STOCKWELL'S

Why is HOOD'S Sarsaparilla

Such a great success, and why is it impossible for other Sarsaparillas and blood purifiers to compete with this great medicine? Because

No Other blood purifier gives as much medicine for the money as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

No Other Sarsaparilla has the careful personal supervision of the proprietor in all the details of its preparation, as has Hood's Sarsaparilla.

No Other Sarsaparilla has the merit to secure the confidence of entire communities and hold it year in and year out, as has Hood's Sarsaparilla.

No Other Sarsaparilla can produce from actual cases so wonderful statements of relief given to human suffering as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

No Other Sarsaparilla possesses the combination and process peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and which makes Hood's Sarsaparilla in curative effect peculiar to itself.

No Other Sarsaparilla combines economy and strength as does Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is the only preparation of which can truly be said, 10 Doses $1.

No Other Sarsaparilla has effected such remarkable cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla, of Scrofula, Salt Rheum, blood poisoning, and all other blood diseases.

No Other Sarsaparilla has equalled Hood's Sarsaparilla in the relief it gives in the severest cases of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Heartburn, and other stomach disorders.

No Other Sarsaparilla overcomes that Tired Feeling, Restores the Appetite, and "Makes the Weak Strong," like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's do not be induced to take any other Hood's Pills or Biliousness.

MINERS' PERILS.

Disasters in Montana and Colorado.

A Number of Men Crushed to Death and Another Group Horribly Scalded.

BUTTE, Mont., May 15.—Saturday afternoon a heavy cave-in occurred in the slopes of the last 800 feet level of the Anaconda mine. There were about fifteen men working at this point, and it is supposed that eight were killed. The dead bodies of John Smith, Wm. Clark and John Nestrum have been recovered. Three injured men were also taken out. It may be several days before the other dead bodies are reached.

LEADVILLE, Col., May 15.—An appalling accident occurred in the Penrose mine Saturday afternoon. The stampings on the 315 foot level burst and filled the level with steam, scalding the men horribly. Their names are A. W. Croner, Billy Little and Jas. Murray.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating." R. D. C. has been tried and tested, and has proved itself to be the king of medicines, the greatest cure of the age, and the only perfect dyspepsia remedy on the market.

Pinkette for Piles—A positive cure used and approved of by the medical profession. Price, $1 per box; sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price. W. T. Croner, druggist, 184 Dundas street, London, Ont.

R. D. C. is "worth its weight in gold." "Well-laid hot cakes," "it is all it is recommended," "an excellent remedy," and "the best dyspepsia remedy ever offered to the public." See testimonials.

No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of R. D. C. Kellogg's Dyspepsia Cure ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery, etc., in the market.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing the most distressing complaint, while stimulating the liver and regulating the bowels. Even if they are cured.

HEADACHE.

Asks they would be almost useless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find them the most valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick headache.

ACHE

is the name of so many ills that there is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are very small and easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not grip or purge, but by their gentle action cleanse the system. In vials at 25 cents five for $1. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail. CARTER MEDICINE CO., New York.

Small Pill. Small Dose. Small Price.

THE BOSTONS STILL LEADING.

Standing of the National League Baseball Clubs.

Interesting Matches Arranged by London Amateurs—Various Sporting Events.

BASEBALL.

THE ALERTS MEAN BUSINESS.

The Alerts have made arrangements with the Nationals, one of the strongest teams in the Toronto amateur league, to play two games here on May 24, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon. They have also secured a match with the Toronto Universities for June 2. Joe Webber has signed with the Alerts which makes the team complete and one of the strongest amateur clubs in the Province. They are prepared to tackle anything that comes along and will uphold the reputation of London and Western Ontario on the diamond.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.
The St. Louis Browns beat two games on Saturday. Chicago (first game)—Chicago, 6; St. Louis, 3. Second game—Chicago, 5; St. Louis, 3.

At Boston—The Bean-Eaters defeated the Brooklyn Saturday in a ten-inning game 8 to 7.

The following games were postponed by rain Saturday: National League—Philadelphia at New York, Washington at Baltimore, Pittsburgh at Cleveland, Louisville at Cincinnati.

THE STANDING.

On May 24 the Detroit A. C. baseball team plays two games with the University of Toronto. The club leaves on the Canadian Pacific at midnight Monday, and Manager Leadley has secured a special car for his men and those who desire to accompany him.

TURF.
The New York horse show closed Saturday night with a loss of about $10,000 to the promoters.

Longest, the favorite in the Brooklyn handicap, was given a trial of speed Saturday and covered the handicap distance in 2:14. The horse is in splendid form.

Allerton and Delmarche will trot at Des Moines next August for a purse of $10,000, 60 per cent. to go to the winner and 40 to the loser. All the contracts have been signed.

FOOTBALL.
The first of the home and home games between the M. A. A. of Detroit and Essex teams for the championship of the southwestern district was played Saturday at Essex and resulted in a victory for the M. A. A. by 3 goals to 1. The ground was very soft and a drizzling rain lasted throughout the game, making the playing very heavy.

ACQUATIC.
Hauian and O'Connor will likely row their double-oar race with Hosmer and Teemer over the course at Erie, Pa., about June 20. A letter has been received from Hosmer to that effect, and a satisfactory reply was returned.

FEDERATION.
The three-mile foot race between Peter Priddy, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Joseph Jordan, of Chicago, for $250 a side and gate receipts, was won by the former by 300 yards. About 500 people were present.

BOOTS, L.A., May 15.—Pedestrian Stone, who started to walk from San Francisco to New York on a wager of $5,000, he to walk 25 miles per day, no allowance to be made for sickness or bad weather, has reached here on his arrival he is credited with the fact that the water had been declared off, because, instead of walking around the bay, he had crossed it on a boat.

THE WHEEL.
Nesbitt, one of the best road bicycle riders in the world, is credited with having ridden three miles on the road in 7 minutes and 36 seconds on a geared ordinary. Coming on the top of Bates' long ride, this short spin in such quick time is of peculiar interest. By the time Shoreland, Bostford and the other cranks have given a public trial performance it is likely the safety will have a serious rival in the high wheel.

In order to enable those desiring to take part in the coming big bicycle handicap road race at Toronto, to get themselves into condition the date of the race has been changed from June 4 to June 11. It has also been decided to make the race open to Canadian bicyclists only.

J. D. Hyslop, of Stratford, on Tuesday last rode this cushion tire bicycle safely, from the Stratford postoffice to Mitchell in 52 minutes. This is a record on that road. The fastest previous time on any wheel was 54 minutes. Hyslop is the first Stratford cyclist to capture a record for 1892.

CRICKET.
A number of spectators witnessed an interesting cricket match Saturday afternoon between seniors and juniors on the grounds at the corner of Wellington and St. James streets. The London Cricket Club was well represented by the senior eleven, but they suffered signal defeat. The juniors played well and claimed that they "rattled" their opponents' bowlers.

The juniors scored about 80 runs and the seniors about 50. The secretary of the L. C. C. declined to give the score for publication.

Secure a Crandall type-writer at your own figure by attending Jones' Auction Rooms on Tuesday next. 65c.

Give Holloway's Corn Cure a trial. It removed ten corns from one pair of feet without any pain. What it has done once it will do again.

A Sensible Man.
Would use Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. It is curing more cases of Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all Throat and Lung Troubles, than any other medicine. The proprietor has authorized any druggist to give you a Sample Bottle Free to convince you of the merit of this great remedy. Large Bottles 50c and $1. ynt

Nothing in pure or impure contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension, and other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

"SAVE ME FROM MY FRIENDS!"

The Unenviable Position in Which Judge Elliot Is Placed.

A Calm, Non-Partisan Review of the Situation.

(Toronto Week.)

"Save me from my friends!" we may fancy Judge Elliot exclaiming when he learned that the Government and its supporters had refused him the opportunity to give a public denial or explanation, in reply to the serious charges made against him in connection with the petition discussed and dismissed at the Commons on Monday last. That those charges are serious cannot be denied. We happen to know of an Ontario judge of very high standing who makes it a matter of conscience to refuse to express, even to his friends, an opinion on any question which it is possible to conceive may some day come before him in some form for judicial decision. Everyone will readily perceive the wisdom and propriety of such a course. Our good opinion of the man will not suffer, even should he carry his scruples at times to what may seem to his friends an unreasonable extreme. In view of the unhappy intensity of party feeling in Canada, it is manifestly only justice to the public that any time to be called on to pronounce decision on some question arising out of the contests between the political parties, to take any share in the party struggles, even to the extent of privately supporting the candidate of his choice. But here it is openly charged that not only did Judge Elliot advocate the cause of one of the candidates in private, but that he wrote strong articles for the party newspaper, indulged in open prophecies as to the result of the contest, and even intimated beforehand the nature of the decision which would be rendered in the case which was to come before him for adjudication. We are far from saying that we believe these charges to be capable of proof, though some prominent members of Parliament declared themselves prepared to prove them, for it seems impossible to believe that a judge of the high character which Judge Elliot has always been believed to possess could have so forgotten himself, even in the heat of a political contest in which both his political and his personal feelings may have been deeply involved, as to have staked his judicial impartiality in such a way. But he is conscious of having done so, and would surely have been the greatest fault that could be done him under the circumstances to have had a copy of the accusations sent to him, with a request for explanation. This would have given him an opportunity, without any compromise of the integrity, dignity and etiquette which forbid him to defend himself in the newspapers, to make his defense and send it forth throughout the whole Dominion, to the vindication of his own reputation, the confusion of false accusers and the honor of the Canadian bench. Then would have been time for his friends in the House to declare the charges to be baseless and vexatious and utterly unworthy of being made the pretext for an investigation by a committee of the House. As the matter now stands, the accused judge has no proper opportunity to meet the charges, and they will be left on record, not only to the permanent injury of his personal reputation, but to the dishonouring of the popular respect for the Canadian judiciary.

"THE PRESIDENT'S RUN."
Mr. Geo. C. Gibbons Entertains the Hunt Club at "Glenmore"—A Lively Chase After the Hounds.

The London Hunt Club enjoyed their last run of the spring season Saturday afternoon at "Glenmore." The weather was very warm, and on this account the club decided to discontinue their weekly sport until the fall. This chase was known as the "President's run." The club met at "Glenmore" at 3 o'clock, and the hunt was started where Adelaide street crosses the 4th concession of London township. At 4:30 they left this point at a lively pace. Mr. Geo. Wilson was master. The route taken lay across Duke's road and the farm in an easterly direction to the asylum. Here they had a check and afterwards ran back along the south side of the Thames, finishing at the Adelaide street bridge. From here they trotted back to the kennels. The run was an excellent one and the attendance was the largest of the season. There were no mishaps, although there were some stiff jumps, all of which were well taken. There was one good water jump which seemed willing to negotiate. There were fourteen starting on the run, and among those finishing were Miss Helen Gibbons, Geo. C. Gibbons, president of the club, Mr. John Fulcher, huntsman; Mr. Geo. Wilson, master and Messrs. Dr. H. R. Abbott, Dr. B. Kilgour, Butler, Hugh Niven, Graydon, Wadsworth, Capt. Wadmore and Capt. McQueen.

On the return to the kennels Mr. Geo. C. Gibbons entertained the members of the club and a few friends to an informal reception where everybody felt perfectly at home. A very pleasant time was spent, the only occurrence that tended to mar the pleasure being the fact that the huntsman Fulcher severing his connection with the club. He has been an invaluable member for some years and has always taken an active interest in the Hunt.

It is a delightful spectacle to view the riders in their scarlet jackets bounding over rough and smooth land, over fences and streams of water, enjoying the exhilarating sport to their heart's content. The presence of a lady—a young girl in this case—made the scene the more attractive. Under all the circumstances it is surprising that the membership of the club does not increase more rapidly than it does. Every member tests to the unbounded pleasure afforded by the weekly runs. A young lady or gentleman could take no better exercise than riding, and why not enjoy the lively chase participated in by the London Hunt?

All for a Barley Corn.
La Fontaine, in one of his fables, tells of a barnyard fowl that scratched up a gem while scratching for corn. Not knowing its value, he gave it to a stone-cutter for a barley corn. Thus do many persons throw away the priceless pearl of health.

Mr. Armstrong's Dual Language Resolution.

Text of the Proposed Declaration for Home Rule.

Liberals Will Battle for the Rights of Parliament—The Charges Against Caron and the Royal Commission.

OTTAWA, May 15.—The following is the full text of the motion given notice of by Mr. Armstrong (South Middlesex), which may come up for discussion to-morrow: "That it is expedient that power should be given to the Legislative Assembly of the Northwest Territories after the next general election of members of said Assembly to deal with all matters pertaining to education and the use of dual language in the courts and in the proceedings of the said Assembly, providing, however, that no school section as at present constituted shall be interfered with without the consent of the parties composing such section."

The home rule motion which Mr. Devlin will bring up at the earliest opportunity is in the following terms: "That in the opinion of the House of Commons of Canada the time has arrived when a substantial measure of home rule should be granted to Ireland, and this House expresses the hope that at the approaching general election in the United Kingdom a majority will be returned to Parliament pledged to enact a measure which, while safeguarding the unity and interests of the British Empire, will satisfy the legitimate and national aspirations of the Irish people by granting to them a parliament with jurisdiction over all matters of a local character."

It is reported that the Liberals in defense of the rights of Parliament and to resent interference by the Crown with the privileges of Parliament intend to move a resolution on going into supply, drawing the attention of the representative of the Crown in Canada to the view that any action by him in agreeing to a royal commission on the Caron charges would be in derogation of the rights of the House of Commons to deal with its own members and in direct violation of the constitution in the case of one of his advisers, as laid down in Todd, where it is proposed by the executive to use royal signature. For the purpose of depriving Parliament of its undoubted right, a case is made out, when it becomes not only the proper, but the imperative duty of the minority in Parliament to appeal from the decision of the majority. This is the more clear in the present instance, because not a single member of the majority or of the Executive defended the proposal from the charge of violating the constitution and the privileges of the House. The object of such resolution would not be to persuade the Governor-General to act against the advice of his Ministry, but to give him an opportunity of requiring his advisers to cite precedents for a royal commission, failing which, he could recede from the position they have taken, and get back to proper principles of Parliamentary Government as laid down by all the authorities and by the practice of the British Parliament.

A report from Quebec says: "The Elector recalls an incident which shows what powerful reasons the Ottawa Government must have for restricting the proof to be adduced before the royal commission into the Edgar charges against Sir Adolphe Caron to the payment of money by the companies involved, in virtue of a resolution adopted to that effect. Commenting on the fact that it is notorious that the money was not paid by those companies as official bodies, but by their directors or agents, and that there is not a railway in existence whose board of directors is silly enough to pass an official resolution when an official subscription is given, it recalls that when the corporation of the city of Quebec subscribed a million of dollars to the Lake St. John Railway Company, the latter was accused of having paid large sums corruptly to secure the adoption of a necessary bylaw. At the time the company emphatically denied the charge just as it has done in Sir A. Caron's present case. But what happened. On the subsequent trial of the famous Benjamin Trudel for perjury, it was fully proved that Mr. Elise Bonadett, one of the directors of the company, had paid $20,000 to Trudel, and, adds the Elector, the same thing was done in the present instance. Consequently, by limiting the inquiry, as it has been limited, the Government has virtually stifled it. Otherwise we are prepared to say that Mr. Edgar's proof would have even gone beyond his charges in the House."

It is rumored that unless Sir Hector Langevin asks for a committee of the view of exculpating himself, the Globe's charges of perjury against him and the discussion in the House of Commons will be the subject of a resolution and a discussion in the House of Commons.

The Cabinet were in session all day Saturday and discussed the personnel of the Caron royal commission. It is understood that a selection was made, but no names will be published until that portion of it which relates to the language. He feels that the rights of the French people in regard to their language should not be interfered with.

The Apprehy Postmaster Killed.
BRONTE, May 15.—The eastbound express passing here at 1 o'clock last night struck a man and ran over him, killing him near the station. The man was instantly killed and was recognized as J. Prescott, postmaster at Appleby. Deceased leaves a wife and a large family.

Three Young Men Drowned.
MONTREAL, May 15.—A terrible drowning accident took place to-day at Ste. Cene, Que. Three young men named Ste. Cyr, sons of a well known hotel-keeper of that place, went out boating, and the boat capsized, overturning them into the river. Before assistance could be given they were drowned.

Stayed Away Too Long.
WINNIPEG, Ont., May 14.—Twenty-one years ago Thomas J. Norman, an employee of the Kingsville woolen mill, deserted his seven months bride and disappeared. The union had been a happy one and no reason could be advanced for his unwhimsical conduct. A few months after Norman's disappearance a child was born and Mrs. Norman has continued an employee of the mill. On Wednesday last Norman came back to Kingsville and endeavored to secure a reconciliation, but Mrs. Norman told him she had gotten along without him 21 years and could continue to do so the rest of her life.

The Golden Fleece

By Julian Hawthorne.

"I assure you, I mean no insult. You cannot help knowing that I think you as beautiful and fascinating a woman as I have ever met; but of course you can't help being beautiful and fascinating. Do I insult you by having eyes? If so, I am sorry, but you will have to make the best of it."

With this, he turned in his seat, and calmly confronted her. Beautiful she certainly was, at that moment; but it was the beauty of an angry aspect. She had a pencil in her hand, with which, while he spoke, she had been sketching heads of some of the passengers in her little note-book. She was now handling this offensive object in such a way as to justify the fancy that, had it been charged with a bit of plumage of the HH quality, she would have driven it into Freeman's heart then and there.

"It is no insult," said she, in a sibilant voice, "to talk to me as you are doing, when you are just told that you love another woman and are going to meet her?"

Freeman's brows gradually knitted themselves in a frown of apparent perplexity. "I must say I don't understand you," he observed, at length. "I am quite sure I have said nothing of the sort. How could I?"

"If you wish to quibble about words, perhaps not. But was not that your meaning?"

"No, it wasn't. You are the only woman who has been in my thoughts to-day."

"You have intimated very clearly that you are engaged—married, for aught I know—to a woman whom you are now on your way to meet?"

At this point she stopped. Freeman had interrupted her with a shout of laughter. She had been very pale. She now flushed all over her face, and jumped to her feet.

"Sit down," he said, laying a hand on her dress, and (aided by a lurch of the vessel) pulling her into her seat again, "and listen to me. And then I shall insist upon an apology. This is too much!"

"I shall ask the captain—"

"You will not, I promise you. Look here! When I met you in Panama, I met the fellow I used to know in New York. He told me that he had recently crossed the continent with Professor Meschines, who used to teach geology and botany at Yale College, when he and I were students there. The professor had come over partly for the fun of the thing, and partly to look for specimens in the line of his profession. My friend parted from him at San Francisco; the professor was going farther south."

"What has all this to do with the woman who—"

"It has this to do with it—that the professor is the woman! He is over sixty years old, and has always been a good friend of mine; but I am not going to marry him. I am not engaged to him, he is not beautiful, nor even fascinating, except in the way of an elderly man of science. And he is the only human being, besides yourself, that I know or have ever heard of on the Pacific Coast. Now for my apology!"

Grace emitted a long breath, and sank back in her seat, with her hands clasped in her lap. She raised her head and covered her face with her hands. She rose, and sat erect, and bent an open-eyed, intent gaze upon her companion.

After this pantomime, she exclaimed, in the lowest and most musical of tones, "Oh! how hateful you are!" Then she cried out with animation, "I believe you did it on purpose!" Finally, she sank back again, with a soft laugh and sparkling eyes, at the same time stretching her right arm towards him and placing her hand on his, with a whisper, "There, then?"

Freeman, accepting the hand for the moment, kissed it, and continued to hold it.

"Am I not a little gone?" she murmured.

"You certainly are," replied Freeman.

"You mustn't hold my hand any more."

"Do you mean to withdraw your apology?"

"No; but it doesn't follow that."

"Oh, yes, it does. Besides, when a man receives such a delicate, refined, graceful, exquisite apology as this—here he lifted the hand, looked at it critically, and bestowed another kiss upon it—'he would be a fool not to make the most of it.'"

"Ah, I'm afraid your dangerous. You are well named—Freeman!"

"My name is Harvey; won't you call me by it?"

"Oh, I can't!"

"Try! Would it make it easier if I were to tell you by yours?"

"My name is Miss Parolee."

"Pooh! If we can't change so soon?"

"When I look at you, I see your name; when I think of you, I say it to myself—Grace!"

"How do you know I am going to change my name soon—or ever?"

"Whom are you talking to?"

"To you—Harvey! Oh! she snatched her hand away and pressed it over her lips.

"How do I know you are beautiful, Grace, and—irresistible?"

"But I'm not! You're making fun of me! Besides, I'm twenty."

"How many times have you been engaged?"

"Never. Nobody wants to be engaged to a poor girl. Oh me!"

"Do you know what you are made of, Grace? Fire and flowers! Few men in the world are men enough to be a match for you. But what have you been doing with yourself all this time? Why do you come to a place like this?"

"Maybe I had a presentiment that—"

"What nonsense we are talking! But what you said reminds me. It's the strangest coincidence!"

"What is it?"

"Our Professor Meschines—"

"On the contrary, he is a most matter-of-fact old gentleman."

"Do be quiet, and listen to me! When my mamma was a girl in school, there were two boys there—it was a boy-and-girl school—and they were great friends. But they both fell in love with my mamma."

"I can understand that," put in Freeman.

"How do you know I am like my mamma? Well, as I was saying, they both fell in love with her, and quarrelled with each other, and had a fight. The boy that won the fight is the man to whose house I am going."

"Then he didn't marry your mamma?"

"Of course not. But the one who got thrashed is your Professor Meschines."

"I see! The poor old professor! And he has remained a bachelor all his life."

"Mamma has often told me the story, and that the Frednook boy went to West Point, and distinguished himself in the Mexican war, and married a Mexican woman, and the Meschines boy became a professor in Yale College. And now I am going to see one of them, and you to see the other. Isn't that a coincidence?"

"The first of the long series, I trust. Is this West-Pointer a permanent settler here?"

"Yes, for ever so long—twenty years. He's a widower, but he has a daughter—Oh, I know you'll fall in love with her!"

"Is she like you?"

"I don't know. I've never seen her, or General Frednook either."

"Come to think of it, though, nobody is like you, Grace. Now, will you be so good as to apologize again?"

"Don't you think you're rather exacting, Harvey?"

However, the apology was finally repeated, and continued, more or less, during the rest of the voyage; and Grace quite forgot that she had never made Harvey tell what was really the cause of his coming to California. But she, on her side, had a secret. She never allowed him to suspect that the past eighteen months of her life had been passed as employed in a New York drygoods store.

CHAPTER III.
General Frednook's house was built by Spanish missionaries in the sixteenth century; and in its main features it was little altered in three hundred years. In a climate where there is no frost, walls of adobe last as long as granite. The house consisted, practically of but one story; for although there were rooms under the roof, they were used only for storage; no one slept in them. The plan of the building was not unlike that of a railway-car—or, it might be more appropriate to say, of emigrant-wagons. There was a series of rooms, ranged in a line, access to them being had from a narrow corridor, which opened on the rear veranda. Several of the rooms also communicated directly with each other, and through low windows, gave on the veranda in front; the house was merely a comparatively narrow array of apartments between two broad verandas, where most of the living, including much of the sleeping, was done.

Logically, there can be nothing uglier than a Spanish-American dwelling of this type. But, as a matter of fact, they appear so positively beautiful. The thick white walls acquire a certain softness of tone; the surface scales off here and there, and cracks and crevices appear. In a damp country, like England, they would soon become covered with moss; but moss is not to be had in this region, though one were to offer for it the price of the silk velvet, triple ply, which so much resembles it. Nevertheless, there are compensations. The soil is exhaustively fertile, and its fertility expresses itself in the most inveterate beauty. Such colors and varieties of flowers exist nowhere else, and they continue all the year round. Climbing vines storm the walls, and their green ladders all over it, for beauty to walk up and down. Hugh jars standing on the verandas, emit volcans of lovely blossoms; and vases swung from the roof drip and overflow with odors, as if water had turned to flowers. In the garden, which extends over several acres at the front of the house, and, as it were, makes it an island in the gorgeous sea of petals, there are roses, carnations, geraniums, pinks, granates, and a hundred rivals whose names are unknown to the present historian, marching joyfully and triumphantly through the seasons, as the symphony moves through changes in the central theme.

Everything that is not an animal or a mineral seems to be a flower. There are too many flowers—or, rather, there is not enough of anything else. The faculty of association warms and at last ceases to take note. It is like conversing with a person whose every word is an epigram. The senses have their limitations, and imagination and expectation are half of beauty as roses, carnations, geraniums, pinks, granates, and a hundred rivals whose names are unknown to the present historian, marching joyfully and triumphantly through the seasons, as the symphony moves through changes in the central theme.

Monotony is the ruling characteristic—monotony of beauty, monotony of desolation, monotony even of variety. The glorious blue orchard is monotonous; as for the thermometer, it paces up and down within the narrowest limits, like a prisoner in his cell, or a meadow-lark hopping to and fro in seven-inch cage. The plan and aspect of the buildings are monotonous, and so is the way of life of those who inhabit them. Fortunately, the sun does rise and set in Southern California; otherwise life there would be at an absolute stand-still, with no past and no future. But, as it is, one can look forward to morning, and remember the evening.

Then, there are the not infrequent but seldom very destructive earthquakes; the occasional cloud-bursts and tornadoes, sudden and violent as a gunpowder-explosion; and finally, the astounding contrast between the fertile regions and the desert. There are places where you can stand with one foot planted in everlasting sterility and the other in immortal verdure. In the midst of an arid and hopeless waste, you come suddenly upon the brink of a narrow ravine, sharply defined as if cut out with an axe, and packed to the brim with enchanting and voluptuous fertility. Or you will come upon mountains which sweep upward out of burning death into sumptuous life. When the monotony of life makes the monotony of death, Southern California becomes a land of contrasts; and the contrasts themselves become monotonous.

WORDS THAT BURN.

LISTEN.
Whoever you are as you read this, whatever you troubles or grief, I want you to know and to heed this: The day draweth near with relief.
No sorrow, no woe is unending, though heaven seems voiceless and dumb, so sure as your voice is ascending, so surely an answer will come.
Whatever temptation is near you, whose eyes on this simple verse fall; Remember good angels will hear you, And help you to stand if you call.
Thoughtstunned with despair I beseech you, Whatever your losses, you need, Believe, when these printed words reach you, Believe you were born to succeed.
You are stronger, this minute, I tell you, Than any unfortunate fate! And the coveted prize—you can win it; While life lasts 'tis never too late!
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

IN MAY.
Grief was my master yesternight, To-morrow I may grieve again, But now the windy plain The clouds have taken flight.
The sowers in the furrows go; The lusty river brimeth on; The curtains from the hills are gone, The leaves are out, and lo!

The silvery distance of the day, The light horizons, and, between, The glory of the perfect green, The tumult of the May.
The bobolinks at noonday sing More softly than the softest flute, And lighter than the lightest lute Their fairy tambours ring.

The roads far off are towered with dust; The cherry blossoms are swept and thinned; In yonder awaying elms the wind Is charging gust on gust.
But here there is no stir at all; The ministers of sun and shadow Hoard all the perfume of the meadow Behind a grassy wall.

An infant riuilet wind-free Adown the guarded hollow sets, Over whose brink the violets Are nodding peacefully.
From pool to pool it prattles by; The flashing swallows dip and pass Above the tufted marsh grass; And here at rest am I.

I care not for the old distress, Or if to-morrow bid me moan; To-day is mine, and I have known An hour of blessedness.
—Archibald Lampman.
