"THE LATE TENANT"

By GORDON HOBBS

CHAPTER XVII Hand to Hand

The necessity that was now strong upon David was to act, to fight for it. To hunt for the still hidden photograph and letter was far too slow a task in his present mood of turbulence and desperation. The photograph, indeed, would furnish certain proof as to whether Strauss and Van Hupfeldt were one. So might the letter. But of what use would proof of anything whatever be, when he was all shut out from access to the Mondant's? He thought, however, that if he could come within earshot and striking distance of Van Hupfeldt, then something might result, he was not clear what. He put on his hat and went out, as grim a man as the streets of London that afternoon. He did not know where Van Hupfeldt lived, but he turned his steps toward the Constitutional Club.

He meant at least to discover if Van Hupfeldt was a member there, and he might discover more. But he was spared the pains of inquiry, for he was still at a distance of thirty yards from the club when he saw Van Hupfeldt come out and step into a carriage.

David cringed half under a dray, till the carriage began to move, then followed some way behind at his own trot. He thought now that perhaps he was about to track Van Hupfeldt to his house.

The carriage drove straight to Baker-St. Station into which Van Hupfeldt went and took a ticket. David, listening outside the outer entrance to the small booking office, could not catch the name of his destination, but when Van Hupfeldt had gone down into the gloom and fume, David, half-way down the flight of stairs, stood watching. He had no little fitness in tracking, and ferreting, and remaining invisible, and when Van Hupfeldt had taken his seat, David was in another compartment of the same train.

The dusk of evening was thickening when their train stopped at the town of Pangley, twenty miles from London, where Van Hupfeldt alighted.

David saw him well out of the little station before he himself leaped, as the train began to move. He then took the precaution to ascertain the times of the next up trains. There would be one at quarter past eight and another at ten p. m. While he sat at the station, he was as quick as a cat as he sat at the train, and paid the fare as he stepped on.

Sciatica Cured Mrs. Chas. F. Haley Restored by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. "I was utterly hopeless with sciatica. I could not move in bed without aid. Doctors treated me, but I did not improve. I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and ten days ago I am a well woman."

fare of some excess charge, he kept his eyes on the back of Van Hupfeldt, walking down the rather steep street. And when it was safe, he followed. At the bottom of the street they crossed a bridge, and thenceforward walked up a road with hedges on both sides. David was angry with his luck, for the road was straight and long, and there was little cover in the hedges, where he walked some distance from the road. Once Van Hupfeldt turned, and seemed to admit the last traces of color in the western sky, whereas David, as if shot, dropped into the grass and bracken. He hoped that Van Hupfeldt, being a man of cities and civilization was unconscious of him; but he felt that he in Van Hupfeldt's place would have known all, and he had a fear. The light was fast falling, but he could clearly see Van Hupfeldt well, then Van Hupfeldt might have seen him dimly. Van Hupfeldt, however, gave no sign of it. David saw him go into the gateway of a pretty dwelling, and a big hearty countrywoman ran out to meet him, her face beaming with good cheer. Carrying a child in her arms, she escorted Van Hupfeldt into the house with, it was clear, no lack of welcome, and when they had disappeared, David vaulted over a hedge in the orchard, crept near the house and hid behind a shed in which he saw a white calf. He waited there for a long time, how long he did not know, for once, when he peered at his watch, he could see nothing. The night had come moonless and black. The pace where he lurked was in the shadow of trees.

Meantime, within the house, Van Hupfeldt sat with the child on his knee. He was so pale that Mrs. Carter, the child's foster-mother, asked if he was well. Some purpose, some fear or hope, agitated him. Once when the countrywoman left the room to fetch a glass of milk, the moment he was alone he put down the child, sped like a thief to the grandfather's clock ticking in its old nook by the settee, opened it, put the minute-hand back twenty minutes, and was seated again when the milk came in.

These visits to the child, of which he said one every week, always lasted half an hour. This time he stayed so much longer that Mrs. Carter glanced at the clock, only to be taken aback by the darkness of the hour.

"Blow us!" she cried. "I thought it was later 'n that. You still have plenty of time to catch the quarter past eight, sir." But Van Hupfeldt stood up, saying that he would go. Putting on his coat, he added: "Mrs. Carter, I have been followed from London by a man who, I fancy, will present himself here presently when I am gone. He wishes to know more about my affairs than he has a right to know. If he comes I have a reason for wishing you to receive him politely, and to keep him in talk as long as he will stay. But, of course, you won't satisfy his curiosity in anything that concerns me. In particular, be very careful not to give him any hint that my name was Strauss during my wife's lifetime."

"You may rely on me," said Mrs. Carter, in the secret voice of an accomplice. "Now, little one, go to bed," said Van Hupfeldt, a thin and lanky figure in his long overcoat, as he bent with kisses over the boy in Mrs. Carter's arms.

Five minutes after he was gone David was at the farmhouse door. He, too, would like a glass of milk. "You're welcome, I'm sure," said Mrs. Carter. "Step inside."

His first glance was at the clock, for he did not wish to lose the quarter past eight train, since that would mean losing his present chance of tracking Van Hupfeldt to his address. But the clock reassured him. He indolently took it for granted that it was more or less near the mark, and it pointed to twenty minutes to eight. He would thus have time to strike up an acquaintance with Mrs. Carter, as a preliminary to closer relations in the future.

more do you want?" "I only know the father by sight—that is, if he was the father who was in here just now. I take it he was."

"Ah, there, now, you're asking." "Oh, there's no secret, Mrs. Carter. Mr. Johann Strauss is a well-known man."

"Is that his name—Strauss? Well, well, live and learn."

"That's his name, and that's his writing, Mrs. Carter!"—words which David uttered almost with a shout, as he caught Story two.

"You are bound to admit," said David, imperatively, "that this envelope was directed to you by the gentleman who was just here."

"Well, so it was; what of that?" asked Mrs. Carter, in a maze as to what the row was about.

"That's all right, then," said David, quieting down. "I only wanted to be sure."

"This then, settled it. Van Hupfeldt was Strauss. David kept the envelope, slipped the milk, and for some time talked with Mrs. Carter about her cows, her fruit, and when she had finished, he was to be sold or kept. When it was ten minutes to eight by the big parlor clock he rose to go, said that he hoped to see baby next time, if he might call again, and shook hands. But in going out, from force of habit, he glanced at his watch, and now saw that it was only a few minutes past eight.

"Great goodness!" he exclaimed. "your clock is all wrong!"

No sir," began Mrs. Carter. David was gone. He had five minutes in which to run a good deal over a mile, and he ran with all his speed; but some distance from the station he saw the train steaming out, and pulled up short.

At that moment Van Hupfeldt in the train was thinking: "It has worked well. He is in a trap. He is no other train than ten—an hour and three quarters. He has only a charwoman. She will not be in the flat at his dining-room table in the evening. Will it be my luck that the diary is not under lock and key?"

ON THE SAFE SIDE

They told me of a farmer two miles away from the Connecticut farmhouse where I was stopping who had a cider mill and was making a few barrels of the sweet, and one day I took a walk over to the place. The farmer had made only two barrels of cider and was through grinding. I don't exactly understand you," I said. "I asked him about the apple crop, the price of cider and so on, but found him disinclined to talk. In fact, it was plain that he distrusted me. I told him how I used to walk five miles to a cider mill in my boyhood days and did my best to show him out, but the most that I could get out of him was what he intended to sell one barrel and keep the other for himself. He was evidently much relieved when I took my departure, and I could not make him out at all. Two days later I ran across him in the village just as he had unmade one of the barrels at a grocery. He tried to dodge me, but I hailed him and he came forward and said: 'I couldn't get but three dollars a barrel for it.' 'But that's a fair price isn't it?'"

I asked him about the apple crop.

"It's tolerably fair, and I hope you are not going to freeze me out." "I don't exactly understand you," I said. "Why, hasn't you from the Standard Oil Company?" "Of course not." "And you haven't run cider up to five dollars a barrel and threatened to freeze out any one that sold it for less?" "My friend you are away off."

How to Test Your Kidneys

If any of your family have been troubled with kidney disease make a test of the urine and satisfy yourself whether you need a good remedy before the disease has caused serious complications.

Tomorrow morning put some urine in a glass or bottle and let it stand for twenty-four hours.

If it shows particles or germs floating about, is milky or cloudy, contains reddish sediment, then your kidneys are diseased.

Commence at once to take Ferronez to arrest these unnatural conditions. Ferronez is especially intended for the immediate relief and cure of kidney and bladder troubles, and its health-giving properties will be felt at once in new strengthening of the system.

Ferronez quickly corrects urinal disorders, headache, and pain in the back. It improves the appetite, digests the food, makes it nourish the nerves, makes them strong and enduring, and fits one for lots of hard work.

Don't be misled by cheap, so-called kidney cures offered by dealers for the sake of extra profits. There is only one safe and reliable specific for Kidney, Bladder, Liver and urinal troubles, and its name is Ferronez. Refuse point blank to accept a substitute, and insist on your druggist supplying "Ferronez"; price 50c per box at all dealers.

OBITUARY

Miss Annie E. Murphy, daughter of the late James and Caroline Murphy, died yesterday at the home of her uncle, James W. Fleming, 222 Brunswick street. Miss Murphy, who was twenty-two years old, had been sick for three months. She was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. She belonged to Somerville (Mass.), but had lived for the last eight years in St. John. She is survived by one brother, Frank, in this city. The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

The death of an estimable and amiable woman took place yesterday at noon, when Mrs. Eliza Long, widow of Samuel Long, of Belleisle, passed away at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Hamilton, 194 Elliott Row. Mrs. Long was in her eighty-fifth year but retained to the last her bright intellectual powers and amiable nature. She was born in County Kerry (Ire.) and came to New Brunswick while a young woman. She married soon after and until two years ago resided at Belleisle. Since that time she lived with her daughter and had many friends in the city who will regret to hear of her death.

She leaves two sons—Rev. David Long, of Vancouver, formerly pastor of Victoria street Baptist church, and George Long, of Belleisle. Three daughters also survive. They are: Mrs. Thomas Hamilton, 194 Elliott Row, and Mrs. George Hathaway, of the North End, and Mrs. Walter Lawson.

An Ottawa despatch to the Toronto World a week ago said: "A serious impairment of the Hon. A. B. Aylesworth's hearing may make it impossible for the minister of justice to attend the next session of parliament."

That the port of Montreal is in immediate need of a dry dock to enable her to hold and to better the place in the shipping world which she has gained was the text of a report presented before the Chambre de Commerce by the Committee on Transportation at Wednesday's meeting, says the Montreal Star.

THE CROPS AND PRICES

The Toronto papers are quoting Mr. Duncanson, who has been addressing farmers' institutes in New Brunswick, to the effect that Canada's crop shortage this year will be a hundred million dollars in value.

Nevertheless there is a great crop shortage here as elsewhere, though perhaps to some extent offset by high prices. The Toronto Sun estimates the crop shortage in Ontario at $15,000,000.

The consumers are facing a winter of high prices in many lines. Not only butter and eggs, but flour, oatmeal, milk, and some other staple articles of food will cost more than usual.

With two dredges on the west side of the wharf buliders are delayed because the site of a crib is not cleaned up. It is high time the city council took action to have this work done.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley has been stirring up the Liberals in York county. For the head of a great department which has been without a head so long, and in which there must be a vast accumulation of unfinished work, the minister appears to be devoting a very large amount of time to purely political pursuits.

Friends of technical education will read with pleasure that at Sault Ste Marie this week a large Dominion appropriation for schools, particularly technical schools, was advocated by Hon. Dr. Pyne, minister of education for Ontario.

On another page of today's Times Mr. Hazen replies vigorously to the Glasgow orators and to Dr. Pugsley's charges directed against himself. The electors of the province will find it food for serious thought concerning the financial condition of the province.

THE LONG TRAIL

We do not know, O little friend, The road we have to travel through. What are its dangers, where its end, Or if it'll journey it with you. The road that leads toward Tomorrow leads to darkness—let us, if we may, Go backward to our words and deeds, Along the Road to Yesterday.

It were an easy thing to feign That some time, in the bygone days, You were a castle's chateleine. And I the lord that sang your praise, Perhaps I was you with my rhymes, And flourish'd you with my quill. Such scandals happened oftentimes, Along the Road to Yesterday!

And then, a thousand years before, I think we lived in Arcady (Among the meads of Sicily.) Daphne's your name. The great god Pan heard the rude tunes I used to play To you. Ah, to be maid and man Along the Road to Yesterday!

Before that—well, I think I brought Strange presents to your rock-hewn cave, For you I died and wrought and fought— At once your master and your slave. Perhaps I died for you—perhaps I saved you from some beast of prey. (Ah, we were very straggling chaps, Along the Road to Yesterday!) Ere then—may I refuse to go To simian days of tail and paw. Ere souls were born we could not know Of "lesser breeds without the law." Put, since love grows common, I know We know our hearts were joined for aye, Along the Road to Yesterday.

Tomorrow rests with Death and Fate, But Yesterday is ours to keep! Prick on, my horse, and onward! Fight! When wakened from some future sleep. But Yesterday! Ah, what a groovy man, We'll gather rosebuds while we may, And tuck them up as we go, Along the Road to Yesterday.

IN LIGHTER VEIN ANOTHER WAY. "Mr. Timid wants to borrow the lawn mower. 'No; tell him we won't lend it, but if he needs exercise he can come over and cut our grass.'"

NOTHING FUNNY ABOUT IT. Mrs. Malaprop—Did you hear about that poor man's accident while shaving? It was a awful case of scalding. Mrs. Browne (laughing)—An awful what? Mrs. Malaprop—Oh, it ain't no laughing matter. He cut his jocular vein.

FOR SPITE. Snoggs—"My daughter is going to marry young Scroggs." Boggs—"Why I thought you hated him." Snoggs—I do. This is a scheme of mine to have my wife become his mother-in-law."

NATURE FAKING. "I have discovered one fact natural history," said the smart hopeful of the family. "What is that, my son?" inquired the proud father. "That trees are about the only things which can leave and stay around at the same time."

DISCIPLINE. First Sailor (proudly)—Been 'avin' a long yarn with the admiral, I have. Second Sailor (jealously)—Humph. What was your long yarn? First Sailor—Well, the ole man, he sez to me, sez her, "Starboard yer 'elm, ye knuckled-headed lubber, an' I sez, "Aye, aye, sir!"

Andrews Land Company; and Director of the Imperial Dock Company."

THE NEW CITADEL. Colonel Sowton, chief secretary of the Salvation Army in Canada, will at 8.45 tonight formally open the new No. 1 barracks in Charlotte street. He will be assisted in the ceremony by Staff-Captain Miller, of Toronto, architect for the army, who drew up the plans for the new citadel; Major Phillips, chancellor for the maritime provinces; Adj. Freeman, who is in charge of the buildings in the maritime provinces; Ensign Cornish, who is in command of No. 1 corps, and the whole of the local staff.

After the building is declared open tonight a torchlight procession will be formed, and after the procession those taking part will gather in the auditorium and hold the first meeting in the building. Besides Colonel Sowton, Major Phillips, chancellor for the maritime provinces, Adjutant Freeman and Ensign Cornish will speak.

On Sunday there will be four services in the barracks, prayer meeting at 7; holiness meeting at 11, and the principal service at 3 o'clock. Colonel Sowton being the speaker. There will be a salvation meeting in the evening.

In celebration of Guy Fawkes' Day and the landing of King William at Torbay, the St. John County Orange Lodge will on Nov. 5 have a light supper, musical programme and dancing in the Keith assembly rooms. THE FIRST TOURIST BOOK EVER ISSUED IN ST. JOHN

Quaint Sketches of the City and Harbor in the Early Thirties
 The Reversing Falls and the Tide Were Great Attractions—Some Enormous Vegetables.

The Times has received from John C. Leonard, of Carleton, a copy of what is perhaps the first illustrated book on St. John. There is no date mark, but as the writer refers to the landing of the Loyalists as having occurred about fifty years before, the book must have appeared in the early thirties.
 The book, or portfolio, contains half a dozen sketches reproduced on white paper by lithograph, by Pendleton's lithograph, Boston, and these are inserted between leaves of yellow paper, on which is printed the descriptive matter. The size of the book is about 10 x 13 inches. The title was M. G. Hall, and the printing was done by H. Chubb, of St. John.
 The first sketch shows a harbor scene. In the foreground is a bit of shore, off which are an English ship and an American brig, the latter under full sail. In the distance are the Reversing Falls, Negro Head and the shore beyond Red Head. Of this the author says:
 "The harbor of St. John, three miles due south of the City; on its summit stands a Light House, round the base of which is a battery, though at present in a dilapidated state.
 There is also an hospital recently erected by the Corporation of the City, for the reception of sick Emigrants previous to their entering the port.
 A Medical man is stationed on the 16th Island during the summer months, whose business it is to examine all vessels from Foreign ports, as a precaution to the importation of disease.
 The Beacon Light seen in this view between the Island and City, stands on the outer point of a natural bar which at low water is perfectly dry. Immediately in its vicinity during the Spring freshets, immense quantities of gaspareux are taken in nets, by the Fishermen who live on the Western shore.
 This Harbour is considered easy of access notwithstanding its numerous shoals; and unlike the generally of North American ports, is open at all seasons, which is to be attributed to the extraordinary rise and fall of tide between thirty and forty feet perpendicular.
 Previous to a storm and at low water, the High-lands of Nova-Scotia, are very distinctly seen from this Island; also considered to be 36 miles across.
 The next sketch is taken from a point below the present suspension bridge, and shows the river, the Old Fort shore, Navy Island, and beyond all the other islands hugging the shore, with no buildings at all on the higher levels. Cows and goats are seen in the foreground of this picture, and there are houses on Navy Island and the shores on both sides. The shores on the city side are lined with sailing vessels. With this picture the writer says:
 "About fifty years since, (at the close of the American revolution), the steep and rocky elevation on which the City of Saint John stands was covered with a dense forest, and some of the old inhabitants remember the most populous streets a mass of tangled brushwood and overhanging trees. At that time, in the space of one year, nearly twenty thousand Royalists fled from the newly enfranchised American States, and thronged the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and offering all the privations of primitive settlers: some of them located on the present site of Saint John, and with a few log huts, commenced the foundation of a City, which, at present, contains nearly 13,000 inhabitants, with three Episcopal Churches, a Roman Catholic Chapel, a Kirk of Scotland, a Meeting-House for the Methodist and another for the Anabaptist persuasion.
 Saint John is a Corporate City, governed by a Common Council, composed of Mayor, Recorder, six Aldermen and six Assistants; and sends two Members to the House of Assembly.
 The Shipping interest of the City has increased rapidly within the last ten years; indeed, to such an extent has the building of vessels been carried, as actually to form a considerable staple export—About one hundred and twenty square-rigged vessels belong to the port, as well as an innumerable fleet of small craft. Through the enterprise of the Merchants, the commerce of the port has been extended to the most remote quarters of the globe. The great exports from the Province are square Timber and Deals, which are sent to the British market—Recently a new field has been opened in the Whaling trade; several vessels have been fitted out, and have met with uniform success.—The Province is yet in its infancy; but it abounds in resources.—Two Banks are now in operation in the City. Saint John bids fair to become, at no distant day, one of the first Commercial Ports in America.
 The third sketch shows the reversing falls, looking upward, and a mouse appears in the foreground. There were, of course, no bridges, and the sketch is somewhat overdrawn as to the apparent height of the falls. Of the falls the writer says:
 "The Falls of the Saint John River may justly rank among the phenomena of Nature, when it is considered that the rush of water, which appears in the picture descending from a height of above 12 feet, falls to a corresponding depth at the opposite side, at certain periods of the day; this is owing to the narrowness of the passage, as well as the great rise of tide in the harbour.
 A tradition exists among the Indians, that the place now occupied by the Falls was originally a mass of rocks, and that the Saint John River then ran into the Bay of Fundy on the Eastern side of the City, the bed of which is now a very productive marsh—but that a convulsion of nature opened the present stormy passage, through which it empties itself into the harbour. When the water is still, which occurs at half-tide, the long fang of line have failed to find a bottom in the basin, while at the height of the late rush, the water was only five fathoms deep. A story is current here, of a French frigate, which was once chased by an English ship, but not knowing the nature of the Falls, and entering at an improper time of tide, it was carried down by the whirl of the tremendous basin. When the water is level, the Falls are safe and navigable, but for want of caution, many lives are lost, and boats and rafts of timber constantly broken up.
 The fourth sketch is of "Winter travelling on the Kennebecacis River," and shows half a dozen single sleighs speeding over the ice between wooded and snow-clad hills. A loaded sled is drawn by a pair of horses on the shore, and there is a good representation of a "snake fence" along the road. Relative to the sketch the writer says:
 "The Kennebecacis is a branch of the St. John river, commencing 3 miles above the city, and running into the bay at a distance of about 40 miles until it reaches one of the most fertile parts of the province, a beautiful spot called Sussex Vale, from whence great quantities of Pork, Beef, and vegetables, are transported on the ice in the winter to St. John.
 The view is meant to illustrate the mode of winter travelling in this country, which generally lasts five months, during which period all the rivers appear converted into public roads, being covered with sleighs and sleds, traversing the country in all directions, while the scene is enlivened by the constant tinkling of bells round the horses' necks. The ice generally breaks up about the middle of April, when the region immediately commences with a rapidity which makes ample amends for the severity of the winter and shortness of the spring, and a few weeks finds us in a summer rather warmer than the southern parts of England.
 The autumn in this country is decidedly the most agreeable season, and no pencil can do justice to the whimsical and beautiful variety of tints, which the foliage of the forest assumes at that period of the year. The banks of this river are beautifully romantic, and 15 miles farther up the river, in the little village of Hampton, when you find yourself at once in a rich farming country; almost entirely consisting of several hundred farms, which are yearly inundated by the river freshets, covering the ground and leaving a rich residue of manure, which is quite peculiar to the soil, and quite productive of the finest crops of wheat, corn, and other vegetables, and in fact all kind of vegetables arrive at a corresponding size.
 Vegetables, here also arrive at a size that may fairly rival the forest mould, and are sent to the market in the London Markets. Best root not unfrequently grows to the enormous size of 20 inches in circumference, and 20 lbs weight, and turnips, cabbages, and in fact all kind of vegetables arrive at a corresponding size.
 The fifth sketch is a view of Digby, showing a small village and a view of the basin looking out toward the bay. A vessel shown in the basin has a tall smoke stack, as well as two masts. A block-house appears on a neighboring hill. Of Digby the writer says:
 "The Township of Digby was originally formed out of an extensive tract of land, granted to 475 Loyalists, and contained 61,000 acres, and was reserved for Naval purposes; it is situated on the gradual slope of a hill, and comprises a view of Grandville and the Basin that extends between it and Annapolis, and which receives the collected waters of Moose and Bear Rivers. This place, from its situation at the mouth of these rivers, the shelter it can afford to vessels navigating the Bay of Fundy, and the advantages it possesses for prosecuting the Mackerel and Cod fishery, would naturally be supposed to be of considerable importance; but such is the apathy and want of enterprise among the inhabitants, that only three small schooners, twenty or thirty tons each, are fitted out annually by them, and even these depend on Saint John for their supplies for each voyage.—The land, and the immediate vicinity of the town, is poor, sandy, and unproductive; but as the distance from the sea increases, the soil improves, and is capable of being made excellent tillage ground, as what, when properly attended to, produces a fair crop; but the farmers, like their town neighbours in the fishing trade, are devoid of both enterprise and perseverance; and with so many means of wealth and independence, they nevertheless remain an idle, improvident, and indigent class of people.
 Digby is one of the cleanest and healthiest towns in the British Provinces—the salubrity of its air, combined with its retired situation (although within forty miles of Saint John), renders it a favorite summer resort for invalids from that city, being quite free from the fogs which generally prevail in those towns lying on the North-Eastern shores of America.—It contains a Court-house, an Episcopal Church, and a Calvinist Meeting-House, which are very well attended; the number of inhabitants is about 400, and they return one member to the House of Assembly.
 The same combined sail and steam craft appears, and some small sailing vessels. The sketch gives the impression of a landlocked basin with high hills all round. Of this the writer says:
 "The entrance to Digby presents in the distance a view of the long fang of line, and one of the entrances to Bear River, and in the foreground that part of the Basin which lies between Digby Gut and the town. On the opposite shore are several Herring Weirs, which once formed a source of considerable wealth to the inhabitants, but lately they have not been so productive. They were at their height in 1783, when the Loyalist removed thither, and continued undiminished until the year 1819—previous to which period, the annual exports from Digby and its neighborhood, amounted to from $5 to 100,000 boxes, which were then severally worth five shillings each; they also supplied the interior, and the refuse furnished an excellent manure for the lands adjacent to the weirs; to form a comprehensive idea of the numbers formerly caught, it

A GIGANTIC BABY

Centralia, Ill.—Mrs. Joe Robinson gave birth to a child weighing nineteen and a half pounds. Two years ago, she bore a baby which tipped the beam at eighteen pounds.
 It is easy to see that Mrs. Robinson enjoys perfect health. Many women will envy her, because they go through life, wretched and dispirited on account of ill-health. Mrs. Mary Sheehan, of Toronto, suffered for years with diseased ovaries, constant pain in the back, headaches, indigestion and sallow, yellow skin. "Seven months ago a lady friend recommended Fruit-tives," writes Mrs. Sheehan, "and I decided to try this medicine, though I had little faith in it, because the doctors said an operation was necessary. After I had taken four boxes of Fruit-tives I was free of all pain, and was well again."
 "Fruit-tives" are made of fruit juices and tonics and are the best medicine in the world for women. 50c.

will only be necessary to state, that in the year 1798, a quantity equal to two hundred barrels, was frozen in one night into a solid mass in one of the weirs!
 Contiguous to where this view was taken, is the entrance, or, as it is commonly called, the "Gut of Digby." In the summer, the shores on either side are lined with wigwags, where the Indians from all the adjacent parts assemble during the season, and are constantly occupied in the Porpoise fishery, in which they are very expert, and send to market many hundred gallons of very superior oil, which they will not part with without receiving cash payments in return—a thing not generally practised in Digby, as there almost all their petty business consists of traffic.
 After having thus described the book we may properly give the author's dedication, as follows:
 DEDICATION.
 On my arrival in the Province of New Brunswick, on my route to Upper Canada; and impressed with the prevailing opinion at the Mother Country, as to the Sterility of this Province: I was forcibly struck with the Beauty and Romantic appearance of this vicinity, and the taste of ground untried in this walk of Science, and instigated by a desire to remove the unfavorable and unjust opinion too generally received in the Parent Land, at the solicitations of a few Scientific Individuals undertook the pleasing task of sketching some of the most prominent features of this and the Sister Province; my labors have been appreciated—which while it is highly gratifying to the taste of the people of this Country, it is also gratifying to myself to feel that I have been so generally patronized; in this my first essay.
 Humble as may be this attempt, I feel assured that it will meet the approbation of the lovers of the ARTS, the more especially so, when they reflect that every foot of European scenery has been so repeatedly depicted by the hand of the ARTIST, while the beauties of this Country have been almost wholly neglected.
 The favorable reception this Number has met at the hands of a Liberal and Discerning Public, has determined me to continue in this manner, until a complete SET of VIEWS, of all that is Picturesque and Beautiful, in the British North America shall be completed.
 It is hoped that the set will form an addition to the Portfolio of the Artist, that will not only enrich that department, but so far towards removing a prejudice, the existence of which must be cause of regret in every liberal mind.
 This Number, by permission, is respectfully Dedicated to the Lady of the Chief Justice of New Brunswick, the Hon. Ward Chipman.
 By her Obedient, and very humble Servant,
 M. G. HALL.

The names of nearly three hundred subscribers to the book are also printed, and that contains many familiar to all students of the city's history, as well as many no longer found in the civic directory.

MR. HAZEN SAYS DR. PUGSLEY HAS DECEIVED THE COUNTRY

Local Opposition Leader Answers Minister of Public Works on Question of Provincial Finances—Says Dr. Pugsley When Premier Tried to Mislead Electorate on Central Railway Purchase.

J. D. Hazen, leader of the provincial opposition made some interesting observations in reference to the Gagetown convention and the address delivered there. When asked if he had read a report of the proceedings Mr. Hazen said the result of the convention was evidently a very great disappointment, especially to friends of the local administration, for while the convention was called ostensibly to nominate a candidate to contest the counties of Sunbury and Queens at the next federal election, that election was still probably a long way off and most people who went there did so with the expectation that some important announcement would be made with regard to provincial politics.

In point of attendance too, considering the great efforts that have been made to get a large audience by furnishing of brass bands, free transportation, free meals, the result was not what was hoped for and the attendance from a good many parishes was very small. The great disappointment, however, was that the fact that most of the people were owing to the fact that no announcement of any importance at all were made with regard to the local situation. The premier had nothing to say with regard to the date of the general elections and no announcement regarding the office of attorney general which has now been vacant for a period of nearly five months.

Mr. Hazen, continuing said that in view of the fact that the premier had made during the last two sessions by the government regarding this legislation they would be made very small indeed, and saying their own words if they now repealed the act or amended it in the directions so frequently mentioned, that some changes might be made in the highway act. From this it is apparent that the government are bent upon making a show of the opposition have said about the highway act is true, and that they have judged the public and that the country much more correctly than did the government.

Mr. Pugsley during the same session said: "I have thrown the entire responsibility for the upkeep of roads and bridges on the government and I have a long time ago said to the conclusion that it is advisable to rest the control in the municipalities." Mr. Murray, a prominent supporter, said that he had travelled through some of the northern counties—Quebec, New Brunswick and Kent—and he would say that the roads are now in a far better condition than they were a few years ago.

In the previous session of 1906 Premier Tweedie, referring to the highway act, said: "The leader of the opposition says that he is not the intention of the government to rest the control of the roads and bridges on the municipalities. It is the policy of this government to maintain this law and if he went into power tomorrow he would not dare to repeal it. Although we have had no assessment yet available, he is entirely wrong. I have many persons have written to us to say that it is a great improvement on the old system."

Mr. Hazen said if these statements were believed at the time they were made by these gentlemen, they are strangely inconsistent now when they hold that the act should be amended or repealed. Continuing Mr. Hazen said: "One of their supporters, who has already served on several government commissions, one for the purchase of horses and the other in connection with the Restigouche boys, is now suggesting that a commission shall be appointed to inquire into the workings of the act. "Such a course is entirely unnecessary, for one only has to go into any county district of this province to learn that the highway act has proved unwelcome and that the results have been most unsatisfactory to the people of this province. All the talk of repealing and amending it is a tribute to the wisdom and foresight of the opposition who from the outset predicted just exactly what has happened and shows that they were better judges of public sentiment and public feeling and what was for the good of the country than the members of the government."

Mr. Pugsley's speech also must have proved a very great disappointment to those who heard him. During the last session the legislature Mr. Pugsley made the emphatic statement that within three months the Central railway would be taken over by the Grand Trunk Pacific. In view of this statement it was thought, and so stated in the press, that some announcement with regard to the future of the Central railway would be made by Mr. Pugsley yesterday at Gagetown. "On this point, however, he apparently said nothing. When in the house of assembly he made the statement about the Grand Trunk Pacific acquiring the road within three months, he expected that the close of the session and I charge that the present minister of public works deliberately and wilfully made those representations to the House and country on the strength of his position as premier of the province, with the intention of misleading and deceiving the electorate. Up to the present time he has not produced one bit of evidence of any consequence with the National Transcontinental company or government of Canada that would justify the making of this assertion, and it is simply one instance out of many showing that Dr. Pugsley, for the purpose of a mere temporary advantage, is willing to make any sort of statement that will serve the purpose of the moment, regardless of whether it has any foundation to rest upon or not.

"Speaking in the legislature on March 14 last, I made the statement that any bill that called attention to the great necessity which existed for a railway down the St. John River Valley was worthy of a hearing and that was not creditable to the legislature of the province that Westfield were left for five months of the year without a market. At previous sessions I pointed out that, while millions of dollars had been spent in building railways elsewhere in the province, the section of the St. John Valley had been neglected. The remarks made during the last session of the legislature in connection with a bill promoted by Mr. T. Sherman Peters, of Gagetown, amending the charter of the Auto Road Company, in reply to my remarks, the attorney-general said that, in view of the fact that the Intercolonial railway now goes to Fredericton and that the Intercolonial railway had been announced that it would be a part of the highway act to take over branch lines, he did not intend to take any action in connection with the Intercolonial railway. A few days after he advanced this scheme for the extension of the Intercolonial railway, Mr. Pugsley, in a speech in correspondence with McKenzie & Mann and asked the House to pass a bill guaranteeing the construction of a road from Woodstock to Westfield or St. John. The Intercolonial railway system connecting part of the road to Westfield, to the amount of $150,000. "The St. John Valley Railway was founded on two 3 1/2 mile grants and several 1/2 mile grants, and the hurried nature of the whole transaction has been seen from the fact that only a few days before Mr. Pugsley introduced the McKenzie & Mann bill he was talking of the Intercolonial railway. It was another effort on Mr. Pugsley's part to catch votes in anticipation of a general election. "All that has happened since that time has been that McKenzie & Mann's solicitor and another gentleman took a heavy charge of the proposed line of railway and made the statement that some portions of the road would cost $100,000 a mile, and at Gagetown the attorney-general, Mr. Pugsley, stated that McKenzie & Mann had declared that the road would cost $40,000 a mile, and that in consequence they could not under any circumstances take a heavy work with a bond issue of only $15,000 a mile. "The minister is reported to have said that McKenzie & Mann had given a guarantee by their original guarantee, and he indulged in some general promises to do what he could to do for the province. "There is a very little hope in this for those who desire the building of a railway along the St. John valley, though anyone who reads the papers of the day will find that Mr. Pugsley's speech at the last session of the legislature would have been that work on the road would have been completed before the end of the year. Mr. Pugsley also met with considerable difficulty in attempting to meet the charge that he had expended the amount of $40,000 in five years. It will be remembered that when McKenzie & Mann had given a guarantee, Mr. Pugsley was able to substantiate every assertion which he had made. "Mr. Pugsley was charged with having had $300 of his private telegraphing bills paid by the province. The fact that he had a very striking answer to the assertion made by him in the press a few days ago that the public accounts are $100,000 in the old time and regard to debt. If such is the case, how did the province come to pay his private bills and that for two years in succession? "The most vigorous part of Dr. Pugsley's speech, and probably the most interesting, had reference to a statement which I was alleged to have made at Bathurst in regard to the debts and liabilities of the province. Speaking at Bathurst, I made the statement that the debt and liabilities of this province today could not be much less than $8,000,000. I did not give, as reported in the papers, the item making up the amount, but the gentleman who reported the speech at the meeting put them me and without informing me that he had done so. "I am prepared, however, to say that in making the statement that the debt and liabilities of this province today are in round figures $8,000,000 I was well within the mark and have not one word to take back in regard to that assertion, and am prepared to justify it fully before the legislature or before the public. "The figures that make up the debt and liabilities of the province today, without taking into account current overdrafts are as follows: First the debt as outlined on page 7 of the auditor-general's report and secondly the liabilities incurred by the province. "In regard to the liabilities I would first mention the International Railway. By Cap. 12 of the acts of 1903 the bonds of this railway were guaranteed for 50 miles to $3,000,000 a mile. . . . $ 250,000 By Cap. 23, 1907, increase of guarantee to $5,000 per mile for 110 miles. . . . 693,000 Subtotal to the 110 miles at guarantee per mile $27,000, less $25,000 already included in bonded debt $55,000. . . . 220,000

Is of infinitely greater importance to every individual than sanitation of cities, towns, streets and homes.

It is brought about only by the use of a medicine that has real merit—merit that positively will renovate the vital fluid, expel all disease taints, overcome all hereditary scrofulous tendencies, and give to the blood the perfect purity necessary for perfect health. Hood's Sarsaparilla does this as no other medicine can. It is prepared by expert chemists using modern processes, especially to meet the greatest demands that can be made upon a medicine for the blood. It has given satisfaction in so many thousands of cases that we would be almost justified in saying, "It never fails."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Because of its merit, its record, its unequalled success. Get a bottle today. Sold by druggists. 100 doses One Dollar. C. I. HOOD CO., Lowell, Mass. Total liability of province by guarantee of bonds and for loan by way of overdrafts. . . . $1,100,000 Highway Bridges. Cap. 18, 1907, authorizes debentures for the purpose of providing a portion of the cost of a number of bridges $350,000, the total amount being estimated by the chief commissioner at $ 884,200 Central Railway and Overdrafts. Cap. 18, 1907, also authorizes debentures to pay off public works overdraft $197,065.97; provincial hospital overdraft $22,431, and for an unmentioned amount of interest on account of N. B. Coal and Railway, altogether making a total of. . . . 330,000 St. John Valley Railway. Cap. 23, 1907, authorizes the guaranteeing of the bonds of a railway to extend from Centreville to Westfield or St. John by the route of the Intercolonial, the distance suggested by Dr. Pugsley is 143 miles, with roads in the west, to the amount of $2,145,000. Bonded debt as per page 7 auditor-general's report. . . . $4,841,719.19 International Railway liability. . . . 1,100,000.00 Highway bridges. . . . 884,200.00 Overdrafts and N. B. & Coal Ry. interest. . . . 330,000.00 St. John Valley Railway liability. . . . 2,145,000.00 $ 9,300,919.19

"It will thus be seen from those figures, for which I challenge the closest scrutiny and investigation, that I was fully justified in the mark when I stated at Bathurst that the debt and liability of the province amounted to a sum of $8,000,000. "The attorney-general, at Gagetown, claimed that we have no right to charge up $884,200 for new highway bridges, as he claims to the amount of $300,000 only has been issued for that work. Even if I deduct the amount as claimed by the attorney-general, the sum is still over $584,200; but I do not see why the amount should be deducted. "The bill introduced at the last session of the legislature, and which was a jobster act in its provisions, providing for different counties, intended to influence the representatives of the counties in the county of Madawaska, at Broadway, Salmon River, Three Brooks and Riley Brook in the county of Fredericton, at Florenceville and Bath in the county of Carleton, at St. George and Young in the county of Charlotte, to replace the wooden spans of the Fredericton bridge, at Hawkesburg and Patterson Gully in the county of York, at Chipman and the Narrows in Queens, the Cushing canal bridge, St. John, the Suspension bridge, St. John, bridges near Titusville and Roachville in Kings, at Sawmill Creek, McFarlane's and Mill Creek in Albert, at Hall's Creek, Memramook, Shediac and Hollis Creek in Westmorland, at McLeod's Mill and Black River in Kent county, at the North-west Miramichi, Kane's Point, Morrison Bridge and Donald Bridge in Northumberland, the Bathurst Station bridge and Wri bridge in Gloucester and bridge at El River in Restigouche and Hartt bridge in Sunbury. "The total cost of these bridges, as estimated by the chief commissioner at the sum of $884,200 and under $930,000 was voted for this work at the last session, it is quite clear in view of the declaration by the legislature that it will be necessary in the near future to construct these bridges. The liability to do so has been cast upon the people of the province and the money can only be obtained by issuing bonds. "If it is not proposed to go on with those bridges, in view of the declaration

Investing Your Savings. Saving the "First Thousand."

Though Russell Sage has gone the way of all things mortal, his name is still a synonym for great wealth and ready cash. Inasmuch as saving usually precedes investing, it is fitting to reiterate an aphorism delivered to the writer by Mr. Sage several years ago. It is exceedingly trite but eternally true. "Making money is the most difficult problem in making money is the laying aside of the first thousand dollars."

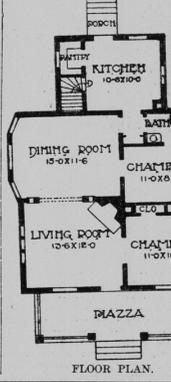

Presidential Possibilities. Trade Talker.

CHARLES JOSEPH BONAPARTE. In the natural course of events, Charles J. Bonaparte, descendant of Napoleon and at present Attorney General of the United States, and the head of the Department of Justice, may be a presidential candidate.

A ONE STORY COTTAGE. Designed by Chas. S. Sedgwick, Architect, Minneapolis.

In some sections of the country one story cottages are very popular and where a large number of rooms are not required, it makes a very pleasant home to live in at comparatively small outlay. The one-story cottage has its advantages. You have the comforts of a home on one floor that are so much enjoyed in a flat, no stairs to climb and everything easy of access for steps for the householder.

Friezes for the Child's Room.

BY BEATRICE CAREY. There are friezes for the nursery that tell long stories in clear black outlines, filled in with bright flat colors, and the whole thrown into high relief by a one-toned background. These pictorial friezes always tell a winsome tale. One of the most popular is the Pierrot frieze.

Dainty Articles for the Baby.

The illustrations show several new and pretty things for the baby. The little cap is embroidered and made in a new style. The bonnet was cut on a buttonhole and scalloped by hand in silk to match. These little sacques make charming gifts for a baby and are very easy to make. They are often embroidered with tiny bouquets or sprays of flowers, and are pretty either in pale pink, blue or white. The little coat rack is another article very simple and attractive to make, the more framed being prettily covered with garter ribbon.

Outline of the Trust Standpoint.

Louis F. Swift, practically the head of the Trusts, has just given out this statement. It is a defense, yet a complete outline of the public's rights in regard to the great corporations. "Now, more than ever, great corporations must take the public into confidence. These policies express my idea of ideal corporation beliefs and practices."

Useful Dressmaking Notes.

BY DOROTHY DALE. The proper cutting, fitting and finishing of a dress can be done only after thorough practice. Accuracy in the small details will do much to make the garment perfect; another matter which is often neglected is the careful handling of the parts, so that they are not stretched out of shape. Carelessness about this latter will cause the dress to fall into unsightly wrinkles at the seams.

Modern Dining-Room Furnishings.

Dark oak is now one of the most popular woods for the dining-room furniture, though nothing can compare in beauty to mahogany when it can be afforded. The oak so widely used is of dull finish, a shade lighter than the Finnish and darker than the cathedral. The prevalent style is known as modern English, somewhat similar to the Mission, yet having a few curves, of which none are permitted in the strictly Mission furniture. A set includes the table, sideboard, china cabinet, serving table, and as many chairs as are requisite. Of course two armchairs are furnished.

Practical Sewing Room.

If one lives in an apartment or small city house, a well appointed sewing room is a luxury almost impossible to acquire, and so all sorts of substitutes may be resorted to. However, there are many little conveniences for the seamstress that are to be had, and are made in such a way that they do not take much room.

Grape Recipes.

Grape Preserves—Allow three-fourths of a pound of sugar to each pound of grapes. Wash off the grapes in cold water and squeeze the pulp from the skin of grapes. Let the pulp lie slowly and cook it until the seeds come out easily. This will be in ten or fifteen minutes; then pass through a sieve of a mesh just fine enough to keep back the seeds. Now cook the skins and pulp for ten minutes, add the sugar, and continue cooking until the liquid thickens slightly. Store in glass jars.

Jack—We're having beastly trouble at the club. We can't distinguish the waiters from the members at our evening receptions. Jill—Why don't you engage some intelligent looking waiters?

A JOURNEY TO POMPEII

BY DELLA ANTONIAN

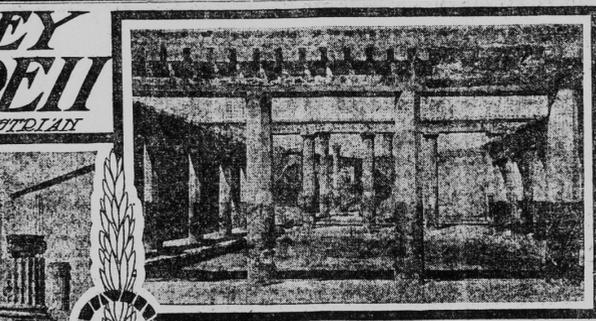

BASILICA NEAR THE FORUM

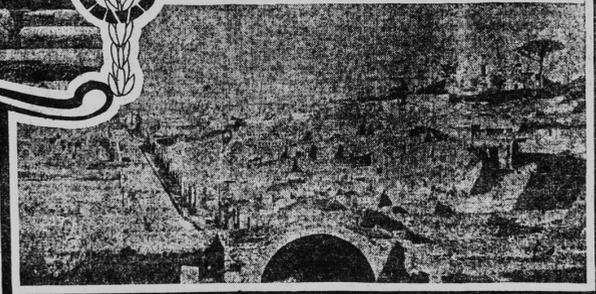

The traveller looking for the first time on the lovely grass covered mountain of Vesuvius finds it hard to believe that it has tried time and again to destroy wonderful cultivated farms and thousands of lives. He is surprised and disappointed both when he is told that Vesuvius is now snowing and has been in active eruption and that the government refuses to let the tourists make the ascent.

He takes a carriage and drives through many small towns, attractive because of their fertile, well-cared farms. The thrifty contented farmers, work from early morning until late at night, not realising the harm that may come to them at any time.

The excavations and ruins disclose the fact that centuries ago Pompeii was one of the most powerful and important Italian cities. One can read words to this effect in the Vicoli Storto "Respect the Judgment of the Emperor" and again in a shop in the street of Stabiae, "Long live the judgment of the Emperor and the Emperor, be obedient and you will always be happy." The wealth of the soil and the thrift of the inhabitants had helped to make it a wonderfully interesting and attractive city when a terrible earthquake destroyed it entirely. The first shock came on the 5th of February 62, B. C., and two other shocks soon after. Men and women jumped out of bed, gathered in groups and questioned whether they ought to remain where they were, or flee to the country. The houses were shaken by long shocks that came at intervals as though it were going to tear the houses from the until 1807 that the excavation was begun seriously.

A number of large houses were excavated, including the villa of Domus and the house of Sallust. Queen Caroline took a great interest in the finding of the hidden treasure, the villa of Domus was cleared, the tomb of the house of Pansa and the Great Amphitheatre. King Murat gave liberally to the carrying out of the work. Little by little from 1815 to 1830 the Temple of Fortune, the Temple of Apollo, the baths of the Forum, the Forum itself, the temple of Jupiter and the baths of Stabiae were unearthed. Some time after the houses in the street of Abundantia were brought to light. Though the greater part of the work has been finished, each year brings forth new treasures. This attractive city may be approached by eight

MOSAIC FLOOR

The family always reclined on benches. The husband took the head of the table, his wife was on one side of him and his son on the other. The guests were placed on other benches according to their rank. The banquets were sometimes sumptuous and lasted for hours.

The Museums in Pompeii and Naples show that beautiful statues were plentiful in Pompeii, they adorned the houses, the streets and the temples. The temple of Apollo was adorned with a statue of Apollo and a Diana in bronze that surmounted the arch. A magnificent bust of Jupiter was taken from the temple dedicated to that god. The most famous of the bronzes is the Dancing Faun found in the streets of Nola and the Satyr in the house of the Centaur.

The Faun represents the joy of life sustained by physical strength. The other shows a young Satyr pouring water from a beaker. Every line of the body shows ease and grace. The same artistic touches were given to the bronze and silver dishes, vases and lamps. Some were shaped in the form of faces, others were decorated with richest embossing.

The house of Pansa, the poet, is sufficiently well preserved to show how beautiful Pompeii was before it suffered destruction.

The House of the Rich Man was the largest private house in Pompeii. But this is only a small part of the interesting things to be found there. It is hard to imagine anything more splendid than the great Stabian Baths adorned with marble and mosaics. So large they could accommodate hundreds at a time. In keeping with this splendor are the ruins of the Forum, temples, the theatre and the gladiatorial barracks. Beautiful as are these ruins under an azure sky, the great marble piles become things of gold when the blood-red sun goes down, whispering the words "this is the riddle of life, joy and sorrow, beauty and destruction, ever playing hide and seek with each other."

A bird was seen to fall in the yard of the works department at Deal Barracks, England, recently. It was a blue rock pigeon, with an odder tightly coiled around it, and both were dead. The adler, which measured two feet six inches, was twisted around the pigeon's neck and one wing, and the pigeon's beak tightly gripped the snake's head.

THE STORY OF CASSIE CHADWICK

(Mail and Empire.)

Mrs. Cassie Chadwick, whose death in the Ohio State Prison is reported, was one of the most remarkable women that the last half century has produced. That her talents were exercised wholly in the fields of crime is an incident for which her surroundings may have been responsible. Had Fate cast her lines otherwise, she surely would have become celebrated for the possessed courage, audacity, nerve, perseverance, and half a dozen other high qualities to a remarkable extent. It has been estimated that Mrs. Chadwick's swindlings ran into the millions, and there can be little doubt that many of her victims have kept their losses to themselves, rather than become a public laughing stock. Of the whole remarkable story, the most significant feature is that Mrs. Chadwick got the money without bearing heavily on her femininity. In the common sense of the word, she was not an adventuress. She was personally without physical charm.

HER EARLY CAREER.

Her own testimony on the subject being worthless, we may assume that Mrs. Chadwick's maiden name was Elizabeth Bigley, and that she was born at Appin, Ont., 45 years ago, as her sister says. Her parents were poor, and life on the farm held no attractions for Elizabeth. Her earliest attempt to make a name for herself was executed on a cheque, and was attended by some irregularity which landed her in a police court. On the plea of insanity she escaped imprisonment, and soon left the country to join her sister in Cleveland. There, in 1882, she married Dr. W. S. Springsteen, who divorced her shortly. Next she appeared in Toledo, under the name of De Vere, and succeeded in fascinating several men, one of them being an express agent named Lamb, whom she landed in financial difficulties, before she, herself, on a charge of forgery, was imprisoned for nine years. On her release she went to Cleveland, calling herself Mrs. Hoover, in affectionate memory of her last husband. She obtained employment as traveller for a millinery establishment and later on blossomed forth as a clairvoyant and mas-

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY

MOTHER SEIGEL'S SYRUP cures indigestion, biliousness, constipation, headache, wind, palpitation, oppression, loss of appetite, pains after food, dizziness, blood and skin troubles, and many other ailments that arise from a disordered state of the digestive system. Why? Because it strengthens stomach, liver and bowels, cleanses your blood, and purifies your whole system.

MOTHER Seigels' Syrup

"I have used Mother Seigels' Syrup for stomach troubles, and with such benefit that three bottles completely cured me. I look upon it now as a household necessity and cannot praise it too much."—From Mrs. William Davis, Lake View, Arcadia, Cal., June 5, 1907.

with, president of the Citizens' National Bank, Oberlin, Ohio, a man whom she completely deceived. To Beckwith she gave promissory notes amounting to $250,000, signed by Andrew Carnegie, the signature being forged. She explained that she had sold property to Carnegie, but that it was "fired up" for the time being and that it could not be realized on either of them, but that Carnegie had given the notes so that she should not be pressed for money.

A Word for the Girl.

"An old customer of mine from the interior of the state came to town a few days ago," said a Philadelphia wholesaler, "and after leaving his order for goods he asked the privilege of sitting down to my desk to write a letter. I took him over to one of the typists and told him to get his letter up in good business shape, and the two worked over it for half an hour. Then the man came back to me with his letter in his hand and said:—

"Mr. Blank, this typewriting business is a great thing."

"Yes."

"And that's the girl who did the work for her."

"Yes."

"She made her fingers go like lightning."

"Yes, she is very speedy."

"Seemed to be perfectly willing to oblige."

"Yes."

"A very nice girl indeed, and I hope she'll get on, in fact I want to put in a word for her."

"That's kind of you. What is it?"

Pointed to a word and whispered:

"Tell her, he said as he lowered his voice and glanced over his shoulder, 'that if she'll pay a little more attention to her spelling, she'll come out at the top of the heap. Tell her in a way not to hurt her feelings.'"

"But what word has she spelled wrong?"

"He held out the letter and pointed to a word and whispered:—

"The young lady got one 't' too many in the word, but tell her as gently as you can."

"The word was coffee."

WHOLE SYSTEM SUFFERED FROM STAGNANT KIDNEYS

Experience of a Man Who Almost Died Through Neglecting His Kidneys.

Severe and numerous are the aches and pains that warn us of kidney trouble.

RHEUMATISM—Almost sure to come in damp or changeable weather.

HEADACHES—Blurring before the eyes, dizzy and faint sensations very common.

BACKPAINS—Sharp stinging pains when bending, throbbing dragging weakness over the spine, lameness in the morning.

ACUTE PAINS—Urinary and bladder disorders causing inconvenience day and night.

Such were the conditions through which Mr. McKee, of 24 Hurd street, Halifax, had to live. "Every day I suffered sharp pains across my loins, my back seemed strained and overworked. I was pale and looked laggard and sick. Such mental and physical discomfort was dreadful to endure. Nothing relieved till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills and they put life into my kidneys at once. I grew stronger and felt better while using Dr. Hamilton's Pills and can recommend them as positive cure in advanced kidney trouble."

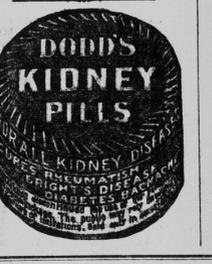

Dr. Hamilton's Pills always set the kidneys right, always remove the aches, stop the bladder complications and make you well.

For Kidney, Liver and Stomach troubles no prescription ever written gives the sure results of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Sold in 25c. boxes by all dealers.

COULDN'T COAX HIM.

(Washington Post.)

"Talking of obstinate men says Secretary Root, reminds me of a story: A German traveler who tried to pass a coal ticket on the train was told by the conductor that he would have to pay the regular fare of 35 cents. The German argued and refused to pay more than 25 cents, whereupon the conductor stopped the train and put him off. In a twinkling the traveler ran ahead of the engine and started to walk on the track. The engineer blew his whistle, but the irate German turned, shook his fist and called out: 'You can vaise all you want to. I von't come pack.'"

CLEVER IDEAS WELL WORKED OUT TELL STORY OF THE CIVIC FAIR

Local Features Will be Well Reproduced at Exmouth Street Y. M. A. Entertainment to Open on Tuesday Night.

Only the good will of the weather man is required to ensure success for the opening of the big civic fair in the Exmouth street Methodist Y. M. A. hall (formerly Glad Tidings), on Brussels street, next Tuesday evening. His worship the mayor will preside and invitations have been sent to every member of the common council.

Nothing of the kind has ever been given in this city, and the officers and members of the Y. M. A. have worked faithfully to give the public a unique entertainment. The booths are gaily adorned with hunting flags, shingle evergreens, etc., and from the ceiling are suspended large paper bells and barge streamers.

On entering the hall, just to the left of the main entrance, the visitor comes up on Brooks ward, the domain of Alderman Baxter. This booth is very nicely gotten up in maroon-colored corrugated cardboard, forming a base and bringing to mind the grain elevator, and at the top, on a base of autumn leaves, is the word "Brooks" outlined in good, old fashioned corn-cobs. Here too, is located the fish pond, where the sportsman may not angle in vain. In charge of this booth is William Lawton, assisted by Mrs. Lawton, Miss Minnie Myles, Miss J. M. Ratcliffe, Miss Sadie McFarlane, and Miss In Lane.

Next in order is Lorne Ward, the abode of Alderman Howland. This is an excellent representation of Indian town in early historic days. The front is nicely done in red, white and blue, while the inside is changed in evergreen and the right-hand corner is an Indian wigwag, and just opposite the historic campfire and boiling pot. New chance raffles can be had at "easy figures." The booth will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Thomas, Miss Bessie Finley, Eva Smith and little Walter. In the center will be the Indian costume. A picture of Alderman Howland will be placed just over the centre of the booth.

Guys Ward, where Alderman Baskin holds sway is nicely gotten up in red and white lattice evergreen and flags, and offers every inducement to the thirsty wayfarer. Lorne Belyca, who is in charge, will be assisted by L. H. Blykes, Miss Belyca and Miss Spruce.

Green, white and gold predominate in Duke's Ward, which is among the prettiest at the fair. At the top are two triangular frames, finished in green and bearing the words "Dukes Ward," "Yankee" in gold letters. In the centre will be a picture of the Duke of York. A large camel, made entirely of peanuts, betelnuts and other nuts, is situated on the right-hand side of the booth. Home-made candy will also be in evidence. Here F. M. Hastings is in charge, and as his assistants will have Roy Willet, Miss Nellie Sandall and Miss Mand Hastings.

Next comes Stanley Ward, tastefully adorned in white and blue and brilliantly illuminated with electric lights, in the very midst of which is a splendid crayon picture of Alderman John McDoldrick. In charge of the ward will be Herbert Lawton, assisted by Charles McFarlane and Harry Alexander.

Dufferin Ward will be devoted to ice cream, and is very nicely done in spruce, rowan berries and cotton batting. Roy Dalzell is in charge, and associated with him will be Miss Ednah Bettle and Miss Mary Ratcliffe.

Sydney ward is nicely worked out in birch bark, maple and evergreen, and Alderman Lewis' famous rock, containing mine, replete with "G. P." overalls, will be in evidence, also a perfectly working Ferris wheel. R. Charles is in charge, and his assistants will be Gordon Stevens, Mrs. Wm. Brown, Miss L. Verinder, and Miss Lillie Tait.

Prince Ward, the domain of Alderman Sprout, is nicely decorated in red and yellow, with Chinese lanterns, and all kinds of oriental novelties will be offered for sale. W. I. Case is in charge and with him will be W. G. Drake, Miss Edna Stevens, Harold Hopkins and Miss Case.

Victoria, probably the cleverest and most original ward of the lot, was designed by W. A. Adams, and is composed of white pickets, the name forming a transparency, and the background of the interior being composed of evergreen, while on a grassy knoll is situated an octagonal tower, from which dainty packages of candy are delivered from a shoot-the-chutes. Mr. Adams is in charge and with him will be Misses Mabel Sandall, Blanche Myles, Lottie Thomas, Margaret Ross, Laura Myles, and Earl Myles.

Wellington, Dr. Christie's ward, will be in the hands of R. F. Goodeich, assisted by Misses Edith Willis, Katy Goodeich, Blanche Goldert, Edna Ledley, and Misses McDonough, Thompson and Kilpatrick. The booth is artistically adorned in red and white, and fancy work will be offered for sale.

Langdowne will be comfortably fitted up as a recreation ward, and will be in charge of Roy Henderson.

Queens ward is an artistic creation of pale pink and green with beautiful transparencies and both candy and fruit will be sold. Harold Cosman will take charge, with Lewis Cronk, G. Brighton Howard and Misses Edith Lawson, Bertie Hastings, Hazel Wood, and Miss Cronk as assistants.

Kings ward, located in the centre of the room is octagonal in shape, done in white and royal purple, surmounted by a crown and represents the post office. Here fancy and souvenir post cards will be sold. William J. Magee is postmaster, with Misses Mand McInnis, Laura Sandall, Margaret Baxter, Ella Henderson, Florence Magee, Mildred Cosman and Marguerite Titus as postal clerks.

Downstairs will be a shooting gallery.

EVERY DAY CLUB

Capital Address on Home Hygiene by Dr. Walker Last Evening—Good Programme Rendered.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the Every Day Club last night by a large number of men. Frank Whelpley played and sang, John Salmon gave a reading, and there was some other entertainment, in addition to the address by Dr. T. D. Walker and the marvellous monologue by E. J. Brown.

Dr. Walker spoke most interestingly to the men on Home Hygiene, giving a practical talk full of excellent points relative to healthful houses, plenty of good air, well selected and well cooked food, physical exercise, sport and methods of making home attractive, with some very helpful hints concerning what to do and what to avoid doing in cases of simple accident or other afflictions.

The speaker dwelt upon the importance of having well ventilated houses, with open windows and plenty of fresh air. He pointed out that for health a house a little out of the crowded streets would be preferred, where there would be opportunities for a little gardening and other outdoor pleasures. He advised young men to go in more for sport, including shooting, and fishing and to lie in the open.

Touching education, he commended domestic science and manual training, and his words in the highest degree such in the past been directed too much to the making of teachers and not enough to training skilled workers.

In speaking of the home, he pointed out that the men could do much more than they generally do to make it attractive for the children and to ease the burden on the wives and mothers.

With regard to factories where clothing is manufactured he declared that not enough attention is paid to space and pure air for the workers.

The address was listened to with the deepest attention, and Dr. Walker was heartily applauded. He spoke most highly of the aims and objects of the Every Day Club.

Mr. Brown was then introduced, and for nearly half an hour delighted the audience with marvellous stories, recitations and a song for which he played his own accompaniment. Mr. Brown is an artist of great versatility and a capital speaker. His words in the highest degree such in the past been directed too much to the making of teachers and not enough to training skilled workers.
