate, gave as the reasons for the failure. He said that 97 per cent. of those who had booked passage were Americans. The three per cent. who were not; $10,000 sent to the syndicate will be returned to the United States.

It was planned that the party leave Montreal August 1st, on the steamer Montreal, a steamer privately chartered from the Canadian Pacific Railway. The route would have carried the tourists down the St. Lawrence to Newfoundland, up the coast of Labrador, through the straits into Hudson's Bay, to Port Nelson, Fort Churchill and Port Burwell, and back through the strait and south to Sydney, Nova Scotia, and back to Montreal. It would have been a six weeks' cruise stated by the syndicate to be designed to show financial men and business men the possibility of the Northern route and the resources of the Hinterland.

Farewell Freckles!

Some day freckles may become fashionable, but at present they are not. Yet the summer sun brings them out inexorably. One consolation there is, however, Freckles are not fixtures, and can easily be removed. Obtain from a chemist a teaspoonful of flowers of sulphur, and mix with a little new milk, into a soft paste of the consistency of cream. The face should be covered with a thin layer of this on going to bed. In the morning it should be washed off with warm water. Two applications are also sufficient to effect a cure. The paste is quite harmless. Trouble is also frequently caused during summer by minute particles of sand finding lodgment in one's eyes, or by rough treatment when a fly has been extracted. An inflamed eyelid is frequently the result. A harmless and very efficacious remedy is to bathe the eye with cold tea, strained. Follow this up by making a small poultice of cold tea-leaves. Put the tea-leaves between two pieces of lint, press out all surplus moisture, then lay over the eye, which will be quite all right in the morning. Finally "summer throat," due to fine sand again, can quite easily be put right if gargled with glycerine into which a few drops of lemon-juice have been squeezed.

"PEACOCK ALLEY" HAS ROMANCE AND SPLENDOR.

"Peacock Alley," which yesterday opened at the Nickel Theatre, is one of the most delightful pictures of the season. It is a ravishing, dazzling Mae Murray presentation with all that magnificence and splendor which mark the blonde star's offerings on the screen. It is gorgeously costumed and excellently directed, the story running smoothly to its romantic conclusion.

It pictures the romance of a famed Parisian dancer who falls in love with a small town American youth and then finds that his home folks will not accept her because she has been a dancer. The couple go to New York, but troubles come thick and fast upon the two who, for a while, find life a very drab affair.

As the dancer in this colorful production, Mae Murray scored with the finest bit of characterization she has ever done. She is supported by a notable cast headed by Monte Blue as the youthful husband and this screen favorite brings to the part all that genius for which he is noted. Others in the cast were Edmund Lowe, W. J. Ferguson, Anders Randolph, William Tooker, Howard Lang, William Frederick, M. Durant and Jeffry Lewis. "Peacock Alley" presented by Robert Z. Leonard, is by Edmund Goulding from a story by Ouida Bergere. It was directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Oliver T. Marsh was the photographer. It is released by Metro Pictures for Tiffany Productions, Inc.

Making and Faking Gems.

Jewellers have always to be on their guard when buying stocks. Imitations made from glass may be ignored, but the finest reproductions would not pass the most elementary test—that of the file—for hardness.

Perhaps the cleverest counterfeits of gems have been constructed in laboratories where the exact chemical constituents of the real stone are taken and fused together under great heat. The article produced, when cut, polished, and set, possesses in an extraordinary degree the hardness, durability, and lustre of Nature's own stones.

The sapphires and the rubies have been very successfully counterfeited, but the drawback to this method of reproduction is its expense and the long process involved. The stones produced in this way are invariably sold as "synthetic gems."

Another method, and one to which the term "faking" might be applied, has been used to obtain the emerald and aquamarine. For this purpose ordinary rock crystal is used.

This stone is cut in the same manner as an emerald or aquamarine would be cut. It is then split, coloring matter is inserted, and the stone is then carefully rejoined with invisible cement, with the result that the once-transparent crystal becomes a rich-coloured gem of enhanced value.

In dealing with diamonds the counterfeiter is up against the most wonderful of Nature's gems. The various efforts of scientists have met with absolute failure, or success in such an infinitesimal degree as to make the production ludicrous.

Household Notes.

Chopped seeded raisins and peanut butter make an excellent "picnic sandwich" filling.

A dash of salt and one of pepper are an extraordinary improvement to huckleberry pie filling.

When frying a slice of ham, be sure to first slash the fat around the edge, and the piece will lie flat.

In making peach jam some apple pulp may be substituted for part of the required amount of peach pulp.

Name tapes in all of the children's stockings, with a number for each pair, will save work in sorting them.

Appetizing tea-time toast for hot weather is sprinkled with minced green pepper and dotted with mayonnaise. If you wish to carry food hot on a picnic pack it in glass jars and wrap in many thicknesses of newspaper. Ice cream cones are a splendid picnic dessert. Carry the cones packed in boxes and the cream in a freezer. The very small yellow and red tomatoes can be packed in cold vinegar in clean, cold jars without any cooking.
