Brighten up!

"That's my advice to you. You've seen it in the pages of the leading magazines. Now you see it here. It means paint and varnish and everything that makes the home bright—outside and inside. It means spring and cheerfulness and boost, and finally

Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes

"The Real Brighten Up Stuff"

Spring brings a desire to Brighten Up things about the house, both inside and out. This is a wearisome task unless paint and varnish be used, and an uncertain task unless you use the best. The Sherwin-Williams Co. make a finish for every surface in your house—a piano or a chair—a floor or a picture frame. A little time and money spent this Spring on "Brighten Up" stuff will greatly lessen your work and add very much to the appearance of your house.

Conservative Opinions

If we are to judge by the language of the Halifax Herald, the Moncton Times, The Picton Standard and other Conservative organs throughout the maritime provinces and indeed throughout Canada, the whole Liberal party is nothing more or less than a band of organized "robbers," "graters," "political leeches" and "public thieves. Statements of this kind can be found in almost every issue of the opposition papers throughout Canada.

Every man with common sense knows that such talk is all damnable and despicable rot. Individually and collectively the morals of the Liberals are just as good as the Conservatives and probably no better.

In the heat of the campaign both parties have sometimes resorted to tactics that would perhaps not stand the clear light of day.

In the day of power the Conservatives favored their friends and in the dim and distant future, when the wheel of political fortune will restore them again to office after the Foster's, Fowler's and Borden's have passed away, they will do the same thing.

So long as millions of dollars have to be spent in a vast country like ours there will be public servants who will abuse their trust and betray the confidence of the party that placed them in office, but the sins of some two or three petty officials do not make the leaders of the Liberal party highway robbers or cut throats, nor does it qualify all the rank and file to break stones within the walls of a penitentiary.

The Liberal party has now been in power for twelve years. It has given to Canada during that period of time one dozen years of good human government. The country has prospered as never before. The revenue has grown steadily. Immigration has poured steadily into the West. Great public works have been and are being constructed.

The links that bind us to the motherland have been strengthened. It has altogether been a period of marked progress and splendid development.

No country under the Heavens has made greater strides in commerce, manufacturing, mining, agricultural as well as along other lines than has this Dominion during the past twelve years. There may be a few flies in the ointment, but the decomposition of the insects has not impaired its beauty or fragrance. Some officials, (the one in particular happened to be a Conservative) may have paid a dollar more for a barrel of flour at Quebec than an other official at Sorel, but this is hardly a charge serious enough to ask for the defeat of the government.

In the final analysis nearly all the charges that have been made against the administration have been as trivial as the one stated above.

Liberals should remember that the Conservatives expected an election this fall and hence they have been doing their best to discredit the government.

Everything that would exhibit even a microscopic error of judgment has been brought to the surface and magnified and distorted for the purpose of gaining party advantage. The record of the government is practically unassailable.—Amherst News.

A Few Things the St. Andrews Co., Ltd. Wish to do

Fredericton, N. B., May 28.—Mr. Clarke of Charlotte introduced a bill into the legislature yesterday which is unusually broad in its scope and evidently contemplates taking over the entire business of St. Andrews and as much of the rest of the world as possible. The title of the bill is "An act to incorporate the St. Andrews Company, Limited, and the names of the incorporators are G. D. Grimmer, J. P. McColl, N. M. Clarke, J. T. Whitlock and Geo. J. Clarke. The capital stock is placed at $99,000, with power to increase to $500,000, with the consent of the Lieut. Governor in Council. The head office of the company is to be at St. Andrews.

The powers sought for the company are to purchase or lease lands, water lots, etc., to purchase, acquire, alter or construct piers, docks, floats, ships, wharves, warehouses, fish canning factories, storage, cold storage, and frost proof warehouses, ice houses, fish ponds, weirs, buildings, workshops, mills, factories, cranes, elevators and other machinery and to carry on generally the business of wharfingers, warehouse men, shippers, transportation agents, contractors, fishermen and manufacturers.

They also seek authority to erect grain elevators, coal pockets and storage tanks for oil and gasoline, with the privilege of carrying on business in fuel and oil.

They further ask for powers to enable them to buy, sell and manufacture logs, spars, timber, lumber, woods, stone and the products thereof; to deal generally in horse and cattle feeds, farm products and animals, and to erect barns and all other necessary buildings to operate a stock yard and a horse and cattle feeding company.

The company further contemplate the production of electricity, compressed air, hydraulic power and gas, and want authority to erect and operate telegraph, telephone and electric lines on their own property, "and across and along highways, waterways, waters and bridges, so far as may be necessary for the business of the company."

The construction of ships, steamers, tugs, lighters, dredges and vessels of every description is also sought, also the power to carry on the business of light-erage and towage and to make arrangements for the conveyance of goods over railway and steamship lines operated by other corporations.

They also seek power "to enter into any arrangements with any authorities, federal, provincial, municipal, local or otherwise," and to obtain from any such authority "any rights, leases, licenses, privileges and concessions which the company may think it desirable to obtain.

There are several other lines of usefulness which the company proposes to enter upon, but enough have been stated to show the comprehensive nature of the charter sought.

The bill will come before the corporations committee tomorrow.

H. A. says: A cask of water is placed on a pair of scales. It weighs 50 pounds. If a fish weighing 15 pounds (salmon) is placed in the water contained in the cask will it raise the weight of the cask or not? It is argued by some apparently smart men, but I want to lay down your word to them as I prof. I contend that the cask then weighs 65 pounds. A person weighs 140 pounds before dinner, does he weigh any more after a hearty meal, say of 11-2 pounds? It is generally contended here that he does not. I say he does. Who is right? A if a cask full to the brim with water has a live fish put into it, as much water as the fish displaces will overflow. As a fish weighs the same as the water it displaces when floating in water, it follows that the cask full of water and fish weigh the same after the fish has been put into the water that the cask and water weighed before the fish was put into the water, that is, 50 pounds. If the cask was not full of water when the fish was put into it, and if no water overflowed when the fish was put into the cask, the weight of fish, water and cask will be 65 pounds in the case you specify. The whole turns upon whether the fish is alive and whether the cask is completely filled with water. If a person is weighed after a meal, he will weigh as much more than he did before the meal as the weight of the food he has eaten. Common sense teaches this. If a person puts 11-2 pounds of food into his pocket and gets upon the scales he will weigh 11-2 pounds more than without the food in his pocket. Write stomach in place of pocket, and you will have the same fact. Or put nails in place of the word food. It will be equally true.—Scientific American.

German Journal's Comments on Canada and The Empire

London May 28.—The Franco-Canadian and Franco-British entente is helping to quicken German susceptibilities. A leading journal in Germany, the Berliner Tageblatt, publishes a front page article warning Germans not to suppose incidents like that of Judge Longley's speech in New York really mean any weakening of Canada's attachment to the empire, nevertheless it regards it as highly significant development of Canada's direct treaty making with foreign powers. The Tageblatt appeals to Germans to awake out of their lethargy and use the opportunity now offered. With this great land of the future, this rising people of the twentieth century, Germany is still engaged in tariff war. Our exports to other lands continue to increase, but our exports to Canada have during the last five years gone down from £1,950,000 to £1,259,000. It is high time we, after our experience with the South African tariff took the initiative in coming to some understanding and gave up the stand we have held since 1898 which may be theoretically justified, but which is politically damaging.

"The Canadian premier has made an independent treaty with France, thus establishing a precedent which can be taken advantage of for arranging a commercial treaty between Canada and Germany. Canada's good government its richness in natural products, its healthy population full of possibilities, are bringing the country into line with the leading nations of the world. We must work together with them in peace. There is nothing separating us except the Atlantic ocean and that only at its narrowest part."

The fact that the Tageblatt is in closest association with the German chancellor is thought to lend peculiar significance to this appeal, which it may be supposed to have especially in view of the difficulty of reconciling German agrarians to a lower duty on Canadian food products. German statesmen, like those of France and other continental countries, realize the possible imminence of a British tariff policy which will embrace a preference to Canada and other colonies, and desire to make prior arrangements as France has done with Canada.

W. L. MacKenzie King has been appointed to inquire into the conditions of labor in the textile industry in Canada, with special reference to the present dispute between the mill owners and the employes in the province of Quebec.

Mr. Armand Lavergne is to resign from the House of Commons to follow his chief to the field of Quebec province politics. He is to contest the constituency of Montmagny.

Value of Music in The Sickroom

The value of music in restoring an invalid to health is the subject of an interesting article by Dr. Haydon Brown in Black and White. Should an invalid be weak, depressed, sad or despairing, a well-chosen piece of music suitably rendered will make him feel stronger, better spirited, cheerful and hopeful, he writes. If he feels unhappy, discouraged, lonely and restless, another selection may help him to feel grateful, bright, comfortable and contented. The extraordinary influence which the mind exercises over the body must be studied in a large number of cases if an observer is to realize the effect of mental disposition or obsession upon pathological process or physiological disorder. A depressed mood will very frequently result in death when a person has arrived at a serious physical condition. Hence cheerful surroundings are of paramount importance in the treatment of practically all orders; and there are few readers who will not appreciate the almost commonplace observation that nurses and doctors, as a rule, to exhibit a cheerful and hopeful demeanor before their patients. There are, of course, exceptions; for some sick temperaments require the warning tone of austerity and gravity even to make them carry out important injunctions, and it may thus be next to impossible for attendants to sustain an attitude of all smiles when deeply studying the patient's interests.

Our Revenue For Year Nearly $96,000,000 Mark

The April financial statement of the Dominion, covering receipts and expenditures for the past fiscal year ending with March last was issued Friday. The statement is not yet quite complete with respect to revenue and expenditure for the year, as a few items of income are still to be reported to the Finance Department and items of expenditure, amounting probably to several million dollars will be coming in for two or three weeks yet. The total revenue for the year as entered so far is $95,907,000. When all the returns are in it will be probably a little over the ninety-six million mark. Mr. Fielding in his budget speech on March 17th, estimated the total revenue at $96,500,000. The total expenditure to date has been $69,069,058 on consolidated fund account and $31,531,822 on capital account. Mr. Fielding estimated a total expenditure on consolidated fund account of $77,500,000 and a surplus of $19,000,000. The indications are that with final returns his estimate will be found close to the mark. Watch Canada grow.

PE-RU-NA CHEERFULLY RECOMMENDED FOR COLDS AND CATARRH. A Prominent Canadian Gives His Experience With the World-Famous Remedy For Catarrh.

Chronic Catarrh Always Begins With An Ordinary Cold.

So Says Dr. Hartman, the Greatest Living Authority On Catarrhal Diseases.

THE first effect of a cold is a thickening of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. This gives rise to a discharge, or at least a stiffness of the nasal passages. Sometimes fever accompanies the first attack, also a feeling of languor, dullness and aching of the bones. If no attention is paid to it, the mucous congestion is liable to spread down into the larynx, producing hoarseness and into the bronchial tubes, producing a cough.

Even when this occurs, many people pay no attention to it. Under such circumstances, the congestion is liable to become chronic, producing a condition of the mucous membrane known as catarrh. Catarrh lasts an indefinite time. Catarrh is essentially a chronic condition and does not leave except something is done to relieve it.

What should be done when a person catches cold is to take a few doses of Peruna.

Taken at the onset, Peruna would break up the cold and prevent all the train of symptoms which usually follow. But, even in cases where the cold has been neglected and hoarseness or a cough has developed, Peruna can be relied upon to give prompt and permanent relief.

The frequency of coughs and colds in the winter makes Peruna a popular remedy for these ailments.

A number of the best people of various countries have given testimonials as to the value of Peruna in such cases. Followed Dr. Hartman's Advice—Restored to Health. Mrs. Samuele Vignean, Aveo au Derd, Isle de La Magdeline, Canada, writes: "I write to tell you that I am perfectly well. I took only three bottles of your Peruna according to your advice and the directions in your book and it restored my health."

C. H. Parker, Ex-Warden of Compton Co., Quebec, has been mayor of Scotstown for a number of years. He is an influential resident in Scotstown and widely known.

His writes concerning Peruna. Read his letter below:

C. H. PARKER.

"I had several attacks of colds from time to time and finally a severe attack developed into catarrh."

"I was advised to use your celebrated catarrh remedy, and after taking three bottles I find myself completely cured, and I no longer suffer from catarrh or colds."

"I can cheerfully recommend Peruna for colds and catarrh."

If Peruna had no other medicinal value than the promptness with which it relieves common colds, it would be well worth while for any family to keep it in the house constantly.

Aeronaut Fell to his Death in River

New York, May 31.—Entangled in the folds of an American flag, which he had waved as he made a parachute drop of 2,000 feet from a balloon at Hillside Park, near Passaic, N. J., late today, Frederick L. Wood, an eighteen-year-old aeronaut, whose home was in New Haven, Conn., fell helplessly into the Passaic River, near Nutley, and was drowned before aid could reach him. Up to a late hour tonight, his body had not been recovered.

Wood made his ascension at five o'clock this afternoon and a thousand persons cheered as the big balloon rose from Hillside Park, an amusement resort, bearing the youthful aeronaut, who sat on the horizontal bar of the parachute.

As the balloon rose, Wood unfolded the flag which he waved to the cheering hundreds far below. A gentle northeast breeze soon carried the balloon and the aeronaut out of sight of the spectators.

Near Nutley the balloon had risen to a height estimated at 2,000 feet and Wood decided to descend. Cutting loose the rope which held the parachute to the balloon and clutching the ropes of the parachute, Wood started downward. The parachute began to open and at a moderate speed, he began his long descent. Scores of people in Nutley watched the aeronaut as he still gaily waved the flag.

Nearing the earth Wood saw that he would probably fall into the Passaic River, and flourishing his flag as a last salute to scores of cheering spectators, who had hurriedly gathered on the river bank, he prepared for a plunge in the water. It was at this moment while the parachute was only a hundred feet above the water that a vagrant puff of wind caught the folds of the flag and wrapped them around Wood's legs. The aeronaut struggled frantically to free himself, but with his limbs still bound by the flag, he dropped into the water. He arose to the surface and cried for help, but before the terror-stricken spectators could come to his aid, he sank. He was a good swimmer, but was too hampered to keep afloat. His home is at No. 335 Chapel street, New Haven.

Don't Stop my Paper

Don't stop my paper, printer; Don't strike my name off yet; You know the cash comes slowly, And dollars hard to get; But tug a little harder. Is what I mean to do, And scrape the dimes together— Enough for me and you. I can't afford to drop it, And I find it doesn't pay To do without a paper, However others may. I hate to ask my neighbors To give me theirs to loan; They don't just say but mean it; "Why don't you get your own!"

Eternity

"Eternity," said the exhorter, who wanted to make things clear, "is forever and forever, and five or six evertwings on top of that. Why, brothers and sisters, after millions and billions of centuries had rolled away in eternity, it would still be a hundred thousand years to breakfast time."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even-numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situated. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at any Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

DUTIES.—(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.
(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. He may also do so by living with father or mother, on certain conditions. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

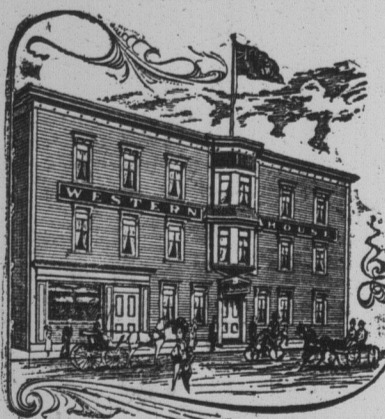

(3) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Eighteen Men Lose Their Lives at Sea

Steamer Boston Runs Down
a Fishing Schooner

ONLY TWO OF CREW SAVED

Yarmouth, N. S., May 27.—The Boston fishing schooner Fame, about 90 tons, commanded by Capt. Thomas Fay, a native of Newfoundland, and carrying a crew of nineteen men, was run into and sunk on Chaspe's Bank at 9 o'clock last evening, by the D. A. R. liner Boston, Capt. McKenzie, which arrived here at 2 o'clock this morning from Boston.

Of the entire crew but two men were saved, their names being John Clark, a native of Newfoundland, residing at East Boston, and Edward Pitts, a native of Halifax, residing at 161 Bennington street, East Boston. The names of the lost as far as can be ascertained are: Capt. Thomas Fay, Bernard Dacy, Thos. Stapleton, Michael Melvin, Thos. Powery, another Thos. Powery, Thos. Murphy, all natives of Newfoundland; Michael G. Garney, Boston; William Fisher, a Nova Scotian, one Ray, a native of Salmon River, N. S.; William Bailey and Barney Cachien, of Boston. There was also on board a Frenchman belonging to Yarmouth County, N. S., but his name and those of the balance of the crew are not known to the survivors.

The Boston was proceeding at a low speed at the time of the accident, and her whistle was kept blowing. The fog was very dense, and the schooner could not be seen or heard until she was struck. The Boston went right through her just aft of the main rigging, and the Fame sank within three minutes. The steamer was immediately stopped and boats were lowered. One boat was lost overboard by mishap, but two more were in the water immediately. The cook, Pitts, was found with a life buoy around him, while Clarke was swimming about. All the rest of the crew had gone down.

According to the survivors, who were seen this morning, the Fame left Boston four weeks ago Monday on a smack fishing trip. She then had twenty-three men on board. One of the men became sick and was landed at Boothby, and on Monday a dory containing two men whose names are unknown strayed from the vessel and were not seen again. It was the captain's intention to have started for home to-day. He had a fare of 100,000 lbs.

As the time of the collision there were only the captain and three men on deck. Nine were lying in the forecastle, and the balance were in the cabin. All in the forecastle reached the deck safely but it is the opinion of Pitts that nothing was known until the Boston went right through the vessel. Pitts says that when he rushed on deck he grabbed a life buoy and put it around him. The captain was standing near by, and Pitts told him to get a life buoy, but before he could do so the vessel went down. Pitts says he became entangled in the rigging and was carried a long way down. Finally, he extricated himself, and when he came to the surface he saw four of his comrades in the water, but they all sank almost immediately. He kept himself afloat until picked up by a boat from the steamer.

Clarke told substantially the same story. He was in the forecastle at the time of the accident, and just as he reached the deck the vessel went down. Being a strong swimmer he was able to keep himself afloat for half an hour before he was picked up. Both men were thoroughly exhausted on the arrival of the steamer. They are being looked after by United States Consul Fleming.

The Fame will be remembered as the schooner which was quarantined at Shelburne N. S., for smallpox a short time ago. Subsequently she was taken to Halifax, from which place a crew of amateur yachtsmen took her to Boston.

She was long overdue on the trip, but finally arrived safely. Capt. McKenzie, of steamer Boston, says the accident occurred 104 miles east of Boston Light. It was very foggy and dark. The ship was going at moderate speed. They did not see lights until 200 feet from the schooner, and immediately reversed the engines, but it was too late to avoid collision. The steamer stayed in the neighborhood for some time after the accident.

Little Acts of Kindness

"I sometimes think we women nowadays are in danger of being too busy to be really useful," said an old lady thoughtfully. "We hear so much about making every minute count, and always having some work of course of study for spare hours, and having our activities all systematized, that there is no place left for small wayside kindnesses. We go to see the sick neighbor and relieve the poor neighbor, but for the common, everyday neighbor, who has not fallen by the way, so far as we can see, we haven't a minute to spare. But everybody who deeds a cup of cold water isn't calling the fact out to the world; and there are a great many little pauses by the way which are no waste of time.

"The old-fashioned exchange of garden flowers over the back fence and friendly chats about domestic matters helped to brighten weary days, and brought more cheer than many a sermon. "We ought not to be too busy to inquire for the girl away at school, or to be interested in the letter from the boy at sea. It is a comfort to the mother's lonely heart to feel that somebody else cares for that which means so much to her. Especially we ought not to be too busy to give and receive kindnesses in our home. May no one be able to say of us that we are too busy to be kind."

How to Test Your Kidneys

If any of your family have been troubled with kidney disease make a test of the urine and satisfy yourself whether you need a good remedy before the disease has caused serious complications.

To-morrow morning put some urine in a glass or bottle and let it stand for twenty-four hours. If it shows particles or germs floating about, is milky or cloudy, or contains a reddish sediment, then your kidneys are diseased.

Commence at home to take Ferrozone to arrest these unnatural conditions. Ferrozone is especially intended for the immediate relief and cure of kidney and bladder troubles and its health-giving properties will be felt at once in new blood healthy circulation, renal strengthening of the system. Ferrozone quickly corrects urinal disorders, headache, and pain in the back. It improves the appetite, digests the food, makes the nervous system, makes them strong and enduring, and fits one for lots of hard work.

Don't be misled by cheap, so-called kidney cures offered by dealers for the sake of extra profits. There is only one safe and reliable specific for Kidney, Bladder Liver and urinal troubles, and its name is Ferrozone.

Get a point blank to accept a substitute, and insist on your druggist supplying 'Ferrozone'; price 50c. per box at all dealers.

When Lovers Quarrel

Speaking of lovers' quarrels, a clever woman remarked that when the "little rift within the lute" threatens it is the man who is the more fitted to mend it.

"It is a man's place to woo and win, and it is his place, too, to take the initiative when a quarrel has to be healed up. The man who treats a quarrel with his sweetheart in the same way as he would a quarrel with another man errs terribly, for men have a code involving reason, logic and precedent, in which women can have no part.

"Women are usually willing to be forgiven; but they cannot bear to be blamed, and they resent censure even when guilty.

"Moreover, when a woman is in the wrong, and disposed to atone for her fault, she has a way of walking round an apology and considering it made—a weakness which exasperates the foolish man and amuses the wise one. When scolded, she tries to justify herself to her own conscience, and perhaps ends by believing herself in the right. Yet, if she were gently but tactfully made to understand that she had given pain to her lover, she would be only too anxious to make amends."

Fixing Boundary Near Campobello

Engineers from Ottawa and Washington have for the past few days been engaged in the vicinity of Campobello surveying the boundary line between New Brunswick and Maine or rather the extension of it from the coast line outward. The prospect of the increasing importance of Campobello owing to the interest taken in this and other islands by a number of United States capitalists has led the State departments of the two countries to this action. provisional and Mr. J. B. Challias, of Ottawa, has been sent down to work with an engineer from Washington. The boundary following the St. Croix River takes a devious course through the channel beyond Eastport. There is no dispute between the two countries as to its exact location but there is a desire to have it accurately fixed in order that there may be no trouble later over fishing rights. Some time ago Mr. H. Morton Merriman of Boston, interested a number of other capitalists in a summer resort scheme and having taken over the charter of an old company he reorganized the Campobello Corporations Limited. This company has bought out about nine-tenths of Campobello Island and intends booming the place in the interests of tourist trade. The company will also go in for fishing on a rather extensive scale and will in the near future operate all the hotels on the Island. The old Owen House will be open for the present summer but the two other large hotels will not be started until next year.

Owen Sound Man
Kills his Family
Owen Sound, Ont., May 26.—James F. Creighton of this town called through a window of his house to some neighbors tonight at 6 o'clock that he had killed his family and shot himself and on entering the house the neighbors found the news true.

Creighton had a bullet wound in the eye that may kill him. His wife was found with her throat cut and a shooting tied around her neck. His two step-daughters, Katherine and Clare Chapman, beautiful and highly respected young women, aged eighteen and sixteen years respectively, were found backed and shot to death. The murderer is probably insane.

Maxims for Those Who are Married

Begin well and end better.
If you give and take no heart will break.

Confession of a fault makes half amends.
Silence is often the golden key of happiness.
Trust in Providence, but keep the kettle boiling.

Make no display of the sacrifices you make for each other.
Never deceive; confidence once lost can never be wholly regained.
Don't both be angry at the same time; it takes two to make a quarrel.
An angry speech never with anger meet.

Bitterness dies before a temper sweet.
Avoid "touchiness" and cultivate cheerfully the give-and-take spirit.
Always remember it is better to hear the laughter of children than to see a tidy room.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Mr. James O'Neill will place curbing in front of his lot on Main St.

New steps have been erected at Dr. Wilson's office. Mr. Robt. Gray did the work.

Sheriff Stuart has a crew of men at work in his greenstone porphyry quarry at Steen Lake.

Mr. A. Gilmour, who is employed in the Pulp mill, is occupying the residence of Mrs. D. McAdam.

A new platform has been placed in front of O'Brien & Gilmour's store on Main street. Capt. Milligan did the work.

Among the graduates in book-keeping at Mount Allison commercial college this term are Crawford O. Guphill and Scott D. Guphill of Grand Mann and Miss Bessie M. Hanson of Bonabec. Miss Rose Ella Smiley of Milltown was a graduate in typewriting and stenography.

During the electrical storm that passed over this section Tuesday evening, lightning struck the greenhouse of J. R. Sederquist at the cemetery, breaking a hundred lights of glass, burning out the telephone, and drilling a hole in the ground down which a man can put his arm its full length.—Courier.

The death occurred on Thursday evening at Stellarton, N. S., of Mrs. Ellen Mooney, relict of John Mooney. Mrs. Mooney had been ill for some time. Besides Mrs. Gilroy, a daughter, at Stellarton, she leaves five sons, John, in St. George, N. B.; Dan, of the Acadia Coal Company's office staff, and Joseph, a merchant of Stellarton; Ben in Boston, and Andrew, manager of the Bank of N. S. at Saskatoon, Sask.

St. Stephen, N. B., May 27.—At a meeting of citizens held last evening preliminary steps were taken towards the holding of a three days carnival here September 7th, 8th and 9th. Committees were appointed to draft a programme of field and water sports, horse racing and firemen's tournament to submit to a citizen's meeting to be held next Tuesday evening. Generous financial support is assured and the people of New Brunswick and Maine can count on three big days in the border town.

The following committee were named at a meeting of the citizens of St. Stephen, to prepare a program for the three days sports to be held at the Border Town, Sept. 7th, 8th and 9th.

Herman Wry, N. Marks Mills and Frank Holt, representing the Thistles; J. W. Richardson, E. H. Barter, and Hugh Love, representing the park. A. A. Laffin, Bert Nesbitt and Walter Connors, representing the firemen. Walter S. Stevens, A. L. Bradley, G. P. Ryder, W. W. Clarke and W. F. Nicholson, representing the town.

The St. John Globe tells M. R. C. of St. George how to grow Dahlias:

Dahlias can be grown from seed quite as easily as the snapdragon, only you do not know what sort you will get, as seedlings range from single to double, with all colors and shadings.

Sow the seed in a shallow box in light soil as soon as possible; cover lightly with firm soil and keep quite moist and out of the direct sunlight. A pane of glass over the box assists in keeping an even moisture; this should be removed, however, as soon as the plants appear. Transplant into three inch pots or into boxes as soon as large enough to handle, from whence they can go into the ground as soon as well rooted.

It is understood that the line of the New Brunswick Southern Railway will be extensively improved during the coming season. Although the Canadian Pacific Railway has virtually acquired the line it is still operated under the name of New Brunswick Southern. In spite of this fact C. P. R. engineers and other employees have looked the Shore Line over and have determined on many improvements. It is said that a steam shovel and other apparatus, now in use on the C. P. R. near Welsford will early in June, be taken to Bonny River, on the N. B. Southern and there will be used in ballasting and raising the track. Several new culverts are also to be built in the vicinity of Bonny River.

The operating of the N. B. Southern under its former name and not as part of the C. P. R., is said to enable the latter corporation to save a considerable amount in wages as the majority of the train hands, section men, etc., on the Shore Line, are paid at lower rates than if they were employed on the C. P. R. The railway organizations, however, are endeavoring to bring the N. B. S. R. employees into their membership.—Sun.

Miss Bessie Barry and Mr. Embury Paul will be married at the home of the bride's mother, Beaver Harbor, on Thursday, Miss Barry has the best wishes of Greetings, and readers of Greetings everywhere will wish the bright and happy writer of Beaver Harbor notes in our paper, a long and prosperous married life.

The Provincial Legislature prorogued Saturday after one of the shortest sessions on record. Government measures were not of a contentious character and were carried practically without debate. The Highway Act, and Audit Act, the Workmen's Compensation Act, the agricultural Commission Act—and the Act providing for a Commission to investigate the Central Railway purchase and constructions were the only bills that excited much comment.

Rev. Mr. Buchanan administered Baptism to ten young people on Sunday morning. In the evening the formal reception into the church took place and Rev. Mr. Buchanan extended the right hand of fellowship to the new members, who were: Laura Spofford, Ethel Spinney, Hazel Stuart, Ida Maxwell, Ella Armstrong, Helen Greason, Laura Spinney, Blanche Hickey, Chip Greason and Earl Spinney.

On Sunday next Mr. Buchanan will be in Fairville, attending a district meeting of the church.

The Smith & Young Granite Manufacturing Co. has been organized at Red Beach, the members of the new concern being Frank B. Smith, Fred C. Smith, H. H. Smith and Chas. D. Young, all well known residents of Red Beach and skilled workers in stone. The company purchased the polishing mill and stone-cutting business carried on for several years by O. S. Tarbox and hope to enlarge the output of the plant. F. B. Smith will be manager of the stonecutting works with Chas. D. Young as assistant, and H. H. Smith will have charge of the polishing department, assisted by Fred C. Smith. Many friends of the firm wish for it success.

The Presbytery of St. John met in the St. George Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening, May 26th for the purpose of inducting Rev. E. Thorpe as pastor.

The Presbytery was constituted with prayer by the Moderator, Rev. H. Reid. After briefly relating the circumstances which led up to this meeting, the Moderator proceeded with the induction asking the Pastor the usual questions from the Presbyterian Blue Book. Rev. Mr. Gibson then addressed the Minister basing his remarks on Paul's Exhortation to Timothy, after which Rev. Hunter Boyd of Waweig, addressed the people. After a few remarks from Rev. Mr. Reid the meeting closed, Rev. E. Thorpe pronouncing the Benediction. A short reception took place at the close of the service, the congregation extending a cordial welcome to their new Pastor.

Messinets Ledge, Lake Eutopia in days gone by, was a famous spot for fishing and to the older generation, the Campbell Rock Road was as familiar as the way to South Boston. It is not so now and there are those who can tell of a wearisome journey, starting at the entrance of the Campbell Rock Road winding through a wood path wide and dry, over stumps and into clearings where signs of the woodman's axe abounded, into woods where trees and branches shut out the sun, through tangled under-brush hard on the face and eyes, into mires, swamps and thick swall where straggling branches twined lovingly into one's hair, out away beyond the meadow road—nowhere, with water, water every where and the dancing waves of Eutopia out of sight. Yes it is a great trip now to Messinets Ledge one that with a genial guide, is worthy of trial by any ambitious lovers of Isaac Watton's sport.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

A Grain of Hope

It began at an afternoon party where, as usual, people were feeling more or less bored and were getting on each other's nerves.

The rooms were too hot, to begin with, and everyone would congregate in the corner where the ice cream was served, so that the music room was quite deserted and the artists were annoyed to find themselves singing to half a dozen people only.

"I'm so sorry for our hostess," said Antoinette Bereny to the man who had just been introduced to her. "I'm afraid we're not treating her right. Don't you think we had better go and listen to a song?"

"I would rather not," he answered, "but I am at your command. Only will you do me a favor afterwards?"

She looked surprised.

"Certainly, if it is in my power. What is it?"

She was looking very pretty and cool in a green and white dress of crepe de chine, and there was an atmosphere of pleasant repose about Miss Bereny that people appreciated without analyzing it.

It had never occurred to her to marry anyone, though she had had plenty of chances. She was well off, she had no near relations, and she had reached the age of 33 while still possessing the charm of others and the interest in life which were hers at 26. She was neither a bachelor girl nor an old maid, but simply an unmarried woman who was eminently marriageable.

"I am the victim, or, rather, I suppose I should say the hero, of a romance," said the man, "and I have an intense yearning to tell some one about it. Will you let me confide in you?"

Antoinette laughed, and for the first time looked to see what manner of man this was.

A dark, clean shaven face, keen and strong, such as you find in lawyers and naval officers; a tall, well built figure, a rather stern voice and manner redeemed at times as at this moment by a twinkle in the handsome eyes, and the ghost of a smile at the corners of the lips.

"First you must let me know your name," she said, "if you are going to tell me the story of your life. I didn't catch it when we were introduced."

"Gaston Laurent," he replied, "and I have just met my fate."

"Really?" Antoinette's amused glance swept over the crowd around them and rested on a girl with straight, clear-cut profile and dark hair, to whom she remembered Laurent had been talking just before they met.

"I see you are trying to guess who is the dea ex machina," he said, "but I want to begin from the beginning. Won't you let me off the song, Miss Bereny, and come over to the balcony with me?"

"It would be rather mean," Antoinette said, rather meekly; "we were asked to go to the music room."

"I know," he said, "but let us be selfish just for once and choose the balcony."

"And so you are romantic," Antoinette asked when they were seated in a shady corner.

"Not at all by temperament," he assured her, "but I have become so lately. I saw a lady at a concert and felt so attracted by her that I paid no further attention to the music. Since then fate has willed that we should often be quite close to each other, in the street, in a room at an entertainment, and the attraction has grown with each meeting so that when I have received an invitation lately, I have said to myself, 'I wonder if she will be there?' She with a capital letter! But we have never been introduced under a favorable opportunity occurred, and the thing is done."

"And you feel that your fate is sealed?"

Antoinette began to be interested, for, though his tone was easy and unconcerned, there was something—she could not tell what—which seemed to show he was in earnest.

"For better or for worse—yes," he said. "I am sure she is my alter ego, the one woman in the world for me; but she may not have the same feeling. In fact, I know for certain that she has no feeling of any sort about me, and no consciousness of ever having met me before. So my only hope is to see her constantly, and that is not so easy as it sounds. For, with the exception of our hostess, we have no mutual friends—that I am aware of at whose house we might meet."

"Oh, yes," Antoinette said hastily, "I know Mlle. Marny quite well. She is coming to lunch with me next week."

"Is she?" he said eagerly. "And you will ask me, too? But that is too good of you."

"Not at all. I shall be very pleased. Romance deserves encouragement in these prosaic days. She is a charming girl, Elise Marny. I have known her quite a long time. We might go to the Salon afterwards. Vicount Pierre de Ronceval is coming, so that shall be a partie carree."

She rose to go, and extended her hand with a smile of encouragement to him.

The theatre party went well at the beginning, for the fourth man was a steady going, middle-aged member of the chamber, a widower with pronounced views and Antoinette monopolized him in order to give the romance freedom.

Yes, it presently seemed as if something had gone wrong. Elise Marny was distinctly initiating the widower in the early stage of the art of flirtation, while Laurent, whose feelings were no doubt hurt, betrayed a desire to take refuge from her neglect to Antoinette.

In distressed Antoinette very much. "It is charming of you to take it so well," she murmured to Laurent when he begged the privilege of driving home with her, "but of course you mustn't let it become a real quarrel. You must insist on seeing Mlle. Marny home."

"But she has already arranged that our honorable and worthy friend should be her escort. I should not like to upset her plans."

A moment later Mlle. Marny settled the point herself by departing with the widower, and her good-bye to Laurent was decidedly chilly.

As Antoinette drove with him towards Boulevard St. Germain she was trying to think of appropriate words, trying to console this blighted lover; but she found it difficult, that when they had reached the house she had said nothing, and could only endeavor to convey her sympathy by a lingering handshake.

"May I come in for a moment?" he said. "I have something important to say to you."

"Poor fellow!" she reflected. "He is wretched and may be going to do something desperate. I must persuade him to be calm."

So she gave a gracious consent. "I have been looking forward to this evening more than I can say," Laurent began. "Will it bore you if I refer to my romance?"

She turned to him with tears of earnestness shining in her eyes.

"Of course, it will not bore me," she assured him. "I cannot express to you how sorry I feel, how sincerely I sympathize with you. But I think that Mlle. Marny—"

He interrupted by taking her hand. "Why should we talk about Mlle. Marny?" he said while the smile and the twinkle in his eye transformed his face. "I would so much rather talk about you, Antoinette."

She was so astonished that for a moment she couldn't speak, and he drew her a little nearer to him by the passive hand he held.

"I can't wait any longer," he said. "I very nearly told you I loved you that first day on the balcony, but I didn't venture because I was afraid I would lose my chance. It has seemed an eternity since then, and to tell you the truth, I was getting so bored with Mlle. Marny that I'm afraid I showed it. Antoinette—I have loved you from the first moment I saw you. Don't send me away."

"But it can't be true. It must be a mistake. You told me—"

"I told you the truth," he said and took her other hand. "And you, with your lack of egotism, decided that my ideal must be Mlle. Marny. Antoinette—how could it be anyone but you? Don't you understand that my life would not be worth living without you? Can't you care a little bit for me?"

She did not answer, for she was still too much amazed both at him and at herself to be able to speak, but he read something that encouraged him in her eyes, for he lifted her hands up to his shoulders and, bending, said softly:

"If there is a grain of hope for me, Antoinette, give me one kiss."

And Antoinette did.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Largest Clock in the World

So much has been said of the great clocks of Europe, that if asked to find the largest clock in the world, one's first impulse would be to look for it among the cathedrals abroad. A number of years ago, the Philadelphia City Hall clock with its 25-foot dials wrested the laurels from London's Westminster clock, which has 22-2-foot dials. Only the other day it was reported that a 25-foot dial clock would be placed in the tower of the Metropolitan Life Building; and now a new record has just been made by the clock which surmounts Colgate and Company's soap and perfume factory at Jersey City. Not only is this clock larger than any other in the world, but it has established a class of its own, because its dial area is more than twice as large as that of its nearest competitor. Possibly mention should be made of the great clock of Mechlin, Belgium, which is said to have a dial of 37 feet diameter, but it is hardly fair to make any comparison between this crude mechanism, with its single hand to mark off the hours, and the perfect timepieces of to-day. But even the Mechlin clock is surpassed by the Colgate clock. The dial of the latter measures 38 feet in diameter by day and 40 feet by night; that is, the lights which serve for the hour marks at night are set beyond the periphery of the day time dial, and form a circle of 40 feet extreme diameter.

Some conception of the enormous proportions of this clock may be had from the accompanying photographs of the hands. The hour hand, which is shown supported by sixteen men, measures 15 feet from end to end and is 3 feet 10 inches at its greatest width, while the minute hand has an overall dimension of 20 feet, and with its counterpoise weighs 640 pounds. Every half minute the tip of this hand moves 11-1/2 inches, and in the course of a day it covers a distance of more than half a mile. The hands are made of copper sheet metal, secured to a brass frame and stiffened by means of brass trusswork. The copper sheathing is painted black with a sand surface, so that there can be no reflection of light to confuse the observer in reading the time. To lessen the wind pressure, the dial is made of 6-inch pine boards spaced three inches apart. In place of numerals, coffin-shaped strokes of black 5-1/2 feet long are used. In large tower clocks it is found unnecessary to use the usual Roman numerals, as they cannot be read at any great distance. It is probable that few persons who have looked at the Westminster clock or that at Philadelphia are aware that the dials bear no numerals. At night the dial face will be illuminated by a ring of incandescent lamps, each minute mark will be indicated by a 4-candle-power lamp, and at the hour mark 96-candle-power will be used in red lanterns. The hands will be outlined with electric lights, forty 4-candle-power lamps being used on the minute hand, and 34 on the hour hand. The current will be supplied to these lamps by means of carbon brushes bearing against copper contact rings.

The making of a large tower clock involves more of a problem than mere proportions. As the dial will not be incased in glass, the hands are exposed to all changes of the weather, and yet they must keep time with the precision of a chronometer. The Seth Thomas Clock Company, which is making this huge clock, guarantees that the gigantic, unwieldy hands, weighing together more than half a ton, will not vary six seconds a week from the correct time, and it is probable that even this accuracy will far exceed.

The Colgate clock will be driven directly by a mechanical clock train. The clock mechanism comprises two separate movements; one, the "time train" or master clock, serves to keep accurate time, while the other, known as the remontoir train, is controlled by the time train, and acts to drive the hands of the clock.

The two trains are mounted on a bed four feet long. In our illustration of the movements the time train is shown at the right, and its office is to release the remontoir train every 30 seconds. The time train rotates a crown wheel, indicated at A. The remontoir movement carries a lever B, formed with a tooth at its outer end, which is adapted to bear against the teeth of the crown wheel. As the latter revolves, the lever B enters between the teeth of the crown wheel, and strikes against the inner face of a tooth at the opposite side of the crown wheel. Here the lever is held in check for fifteen seconds, until the crown wheel revolves sufficiently to permit it to pass out. This releases the remontoir movement, and the lever swings around on its axis until it strikes the under side of the crown wheel again, where it is held in check as before. Every half-minute the remontoir train is thus released, and at each release the hour hand is moved half a minute. A fan C serves to govern the motion of the remontoir movement and prevent the lever B from striking the crown wheel with a sharp blow. This fan causes the lever to occupy about seven seconds in making its sweep from the release position back to the under-side of the crown wheel.

The average in having two separate movements to drive the clock is that one acts as a relay for the other. The remontoir movement, which drives the hands directly, is operated by a weight of over 1,100 pounds. This heavy weight should be enough to overcome any jar of vibration of the hands caused by a high wind. The time train or master clock is operated by a weight of but 600 pounds, and this permits a more delicate movement. In case of accident to the hands, if, for instance, they should be frozen fast together, or if the lights should need repairing, they could be stopped without disturbing the master clock, which would continue to keep perfect time, and after the repairs were made, the hands could be reset to correspond with the small dial of the master clock.

The form of escapement used on the Colgate clock is similar to that invented by Sir Edmund Becket for use on the famous Westminster clock, and is known as Denison's couple, three-legged gravity escapement. It consists of two very light arms or gravity pallets, which alternately give the pendulum a gentle push and thus keep it swinging. The arms are partly withdrawn before the advancing pendulum by the clock train, and when overtaken by the pendulum they are released, and falling with pendulum on the return stroke serve to give the latter the necessary impulse. The accompanying diagram will give a clear idea of the operation of this escapement. The two gravity arms are indicated at D, suspended on separate pivots E, and fitted with roller beat pins F at their lower ends. The clock movement operates to locking plates G, each formed with three legs. Three pins H connect the two plates, and are adapted to engage the projecting fingers J of the gravity arms just after it has been pushed to the left by one of the pins H. The locking plates are prevented from further rotation by a stop K on this arm, which engages one of the legs of the plate. The pendulum rod is swinging in the direction of the arrow,

Bay Rum Jag Killed Them

Moncton, May 26.—"We the undersigned jurymen, empaneled to inquire into the cause of the death of Mary Noel, (Indian squaw) and Oliver Guinness, (Indian) which took place at Moncton, May 25, 1908, after hearing the evidence of Doctors White and Harris, and other witnesses, find that the above named Mary Noel and Oliver Guinness, deceased came to their death by drinking the contents of a bottle, marked 'A' in court, and said to have contained bay rum.

"We further state that we deeply deplore the loose sale of drugs by certain druggists in this city, and also a substitute made up to take the place of liquors and in the interest of humanity and for the sake of our Christian civilization, we would recommend that all druggists in our city would refrain from selling bay rum or kindred liquors to indians or squaws to use as a beverage or for anything.

"We consider that the evidence adduced at this inquest reveals a clear case of poisoning, and we deeply regret that it should occur in this city which boasts of having an almost prohibitory law in full force and effect."

(Signed) "C. Bruce McDougall, foreman; G. T. Wortman, Patrick Powell, J. J. Crossman, Thos. Belliveau, Edmond Borque, Duncan McKinnon."

This was the verdict returned by the coroner's jury empaneled to inquire into the death of the Indians whose tragic ending was reported in to-day's Telegraph.

Evidence was given by Thos. Mense, son of the dead squaw, Dr. Steeves, druggist; Drs. White and Harris, who were called to attend deceased, Everett Cook and Hinton West, drug clerks, and Levi Paul, an Indian who boarded at Noels. The evidence went to show that Guinness purchased at different times from different clerks, in Dr. Steeves' drug store, Saturday afternoon, a twelve ounce bottle and a six ounce bottle of bay rum.

Collodium alcohol is used in the preparation and Dr. White gave the opinion that the quantity purchased was sufficient to kill.

The drug clerks said while the quantity asked for surprised them yet they had no suspicion it was wanted for consumption.

The squaw accompanied Guinness' both times he was in the drug store and took a drink of soda water each time.

The clerks were asked if there was more call for alcoholic preparations since the Scott Act was so rigidly enforced, but replied in the negative.

Daring Attempted Robbery in Crowded New York Street

New York, N. Y., May 26.—In broad daylight and in one of the most densely populated portions of the city, three men late yesterday made a daring attempt to hold up and rob a trio of bank messengers, as they were carrying $43,000 in cash from one of the bank's branches to its main building. Black pepper was showered upon the messengers, one of them was hit with a blackjack, and another slashed with a knife, in the desperate effort of their assailants to seize the money and to escape with it before the arrival of assistance. That they failed to get clear with the valises filled with coin and bills which the bank employees were carrying, was due to the stubbornness with which the messengers resisted the attack and to the bravery of a young Polish waitress in a nearby resident, who so impeded the leader of the attacking trio that he was easily captured by two policemen who came to the rescue.

The messengers were employees of the Jefferson Bank and were on their way from the branch at Clifton and Houston streets to the main bank on Canal street. While on First street, three men jumped upon them and threw pepper in their faces. The leading assailant attacked Samuel Edelman, who carried the bulk of the money, grabbing his money bag and attempting to run with it. The other assailants directed their efforts at Joseph H. Velsor and Abraham Stern, the other messengers. Edelman tried to shake his assailant off but was fared badly from their pummeling when Mrs. Eva Javornicka, a waitress in a First street restaurant window, ran out of the door and grabbed the leader of the attacking band by the arm. She clung to him and screamed so loudly for help that a patrolman came running up, frightening the other two men away and was right at the heels of the man who had attacked Edelman by the time he had managed to shake himself free from the woman. The fugitive was chased into the arms of another policeman before he had run a block.

The prisoner, the messengers and the money, which the messengers had managed to retain intact, were all taken to a police station, where Edelman's assailant was locked up, and the injuries of the messenger were given attention. Velsor, whom one of the triad had hit with a blackjack, was found to have abdominal injuries, a depression of the skull from a blow, probably with the same instrument besides injuries to the eyes from black pepper. Edelman had knife slashes on the wrists and Stern was nearly blinded from the pepper.

The money, of which $30,000 was in bills and the remainder in gold and silver was turned over to a bank official who, this time, carried it in a closed carriage. As the main attack was made on Edelman who carried the bills, the police believe the robbery was planned by some one who knew the bank's method of making its daily transfers from branch to main office.

The man arrested gave his name as Caimo Riccobono, a plasterer. The police, while looking tonight for the two men who escaped and their possible confederates, arrested Riccobono's father, Giovanni Riccobono and his two brothers, Salvatori and Damiano Riccobono. They are held as suspects for a further examination.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pains anywhere, has its cause in congestion, pain in blood pressure—nothing else usually. All that, says Dr. Shoop, and he has proved it in a little pink tablet. That tablet is Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets. These blood pressure away from pain centers, double blood pressure, immediately radiates outwardly, it simply equalizes the blood circulation.

"ALL DEALERS"

not be for some time Col. Gibson is not the only name mentioned in connection with the office. Among other names mentioned is that of Sir Richard Cartwright, who on account of his long and distinguished services to Canada and more particularly to Ontario, is almost certain to have, as a matter of courtesy, the highest place in the province offered to him. The success of other aspirants for the place will, therefore, largely depend whether Sir Richard decides to continue the active work of a Cabinet Minister, or to accept the more dignified and less arduous post as Governor of Ontario.

Pity This Poor Girl.
Growing fast—yes, into weakness, but without strength. Tired of course she is—pale and thin too. She doesn't eat enough and digests far too little. This condition is so common, but how seldom noticed even by fond parents. Give her Ferronine, a woman's water her appetite improve—see her cheeks and lips grow ruddy—watch her spirits rise. This gain is simply the result of eating and digesting enough, and thereby nourishing blood, brain and nerves. To a woman Ferronine restores strength she has lost—to a girl it brings strength perhaps she never knew. You'll try Ferronine, O.K. at all dealers.

Wise Words to Girls
The girl who desires to make a good wife must know something of the practical side of life: and if she does not possess this knowledge she must learn. Leave love and romance out of your reckoning altogether. It may cover a good many faults and help you over some styles at the beginning of your married life; but, after the first glamor has worn off, then the real trials will begin.

Only the practical girl will surmount these trials. She it is who will be able to make home bright and happy when a curried income necessitates economy; who will be able to help her husband as well as console him when troubles arise, and who will prove the most successful mother by knowing exactly how to manage her children.

Every girl should ask herself this question: "Am I training myself for the duties of a wife?" It is no good frittering away your time in making the best of your appearance if you do not improve your mind. Men of today do not want to marry dolls, they want a wife who can cook, sew and manage servants; not a drawing-room ornament.

You can either be the guiding star and helpmate of a man's life, or you can be a clog and a hindrance, dragging him to failure. So, when you are building your castles in the air, add a practical touch to your day-dreams by asking yourselves: "How am I preparing myself for this happy dream, should it come true? Am I training myself to fit this vocation properly?"

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Since the slight depression in the lumber and granite markets, many of our people are inclined to be pessimistic over the future outlook of the country, and see blue rain in everything.

Undoubtedly lumbermen, quarrymen and such have at present some little cause for concern, and the farmer is having his innings. He can obtain the highest prices for his produce, and the over-fel manufacturing market makes very little difference to him who can always raise enough for his own immediate needs. The mechanics and operators in our quarries and mills, and business men are the worst off.

Reduced time for workmen at reduced wages means less money to spend in trade, and we all must be fed even if we have not the wherewithal to pay, and the merchants are the sufferers.

Notwithstanding this little depression we believe the future promises a golden harvest. It is generally conceded that the coming elections in the United States are the cause of depression in manufacturing circles, and after nomination soon to take place is over, the wheel will take another turn, and the busy hives of industry now depressed will boom up larger and more prosperous than ever.

It may be that with the present conditions politically have some effect upon manufacture and commerce, but the shadow is not blue rain but increased prosperity will loom up to cheer. It is always darkest just before the dawn of another and brighter day.

It is expected that the government will bring down a measure to make the selling of cigarettes to minors, a criminal offence. At present all the provinces except Quebec and Manitoba, have passed laws against selling cigarettes to minors, but the law is, to a large extent, a dead letter, and it is thought that by incorporating a provision in the criminal code of Canada and still leaving the enforcement of the law, as at present, in the hands of the Provincial authorities, there would be a more adequate combatting of the greatest evil complained of in connection with cigarettes.

Six years ago a bill was signed by the granite manufacturers and the cutters. Yesterday the bill ran out and owing to the inability of the employers and employees to reach an agreement work was suspended in all the granite mills. The cutters are asking an eight hour day and pay every two weeks, this the manufacturers refuse to grant. It is claimed by the men that the eight hour day is general all over Canada, in the granite business, that conditions are such that this demand can easily be granted by the employers, that a five months notice was given the manufacturers, according to agreement and that therefore they are not responsible for present conditions. The manufacturers claim that competition is so keen that any advance in wages at present is impossible, that the business can not stand it and that they are now paying all the business will stand.

The act known as the "workingmen compensation act" passed the house last week. One of the amendments is as follows: "Workmen," excluding persons engaged in granite working, or a person employed as a clerk in an office or store, or as a seaman or fisherman, and also to amend the section so as to make it provide that where the injury is caused to a workman by reason of his own willful act with intent to cause personal injury, or by his own neglect or carelessness or disobedience to the rules of his employer posted in a prominent position in the works, or where the injury is caused to such workmen by reason of the malicious act or neglect of the fellow workmen.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson was re-nominated by a largely attended convention of Liberals of Westmorland at Moncton on Monday last. His platform is one of progress, favoring the extension of the I. C. R. and the Absorption of Branch Lines.

New Brunswick's

Terrible Crime

News of a terrible tragedy comes from Bangor. I. Gideon Keith, a native of Kings County, N. B., after killing Mrs. Elizabeth Ready ended his own life with a bullet through his brain.

The murdered woman had been courted some time by Keith, but she refused to marry him, because he was a Protestant and she a Catholic who had been divorced from her second husband.

The tragedy occurred at Mrs. Ready's home at 186 Washington street. A remarkable feature of the affair is that neither Mrs. Ready's children, nor other occupants of the house heard any pistol shots fired.

The Sun learns that Mr. Keith has several relatives in Fredericton. He is an uncle of Bliss A. Keith, who was manager of the Arctic Rink in that city. Other relatives in Fredericton are Elmer Keith, employed with the Intercolonial Correspondence School, and a Mr. Keith who used to keep a grocery store on Northumberland street.

NOTICE

A Pie Social and Dance will be held in Boscawen Hall, Tuesday evening, June 9th. Music by Prof. Mooney.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayter Reed, came in on the noon train on Saturday last. They were guests at the Tea, over Sunday, and Monday arranged the alterations and improvements at the Algonquin.

E. A. Smith of St. John visited his sister Mrs. Everett Sunday and Monday last, and enjoyed some Lake fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Vroom of St. Stephen, have been among recent visitors of St. Andrews.

The "Oak Leaf" took a merry party of excursionists to St. Stephen on Victoria Day.

Mrs. Fox of New York, is the guest of Mrs. Wm. Sheehan.

Mrs. M. N. Cockburn, entertained a few friends on Thursday evening in honor of her guest Mrs. Narpe.

Miss Martha Osborne, spent the week-end very pleasantly at Grand Manan.

Pro. Penhallow has taken a run up to Ottawa, on business connected with the biological station.

Mrs. E. A. Cockburn entertains this (Friday) evening.

Rev. A. W. Mahon, has returned from Fredericton, where he has been delivering lectures before the Teachers Association upon Canadian Dramatists.

Among this weeks visitors have been Mr. and Mrs. John Wade of St. John, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Merritt, Houlton Me-Miss (Shaw Caribou, Chas. Howard Fredericton, Wm. Howard, Brownville Junction, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson St. John, and fishing inspector Calder.

Miss Margaret Kerr, is visiting friends in Boston.

Mr. Ferguson and family are to spend the summer at Miss Trinsdell's cottage.

Senator and Mrs. Gillmor arrived home yesterday.

James McKay visited Bampton in his speedy gasoline yacht, Black Prince, the first of the week.

Squire James McVicar of Back Bay was buried on Saturday. He was eight-nine years of age and well known in this end of the county.

Capt. Chas. Traynor of the Schr. Helen will sail from Beaver Harbor on Thursday for Apple River, Nova Scotia, where he will load lumber for New York.

Mrs. Gabe Craig and Mrs. George Craig were passengers on Tuesday's train for St. Stephen where they will meet Mrs. Johnson who is on her way home from Vancouver.

The first two of the large hard pine pieces in the roof of the new church, were placed in position on Tuesday. The sticks are of immense weight and the work of placing them is arduous.

David Archibald, who has for the past three years been employed by McGrattan & Sons left yesterday for Moncton. His wife and child will follow in a few days.

Walter Morrison is moving into the house vacated by D. Archibald.

Tenders for the building of the new annex to the school house were opened on Monday evening. Owing to the absence of some of the members of the school board the awarding of the work was laid over for a time.

The marriage of Miss Amy Dunbar and Mr. Westley Phillips took place on Tuesday morning at the rectory, Rev. H. I. Lynds performing the ceremony. Owing to sickness in the bride's family the wedding was quiet. The happy couple left on the morning train for New York where they will spend their honeymoon.

A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the station to wish them bon voyage.

The G. F. Hall Company under the management of Frank W. Nason gave an entertainment in Coult's Hall on Monday evening. The performance abounded in songs bright and catchy, dances, funny galsies and choruses, it was devoid of plot but full of fun from start to finish.

The singing was of a very high order, every member of the company possessing a voice of good range and pleasing. The quartette, Messrs. Hall, Jacobs, Harold and John Dunn, carried the audience by storm and were obliged to respond to many encores. Mr. Hall was exceedingly funny and captured every one present with his droll wit. "Won't you be my Baby boy," sung to one of the young men made a decided hit. The performance was good and clean and the company can be assured of a hearty welcome and a bumper house should they return to St. George.

The Martin - Senour 100 per cent PURE PAINT

Investigate Before You Buy In these days of sharp competition, it is well to know that you get what you pay for. There are so many brands of house paints on the market, now-a-days, advertised as "pure" (but little better than "dope") that a man ought to investigate what he intends to buy.

We suggest to those about to paint to make a practical test and convince themselves. Buy a small can of the Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint and one of any other brand with which you may have been favorably impressed, selecting about the same colors, and paint a few feet. Carefully measure the paint, so that you use no more of one than the other. Thus with the conditions the same, you can determine for yourself which paint has the better body or covering capacity; which is the easier brushing out and has the better finish. If you do not decide in favor of the Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint, our agent will return the money you paid for the can of Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint used in the experiment, and we will credit the same to him.

A Tall Woman

According to the Russian papers the village of Malo boasts among its few inhabitants a young lady of sweet seventeen who stands eight feet four inches on her "Tribbles," and turns the scale at twenty-four stones. And she is still growing! This is news calculated to make Miss Swan and "Maid Marian" turn in their graves; for neither of these ladies of many inches attained the stature of this Russian school-girl. As a child of eleven summers Miss Anna H. Swan, known so to fame as the Nova Scotia Giantess, measured exactly two yards, and when Captain Bates, the "Kentucky Giant," led her to the altar she was only an inch or two short of eight feet. About a dozen years later people were flocking to see "Marian," a young lady fresh from the Thuringian Mountains, who was appearing as the Amazon Princess in "Rabil and Bijou." Marian who was a girl of considerable beauty, unlike most of her elevated sisters, stood 8 feet 2 inches in height, and measured exactly ten feet from her somewhat expansive feet, to the summit of her plumed helmet.

A couple of years before Marian dazzled and impressed by her beauty and stature many had the pleasure of paying homage to a very charming little lady, Lucia Zarate, who hailed from Mexico. When Lucia came into the world she weighed but two and a half pounds; and at twelve months she had attained her full growth of twenty inches, and her maximum weight of four and three-quarter pounds. So tiny was she that if she had stood on Marian's shoulder, the giantess would still have been able to look down on her. Even on tiptoe she was no higher than "Tom Thumb's" elbow; while the average man could easily have put her in his overcoat pocket. Lucia was probably the tiniest person who has ever lived for even Andromeda, the little handmaid of Julia, niece of Augustus, was head and shoulders taller; while Annie Shepherd, a famous dwarf of the Stuart days, was relatively a giantess with her forty-two inches of stature. Lucia's nearest rival was, no doubt, the great "General Mite" with whom she was exhibited, and who was just three inches shorter than a two-foot measure.

To Cure Sniffing Colds

The easiest and pleasantest cure is "Catarrhose" which fills the nose, throat and lungs with healing balsams and pine-essences that kill a cold instantly. You experience a pleasant sensation of relief at once. Soreness, congestion and irritation leave the nose and throat, the head is cleared and every trace of cold or Catarrh is cured. Catarrhose is so sure, so pleasant, such a safe remedy for winter ills that you can't afford to do without it. Sold by all dealers, 25c and $1.00. Get Catarrhose to-day.

Of Interest to Women

Governor Hoch of Kansas has appointed a woman probate judge. Mrs. Mitchell the lady so honored, succeeds her husband who died in office, and is probably the first woman to serve in such a capacity. President Roosevelt has complimented the General Federation of Women's Club's by inviting its president, Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, to meet with the Governors of the States when they assemble in conference in Washington in the interests of conserving the natural resources of the country. The President thinks Mrs. Decker should be consulted on the subject of the preservation of our forests. Mrs. Decker will meet the governors on terms of political equality, since she is a citizen of Colorado, where women vote.

Miss Jessie Ackermann has reached London after her sixth tour around the world. She is reported as saying: "Since I was last in Australia women have got the franchise there. In the mining districts I found that the miners' wives took the keenest interest in political questions and were ready to talk politics intelligently, even at the wash tub."

The Democratic State Convention in Massachusetts almost broke up in a riot. No one argues from this that all men, or even all Democrats, ought to be disfranchised. But just suppose that any woman's association had got into such a quarrel that the police had to be called in to clear the platform! When a woman suffrage amendment in California was defeated by a close vote, some fourteen years ago, several California young women were so disappointed that they shed tears. Mr. Charles R. Saunders has been quoting this at the legislative hearings on woman suffrage in Massachusetts ever since, as a proof that women are too emotional to vote. Massachusetts suffragists are now saying that Mr. Saunders might find some stronger and more recent examples of emotional politics among his own sex, without going so far from home.

Weak women should try Dr. Shoop's Night Cure. These soothing, healing, antiseptic suppositories go direct to the seat of these weaknesses. My "Book No 4 For Women" contains many valuable hints to women, and it is free. Ask Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. to mail it. Ask the Doctor in strictest confidence, any questions you wish answered. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is sold by All Dealers.

Some Very Big Things

The largest city in the world is London which has a population equalling the combined populations of Paris, Berlin, St. Petersburg and Rome. Its streets, placed in a row, would reach round the world, leaving a bit over long enough to reach from London to San Francisco.

The largest cave in the world is the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky. Its length is ten miles, though to explore its avenues, grottoes, galleries, domes, rivers and cataracts would entail a journey of 150 miles.

The largest existing library is the National Library of Paris. It contains forty miles of shelves, holding fourteen hundred thousand books.

The largest room in the world, under one roof, and unbroken by pillars, is at St. Petersburg. It is 620 feet long and 150 feet wide. Its roof is a single arch of iron. This room is used for military displays, and a whole battalion can manoeuvre in it.

The longest canal in existence is the Imperial Canal of China. Its length is a thousand miles.

The largest sundial in the Universe is Hayou Horoo, a large promontory extending 3,000 feet above the Aegean Sea. In the course of each day the sun throws the shadow of this mountain on one after another of a circle of islands, which act as hour marks as surely as the figures on the ordinary dial.

Gardening Hints

Stir the soil occasionally to prevent "caking" of the surface. This surface-stirring lets in light and air to the roots.

Never allow weeds to grow in a garden as all plants have insects that feed on them, and these frequently leave the weeds for the cultivated plants; odd corners covered with grass and weeds, should be dug up and kept tidy, otherwise they are a perfect paradise for insects to breed in unmolested.

The sweet pea cannot attach itself very well to strings. It may seem to attempt climbing them, but the first rough wind that comes along will loosen the vines, and down they will slip. Brush—just plain brush, such as you cut from the trees in the orchard, or along the roadside when you give them annual pruning—suits the sweet pea better than anything else I have ever tried as a support. It may not be very attractive, at first, but as soon as the vines cover it, you will appreciate its merit, for a row of sweet peas trained over such a support is lovely in August.

Flower boxes on porches and windows may well contain galvanized pans, painted inside and out, two and one-half inches deep and an inch and a half longer and wider than the box itself. Rest the box on two half-inch-thick strips laid crosswise in the pan. Water liberally twice a week only. As the dripping fills the pan make use of a small rubber hose two or three feet long, to siphon surplus water into a pail. In time pour this water again on the plants, as it contains fertilizing strength that should be saved. Use a good bed of crushed stone gravel or well broken up crockery and have holes plentifully in the bottom for drainage. The deeper and wider boxes are made the better for desired results.

There is no reasonable excuse for any man to live in a town if he doesn't like it. If you have no word of commendation to say for your town, its institutions or people, emigrate. You won't stop the town clock by going away. The church bells will have the same musical ring, the little dogs will play just as well and the pure air, bright sunshine and sparkling water will have the same health-giving properties. Speak a good word for your neighbor, if you can; if you cannot, don't everlastingly enlarge on his faults. If you have become thoroughly disgruntled move away; go somewhere where things will suit you.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

D. BASSEN Lower Street St. George

We are beating all records made in Ladies Clothing and Furnishings.

So far this month our sales of ladies clothing and millinery has so far exceeded past records as to make comparison useless.

This means Something

Something to the ladies of St. George and surroundings of Charlotte County.

Something to those who want good styles in clothing and millinery.

Do you imagine our business is growing through luck, or simply because we want it to gain? Not a bit of it.

It is gaining because we are giving a better---far better value in all our lines. Especially in our ladies shirt waists and millinery at the present time.

What About Footwear

A person is never dressy unless they have a fine pair of shoes on. You can get them here at far less cost than elsewhere.

D. BASSEN

SPRING HATS

for the Ladies, Misses and Children

We have a fine stock of Spring Hats and Millinery Trimmings. Our Milliner starts work April 1st. We would like to have you examine our stock before buying elsewhere. The prices are very reasonable.

We also have our Spring Suits and Overcoats in the Piccadilly and Regent Brands. Two of the best.

Suits from $5.25 to $20.00
Overcoats from $5.00 to $15.75

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Mr. James O'Neill will place curbing in front of his lot on Main St.

New steps have been erected at Dr. Wilson's office. Mr. Robt. Gray did the work.

Sheriff Stuart has a crew of men at work in his greenstone porphyry quarry at Steen Lake.

Mr. A. Gilmore, who is employed in the Pulp mill, is occupying the residence of Mrs. D. McAdam.

A new platform has been placed in front of O'Brien & Gilmore's store on Main street. Capt. Milligan did the work.

Among the graduates in book-keeping at Mount Allison commercial college this term are Crawford O. Guphill and Scott D. Guphill of Grand Manan and Miss Bessie M. Hanson of Bonaville. Miss Rose Ella Smiley of Milltown was a graduate in typewriting and stenography.

During the electrical storm that passed over this section Tuesday evening, lightning struck the greenhouse of J. R. Seclerquest at the cemetery, breaking a hundred lights of glass, burning out the telephone, and drilling a hole in the ground down which a man can put his arm its full length.—Courier.

The death occurred on Thursday evening at Stellarton, N. S., of Mrs. Ellen Mooney, relict of John Mooney. Mrs. Mooney had been ill for some time. Besides Mrs. Orlow, a daughter, at Stellarton, she leaves five sons, John, in St. George, N. B.; Dan, of the Acadia Coal Company's office staff, and Joseph, a merchant of Stellarton; Ben in Boston, and Andrew, manager of the Bank of N. S. at Saskatoon, Sask.

St. Stephen, N. B., May 27.—At a meeting of citizens held last evening preliminary steps were taken towards the holding of a three days carnival here September 7th, 8th and 9th. Committees were appointed to draft a programme of field and water sports, horse racing and firemen's tournaments to submit to a citizen's meeting to be held next Tuesday evening. Generous financial support is assured and the people of New Brunswick and Maine can count on three big days in the border town.

The following committee were named at a meeting of the citizens of St. Stephen, to prepare a programme for the three days sports to be held at the Border Town, Sept. 7th, 8th and 9th. Herman Wry, N. Marks Mills and Frank Holt, representing the Thistles. J. W. Richardson, E. H. Barter, and Hugh Love, representing the park. A. A. Laffin, Bert Nesbitt and Walter Commins, representing the firemen. Walter S. Stevens, A. L. Bradley, G. Ryder, W. W. Clerke and W. F. Nicholson, representing the town.

The St. John Globe tells M. R. C. of St. George how to grow Dahlias: Dahlias can be grown from seed quite as easily as the snapdragon, only you do not know what sort you will get, as seedlings range from single to double, with all colors and shadings.

Sow the seed in a shallow box in light soil as soon as possible; cover lightly with firm soil and keep quite moist and out of the direct sunlight. A pane of glass over the box assists in keeping an even moisture; this should be removed, however, as soon as the plants appear. Transplant into three inch pots or into boxes as soon as large enough to handle, from whence they can go into the ground as soon as well rooted.

It is understood that the line of the New Brunswick Southern Railway will be extensively improved during the coming season. Although the Canadian Pacific Railway has virtually acquired the line it is still operated under the name of New Brunswick Southern. In spite of this fact C. P. R. engineers and other employees have looked the Shore Line over and have determined on many improvements. It is said that a steam shovel and other apparatus, now in use on the C. P. R. near Welsford will early in June, be taken to Bonny River, on the N. B. Southern and there will be used in ballasting and raising the track. Several new culverts are also to be built in the vicinity of Bonny River.

The operating of the N. B. Southern under its former name and not as part of the C. P. R., is said to enable the latter corporation to save a considerable amount in wages as the majority of the train hands, section men, etc., on the Shore Line, are paid at lower rates than if they were employed on the C. P. R. The railway organizations, however, are endeavoring to bring the N. B. S. R. employees into their membership.—Sun.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Papers from Pittsburg received at Greetings office, would indicate the arrival in St. George or vicinity some time during the summer of Coles Brothers great circus.

Schooner St. Anthony, Capt. W. J. Gates, is discharging coal, at A. C. Gilmors' wharf, in the cove. The Steamer Viking towed the schooner in on Friday last.

In buying a Ready Made suit it is to your advantage to see Hanson Bros. stock. They being tailors can make any little alterations necessary for a perfect fit. It costs you nothing as they will make the suit fit you and that means a lot in a Ready Made Suit.

In the list of survivors, of company no 1 St. George volunteers, living in this vicinity, given in our last issue, should have appeared, the name of Goodwin Sparks—who was an enthusiastic soldier and who recalls with pride the part he bore in the old company.

Miss Bessie Barry and Mr. Emory Paul will be married at the home of the bride's mother, Beaver Harbor, on Thursday. Miss Barry has the best wishes of Greetings, and readers of Greetings everywhere, will wish the bright and happy writer of Beaver Harbor notes in our paper, a long and prosperous married life.

The Provincial Legislature prorogued Saturday after one of the shortest sessions on record. Government measures were not of contentious character and were carried practically without debate. The Highway Act, and Audit Act, the Workmen's Compensation Act, the Agricultural Commission Act—and the Act providing for a Commission to investigate the Central Railway purchase and construction were the only bills that excited much comment.

Rev. Mr. Buchanan administered baptism to ten young people on Sunday morning. In the evening the formal reception into the church took place and Rev. Mr. Buchanan extended the right hand of fellowship to the new members, who were: Laura Spofford, Isabel Spinnney, Hazel Stuart, Ida Maxwell, Ella Armstrong, Helen Greason, Laura Spinnney, Blanche Hickey, and Elizabeth Spinnney.

On Sunday next Mr. Buchanan will be in Fairville, attending a district meeting of the church.

The Smith & Young Granite Manufacturing Co. has been organized at Red Beach, the members of the new concern being Frank B. Smith, Fred C. Smith, H. H. Smith and Chas. D. Young, all well known residents of Red Beach and skilled workers in stone. The company purchased the polishing mill and stone-cutting business carried on for several years by O. S. Tarbox and hope to enlarge the output of the plant. F. B. Smith will be manager of the stone-cutting works with Chas. D. Young as assistant, and H. H. Smith will have charge of the polishing department, assisted by Fred C. Smith. Many friends of the firm wish for it success.

The Presbytery of St. John met in the St. George Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening, May 26th for the purpose of inducting Rev. E. Thorpe as pastor. The Presbytery was constituted with prayer by the Moderator, Rev. H. Reid. After briefly relating the circumstances which led up to this meeting, the Moderator proceeded with the induction asking the Pastor the usual questions from the Presbyterian Blue Book. Rev. Mr. Gibson then addressed the Minister basing his remarks on Paul's Exhortation to Timothy, after which Rev. Hunter Boyd of Waverly, addressed the people. After a few remarks from Rev. Mr. Reid the meeting closed, Rev. E. Thorpe pronouncing the Benediction. A short reception took place at the close of the service, the congregation extending a cordial welcome to their new Pastor.

Messinette's Ledge, Lake Etopia in days gone by, was a famous spot for fishing and to the older generation, the Campbell Rock Road was as familiar as the way to South Boston. It is not so now and there are those who can tell of a wearisome journey, starting at the entrance of the Campbell Rock Road winding through a wood path wide and dry, over stumps and into clearings where signs of the woodman's axe abounded, into woods where trees and branches shut out the sun, through tangled underbrush hard on the face and eyes, into mires, swamps and thick swail where straggling branches twined lovingly into one's hair, out away beyond the meadow road—nowhere, with water, water everywhere and the dancing waves of Etopia out of sight. Yes it is a great trip now to Messinette's Ledge one that with a genial guide, is worthy of trial by any ambitious lovers of Isaac Watton's sport.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

A Grain of Hope

It began at an afternoon party where, as usual, people were feeling more or less bored and were getting on each others' nerves.

The rooms were too hot, to begin with, and everyone would congregate in the corner where the ice cream was served, so that the music room was quite deserted and the artists were annoyed to find themselves singing to half a dozen people only.

"I'm so sorry for our hostess," said Antoinette Bereny to the man who had just been introduced to her. "I'm afraid we're not treating her right. Don't you think we had better go and listen to a song?"

"I would rather not," he answered, "but I am at your command. Only will you do me a favor afterwards?"

She looked surprised.

"Certainly, if it is in my power. What is it?"

She was looking very pretty and cool in a green and white dress of crepe de chine, and there was an atmosphere of pleasant repose about Miss Bereny that people appreciated without analyzing it.

It had never occurred to her to marry anyone, though she had had plenty of chances. She was well off, she had no near relations, and she had reached the age of 33 while still possessing the charm of others and the interest in life which were hers at 26. She was neither a bachelor girl nor an old maid, but simply an unmarried woman who was eminently marriageable.

"I am the victim, or, rather, I suppose I should say the hero, of a romance," said the man, "and I have an intense yearning to tell some one about it. Will you let me confide in you?"

Antoinette laughed, and for the first time looked to see what manner of man this was.

A dark, clean shaven face, keen and strong, such as you find in lawyers and naval officers; a tall, well built figure, a rather stern voice and manner redeemed at times as at this moment by a twinkle in the handsome eyes, and the ghost of a smile at the corners of the lips.

"First you must let me know your name," she said, "if you are going to tell me the story of your life. I didn't catch it when we were introduced."

"Gaston Laurent," he replied, "and I have just met my fate."

"Really?" Antoinette's amused glance swept over the crowd around them and rested on a girl with straight, clear cut profile and dark hair, to whom she remembered Laurent had been talking just before they met.

"I see you are trying to guess who is the dea ex machina," he said, "but I want to begin from the beginning. Won't you let me off the song, Miss Bereny, and come over to the balcony with me?"

"It would be rather mean," Antoinette said, rather meekly; "we were asked to go to the music room."

"I know," he said, "but let us be selfish just for once and choose the balcony."

"And so you are romantic," Antoinette asked when they were seated in a shady corner.

"Not at all by temperament," he assured her, "but I have become so lately. I saw a lady at a concert and felt so attracted by her that I paid no further attention to the music. Since then fate has willed that we should often be quite close to each other, in the street, in a room at an entertainment, and the attraction has grown with each meeting so that when I have received an invitation lately, I have said to myself, 'I wonder if she will be there?' She with a capital letter! But we have never been introduced when a favorable opportunity occurred, and the thing is done."

"And you feel that your fate is sealed?"

Antoinette began to be interested, for, though his tone was easy and un-concerned, there was something—she could not tell what—which seemed to show he was in earnest.

"For better or for worse—yes," he said. "I am sure she is my alter ego, the one woman in the world for me; but she may not have the same feeling. In fact, I know for certain that she has no feeling of any sort about me, and no consciousness of ever having met me before. So my only hope is to see her constantly, and that is not so easy as it sounds. For, with the exception of our hostess, we have no mutual friends that I am aware of at whose house we might meet."

"Oh, yes," Antoinette said hastily, "I know Mlle. Marny quite well. She is coming to lunch with me next week."

"Is she?" he said eagerly. "And you will ask me, too?" But that is too good of you."

"Not at all. I shall be very pleased. Romance deserves encouragement in these prosaic days. She is a charming girl, Elise Marny. I have known her quite a long time. We might go to the Salon afterwards. Vicount Pierre de Ronceval is coming, so that shall be a partie carree."

She rose to go, and extended her hand with a smile of encouragement to him.

The theatre party went well at the beginning, for the fourth man was a steady going, middle-aged member of the chamber, a widower with pronounced views and Antoinette monopolized him in order to give the romance freedom.

Yes, it presently seemed as if something had gone wrong. Elise Marny was distinctly initiating the widower in the early stage of the art of flirtation, while Laurent, whose feelings were no doubt hurt, betrayed a desire to take refuge from her neglect to Antoinette.

It distressed Antoinette very much. "It is charming of you to take it so well," she murmured to Laurent when he begged the privilege of driving home with her, "but of course you mustn't let it become a real quarrel. You must insist on seeing Mlle. Marny home."

"But she has already arranged that our honorable and worthy friend should be her escort. I should not like to upset her plans."

A moment later Mlle. Marny settled the point herself by departing with the widower, and her good-bye to Laurent was decidedly chilly.

As Antoinette drove with him towards Boulevard St. Germain she was trying to think of appropriate words, trying to console this blighted lover; but she found it difficult, that when they had reached the house she had said nothing, and could only endeavor to convey her sympathy by a lingering handshake.

"May I come in for a moment?" he said. "I have something important to say to you."

"Poor fellow!" she reflected. "He is wretched and may be going to do something desperate. I must persuade him to be calm."

So she gave a gracious consent. "I have been looking forward to this evening more than I can say," Laurent began. "Will it bore you if I refer to my romance?"

She turned to him with tears of earnestness shining in her eyes.

"Of course, it will not bore me," she assured him. "I cannot express to you how sorry I feel, how sincerely I sympathize with you. But I think that Mlle. Marny—"

He interrupted by taking her hand. "Why should we talk about Mlle. Marny?" he said while the smile and the twinkle in his eye transformed his face. "I would so much rather talk about you, Antoinette."

She was so astonished that for a moment she couldn't speak, and he drew her a little nearer to him by the passive hand he held.

"I can't wait any longer," he said. "I very nearly told you I loved you that first day, on the balcony, but I didn't venture because I was afraid I would lose my chance. It has seemed an eternity since then, and to tell you the truth, I was getting so bored with Mlle. Marny that I'm afraid I showed it. Antoinette—I have loved you from the first moment I saw you. Don't send me away."

"But it can't be true. It must be a mistake. You told me—"

"I told you the truth," he said and took her other hand. "And you with your lack of egotism, decided that my ideal must be Mlle. Marny, Antoinette—how could it be anyone but you? Don't you understand that my life would not be worth living without you? Can't you care a little bit for me?"

She did not answer, for she was still too much amazed both at him and at herself to be able to speak, but he read something that encouraged him in her eyes, for he lifted her hands up to his shoulders and, bending, said softly:

"If there is a grain of hope for me, Antoinette, give me one kiss."

And Antoinette did.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Largest Clock In the World

So much has been said of the great clocks of Europe, that if asked to find the largest clock in the world, one's first impulse would be to look for it among the cathedrals abroad. A number of years ago, the Philadelphia City Hall with its 25-foot dials wrested the laurels from London's Westminster clock, which has 211-2-foot dials. Only the other day it was reported that a 25-foot dial clock would be placed in the tower of the Metropolitan Life Building, and now a new record has just been made by the clock which surmounts Colgate and Company's soap and perfume factory at Jersey City. Not only is this clock larger than any other in the world, but it has established a class of its own, because its dial area is more than twice as large as that of its nearest competitor. Possibly mention should be made of the great clock of Mechlin, Belgium, which is said to have a dial of 37 feet diameter, but it is hardly fair to make any comparison between this crude mechanism, with its single hand to mark off the hours, and the perfect timepieces of to-day. But even the Mechlin clock is surpassed by the Colgate clock. The dial of the latter measures 38 feet in diameter by 40 feet in height; that is, the lights which serve for the hour marks at night are set beyond the periphery of the day time dial, and form a circle of 40 feet extreme diameter.

Some conception of the enormous proportions of this clock may be had from the accompanying photographs of the hands. The hour hand, which measures 15 feet from end to end, and is 3 feet 10 inches at its greatest width, while the minute hand has an over-all dimension of 20 feet, and with its counterpart weighs 640 pounds. Every half minute the tip of this hand moves 11-2 inches, and in the course of a day it covers a distance of more than half a mile. The hands are made of copper sheet metal, secured to a brass frame and stiffened by means of brass struts. The copper sheathing is painted black with a sand surface, so that there can be no reflection of light to confuse the observer in reading the time. To lessen the wind pressure, the dial is made of 6-inch pine boards spaced three inches apart. In place of numerals, coffin-shaped strokes of black 5-1-2 feet long are used. In large tower clocks it is found unnecessary to use the usual Roman numerals, as they cannot be read at any great distance. It is probable that few persons who have looked at the Westminster clock or that at Philadelphia are aware that the dials bear no numerals. At night the dial face will be illuminated by a ring of incandescent lamps, each minute mark will be indicated by a 4-candle-power lamp, and at the hour mark 96-candle-power will be used in red lanterns. The hands will be outlined with electric lights, forty 4-candle-power lamps being used on the minute hand, and 34 on the hour hand. The current will be supplied to these lamps by means of carbon brushes bearing against copper contact rings.

The making of a large tower clock involves more of a problem than mere proportions. As the dial will not be incased in glass, the hands are exposed to all changes of the weather, and yet they must keep time with the precision of a chronometer. The Seth Thomas Clock Company, which is making this huge clock, guarantees that the gigantic, unwieldy hands, weighing together more than half a ton, will not vary six seconds a week from the correct time, and it is probable that even this accuracy will far exceed.

The Colgate clock will be driven directly by a mechanical clock train. The clock mechanism comprises two separate movements; one, the "time train" or master clock, serves to keep accurate time, while the other, known as the remontoir train, is controlled by the time train, and acts to drive the hands of the clock.

The two trains are mounted on a bed four feet long. In our illustration of the movements the time train is shown at the right, and its office is to release the remontoir train every 30 seconds. The time train rotates a crown wheel, indicated at A. The remontoir movement carries a lever B, formed with a tooth at its outer end, which is adapted to bear against the teeth of the crown wheel. As the latter revolves, the lever B enters between the teeth of the crown wheel, and strikes against the inner face of a tooth at the opposite side of the crown wheel. Here the lever is held in check for fifteen seconds, until the crown wheel revolves sufficiently to permit it to pass out. This releases the remontoir movement, and the lever swings around on its axis until it strikes the under side of the crown wheel again, where it is held in check as before. Every half-minute the remontoir train is thus released, and at each release the hour hand is moved half a minute. A fan C serves to govern the motion of the remontoir movement and prevent the lever B from striking the crown wheel with a sharp blow. This fan causes the lever to occupy about seven seconds in making its sweep from the release position back to the under-side of the crown wheel.

The average in having two separate movements to drive the clock is that one acts as a relay for the other. The remontoir movement, which drives the hands directly, is operated by a weight of over 1,100 pounds. This heavy weight should be enough to overcome any jar of vibration of the hands caused by a high wind. The time train or master clock is operated by a weight of but 600 pounds, and this permits a more delicate movement. In case of accident to the hands, if, for instance, they should be frozen fast together, or if the lights should need repairing, they could be stopped without disturbing the master clock, which would continue to keep perfect time, and after the repairs were made, the hands could be reset to correspond with the small dial of the master clock.

The form of escapement used on the Colgate clock is similar to that invented by Sir Edmund Becket for use on the famous Westminster clock, and is known as Weston's couple three-legged gravity escapement. It consists of two very light arms or gravity pallets, which alternately give the pendulum a gentle push and thus keep it swinging. The arms are partly withdrawn before the advancing pendulum by the clock train, and when overtaken by the pendulum they are released, and falling with pendulum on the return stroke serve to give the latter the necessary impulse. The accompanying diagram will give a clear idea of the operation of this escapement. The two gravity arms are indicated at D, suspended on separate pivots E, and fitted with roller beat pins F at their lower ends. The clock movement operates to locking plates G, each formed with three legs. Three pins H connect the two plates, and are adapted to engage the projecting fingers of the gravity arms just after they have been pushed to the left by one of the pins H. The locking plates are prevented from further rotation by a stop K on this arm, which engages one of the legs of the plate. The pendulum rod is swinging in the direction of the arrow, and as soon as it strikes the gravity arm at the left, it will swing it far enough to release the locking plate, permitting the latter to rotate and push the opposite gravity arm toward the right. In the meantime the pendulum on its return stroke will swing with the added impulse of the gravity arm just released.

In the Colgate clock the pendulum is eight feet long, the rod weighs 76 pounds. The impulse given it by the gravity arm is a slight touch of less than two ounces at each stroke. This incredibly small pressure is ample to keep the pendulum swinging. The advantage of the gravity escapement is that the pressure of the clock train is not exerted on the pendulum but merely acts to raise the gravity arms, and as the weight of these arms is constant, there can be no variation in the impulse given to the pendulum, no matter how the pressure of the clock train may vary. To prevent the locking plates G from rotating too rapidly when released, a fly is provided.

The pendulum of the clock is of the compensating type. The steel shaft carries a zinc cylinder, from the top of which the pendulum bob is suspended. As the shaft increases in length with a rise of temperature, the zinc sleeve expands and raises the pendulum bob sufficiently to compensate for expansion of the steel. The top of the pendulum bob is hemispherical, so as to prevent the accumulation of dirt or particles, which might disturb the weight and balance of the pendulum. The remontoir movement serves to drive the shaft M, to which is coupled the shaft which runs up to the dial works. The dial works are placed directly behind the dial, and consist of gearing necessary to make the minute hand move twelve times as fast as the hour hand.

Before setting the clock up in Jersey City, the movement was carefully tested at the factory of the Seth Thomas Company. One of our illustrations shows the clock hands mounted on heretofore, which project through a window of the factory. In this illustration, the two counterpoises of the hand are shown.

When in service the clock will be wound every day by an attendant, though it may run for four days without winding. It is expected that before this number issues from the press, the Mayor of Jersey City will have crossed the button that will start the gigantic hands on their endless journey.

Daring Attempted Robbery in Crowded New York Street

New York, N. Y., May 26.—In broad daylight and in one of the most densely populated portions of the city, three men late yesterday made a daring attempt to hold up and rob a trio of bank messengers, as they were carrying $43,000 in cash from one of the bank's branches to its main building. Black pepper was showered upon the messengers, one of them was hit with a blackjack, and another slashed with a knife, in the desperate effort of their assailants to seize the money and to escape with it before the arrival of assistance. That they failed to get clear with the valises filled with coin and bills which the bank employees were carrying, was due to the stubbornness with which the messengers resisted the attack and to the bravery of a young Polish waitress in a nearby resident, who so impeded the leader of the attacking trio that he was easily captured by two policemen who came to the rescue.

The messengers were employees of the Jefferson Bank and were on their way from the branch at Clifton and Houston streets to the main bank on Canal street. While on First street, three men jumped upon them and threw pepper in their faces. The leading assailant attacked Samuel Edelman, who carried the bulk of the money, grabbing his money bag and attempting to run with it. The other assailants directed their efforts at Joseph H. Velsor and Abraham Stern, the other messengers. Edelman tried to shake his assailant off but was faring badly from their pummeling when Mrs. Eva Javornicka, a waitress in a First street restaurant window, ran out of the door and grabbed the leader of the attacking band by the arm. She clung to him and screamed so loudly for help that a patrolman came running up, frightening the other two men away and was right at the heels of the man who had attacked Edelman by the time he had managed to shake himself free from the woman. The fugitive was chased into the arms of another policeman before he had run a block.

The prisoner, the messengers and the money, which the messengers had managed to retain intact, were all taken to a police station, where Edelman's assailant was locked up, and the injuries of the messenger were given attention. Velsor, whom one of the trio had hit with a blackjack, was found to have abdominal injuries, a depression of the skull from a blow, probably with the same instrument besides injuries to the eyes from black pepper. Edelman had knife slashes on the wrists and Stern was nearly blinded from the pepper.

The money, of which $30,000 was in bills and the remainder in gold and silver was turned over to a bank official who, this time, carried it in a closed carriage. As the main attack was made on Edelman who carried the bills, the police believe the robbery was planned by some one who knew the bank's method of making its daily transfers from branch to main office.

The man arrested gave his name as Caimo Riccobono, a plasterer. The police, while looking tonight for the two men who escaped and their possible confederates, arrested Riccobono's father, Giovanni Riccobono and his two brothers, Salvatore and Damiano Riccobono. They are held as suspects for a further examination.

If one feels dull and spiritless, in the spring or early summer, they call it "Spring Fever." But there is no fever—usually. It is the after effect of "winter habits." The nerves are mostly at fault. Tired, worn-out nerves leave us languid, lifeless, and without spirit or ambition. A few doses of Dr. Shoop's Restorative will absolutely and quickly change all of these depressing symptoms. The Restorative of course won't bring you back to full health in a day or two, but it will do enough in 48 hours to satisfy you that the remedy is reaching that tired spot. Druggists everywhere are advising its use as a splendid and prompt general tonic. It gives more vim and more spirit to the spoonful than any other known nerve or constitutional tonic. It sharpens a failing appetite, aids digestion, frees sluggish livers and kidneys, and brings new life strength and ambition. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by All Dealers.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause in congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else. As such, says Dr. Shoop, and in proof he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—coarse blood pressure away from pain centers. Effect is striking, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though surely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If it's a neuralgic pain with women, same cause. If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in moments, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Break your fever and don't get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it when pain always. It's simply Common Sense. We ask 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend not be for some time Col. Gibson is not the only name mentioned in connection with the office. Among other names mentioned is that of Sir Richard Cartwright, who on account of his long and distinguished services to Canada and more particularly to Ontario, is almost certain to have, as a matter of course, the highest place in the province offered to him. The success of other aspirants for the place will, therefore, largely depend whether Sir Richard decides to continue the active work of a Cabinet Minister, or to accept the more dignified and less arduous post as Governor of Ontario.

Pity This Poor Girl.

Growing fast—yes, into weakness, but without strength. Tired of course she is—pale and thin too. She doesn't eat enough and digests far too little. This condition is so common, but how seldom noticed even by fond parents. Give her Ferronine—then watch her appetite improve—her cheeks and lips grow ruddy—watch her spirits rise. This gain is simply the result of eating and digesting enough, and thereby nourishing blood, brain and nerves. To a woman Ferronine restores strength she has lost—to a girl it brings strength perhaps she never knew. You'll try Ferronine, 50c. at all dealers.

Wise Words to Girls

The girl who desires to make a good wife must know something of the practical side of life; and if she does not possess this knowledge she must learn. Leave love and romance out of your reckoning altogether. It may cover a good many faults and help you over some styles at the beginning of your married life; but, after the first glamor has worn off, then the real trials will begin.

Only the practical girl will surmount these trials. She it is who will be able to make home bright and happy when a caroused income necessitates economy; who will be able to help her husband as well as console him when troubles arise, and who will prove the most successful mother by knowing exactly how to manage her children.

Every girl should ask herself this question: "Am I training myself for the duties of a wife?" It is no good frittering away your time in making the best of your appearance if you do not improve your mind. Men of today do not want to marry dolls, they want a wife who can cook, sew and manage servants; not a drawing-room ornament.

You can either be the guiding star and helpmate of a man's life, or you can be a clog and a hindrance, dragging him to failure. So, when you are building your castles in the air, add a practical touch to your day-dreams by asking yourselves: "How am I preparing myself for this happy dream, should it come true? Am I training myself to fit this vocation properly?"

The good wife should be her husband's comfort, strengthening him when he is weak, walking proudly with him to success, giving him tenderest love and sympathy in adversity. She must be able to spend his money wisely, remembering that every penny represents work and thought on his part.

It is a big responsibility. Girl's, see that you are fitted for the task before deciding to marry.

A "home rule for Scotland" bill was introduced in the House of Commons on Tuesday by Duncan Vernon Pierce. Mr. Pierce explained that the main object of this bill was to devolve to a legislative body in Scotland the power to make laws on matters relating exclusively to that country. A. J. Balfour objected strongly, but the House, by 257 votes to 102, voted in favor of allowing the bill to go to its first reading.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Since the slight depression in the lumber and granite markets, many of our people are inclined to be pessimistic over the future outlook of the country, and see blue ruin in everything.

Undoubtedly lumbermen, quarrymen and such have at present some little cause for concern, and the farmer is having his lintings. He can obtain the highest prices for his produce, and the over-fed manufacturing market makes very little difference to him who can always raise enough for his own immediate needs. The mechanics and operators in our quarries and mills, and business men are the worst off.

Reduced time for workmen at reduced wages means less money to spend in trade, and we all must be fed even if we have not the wherewith to pay, and the merchants are the sufferers.

Notwithstanding this little depression we believe the future promises a golden harvest. It is generally conceded that the coming elections in the United States are the cause of depression in manufacturing circles, and after nomination soon to take place is over, the wheel will take another turn, and the busy hives of industry now depressed will boom up larger and more prosperous than ever.

It may be that with us the present conditions politically have some effect upon manufacture and commerce, but the shadow is passed, not blue ruin but increased prosperity will loom up to cheer. It is always darkest just before the dawn of another and brighter day.

It is expected that the government will bring down a measure to make the selling of cigarettes to minors, a criminal offence. At present all the provinces except Quebec and Manitoba, have passed laws against selling cigarettes to minors, but the law is, to a large extent, a dead letter, and it is thought that by incorporating a provision in the criminal code of Canada and still leaving the enforcement of the law, as at present, in the hands of the Provincial authorities, there would be a more adequate combatting of the greatest evil complained of in connection with cigarettes.

Six years ago a bill was signed by the granite manufacturers and the cutters. Yesterday the bill ran out and owing to the inability of the employers and employees to reach an agreement work was suspended in all the granite mills. The cutters are asking an eight hour day and pay every two weeks, this the manufacturers refuse to grant. It is claimed by the men that the eight hour day is general all over Canada, in the granite business, that conditions are such that this demand can easily be granted by the employers, that a five months notice was given the manufacturers, according to agreement and that therefore they are not responsible for present conditions. The manufacturers claim that competition is so keen that any advance in wages at present is impossible, that the business can not stand it, and that they are now paying all the business will stand.

The act known as the "workmen compensation act" passed the house last week. One of the amendments is as follows: "Workmen," excluding persons engaged in granite working, or a person employed as a clerk in an office or store, or as a seaman or fisherman, and also to amend the section so as to make it provide that where the injury is caused to a workman by reason of his own willful act with intent to cause personal injury, or by his own neglect or carelessness or disobedience to the rules of his employer posted in a prominent position in the works, or where the injury is caused to such workmen by reason of the malicious act or neglect of the fellow workmen.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson was re-nominated by a largely attended convention of Liberals of Westmorland at Moncton on Monday last. His platform is one of progress, favoring the extension of the I. C. R. and the Absorption of Branch Lines.

Terrible Crime

News of a terrible tragedy comes from Bangor. I. Gideon Keith, a native of Kings County, N. B., after killing Mrs. Elizabeth Ready ended his own life with a bullet through his brain.

The murdered woman had been courted some time by Keith, but she refused to marry him, because he was a Protestant and she a Catholic who had been divorced from her second husband.

The tragedy occurred at Mrs. Ready's home at 186 Washington street. A remarkable feature of the affair is that neither Mrs. Ready's children, nor other occupants of the house heard any pistol shots fired.

The Sun learns that Mr. Keith has several relatives in Fredericton. He is an uncle of Bliss A. Keith, who was manager of the Arctic Rink in that city.

Other relatives in Fredericton are Elmer Keith, employed with the Intercolonial Correspondence School, and a Mr. Keith who used to keep a grocery store on Northumberland street.

NOTICE

A Pic Social and Dance will be held in Bontec Hall, Tuesday evening, June 9th. Music by Prof. Mooney.

ST. ANDREWS

Mr. and Mrs. Hayter Reed, came in on the noon train on Saturday last. They were guests at the Luncheon, over Sunday, and Monday arranged the alterations and improvements at the Algonquin.

R. A. Smith of St. John visited his sister Mrs. Everett Sunday and Monday last, and enjoyed some Lake fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Vroom of St. Stephen, have been among recent visitors of St. Andrews.

The "Oak Leaf" took a merry party of excursionists to St. Stephen on Victoria Day.

Mrs. Fox of New York, is the guest of Mrs. Wm Sheehan.

Mrs. M. N. Cockburn, entertained a few friends on Thursday evening in honor of her guest Mrs. Nargis.

Miss Martha Osborne, spent the weeks end very pleasantly at Grand Manan.

Pro. Penhallow has taken a run up to Ottawa, on business connected with the biological station.

Mrs. E. A. Cockburn entertains this (Friday) evening.

Rev. A. W. Malton, has returned from Fredericton, where he has been delivering lectures before the Teachers Association upon Canadian Dramatics.

Among this week's visitors have been Mr. and Mrs. John Wade of St. John, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Merritt, Highton Mc. Miss Shaw Caribon, Chas. Howard Fredericton, Wm. Howard, Brownville Junction, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson St. John, and fishing inspector Calder.

Miss Margaret Kerr, is visiting friends in Boston.

Mr. Ferguson and family are to spend the summer at Miss Trinsdell's cottage.

Senator and Mrs. Gillmor arrived home yesterday.

James McKay visited Eastport in his speedy gasoline yacht, "Black Prince," the first of the week.

Squire James McVicar of Back Bay was buried on Saturday. He was eight-tine years of age and well known in this end of the county.

Capt. Chas. Traynor of the Scir. Helen will sail from Beaver Harbor on Thursday for Apple River, Nova Scotia, where he will load lumber for New York.

Mrs. Gabe Craig and Mrs. George Craig were passengers on Tuesday's train for St. Stephen where they will meet Mrs. Johnson who is on her way home from Vancouver.

The first two of the large hard pine pieces in the roof of the new church, were placed in position on Tuesday. The sticks are of immense weight and the work of placing them is arduous.

David Archibald, who has for the past three years been employed by McGrattan & Sons left yesterday for Moncton. His wife and child will follow in a few days. Walter Morrison is moving into the house vacated by D. Archibald.

Tenders for the building of the new annex to the school house were opened on Monday evening. Owing to the absence of some of the members of the school board the awarding of the work was laid over for a time.

The marriage of Miss Amy Dunbar and Mr. Westley Phillips took place on Tuesday morning at the rectory, Rev. H. I. Lynds performing the ceremony. Owing to sickness in the bride's family the wedding was quiet. The happy couple left on the morning train for New York where they will spend their honeymoon.

A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the station to wish them bon voyage.

The G. F. Hall Company under the management of Frank W. Naon gave an entertainment in Coutts' Hall on Monday evening. The performance abounded in songs bright and catchy, dances, funny sallies and choruses, it was devoid of plot but full of fun from start to finish. The singing was of a very high order, every member of the company possessing a voice of good range and pleasing. The quartette, Messrs. Hall, Jacobs, Harold and John Dunn, carried the audience by storm and were obliged to respond to many encores. Mr. Hall was exceedingly funny and captured every one present with his droll wit. "Won't you be my Baby boy," sung to one of the young men made a decided hit. The performance was good and clean and the company can be assured of a hearty welcome and a bumper house should they return to St. George.

The Martin - Senour 100 per cent PURE PAINT

Investigate Before You Buy In these days of sharp competition, it is well to know that you get what you pay for. There are so many brands of house paints on the market, now-a-days, advertised as "pure" (but little better than "dope.") that a man ought to investigate what he intends to buy.

We suggest to those about to paint to make a practical test and convince themselves. Buy a small can of the Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint and one of any other brand with which you may have been favorably impressed, selecting about the same colors, and paint a few feet. Carefully measure the paint, so that you use no more of one than the other. Thus with the conditions the same, you can determine for yourself which paint has the better body or covering capacity; which is the easier brushing out and has the better finish. If you do not decide in favor of the Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint, our agent will return the money you paid for the can of Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint used in the experiment, and we will credit the same to him.
