CHATHAM. - - - - NOVEMBER 11, 1880 Discouraging Crown Lands Tactics.

The people of New Brunswick, and especially those of them who are interested in the lumbering industry, have reason to look with some degree of alarm upon the policy, or rather want of policy, manifested by the Provincial Government in dealing with our lumber lands. If there is a trade or industry in New Brunswick which has asked no favors, in the way of either subsidy or protection, from the Government: a trade that has even contributed an undue proportion to the fiscal revenues through periods of commercial prosperity and adversity, alike, it is the lumber trade. In the way of indirect taxation it is especially burdened by the revenue tariff of the Dominion Government, while the local Government has obliged it to contribute roundly to the Casual and Territorial Revenue of the Province by the direct Mileage and Stumpage dues. It is a trade of the first importance to the country, affording employment to a large proportion of the people and chiefly maintaining the ocean com merce which has so largely contributed to the prestige of the Province abroad. It requires the employment and permanent investment of immense capital, and is justly assigned a first place among the industries which are the stay and sup port of the country. It is, therefore reasonable to claim that true political wisdom would be best displayed by our local Government in making the system under which the public lumber lands are managed as simple and permanent as possible, and that a just and equitable consideration of all the interests involved should be apparent in the policy pursued towards the lumber operators on the one hand, and the general public

That this has not been the disposition of the Government for some time, is plain to those whose immediate concern has led them to observe the conduct of that body in this regard. The burden of the Export Duty bearing upon the lumber interest and their desire to unfetter the trade in respect of it, was one of the most potent arguments by which the King-Kelly Government induced the Dominion Government to increase the provincial subsidy by $150,-000 a year, in consideration of the Province relinquishing its right to levy and collect export duties. The Local Government, however, as soon as they had thus obtained an increase of some $75-000 to the revenue, over and above what they had realised out of the exlegislation by which the best lumber speculators. Those who had hundreds of thousands permanently invested in mills and other property pertaining to the lumber business were obliged to accept the terms of these monopolists and by and paid to them were quoted by the Government in justification of their Crown Lands policy. It was hoped that this oppressive and one-sided treatment had reached a beacon located at the new gully and its greatest limit when the stumpage was raised all over the Province to eighty cents per thousand, but those who entertained that notion have had it dis- gully channel, which is straight and nelled by recent developments. A new departure has been taken and one which shore line. This matter is worthy of fittingly reflects the shortsightedness the Department's attention and should and want of integrity which, we regret be dealt with before next season. We to say, characterise those entrusted with | give the facts from personal observation Crown Lands management. The lumber trade wakes up to the fact that the impressed with the necessities of the Government, - which ought to encourage rather than prey upon the country's greatest industries,—watches and waits while men of capital make large permanent investments in mill properties, creating industrial centres out of waste places that would be valuless but for their enterprise. The Government not contented with its stumpage tax and realising that the lumber operator cannot abandon his investment, determines to squeeze the attermost cent out of him and to his surprise he sees that the lands which he alone has made valuable are advertised for sale. This style of procedure might not be considered very unfair if the sales brought on under such circumstances were conducted on decent principles, but the Government not only places an upset price on the lands, but it gets private individuals to attend the sales, watch the bidding of the lumber operators interested and run the prices way here; in fact it would be difficult way here; in fact it would be difficult ciples, but the Government not only up to figures so high as to cause them to to name any class of timber goods of repent that they ever invested their capi-which there is even an inadequate suptal in giving a value to property controlled by such a Government. vince are "monopolists" and therefore not entitled to any consideration. He may receive the temporary applause of those who are incapable of looking beyond the present, and whose principles are governed by no higher motives than, the suggestions of expediency; he may point to the fact that the Crown Lands revenue is increased, without, however, stating that the lands have been sold in order to create the "false balance." but the effect will be deadening upon lumbering enterprise and when it is too late the people at large will realise that a suicidal policy has been pursued. Those who may think that it is the has been very quiet, and has been concapitalists alone who will suffer by this unjust policy are greatly mistaken. Its effect upon the smaller operators, woodsmen, millmen, shipmen and deal carriers will be sensibly felt. If the Government forces the millowner to pay $3 an acre for lands upon which he depends to supply his mill when the normal value is but $1 an acre, he will, naturally, endeavor to save himself from are to be made. loss and, perhaps, ruin by reducing the wages of those whom he employs and, so, the "squeezing" operation, begun deals are being stored to await the fur-called manzaneros or apple Indians.

Last week thousands of dollars' worth of the public domain was sold at public down to secret agents of the Governnent, some of whom have since sold them to real operators at exactly the same prices they bid them in at, while to come. others are soliciting the men whose enterprise had made them valuable to take them off their hands on the same Liverpool says :-We mistake the temper and character of the people of the Province if it shall turn out that they approve of the Government's new policy of unfairness towards the lumber trade. It may be wards the lumber trade. It may be that injudicious or unlooked-for expenditures have depleted the Provincial Treasury and that the Government finds it necessary to resort to unusua methods to "raise the wind." but will the people approve of the employment of "puffers" by the Crown Lands Department to assist it in taking lumber operators by the throat and forcing them to buy lands in which they are interested, at fancy prices, or to see them pass into the hands of others who may thus be in a position to almost ruin their business? The people of the Province desire to see the lumber trade fostered, not discouraged. They will not justify the Government in resorting to tricks which would reflect discreditably on mock auction cheap Johns, and they will, we think, be almost unanimous in demanding that the Crown Lands system shall made one in the permanency of which there will be some guarantee against cupidity growing out of any temporary mal-administration.

A Useless Lighthouse. More than a year ago we directed attention to the fact that the Lighthouse at the old Tabusintac gully was useless, owing to the sea having forced open a new gully which was much better than sho the old one. As a matter of fact all vessels and boats of respectable size making for, or leaving Tabusintac, pass through the new gully, because the water in it is deeper and the way much more direct than in the old one. It ought therefore, to be plain to the authorities that the further maintenance of a light at the old gully is only a waste of public money. The lighthouse is located on what is known as Crab Island, which lieved for some time that the keeper, port duty,—obtained it, too, on the plea Mr. Thos Savoy had been washed away as the President is not elected by the of relieving the lumber industry—turnand drowned. On the recommendation popular, but by an electoral college, reed around and imposed a stumpage tax of the Inspector, it was determined to which more than doubled the burden build a breastwork about the building of which they had just claimed they and tenders therefor were invited, and, wished to relieve the lumber trade. we believe, a contract was awarded. ### The English Wood Market.

The Timber Trades Journal of 16th alt; referring to the Lumber Market, London, mentions the arrivals of wood goods for the preceding week and states the quantities on hand. It then says:-These ample supplies, added to those already chronicled in our columns, and further corroborated by the tot up of the Board of Trade returns for the three quarters of the year ending with Sep-tember, have no doubt had considerable influence in pushing forward for publ sale such an unusual quantity of timber goods as were catalogued and offered this week by Messis. Churchill & Sim. Holders of any large stock must see by this time that there is no longer room for speculation on the ground of an apply, to say nothing of being scarge.
