DRESS and MANTLE MAKING

The Fashionable West End.

We have during the past two years contemplated the establishment of a Driss Maring-Department,— a connection with our other branches. The difficulty, of obtaining a suitable person to take charge, has, up to the present time, only prevented us from doing so.

We have now great pleasure in informing you that we have secured the service of first-class abilities, highly room and ded to us, and we believe eminently qualified te give complete satisfaction in every respect. Miss Morrison has for the past ten years occupied the position of cutter and fitter in one of the leading Fa. Linonable Dress making. Establishments in the City of Toronto.

Miss Morrison is also an experienced Mantle maker, and all orders entrusted to her will be executed in a style equal to the control of the second of the control of the c

THE ST. LAWRENCE.

Great St. Lawrence, mighty river!
Deep, majestic, flowing free,
There are points of close resemblance
Now between myself and thee.
Whence thou consent? Where thou goe
Are queer questions full of meaning,
Which the angels do not know.

Small at first in thy beginning,
Brought about by many means,
Now surrounded by mere deserts,
Then thou passeth glorious scenes.
Sometimes broad, and sometimes narre
Now so gentle, then so bold,—

Now so gentle, then so bold,—
Wealth and want thou see'st round thee
While thou travellest over gold. Semetimes slow, and sometimes run:
Sometimes cold, and sometimes ho
Now so deep, and then so shallow,
Thus thou sharest in my lot.
Hall St. Lawrence! I live for ever,
Not for self, but public good.
Like the one that came from heaven
To give dying sinners food.

Many lands and lives thou blessest On thy way toward the sea; And in his, unselfish river! May my life resemble thee. Though in winter almost frozen, Pale and wrapt about in gloom, Yet in spring thou risest nobly, Like the dead from out the tomb.

Sometimes leaden'd into wrinkles, Growling at an angry sky; Then converted into silver By the sun's bewitching eye. Sometimes angry, like a demon Coming from the vasty deep: Sometimes smilling in thy cradle, Like a happy child asleep.

Sometimes roughened into tempest,
Sometimes cain beneath the moon,
Sometimes rolling into billows
In the nizit's tremendous moon.
Sometimes langhing, sometimes weeping
With the spray, like woman's tears:
Thus thy life has been so human,

the effect that it was desirable the House's hould be in session while the investigation was proceeding.

After a good deal of debate, during which Sir John A. Macdonald said although he felt Mr. Huntington had greatly wronged the Government, and would one day admit that fact, he would do him the justice to say that he (Sir John) believed Mr. Huntingdon felt he had good grounds for his charges.

The motion was declared carried.

Mr. Costigan asked the Premier whathe had done with regard to the disallowance of the New Brunswick School Acts. Sir John A. Macdonald replied that all he could say at present was that the resolutions of the House had been submitted to His Excellency.

The House then took up concurrence. The discussion stood over on the vote for fishery inspections.

Mr Anglin drew attention to the Custom House frands in St. John.

It was decided to call the Public Accounts Committee together on Monday to look into the matter.

On the vote for harbors, Mr. Mackenzie called attention to the expenditure for Digby Harbor in Nova Socia, and a discussion sprang up, in the course of which Mr. Walter Ross and others reterred to the partial conduct of the Government in regard to harbors in Ontario.

The Pacific Railway survey vote for $500,000 called forth another vigorous speech from Mr. Mackenzie, on the past history and present condition of that undertaking. He moved to strike out the item. His resolution was declared lost on a division.

Mr. Wood then moved that the half-million required, for the survey be taken from the sum sai 4 to be deposited by the Company. On this a division was taken and the motion was lost by yeas 30, nays 67.

Guelph Evening Mercury

SATURDAY EVENING, MAY 17, 1873 Terms of Union with Prince Edward.

On Friday evening at a late hour hour Mr. Tilley placed on the notice paper the resolutions embodying the terms of union upon which Prince Edward Island willing is to become a part of the Dominion of Canada. The Dominion is to assume the debts and liabilities of the Island at the time of union, which,in consequence of the proposed re adjustment of the public debt of Canada, and the large ms expended for railways and ca nals, is to be placed at $50 per capita of its population and will amount in the aggregate to $4,701,050. As the Island has not incurred a debt equal to the above sum it is to be entitled to receive a sum equal to five per cent. per annum on the difference between its actual and assumed indebtedness. Having no revenue from public land it is to receive $45,000 for the maintenance of public works, less a sum of five per cent. or any sum not exceeding $800,000, which the Dominion may advance to the Local Government for the pur chase of lands held by large proprie tors. In consideration of the trans tors. In consideration of the transfer to Canada of the power of taxation, Prince Edward Island is to receive $30,000 per annum, and an annual grant of 80 cents per head of its population as shown by the census of 1871—viz., 94,021—in half-yearly installments, the per capita payments stallments, the per capita payments to be augmented at each decennial census until the population amounts to 400,000. The charges for Lieutenant - Governor's salary, Judges Customs, Post-office, Fisheries, Protection, Militia, Lighthouses and other coast services, Geological Survey and Penetentiaries are to be borne by Canada. Efficient and regular steam service and telegraphic communica to be established and maintained by the Dominion between the Island and the mainland. The Dominiou agrees to purchase the railways in the Island in course of construction and under contract; to pay $69,000 for under contract; to pay $69,000 for the Provincial Buildings and grounds, and to buy a steam dredge in course of construction for $22,000. The steam ferry boat to be retained by the Island. It is to have six members in the House of Commons, and the representation to be readjusted each decennian census, under the British American Act of 1867. The Island is to retain its present form of Government, to settle its own electorial districts, and is to be admitted at such time as Her Majesty, by order in Council, on addresses from the Dominion Parliament and Prince Edward's Island Legislature may propose.

In the South Perth case the objections to the recognizance were argued on Friday by Mr. Hodgins, Q.C. for the sitting member: Mr. Trow and Mr. Walker for the petitioner. The Speaker seemed to be of opinion that the case against Mr. Trow must fail, owing to defects in the recognizance or petition.

The argument on the Niagara case is fixed for to-day.

The East Northumberland Committee was sworn in yesterday, and met at ten o'clock this morning. The Ministerialists have two of their strongost men on this committee, evidently intending to have a stiff light. Hon. Mr. Huntingdon is chairman.

It would appear that the debate on Mr. Mills resolutions to make the Senate an elective body is not likely to be barren of results. A great many members censured the Govern ment for not doing justice to the western portion of Ontario in the appointment of Senators, and, in con-sequence, the name of Mr. Alexander of Woodstock is mentioned as the of the late Sena. UST RECEIVED, a further supply of or Asa A. Burnham.

LUNACY IN SCOTLAND. -- An official state walker's Vinegar Bitters, ment, recently published shows that there are in Scotland nearly 8,000 luna-ties in asylums, private dwellings and aundry institutions—considerably more than half this number being femalesaundry institutions—considerably more than half this number being females—while, in addition, it is estimated that face are nearly 2,000 unreported, the mass of whom are little removed frein puperism. The number of insane actually have the official authorities has increased in three years about thirty per cent. Eighty per cent, of the inmates of funatic establishments are pupers, the reinainder being private patients, and hence the inference is drawn fact a insanity is essentially a disease affecting the least affined that the number of insane poor will go on steadily increasing mail the sanitary education of the masses has made some progress. The average animal number of paper Inmates a produced throughout Scotland during the last thirteen years has been affect thirty-eight for every 100,000 of the population. Comparing the statistics of English and Scotch asylums, it appears that the mortality in the former averages one-fifth higher than the latter; but Scotch lunaties, it seems, are either unce prone to sniede, or have greater facilities at their disposal for terminating their confinement in this way, the number of such cases of self-destruction leing much greater in Scotland than in England.

THE TEMPTATION.

CHAPTER XIX.

ANNABEL'S JOURNEY TO ENGLAND.
"It is very strange—very extracr linary, persisted Annabel.
"Well, if you think so, wait and say that to Mrs Langton. Only you'll have to go below now, and you had better not leave the cabin again till we are at the landing place."

to go below now, and you had better not leave the cabin again till we are at the landing place."

In silent fear and perplexity Annabel returned to the close and unsavory place were she had passed the night; and an hour later Dick brought her coffee and bread for breakfast, which, however, she scarcely tasted.

Hour after hour passed in silent monotony, during which the lugger seemed to be moving lazily to and fro in the water; but Annabel waited in vain for intelligence that the voyage was ended. Thus the whole day passed, until dark again drew near, when her suspense grew so great that she could remain where she was no longer, and again issued forth with the intention of going on deck.

But she was not allowed to get quite so far, for at the head of the companionway stood Dick, He might have been there accidentally or on purpose, but whether or no he now barred her progress.

"Are we never to land, Dick!" asked the far giri with undisguised anxiety.

"Oh, yes, we are coming near it now. An hour or two at most will set us ashore. Just keep where you are and have patience."

Thus rebuffed she was obliged to retire again into solitude and darkness—for the lamp was not lighted as on the previous ovening—and make an effort to exercise that patience which Dick recommended.

The latter had spoken the truth when the lamp was not lighted as on the revision sevening—and make an effort to exersise that patience which Dick recommended.

The latter had spoken the truth when he said that they would be ashore in an hour or two. The larger was now really standing in for the land, which could be dimly seen in the twilight not a mile away. It seemed to be a wild and thinly inhabited part of the coast, for no twinkling lights could be seen, and no sound of man or beast was borne from it over the water.

The lugger might easily have run ashore in a quarter of an hour, but this did not seem to be the intention of those who guided her, for when she had been brought almost under the shadow of the rocks she suddenly tacked and stood out again. This was done several times, by which manceuvring the shore was skirted for a mile or two, and all the while Dick stood at the side, close to the head of the cabin stair, keenly watching the shore, and now and then giving directions to the Captain, who in turn delivered them to the man at the helm.

More than one of the two hours mentioned by Dick had thus been consumed, and for some time it had been quite dark. Suddenly a light gleamed out from behind a shelving rock, and was moved to and fro in a peculiar way, as if in signal. It was immediately answered from the bow of the lugger, which lay to, and measures were taken for the lowering of the boat.

Dick had by this time descended to the cabin, where Annabel sat in utter darkness.

Dick had by this time descended to the cabin, where Annabel sat in utter darkness.

"Now, Miss, here we are at last.—They are getting the boat out that is to take us ashore."

Not an instant did Annabel delay. Almost cre Dick had uttered the words she was by his side, and followed him with animated step up the cabin stair. The boat was by this time in the water, and they were handing the lag age into it.

By the same rope ladder which she had ascended on coming on board, Annabel' again made her way over the side, where Dick was ready to receive her and place her in the stern. The same men who had rowed them from the beach at Flushing were ready scated with the oars out, and Dick having passed the beat away from the side of the lugger, they proceeded towards the dark and silent shore.

GREAT BOAT RACE.—A great boat race, fee one thousand dollars a side, took place on the Tyne on Wednesday, April 16th. The race, which had been originally intended to be rowed on the previous Saturday, was put off in order that the delegates to the Annual Congress of Co-operative Societies (held this year in Nowcastle,) might see that peculiarity of Tyneside skill and stumina. This involved a new contract between the men, and all bets had to be re-made. The competitors were Robert Bagnal and John Bright, the two "coming" carsinen of the Tyne. The race was in open boats over four miles of water. Bagnall, who rowed with wonderful fairness, won only by a length, and had the race been twenty yards further, John Bright would have had it, as Bagnal sank down in the beat the moment he reached the goal. It was deemed the most gallant race ever seen on the Tyne, and Bright's pluck was considered so worthy his great namesake that a testimonial will be made to him.

It is acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most reliable preparation ever in-troduced for the relief and cure of all Lung complaints, and is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years. When resorted to in season it seldom fails to effect a speedy cure in the most severe cases of Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, Colds, Sore Throat, Pains or Sore-ness in the Chest and Side, Liver Complaint, Bleeding at the Lungs, &c. the complaint. PREPARED BY
