Extricated. CALCUTTA, March 11 .-- Advices from the north show that the British column which was sent out against the Abors in Assam and was forced back to Sadyah has been extricated from its dangerous position.

The Czar's Birthday.

workingmen went to the burial places of the revolutionists who were shot and placed wreaths on their graves. Cart vs. Carriage.

BERLIN, March 11 .- A cart collided yesterday afternoon with the royal carriage, in which the Emperor's three youngest sons, Joachim, Oscar and August Wilhelm, were returning from a drive. The side of the carriage was smashed, but none of the inces were injured.

Colossal Conspiracy in Corea

YOKOHAMA, March 11. - Advices received from Corea tell of the discovery of a conspiracy to kill Prince Li Tchok, the heir to the Corean throne, with all of the King's Ministers and many other dignitaries. Upwards of 1,000 persons were arrested in connection with the plot.

International Arbitration.

LONDON, March 11 .- Under the initiative of the American committee the cause of international arbitration is being pushed among the British church people and a considerable agitation has been begun. The British provisional committee have resolved to extend their operations and are already forming an enlarged committee to be composed of clergymen of all Christian bodies and of conspicuous politicians.

Discount.

LONDON, March 11 .- The rates of discount last week were 13 for three months and 2 for 30 days. The influx of gold continued. Silver was unsteady, with a tendency to recover somewhat, as the impression prevailed that the worst had already happened. Prices on the Stock Exchange were firmer. The safer investment securities rose, although business in speculative stocks remained stagnant. American securities were firm, but transactions small.

France's Weak Navy.

Toulon, March 11 .- The commission of inquiry which is investigating the allegations of inefficiency against the French navy and the charges that the French coast defenses are inadequate has succeeded in obtaining a great deal of evidence sustaining the charges, which were in effect that the war vessels of France were practically useless as engines of war and the coast defenses so weak as to leave the country bordering the sea at the mercy of any firstclass naval power.

An Imperial Secret Made Public.

BERLIN, March 11 .- The true reason for the Empress' trip to Abazzia has become an open secret. Her Majesty has enfeebled her health by unwise efforts to reduce her weight. The imperial physicians think six weeks or two months will suffice to restore her health. The Emperor, Empress and Crown Prince drove to Charlottenburg on Friday and placed wreaths on the sarcophagus of Emperor William I. They did this in observance of the sixth anniversary of the old Emperor's death, British Soldiers in Africa.

BATHURST, Gambia, March 10.-The naval brigade made a landing yesterday for the purpose of attacking Gonjur, one of Chief Fodisilah's strongholds, which place the flagship Raleigh and the gunboat Widgeon had bombarded on the previous day. The commander of the British force was surprised to meet with no resistance to his approach to the place, and was still more amazed upon his arrival to find the village abandoned. The native chief had left the bodies of his soldiers where they were slain by the bombardment, without attempting to bury one of them. The whereabouts of Fodisilah and the remainder of his party has not yet been ascer-

The Victim of a Bomb Explosion. Rome, March 11 .- Signor Angeli, who died of wounds caused by the bomb explosion on Piazza di Citero, was buried yesterday afternoon. As he was a treasury official, Baron Sonnino, Finance Minister. and many men from the treasury offices walked in the funeral procession. Enormous crowds gathered along the route, and gave evidences of regret and sympathy with Angeli's family. The expenses of the funeral were defrayed by the Government.

Disgusted. BERLIN, March 11. - Pudolnh Von Ber- | bers escaped.

nigsen, member of the Reichstag for the eighteenth district of Hanover and leader of the National Liberal party, has decided to resign his office and retire to private life. He has become disgusted with the unmannerly proceedings in the Reichstag since men of the Sigl and Ahlward stripe began making themselves conspicuous in the debates. There is, however, considerable bad feeling in the National Liberal party. A rupture threatens and as Bennigsen is in his 70th year he feels no longer equal to the task of reconciling the warring factions. He has been sitting in the German Parlia. ments for more than 40 years.

Count Doehnhoff (Conservative) has resigned from his party organization owing to his difference with the other leaders over the Russian treaty. He favored the ratification of the treaty.

Captured a Yankee Millionaire's Daughter.

LONDON, March 11.-The marriage of Virginia Bonynge, daughter of the California millionaire, Charles William Bonynge, to Viscount Derhurst took place in the Church of All Saints, Kensington, yesterday afternoon. The church was well filled with guests, among whom were the Princess Christian, Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, the Countess of Arran, the Countess of Cairns, the Earl and Countess of Cadogan, the Earl and Countess of Essex, the Earl and Countess of Craven, Lord and Lady Burton, Mrs. Bradley. Martin, Gen. and Mrs. Byron, and many thers. The wedding gifts were numerous and magnificent.

British Parliamentary Programme. LONDON, March 11 .- The Queen's speech, which will be read to Parliament tomorrow, is much briefer than usual. Her Majesty congratulates the members upon the continuance of Great Britain's friendly arbitration as especially gratifying. She refers to the Anglo-Russian negotiations concerning frontiers in middle Asia and the Anglo-Chinese arrangements as regards the orders of Burmah, and expresses her re-British forces near Warina, northwest Africa. The encounter is mentioned as a "lamentable accident."

The speech proposes in domestic politics the expected programme with the two or three additions. The measures recommended are: The abolition of plural voting, the extension of Scotch local government, the organization of boards of conciliation to settle labor troubles, the amendment of the Factory Act, the disestablishment of tenants in Ireland and registration reform. Sir William Harcourt means to bring forward a Radical budget, raising the death the increase of taxation of beer and spiri-

The advent of Lord Rosebery to the Premiership has been viewed with misgiv. ings by churchmen. Both Mr. Gladstone and Lord Salisbury are high churchmen and generally made important church appointments pleasing to all of their creed. What Lord Rosebery may do under similar circumstances nobody knows and few can surmise, for he has always shown utter indifterence to the prejudices and feuds of church parties.

Lord Rosebery's attitude towards the House of Lords remains doubtful. The impression is that the Prime Minieter will suggest an interim measure giving the Peers the right to sit in the House of Commons as a preliminary to a sweeping reconstruction of the whole system of hereditary legislators. In a letter written in 1883 Lord Rosebery declared that he favored allowing the Peers the option of the Lower House. His supporters now argue that the occasion is inopportune for any more comprehensive reform.

as customary just before the opening of Parliament. Lord Rosebery entertained at William Harcourt in Downing street, the Duke of Davonshire at Devonshire House, and Lord Salisbury at 20 Arlington street. The outlines of the Queen's speech were communicated to the guests on each

The anti-Parnellite Commoners will meet soon after the reading of the Queen's speech to elect officers to decide upon the future policy of the party. The anti-Parnellite leaders have already obtained information sufficient to convince them the Government's course will be satisfactory. The report prevailed that John Morley had not obtained the assent of his colleagues to the project for the relief of the evicted tenants in Ireland. The fact is that Mr. Morley consented to retain his office only on the condition that the bill in question be taken in hand and the old Gladstone Cabinet be kept as nearly intact as possible. The plan of relief is based upon the recommendations of Justice Matthews' evicted tenants' commission. Through the land court the evicted tenants will be enabled to buy holdings, the time of repayment of borrowed capital being extended over a term of years. The clause concerning compulsory sales remains undecided. Justin McCarthy and his anti-Parnellite followers insist upon the compulsory feature, and their demand will hardly be refused. The position of the Government has been made easier by the improvement of the budgetary prospects. Instead of the expected deficit of over £2,000,000 there will be little more than £750,000 needed to balance the accounts. The change in the outlook is due to the increase of the revenue, especially of the part produced by the income tax.

The navy estimates will be laid before Parliament on March 19.

Two Doctors Victimized. TORONTO, March 10. - W. S. Lee is charged with having obtained $20 from Dr. Elliott and $6 from Dr. Pollard by false pretenses. About 6 o'clock two strangers entered the store of Charles Monahan, in East Main street, and asked for a pound of crackers, While Monahan was weighing the goods one man covered him with a revolver, demanding his money while the other went through the safe and secured $600 in cash. Monahan resisted the robbers and was shot through the arm, though not seriously wounded. The rob-

A Mine of Corruption Unearthed in the British Army.

Sympathy for Gladstone - Dufferin's Diplomacy-Against Bucket Shops-A Court Dress.

LONDON, March 11. - The Cabinet crisis is over, and the Parliamentary crisis is about to begin. Had it not been for the sudden interposition of the hand of death which raised Marjoribanks to the peerage, Ministerial reorganization would have been effected in a single day. The fate of the new Ministry largely depends upon its declaration of policy. It will be in every sense the most critical atterance in recent British politics.

Amid all speculations in the past day or two no one has attempted to prophesy with confidence what attitude the new Premier will take. All the extreme groups in the Gladstonian party are, it is safe to say, expecting too much. Several Radical members have assured me that the Rosebery programme will be much more radical than any ever issued by Gladstone. The relations to the powers. She mentions the Irish party hopes for assurance that the satisfactory conclusion of the Bering Sea cause of Ireland will still be kept paramount.

It is now generally believed that the new Ministry will seek to avoid dissolution at present. Lord Rosebery naturally degret for the encounter between French and sired to make some record in his high is a growing feeling that he will, as soon as an opportunity allows, endeavor to redraw the existing political lines. If he tries to make a new deal with the Liberal-Unionists and some of his Conservative friends, we shall have a highly interesting political drama. It would probably require more than even his consummate skill the church in Wales, the relief of evicted in handling men to escape falling between two stools. The desertion of his old supporters would probably come faster than duties in accordance with the former the enrollment of new recruits. He is Radical demands. He will advocate also now strenuously endeavoring to retain all groups of the Gladstonian folowers, but the Parnellites, already, are hopelessly lost to him. Dufferin's Diplomacy.

Lord Dufferin's speech on the peace of Europe in Paris on Monday has had a remarkably good effect throughout Europe. In France itself the words have been received in excellent spirit, and public sentiment has quite taken the sting from the vulgar insults to the British ambassador which, by a few days, preceded the address. The French Government's bold declaration of a policy of religious toleration also has been received as a distinct mark of progress.

Against Bucket Shops.

The Government has made the first move in what it is hoped will be an active campaign against bucket shop keepers by prosecuting and convicting one of the most impudent of the gang infesting the city of London. This fellow, Walter Henry Scott, traded as an outside broker under a score of aliases, and though he has been swindling the public for years, the charges against him were legally proved with the greatest difficulty. He was sentenced to eighteen months at hard labor, and the judge very properly expressed his regret that Parliament did not make the bucket shop business illegal.

The Phonograph's Use. Prof. Hubert Herkomer, of the Royal Academy, has put the phonograph to a new and excellent use at his studio. He delivers into the instrument his art lectures, and students came at certain hours and turn Among certain African nations the umbrella is a symbol of royalty. British soldiers carry off the king's umbrella after every little war. The monarch usually sends to London for a new one. A house here is now making an immense umbrella for a sable despot not far from the territories of the late King Coffee. It is the largest umbrella in the world. The stick is fifteen feet long, the ribs are of brass and when they are extended cover a space sufficient for twelve persons. The premier or other favored members of the government selected for the honor of carrying this enormous spread of gingham over the king and his family will wear a strong leather belt containing a socket into which the bamboo fits.

The train was brocaded with silver in a way which gave an imposing effect. A shower of ilies of the valley was carried with long trails of pure white orchids falling down over the dress, and with spikes of smaller flowers standing out from the lilies and mingled with white and green foliage.

Corruption in the Army. It used to be a cardinal article of an Englishman's faith that his army, if small, was of the very best possible quality, and that its administrators, from the commander-inchief down to the humblest subaltern officer, were incorruptible. The latter belief received a rude shock a few days ago when the Woolwich Arsenal was proved to be a hotbed of corruption, and a clean sweep had to be made of some of its leading officers. The faith which survived that blow has now again been sorely tried. Officers Loch and Murray, in charge of the War Department armorv at the tower, Birmingham, have been placed under arrest and will be tried by court martial next week. The charges are systematic blackmailing, extending over a number of years, and frauds of the shabbiest and most unmilitary character. The tower is virtually a training school for A Magnificent Reception to the New regimental armorers, and no non-commissioned officer could hope to obtain the rank of armorer without a certificate of competency signed by Loch and Murray. It is alleged that these trusted officers extorted money as the price of every certificate, and also had a secret system whereby every workman applying for work and every soldier desiring promotion had to pay sums ranging from shillings to pounds. The incriminated officials have long been living far beyond their visible means, but the malpractices were not suspected until a few months ago, when the War Department in London began to receive anonymous letters purporting to be written by fleeced victims. The Secretary of War was unwilling to take cognizance of anonymous accusations the charges became so persistent and categorical that he decided to investigate them, and Col. King Harman was sent to Birmingham. With the assistance of the local police he soon obtained sufficient evidence to justify the arrests. The curious feature of the case is that Col. Nuttall, embled to-day at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The members of the House of Commons were summoned to the chamber of the House of Lords to hear the speech from the throne. After the usual formalities at the bar the Queen's speech was read by the lord high chancellor, Lord Herschell. The speech was as follows:

My Lords and Gentlemen: I regret, in view of my speech at the recent completion of your arduous labors. to have to summon you so soon to renew them. My relations with foreign powers continue amicable. Satisfactory negotiations between my Government and office before going to the country. There against the honor of reputable officers, but that of the Emperor of Russia for the settlement of frontier questions in Central Asia, are proceeding with a spirit of mutual confidence and good-will, which gives every hope of an early and equitable adjustment. I await the result of the inquiry which has been instituted in regard to these deplorable occurrences in full confidence that they will be examined in the calm and dignified manner which befits two great nations on such an occasion.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons: The estimates for public service for the year will be laid before you. They will be found to make full and adequate provision for the defense of the empire. The recent improvement in the state of Ireland has been continuous and marked. Agrarian crime has been reduced under the administration of ordinary law to the lowest point recorded in the last fifteen years. A measure will be submitted to you with the view of a reasonable settle-

There will also be presented to you bills with the object of equalization of rates in London, the establishment of a system of local government in Scotland on the same basis as that recently accorded to England and Wales, and the exercise of direct local control over the liquor traffic. Judge Burke will decide to-morrow whether he will thus help along the cause of woman's emancipation. Miss Farson voted last year upon the school question, and as a consequence her name appears upon the voting list.

How the Policy of Restriction

If Honestly Worked For, Reciprocity Can be Had.

But Not by the Men in the Pay of the Past Depression Was Not Caused by the Low Tariff on Imports.

(Hon. David Mills at Delaware.) The farmers have been told over and over again by the men now in power at Ottawa that they were getting their manufactured goods cheaper under the National Policy than they were able to purchase them before, as if, were the statement true, the National Policy had anything to do with the reduction of prices in the case of monopolies; but they have been very careful not to use this argument in reference to prices received for the value of the products of the farm, Many things which have been the result of new inventions have been attributed to the "National Policy." To-day the railways can carry freights 25 miles at the same cost that a team of horses can carry the same product one mile, but this is not due to any form of taxation that has been adopted on this continent, and I say that those of us who favor tariff reform will not rest content until every misstatement is disproved and every fallacy triumphantly exposed. I don't think that anything which has been accomplished through the instrumentality of the protective reliev on behalf of the of the protective policy on behalf of the farming population is likely to induce them to submit the matter to you, and to demand of you the meed of applause and the gratitude which great and beneficial services entitle men to receive at the hands of those upon whom they have conferred lasting benefits. I don't think that you are likely to hear these gentlemen impudently claiming from the platform that it falls within their province to see that you do not get less than $1 a bushel for your wheat and 75 cents a bushel for your barley; and that in respect to your sheep, wool, cows, horses, butter, poultry and eggs you get at least better prices than you did when the Mackenzie flies were on the public wheel. And it is now apparent to every unprejudiced mind that all the negotiations which have been undertaken were for the purpose of frustrating any chance which we might have of obtaining more free and satisfactory trade arrangements between Canada and the United States than those which at present exist. The Ministers saw clearly that they must choose between

But let me say to you that barrier must and will be removed. The peoples of the two countries will not much longer permit those barriers to exist. Their pecuniary interests and their good sense will yet triumph over the artifices of party and the selfishness of monopolies. * * * I am more than ever convinced that the Government of this country need not remain, as at present, commercially isolated from the rest of the continent; that A LIBERAL TRADE POLICY

I Britain. wish before wholly dismissing his observations to point out to you how completely independent those matters were of any action that it was then within the power of Parliament to take. I cannot do better than refer to the evidence that was taken by a committee as to the causes of that depression, and you will see how little it was in the power of a government to alter the condition of things that actually existed. So far as the ordinary farm products are concerned, prices were reasonably good both in the United Kingdom and in the United States; and so it was not from low prices or dull markets for farm products that the farmers were injurproducts that the farmers were injuriously affected. In fact the section of country extending from Toronto to the Detroit River felt the depression then complained of but little. The greatest sufferers were to be found in the lumbering | shouldn't be turned down. districts. Canada found a market for the lumber she had to sell in the United States, the United Kingdom and South America. The market of the United States and the market of South America for a time nearly ceased to exist. During the period when the protective system stimulated the growth of the cities, a large amount of Canadian lumber was annually consumed in building new factories and in the erection of cottages for the workmen. tempora When the crisis came in the neighboring stantly.

republic all this came to an end. As it was in the United States, so also was it in the English and in South American markets, and the great lumber mills in the valley of the Ottawa did not find their usual markets; they carried their lumber over. This was not all. But few of the 25,000 men usually employed in the lumber woods went thither. These men were accustomed to buy before leaving home their ordinary outfit. They bought supplies to last their families during the five or six months of their absence. When they were not em-ployed they were obliged to economize. The merchant and grocer did not sell their usual amount of supplies, but they were not the only parties affected. The farmer in the valley of the Ottawa looked to the lumberman as a purchaser of his oats and hay. These were not commodities which he had been in the habit of producing for a foreign market. They remained on his hands. When the manufacturer of agricultural implements called upon him for payment his answer was, "If you will take hay or oats I can pay you, but the lumber market is stagnant, and until it revives, my produce cannot be converted into cash." When foreign trade revived, when the English, the South American and the United States markets were again opened, payments were made; trade was again prosperous, industry was again stimulated; but all these changes were independent of the policy of the Government. They were hampered by additional taxation which had been imposed, but they were in no way helped by anything which Ministers did, and no one who will master the subject can reach any other conclusion in regard to these matters than that which -Practically navigation is open on the lower lakes, the earliest in many years. For some days there has been no ice in the neighborhood of Toronto, and yesterday the ice moved out of Hamilton Bay. As far as the eye could reach, Lake Ontario, off the Halton county coast, was clear of ice. does not wish Mr. Carling to boss the liquor licenses again, as was his wont in the old days. Its desire is to let the county judge have a finger in the pie. Would that be an improvement? The experience of Londoners is that Judge William Elliot is the most bitter partisan in this bailiewick. Our contemporary cannot get the sanction of the majority of the citizens of London for its latest scheme for the employment of its judge-editor. They are satisfied with the work of the gentlemen whom, in its unwisdom, the Free Press has maligned.

-"Knoxonian," in the Canada Presby. cerian, says: "A strong and at the same time a contemptibly mean disposition to magnify the mistakes and faults of its best friends, has always been one of the distinguishing characteristics of Canadian Liberalism," This arraignment is hardly justified, in view of the fact that Sir Oliver Mowat has been sustained as Prime Minister of Ontario for twenty years. Despite the attempts to seduce the Liberals of the Province from their allegiance to progressive principles and the stalwart conserver of the interests of this Province, there can be no reasonable doubt that Sir Oliver will again be returned to power with a handsome majority at his back.

AS VIEWED BY AN OUTSIDER. The Montreal Witness says:

"Ontario is to be heartily congratulated upon her financial position. She has a surplus this year of ordinary revenue over ordinary expenditure of $312,768, and a total surplus of interest yielding assets over liabilities of $6,135,480. She seems to have $1,500,000 in the banks at interest, including a balance on current account of $75,016. This splendid position is the result of a business-like management of the Province's timber limits and other sources of revenue, and a strictly economical and honest spending of the people's money by the Mowat Government during 25 years of uninterrupted administration. Under the management of Mr, Fraser, the retiring Minister of Public Works, upwards of $3,000,000 have been spent during the last five years upon public buildings, including nearly $1,500,-000 upon new parliamentary buildings, and yet not a dollar was challenged as misspent. Not a single extra of any kind was allowed in the construction of the new parliament buildings. There has been no conspiracy between the contractors and the Government by which the contractors getting extras contributed to election funds. The only wonder is that during the carnival of corruption and extravagance which has reigned at Ottawa and Quebec such a government as that of Ontario has been able to guard a full treasury from friends and foes alike and yet remain in power. Ontario's loyal Opposition, like her Government, have refrained from encouragbeen able to guard a full treasury from ing boodlers to make raids upon the ring to the early endeavors of these corps treasury, and deserve credit for their attitude. [Fourth contribution by the veteran Mr. Railton.] Since two installments of these reminiscences have appeared in your issues of Dec. 9 and 18 last it has been hinted that I had forgotten such and such things, alluding to events of more recent date, but these I purpose to overtake when the proper time comes, if I am spared to tackle the early fifties. A friendly pen having refreshed my memory about certain happenings which I had lost sight of, I shall endeavor to interweave them in the reminiscent web before my cogitations are exhausted.

Referring to Col. Wetherall, of the First Royals, whom I remember well in Glasgow when that distinguished corps occupied the old barracks "down the Gallowgate" in 1832, old residents of London will remember the pride which the "future hero of St. Charles and St. Eustache" took in the development of the Forest City and its surroundings. Essentially the father of his regiment, which was his chief care, he was intensely alive to the prosperity he held civil and military command. There were no "labor strikes" in those days, for although work was plentiful, yet laborers were few; and that gallant brigadier hit upon a plan which not only supplied the demand for help, but make timber eighteen inches square. benefited citizen and soldier alike, by a judicious distribution of working passes among the good conduct men of his regiment, who gladly helped the husbandman in the field, as well as the artisan in his shop. In place of keeping "disorderlies" confined to barracks at punishment drill, or perchance in the black hole, he turned out the rascals to work under a corporal's guard in the removal of gigantic stumps, which then abounded on the primitive roadways. Thus Wellington street, from Dunmen so employed, whether as prisoners or Before the Royals were relieved by the Twenty-third Royal Welsh Fusiliers, com--Our city contemporary tells us that it | manded by Major Holmes, an immense square extending from the pallisades in rear of the officers' quarters down to Duke street, had been transformed from a stumpy waste into a beautiful sward, and leveled like unto a bowling green, by Col. Wetherall's directions. That field, bounded east and west by Wellington and Sarnia streets, was piled up shoulder high and laid with geometrical precision. Military reviews, inspected by Gen. Clitherow and other commanders of her Majesty's forces in Canada, used to be held there, and athletic sports inspired by the officers of the garrison, cricketing and other amusements, at which one of the regimental bands usually attended, always attracted crowds of citizens. Scarcely a week passed in seasonable weather without some pleasurable excitement in those days of military pomp.

In 1842 the officers of the garrison got up a tournament (after the fashion of the Engintown tournament in Scotland) at which prizes were given for successful encounters with lance and single stick, tilting at the ring, etc., wherein some of our dashing artillerymen distinguished themselves by equestrian performances which "Wild Bill" might not have surpassed had he been built at that period. Upon that occasion a sprinkling of sportive citizens contributed to the amusements of the day by sack racing, wheeling hand barrows blindtolded, foot racing, leaping, vaulting and hopping, sparring with boxing gloves, climbing a greasy pole, and last, though not least, which created inordinate laughter, was grinning through a horse collar ! The officers were not stingy in bestowing their rewards, and Sir James Alexander, captain of the light company of the Fourteenth (which regiment had relieved the Eighty-third), was most enthusiastic in his encouragement of manly sports. Besides their regular field days on the inclosure referred to (which was afterwards swallowed up in the Queen's Park), and brigade exercise in the country, with occasional encampments at Schofield's Plains, the military had lots of recreation and the citizens plenty of amusement, for what with a garrison theater, a racquet court and a gymnasium, a pack of hounds and good steeds to follow them, together with hurdle races and flat races, etc., the chase being often variety with picnics, fishing and shooting parties, there was no lack of amusement to fight against the monotony of the bush! Game was then abundant, the sportsman having his choice of pheasant, wild turkey, partridge or deer. Neither was it difficult to get a shot at a bear, a racoon, a wildcat or a wolf, the scalps of the latter being then worth 50 cents each, Bruin madefrequent incursions by moonlight in the vicinity of the barracks to the consternation of the recruit upon his sentinel

Capt. Smyth (father of A. G. and J. Drill sheds had not then been invented, and as the volunteers were allowed to find their own clothing, ammunition and rations, without any Government recognition, for a long time, in place of a brass six-pounded which we coveted for gun drill, we were driven by the mother of invention to improvise the unique contrivance of a short-range stovepipe mounted upon an old chair, which our active gunners used to sponge out with a condemned kitchen broom! By and bye, by reason of their im. portunities, the "arteelery" were given some old cavalry sabres from the ordnance department, and permission was granted by the Royal Artillery to drill at their bar. racks. The Rifles were more fortunate, for they obtained some old flintlocks, and their esprit du corps placed them in such favor as to obtain full equipments in everything needful except pay. Now that I think of it, there was in existence the remnant of Aleck Robertson's cavalry troop, which was reorganized by Capt. Rivers, of the Bank of Upper Canada, so that London had become a military depot of some importance, garrisoned as it was by two battalions of British regulars, a half battery of royal artillery, engineer and commisseriat departments, besides the volunteer forces, such as they were, of horse, foot and artillery. It was a veritable Aldershot in Upper Canada!

Washington's Birthday Observed -Suspicious Arrivals-A Loyalists from British Territory?

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—The steamer Australia brings Honolulu advices to the 3rd inst. The observation of Washington's birthday was general among Americans. Minister Willis invited officials of the inclosed upon three sides by immense roots | Provisional Government to notice the day, which request they cordially complied with by closing the public offices for the afternoon. The most serious alarm has been taken by the Government at the fact of the very large number of arrivals of steerage passengers from Victoria and San Francisco during January and February, more than 100 in excess of what might be expected. About that number are evidently Canadians and Englishmen, corresponding to the class reported to have been enlisted at Vancouver by Sansome. More than ten of these men have been marked as wearing military badges of honor. Sixty such men are marked as lodging together at different houses. They are not in pursuit of employment, and are evidently supplied with means of subsistence. Their sympathies with the royalists are not concealed, as they are known to be in communication with them. From various sources of information the police authorities are entirely satisfied that these men are persons enlisted by Sansome, and that a decided move to get possession of the executive building with the aid of these men has been fully planned by the royalists to be executed within a few days. The Government are taking precautions.

THE SPORTING WORLD.

ATHLETICS.

CORBETT TALKS. BALTIMORE, Md., March 10.-James J. Corbett said last night: "If Jackson will add, or cause to be added, $10,000 to the stakes it will do more than anything else to convince me of the excellence of his physical condition. I am anxious to meet Jackson, but have no advices at present indicating just when a fight can be arranged. As stated before, I have my business to look after and cannot waste too much time. Unless some respectable club comes to the front with substantial backing the fight will have to go over for seven or eight months, for as stipulated

MIKE SULLIVAN WAS BADLY HURT. CHICAGO, March 11 .- In a friendly boxing bout between A. W. Crene, a local boxing celebrity, and Mike Sullivan, a railroad clerk, which took place at the Chicago Athletic Club house Friday night, the latter received a heavy blow over the heart which may result fatally. Sullivan's opponent has not been arrested. Chief of Police Brennan has also ordered the arrest of Crane in the event of Sullivan's death. HOCKEY.

THE WORLD'S WHEAT.

A Good Deal of 1891 and 1892 Grain Still

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11 .- Statistical returns of the Department of Agricul-ture for March indicate that a very considerable proportion of the wheat now in the farmers hands comes from crops of 1891 and 1892. The indicated stock of wheat in farmers' hands is 144,060,000 bushels. This is nearly 21,000,000 bushels less than the estimate for March I last year, and nearly 20,000,000 less than the average of the past eight years.

The crop in producers' hands, as estimated, aggregates 589,000,000, or 36.4 per cent. of the crop of 1893.

The official and commercial estimates of the world's wheat crop for 1893, make it 32,000,000 bushels less than last year. The final estimates will probably still further reduce the total for 1893, as the preliminary estimates for Russia and Germany are generally reduced by the final estimates.

ERASTUS WIMAN

Thanks His Canadian Friends fer Their Hearty Expressions of Sympathy and Good-Will.

MONTREAL, March 11. - Mr. Erastus Wiman publishes a letter of thanks to his Canadian friends in a Montreal newspaper in the course of which he says: "If I cannot speak of the case in hand, I must avail myself of your instrumentality to express to my friends in Canada, my appreciation of the hearty good-will which on every hand has been extended toward me. Hardly an act of kindness in my busy life, especially to my people, but now seems to be remembered. Circumstances long forgotten are now recalled by letters and messages from all parts of this continent. * I feel like saying with Daniel Webster, 'Thank God, the past, at least, is secure. What the future has in store for me can be met with fortitude, with such friends and such a record as these letters make plain."

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 11 .- Somebody mailed in the postoffice at Pansy, Penn., a package addressed to Mrs. Ella Helbig, of this town. The package was opened by Mrs. Helbig's husband. It contained a pig's tail and a letter. Mr. Helbig was indignant. He sent the tail to the Postoffice Department at Washington, with letter declaring the act of the sender to town. be libelous and demanding an investigation and punishment of the libeler. The tail and the letter went through the usual procedure at Washington, and were then sent to Inspector Dickson at Pittsburg, with instructions to investigate. Mr. Dickson has examined all the regulations he can find, but has discovered nothing covering the case. He will go to Pansy and make further investigation.

PICTON, March 11.-Notwithstanding the wretched condition of the roads the Reform meeting held yesterday afternoon to consider the resignation of N. Sprague, the Liberal candidate for the Local Legislature for Prince Edward, was very largely attended. The town hall was packed to suffocation by the electors of the county. A resolution was passed expressing regret that Mr. Sprague's ill-health prevented his candidature and accepting his resignation. #### A NEW WRINKLE

By Which Chicago Thieves Plundered a

Visiting Stranger. CHICAGO, March 11.-Frank Cleue, of Cincinnati, was robbed here to-day while rushing to save children from a fire. Cleue had stopped in Chicago to see the sights on his way to the Mid-winter Fair. He was walking on West Madison street, near Clinton, when a well-dressed young woman rushed out from a hallway, exclaiming that the house was on fire and her children is considered good paying cre here, and is considered good paying cre here, and anything above this standard is classed as high grade ore. In the lower levels of the answer he received a stunning blow in the face from the woman, who snatched his pocketbook before he recovered from his surprise. Then she ran out on the street, slamming the door after her, and when Cleue reached the door he found it locked by a spring lock, leaving him a prisoner, while the woman escaped. The fire and the children were purely imaginary. Cleue will postpone his visit to the Mid-winter Fair pending the arrival of remittances.

THE WILSON TARIFF.

Rough Estimate of Probable Financial Results.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10 .- A rough statement of the results figured on the tariff bill is as follows: Receipts from customs in amended tariff bill, $165,900,000 in round figures; from internal revenue, including income tax and the additional tax of 20 cents a gallon on whisky, $224,000,-000; adding to this $21,000,000 from miscellaneous sources, gives $411,000,000 as the probable net receipts under the bill as approved by the Democratic majority of the Senate finance committee, as against $335.000,000 derived last year from the same sources of revenue under the Mc-Kinley bill.

Shortage in McKane's Accounts. NEW YORK, March 11 .- Lawyer George F. Elliott and the citizens' committee of Gravesend, who have been investigating the accounts of John Y. McKane, allege that the chief failed to account on Jan. 1 regarding the disposition of $500,000 of town bonds. It is rumored that a large portion of the bonds, if not all, have been shortage in McKane's accounts of $200,000. McKane's friends say the apparent shortage is due purely to his lack of business methods in conducting the affairs of the

is about 70 miles in length, extending interests, of singularly strong and master-from Lake Walmapitae in a southwest direction along the Vermillion and Spanish bition to utilize powers he was conscious of it. The mineral deposits are scattered all over the district, without any apparent The Queen had been anxious to make her rule, though generally running in parallel lines. In the township of Denison, however, there is a regular series of about a dozen large ore beds on one ridge, and the extension of which to the eastward, in the township of Graham, approaches a vein system. The prospector's vernacular name for a rich nickel deposit is a "red hill," from the prevailing color of the capping or gossan, and his ambition is to find one. THE BICHEST SECTIONS.

In number of red hills or nickel ore beds, the township of Denison holds the first place in the whole district. This is, as an American expert said, "where the range gets her back up," rising in some cases into veritable mountains of mineral. The township of McKim comes next, with the copper cliff, Stobie and Murray mines in it, as well as a number of other valuable properties not worked yet. Then follows the township of Levac, with several enormous nickel deposits in it; the township of Snider, with the Lady Macdonald, Naughton and Tam O'Shanter beds of high grade ore, the townships of Drury, Baldwin, Garson, Blezard, Creighton and many points.

ites, granites, diorites and schists. The than the other rocks of the range. The anks of their foes. nickel deposits invariably occur in the diorite belts, and nearly always in close proximity to a syenite ridge on one Me. The ore is massive pyrrhotile, or magnetic iron pyrites, carrying from a trace to 45 per cent. of nickel and considerable yellow sulpheretes of copper, with more or less cobalt, platinum and other rare minerals. On one location in the township of Drury some gersdoffite has been found, hand samples of which assayed over 60 per cent. of nickel. The Worthington mine in the same locality has produced some very rich ore, and a car load from the Vermillion mine in Denison yielded 15 per cent. of nickel, with picked samples running as high as 43 per cent. But average ones in large bodies range from 2½ to 10 high grade ore. In the lower levels of the tends to personal enjoyment when copper cliff and Evans mines a good deal of rightly used. The many, who live betpeutlaudite occurs in the ore that assays ter than others and enjoy life more, with from 30 to 35 per cent. of nickel. Without less expenditure, by more promptly a single exception, all the mines so far adapting the world's best products to worked on the range have improved in depth, not only in the quality of the ore, but also in the size of the deposits, which is a very important fact.

MINING OPERATIONS. The first discovery of mineral in the district was made some nine years ago, during the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway through it. The mines were supposed to be copper at first, and very little interest was taken in them, except by one company and a few prospectors and others here. But on finding that the ores were rich in nickel, with the almost simultaneous discovery of the superior qualities of nickel as an alloy in the manufacture of steel armor plates, the Sudbury district was brought into world-wide prominence at

The Canadian Copper Company, of Akron, Ohio, was the first to commence actual mining operations on the range, and may be said to be still without any rival here. The company owns a large area of mineral lands in different parts of the district, and works three great mines-the Copper Cliff, the Evans and the Stobie. The Copper Cliff is the head mine, and the fine smelting plant of the company, with a capacity for treating 250 tons of ore every 24 hours, is located at it. The mine was worked as a quarry at first, in the face of the bluff, but since then mining has been carried on under ground, by an inclined shaft, which is already down to the seventh level, or about 600 feet. This winter a more vertical shaft is being opened between the third hypothecated and that there is an apparent and the seventh level in it. The Stebie is an immense body of ore, and has so far been worked by an open adit in the side of the hill. Last summer the ore was taken out of this mine, crushed, and put on the cars for less than $1 a ton. It has been closed down for some months, but will soon be worked again. When all the mines of this company are in full operation the number of men employed at them and in connection with the smelting works aggregate over 500. The Murray mine, belonging to the H. H. Vivian Company, of Swansea, Wales, also employs about 150 men right along, and the Worthington and Travers mines down the "Soo" branch nearly 100 men each. A Duluth company is opening a property in the township of Frill, with a view of introducing a new process for the treatment of nickel ores, and several other parties are making arrangements to develop their claims this coming season.

GRAND FIELD FOR INVESTMENTS. Altogether a fair start has been made in mining and smelting operations here, but that's all. Some people outside have the idea that the few companies now in the field own most of the nickel properties on the range. But so far from this being the case, at least two-thirds of the largest, best and richest deposits of nickel ore so far discovered in the district have not been worked yet, and are still for sale. There is room for a dezen more big companies

Now, in view of the well-known fact that the consumption of nickel in the general industries is going to be simply incalculable in the near future, there can be no better mining investments than good nickel prop-erties in this district. It is safe to say that for every dollar invested here judiciously in this way $10 or more can be made in a few years. For large capitalists, there are special chances of securing a number of first class properties just now, and for smaller investors there are many good "prospects" well worth buying up; also real estate in such leading points as Sudbury, Nickel City, Worthington, Nairn and Webbwood, which around them are opened up. Even in building houses for people to live in over 10 per cent. interest can be made here.

If you once get the English people into the habit of making kings, you may get them into the habit of unmaking them," that the subject was dropped.

According to the report prepared by the war department, red uniforms were first adopted by the Emperor Valerius Maximus in order that the Roman soldiers might not be frightened by the sight of their own blood. To this day the children of England are told that this is the reason why French troops wear red trousers, and French children are taught the same notion regarding the red coats of the British. The legionaries of ancient Rome wore the skins of bears on the field of battle to make them look fierce. For the same reason they put figures of frightful beasts on their shields and helmets. THE CLOTHIER.

This he said with so gracious an air that I was sarmed, and thought myself happy indeed to be addressed in this wise by a prince whose name was already so glorious. Nor was my satisfaction diminished when his companion drew out a bag containing, as he told me, 300 crowns in gold, and placed it in my hands, bidding me defray therefrom the cost of the journey. "Be careful, however," he added earnestly, "to avoid, in hiring your men, any appearance of wealth, lest the adventure seem to be suggested by some outside person; instead of being dictated by the desperate state of your own fortunes. Promise rather than give, so far as that will avail. And for what you must give, let each livre seem to be the last in your pouch."

Henry nodded assent. "Excellent advice!" he muttered, rising and drawing on his cloak, "such as you ever give me, Mornay, and I as seldom take—more's the pity! But, after all, of little avail without this. He lifted my sword from the table as he spoke, and weighed it in his hand. pretty tool," he continued, turning suddenly and looking me very closely in the face. "A very pretty tool. Were I in your place, M. de Marsac, I would see that it hung loose in the scabbard. Ay, and more, man, use it!" he added, sinking his voice and sticking out his chin, while his gray eyes, looking ever closer in mine, seemed to grow cold and hard as steel. "Use it to the last, for if you fall into Turenne's hands, God help you! I cannot!"

"If I am taken, sire," I answered, trembling, but not with fear, "my fate be on my

I saw the king's eyes soften at that, and his face change so swiftly that I scarce knew him for the same man. He let the weapon drop with a clash on the table.
"Ventre Saint Gris!" he exclaimed with a strange thrill of yearning in his tone. "I wear by God, I would I were in your shoes, sir. To strike a blow or two with no care what came of it. To take the road with a good horse and a good sword, and see what fortune would send. To be rid of all this statecraft and protocolling, and never to issue another declaration in this world, but Eskimo. just to be for once a Gentleman of France, with all to win and nothing to lose save the love of my lady! Ah! Mornay, would it not be sweet to leave all this fret and fume, and ride away to the green woods by Coar-

"Certainly, if you prefer them to the Louvre, sire." Du Mornay answered dryly; while I stood, silent and amazed, before this strange man, who could so suddenly change from grave to gay, and one moment spoke so sagely, and the next like any wild lad in his teens. "Certainly," he answered, "if that be your choice, sire; and if you think that even there the Duke of Guise will leave you in peace. Turenne, I am sure, will be glad to hear of your decision. Doubtless he will be elected Protecter of the Churches. Nay, sire, for shame !" Du Mornay continued, almost with sternness. "Would you leave France, which at odd times I have heard you say you loved, to shift for herself? Would you deprive her of the only man who does love her for her own sake?" "Well, well, but she is such a fickle sweetheart, my friend," the king answered, laughing, the side glance of his eye on me. "Never was one so coy or so hard to clip! And, besides, has not the pope divorced

"The pope!" Dn Mornay rejoined with impatient heat. "What has he to do with France? But, meantime, I would send him a text to digest."
"Exemplum?" said the king.

"Whom God has joined together, let no man put asunder."

'Amen!" quoth Henry softly. "And France is a fair and comely bride."
After that he kept such a silence, falling as it seemed to me into a brown study, that he went away without so much as bidding me farewell, or being conscious, as far as I could tell, of my presence. Du Mornay exchanged a few words with me, to assure himself that I understood what I had to do, and then, with many kind expressions, which I did not fail to treasure up and con over in the times that were coming, hastened downstairs after his master.

My joy when I found myself alone may be conceived. Yet it was in no ecstacy, but a sober exhibaration; such as stirred my pulses indeed, and bade me once more face the world with a firm eye and an assured brow, but was far from holding out before me a troubadour's palace or any dazzling prospect. The longer I dwelt on the interview. the more clearly I saw the truth. As the glamour which Henry's presence and singular kindness had cast over me began to lose some of its power, I recognized more and more surely why he had come to me. It was not out of any special favor for one whom he knew by report only, if at all by name; but because he had need of a man poor, and therefore reckless, middle aged (of which comes discretion), obscure-therefore a safe instrument; to crown ail, a gentleman, seeing that both a secret and a woman were in the question.

Withal I wondered too. Looking from the bag of money on the table to the broken coin in my hand, I scarcely knew which to admire more; the confidence which entrusted the one to a man broken and beggared, or the courage of the gentlewoman who should accompany me on the faith of the other.

CHAPTER III,

As was natural, I meditated deeply and far into the night on the difficulties of the task intrusted to me. I saw that it fell into two parts; the release of the lady, and her safe conduct to Blois, a distance of 60 leagues. The release I thought it probable the presence of the Court of Navarre had filled St. Jean with a crowd of adventurers. Yet the king's command was urgent, and at some sacrifice, even at some risk, must be obeyed. Pressed by these considerations, I could think of no better man to begin with than Fresnoy.

His character was bad, and he had long forfeited such claim as he had ever possessed-I believe it was a misty one, on the distaff side—to gentility. But the same cause that had rendered me destitute—I mean the death of the Prince of Conde-had stripped him to the last rag; and this, perhaps; inclining me to serve him, I was the more quick to see his merits. I knew him a ready as a hardy, reckless man, very eapable of striking a shrewd blow. I gave him credit for being trusty, as long as his duty jumped with his interest.

coordingly, as soon as it was light, havand groomed the Cid, which was always me first employment of my day, I set out in earch of Freshoy, and was presently lucky enough to find him taking his morning draught outside the Three Pigeons,' a little feet last year.

inn not far from the north. It was more than a fortnight since I had set eyes on bim, and the lapse of time had worked so great a change for the worse in him that, forgetting my own shabbiness, I looked at him askance, as doubting the wisdom of ensting one who bore so plainly the marks of poverty and dissipation. His great face— he was a large man—had suffered recent ill-usage, and was swollen and discolored, one eye being as good as closed. He was unshaven, his air was ill-kempt, his doublet unfastened at the throat, and torn and stained besides. Despite the cold-for the morning was sharp and frosty, though free from wind-there were half a dozen packmen drinking and squabbling before the inn, while the beasts they drove quenched their thirst at the trough. But these men seemed with one accord to leave him in possession of the bench at which he sat; nor morose and savage glance which he shot at me when I approached. Whether he read my first impressions in my face, or for some other reason felt distaste for my company, I called for wine. He nodded sulkily in answer to my greeting, and cast a half-shamed, half-angry look at me out of the corners of his eyes. "You need not look at me as though I were a dog," he muttered presently. "You are not that the sittings were arranged. He took so very spruce yourself, my friend. But I suppose you have grown proud since you got that fat appointment at court!" And he laughed out loud, so that I confess I was in two minds whether I should not force the jest down his ugly throat.

Untold Misery-What a Well-Known Commercial Traveler Suffered, and How He Was Cured,-Gentlemen,-About five years ago I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. was at that time traveling for Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but all to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine, and when the third bottle was finished I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that electric lamp. Perhaps there is something in the notion that under the circumstances a particularly bright girl can do without a light in the leagues. The release I thought it probable I could effect single-handed, or with one companion only; but in the troubled condition of the country at this time, more particularly on both sides of the Loire, I scarcely saw how I could insure a lady's safety on the road northwards unless I had with me at least five swords.

To get these together at a few hours' notice promised to be no easy task; although the presence of the Court of Navarre had Winter appears to be going, and through the tree-tops the spring zephyrs soon will be breathing a sigh of releaf.

A High Valuation. "If there was only one bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil in Manicoba I would give one hundred dollars for it," writes Philip H. Brant, of Montieth, Manicoba, after having used it for a mount of the freezen fluores with each severe wound and for frozen fingers, with, as he says, "astonishing good results." If it is a fact that "everything comes to him who waits," the Hamiltonians will eventually get everything. Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective,

Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, carache, bruiss; cuts and sores succumb to its action.

From Lile. New York, March 11. - J. Massey Rhind, the sculptor, of No. 208 East I wentieth street, has in his studio what is believed to be the only bust in America of Mr. Gladstone taken from life. It is of bronze, and the cast for it was made at Dalmeny Castle, Scotland, seat of the Earl of Rosebery, in 1885, during the excitement of a Midlothian campaign. Mr. Rhind has a letter from Mrs. Gladstone, in which she expresses the opinion that the bust is without question the best likeness of her husband in existence. Such also is the written testimony of Lord Rosebery, who has been for years one of Mr. did I wonder much at this when I saw the Gladstone's closest friends and warmest admirers.

"While I was in London in 1885," said Mr. Rhind to a World reporter, "I was commissioned by the Scotch Liberal Club of London to execute the bust. Mr. Gladstone was at that time conducting a Midlothian campaign and was spending a few weeksat Dalmeny Castle. Lord Rosebery was with him, as were also his wife and his son a deep interest in the matter and spent a great deal of time in the room while I was at work.

"Mr. Gladstone gave me twelve sittings in all. The time selected was during the merning, while Mr. Gladstone was busy with his correspondence. He sat at a table that was upon a raised platform, and worked like a steam engine all the time. His mail was simply enormous. Every letter was gone over by him, and he would make on the back of each a rough draught of the reply. Every few minutes his wife or his son would come in and carry these memoranda to the secretaries, who would elaborate them and return them for

"Often when Mr. Gladstone was through with his letters he would discuss my work, suggesting minor changes and joking about the appearance of the rough model. He was always jocular. His energy seemed unlimited. Once when I was nearing the end of my work Mr. Gladstone discovered what he thought was a fault. There was not enough hair, he said, on the right side of the head. When I demurred he insisted and undertook to show me how to make the change. For nearly fifteen minutes he labored with a piece of clay to alter the cast, but was finally compelled to admit that he was a dismal failure as a sculptor. "The thing that impressed me most about him was his eyes. Great, fierce gray eyes they were, with the same expression one notices in the eyes of a tiger. Whenever he looked directly at me from beneath his shaggy, overhanging brows I could not avoid the feeling that he was preparing to pounce upon me. Withal it was a pleasant face, full of human kindness. The skin of his face could be compared to nothing but a piece of leather, marked with deep lines and almost colorless. His hair was iron-

"Such a head I never saw. The measurements I have forgotten, but the dimensions ere surprising. So large was the skull that I measured it several times to make shre I was not mistaken. To aid me in this direction the Earl of Rosebery gave me an old soft hat of Mr. Gladstone's, which I still have.

A Free Man. Col. E. J. Meagher, the ex-partner of Col. J. R. Wheate in the Germany Remedy Institute, was before Judge Wm. Elliot on Saturday. Meagher was on trial for the alleged defrauding of Dr. James E. Gray, of this city, out of $150 through false pretenses. The complainant was the only witness examined, and he was kept on the a business built up and tostered by persiststand from 10 o'clock in the morning until 3:30 p.m. The evidence was simply a repetition of that already published, and at the conclusion Judge Elliot stated that he of the defendant, and accordingly dismissed the case.

Col. Meagher was seen after his disthe result of the trial. He was sure, he said, that nothing could be proven against him, as it was Wheate that received the money against his (Meagher's) wishes before Dr. Gray had left the institute. Col. Meagher is now very anxious that Wheate should be brought back to London and punished on account of his (Wheate) having skipped the country, leaving him to fight it out. Col. Meagher also says that he will not let the matter drop, as it was at present-having spent two weeks in jail for offenses committed by other parties.

"The Algerian" To-Morrow Night. This delightful opera has just city, the time being divided between the Garden and Daly's theaters. Naturally, in offering such a production, the management must need a perfect and capable company, and the leading roles in the hands of such true and accomplished artists as Adele Ritchie, who will be seen in the role of Coleste, and Mr. Hubert Wilke, the foremost baritone on the American stage, has in the role of Col. Le Grange, one deftly suited to his method of work. The supporting company comprises such well known artists as Dorothy Morton, Bertha liness. The same special attention to detail and finish as characterized the recent production in New York City will be as closely attended to here.

SHORT TALKS ON ADVERTISING.

NO, 2.

(Copyright, 1894, by Charles Austin Bates.) It is continuous effort that pays in advertising as in everything else. A business man doesn't keep his store open one day in the week, or one week in the month, or three months in the year. If he advertises that way that is the impression people will get. It is continuousness that has made each letter in the word "Royal" before Baking Powder worth over $2,000,000. The owner of Royal Baking Powder recently refused $2,000,000 for his business-ent advertising. People are very forgetful. They have to think pretty hard to remember the vicepresidential candidate two campaigns back, could see no evidence of fraud on the part and yet he was pretty well advertised at the time. It has been truly said that the time to advertise is all the time. In business there is no such thing as standing still. discharge, and he was quite jubilant over A business man must go forward or he will fall back. Even if you do just as much business this year as you did last, some other fellow is doing more business and he is getting ahead of you.

Each year's effort should be to exceed last year's sales. The only sure way to do it is to advertise. Advertise in busy times, because the iron must be struck while it is hot, and advertise in dull times to heat the iron. It can be done.

It is a safe rule to take advertising as you would medicine-when you need it. Advertising is the only medicine for sick business, but it must be of good quality, just as medicine must be good to do good. It is poor policy to publish a misleading ad. The plainer and more truthful it is the better. Business men are coming to understand this more and more every day. The time has passed when "people like to be humbugged." Barnum is dead.

When you have decided what to say and how to say it, pick out the best paper you can find and use it. Remember that the best paper is the cheapest, and the place to put your advertising is in the place that people look for their news. Make the ads. newsy, and they will pay.

There is nothing mysterious about advertising. It is an exact science. You are simply telling people where they can get certain needed things. That's all there is of it. If you can tell them about something they want, or ought to want-if you have a good thing to offer-advertising will sell it. Most any kind of advertising is useful, but newspaper advertising is not only the best but it costs less than any other kindservice considered. You can get more circulation-talk to more people-for less money in a newspaper than in any other way. Figure it out and see.

[From Huron Expositor.]

IFrom Huron Expositor.]

Mr. Frederick Ziezler is well known in and around Scaforth, where he has lived for many years. His prolonged and terrible suffering from Rheumatism and La Grippe is also well known to most of the physicians of that town, having been treated by them for years without obtaining any relief. Mr. Ziegler writes for the benefit of the readers of the Huron Expositor: "Fourteen years ago I was seized with rheumatism, I have suffered terribly with it, the pains at times being almost unbearable. I tried several of the best doctors, but to no avail. About four years ago I was taken with la grippe. I then doctored with five of the best doctors for five months with little or no relief. I baid over $150 in doctors' bills and medicines of various kinds. I at last procured three bottles of Williams' Royal Crown Remedy and Pills and by the time I had used one bottle I began to feel better, and when I had taken two and a half bottle as I was completely cured and have remained in perfect health over since. I believe it to be the best medicine ever introduced in or about these parts, for there are a great many others in this fown who have been cured by the Royal Crown Remedy. There is no person who thinks more of this Remedy than Mrs. J. McMann, of this town, who so highly recommended it to me. My wife was also very badly troubled with salt rheum, so badly indeed, that her finger nails all fell off. She had used but a small quantity of the remedy when she was greatly benefited, and, in fact, will soon be completely cured." Williams' Royal Crown Remedy and Pills is a wonderful blood purifier and system builder and should be continued until the cure is complete, and always kept in every house, as it is the most economical medicine manufactured. Only $I for pint bottle and 25c for pills dasts a month), or five bottles of Remedy and 5 boxes Pills for $5. Sent by express by Isaae Williams Company, Loudon, Ont., or by druggists.
