Comment is not necessary.

How little the bayonet is used by the Germans in this war is shown by the fact that of the first 1,000 soldiers treated in the American Red Cross Hospital at Repton, England, only sixteen were wounded by the bayonet.

A big shipment of cattle was made from Ailsa Craig last week on which the shippers lost from one to one and a half cents per pound. The dealers, in anticipation of higher prices, had gone through the district buying up cattle at 8 and 9 cents. They sold at 7 to 7 1/2.

An auction sale of cattle, swine and horses was held at the Muncey Insti-

The attendance was fairly good and bidding brisk. Steers averaged $80; heifers, $60. The cattle offered were in splendid condition. The sale realized over six thousand dollars. Those present had the opportunity of inspecting the new steel truss barns which are being erected at a cost of $27,000.

Every year a number of people are injured by travelling magazine canvassing agents with some wonderful proposition in which they give away more than you pay. Or perhaps it is an inside price that will never be offered again. However, there is always a "joker" somewhere. When the trouble is discovered the canvasser of course is nowhere to be found and when you write the company you are told they never authorized such a proposition. This is about the time of the year these "agents" operate and several have already been reported in this neighborhood.

lected cases this famous preparation

MOSA TREASURER DEAD

J. W. Watterworth Passes Away
After Nine Weeks' Illness.

The death of James Wellington Watterworth, treasurer of the township of Mosa, occurred at his home on the Longwoods Road, near Wards-ville, at 3 o'clock on Tuesday morning, following an illness of about nine weeks from arteriosclerosis, an affection partly of the heart. Mr. Watterworth throughout his illness was able to be up and about, his form of ailment taking him at recurrent spells with severe pain. He attended the last meeting of the council, held at Newbury on October 15th. He was able to meet his friends and converse cheerfully with them up to the evening before his death.

James Wellington Watterworth was a son of the late Benjamin Wat-terworth, one of the pioneer Reeves and clerks of Mosa township, and was in his 83rd year. He leaves his widow, formerly Miss Mary Mitchell, and three sons—Bert, barber, of Appin; Howard, real estate dealer, of Winnipeg, and Dr. Frank, of Detroit. Five brothers and one sister also survive—
John, building contractor, Duluth;
Elijah, of the Dominion Building, Glencoe; Lorenzo and Wentworth, farmers, Mosa; Joseph, merchant, Dover Centre, and Mrs. Joseph Simpson, of Mosa. Another sister, Mrs.
John McCutcheon, of Croton, died a short time ago.

Mr. Watterworth has been treasurer of Mosa township for the last 22 years, and previous to his appointment to that office was collector for 10 years.
He had also been closely identified with the work of the Mosa and Ekfrid Agricultural Society as president and director, and was president for some time of the West Middlesex Liberal Association. He was a member and recording steward of the Wardsville Methodist church. In all the various duties of the different offices which he filled Mr. Watterworth was methodical and painstaking and showed the strictest integrity. His books were always accurate and neatly kept.

The funeral takes place from his late residence on Friday afternoon at half-past one o'clock to Oakland cemetery.

Holloway's Corn Cure destroys all kinds of corns and warts, root and branch. Who, then, would endure them with such a cheap and effectual remedy within reach?

The house of Alexander Battin, Middlemiss, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday afternoon, together with most of the contents. Loss about $2,500, insured in the Ekfrid Mutual for $1,000.

Surrounding an Army.

Those not familiar with military tactics have a very vague idea as to how an army is surrounded. It is generally believed that a commander, who schemes to encircle his enemy, with an impenetrable ring of guns and men must conceive some method of maneuvering his troops round to the rear of his opponent's army. It is possible, however, for a general well versed in field tactics to cleverly "roll up" a large body of troops by frontal attack alone.
This is accomplished by means of flanking movements.

For purposes of example let us imagine two armies facing one another drawn up in two long lines. Behind one of the battle lines a body of reserve troops stealthily make their way over to the right. Their purpose is to make a sudden onslaught on one end of the enemy's line. At exactly the right moment, when the artillery fire is at its fiercest, the reserve troops violently attack the forces situated at the extreme left of the enemy's front. The attacking force, owing to its overwhelming numbers, bends back the end of the assaulted army. "It refuses its right," as military men say.

At the opposite end of the line a similar attack is launched, which has the effect of forcing back the enemy's right. An army which "refuses" almost at the same time its "left" and "right" wings is doomed. Unless a very speedy retreat is carried out the whole force is "rolled up" as both its flanks are forced back.

As the right and left flanks of the enemy give ground the attacking troops slowly force their way to the rear of the assaulted army, closing in the while. The result is that within a few hours the defeated force is entirely surrounded, although in the first instance it was attacked from its front alone.—Pearson's Weekly.

Poisonous Mushrooms.

The two most feared and deadly poisonous mushrooms the world over are the death cap (Amanita phalloides) and the fly cap (Amanita muscaria).

These two species in the same genus have destroyed several emperors, a pope and probably a average 500 deaths annually in various parts of the world, to say nothing of innumerable manimals, birds, reptiles and insects, the latter being almost wholly destroyed by poisonous fungi.

Of the two deadly species, muscaria is most easily detected by the layman.
It is a large, showy mushroom, orange yellow in color, with what looks like warts over the cap. You see them in dooryards, where evergreens are growing, sometimes thousands of them, standing up, tall and splendid in the grass. Keep your hens in the hen-yard and your cow in the barn while these fellows are up, with their tempting appearance.

The species Amanita phalloides can readily be avoided. Whatever the color of the cap, white or gray, the under side of it, the gills, are pure white. The cap may or may not be covered with wartlike protuberance. The stem terminates in a bulb, usually wholly or partially beneath the soil. If a large, deep chunk of earth is taken out around, the bulb invariably will be found setting in a cup. Handle a poisonous mushroom as freely as you like, but do not experiment with one of the table. There are other species, both in the Amanita genus and that of leptoglyph, that closely resemble it and which may be deliciously edible. You cannot learn these differences from the books. Only an expert, with the several fresh species in hand, can teach you such differences.—New York Press.

Valparaiso at Night.

The night view of Valparaiso from the balconies of the big dwellers is one of the great sights of the world.
The vast sickle of the shore lit for nearly 200,000 people, the scores of ocean vessels lying at anchor, the harbor lights, the glowing avenues below from which rises, mellowed, the roar of nocturnal traffic, the rippling water under the moonlight and the far horizon of the illimitable Pacific produce an effect of enchantment.—Edward Als worth Ross "South of Panama."

Playing It Carefully.
Tenderly the ardent swain placed the diamond eirelet on his lady love's finger. "It seals our engagement," he said.

"Oh, Jack," exclaimed the girl, "isn't it sweet?"

"And now," continued the young man, "would you mind giving me a receipt stating that the ring is to be returned to me in case you should change your mind about marrying me?"—St.
Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Query Discourteous.
"So glad to see you again, dear. And I've got such a lot of news for you.
Did you know I was interested in business now?" said the first sweet young thing.

"Whose?" asked the second, and then the conversation lagged perceptibly.—

WARDSVILLE SCHOOL FAIR

Highly Creditable Exhibits, Enjoyable Sports and Big Crowd.

The rural school fair held at Wards-ville on Friday proved a most gratifying success. The weather was ideal and the attendance larger than on any former occasion. The children of the various schools assembled at the town hall at 1:30 and, marshaled by their respective teachers, led by the Wards-ville band, marched to the High School grounds. The entries were in excess of previous years and the exhibits showed marked improvement, the art department being of special merit. An interesting program of addresses was given by the pupils, for which prizes were awarded. The athletic sports were keenly contested and kept the large gathering interested throughout the afternoon.

An exciting game of basket-ball between the pupils of the Wardsville High School teams was won by the former by the close score of 18 to 17. The Women's Institute served meals.

In the evening a patriotic concert was held in the music hall, which, for excellence of program, has seldom been equaled in the community. The following artists gave their services for the occasion—Misses Edith and Josie McBride and Pte. George White, of London, and Mrs. Edward Hale, Miss Florence McGregor and Mr. Will Sheppard.

Rev. Mr. Hale gave a short patriotic address. The hall was filled to the fullest capacity and the large audience very heartily expressed their appreciation of the different numbers on the program. Dr. H. A. Wilson presided.
The proceeds of the concert amounted to over $90.

TRAFALGAR DAY FUND

Glencoe Raises Nearly $700.00 for the British Red Cross.

Glencoe made a splendid response to the appeal from the Motherland for a special contribution on Trafalgar Day for wounded soldiers and sailors.

Although this was the third time that Glencoe has been canvassed for patriotic purposes within a few months, the citizens as on the two former occasions gave heartily of their means and the result is highly creditable.

With $200 granted by the municipal council, $50 by the Ladies' Patriotic Society, $50 by the Masonic Lodge and $24 by the Orange Lodge there has been raised $674.20, and it is fully expected that with other contributions yet to come Glencoe will send an even seven hundred dollars to the fund.

The list of contributors appears elsewhere in this issue. Other contributions will be announced as they are handed in.

Metcalf's Red Cross Contributions
A meeting was held in the Town Hall, Napier, on Monday evening, Oct.
18, to get the voice of the ratepayers as to the best way of raising funds in the township of Metcalf for the British Red Cross Society. After hearing the views of several of the ratepayers, it was decided by a vote of those present for the council to pay $50 out of the general funds of the township, and a meeting of the council was called for Thursday evening for that purpose.
Fifteen dollars additional was given by R. P. Toohill, R. H. Smith and John Knight, being $5 each, making a total of $55. A motion was made to make a canvass of the township also, but was defeated. The meeting was unanimously in favor of giving freely to the cause. C. C. Henry, reeve, occupied the chair.

High School Notes.

We are pleased to note that according to the Inspector's report, the Glencoe High School has been approved for the current year—Grade II.
The interesting and swift game of basket-ball at Alvinston on Wednesday, resulted in favor of Alvinston, the score being 12-20.

Another game of basket-ball was played by the Glencoe High School girls on Tuesday evening when they carried off the laurels. It was with the Appin basket-ball team, the score being 31-4.

KING CALLS UPON HIS PEOPLE TO COME FORWARD FOR BRITAIN

Royal Manifesto Asks for More and Yet More Men to Volunteer to Secure Victory for Empire

A despatch from London says: King George has issued an appeal to his subjects to come forward voluntarily and aid Great Britain in her fight against the Germanic allies. The message follows: "To my people: At this grave moment in the struggle between my people and a highly organized enemy, who has transgressed the laws of nations and changed the ordinance that binds civilized Europe together, I appeal to you. "I rejoice in my Empire's effort, for the sake of the Empire's future and I feel pride in the voluntary response from my subjects all over the world who have sacrificed home and fortune and life itself in order that another may not inherit the free Empire which their ancestors and mine have built. I ask you to make good these sacrifices. "The end is not in sight. More men, and yet more, are wanted to keep my armies in the field, and through them to secure victory and an enduring peace. In ancient days the darkest moment has ever produced in men of our race the sternest resolve. I ask you, men of all classes, to come forward voluntarily and take your share in these fights. "In freely responding to my appeal you will be giving your support to our brothers who for long months have nobly upheld Great Britain's past traditions and the glory of her arms."

THOUSANDS ARE STARVING IN LEADING GERMAN CITIES

Riots of Daily Occurrence as a Result of Shortage and Ever-Increasing Price of Food Products

A despatch from New York says: In spite of the official assurance of the German Government that it is able to cope with all problems growing out of a shortage of food supplies, neutral travellers returning from Germany is most serious, and that while the Kaiser's armies are fighting the leading powers of Europe, the Germans at home are experiencing very bitter suffering as a result of the ever-increasing price of food products. The shortage in necessary articles of diet is acutely felt, according to these travellers, throughout the empire, and riots of grave proportions are occurring in the leading cities. These statements are borne out by the German newspapers, which have been permitted to publish accounts of the scenes in the markets. The food shortage is not confined to Berlin. According to the Tagblatt, the commissariat arrangements to supply the German troops at Gallipoli have broken down hopelessly.

SCORES PERISHED IN FACTORY WRECK

Accidental Dropping of a Grenade Caused Great Explosion in Paris.

A despatch from Paris says: Fifty-two persons are reported to have been killed in an explosion in a factory in the Rue De Tolbiac, while one hundred or more were injured.

Many of the victims were women workers in the factory which was wrecked, as were buildings in the vicinity.

President Poincaré and Minister of the Interior Malvy, who were immediately informed of the disaster, visited the scene and gave directions to the rescuing forces.

An auto truck was being loaded when workmen accidentally dropped one grenade, causing an explosion, which was followed by two others in quick succession.

The explosion destroyed not only the main factory and other buildings connected with it, but everything within a radius of 100 yards, and damaged buildings 500 yards distant. The explosion was followed by fire, but the flames were soon extinguished.

Of the 41 bodies recovered 31 are those of women. Forty injured persons were treated at the emergency hospital which was quickly installed at the scene. Twenty others were removed to another hospital. It was said that the injured would exceed 100 in number.

A report that the explosion was the result of the work of spies was absolutely denied.

WILL LICENSE WOMEN AS BUS CONDUCTORS

A despatch from London says: In order to release men of military age in London it was announced at the Police Department that licenses would be issued to women to work as omnibus and street car conductors.

FRENCH ARTILLERY PREVENTS ASSEMBLING OF THE ENEMY

Germans Planned an Attack in Force in Belgium But Were Stopped by Allied Guns

A despatch from Paris says: The Germans attempted an attack against the French lines east and south-west of Givenchy but were repulsed. Another attempt was made by them with no more success in the valley of the Bouchez stream. Friday they prepared for an onslaught in the environs of Lombardtzde, Belgium, with the usual preliminary artillery fire. On this occasion the French artillery dispersed the enemy before he had completed the assembling of his troops for the attack.

In a protracted artillery duel in Champagne the French guns succeeded in silencing a very violent cannonade directed against the French lines in the vicinity of Tahure, Massiges, La Harazee and Le Four de Paris. Efficient work of the French guns also is noted in repressing German artillery attacks to the east of the Butte de Mesnil and in the vicinity of Ville-sur-Tourbe.

The German aviation grounds at Ounal, between the Argonne and the Meuse, have been bombarded by a French aeroplane squadron.

BLANKETED THE FRENCH LINES WITH THEIR SUFFOCATING GASES

But Enemy Was Driven, With Frightful Losses, Back to His Trenches, Completely Unsuccessful

A despatch from Paris says: The German infantry attack on the French lines east of the Butte-de-Tir and Prunay, east of Rheims, for which preparation was made with a very violent bombardment, was made Friday. Suffocating gases were used in great quantities, so that they fairly blanketed the French lines. Three attacks of remarkable violence were made by the enemy, but all were completely stopped in front of the barbed wire entanglements protecting the French trenches by the French artillery and machine guns.

The front attacked has a length of roughly five miles and was the scene of a previous failure of the Germans in their attempt to cut through the French lines in Champagne. The artillery preparations were unusually thorough and the gas blanket was exceptionally dense, but the French guns and machine guns concentrated their fire on the advancing Germans so effectively that one after another each of the attacks spent itself before wire cutting could be carried out, and the Germans, with frightful losses, fell back to their trenches completely unsuccessful.

THE WEEK'S HAPPENINGS IN THE WAR AREAS.

The above map shows the war developments of the past week. Determined German attacks against the French lines near Rheims have been sorry and costly failures. Elsewhere on the Western front there has been little activity. It is reported that the Italian armies have begun a general advance with a view to relieving the pressure against the Serbians by drawing Austrian troops to the Italian front. The Serbs are heroically contesting every foot of territory against the Austro-German advance. The Bulgarians have met with some success, and the Serbian army appears to be practically cut off from reinforcements and supplies. The French expeditionary force in the Balkans is operating against the Bulgarian armies. The British have effected a landing at Enos and may invade Bulgaria from this point. Cyprus has been offered to Greece as an inducement to join the Entente Allies, and pressure is otherwise being brought to bear, as it is hazardous for the Allies' expeditionary forces to run the risk of being cut off from their base at Saloniki by a possible enemy. Greece must declare herself. The Germans are close to Riga, the Russian Baltic port, but this gain is offset by Russian successes at several points on the Eastern front, notably in the centre of the line.

THIRTY GERMAN STEAMERS SUNK BY BRITISH IN THE BALTIC

Submarine Campaign is Evidently on a Very Extensive Scale—German Hypocrisy

A despatch from London says: The daily report shows that the submarine campaign undertaken by the British navy in the Baltic is on a very extensive scale, although complete details are lacking owing to the fact that the submarines are acting under the orders of the Russian Admiralty. The sole facts published here are from Petrograd. It is known that over 30 German ships have been attacked by British submarines since the operations began and the number is increasing daily. The work, which is being carried out by only a few submarines, has had remarkable results, comparing favorably, according to naval experts, with the work of the entire German flotilla in the same space of time. The campaign is causing intense anger in Germany. A peculiar feature of the outburst in the press is the complaint that it is a violation of rules of international law.

RUSSIANS GAIN NEW SUCCESSES
They Deliver Fierce Strokes on German Centre and in Galicia.

A despatch from London says: The Russians, taking advantage of the removal of German troops from other points on the front to reinforce Field Marshal von Hindenburg for his drive at Riga, which seems to have been checked, have been delivering some fierce strokes at the German centre on the Styra and in Galicia. In all these they have had at least initial successes.

The latest offensive by the Russians was assumed north of Tarnopol, where the carrying of Austro-German positions gave the Russian soldiers nearly 8,000 prisoners, two howitzers, and a number of machine guns. These prisoners, added to those taken near Baranovichi the day before, make a total of over 14,000 Austrians and Germans captured in two days.

PROTEST FROM SWISS IS LODGED IN BERLIN

A despatch from Berne says: The Swiss Government has instructed its Embassy at Berlin to lodge an energetic protest against the new violation of Swiss territory by German aviators. The protest is occasioned by the act of an aviator in dropping eight bombs over Chaux de Fonds, causing the injury of four persons and considerable damage to property. Switzerland demands compensation and the punishment of the aviator.

Allies Place Time Limit on Greece

A despatch from Rome says: The Entente allies are threatening to take reprisals against Greece unless formal assurances are given by Greece before the expiration of a short time limit that she will not intervene in favor of Austro-Hungary, Germany and Turkey in any case. If these assurances are satisfactory, then Greece, and Roumania as well, are to be allowed to choose their own time for intervention.

SHOT TO DEATH AS ENVOYS PLED

Execution of English Nurse at Brussels Causes Worldwide Horror.

A despatch from London says: The world will read with indignation and horror the details of the putting to death by the Germans of Miss Edith Cavell, an English woman and head of a training school in Brussels, for helping English, French and Belgian soldiers to escape from Belgium. The full report of the circumstances of the condemnation and execution made by Brand Whitlock, the American Minister at Brussels, to Walter H. Page, the American Ambassador at London, has been issued by the British Government, and tells of the greatest fight for a woman's life that was ever fought, and of unavailing efforts of nobles and neutrals to combat the callous secret cunning of the Germans. There are 17 documents in the correspondence, covering in all 320 typewritten pages.

Pled With Governor.

How the secretary of the American Legation, Hugh S. Gibson, sought out the German Governor, von der Lancken, late at night before the execution, and, with the Spanish Minister, pleaded with the Governor and the German officers for the English woman's life, is graphically related in a memorandum from Mr. Gibson. This document makes reference to an apparent lack of good faith on the part of the German authorities in failing to keep their promises to inform the American Minister fully of the trial and sentence.

Minister Whitlock telegraphed to Ambassador Page on the 12th: "Miss Cavell sentenced yesterday and executed at 2 o'clock this morning, despite our best efforts, continued until the last moment."

Kept Facts Back.

Secretary Gibson's report says that Conrad, an official of the German civil branch, gave positive assurances on the 11th that the American Legation would be fully informed of the developments in the case, and continues:

"Despite these assurances, we made repeated enquiries in the course of the day, the last one being at 6:20 p.m. Mr. Conrad then stated that sentence had not been pronounced, and specifically renewed his previous assurances that he would not fail to inform us as soon as there was any news."

"At 8:30 it was learned from an outside source that sentence had been passed in the course of the afternoon, before the last conversation with Mr. Conrad, and that execution would take place during the night."

AT THE MERCY OF ALLIED FLEET

Bulgaria's Naval Weakness on the Sea Makes Her an Easy Prey.

A despatch from London says: Of peculiar interest at present is the following article by the naval correspondent of the London Times:

The news from Paris of preparations for an immediate landing of Franco-British troops in Macedonia, and from Salonica that Russian naval forces have already appeared off Varna, should be a convincing indication to Bulgaria that the allied powers are prepared to follow up the warning from Petrograd by prompt naval and military action. The first phase of any such action is bound to be naval in its character, and will afford a further demonstration of the value of superior power. The geographical position of Bulgaria makes her particularly vulnerable to attack from overseas.

Moreover, the water communications to her coasts, both in the Aegean and the Black Sea, are at the present time, and will be, whatever happens, controlled by the fleets of the allies. However formidable she may prove from a military point of view, her naval force is practically negligible, and would be quite unable to prevent a landing on her shores.

The only harbor of importance which Bulgaria possesses in Macedonia is Dedeaghat, which has been several times visited by our ships since the operations began in the Dardanelles. This place, where the Bulgarians landed in the opening stages of the first Balkan war, is connected by rail both with Salonica and Constantinople through Adrianople. It is unlikely that there will be any great difficulty in occupying it.

It is, however, in the Black Sea that the Bulgarian coast presents many points on which a descent might be made with advantage. Neither Varna nor Burgas has fortifications of a modern, formidable character, as far as is known, and little trouble should be found in disposing of the few torpedo craft. Our Russian allies have asserted their mastery in the Black Sea in such a way that this should present no difficulty, and they have also organized sufficient tonnage for the transport of an expeditionary force.

LEADERS THAT DON'T LEAD.

History Finds Cases Where They Were Deposed.

Napoleon III, believed, perhaps with justice, that his crown rested on the emulation of the military feats of the great Emperor, but his soldiers found him out, and when he announced that he was going to the Crimea to put himself at the head of the allied forces the soldiers intimated plainly that they did not want him. The end came just before Sedan, when he announced that he had handed over the command of his marshals and should serve in future as a common soldier. Francis Joseph wisely allowed others to bear the shame of the abortive campaigns of his earlier years by keeping a good deal out of the limelight, and Victor Emmanuel without a Garibaldi might have waited long for the accomplishment of his ambitions. In the present war it is generally said that the Kaiser has long ceased to exercise more than a nominal control over military operations, and it is even whispered that Hindenburg retains his great command in spite of the royal desire to get rid of a man of inconvenient frankness.

NOTORIOUS RUSSIAN COUNTESS RELEASED

PROFESSOR SAYS SHE IS NOT REALLY A CRIMINAL.

Made a Murderer of One Man and Ruined Several.

Others.

The woman who caused the death of Count Kamarowsky at Venice in 1907, who made a murderer of Dr. Nicholas Naumoff, son of the Governor of Orel, and brought M. Prilukoff, a respected Moscow lawyer, to a convict's cell, has been pardoned and released. She is soon, it is said, to go to the front with the Russian army as a war nurse.

The case of this extraordinary criminal, in whose veins, it is said, flows the blood of the Borgias whose exploits she has imitated, has been subjected to close study by a number of alienists and gynecologists, among them being Redlich, Fenomenof, Rhein, and Bossi. And their conclusions indicate that this modern Circe, who spread ruin wherever she went, was not deliberately vicious, but merely the victim of her own diseased organism.

It was in 1907 that the world first heard of the beautiful Countess Marie Tarnowska. When Count Paul Kamarowsky, a Russian nobleman, was fatally shot at Venice, her name was the last word he uttered, and it was found that he was betrothed to her, and had insured his life for her benefit for the sum of $100,000. Soon her complicity in his death was suspected, and after a long and sensational trial, she was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment in the penitentiary at Trani. Her accomplice, Prilukoff, was condemned to ten years' penal servitude, and Nicholas Naumoff, who fired the fatal shot, was liberated, because the two years' incarceration which had preceded his trial was considered sufficient punishment for this dupe of a dangerous adventuress.

Not a Criminal.

But the woman who caused this and other crimes has not been utterly forgotten during her stay in an Italian prison. Professor Luigi M. Bossi, a distinguished alienist and gynecologist associated with the University of Genoa, was called as an expert for the defence at the trial in Genoa. He believed that the Countess Tarnowska was not a criminal, but an invalid, and he was indignant at the punishment inflicted upon her. With the purpose of getting before the world the true story of this most tragic woman, he persuaded Anne Vivanti Chartres, the novelist to visit her in prison and take down from her own lips the amazing narrative of her life. This Mrs. Chartres has done, and the result is the book "Marie Tarnowska," which is soon to be published.

So it is that one of the most mysterious crimes of modern times is at last revealed in all its startling details. And so, also, the life story of a beautiful woman who wrought more harm than any other of her generation is now told, and told in a way which may give credence to the theory that this woman's crimes and those of many other women have their source in physical weakness rather than moral depravity.

The history of the crime which brought to her the imprisonment from which she has just been released, may be briefly told as follows: The Countess was betrothed to Count Kamarowsky, a wealthy Russian nobleman, who was devoted to her. She, however, was in love with one Donat Prilukoff, who had been a prosperous Moscow lawyer until love for her had ruined him. With Prilukoff she plotted Kamarowsky's death, and with Prilukoff she intended to shape the fortune of Kamarowsky, which he had willed to her, and his life insurance, which was made out in her favor.

Bossi's Defence.

But the Countess and her lover were unwilling to be principals in the murder. So she persuaded Nicholas Naumoff, a young man who was desperately in love with her, to kill Kamarowsky as a means to gain her affection. He obeyed her, and with the results of his obedience the world is familiar.

It seems, from this bare recital, that no adequate defence of the Countess Tarnowska is possible. But Professor Bossi thinks otherwise. Here are his views, as he utters them in the address to Mrs. Chartres, which he prefaces her book:

"Not only as the medical expert for the defence at the trial of the Countess Tarnowska, but as one who has made it his life work to investigate the relation in women between criminal impulse and morbid physical condition, I cannot but feel the keenest interest in this book; in which you set forth the problem of wide human interest presented by the case of the prisoner in Trani.

"I believe that eventually it will promote the realization that even in the darkest regions of moral degradation it is possible for science to raise the torch of hope. Thus, though appealing for the moment to the interest of the general reader, it will ultimately constitute a significant document in the history of the evolution of pathological science."

ALL MOTHERS NEED CONSTANT STRENGTH

Their Strength is Taxed and They are Victims of Weakness and Suffering.

When there is a growing family to care for and the mother falls ill it is a serious matter. Many mothers who are on the go from morning to night, whose work, apparently, is never done, try to disguise their suffering and keep up an appearance of cheerfulness before their family. Only themselves know how they are distressed by backaches and headaches, dragging down pains and nervous weakness; how their nights are often sleepless, and they arise to a new day's work tired, depressed and quite unrefreshed. Such women should know that their sufferings are usually due to lack of good nourishing blood. They should know that the one thing they need above all others is to give their new blood and strength in rich red blood, and that among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their blood-making, health-restoring qualities. Every suffering woman, every woman with a home and family to care for should give these pills a fair trial, for they will keep her in health and strength and make her work easy. Mrs. G. Strasser, Acton West, Ont., says: "I am the mother of three children, and after each birth I became terribly run down; I had weak, thin blood, always felt tired, and unable to do my household work. After the birth of my third child I seemed to be worse, and was very badly run down. I was advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I found the greatest benefit from the Pills and soon gained my old-time strength. Indeed, after taking them I felt as well as in my girlhood, and could take pleasure in my work. I also used Baby's Own Tablets for my little ones and have found them a splendid medicine for childhood ailments."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

INCREASE IN USE OF SHELLS.

Germans Fired 817,000 in 1870, French 100,000 in a Day.

Interesting statistics concerning munitions of war are given by a writer in the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin in an article in which the great outcry for more munitions in England and in France is denounced as being insincere and caused chiefly by a desire to explain and excuse the failure of the Allies every time they have assumed the offensive.

The writer attempts to prove that heavy artillery has not, in spite of the prevailing opinion to the contrary, taken the place of the individual soldier in modern warfare. He quotes in support of this argument the bombardment announced by the German General Staff on March 10, when the Allies used 100,000 shells in twenty-four hours on a front of eleven kilometers. The cost of this bombardment is estimated at $1,625,000.

"In the Franco-German war," he says, "a German battery fired on an average 200 shells for each gun. In the Manchurian war the average had already risen to twice that figure. These totals are far exceeded by those of the present war. In the whole of the war of 1870-71 the German artillery fired 817,000 shells. Of these 470,000 were used in the sieges of French fortresses and 338,000 on the field. Of the latter total 10 per cent, was fired off in the battle of St. Privat alone. In the Russo-Japanese war the total was 954,000."

FEED CHILDREN

On Properly Selected Food. It Pays
Big Dividends.

If parents will give just a little intelligent thought to the feeding of their children the difference in the health of the little folks will pay, many times over, for the small trouble.

A mother writes: "Our children are all so much better and stronger than they ever were before we made a change in the character of the food. We have quit using potatoes three times a day with coffee and so much meat."

"Now we give the little folks some fruit, either fresh, stewed, or canned, some Grape-Nuts with cream, occasionally some soft-boiled eggs, and some Postum for breakfast and supper. Then for dinner they have some meat and vegetables."

"It would be hard to fully describe the change in the children; they have grown so sturdy and strong, and we attribute this change to the food elements that, I understand, exist in Grape-Nuts and Postum."

"A short time ago my baby was teething and had a great deal of stomach and bowel trouble. Nothing seemed to agree with him until I tried Grape-Nuts softened and mixed with rich milk and he improved rapidly and got sturdy and well."

THE GROOMING OF FLOWERS.

Numerous Instruments Are Used By French Florists.

The instruments used by the French florists to prolong the life of cut flowers and remove imperfections are a numerous and delicate as those of a well-equipped dressing-table. They include scissors of all sizes and shapes, small cutting-pliers and pinners of many kinds, brushes, atomizers, sprays, and bottles, containing various gums. A withered leaf or even one poorly developed ruin the appearance of a rosebud, consequently the one is cut off, and the other, if possible, is reshaped. The buds are also pierced as near the base of the flowers as possible, with minute wires which keep the leaves in place. An instrument very similar to a curling-iron is used to dress a faulty leaf.

One of the means employed to prolong the life of the flower is to remove the anthers, so as to prevent the spreading of the pollen, for, if fertilization is allowed to take place, the flower has fulfilled its mission and soon fades. In flowers of the lily order the anthers are removed for still another reason. They develop such an abundance of yellow pollen that it falls and taints the leaves, thus marred the spotless white beauty of the flower. The stems of flowers that begin to hang their heads are placed in very hot water for about five minutes, and then are placed in a dark and cool place for about an hour.

ARMENIANS PERSECUTED.

Those Who Escaped Kurds Said to Succumb to Privations.

"The Turks are gradually but effectively exterminating the Armenian people," asserts the Dedeagatch correspondent of the London Times. "The modus operandi is to send from each Armenian village day by day as many persons as a train can carry. When they arrive at Koniah, or some adjacent station, they are turned out and an escort furnished over the Taurus Mountains."

"Once on the other side, they are supplied with enough food for a few days and told to continue their journey to the neighborhood of Mosul, which they will now be in perfect safety. The region is nothing but a desert, and before many hours marauding bands of Kurds or Bedouins rob and pillage these helpless men, women and children, so that those who are not actually slain die of hunger or thirst. Not one ever reaches the intended destination, for should any one try to escape in another direction, Turkish shepherds have orders to shoot them at sight."

"Many distracted mothers throw their children into the Euphrates rather than see them suffer. Some even sell them for what they will bring before starting on their journey."

"A widely known American missionary who arrived at Constantinople the first week in September, declared he saw as many as 15,000 Armenians collected around one station waiting to be sent on this journey from which none would ever return."

"Chalik-Arissar, which resisted disarmament and deportation, is reported to have been bombarded, with the result that the entire population, including the bishop, was killed."

Lumbago's Misery Ceases, Every Aching Muscle Cured

JUST RUB ON OLD-TIME
"NERVILINE."

Not necessary to drug inside!
That awful stiffness that makes you yelp worse than a kicked dog will be cured—cured for a certainty, and quickly, too, if you just rub on Nerviline.

Rub Nerviline right into the sore spot, rub lots of it over those tortured muscles, do this and the pain will go. You see Nerviline is thin, not oily. Therefore it sinks in, it penetrates through the tissues, gets right to those stiff, sore muscles and irritated nerves that make you dance with pain.

You'll get almost instant relief from muscle soreness, stiffness, aching joints, lameness, or rheumatics by rubbing with Nerviline. It's a soothing liniment, and doesn't blister, doesn't burn or even stain the skin.

FEATS OF AIR MECHANICS.

The Work Requires Steady Nerves,
for It Entails Great Risks.

The tragic death of a naval air mechanic at Hoo aerodrome, in England, recently, who, after being lifted to a height of 700 feet by a trailer rope of an airship, lost his grip and fell to the ground, calls attention to the dangerous work daily carried out by the men behind the air services. The safety of the aeroplanes and airships used by the Royal Flying Corps and the Naval Air Service are dependent upon the conscientious work of the mechanics. Pilots themselves have not the time to personally examine every strut wire or bolt on their machines before taking them over the enemy's lines, and this important task is left to the "A. M.'s," as they are termed. The work of the air mechanic requires steady nerves, for it entails daily risks.

When airships start on voyages the mechanics, by means of numerous trailer ropes, hold the swaying vessel to earth until the signal is given to let go. In a wind a lighter-than-air machine is a difficult monster to manœuvre. It plunges and rears in the air with the unexpectedness of a broncho, and the mechanics are continually being lifted off their feet as the airship wrenches at the trailer ropes. Wee, betide the unfortunate mechanic who becomes entangled in a rope as the airship rises in the air. He is likely to be lifted to a height of several hundred feet, and to save his neck he must cling to the rope for ten or fifteen minutes while the airship is maneuvered back to earth.

Starting up the powerful aeroplane engines used in military machines is an important task of the air mechanic. He has to swing the 8-foot propeller in the front or rear of an aeroplane and jump to safety before it gets into its stride. The slightest slip would mean disaster, for the large blades of an aeroplane propeller, at a speed of over a thousand revolutions a minute and they will cut through any obstruction with the ease that a razor severs a bar of soap.

In the large type of military or naval aeroplanes, which weigh over a ton, air mechanics often have to ascend with the pilot to tend the engine. If the latter proves refractory a descent is made and the "A. M." has to get to work with his tools, often within range of the enemy's guns. The air mechanic, as many may imagine, does not keep out of danger well in the rear of the firing line. There are times when they have to make venturesome dashes on a motor repair lorry to assist an aviator who has landed close to the enemy's lines. If the aeroplane on such occasions is beyond repair, the mechanics have to do it to sinks in and back it on a lorry, dodging as best they can the shells directed at them from hostile artillery.

Most naval air mechanics are accomplished swimmers, and possess a constitution of iron. When the navy's great seaplanes are launched the mechanics generally have to wade up to their necks into the water to maneuver the machine from the shore. To plunge into icy-cold water in the half light of dawn is not a pleasant task, yet it is one which the sailor mechanics have to carry out almost daily.

In rough seas the waves break over their heads, and the seaplane they are maneuvering is tossed about like a cork. Yet in true naval spirit the mechanics of the Naval Air Service carry out their hazardous duties cheerfully, happy in the knowledge that they are doing their bit toward crushing out the might of the Germans.

Artillery Expert Dies.

The death is announced of Lieutenant Colonel Locarde, a distinguished French artillery expert. His death is said to have been due to overwork. During the present war he introduced several new forms of high explosive projectiles for close trench fighting. He is also the credit for the invention of the hydro-pneumatic brake, which is the most novel and important feature of the famous French 75-mm. gun.

YOUNGSTERS PLAY AT WAR.

Children of France in Trenches at Trouville.

The horse races and other social attraction, which bring the elite of society to Trouville, France, at this season every year, are lacking this year, but the famous resort is still lively with a tinge that is made up largely of convalescent soldiers and their nurses. Some of the biggest hotels are hospitals, some of the elegant villas also, but there are enough children to prevent the beach from being submerged in "blom."

The sands of Trouville are also the scene of interesting military operations. All along the beach, from Deauville to Trouville, there is an almost uninterrupted series of trenches built by the contingents of 1930 to 1935, now in their fifth to tenth year, who are working under the direction of convalescent soldiers. Bathers are obliged to give the countersign in order to pass, and, then, they are distinctly informed; it is at their own risk and peril, for their are labyrinths everywhere in imitation of those at the front. If a high west wind fills the trenches with sea water, recalling the winter campaign along the Yser, it heightens the joy of the 5 to 10-year-old "pollus," who jump into them in their bathing suits and make more noise than ever.

CHILDHOOD CONSTIPATION

Baby's Own Tablets will promptly cure constipation of childhood. They act as a gentle laxative, regulate the bowels and stomach and are absolutely safe. Concerning them Mrs. A. Crowell, Sandy Cove, N.S., writes: "I can strongly recommend Baby's Own Tablets to all mothers whose little ones are suffering from constipation." The tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SURGEON READY FOR AIR RAID.

Operated With Lamp When Bomb Wrecked Electric Plant.

Air raids are becoming so frequent that inhabitants of small towns on the east coast of England are getting used to them. The London Lancet tells the following story of an operation performed during one of the German raids:

"During one of the recent air raids on the east coast a well-known surgeon, performing an operation of tracheotomy at a nursing home when the German aircraft came over the place at night. The town electric current was at once cut off. All the lights went out suddenly, and this too at the very moment when the surgeon in question was opening the windpipe. Fortunately it was not the first attack delivered against this place, a fishing and sea bathing resort. The surgeon had had a matter of habit to warn his nurses and other assistants that lamps should be kept ready for use during all operations which had to be undertaken at night. This precaution may have saved the small patient's life. With but a trifling delay the tracheotomy was completed and the child is now doing well."

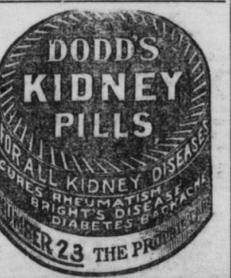

"He has performed so delicate an operation in such circumstances is a considerable feat, for the raid was a serious one, a good many bombs were dropped, several persons were killed and injured and the feeling at the moment was naturally one of intense apprehension. Some of the bombs hit a house in the neighborhood, the residence of another well-known practitioner. Luckily no one was at home at the time and the medical practitioner got off with the destruction of a certain amount of property. The experience recorded will no doubt inspire the taking by medical men generally of the precautions which in this case had been fortunately observed."

It costs one halfpenny a pound to send bacon from Petrograd to the United Kingdom, and slightly less for butter.

Minard's Linctum Cures Colds, &c.

O'Leary is a Joker, Too.

There is a new story in circulation about Michael O'Leary, the Irish V.C. During his visit to London a comrade greeted him enthusiastically and begged a single button from his coat. O'Leary, without a smile, answered: "I'll do better than that. A single button is too little for you. Just go across the street there and tell the man inside that I sent you and he will give you an entire set." The place was a recruiting office.

WAR HITS GLASGOW "PUBS."

Lessening of Hours, Decrease in Drunkenness.

In Glasgow public houses are now permitted to sell liquor five and a half hours a day only. The places are closed in the morning, when drinking would suit a workman for the entire day. Treating and the credit system are done away with, and the practice of carrying drink away in bottles is also forbidden.

Although these new restrictions have been in force but a short time, they have already resulted in a considerable decrease in the arrests for drunkenness. During the week preceding the curtailment of the hours when the houses were open all day, 325 men arrested for drunkenness and 88 women. In the first week that the restrictions were enforced the number of men arrested for drunkenness was 210 and the number of women who were haled before the police courts for the same cause was 84.

It is.
"Time is money."
"Yep, but it's mighty tough if time is all you've got to spend."

TO PROTECT TROOPS.

French Army to Have 200 Travelling Laboratories.

Two hundred travelling toxicological laboratories have been formed by the French army authorities and will shortly leave for the front. Their main utility will be to insure the health of the soldiers fighting in the trenches or resting in the cantonments. The chemists attached to each laboratory will analyze the water the soldiers drink and the foodstuffs brought to them so as to insure their perfect purity. They will also control the disinfection of the front line trenches whenever that is possible.

A secondary phase of their activities, from which, however, much is expected, will be the analysis of new German methods of attacking by gas bombs, liquid fire or gas clouds.

Each laboratory has attached to it either a skilled doctor or an expert analytical chemist with trained laboratory assistants.

Flaxseed Now a Wonderful Human Food.

as deodorized and used in Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal. It's the most nourishing seed grown. It has always been known as a wonderful food for stock, but since Dr. Jackson's discovery of a method of deodorizing it, it has become available as a delicious human food, 25% of it being used in Roman Meal. This food is guaranteed to relieve constipation or "money back." It also nourishes better than meat and prevents indigestion. Ask your doctor. At all grocers, 10 cents and 25 cents.

Reassuring Mother.

Edmund had just begun to attend the public school, and had found a new friend, a child of whom Edmund's mother had never heard.

"Who is this Walter?" she asked.

"Is he a nice little boy?"

"Yes, ma'am, he is!" replied Edmund enthusiastically.

"Does he say any naughty words?" pursued his mother.

"No," replied Edmund, with emphasis, "and I'm not going to teach him any!"

Minard's Linctum Cures Gargot in Cows

In Society.

Arthur was very proud of his Old World manners, and never lost an opportunity of displaying his knowledge of the ways of refined society. He once refused an invitation as follows:

"Mr. Arthur Blanks declines with pleasure Mrs. Wood's invitation for the 19th, and thanks her extremely for having given him the opportunity of doing so."

Minard's Linctum Cures Diphtheria.

Of British peers of the realm no fewer than 177 are, or have been, serving in his Majesty's forces during the war.

A Reminder.

Dobson—What does Bifkin remind you of?
Hobson—Well, every time I meet Bifkin he reminds me of a little debt I've owed him for over a year.

Minard's Linctum Cures Diphtheria.

No Sentiment There.

As a pleasant-faced woman passed the corner, Jones touched his hat to her, and remarked feelingly to his companion:

"Ah, my boy, I owe a great deal to that woman."

"Your mother?" was the query.

"No, my landlady."

A Druggist can obtain an imitation of MINARD'S LINIMENT from a Toronto House at a very low price, and have it labeled his own product. This greasy imitation is the poorest one we have yet seen of the many that every Tom, Dick and Harry has tried to introduce. Ask for MINARD'S and you will get it.

Apt Retort.

At a reception in Paris a traveller, who was a strong "anti-Semite," was talking to Rothschild on the beauties of the Island of Tahiti, and sarcastically remarked:

"There are neither hogs nor Jews there!"

"Indeed!" retorted Rothschild. "Then you and I should go together. We should be great curiosities."

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1915.

When the Canadian troops now actually under orders to proceed across the Atlantic shall have embarked, Canada will have sent overseas 100,000 men. Add to the army which Great Britain first sent to the Crimea, the British forces that fought under Wellington at Waterloo, and you will find that the total is 15,000 less than the force which Canada has already dispatched to the front. In addition, we have in training and on duty in Canada not less than 75,000. We have given and are giving our best. In valor, in initiative, and in resourcefulness the troops which Canada has sent and will continue to send are inferior to none in the world. During the first six months of the war the allied troops hardly fought on even terms by reason of the immense superiority of the enemy in guns, machine guns and ammunition of all kinds. That most serious handicap has now been almost, if not wholly, removed.

One of the curious inconsistencies of our civilization is the treatment generally accorded a newly wedded pair—treatment which is always an embarrassment and generally a source of physical discomfort, ruse and discourtesy at the best and often leading to serious results.

After weeks spent in preparing for the event, after florist and caterer have been called on for their best, after everything possible has been done to make the occasion a festival of joy and happiness, somebody with a perverted sense of humor spoils it all with his horseplay. The "humor" is manifested through acts calculated to annoy and embarrass, and which, however one may be enraged inwardly, good form decrees must be borne good-naturedly. A shower of rice—comfortable stuff to have down one's back; an avalanche of old shoes—it is on record that a bridegroom was once knocked senseless by a too energetically directed missile of this kind; ribbons and placards tied to luggage for the edification of depot loungers, are attentions that might well be spared. Why spoil an occasion at once so solemn and so joyous by such silly and ungracious interruptions?—From the Detroit Free Press.

A TIME FOR EVERYTHING.—The time for Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is when croupy symptoms appear in the children; when rheumatic pains beset the old; when lumbago, asthma, coughs, colds, catarrh or earache attack either young or old; when burns, scalds, abrasions, contusions or sprains come to any member of the family. In any of these ailments it will give relief and work a cure.

A fool and his father's money are easily separated.

Much distress and sickness in children is caused by worms. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator gives relief by removing the cause. Give it a trial and be convinced.

Electric signs are responsible for some bright remarks.

Sacred Picture of Virgin and Child in Holiest Sanctuary Torn Down.

The Rt. Hon. W. F. Bailey, C.B., one of the Irish Land Commissioners, tells in the Fortnightly Review, a most appalling story of what the German invasion of Poland means to the Polish people.

The story is far more terrible than the story of Belgium, and half of the whole story will never be told to Europe. It is the story of how a Christian nation invaded another Christian country, defiled its sanctuaries and its women, made a mock of its faith, hunted women and children to the death, and set going such an exodus of sorrow-distressed people as the world has never seen before.

Mr. Bailey begins his story thus:

"A cheap German postcard, purchased in Berlin for ten pennings, was brought to me a few days ago. It bore the inscription, 'The famous picture of the Virgin and Child captured from Czenstochowa by our gallant army. At the top of the card is inserted a portrait of the Kaiser, surmounted by the Imperial Crown of Germany. We can realize the anguish of the Polish peasant as we look on this card—he who has made pilgrimage to Czenstochowa, 'the Holy Place' of Poland."

Mr. Bailey gives a picture of Czenstochowa—the Holy Place of Poland—on the occasion of one of these pilgrimages, and it is important to realize what these mean in the life of the Polish peasantry to understand the barbarity of the deed by which this famous picture, "the Heart of the Heart of Poland," became the Kaiser's share of loot, and was sold on postcards in Berlin for a penny!

"Everyone who has travelled in Russia or in any Slav country knows what a pilgrimage means to these people," says Mr. Bailey. "Their vivid imaginations, their deep religious feelings, their idealism, are all brought out in strong color. Hundreds, even thousands, of miles will they travel to visit a 'Holy Place.' You see them coming in troops, whether it be the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, or the Triska Monastery near Moscow, or to the Shrine of Czenstochowa.

Poland's Holy Place.

"Let us see it on a winter's morning with a great pilgrimage arriving to visit the shrine of Poland's Virgin and Child. Round the 'Holy Place'—the small church which enshrines the relic which is revered by the Eastern and Western faith alike—a fact to be remembered—round the home of the oldest picture probably in the Christian world, a surging crowd collects. Amongst the scarcely breathing through there is a sudden movement, a ripple of intense excitement, then absolute stillness, for the music ceases. A tiny bell tinkles. The heavy curtains part asunder, and the picture becomes visible.

"Just at first nothing can be seen but a small, almost black square set in a splendid frame of diamonds, rubies, emeralds, topazes, and pearls, with a background of beaten gold.

"Only a little square, black and battered by age! But as one looks more intently the shadowy countenances of a soft-faced Byzantine Virgin and Child seem to emerge clear and awe-filling.

"To-day the portrait of its Virgin and Child forms part of the Polish loot of the Kaiser of Germany, and postcard copies of 'The Heart of the Heart of Poland' are being sold in Berlin for a penny!

"Czenstochowa stands to the southwest of Russian Poland just over the frontier, within striking distance of the German army of invasion. And, knowing the veneration with which the Poles regard this church and picture, the Kaiser published, through his secret agents, a statement to the effect that this Virgin and Child had appeared to him in a vision, and with tears commanded him to rescue their shrine from the Russians. He went on to inform the Poles that such was his intention, and advised them in forcible terms to render him such assistance as he might require. Among

The Vicar's Nephew; or The Orphan's Vindication

After supper he said good-night, and carried his books upstairs, telling the Vicar that he had lessons to prepare for Monday's school. His room was small and low, but he liked it better than any other in the house, because it had windows facing east and west, so that he could see the sun both rise and set. When he had locked his door he took the cage from its hiding-place and set it on the western window-sill.

"All right, you little fool!" he grumbled to the terrified bird as it shrank up against the bars. "Keep your hair on! It's me he'll pitch into, not you."

He put into the cage a bit of water-cress which he had slipped inside his jacket at bedtime. But the mavis would only flutter desperately and beat its wings against the bars. Jack sat down on the sill beside it, turning his back to the sunset, and considered what to do next.

His first idea had been to keep the bird and tame it. Certainly a thrush would be a second-rate kind of pet; he would have much preferred, for instance, a starling, which could be taught to swear, and to blaspheme against bishops and against green-handled knives and missives to sea fishermen. But a thrush would be better than nothing; and if he was going to get into trouble for its sake, it was only fair that he should have some fun out of the transaction. On the other hand, wild creatures do not always take kindly to captivity; and for that matter, uncle would be angry enough to kill the bird for sheer spite if ever he should happen to find out.

Had he not drowsed Molly's pet kitten last winter, to punish her for getting her frock dirty? Jack's eyes darkened at the memory; he hated the Vicar with the silent, poisonous hatred that remembers and bides its time; and in his long and heavy sigh against his enemy this was a big item. Until lately his attitude towards Molly had been one of Olympian indifference; what had he to do with a mere girl, who was afraid of the dark and couldn't do so much as throw a stone straight? But the day when he had come home from school and found her in the toolhouse, blind and sick with crying because Fiddles was dead, and when she had said, "I speak so!"—had been the beginning of a new sense in him, that it was somehow his business to protect his sister.

No, there was nothing for it but to let the bird go. The fate of Fiddles was a warning; it does not do to get fond of creatures that you are not strong enough to defend. Once free in Trevenna Glen, the mavis must fight its own battles. "If you get caught again, you little duffer," he remarked, rising and opening the window, "I shan't help you out; once is enough."

Trevenna Glen lay soft and dim in a golden sunset haze. The water was too clear for flaming color; only a few high cloudlets trailed their faint rose bands across the west. From the beach came a low sound of ripples on the shingle; then the wailing cry of a sea-gull.

As Jack opened the cage door the mavis fluttered, panic-stricken, and shrank away. He drew back a little, and the bird passed by him like a lightning flash. He heard a sudden cry, a whirring of wings, and he leaned upon the sill, following with his eyes a moving black spot, small and smaller, that darted straight towards the glen.

He crossed the room and sat down on his bed, holding on to the foot-rail. He seemed to have gone all shaky inside, and there was a tightening in his throat. When he shut his eyes the tree-tops came back, and the yellow haze, and the apricot light, and the living soul that had been caged and now was free.

He opened his eyes at last and looked around him, solemnly afraid. The room startled him with its familiar aspect; it was the same, but he and he alone was changed. On the table lay his lesson books; the empty cage stood on the window-sill, the water-cress dangling from its bars. He must smash up the cage, by the way, or uncle would ask.

Ah, what did uncle matter now? He went back to the window and looked out, his shoulder on the lintel, his head against his arm. There he watched while the sunset faded. All the broad spaces between earth and sky were full of violet shadows; in the glen the treetops swayed a little, and grew still; the sea-birds called, and called again, and settled in the hollows, and all things fell asleep.

Then stars came out; one, and another, and a thousand, shining above shadowy trees and ghostly moorland half asleep, with clear eyes, full of wonder; as if they too had only now begun to understand, and, looking down upon the world's familiar face, had seen that it was good.

CHAPTER III.

As far back as Jack's earliest memories went, he had always liked animals and plants and rough grey rocks and yellow foam.

They had, indeed, been all there was to like. Human beings, especially grown-up ones, had hitherto played in his conception of life a singularly small and contemptible part. They were inevitable, of course, and sometimes useful; but neither interesting nor pleasant, and generally much in the way. Within the last three years a new element had been creeping into his relation with the adults of his world; he had begun to see in them natural, as it were, hereditary enemies. Anything brutal or stupid, any petty meanness or filthy interference on their part, seemed to him a matter of course, coming from creatures by nature illlogical, spiteful, and incompetent. His standpoint having once become fixed, many wise and necessary restrictions were lumped together with the others in careless contempt. He never troubled himself about the reasons of a prohibition; if a thing was forbidden it was presumably just because there was no sensible ground of objection to it.

Of men and women in any other capacity than that of despised authority, he had little knowledge. After the loss of the black-browed mother whom he could dimly remember, he and Molly had spent four years in St. Ives under the care of their grandmother and a crocheting machine aunt. These two ladies had regarded the children as visitations of Providence, whom, for their sins, they must at regular intervals feed and wash, especially Molly, who was ever more heroically plucked than Jack. But cold water and rough towels, excellent as they were, had not satisfied all the soul's needs of the growing boy; and as quite a small child he had sat up in his bed in the dark to address, to the anthropomorphic Thing which he had been taught to worship, a bitter reproach: "It's not fair. What did you make me for, if you weren't going to let anybody want me?"

The sailor father had wanted him, at any rate; it had been good to know that there was one person in the world who did not think it a disgrace for a boy to be dark and ugly and to have black eyes like his mother's, even though that person was nearly always at sea. But then had come a night of rough weather and seas signals all along the coast; and the sailor father had been driven over with a white face and a telegram. Since then the orphans had lived at the Vicarage in Portcharriek.

Josiah and Aunt Sarah had shown to the passionate boy much earnest care for his body's welfare and his soul's health, but very little personal friendliness or affection; and the little, when it came from the man, was tinged with impertinence, when from the woman, despised as weakness. People should play fair, and not try to catch you with shams that you didn't expect. Grown-ups were too clever to be engines of warfare, and should stick to them. One was moralising, or "jaw"; the other, sheer coercion. This latter, though disagreeable, seemed to him the more logical reason. It would have saved his mother's life, if she had been a white patch over an ragged ear. Now in her old age she had gone blind, and was no longer of any use as a watchdog. It would have been kinder to have her chloroformed, and she was growing too feeble to take exercise and keep healthy, and was becoming a burden to herself and an object of disgust to others. But Mrs. Raymond disliked the idea of killing anything; and the Vicar was too just a man to turn out a faithful servant because she was past her work; so Spotty remained in the yard, well fed and amused, and tolerated as aged paupers are tolerated.

On this old, ugly, miserable creature, whom death had passed by and forgotten, was showered all the hidden gold of Jack's affection. He never forgot to wash and comb her, or to soak her biscuits carefully, and never forgave any one who laughed at her infirmities. Under his indifference and callousness lay a dumb, fierce, hot resentment against the injustice of men and things; no one was ever fair to Spotty, because she had grown old and blind; as if that in itself were not unfair enough. No one was ever fair to him, because he was born ugly and wicked; and he could no more help that than Spotty could help being blind. Their common wrong was a bond between them; and it was Spotty alone who knew his secret.

THE BRITISH BULLDOG.

An Article That Will Interest All Animal Lovers.

In one sense the British bulldog, as we know him to-day, is a modern dog, and in another sense the breed is one of the oldest in the world. Most dog-fanciers, who are not blinded by prejudice in favor of one particular breed, are agreed that the Old English mastiff and the bulldog are descended from the same stock. Certain it is that the bulldog of fifty years ago was a very different dog from the bulldog of to-day.

The bulldog was probably invented in this way. The village butcher of many years ago would use a dog to assist him in capturing and holding the particular animal that he needed for meat.

In time the business of capturing a bull for food was developed into the sport of bull-baiting, and breeders of dogs developed their dogs on the lines required. Thus, the nose of the bulldog is in the middle of his face, so that he can hang on to his prey and breathe at the same time. No other dog can do this.

The bulldog is built to "stand his ground." The hindfeet are turned slightly outwards (thus turning the hocks slightly inwards) to enable the dog to get a good grip on the ground before he leaps on his prey. You will notice that a human prize-fighter unconsciously turns one foot in the same way, and for the same reason.

The Old English mastiff and the bulldog have this point in common. A thoroughbred dog of either breed has a reliable temper—a good temper. But a cross-bred dog is nearly always "awkward" as regards temper, and about the worst dog in the world for a child to play with.

The French bulldog is quite a different dog, although it is thought by some fanciers to be an offshoot of the British bulldog. The national dog of France is the poodle, which has the reputation of being the cleverest dog in the world. Fanciers will tell you that you can make a poodle do anything except love you.

The Borzoi, or wolf-hound, is the national dog of Russia. A Borzoi is not unlike our greyhound, but with a rough coat. The breed is one of the favorites of Queen Alexandra, who also has a fancy for the national dogs of Japan, the little black and white toy spaniels.

Brave little Belgium has its national dog, the griffon, a very sporty little dog, loved in this country as a toy dog, although the griffon is really as game as any terrier.

The Italian greyhound, Italy's dog, is similar in appearance to the English whippet or miniature greyhound. Queen Victoria was very fond of Italian greyhounds, and owned several excellent specimens of the breed.

Germany's national dog is, of course, the dachshund, familiar to most of us as "the dog that is sold by the yard."

The Pleasures of Youth.

A public school teacher once put this question to her pupils: "Which would you rather have—three bags with two apples in each bag, or two bags with three apples in each bag?"

"Three bags with two apples in each bag," was the surprising answer given by one lad, while the rest of the class was struggling with the problem.

"Why, Harry?"

"Because there'd be one more bag to bust!"

FRENCH SCHOOL FOR GRENADE MEN

DESCRIPTION OF A VISIT TO AN ARMY SCHOOL.

Some Bombs Are Explosive and Some Scatter Burning Liquid All Around.

The latest evidence of the superior knowledge with which the ordinary soldier must be equipped is given by Ralph Pulitzer, in the New York World, in his account of a visit to a French school of bomb-throwing, where hundreds of men who must go down to the front trenches are taught the difficult art of making bombs explosive in the enemy's trench in preference to their own. The class is held in a peaceful field in a sheltered valley, and there is a uniformed instructor present who explains elaborately to his class of some 200 pupils the seven different types of hand-grenades and how each is fired. The first, a heavy variety that could not be thrown over 20 metres, is exploded by means of a metal pin attached by a thong to the thrower's wrist and thrust into a hole in the bomb before it is thrown. A small missile leaves the thrower's hand the quick withdrawal of the pin gives the spark which ignites a five-second fuse.

The second is pear-shaped with a spring that the grasp of the thrower releases, igniting a fuse of the same length as the first. Of the rest, we read:

The third bomb was a can of white tin attached by two wires to a white deal handle. A nail was stuck into a hole in the can. The nail was hammered in by a sharp rap against the ground. The nail, driven in, started the fuse.

The fourth bomb was black and round and was started by scratching the tip of a stiffly projecting bit of ignitable fuse against a black band of raspy material worn round the thumb of the left hand.

The fifth bomb was lighted in a very similar manner against the side of an ordinary safety-match box. These five were regular grenades.

Incendiary Bombs.

The sixth and seventh were incendiary grenades to set fire to wooden obstructions, etc. The one, in exploding, scattered the burning liquid to a distance of a few yards, the other set fire only to the spot where it burst.

The eighth was an asphyxiating bomb. I cannot, however, be too careful in emphasizing the fact that this so-called "asphyxiating" bomb was not poisonous, like the German asphyxiating gases, but merely irritated the eyes, nostrils, and throat, so that when thrown into a German bomb-proof it would force out the occupants. It left no ill after-effects.

The "class" withdrew to a distance of 200 feet; only the sergeant of engineers and Mr. Pulitzer remained in the trench. The former stood in a portion of the trench slightly widened for his purposes; the latter ventured no nearer than the door of the neighboring bomb-proof. The engineer picked up bomb number one. Says the observer:

Having seen the departure of the bomb, I ungracefully tumbled into the bomb-proof, with the engineer a close second. There was an appreciable pause. Then came an explosion, the violence of which astonished me. I could distinctly feel the ground shake. After giving the fragments which had been hurled our way plenty of time to come down on the roof, we stepped out into the trench again. He next picked up bomb number three with the deal handle, hammered the nail home with one sharp rap against the edge of the trench, and sent the bomb hurtling through the air.

The mechanism of the first bomb, as explained, was put in operation the instant he hammered the nail in. As it thus got a running start on us, we had only barely time to get under cover before the explosion took place.

After watching the way these three bombs were started and thrown, I now wanted to watch the rest of them exploded. So we moved out of the trench up to the top of a little rise about 50 yards to the right. The soldiers were all kept at their original distances of 200 yards behind the trench.

From my new position I got an excellent view of the engineer whistling his arm and letting fly of the heavy black objects rushing through the air; of the accuracy with which they hit the dummy trench; of the lazy manner in which they rolled only two or three feet along the ground before coming to rest, and of the tremendous inertia with which each lay apparently as dead and cold as a piece of coal dropped by some passing coal-cart, while the second of time which possibly elapsed seemed like a minute at the least. Then came an amazingly instantaneous burst of lead-colored smoke, covering a circle some 40 yards in diameter, accompanied by an explosion of surprising violence. I could see no flash of fire at all.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is safe to say that one of the decorations which the newly-made Lord Mayor of London, Sir Charles Cheers Wakefield, will not wear at the inaugural banquet in the Guildhall next month is the Order of the Crown of Prussia, conferred on him some years ago by the Kaiser. Sir Charles, beside being one of the most successful business men of London, is a great traveler and noted as a philanthropist, and in consequence has picked up considerable in the way of decorations and other honors abroad. He is the third native of Lancashire in succession to be Lord Mayor, and will be succeeded next year by another Lancastrian, in the person of Sir William Dunn.

With rare exceptions the post is never held but one year, and there has been no exception for 30 years. Sir Charles' firm has recently erected on Cheapside an imposing business building, Wakefield House, where his office is located, a block above St. Mary-le-Bow's, whose bells, according to tradition, were said to call Dick Whittington to be thrice Lord Mayor of London. The present Lord Mayor-elect, like the immortal Dick, prides himself on being a self-made man.

Armenia and the Armenians, figuring unappily in current dispatches, are terms which require more than ordinarily careful definition. In the widest significance, Armenia embraces the northeast corner of Asia-Turkey, the southern half of the Russian territory of Trans-Caucasia and the north-west corner of Persia. The three boundaries have a common point on little Ararat. The greater Ararat, where Noah is said to have debarked nearby in Russian Armenia.

In the same region, legend has it, was the Garden of Eden. If so, what was a terrestrial paradise has become a hell on earth. The scene of the atrocities is Turkish Armenia, particularly the region of Lake Van, where there were living about 925,000 Armenians when the deportations and massacres began. But Turkish Armenia has not held a majority of the Armenians, even in Turkey. There are 2,000,000 of this race altogether in the territories of the Porte.

In Russian Armenia are 1,000,000 more, and 150,000 in Persia; 250,000 are scattered through Europe, America and the East Indies. The afflicted people in Turkish Armenia have shared the land with 645,000 other Christians, Jews, a sprinkling of Gypsies and 4,500,000 Moslems, 1,666,000 of whom are the much-hated Kurds, who may be described as the agents of the Turks in the recent massacres.

THE SHIPS THAT KEEP THE SEA.

British Fleet is Always Ready for Battle.

Britons had no special need to have their faith in the navy re-inspired. It has never been lacking. Every day of immunity from German attack by sea, says the Ayrshire (Scotland) Post, has been its warrant; every day, too, of the skulking of the enemy in the Kiel Canal. It lies there, helpless, and not a single German craft, militant or peaceful, dare venture out into the blue sea. It is cheering, none the less, to read the account furnished by the accredited representative of the United States who has been permitted to visit the British ships, and to see with his own eyes how they look; and how they fare, and how sufficient they are for their work. There are the submarine hunters. By officers and men the submarine is regarded as "great sport." It appeals to them. On a chart the American was shown marked points that indicated where many submarines were either captured, or sunk, or supposed to be sunk. The auxiliary fleet, trawlers, mine-sweepers, and other like craft, number 2,300. Out on the North Sea are the patrols, and were these to report the slightest sign of the enemy, the big ships are ready to respond at a moment's notice. And the big ships themselves, "the immense field of grey shapes at anchor in precise order, which as one drew nearer became line after line of Dreadnoughts." As compared with some of the later monsters, the Queen Elizabeth, home from the Dardanelles, looked small. In her place in what is called "The Cat Squadron," lay the Tiger, the same Tiger that the Germans claim to have sent to the floor of the North Sea. And overhead sailed the seaplanes keeping guard over the monsters dozing at their anchor chains. Sir John Jellicoe, with his telescope under his arm, Beatty, Sturdee, and the rest of the squadron commanders, impressive in their youth, and all of unslacking vigilance, the bluejackets healthier than they were in peace times and constantly kept up to the mark in drill and in shooting, and in readiness for action at a moment's notice—all combine to make complete a satisfying picture. And from Jellicoe down they are all agreed that, if ever Germany had a chance on the North Sea, she has none now. It is Britannia that rules it. It is Britannia that keeps the sea. Germania sees to the canal.

About the Household

Selected Recipes.

Savory Roly-Poly Pudding.—Make a plain suet crust with three-quarters of a pound of flour and a quarter of a pound of suet, finely minced; roll it out rather thin and cover it, first with a layer of finely sliced or minced raw potato, on this put a layer of finely chopped meat of any kind, with a very small quantity of minced onion and a seasoning of salt and pepper. Wet the edge all round, roll up, tie in a scalded and floured cloth, and boil for two hours.

Yorkshire Tart.—Line bottom of deep baking dish with pastry, and spread on it one layer of preserved peaches or peach jam, mixed with little preserved ginger cut into small pieces. Weigh two eggs, take their weight in sugar, in butter and in flour, cream butter and sugar, add the eggs, whipped light, and put in flour, mixed with one-half teaspoon baking powder. Pour this mixture over preserves in dish, and bake good brown. A few minutes before taking tart from oven rub top of paste with butter or with raw egg.

Butter Balls.—Select young fresh green peas, and, after podding them, put to boil in the usual way. Sift into a bowl a cup of flour, a pinch of salt and a pinch of baking powder; rub into this one tablespoonful of butter, mix with cold water as for the dumplings, break the dough into bits and rub into tiny balls between well-floured hands. Flour the balls again lightly, and when the peas are tender and still boiling drop the butter balls among them. Boil a few minutes, cover and serve.

Fish Balls.—Take half a pound of cooked fish, free it from skin and bones, and then chop fine. Have six potatoes nicely boiled and mashed, mix the fish with these, add a little melted butter, some beaten egg, a teaspoonful of anchovy sauce and a teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley, with pepper and salt to season. The mixture should be of a workable consistency, and it is then made into balls, with floured hands, brushed with egg, and tossed in fine breadcrumbs. The balls are then fried in deep smoking fat until of a pretty golden color, and when drained served hot and piled on a hot ash on which a dolly has been placed.

To Prepare Cauliflower.—Prepare cauliflower as for boiled cauliflower and steam until soft. Separate in pieces and pour over the following sauce. Mix one and one-half teaspoonful of mustard, one and one-quarter teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful of powdered sugar, one and one-quarter teaspoonful of paprika. Add yolks of three eggs lightly beaten, one-fourth cupful olive oil and one-half cupful vinegar. Cook over hot water until mixture thickens. Remove from fire and add two tablespoonfuls butter cooked with one teaspoonful finely-chopped parsley.

Old-fashioned Ginger Bread.—Sift one teaspoonful of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt twice, with two cupfuls of flour. Stir to a cream, half a cupful of butter, the same of sugar and the same of molasses. Warm the mixture slightly and beat light before adding a well-whipped egg, a half teaspoonful of ginger. Dissolve half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda in a tablespoonful of hot water; stir this into half a cupful of sweet milk; lastly, stir in the flour, beat hard for one minute, and bake in two shallow pans, well buttered or in pate pans.

Banana Cream Pie.—Two cups milk, three eggs, three-fourths cup granulated sugar, one-fourth cup cornstarch, one-fourth teaspoon salt vanilla, two bananas, three tablespoonfuls powdered sugar, and pastry. Scald milk and stir into sugar, cornstarch and salt well mixed. When smooth and thick cool a little and stir in one whole egg and two egg yolks beaten together slightly. Flavor with one-half teaspoon vanilla and pour into plate lined with pastry. Oven should be hot at first, then moderated to prevent boiling. When pie is done slice peeled bananas (after carefully removing bitter threads) over top cover with meringue of egg whites, powdered sugar and one-fourth teaspoon of vanilla and bake ten minutes in slow oven.

What Salt Will Do.

Salt will revive a dying fire. Salt will remove stains on marble. Salt—coarse—is a good cleanser of irons. Salt in water or other fluid retards the boiling. Salt mixed with soda is a remedy for bee stings. Salt and water makes an excellent throat gargle. Salt and hot water will thaw a frozen drain-pipe. Salt will remove tea stains from delicate china cups. Salt spread in blackbeetle haunts will kill the pests. Salt added to snow makes the mixture much colder. Salt and water, warm, will stop chilblains from itching. Salt thrown on a fire will extinguish a burning chimney. Salt and lukewarm water is an excellent lotion for styes. Salt and warm water is an emetic in cases of poisoning. Salt mixed in cold water will remove bloodstains from linen.

Salt sprinkled on a range will absorb all grease splutterings.

Salt, warmed, and rubbed on a soiled light coat, will clean it. Salt added to the rinsing water prevents clothes from freezing. Salt placed under baking-tins in an oven prevents their burning. Salt stops neuralgia if sniffed into the nostril on the affected side. Salt will quickly clean a discolored bath or enamelled utensils.

Salt—a lump of—placed in the sink will keep the drain wholesome. Salt placed first in the frying-pan prevents grease from spluttering.

Salt and water rubbed into the scalp is good for falling hair after illness. Salt and water removes the lime in new curtains, and makes washing easier.

Salt and water cleans all crockery more easily and better than plain water.

Salt—a tiny pinch—added to the whites of eggs makes them froth more quickly.

Salt, thrown on the fire once a day, prevents the accumulation of soot in the flues.

Salt—a teaspoonful to a pint of warm water—rubbed into weak ankles strengthens them.

Salt and water will prevent the red borders in towels, etc., from running if the towels are steeped in it for twenty-four hours.

Salt added to potatoes when ready done ensures floureness and prevents them going to pieces.

Salt sprinkled over carpets before sweeping preserves the color and keeps away moths.

Salt rubbed on to an inkstain on a deal table, after the spot is dampened, removes the mark.

Salt thrown on fallen soot prevents the carpet marking, and enables the soot to be swept up cleanly.

Salt sniffed into the nose in the early morning, and the mouth then washed out with warm water, cures catarrh.

MORE WHEAT IN BRITAIN.

Increased Production Urged by Lord Milner's Committee. Following the report prepared by Lord Milner's Committee on the Home Production of Food a strong campaign is being waged for the further development of wheat cultivation in the British Isles. Lord Milner's committee was appointed on the assumption that the war may last beyond the harvest of 1916. Experts have established the fact that Great Britain produces an entire year sufficient wheat to feed its people for about ten weeks of the fifty-two. It is pointed out that price is the ruling feature in determining the wheat area, or in other words the extent of land devoted to cultivation. The main recommendation advanced by the committee is that farmers should be assured that they would receive a minimum price for the crop during the next four years. The price suggested was 45 shillings a quarter for wheat, but the Government has already announced that it will refuse to incur such a liability. The committee concludes that the only method of effecting a substantial increase in the gross production of food in England and Wales for the harvest of 1916 and later consists in restoring to arable cultivation some of the poorer grass land laid down since the '70s. This increase of the arable area with proper farming would add to the wheat crop without diminishing the capacity to maintain existing live stock and the output of meat and milk.

A VERY SINGULAR METAL.

More Marvellous and Mysterious Than Radium.

In Central Russian Asia, and precisely in the territory of Ferghana, a local explorer has discovered a new metal even more marvellous and more mysterious than radium. The scientist in question, while handling minerals, put his hand by chance on a soft body, of a considerable weight, of opaque color. This, being absolutely unknown, readily absorbed his attention. The new metal was carried to the Moscow chemical laboratory, and subjected to minutely careful experiments, which afforded surprising results. In the presence of an acid it developed so intense a cold as immediately to reduce to powder, without gas emanations and without explosions, the receivers of glass, iron, and particularly thick granite, into which it was successively introduced. Treated with alkaline matter the substance, which has not a name yet, and which remained refractory to all the analytical processes, lost one-fifth of its weight. A sufficiency of it has now been collected for the purpose of systematic observations, which will have to be conducted with very great care, and will reveal, it is hoped, the true importance of the discovery, which the Russian scientists incline to regard as superior to that of radium itself. Meanwhile the surprising fact is the loss of weight undergone by all objects placed in contact with the new metal.

THE ALLIED ARMIES ARE WELL FED

THE PRINCIPAL FOODS ARE MEAT AND BREAD.

British Forces are the Best Fed Ever Placed in the Field.

No branch of the non-combatant services of the British army has won greater praise from soldiers at the front or more admiration from the public at home than has the Army Service Corps. It is only owing to the untiring efforts of this little army of provisioning merchants that the British forces have gained their reputation as the best-fed army that has ever been placed in the field.

The knowledge of this splendid provisioning of the army has unconsciously given rise to the theory that the soldiers of the other Allies are comparatively more or less insufficiently supplied with ammunition for the same man.

These impressions, however, are entirely erroneous, and a comparison between the official rations allowed to the soldiers of the allied nations will prove that the Frenchmen and the Russian are, like the British soldier, among the best-fed fighters in history.

In each of the allied armies—British, French, Russian and Belgian—the principal foods are meat and bread. A glance at the following figures, which indicate the daily allowance of meat and bread to every man of the four armies, will show that the fare of the others compares very favorably with that of the British:

	Meat, lbs.	Bread, lbs.
British	1 1/4	1 1/4
French	1	1 1/4
Russian	0 5/8	2 1/4
Belgian	0 3/4	1 1/4

How Russians are Fed.

The Briton, it will thus be seen, actually receives less bread than any of his comrades; but, on the other hand, his allowance of meat is considerably larger. In examining the soldiers' menus more closely, that of the Russian may be taken first, since it is the least known. In every case the allowances have been translated into English terms in order to make a comparison easier.

The Russian breakfasts later than any of the allied soldiers. He does not receive his first ration until just before 8 o'clock. These are:

Half an ounce of Tehai (tea), Three ounces of sugar, Three funt (2 1/2 lbs.) Cherni Chieb (black bread).

The tea and sugar have to last all day. The bread is usually served out on alternate days, six funt, (a little less than six pounds) each time.

For dinner, which generally takes place just before noon, each group of ten soldiers receives a large dish of "Borsht." This contains cabbage and potatoes mixed in various gravies. The ten men sit around the dish, each with a big wooden spoon, and all help themselves at once.

After this comes the national dish "Kasha," a kind of porridge. This the men eat in the same fashion as "Borsht." "Kasha" is very cheap in Russia, and soldiers can have as much as they want. When this has been disposed of the meal finishes with an allowance of half a pound of meat per man. The meat is cooked with the "Borsht."

The third and last Russian meal is served about 6.30 in the evening and consists of more "Borsht," together with a quarter of a pound of meat.

It often happens that the Russian soldier receives more bread than he needs, and the surplus he is allowed to sell in order to increase his meagre pay, which, it may be interesting to add, amounts to 50 kopeks, about a shilling, a month.

The Belgian Soldier

is allowed nearly 1 1/2 pounds of bread per day. This is known as "pain gris," a mixture of white and black bread. His meals are:

Thrilling Game of Life

Difficulties Needed to Teach Skill and Patience, Dangers to Elicit Courage.

"So run, that ye may obtain." I. Cor. ix., 24.

Paul, like his Master, was a man of the people. He mingled with them, saw their activities, their amusements and their temptations. Here he is present at their Olympian games and notes their enthusiasm, their arduous efforts to win and the joy and honor of the victor as he gains the prize.

And in this scene Paul finds a symbol of the far more thrilling game of life. Now, they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible. It is a game that has been played for untold ages, every man and woman of us being one of the two players in a game of his or her own. The chessboard is the world, the pieces are the conditions of our time and the rules of the game are the laws of nature.

The forces on our side are our high self, conscience, a noble ambition and faith in God. Those against us are our lower physical self, the love of riches and pleasure, the world temptation in winsome guise, and doubt of the good.

The True and Eternal.

The stakes for which we are playing are a worthy manhood or womanhood, usefulness, the respect of our fellow men, the approval of God and eternal life. Or, losing, our career will be one of weakness, failure and miscarriage of this life and of that which is to come.

Let no one protest on account of this hazardous game. For it but gives zest to life, and shows the Creator's wise design. This world is fuller of great souls, history shines with more

THE SUNDAY LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, OCTOBER 31.

Lesson V.—The Boy Joash Crowned King, 2 Kings 11, 1-20. Golden Text: Prov. 14, 11.

I. Jehoiada, the Priest, Pledges the Soldiers to Fealty (Verses 4-8).

Verses 4, 5. Fetched the captains over hundreds—The usual sub-division (see Deut. 1, 15; Exod. 18, 21, 25; and especially 1 Sam. 8, 12; 22, 7; 2 Sam. 18, 1).

Of the Carites and of the guard—This word is used only here and in verse 19 and in 2 Sam. 20, 23. In 2 Sam. the reading is "Cherethites." The marginal reading here is "executioners." The Carites were a particular sort of military bodyguard.

5. He commanded them—Jehoiada wanted, first, to protect the young prince's life and, secondly, to guard the palace. Athaliah would have attempted to take the life of Joash had she known he was alive; and the troops of Athaliah might attack the king's party. Hence the particularity of the priest's orders.

6. At the gate Sur—The gate of the foundation (see 2 Chron. 23, 5). At the gate behind the guard—The guard here means the swift runners who were kept very near the royal palace. If they were favorable to Athaliah, in this case, it was very necessary to have a special company of men at hand to keep them in check.

8. He that cometh within the ranks—See 2 Chron. 23, 7.

II. Joash is Crowned King (Verses 9-12).

9. Did according to all that Jehoiada the priest commanded—Jehoiada was "the prime mover," and so carefully had he prepared the movements that both the priestly and military guards carried the plan into successful execution without any confusion.

10. The spears and shields that had been King David's—Those David took in war from his enemies. This was the custom of using captured war implements (see 1 Sam. 21, 9; 2 Sam. 8, 7).

12. The king's son—He was so designated to indicate that he was the rightful heir. Gave him the testimony—A part of the law of Moses (see Exod. 16, 34; 25, 16, 21). This was in token of his authority (see Deut. 17, 18, 19).

Clapped their hands—See Psa. 47, 1; 98, 8.

Pat's Joke on the Bank.

"Sure, O'll write me name on the back of your note, guaranteein' ye'll pay ut," said Pat, smiling as he endorsed Billup's note, "but Oj know we won't pay ut. We'll have a laugh at th' expense of the bank."

WHEN THEY FOUGHT FOR COMMAND OF PERTHES

heroic records and civilization is on a far higher plane because men and women have had to play this game at their peril, have had to stand up against floods, to be purified through fire. By this means is our world a theatre of moral heroism and does the brightest splendor of humanity shine from sacrifice and the cross.

How shall each one play this crucial game so as not to lose? He must be truly master of himself. He must be the real pilot of his soul. He must have all his powers well in hand. The fiery steeds of passion must be guided by the cool reins of judgment.

No Failure Must Dishearten.

The will must be strong and free. There is a force, a principle, a personality of evil against us, tempting us to false moves and fatal steps. But a greater, beneficent power is on our side. God is for us. And He gives us the means of victory. Yes, God is with us by His Spirit, by His Son, by His holy angels, by His word, His church and grace.

Says the great dramatist:—"All the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players." Against many the odds are greater, the fight harder. But with not one is it left to accident or chance. But doing his or her best and looking to our God and Father, every player in this eventful game can win. There is no man, woman or youth but by piety, virtue, industry and unselfishness can make life a victory, success, joy and blessing. And to such God will give not a fading but an incorruptible crown.

Reader, whoever you are, how are you playing this mighty game?—Rev. J. B. Remensnyder, D.D., L.L.D.

ally shows that the constitution is weak.

One strange thing about the tongue is that, although it so often betrays the state of the stomach to the physician, yet in two of the most serious stomach troubles—cancer and gastric ulcer—the tongue is generally very clean.

The tongue in health is always under the muscular control of its own or, and should be perfectly steady when it is put out. A tremulous tongue denotes weakness, and the tongue that is coated and tremulous in the morning, but that grows steadier through the day, is generally the result of too much alcohol.—Youth's Companion.

The Bedroom.

It is strange how little thought is paid to the proper care and ventilation of the bedroom in many households. Windows in the dining and living rooms will often be regularly opened, and perhaps only an hour or two of each day spent in those rooms, but in the bedroom, where at least eight hours of the twenty-four are passed, the air can generally be depended upon to be stale and unhealthy. It is possible that in a good many cases this undoubted fact is due to the now exploded idea that night air is unhealthy.

Windows in a bedroom should never be closed completely, but both day and night should be open a few inches from the top. In the mornings the windows should be opened as much as possible, and the bed clothes so spread that a fresh current of air sweeps over them. The mattress, too, should be turned up so that this article may share in the hours' supply of fresh air.

Fortunately, for health's sake, valances and hangings generally about a bed are rapidly losing their popularity, and a hindrance to the proper ventilation of a room thus removed. The window curtains should not be too thick so as to impede the current of incoming air.

THOUGHTS FOR THE DAY.

Friendship is the greatest bond in the world.—Jeremy Taylor.

Our greatest glory is not in never failing, but in rising every time we fall.—Confucius.

To travel hopefully is a better thing than to arrive, and the true success is to labor.—R. L. Stevenson.

Leaving the door unlocked does not palliate the guilt of the burglar. The ease with which it is committed is no excuse for the crime.—Sir Thomas Barclay.

Our grandfathers drank to excess. It was the fashion, and they had to do it. It is no longer necessary to drink to excess. You may ask for a glass of milk in public and not be remarkable.—C. H. Babington.

Mothers and Maidens, believe me, the whole course and character of your lovers' lives is in your hands; what you would have them be they shall be, if you not only desire to have them so, but deserve to have them so; for they are but the mirrors in which you will see yourselves imaged.—Ruskin.

There will soon be a shortage of food in the whole world, and it is necessary that we should plant a great deal more. It is necessary that we should yield more per acre than now, and it is necessary that there should not be plough and spade idle in our country if the world is to be fed.—President Wilson.

Any and everybody is welcome to join. There is lots of work to be done. Help along.

Newbury has done a great deal of patriotic work. The ladies of the Red Cross Society have been busy knitting, making bandages and other necessities for the soldiers. The members of the Women's Institute have also done a great deal along the same lines, their last contribution being two large barrels of canned fruit, forwarded to Hyman Hall, London. Everyone joined in, and with the aid of a small part of the township of Moss contributed $250 to Trafalgar Day Red Cross Fund. Fifty dollars was also remitted to the London and Middlesex Patriotic Society on Monday.

Yours, very truly,

A CLEAR HEALTHY SKIN.—Eruptions of the skin and blotches which blemish beauty are the result of impure blood caused by unhealthy action of the liver and kidneys. In correcting this unhealthy action and restoring the organs to their normal condition, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will at the same time cleanse the blood, and the blotches and eruptions will disappear without leaving any trace.

DAVISVILLE.
Davisville, Oct. 26.—On Saturday evening the friends and neighbors of this vicinity assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell-Smith, the event being a farewell social gathering in honor of Mrs. Smith's son, Ralph Longley, a popular young man of the neighborhood, who has volunteered for overseas service. During the evening an impromptu program was given and appreciated by all. Then Pte. Longley was asked to please come forward while an address was read by Miss Effie Dursey and a presentation made by Miss Mabel Hillman of a safety razor. Afterwards a dainty lunch was served and then, wishing Pte. Longley all good success and a safe return, the evening was closed by singing the National Anthem. The address:—
Davisville, Oct. 23, 1915.
Mr. S. R. Longley.—Learning that you have volunteered for active service in defence of the Empire and the righteous cause for which it stands, we, your friends in this neighborhood, have assembled for the purpose of wishing you God-speed. We know that you have counted the cost, that you hold not your life dear if it be spent in the cause of freedom and justice. But we trust and pray that the supreme sacrifice may not be required of you, and that you may come safely through the conflict.
We believe that you will uphold the traditions of the British race by being steadfast and unflinching in the hour of danger and chivalrous and merciful in the hour of victory.
The noble deeds of our Canadian boys at Langemark have shed undying lustre upon the name of Canada, and with the inspiration of their heroism you will possess the haughty and faithless tyrants who would rule the world.
We must part now but we look forward to the time when, this cruel war being ended, we can call you upon your return as one of the men who did his bit to preserve for us the priceless heritage we enjoy. We would ask you to accept the accompanying token of our esteem. May it in the days to come remind you of your many friends here.
Signed on behalf of your friends—
Lela Dursey, Mabel Hillman, John Leitch, Andrew Armstrong.
