VOL. XXXII., NO 23.

EVENING NOVEMBER 21, 1894. WEDNESDAY

WHOLE NO. 10043

BEFORE TAKING AND AFTER. Our local contemporary has of late had a nard road to travel, as must be the lot of all who have no clear guiding star of settled opinions. It is but a little while since, for purposes of fostering an agitation which it believed would prove dangerous to the Mowat Administration, our contemporary railed in good set terms at what it called Sir Oliver's pandering to the Roman Catholics in the matter of Separate Schools, and in various ways it made itself a fan of the flame of incendiary sectarianism which at one time threatened infinite damage to any prospect of making Ontario what we all hope to see it become-an ideal State.

Yesterday's result seems to have changed our contemporary on several matters as rapidly as Saul was changed on his way to Damascus; for today it actually deprecates "that the fires of sectarian hatred should be kindled"; today wants everybody to take notice that "the Conservative party, whatever individuals within its ranks may "propose upon their own account, will not "enter upon a crusade against the fundamental constitution of the Dominion so "far as it affects the vital existence of the "Catholic schools."

And this self swallowing all within 24 hours!

And what shall we say of the agility of our esteemed contemporary's double somersault on the subject of prohibition? It is only a few short revolving weeks since our contemporary, in flaming editorial, showed how clearly it became the duty of those who favored social reform to uphold the hands of Mr. Essery as the upholder of the hands of Mr. Marter, the prohibitionist.

Today! our contemporary editorially contends that "it should have been of thoroughly understood that the "great Liberal-Conservative party did not "intend to commit itself, through Mr. Mar-"ter, Mr. Essery or any other leader, to "prohibition as a distinctive policy in this "country." And yet on Nov. 3 it said prohibition had become a plank in the Conservative platform !

Our contemporary's lightning changes from one view to another on almost every subject are dazzlingly sudden.

EVERYBODY SATISFIED.

An undertaker, as the procession was about to move, was asked by a bystander, referring to the ailment of the deceased, what the complaint was, "Complaint," said the undertaker, "there ain't any complaint. I am satisfied; the mourners (who looked really becoming) are satisfied; and the corpse is satisfied."

GRAND TRANSFORMATION SCENE.

atives have placed prohibition as a plank in their platform."

NO CASTE IN LONDON!

On the 20th of November a demagogic habit received its quietus, and we hope the lesson will not be lost even if the candidate who has been working it "lives to be as old as Methuselah and his billy-goat combined." We refer to the habit of making appeals to vote for this or that man because of his nationality; also the habit of appealing to "workingmen," as if they belonged to some separate pariah caste instead of being, as they are, politically the equal of any other class of voters. One great social and educational advantage of even the tumults of an election contest is that men are drawn together in community of thought and effort on the broad plane of perfect equality as electors. Rightly considered, no appeal from a demagogue to manual workers can be more insulting than that they should be supposed to be willing to consent to be patronized and appealed to as a separate caste. Let political appeals be made to all on broad grounds, not as to men of this class, or of that condition, or of the other creed. In every discussion let all adhere to broad and generous democratic lines.

-Nov. 20th gave a quietus to the style of platform discussion for which one of the candidates has for too long been noted. The reign of verbal terrorism has come to

-Before the 20th of November, our contemporary called it "robustness of speech." After the 20th of November, it is "untimely platform utterances."

It Wasn't the Liberal Candidate that Was Buried,

The Broom Brigade Marshaled in Irresistible Force-The Streets Packed With Interested Onlookers-Enthusiastic Rally at the Opera House-Hobbs and Hyman Divide the Honors-London Redeemed.

Eight hundred! Only eight hundred!

Noble eight hundred! 'Twas a famous victory for Hobbs and good government.

It was the greatest political battle ever fought in London, judging by the number in the fray.

Never in its history was such a vote polled. It was 400 greater than that of said: June, thanks mainly to the Registration

The day broke clear and cold: but there was a storm of ballots that fell like snowflakes all day, and when they ceased at 5:27 p, m. it was found that they had drifted over Mr. Essery and hopelessly buried him. The city presented a holiday against us that has shown itself today-a appearance. The streets were alive with | combination that has today shown us where igs and the sidewalks blocked at every lling booth. So great was the interest in the result in outside places as well as to be a country. We have had them carry-London, that delegations came from St. Thomas, Chatham, Stratford, Petrolea and other places to hear the results and witness or participate in the celebration. The organization of both sides was superb, and by energetic work two-thirds of the vote had een brought in by noon. At 1 o'clock Mr. Essery'sfriends acknowledged that they were beaten, and Mr. Hobbs' supporters knew from the glowing reports of the outside scrutineers that his election was certain-but 800! There were few whose enthusiasm led them to predict that majority. The more confident put the figure at 500. Polls opened and closed at 9:27 a.m. and 5:27 p.m. respectively, solar time being used. There was an early rush at most of the booths, and in many cases the

virtue of patience had to be practiced by

The ADVERTISER again confirmed its eputation for prompt, accurate and legible lisplay of the election returns. Last night it broke the record. As early as 5 o'clock hundreds began to assemble in front of the building. When the polls closed the crowd numbered thousands, and Richmond street was almost impassable. At exactly eight minutes after the close of the polls the first return was bulletined. It was from subdivision 1 of ward 2, where a majority of 22 for Meredith was turned into a majority of three for Hobbs. The announcement was received with a mighty cheer that sounded like a funeral knell to those before the Free Press office, to the north. A stream of returns then began to flow in, and the bulletin board was kept swinging. The enthusiasm of the crowd was tremendous. As division after division roiled up the majority for Hobbs, the joyous excitement of thousands found an outlet in one continual and mighty cheer that rent the air for blocks. At 6 o'clock the ADVERTISER compiled the majority from figures already in and announced it as 300. The crowd went wild. At 6:10 p.m. it had risen to 450, and it grew so rapidly that the bulletin had to be changed with amazing rapidity. Fifteen minutes ofter the closing of the polls the public knew that Mr. Hobbs was elected, but the enormous crowd remained until the last subdivision was bulletined. About 6:45 the screen was thrown back and appeared at the window. This was the signal for a terrific outburst of cheers, with tip horn accompaniment. Hats and canes were thrown in the air by the men, and ladies waved their 'kerchiefs. When Mr. Gibbons could restore order he announced that the procession would form at the Young Liberals' rooms at 8 o'clock, and that subsequently Mr. Hobbs would speak in the Opera House.

Mr. C. S. Hyman, M.P. Mr. C. S. Hyman, M.P., was dragged in the front by his enthusiastic friends. S. when the people caught eight of his treet, went fairly wild. It was a grand to the popular member. "I on". to the popular member. "I on". he said, "that on account of I have not been able to take ' contest that I should have

be able to celebrate with you Mr. Hobbs splendid victory." (Cheers.) The crowd then dispersed to decorate and make ready for the procession.

The Deleated Canditate. There were about 300 or 400 people in tront of the Free Press when Mr. Essery, the defeated candidate, put in an appearance at one of the windows. He was loudly cheered. When the enthusiasm abated he

"Ladies and Fellow Electors-The battle away before we know where we are. In a fight between the people we would have won. (Cheers.) But we have had a fight against a government whose existence depended upon carrying this city. We have had a combination we are, a combination which we will yet drive into the dust, and a combination that will have to be squelched if this country is ing our people into the country. We have had a contest which starts for the abolition of the separate schools, and although one man has beaten us today we will clean it out yet-(cheers)-and before the work of the next election comes some of the men will be sick. It is a question whether we shall be freemen or whether we shall be slaves.

Voice-Hurrah for Hebbs! (Cheers.) Mr. Esserv-And I thank the electors of the city of London who have stood by me. A Voice-There were very few of them.

Laughter.) Mr. Essery-I thank the men who have not been traitors, and who cannot be beaten. We have had a picture today of the Christian temperance people and the saloon keepers walking arm in arm against me. But tomorrow when they sit down to count their costs they will remember that this has been a sad day for them. (Applause.) We will contest the next election on the very same lines as we have contested this, and during the meantime the people will have reconciled themselves to the disasters of today. I thank the electors again and again for the honor they have done me and for the support they have given me, and it will yet come when we will send our man where

e rightly belongs. (Applause.) Ald. Coo also spoke, but there seemed to be so much uproar and noise on the street t was impossible to hear what he said. After Ald. Coo concluded the crowd joined those in front of the ADVERTISER

Yesterday's Vote.

A striking indication of the general nature of Mr. Hobbs' support is the fact that in only four subdivisions out of thirty-seven did Mr. Essery secure majorities, and then they were very small. Every subdivision shows an immense gain for Mr. Hobbs as compared with the contest in June. Yesterday's vote was:

The Procession. Last night the streets of London ran red with ribbon that encompassed the broad shoulders of thousands of happy citizens. The same ribbon that tinged the throngs on the street covered everything in sight, and what the ribbon did not cover red lights did. Buildings were bedecked, horses were caparisoned and brooms were decorated all with the same magic color of

PREMIUM COOK BOOK. By Marion Harland and Others. How to cook and what to cook are the two onics discussed in this volume. The topics discussed in this volume. The suggestions given are not such as an in-experienced editor might collate and combine in quantity, regardless of quality; but they are the results of long and careful domestic ex-perience in houses where these two arts were studied and practiced. Skilled housekeepers of large experience are responsible for every recipe and hint here given. They have tried and tested these matters of which they write,

AN AGED LOCOMOTIVE.

HERO OF ALEXANDRIA WAS THE INVENTOR OF IT.

> A writer in a scientific journal says: The Scientific American contains an acount by R. W. Durfee of a locomotive that was invented and used 2,000 years

> There is a general belief among mechanicians what vehicles containing within themselves the means of their own populsion are of comparatively recent origin; and the fact of the adhesion of the rims of their wheels to the earth or a supporting rail being sufficient to enable adequate power applied to the wheels to move the vehicle was a discovery of not earlier than the middle of the last century. But in this instance the writers on locomotive machines have not dived deep enough or stayed down long enough among the records of antiquity to discover the bottom facts in the history of such mechanisms. The first locomotive, or self-moving vehicle, of which we have any account was the invention of Hero of Alexandria, who lived about 5,000 years ago. In his work descriptive of automatic or selfmoving machines, there is illustrated a shrine of Baccheus mounted upon three wheels concealed within its base.

The shrine was crowned with a canopy, about which figures of dancers were made to move by hidden mechanism. Within the base of the shrine were three supporting wheels. Of these two were fixed to an axle, on which was a drum. Around this drum was wound a rope which passed upward on one side of the shrine and over two pulleys. It was then attached to a heavy leaden weight. The gradual escape of sand through a hole in a compartment beneath the weight caused it to descend. The weight thus pulled on the cord and revolved the drum and wheels, causing the shrine to move forward in a straight

Hero also describes how to arrange the wheels in order to make the shrine move in a circular path and to make it move in straight lines at right an-

By turning the figure of Victory two fountains beneath the canopy could be made to discharge wine or milk at pleasure. This apparatus is an adaptation of the two-way cock, familiar to modern mechanical engineering. . The mechanism of the shrine of Baccheus proves that 2,000 years ago the fact that wheeled vehicles could be propelled by power applied to the axles on which the driving wheels were fastened was well known, and that the mechanical principles involved in the apstood. Furthermore, the shrine afforded evidence of a high degree of refinement in mechanical manipulation in the cylindrical plug two-way cock, as well as in the general arrangement of the details of apparatus for performing the seeming miracle of changing wine into milk or milk into wine. It is confidently believed that this is the first time this self moving vehicle (which the shrine certainly was) of Hero has been described or even referred to by any writer in the English language. This is not strange, for the work of Hero descriptive of automata is very scarce, and the translations of Commandine into Latin and of Baldi into Italian are also rare. It is universally admitted by writers on mechanics that Hero is the author of the first description of a machine actuated by steam; but hitherto no one has claimed for him the honor-to which the evidence above submitted clearly entitles him-of having invented the first self-moving carriage or locomotive.

A Camera for Naturalists.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Photographic Society, T. R. Dallmeyer described a new modification of his telephonic lens, by which it is made suitable for long or short extensions of the camera within certain limits, so as to give the power of obtaining at will a large or small amplification of distant objects. He said that the main point with lenses of this class is the question of rapidity; it is easier to make a telephotographic lens at the sacrifice to image upon the sensitive plate. He also exhibited his new naturalist's camera, a long, narrow instrument of light weight, made chiefly for photographing wild animals from a distance. when the camera is held ln the hand, or when it can be partially rested against a tree or other fixed object, or when lying on the stomach on the ground. It is a long camera of light weight, preferably fitted with a telephotographic lens, acting upon a sensitive plate of somewhat small size. It has a lengthy eye-piece, mounted upon its upper surface, and when this is adjusted to suit the eyesight of the user, it need never be shifted from that adjustment for the particular user; the image on the plate eral years. I give you all the thanks. being at the same time in focus, it is being at the same time in focus, it is William Dulaner, never necessary afterwards to alter the adjustment of the eye-piece, for all the objects he sees in sharp focus through it will also be in sharp focus upon the plate. #### Reasserts the Independence of the Order in Regard to Censer vatives and Liberals. TORONTO JUNCTION, Nov. 21 .- A meeting of Patrons of Industry washeld here last night in Kilburn's Hall. Mr. Haycock M.P.P., leader of the Patrons of Industry elected to the Legislature, was the speaker of the evening. He again emphatically de-clared the independence of the Fatron organization of either of the old parties and announced they would introduce legislation making acceptance of passes by members of Parliament a breach of the independence of Parliament Act. Sir Richard Cartwright, he said, had insisted that the Patrons and the Reformers were virtually one party and Dr. Ryerson had argued the same on behalf of the Conservatives. Judging by the result of the London election it would appear the people of that city thought Sir Richard Cartwright's claims the better of the two.

Paris Agitated Over Corsets. Paris, Nov. 19 .- Paris is agitated again over the corset question. The opponents of tight lacing, or, indeed, any kind of lacing, have gone so far this time as to request the Chamber of Deputies to legislate against it. Meantime the views of women are being obtained and published. Some who are noted for the elegance of their figures sing the praises of the corset, while others, equally chic and charming, claim to be favorable to the anti-corset crusade. "Gyp" declares that the corset "is awful unhealthy and ungraceful," its great fault being, however, that it turns all figures into one commonplace mold, spoiling the pretty ones and doing nothing to improve those that are not pretty. Mile. Yvette Guilbert says some women should wear it and others should discard it. It depends upon the style of the costume, says Mme. Rejane, whether one should be worn. but Mile. Reichenberg is honestly in favor of the corset, although she does not believe in tight lacing. Mlle. Darland thinks voung women can do without it and Mile. Rosa Bruck, who is as graceful as a swan. declares she has never worn one. Mile. Bartet, of the Comedie Francaise, another pretty woman and leader of fashion, thinks the corset is a horror, while Jane Hading says it is an iron hand in a velvet glove, adding that since she was in the United States she is for a war of independence

HOME DAIRY COURSE

As winter is the time when farmers have most leisure, so it should be the time when they should accumulate most knowledge. The grain farmer should acquire knowledge in winter that may serve him in summer The dairy and stock farmer needs practical knowledge all the year round. No branch of farm work needs more intelligence and skill than the dairy, and no branch of the dairy needs these more than the home or region, separated from the historic highfarm dairy. No demand for low grade ways of the North. Many usages and dairy butter is what we see quoted nearly customs have outlived all innovations every day in the market reports. Why is this so? Cannot as good butter be made in the private dairy as in the creamery? Yes. Why, then, this poor reputation for dairy butter? Chiefly because the milk, cream and butter are not properly handled. Better butter may be made in a private dairy than in a creamery, and there need be no essential difference between dairy butter and creamery butter. though many city people think that there must be some special way of making ereamery good and a way of making dairy parts of their simple rusticity. There butter perpetually bad.

Our factory course for dairymen is full to overflowing, but we shall have room for about fifteen in the Home Dairy course which will be in operation at the same time as the factory-from January 14th to March 15th, 1895, and longer if necessary. Students may take all the lectures given in the Factory course, take part in the discussions and receive all the privileges of the factory students, except that they will work with utensils suitable for the farm dairy. some of the Quaint Things to Be Seen Only a Few Miles From Germany's Capital-The Island of the Amager and Its Old_ Fashioned Inhabitants.

There is a little island lying in the sound a few miles from Copenhagen, the highly cultured capital of Denmark. It is called Amager, or Amak. Its quaint community, numbering 10,000 Hollanders, who were induced by King Christian II., in 1516, to come and cultivate its fertile soil. The fame of the Dutch for growing fine flowers, especially tulips, luscious fruits, and vegetables had spread far and wide, and the Copenhagen market at that time was sorely in need of these staples. The Amagers have occupied their little isle for nearly four centuries. Their Dutch boats have plied to and fro, between Copenhagen and the insular towns, their maids have served the aristocracy of the Scandinavian metropolis, and all have lived in constant intercourse with the most refined and enlightened of Danish society, but all this has not been able to overthrow their national individuality. Their patois still savors of the idiomatic Dutch and provincial gutturals, the same strange costumes are worn by Work White Aprons, on y.

In the Bresse and Vendee provinces, not far from fashionable Paris, men and women still cling to the grotesque headgear of the knightly period. Corsets are ridiculed, and the independent bourgeoisie of the Atlantic provinces snap their fingers at all new-fangled caprices of fickle society.

The same strict adherence to traditional life, costumes, and jargon, characterizes the peasants and fishermen of Friesland and Heligoland, across the Zuider Zee from historic Amsterdam, though not extravagantly pervaded by religious eccentricities. The Dutch chocolate companies who exhibited at 25c PAIR. the World's Fair arrayed the girl waiters in the peculiar dress and gold and silver caps which the Frisian women wear to the present day.

That in the heart of Prussia, a few miles from Berlin, the quaint Spreewalders have been able to uphold their Wendish individuality, is remarkable. The graphic sketches which Artist Westphalen, of Moderne Kunst, has gather. ed on the banks of the Spree show that they have not yet been influenced by the modern progress with which the great Prussian capital has always been identi-

Much that is new and much that is peculiar is encountered in the Spreewald. Both nature and people differ from the rest of Germany. For centuries this has been a most picturesque of modern times from the early Wendish period. HER CONFUSION PLEASED HIM.

A Grand Stand Incident at the Great County Fair

At the Fair the other day a pretty young woman accompanied by a little girl seated herself in the grand stand an hour before the first trotting match and took a little luncheon of sandwiches and cold tea. That she had come only to see the horses was evident, as she looked neither to right nor left at the fifty distractions in progress, but fixed her gaze in expectation on the ring which was being watered.

When the grand stand began to fill a good-looking young man, laying down his race-card, catalogue and umbrella, took his seat beside her.

The woman chattered away to the little girl about the forthcoming races, referring eagerly to her own card and catalogue as she did so, and quite unconsciously interesting the young man. He took more than one good long look at her when he got the chance, and seemed entirely pleased with his sur-

As soon as the first race began she grew unconscious of everything but the track before her. She stowl on her tiptoes, called out loadly her remarks, dropped her own catalogue and umbrella without seeing them, and in turn laid hold of those of the young man.

She used his umbrella freely, describing the racecourse with many a sweeping gesture. When her favorite won she pounded valiantly with the umbrella and fanned her face with the man's catalogue after the exertion.

Then she sat down and pencilled little bits of enthusiasm after the winner's name, still in the young man's catalogue, her own having been trampled under foot in the excitement. She was tremendously at home with the umbrella, and more than once had to apologize for poking the young man's toes with his own property. He smiled in return, and seeming to enjoy it all hugely, stopped looking at the racecourse and looked, instead, at her. And she was a good enough picture to

At last she pulled out her watch, and in a flurry of excitement was preparing to go, when she noticed the umbrella. She picked up her own, with flushes and apologies restored the other to its owner, and with the catalogue rolled tightly in her hand, was making her escape.

"Won't you give me the catalogue too?" asked the young man. "It's also mine."

In hurried embarrassment the young woman restored it. The young man laid down the umbrella as a thing of small importance and quickly opened the catalogue. He scanned the little pencillings over and over, and then, with a smile, tore out the pages and tucked them away, neatly folded, in an inner pocket.

VERY FEW OF THEM LEFT.

Old-Time Plantation Darkies Almost as Rare as Black Swans.

One sees but little of the old-time southern plantation darkies nowadays. The reason is a good one-there are but few to be seen. The passing of the old southern body servant might serve as a theme for an interesting volume, so mysterious and so silent the march of the great throng of them to that bourne from whence no traveler ever returns. Nothing is said of them. They are not creatures of importance one would think, and their obituaries are never left after them in the public prints to tell people of the great work-a-day world that the poor old slaves of the past are dead and gone. Thus for more than twenty-five years the race of genuine old-fashioned plantation darkies has been playing out in Dixie, and they have been "layin' down de shovel and de hoe" in very truth.

Few of them are left-just a fewand they are to be found only on the large wilderness plantations of the extreme south. Here and there throughout the State of Georgia they can be found-right where they were left after the storm of civil war had spent itself, and they had stood there around the "big 'ouse" like sentinels on the watch tower to guard the mother and little one while the father slept far away on some battle hill. The fidelity displayed in this entitles the darkies of the '60s to endless praise. There was a war going on involving their freedom, and yet they stood like a firm phalanx around the homes of the southern soldiers while they were out at war, and these black. faced knights braved death at the hands of northern hosts to save the families of the men who had gone to the front to fight for a result contrary to the darky's

It was simply because the old fellows knew their masters were really their best friends and that they ought to stand by them. It was simply because they loved their life on the great plantations of the south, protected and upheld by their white friends and owners.

Renovating Soiled Candy.

A machine has been patented "to clean and put in eatable shape" any kind of confectionery. It is doubtful if anything could have been devised which would be more appreciated by the patrons of old confectionery women on the corners. Take your antique gumdrops, for instance, and throw them into the vibrating sieve of the machine. This sieve is concave and lined with a brush that is something between a carpet sweeper and a squirrel's tail. Running lengthwise of the sieve and having a sweeping motion is a long brush made of the finest bristles. The body of this brush is hollow, and, by means of a blow fan on top, a blast of air is forced between the bristles on the goods. There is no reason why candy should not be renovated like feather beds.-Boston Transcript.

Rubeustein Is Dead!

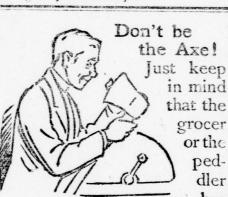

Sr. Petersburg, Nov. 20.—Auton Gregor Rubinstein, the famous Russian pianist and composer, died at Peterhef. near this city, this morning. The cause of his death was heart disease. He was within two days of 64 years of age. Anton Gregor Rubinstein was born in Wechwotynetz, on the frontier of Roumania, Nov. 30., 1830. He was taken to Moscow in his childhood and studied the piane under Alexis Villeing. After having received preliminary instructions from his mother. he made his first appearance in public when only 8 years old. When 10 years of age he went to Paris, remaining there two years and performing at a number of conservatories, which won him the encouragement and advice of Liszt. He next visited England, Sweden and Germany, and later devoted himself to teaching in Berlin and Vienna. Returning to Russia he was appointed pianist to the Grand Duchess Helen, subsequently director of the concerts of the Russian Musical Society. In 1868 he visited Paris and London, and in 1872 and 1873 he visited the United States. Since 1867 he held no position, but spent his time in traveling and composing. The jubice of his public service was celebrated in St. Petersburg by a fete on Nov. 18, 1889. He was ennobled by Czar Alexander II. in 1869, and in 1887 he received from the President of the French republic the decoration of the Legion of Honor.

LONDON, - - CANADA. London, Wednesday, Nov. 21.

-Mr. Marter is not a martyr; he is -A majority in every ward suits us,

-The majority is only 800, but Mr. Hobbs will rub along with it.

-Some citizens were mean enough to say that E. E. Sheppard's jokes did it.

-No. 3 ward, with its majority of 198 for Hobbs, is once more the banner Liberal ward. -THE ADVERTISER on Saturday claimed 500 for its candidate, but the citizens have declared we deserve 300 more. -Mr. Hobbs can well say, "I am a man of few words, but I do love my city well."

And he will serve her well, too. -As went London yesterday, so will go

Kingston, West Algoma, and other constituencies when they are opened. -Now let us all get down to business.

We have a fine city, and we ought to be united in the work of building it up. -A London South man maintains that the majority is at least "Slix hundred and slixty-six." He was altogether too modest. -The man who knows is always 'round Totell you "how 'twas done";

But when you need him, he'll be found -In Wards No. 1, 2, 3 and 4, which constitute the Dominion constituency of London, the majority for Mr. Hobbs yesterday was 571.

-The young men of London yesterday stood up for her best interests. We had faith in them before the election. We have faith in them for the future.

-"Thos. S. Hobbs, M.P.P., London, we congratulate you," was the text of hundreds of telegrams that poured into the city until a late hour last night.

-Mr. Essery did not take his defeat gracefully. In some intemperate remarks from the Free Press window, he attacked his Roman Catholic citizens once more and also accused the temperance people and the licensed victuallers of walking arm-in-arm to the polls. This style of criticism is simply childish, as we know ot no class of the community that did not join in expressing the emphatic opinion, voiced at the polls, that Mr. Essery would not be a desirable representative in the Legislature.

-It has been well said that it is an il wind that blows nobody good. Birming- did upon General Naaman, something you ham, England, is making a good thing out of the war in the East. Its gun and ammunition trade is more active than it has been for twenty years. Last week a Chinese agent placed an order for 20,000 rifles and bayonets and over 10,000,000 military cartridges have been turned out All remedies have failed. What shall now during the past two months. Since the outbreak of hostilities no less than 150,000 rifles have been exported from the city. Most of these, however, were weapons discarded by Germany after the Franco-Prussian war. Birmingham manufacturers bought them cheap to convert them into more modern weapons, but attempted conversion was a failure, and, with true Birmingham thrift and cunning, they were shipped to South Africa, transhipped in mid-ocean, and sold to the Chinese Gov-

-Impoverished land is now "vaccinated" on the continent of Europe. It is generally known that land is enriched by planting it The finger of that little captive maid is occasionally with a luguminous crop like pointing in the right direction. clover or lucerne, the roots of which absorb more nitrogen than they take from the ground. Where the nitrogen came from was the problem. Messrs. Hellriegel and Willfarth have discovered that the absorption is due to minute organisms, a sort of disease in the roots, which, when the supply of nitrogen in the soil begins to fail. appear as an excrescence, draw nitrogen from the air, and so enrich the soil again. Experiments have been made in France and Germany to hasten the growth of the disease by sprinkling the fields with soil in which tuberculous crops have been grown, or with water in which they have been steeped. In Prassia a field was sown with inpins; one part of it was then treated in the ordinary way, the other inoculated rom an old lupin crop. The yield in the great as in the other.

By the magnificent majority of 800 the electors of London yesterday elected Mr. Thomas S. Hobbs to represent the city in the Legislature in succession to Mr. W. R. Meredith, who held the position for the last 22 years.

It is hardly necessary to say that it affords us no small satisfaction that the citizens have rallied to the view vigorously put forth in various shapes by the ADVERTISER. They agree with us that every interest of the city as well as every interest of the Province would be best served by the election of Mr. Hobbs.

The result does not surprise us. We were from the first confident that the good sense and civic patriotism of the people of our fair city would assert itself. The electors, without regard to class, creed or condition, have responded nobly to our appeal to their better natures. Sir O liver Mowat and his Government have many friends in this city, even among Conservatives, who believe with Principal Grant, himself a Conservative, that the Province cannot afford to dismiss Ontario's Grand Old Man.

To Mr. Hobbs we extend congratulations on his splendid victory. We believe he will do everything in his power to represent the city in the Provincial Legislature, and to promote in every way possible the interests of this, the capital of Western Ontario, and the interests of this magnifi-

The city, by this election, will enter on a new era, which will be promotive of that unity of good feeling which has for a time been endangered. Any other result could have had no other effect than division and disaster to our best interests as a peace-loving community. For ourselves, the magnificent victory is sufficient reward, as we believe it will be for the large majority of the citizens of London, who agree with us in the principles which we have advocated in the campaign just brought to so satisfactory a

Rev. Dr. Talmage Discourses on "The Sick General."

Everyone Has Something He Wishes He Had Not.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 20.-Rev. Dr. Talmage chose as the subject of Sunday's sermon through the press "The Sick General," his text being taken from II. Kings, v., 1., But he was a leper."

Here we have a warrior sick. A red mark has come out on the forehead, precursor of complete disfigurement and dissolution. Naaman, the commander-in-chief of all the Syrian forces, has the leprosy. The leprosy! Get out of the way of the pestilence! If his breath strikes you you are a dead man. The news goes like wildfire all through the realm, and the people are sympathetic, and they cry out, "Is it possible that our great hero, our grand and glorious Naaman has the leprosy?" Yes. Everybody has something he wishes he had not. David, an Absalom to disgrace him; Paul, a thorn to sting him; Job, carbuncles to plague him; Samson, a Delilah to shear him; Ahab, a Naboth to deny him; Haman, a Mordecai to irritate him; George Washington, childlessness to afflict him; John Wesley, a termagant wife to pester him: Leah, weak eyes; Pope, a crooked back; Byron, a club foot; John Milton, blind eyes; Charles Lamb, an insane sister; and you, and you, and you, and you, something which you never bargained for, and would like to get rid of.

THE REASON. The reason of this is that God does not want this world to be too bright, otherwise we would always want to stay and eat these fruits, and lie on these lounges, and shake hands in this pleasant society. If God dashes out one of your pictures, it is only to show to you a brighter one. It is to push you up toward something grander and better, that God sends upon you, as he

She must have sympathy somewhere. In her despair she goes to a little Hebrew captive, a servant girl in her house, to whom she tells the whole story. What a scene it was; one of the grandest women in all Syria in cabinet council with a waiting maid over the declining health of the mighty general? "I know something," says the little captive maid. "In the land from which I was stolen there is a certain prophet known by the name of Elisha, who can cure almost anything, and I shouldn't wonder if he could cure my master. Send for him right away." "O, hush !" you say. 'If the highest medical talent in all the land cannot cure that leper, there is no need of your listening to any talk of a ser-

CHILDHOOD'S FINGER POINTS THE WAY. And how of en it is that the finger of childhood has pointed grown persons in the right direction. There are hundreds of hristian mothers who had their attention first called to Jesus by their little children. Go into the Sabbath school any Sunday and you will find hundreds of little fingers pointing in the same direction, toward Jesus Christ and toward Heaven. O, do not despise the prattle of little children when they are speaking about God and Christ and Heaven. You see the way your child is pointing; will you take that pointing, or wait until, in the wrench of some awful bereavement, God shall lift that child to another world, and then it will beckon you upward? Blessed be God that the little Hebrew captive pointed in the right direction. Blessed be God for the saving ministry of Christian children. NAAMAN HAD TWO DISEASES. No wonder the advice of this little atter part was five and a half times as Hebrew captive threw all Naaman's mansion and Benhadad's palace into excitement. you?" Then music woke up the palace

YESTERDAY'S GREAT V.CTORY. | But Naaman takes the little maid's advice; he sets out to meet the Israelite, and finally the charioteers check the horses at the prophet's door. Come out, Elisha, come out; the grandest company that ever came to your house has come to it now. No stir inside Elisha's house. The fact was, the Lord has informed Elisha the sick captain was coming, and just how to treat him. Indeed, when you are sick and the Lord wants you to get well he always tells the doctor how to treat you, and the reason we have so many bungling doctors is because they depend upon their own strength and instructions and not on the Lord God, and that always makes malpractiec. Come out, Elisha, and attend to your business. General Naaman and his retinue waited and waited and waited. The fact was, Naaman had two diseases-pride and leprosy. The one was as hard to get rid of as the other. Elisha sits quietly in his house and did not

PRIDE MUST BE HUMBLED. After awhile, when he thinks he has humbled this proud man, he says to a servant, "Go out and tell General Naaman to bathe seven times in the river Jordan, out yonder five miles, and he will get entirely well." "What!" says the commander-inchief of the Syrian forces, his eye kindling with an animation which it had not shown for weeks, and his swollen foot stamping on the bottom of the chariot, regardless of pain. "What !" Isn't he coming cut to see me? Why, I thought certainly he would and all through the night the condemned come and utter some cabalistic words over me, or make some enigmatical passes over my wounds. Why, I don't think he knows who I am. Isn't he coming cut? Why, to persuade him to turn his mind to his when the Shunamite woman came to him, approaching death and expressed scorn he sushed out and cried, 'Is it well with and contempt for those persons who thee? is it well with thy husband! is it believed that his recent pretended well with thy child !' and will he treat a poor unknown woman like that, and let me, a titled personage, sit here in my chariot and wait, and wait? I won't endure it any longer. Charioteer, drive evening his wife and daughter were adon. Wash in the Jordan! Ha! ha! The slimy Jordan-the muddy Jordan-the monotonous Jordan! Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel?" The fact was that every haughty Naaman needed to learn what every man needs to learn-that when God tells you to do a thing, you must go and do it, whether you understand the reason or not. Take the prescription, whether you like it or not. One thing is certain, unless haughty Naaman does as Elisha commands him, he will die of his awful sickness. And unless you do as Christ commands you, you will be seized upon by an everlasting wasting away. Obey and live-disobey and die. Thrilling, over-arching, under-girding, stupendous alternative! Well, Gen. Naaman could not stand the test. "He turned and went away in rage." So people often get mad at religion. They vituperate against ministers, against churches, against Christian people. One would think from their irate behavior that God had been studying how to annoy and exasperate and demolish them. What has he been doing? Only trying to cure their death-dealing leprosy. That is all, Yet, they whip up their horses, they dig in their spurs and they go away in a rage. A SIMPLE CURE.

As his chariot halts a moment his servants clamber up in it and coas him to do as Elisha said. They say: "It's easy. If the prophet had told you to walk for a mile on sharp spikes in order to get rid of this awful disease you would have done it. my lord, just get down It is easy. and wash in the Jordan. You take a bath every day, anyhow, and in this climate it is so hot that it will do you good." The retinue drove to the brink of the Jordan. Seven times the warrior immerses himself in the despised stream, and as he comes up not so much as a fester, or a scale, or an eruption as big as the head of a pin is to be seen on him. He steps out on the bank and says, "Is it possible ?" And as, with the health or an athlete, he bounds back into the chariot and drives on, there goes up from all his attendants a wild "Huzza!

A MARKED CHANGE. Of course they go back to pay and thank the man of God for his counsel so fraught with wisdom. When they left the prophet's house, they went off mad; they have come back glad. People always think better of a minister after they are converted than they do before conversion. Now we are to them an intolerable nuisance, because we tell them to do things that go against the grain; but some of us have a great many letters from those who tell us that once they were angry at what we preached, but afterward gladly received the Gospel at our hands. They once called us fanatics, or terrorists, or enemies; now they call us friends. Yonder is a man who said he would never come into the church again. He said that two years ago. He said, "My family will never come here again if such doctrines as that are preached." But he came again, and his family came again. He is a Christian, his wife a Christian, all his children Christians, the whole household Christians, and you shall dwell with them in the house of the Lord forever. Our undying coadjutors are those who once heard the Gospel, and "went away in a rage."

GET OUT OF THE CHARIOT OF PRIDE. Now, my hearers, you know that this General Naaman did two things in order to get well. The first was-he got out of his chariot. He might have stayed there with his swollen feet on the stuffed ottoman, seated on that embroidered cushion, until his last gasp, he would never have got any relief. He had to get down out of his chariot. And you have got to get down out of the chariot of your pride if you ever become a Christian. You cannot drive up to the cross with a coach-and-four, and be saved among all the spangles. You seem to think that the Lord is going to be complimented by your coming. Oh, no, you poor, miserable, leprous sinner, get down out of that.

But he had not only to get down out of his chariot. He had to wash. "O," you say, "I am very careful with my ablutions. Every day I plunge into a bright and beautiful bath." Ah, my hearers, there is a flood brighter than any that pours from these hills. It is the flood that breaks from the vant girl." But do not scoff, do not sneer. granite of the eternal hills. It is the flood of pardon, and peace, and life and heaven. That flood started in the tears of Christ and the sweat of Gethsemane, and rolled on, accumulating flood until fall earth and heaven could bathe in it. Zachariah called it the "fountain open for sin and uncleanness." William Cowper called it the "fountain filled with blood." Your fathers and mothers washed all their sins and sorrows away in that fountain. Oh, my hearers, do you not feel like wading into it? Wade down now into this glorious flood, deeper, deeper, deeper. Plunge once, twice, thrice, four times, five times, six times, seven times. It will take as much as that to cure your soul. O wash, wash, wash, and be clean.

I suppose that was a great time at Damascus when General Naaman got back. I think the people rushed out to hail back their chieftain. Naaman's wife hardly recognized her husband; he was so wonderfully changed. And the little captive maid rushed out, clapping her hands and shout-and the tapestry of the windows was drawn away, that the multitude outside might mingle with the princely mirth inside, and the feet went up and down in the dance, and all the streets of Damascus that night echoed and re-echoed with the "Naaman's cured! Naaman's cured !" But a gladder time than that it would be if your soul should get cured of its leprosy. The swiftest white horses hitched to the king's chariot would rush the news into the eternal city. Our loved ones before the throne would welcome the glad tidings. Your children on earth, with more emotion than the little Hebrew captive, would notice the change in your look and the change in your manner, and would put their arms around your neck and "Mother, I guess you must have become a Christian. Father, I think you have got rid of the leprosy." O, Lord, God of Elisha, have mercy on us!

HIS AWFUL CRIME

A Spanish Anarchist Pays the Penalty-He Would Not Selien.

BARCELONA, Nov. 21. - Salvador Franch the chief conspirator in the bomb throwing plot which resulted in the death of 30 per sons and wounding of 80 others in th Lyceum Theater in his city a little more than a year ago, was executed here about 6 o'clock this morning. All day yesterday man spent his time in preaching the doctrine of anarchy. He rejected energeti-cally the efforts of the priests who sought conversion was genuine. The prisoner throughout the last day and night of his life showed no fear. His meals were eaten with a good appetite. At 8 o'clock last mitted to his presence and spent considerable time in an endeavor to induce him to confess his crimes and accept the consolation of religion, saying: "If you don't you will ruin us." Franch angrily refused to pay any heed to their appeals. It was several times found necessary for the military to charge upon and disperse the crowds which had collected about the prison in the hope of seeing the execution.

IN SPITE of favorable news regarding the health of the Ameer of Afghanistan, there are grounds for believing that he is not yet out of danger. There is less uneasiness in England about his condition since Lord Rosebery's declaration that the British Government is in thorough accord with Russia on all international questions.

Dr. Thomas Oliver, writing upon the Diet of the Working Classes," says a good word in favor of the greater use of sugar as muscle food. Sugar, he says, ought to be included, to a larger extent than it is, in the dietary of the working classes. There is always a small quantity of sugar present in human blood, viz, I per cent. When muscle is in a state of activity there is a disappearance of sugar from the blood, four times greater than occurs in the blood issuing from muscle in a condition of rest, clearly indicating, therefore, that during activity sugar is used up. In his experiments to demonstrate whether sugar is a muscular nutriment, Harley abstained from all food, except 500 grammes of sugar daily, i. e., a little over there was not only an increase in the amount of work accomplished, compared with that done during fasting, by 70 per cent, but that muscular fatigue was decidedly retarded. It is recognized that when sugar is added to food, a man is capable of doing more muscular work with than without it, and that this occurs about two hours after it is taken. With Harley's experiments before us, it is interesting to observe that what physiology is now teaching has apparently long been known to the Northumberland coal miner and to the English navvy.

For about ten or twelve years I have been troubled with scrofula. My head was always sore, my face was dry and scaly, and burned like fire most of the time. My body had big red spots on it, and I did not know what to do. I went to four different doctors and they helped me at first. In the fail I got worse again; then I tried other remedies, but they did me no good. I was ashamed to go into public. I was a sight to look at. Every one would say, "What is the matter, why don't you take something?" Even at my daily labor I had to wear a sort of cap to keep the dirt from getting into the sores. After I would wash, I would be covered with big red pimples all over my neck and face. Some two or three people advised me to try the CUTTOURA REMEDIES. I did try them, and am glad I have done so. Glad to say I am a well man, and in the best of health since. I cannot praise the CUTTOURA REMEDIES too highly. I enclose my portrait.

DESPERATE DEED!

John Morkin Spirited Away and Tled to a Stove

In a London Township Residence-Discovered Just in Time to Save His Life -His Right Arm Paralyzed-Condition Critical,

The agents of Mr. Essery resorted to many desperate tactics to prevent electors from casting their votes for Mr. Hobbs, but the worst that has come to light is the treatment received at the hands of some wellknown people by John Morkin, of King street. It is almost beyond conception. Morkin is the son of Mr. Edward Morkin, hotelkeeper, of King street, and is 27 years of age. He was around the city on Monday, but the last seen of him was about 5 o'clock in the evening. His absence was noticed by his father, but nothing was thought of it till noon, yesterday, when Mr. Morkin, sen., was informed that his son was locked up in a house on the road to Hyde Park, in London township. James Morkin, Charles Sippi and about half a dozen other young men drove out to the house, and on their arrival were confronted by the hired man, who was in charge of the place. They were informed that no admission could be gained, and also that no person was inside. But the callers were not to be frustrated, and in a short time had a window pried open.

Several rooms were entered, but no trace of John Morkin was found. Finally, a room very securely locked was struck. The door wes soon broken open and there was Morkin lying on the floor.

He was in a pitiful condition lying on his back with his hands fastened behind him with a stout breeching strap, while his legs were tied together with a heavy piece of

To make escape impossible, Morkin was tied to a stove, in which was a furious fire. Attempts to awake him were useless. He was released and brought to the city, and in about two hours recovered sufficiently to be carried to the polling A. Sharp. booth.

Morkin's father demanded an open ballot, which was granted. He was then taken home and a physician called in.

It was found that Morkin's hands were badly swollen and his right arm was wholly paralyzed, and that was in a critical condition. The doctor stated that had the patient been discovered two hours later he would have been suffocated.

In the room were also found a two gallon jar of whisky, crackers and cheese, a pack C. G. Moorehead, of cards, several lamps, a table and some Morkin was very low at midnight. His W. H. Edgecombe, father intends to prosecute the parties as J. A. McHarg, far as the law will allow. All those connected with the outrage are known.

It is said that other voters were spirited away and imprisoned at the same place, but those in charge, hearing that Mr. Hobbs' friends were on the scent, transferred the victims to Hyde Park.

victory. A piece of blue (like an Essery heeler) was hard to find with a fine-tooth comb. Of course the atmosphere was a trifle blue in the neighborhood of the Free Press and corner of Kent and Ridout streets, while the blue that pervaded the Coote block at the Market lane contained a distinctively sulphurous odor. There the Conservative central committee rooms were situated. Everything was dark and black, and dank, and blank-a sort of blankety-blank-blank-and the Esseryites had taken the dose prescribed for the Liberals by the mayor when he elegantly said that on the night of the election they would hunt their holes. They had followed his advice so rigidly that they had even pulled the hole in after them.

Very different, however, were the scenes at the Young Liberal Club rooms. There there was a blaze of light-red light-a fanfare of tin horns, the huzzas of an exultant multitude, and - sore throats. The parade proper began at 8 o'clock at Mr. Gibbons' house on Wellington street, although a band had been busy serenading Mr. Hobbs' house on King street for an hour previously. Here Mr. Gibbons, Mr. Hyman and Mr. Hobbs joined the party. The houses in the neighborhood were alight from cellar to garret to lend emphasis to the decided victory. The procession, headed by the excellent Marine Band, wended its way down Dufferin avenue to Park avenue, thence to Dundas street-the crowd cheering and hurrahing all the while-down Dundas to Taibot street, Taibot to York, York to Richmond to the Opera House.

And such a crush! Before the meeting began King street was a surging sea of humanity, and when the doors at last opened it mounted upwards, much to the discomfort of those who were in the jam at the doors. The hats of the fair sex became disarranged, in some instances their hair came down, parasols were broken, children were held shoulder high by excited parents, and many ribs felt the crush of the resistless onward rush. To the victors belonged the brooms, and they brought them with them into the Opera House. The tin horns were brought along also and so were the hoarse voicesthe sore heads went elsewhere. The house rapidly filled, and even The Stage Was Crowded with ladies and gentlemen, prominent among whom were the following: V. Cronyn, C. S. Hyman, T. S. Hobbs, M. P. P. Geo. C. Gibbons, Talbot Macbeth, W. R. Hobbs, James Duffield, F. F. Harper, J. McCallum, Exeter, J. W. McCallum, J. D. Clarke, R. H. McBride, Geo. C. Davis, T. H. Purdom. L. W. Burke, Frank Butler. William Mills. B. McDonald, M. Dr. Belton. W. Rowlands. The noise in the Opera House was at its height when a man sat down quietly on chair near the right wing. A mighty shout went up-a shout that will echo and gather force until the scenes of last night are repeated after the next general Dominion election when Charles S. Hyman, M.P., will be avenged. It was the magic cry of "Hyman, Hyman," and it did not cease until after Mr. Hyman had come forward and bowed his acknowledgments. The crowd stood up to a man and cheered and waved their brooms for several minutes.

A few minutes later just such another scene was enacted when the new member for London, Mr. Thos. S. Hobbs, stepped forward. It was a sight long to be remembered as Mr. Hobbs stood, hat in hand, bowing to the mighty throng who seemed so wrought up that it was impossible to quiet them. Prim misses and sedate dames mingled their soprano and falsetto notes with the hoarse cheering of the men and the tooting of the small boy's tin horn. Mr. Hobbs was deeply impressed, and what he said was from the heart, short and to the point.

Thomas S. Hobbs, M. P. P. "I thank you very much," said he, "for the handsome majority you have given me." (Cheers.) "I also thank you on behalf of Sir Oliver Mowat for the grand majority you have rolled up, and that you have made London fall into line with the other cities in this banner Province of Canada." (Cheers.) "Gentlemen, you have done your duty by the Province of Ontario; you have done your duty by the city of London, and when I am in Toronto I will do my duty by you.'

(Cheers.) Charles S. Hyman, M.P.

"I must confess," said Mr. Hyman, "that when I landed on Sunday morning on this side of the Atlantic, I was somewhat afraid to come back to my native city, because the only report that I had then seen of the proceedings which had been going on in my absence had been a copy of the Free Press. (Cheers.) And there, sir, I had seen that the Liberals of London were to be used for the heroic purpose of wiping the floor. (Cheers.) They were to be hung, drawn, quartered and I don't know what else. I am sure I do not think tonight that the Liberals of London are exactly in the position to be used for any such menial object of that kind. (Cheers.)

"Now that we have won a victory in the city of London, a victory, sir, which I think is almost beyond that which has been won in any other constituency in Ontario or Canada, under the circumstances, I think that it behooves us to see what the fruits of that victory are. I think in the first, had been made before the supplementary place that the first fruit of that victory is registration court and the court of appeal, that we have shown that so far as where the Conservatives claimed such for so many years. (Cheers.) "I think, sir, it shows that we have confidence in him. I think it shows that we appreciate all the sacrifice he has made for this Province; that we appreciate the 22 years of good, honest and efficient government that he has given us. (Cheers.)

"I think, sir, it means even more than that. I am sure that so far as Mr. Hobbs is concerned, to a large degree it is a personal victory for him. (Tremendous cheering.) It shows, sirnotwithstanding what may be said elsewhere - the appreciation that the citizens of London have for a man who comes into this city and by his own integrity and worth raises himself to the position that Mr. Hobbs has, who is elected today (cheers)-by one of the largest majorities that the city of London has ever given a member. (Cheers.)

"I think the fruits of our victory are more than that. It shows most emphatically that the majority of the people of this good city of London desire to live together in peace and amity, and when we have a political fight that whatever divisions there are it may be on political lines, and that nothing else should be drawn into that conflict." (Cheers.)

George C. Gibbons, Q. C. "I told you on Saturday night," said Mr. Gibbons, when the cheering had ceased, "that it was going to snow today. (Cheers.) I told you that it was going to snow heavily -five feet."

A Voice-So it did. Mr. Gibbons-The Free Press laughed very heartily when I told you it was going to snow five feet, yea, six feet, yea, seven feet high. (Cheers.) I congratulate London; I congratulate the Liberals of London; congratulate the respectable Conservatives of London. (Cheers.) I would not forget in the hour of our triumph that many Conservatives in this city have looked to the welfare of the Province rather than party, and I thank them tonight.

(Cheers.) "You don't want to hear a long speech from me. I have in my hands telegrams coming from one end of the country to the other, and if I were to attempt to read them all it would take up as much time as one of our opponent's speeches." (Cheers and applause.) Continuing, Mr. Gibbons read, between cheers, the telegrams from Messrs. Mowat, Ross and Hardy, which are given elsewhere. "I think," said Mr. Gibbons in conclusion, "that we have a few words of thanks to say to our paper, the ADVER-TISER-(cheers)-thanks to our chairman, Mr. Cronyn. (Cheers.) He is a brick of the bricks, and stood by as and worked night and day. For a man of his age he has done his duty nobly. We know what our committees have done, and we know how nobly the Grand Trunk men have given up their time in this campaign. (Cheers.) I ask you in conclusion to be true to yourselves, and be true to our principles the next time we have an election for the Dominion House. (Cries of "Hyman, Hyman," during which Mr. Gibbons resumed his seat.)

Thos. H. Purdom. "Today's victory has been a noble one," said Mr. Purdom, and the crowd cheered. There was a man once who had lived for about twenty years with his wife and with his wife's mother. Unfortunately his wife said he. 'But you mother. 'I can't do it. must,' they answered. 'Then if I must, I pleasure out of the thing for me.' (Cheers.) Now I am atraid heard about a procession that was to be on the night of the election. But I am afraid that you have taken all the pleasure out of it for Ald. Coo. (Cheers.) You have certainly fought a good fight and you have won a good victory. (Cheers.) We know how important the victory is when we consider that one of the issues was civil and religious liberty." (Cheers.) Concluding, Mr. Purdom warned the electors to be careful that the victory did not get away. They should clinch it by making Hyman their member in the Dominion House. (Cheers.)

Dr. Geo. C. Davis. "Fellow electors of the city of London," said the versatile and genial doctor, "I am glad, indeed, to be with you to rejoice in the great victory that we have won this day. And, sirs, it is but a prelude of the victory that we will have when we will retrieve what was taken from us, when we elect Mr. Charles S. Hyman to his rightful position. (Tremendous cheering.) "Gentlemen, we have heard in this cam pain a great many sneers about the Young Liberal Fleet-which, by the way, originated with the energy, the enterprise, the perseverance of our Young Liberals—but, gentlemen, the Young Liberal Fleet has been heard from today and they marched tonight." (Cheers.) After saying it was a victory of the young men, Mr. Davis referred to the unseen forces which had been at work in the committee rooms-Mr. Thomas S. Browne, and Mr. Talbot Macbeth. To these and to the ADVERTISER the victory was largely due. When the next election comes around," concluded Mr. Davis, "we will go triumphant together to the polls; we will march shoulder to shoulder, and the respectable Conservatives. many of whom have voted with us today. will on that occasion say 'we will not be a party to the injustice that was done to the London boy-Charles S. Hyman-but we will join with you and help you to elect him again." (Cheers.)

Moses Masuret.

"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen, said Mr. Masuret, "on account of the tremendous uproar which is going on tonight, I question whether I should not address you in French. It is likely I would get as good a hearing. I know, however, that we must have had an election. It looked very much like it, but to my great surprise I don't know whether we had an opponent or not. (Cheers.) I heard a lawyer mentioned, but I fear it was Marks the lawyer." (Laughter and cheers.)

Talbot Macboth.

Mr. Macbeth said that he had not expected such a sweeping change. He went on to dwell on the importance of the victory to the Province at large, although he never thought that the Mowat Government was in the slightest danger, anyway. The majority of Mr. Hobbs went to show that the egg and milk policy laid down by the new leader, Mr. Marter, did not receive general approval.

"In this contest we had as our opponent a candidate who was not the choice of the Conservatative party, a candidate whom they didn't wish, but who forced himself on that party. They did not want him, but had to put up with him, as he said. But, gentlemen, where has he got the Conservative party tonight?"

A Voice—In the soup. Mr. Macbeth-Perhaps, gentlemen, he has got the Conservative party just where we want it tonight.

J. B. McKillop. Mr. McKillop said that his speeches

Liberal for the first time in its history.

"I have made mention on former occasions," said Mr. McKillop, while congratulating Mr. Cronyn and Mr. Hobbs, "of the good work of the ADVER-TISER. In this contest the ADVERTISER has done noble work for the Liberal party. In no campaign has the ADVERTISER done as good work for the Liberal party as it has done in the campaign through which we have just so successfully passed. From the very outset our opponents were put on the defensive, and from day to day all their will bring about better results and elect articles were simply a series of replies to Mr. Hyman as your representative. aggressive attacks by the ADVERTISER." (Cheers.)

Ex-Mayor Taylor Ex-Mayor Taylor received one of his old time welcomes as he stood before the audience, as he stated, a convert to Liberalism. He was not hard on his former associates, however, and gave them credit for having some honest, straightforward men in their ranks. He congratulated the Liberals on their magnificent victory, and said: "The next battle we have to fight that of tariff reform. In every household throughout the Dominion the battle is to befought, and if we put our shoulders to the wheel as we have today victory will be with the Liberal party." (Cheers.)

Mr. George Reid. Mr. Reid, like London's new member, is a business man rather than an orator, and his speech was brief. It was not often that they could shout, he said, but he hoped they would be able to cry victory for a number of years to come. In former times they had not had as fair play as they had that day, and that in part accounted for the victory. Eight hundred majority was indeed music to Liberal ears. (Cheers.)

Geo. C. McPherson. That old Liberal war-horse of North Perth, George C. McPherson, of Stratford, was given a tremendous ovation. He said: "I did not come down here to make a speech. I came with a delegation from Stratford to congratulate you and the Province of Ontario at large upon the victory won today. I think, Mr. Chairman, it may be said, and safely, too, that the victory will have a far-reaching effect upon the future of this Province. You have set your foot upon the cabal that has attempted to raise its head and dominate this country upon the basis of religious strife instead of what is best for the country. (Applause.) It has received its quietus today, All through the Province we have been watching it carefully, too. (Cheers.) And now that the contest is over, we will be able to eat our Thanksgiving dinner with true thanksgiving." (Long continued cheers.)

James Milne. "Great indeed is the rejoicing tonight, and great it should be, for we have gained a victory such as has never been won be-

That was the first sentence uttered by that hustling president of the Young Liberals, Mr. James Milne, as the applause subsided. "As victors we can afford to be generous with the vanquished, but when Mr. Essery said that on the night of the 20th the Liberals would hunt their holes he made an awful mistake. Voice-It looks like it. (Cheers.) Mr. Milne-That the Liberals have done their duty today cannot be questioned, and they have done it nobly. (Applause.) In died, and they told him that at the funeral fact, I am confident that when the Federal [Worledge. he would have to ride with his wife's contest comes on we will return Mr. Hyman by a still larger majority-(long and continued cheers)-about 1,000. I must,' he answered, 'but it will take all the | thank you all, and I thank the Conservative | Christmas it will not bear a duck after. friends who have voted with us. (Cheers.)

J. D. Clarke. Mr. J. D. Clarke, of the ADVERTISER. responded to many calls. "If we had been defeated today," said Mr. Clarke, "I think I would have retired to my chamber, shut the door, and said, as Ahasueras, the king said, 'that justice had fled the land.' (Laughter.) I have listened, I hope, with becoming modesty, to the remarks which have been made of the journal with which I am connected. I can assure you that the president and manager of the ADVERTISER thoroughly appreciates the kind words which have been said here tonight, and the support the Liberal party and the citizens generally give to the AD-VERTISER. As to the fact that we have done our duty, I do not think that we deserve any more credit than any who have aided in the victory today. I can only say that we have received the most loyal support of our staff, even to standing up and bearding the lion in his den. (Cheers and laughter.) I am delighted to assure you that the division in which the young man who was so unfairly attacked resides, has given a beautiful majority for the Liberal candidate. Now, the campaign is over. We have got to return to our duties once more as citizens and aid as far as we can, in getting good municipal officers out at the ensuing election, and in every way aid in building up this city, not on party or sectarian grounds, but seeing that we get fair play as a party in the city wherever we are concerned. I am glad that the campaign has been short. When I saw Sir Oliver Mowat, he asked me whether we should have a long or a short campaign. I said, 'Sir Oliver, we want to eat our Thanksgiving dinner in quietness. Let us have a short one and the citizens will do the rest. And they did it." (Cheers.) Ald, Ed. Parnell.

Ald. Parnell was greeted with many cries of "the coming mayor" and hearty applause. He was sure the citizens had great cause for rejoicing in the fact that the Liberals had won one of the most notable battles that has ever taken place in the Province of Ontario, as, said he, "by that victory we secure for Sir Oliver Mowat another supporter, who will endeavor to give us as good government in the future as in the past. I am sure we can look over the campaign just ended with joy, but it was a most unfortunate condition of affairs that personal attacks were made. I hardly knew whether I was a gentleman or a ruffian after reading the Free Press, but I am glad to say that the people of the ward in which I live have today shown to the Free Press what they think of the Liberal party-(cheers)-and of the efforts that have been made by your humble servant. (Loud applause.) I want to say, let bygones be bygones; forget all about the past, and settle down and make an endeavor to create and foster a better feeling than has existed during the last two years. I am thankful that owing to the victory won today we are not going to have a repetition in the halls of the Legislature of such sights as we have had in the council chamber up yonder. (Cheers.) I hope and trust that on Thursday of this week we will all sit down to our Thanksgiving dinner and enjoy it, and thank God that we have been able to Government the world has ever seen." (Loud cheers.) Alexander Stuart.

Mr. Alexander Stuart, barrister, didn't expect, he said, to be called upon to make a specch. However, he made a brief address. He told of the great pleasure he had in offering congratulations to President Cronyn, the senior Liberals and the Young Liberal Club. The latter was known all over the land, and the speaker did not suppose there was an organization in existence to elect Mr. Hobbs as their representative in the Local Legislature. "I congratulate the ex-member for the city of London," said the speaker, "because it shows that it was his own personal merit which was the means of electing him on former occasions. I congratulate the city because it has become Dr. Lyman Abbott, in a late paper, Reform, and I hope that in the next election you will teach the Government at Ottawa that they want something which (Loud Cheers.) Mr. Stewart, who resides at Glencoe, extended the congratulations of the Liberals of West Middlesex upon the great victory.

Then the most enthusiastic political gathering in London's history broke up with three cheers and a tiger for Mr. C. S.

A Montreal Star special cable from London says: Sir Charles Tupper a few days ago said that when the British Cabinet Council was meeting to consider the alarming condition of affairs in the east, the Canadian Cabinet was also assembled, and authorized Chief Justice Sir Samuel Henry Strong, acting Governor-General, to cable return to power a supporter of the best | Lord Ripon that the Dominion of Canada was prepared to put the Royal Canadian Regiment of Infantry at the service of the British Government and maintain that force in the common interest of the empire. Crooked Work Going on in Mars.

Future of Polite Society.

thinks that polite society, in the exclusive sense, is hardly destined to sustain itself. His reason is that wealth is superseding birth as its basis. In this respect, however, his inference is doubtful, while the facts are true. He says that "some communities, like Boston, New York and Philadelphia, make a brave attempt to maintain a respect for old families; but this is an inheritance from colonial days, and visibly wanes." He might have gone farther and have said that in only one of these three cities-Philadelphia-has the "smart set" any particular connection with old families or gives itself any concern about them. The utmost that it does is to draw a feeble line at the recognized occupations of fathers, while the occupation or social position of the grandfather is pretty thoroughly ignored. Given a fortune, with a reasonable amount of tact, and one generation, or at most two, can accomplish the rest. There is a lingering rumor that at Newport a rich dealer in patent medicines was for years successfully kept from buying land on the fashionable avenue; but if so, the exclusion was in itself an absurdity, like those attempted distinctions between wholesale and retail trade. Surely it is absurd to assume it as plebian to sell tape by the piece, and not plebeian to sell it by the thousand pieces; to call it discredit able when a fortune is made by a medicine, and not when it is made by hotelkeeping or laying water pipes or carrying on the express business. All these vocations, and a thousand others equally modest and respectable, have contributed to the gliding of our jeunese doree and no one need be ashamed of any one of them, except when it tempts him to sneer at some other.

Stole the Monument.

According to the Natal Times, the monument sent out by Queen Victoria to Zululand as a token of her sympathy with the bereaved mother of the late Prince Louis Napoleon has been stolen. A reward of £50 has been offered. The monument took the form of a memorial cross of plain marble, and was erected on the exact spot upon which the Prince fell when surprised and attacked by a party of Zulus who had been lying in ambush. The memorial bore the following inscription: "This cross is erected by Queen Victoria in affectionate remembrance of Napoleon Eugene Louis Jean Joseph, Prince Imperial, to mark the spot where her while assisting in a reconnaissance with the British troops. on the 1st of June, 1879, was attacked by a party of Zulus, and fell with face to the foe." It was surrounded by a dwarf wall of rough stones, which also enclosed the graves of the two troopers who were killed at the same time as the Prince. Shrubs and violets (the Napoleonic emblem) were planted about the place, which thus became a kind of miniature cemetery. It is interesting to recall that after the erection of the cross the Zulu chief Geboodo and the chief men of his tribe, to which the party who attacked the Prince belonged, assembled at the place, and, standing with their right hand uplifted, solemnly declared that the memorial shall be lost; and the bloody flixes shall kill and the graves should never be desecrated. The stealing of the cross is, therefore, all the more remarkable. especially as the Zulus entertain a deeply-felt superstition regarding the spirits of the dead.

Very Slight Disgrace.

"See here," said the lawyer "isn't it a fact that you were once sentenced to a term in jail for stealing hogs?"

"I guess it is," sullenly assented the witness, "but, by gee, I broke out the same night I was put in."

LONDON, Nov. 21. This week's business has been on about a par with last week. Receipts have fallen off in wheat but increased in rough grains, chiefly corn and oats; the quantity of beans, rye and buckwheat offered were even smaller than a week ago, but we note little change in the prices paid.

Wheat was the strong feature of the week; the gain was a gradual one and the total increase for the week about 3c, making a gain of so far this month.

Outside the strong feature of the week;

outside the strong feature of the week; er 100 lbs; the close for the week being 85c

Corn fell off fully 5c and closed at 90c. Receipts were about steady, but there were few buying orders. Buckwheat was steady at 85c to 90c per 100

Beans came in slowly. Really choice lots of hand-picked sold at 90c to $1 per bushel.

Peas sold at 82c to 90c; the supply was light.

Barley sales were mostly made between 80c and 90c; the demand was steady and the supply light. Eggs came in moderately well for this season of the year. The demand was not so keen as a week ago and values suffered accordingly. The range was from 14c to 20c, according to quality and quantity.

Butter was weak owing to heavy deliveries.

from local makers and outside trade. There was about the usual demand, but it was not able to absorb the offerings fast enough, and the result was that prices were about it lower than at our quotations a week ago. At oday's session pound rolls of first-class make coday's session pound rolls of first-class make sold at 18c to 20c by the basket; large rolls and crocks at 16c to 20c according to quality. Creamery sold at 18c to 20c.

There was an abundance of turkeys, geess and ducks every day, and quite an increase was noticeable in the amount of trade since prices reduced. Chickens sold at 35c to 50c per.

rices reduced. Chickens sold at 35c to 50c per pair; ducks, 50c to 70c; geese, 5c to 6c per lb, and turkeys at 61c to 8c, mostly 7c.

Beef was quiet, the trade complaining that the abundance of poultry makes it almost impossible to get costs out of meats. Beef sold at 4c to 6c by the quarter and lamb at 6c to 7c. Dressed hogs remained steady at the decline made during the early part of the week, and although they have at times shown a little disposition to improve, no actual change occurred, and the close was $5 for choice and occasionally $5 25, and from that price down to 4, depending upon the quality.

Hides, skins, wool and tallow show little

Hides, skins, wool and tallow show little change. A moderate volume of trade is reported and unchanged values.

In the fruit trade business was almost entirely confined to apples. A few late pears and some quinces offered, and a few baskets of rapes out of cold storage. Sales were made at about the same figures as last week.

There was the usual collection of vegetables and a good demand for all kinds excepting enions. They seem to be over-done considerable and are hard to sell at 90c a bag.

Potatoes auctuated between 50c and 60c by the load, and were controlled entirely by the supply. Indications show that so long as we get mild spells, during those spells we will have at least moderately good receipts, and too, looks as if there were a good many yet to come.

Hay has been scarce, and has advanced about 50e per ton during the week.

Live Stock Markets. TORONTO.

(Special to the ADVERTISER.) TORONTO, Nov. 21.—At the Western cattle market yesterday trade was rather slow in most lines; prices were poor. All told there were only 38 car loads of stuff on the market, which included 325 sheep and lambs and over 2,000 hogs. In export cattle nothing was done, all the space being full at Montreal and Portland. No shipments will be made from here via Halifax, but some of the Manitoba cattle will go via that route to France. In stockers and feeders there was little having one care and feeders there was a little buying, one car load being taken for Waterloo and two for Milton to feed in Fatimer's stables. One bunch brought $2 90 per cwt, but generally the prices paid ranged at from 2,c to 2,c per lb. Trade was dull in butchers' cattle and poor prices realized. The top figure was 3,c, paid for picked cattle. The range of prices was from 2,c to 3½c for medium to good butchers' cattle. Some inferior sold as low as 1½c to 2c per lb. Pick of the best carload of the day sold for 3½c per lb, and the second choice for 3½c per lb. So much lamb and poultry is being consumed at present that butchers are chary about buying beef. In bors, offerings, were beeny, but prices were that butchers are chary about buying beef In hogs offerings were heavy, but prices were well held, ranging from $4.25 to $4.30 per cwt for choice bacon hogs, weighed off the cars. One or two extra choice lots sold for $4.35. Cnly a few export sheep were bought today at from 3c to 31.2c per lb. The e are to be shipped by way of New York or Baltimore. Lambs were plentiful, but fairly steady, prices realized ranging from $1.50 to $2.50 per head.

The unknown man who was arrested yesterday at the Carling street polling booth on a charge of personation was arraigned at the Police Court today and was remanded until Monday. He still refuses to say anything about himself. The man is tall and fair, with a heavy blonde mustache, and is believed to belong to Hamilton, Bail was refused. George Underwood and John Collins, drunks, were remanded for a week. Four drunks were discharged.

Bro. Fordham Robbed of His Vote. Bro. John Fordham, of Court Pride of the Dominion, A. O. F., whose letter exposing Mr. Essery's treatment of the Foresters, was one of the sensations of the campaign, was a special mark for the vengence of Mr. Essery's agents vesterday. was forced on board an eastbound train and the next train back, and although he arrived too late to vote he was in time to assist in Mr. Hobbs' celebration.

Helped Himself. The drygoods and clothing store of John M. Gibbs, of Parkhill, was relieved of a quantity of goods on Sept. 30 by some persons unknown. While walking down the street the other day, Gibbs saw Thomas Mathers, a resident of the village, togged out in an overcoat which once belonged to his stock. Mathers was arrested, and brought before Squire Wells. He pleaded guilty to the theft. In Mather's house a quantity of the missing articles were found. The prisoner confessed that on Sept. 30 he walked into the store and helped himself to an overcoat. hat, coat and vest, two pieces of cloth, a blue suit, and cloth for a pair of trousers. Mathers was committed for trial and brought to jail here this morning.

The Chicago Runaway Case.

The Court House was partly filled with eurious spectators this morning at 12 o'clock, when the trial of Victor Schroeter and Richard Borberg was commenced. They are the two Chicago young men who are accused of bringing a large quantity of stolen goods, the property of Con-stance Heching, into Canada. The woman concerned in the case, Mrs. Heching, was present, and so were the husband, the private detective, Robert Rijnhart, and a host of other witnesses, many of whom will testify for the defense. The evidence taken before adjournment was simply a repetition of that given at the preliminary hearing before Police Magistrate Parke. Mr. McKillop, for the Crown, presented a number of letters to show that undue intimacy had existed between his wife and the two prisoners, but Judge Elliott refused to admit them, stating that the prisoners were being tried for another offense. He stated, however, that if it was necessary to prove the offense later on the documents would be admitted. The trial will continue this afternoon.

P. P. A. Divisions.

The Toronto Mail today contains an interview with Mr. E. J. MacRobert, late grand treasurer of the P. P. A. of Canada. The letter said he had resigned that office because the association's methods did not commend themselves to him.

"Then there is a possibility of dissension being created?" queried the reporter. "There is," replied Mr. MacRobert. "Matters are by no means harmonious, and are tending towards disruption unless a big change is made in the administration.

"How are the funds of the order, Mr. MacRobert?" "Well, the order owes me $290 and I have $259 of their money," said Mr. Mac-Robert, laughing. "The books have been audited and certified to be correct, as the following statement will show," he continued, producing the auditors' statement, I which proved his assertion."

YOUNG WOMAN ARRESTED.

On Suspicion of Being Frank Westwood's Murderer.

A Man's Suit and Revolver Found in Her Rooms-the Police Reticent,

TORONTO, Oct., Nov. 21.—The police late last night arrested a girl named Clara drygoods stock, $3,000; J. Temmins, furniford, a tailoress, on the charge of shooting ture, stock, $1,500; Mechanics' Institute, Frank Westwood, the young man who was so mysteriously shot in the doorway of his D. Hewis, liquor store, $500; H. E. Mafather's house in Parkdale a few weeks ago. They refuse to give any further particulars at present, but it is understood the girl and deceased had been intimate and had quar- buildings, and they saved only what clothes

After the arrest the prisoner's rooms were searched, and a suit of man's clothes were found, consisting of a gray tweed coat, dark cloth vest and pants, and a black fedora hat. The detectives also found a 38-caliber revolver, with four chambers loaded and two empty. They ffirm that she has admitted to having dressed in male attire more than once, and that when so arrayed, they declare, she would easily pass for a man, and excite no special notice or suspicion. Clara Ford, although she gave her age as 33, does not appear to be more than 25. She is about medium height, with a good broad pair of shoulders. Her hair, which is black and curly, is worn short. Taken altogether, the detectives consider that, attired in the neat dark suit found in her room, she would pass anywhere as a finelooking young man with a tinge of African blood in his viens. Clara Ford was born in Toronto. She informed the detectives that she knew nothing about her parents, as they died when she was quite young.

A reporter learned that Clara Ford was an acquaintance of one of the male witnesses G. Carter, Son & Co., flour and feed, loss who testified at the inquest. She lived at a house on Fern avenue, about threequarters of a mile north of the Westwood home, but left there some time ago. When arrested she was living on one of the streets near the general hospital. A BAD SLIP.

TORONTO, Nov. 21. - The woman was arraigned in police court this morning and asked what she pleaded. She said to the astonishment of all around her "Guilty," lut immediately changed it as if she had made a slip to one of not guilty. The case was remanded for a week at the request of the crown attorney.

It was currently reported around the streets today that an election was held here yesterday.

There was more than one uneasy look around the City Hall this morning. Mr. Frank Hunt, St. Thomas, did yeoman service for Mr. Hobbs in spotting the "pluggers" that came over from the city to the south. When the crowd was wedged on Dundas street at the Young Liberal Club rooms last night, and when the excitement was at its pitch, Joseph Marshall, M.P., and Early in the morning he was induced to Ald. Bob Carrothers drove up and down enter a vehicle on some pretext and was through the crowd repeatedly, Mr. driven to the G. T. R. station, where he Marshall urging his horse forward in imtaken to Hamilton. Bro. Fordham took | On the last trip through Mr. Marshall used the whip on adjacent small boys with tin horns. But for the restraining presence of mind of the more level-headed, Mr. Marshall might have come to griet. A man who is now in business with his brother in St. Catherines, and who formerly kept a watch repairing establishment here, came back yesterday and took the oath and voted.

A prominent brickyard man is alleged to have taken two Hobbs voters out to Thamesford on Monday and kept them there until after the election. Said a sixth ward man: "A few years ago Essery shut off our water. Yesterday we shut off his wind.' "Don't call me 'mister,' boys," said the mayor to the car shops men yesterday, "call me 'Tom." They called him down.

Mr. Thos. Reid, of Toronto, came up to assist in the glorious victory.

As Others See It. Toronto World: The result in London is settler for Mr. Esssry. It shows how exceedingly popular Mr. Meredith was in he western city, or how unpopular Mr. Essery is there today-or it may show both these things. Toronto Empire: It was clear from the outset that the Government were resolved to let all their forces loose upon the constituency. They put up a strong candidate, who possessed the advantage of having made a good run at the general election. The influence and personality of Mr. Meredith only scored a victory then by a moderate majority.

Toronto Mail: The Government has reason to feel gratified at the result, since it has given it a clear majority over the Conservatives and Patrons combined. Toronto Globe: The London ADVERTISER made a strong, judicious, effective campaign for Mr. Hobbs. * * The Liberals had a good candidate; they had the benefit of the fine addresses of Messrs. Ross, Hardy and Dryden; they had a splendid organization, and the ADVERTISER fought a clever and aggressive campaign. We congratulate them heartily on the result of the first contest since the Provincial general electiona contest in which all Ontario was keenly interested. EASILY SEEN THROUGH.

(Toronto Globe.) It is quite evident that the Prohibitionists of London must have voted with Mr. Hobbs, as it was proper they should have done. Mr. Marter's halting, hedging policy was not calculated to satisfy sincere temperance men. Although he posed in the House on more than one occasion as the leader of the most advanced section of the temperance party, when he came to discuss the question as the leader of his own party he declined to speak for anybody but himself. The Prohibitionists of London saw through the thin veil of tactical duplicity which he attempted, and the tremendous majority which Mr. Hobbs received is their answer to Mr. Marter's trimming and dodging in order to keep on good terms with the liquor vote, and at the same time travel with the Prohibitionists.

CAUSE FOR THANKFULNESS. (Toronto Globe.)

In the East Lambton contest the P. P. A. had no more active and aggressive champion than Mr. Essery. He owed his nomination by the Conservatives of London largely to his connection with the secret order. The result of the general elections showed that the influence of the P. P. A. had waned; the result of the London election goes far to show that it is approaching the vanishing point. The indications are that the movement will shortly have run its course, and all those, to whatever party they may belong, who have stoutly stemmed the current will have occasion for just pride and thankfulness.

Ellen Adair, only not married to her through a mere chance, she waiting for him now—each hour as it passed—to return and complete the ceremony; and loving her as he should never love any other in this world. And—in the midst of these obligations—to have made the sudden and astounding discovery that Ellen Adair was the only living woman who must be barred to him; whom, of all others, of all the numbers that walked the earth, he must alone not make his wife. The position would have been bewildering to a man without honor; to Arthur Bohun, with his fastidiously high standard, it was simply terrible.

For the few hours that James Bohun lasted, Arthur did nothing. It may almost be said that he thought nothing, for his mind was in a chaos. On the day following his arrival James died; and he, Arthur, had then become heir presumptive. To many, it might have seemed that he was quite as secure of the succession as though he were heir-apparent, for Sir Nash was old and ailing. A twelvemonth ago Sir Nash Bohun had been full of life; upright, energetic, to all appearances strong, hearty, and likely to changed rapidly; and the once healthy man seemed to have little health in him now.

Medical men told him that if he would go abroad and for some months take certain medicinal springs, he might—and in all probability would — regain health and strength, Sir Nash would have tried it but for the decining health of his son.

James could not leave home; Sir Nash would not be separated from him.

What though Arthur Bohun was the heir?

In his present misery, it seemed worse than a mockery to him. A Bohun could not live dishonored; and he must be dishonored to the end of his days. To abandon Ellen

Adair would bring the red stain of undying shame to his cheek; to marry her would be, of the two, only the greater disgrace. What, then, could anticipated rank and

Any position more cruelly difficult than that of Captain Bohun cannot well be conceived. Madam's communication was not confined to the one first revelation; she added another to it. At first there had been no opportunity for more; the train stopped at a branch station just beyond Eastsea, and the carriage became filled with passengers. Arthur, in his torment, would have further questioned his mother, praying for elucidation; but madam demanded in a whisper whether he was mad, and then turned her back upon him. The people went all the way to London, but as soon as Arthur had handed his mother into a cab, on their way to Sir Nash Bohun's, he began again. The storm that raged at Eastsea had apparently extended its fury to London; the rain beat, the wind blew, the streets were as deserted as London streets at a busy hour of the afternoon can be. Arthur shuddered a little as he glanced out; the elements just now seemed as dark and warring at his fate. "Mother, things cannot rest here," he Frain; you must answer them now. Cannot you see how dreadful this suspense must be to me? I am engaged to marry Ellen Adair; If not today, some day. And now you tell me that, which-which-

Which ought to break it off, he was about to say; but emotion stopped him. He raised his hand and wiped the moisture from his forehead. Madam bent down, and kissed his hand. He did not remember to have been kissed by her since he was a child. Her voice assumed a soft, tender tone; comething like tears stood in her eyes.

"I can see how you suffer, Arthur; 1 am sure you must love her, poor young lady; and I would give anything not to have to inflict pain or disappointment on you. But what else can I do? You are my son; your interests are dear to me; and I must speak. Don't you remember how I have always warned you against Miss Adair? But I never suspected there would be cause for it to great as this." He did remember it. This new soft mood of madam's became her well. In the midst of his own trouble Arthur spared a moment to think that perhaps he had in a degree misjudged her.

"I cannot understand how so frightful a charge can be brought against Mr. Adair, spoke Arthur. "What you tell me sounds like a fable. I had been given to understand that he and my father were close friends."

"As they were, once." "And yet you say that he, Mr. Adair, was "A convict," spoke madam, supplying the words. "I cannot give you details, Arthur; only facts. He was tried, out there and convicted. He obtained a ticket of leave which I dare say may not have expired yet."

"And his crime?—What was it?"

"I told you. Forgery."
"Did you ever know him?"

"Of course I did; at the time when he was intimate with your father. We never quite knew who he was, Arthur; or who his people were at home, or what had taken him originally to India; but Major Bohun was unsuspicious as the day, as you yourself. There arose great trouble, Arthur; gambling and wickedness, and I can't tell you what; and through it all, nearly up to the last, your father believed in Adair."

'Was he a convict then?" "No, no; all that came afterwards; not e, perhaps, but discovery, trial, and conviction. Arthur-how sorry I am to say it, I can never tell you-your father's son had better go and marry that miserable drab, than a daughter of William Adair."

She pointed to a poor wretch that was passing A gaunt skeleton of a woman, with paint on her hollow cheeks, and a tawdry gown trailing in the mud. Arthur pressed his hands to his temples;

all sorts of confused thoughts were fighting together within his breast. "Did Mrs. Cumberland know of this?" he asked.

'I cannot say. Her husband did. At the time it all happened, Mrs. Cumberland was away in ill-health. I should think she would hear it from her husband after-

"Then-how could she encourage me to enter into this contract with Mrs. Adair?" returned Arthur, in a flash of resentment.

"You must never see her again, Arthur; you must never see her again. Go abroad for a time if need be; it may be the better

"What am I to say to them?" he cried in self-commune. "After all, Ellen is not responsible for her father's sins." A spasm caught madam. Was this information not sufficient?-would he carry out the marriage yet?

"Arthur, there's worse behind," she breathed. "Why can't you be satisfied? breathed. why do you force me to tell you all?-I would have spared you the rest."
"What rest?" he asked, his lips turning

"About that man-William Adair."

"What rest?"
"He killed your father."

"Killed-my father?"

"Yes. He forged his name; he ruined him; and in the shock-in the shock-

Madam stopped. "What?" gasped Arthur. "Well, the shock killed your father."

"Do you mean that he died of it?" "He could not bear the trouble; and he-

Madam's face was white now; white with emotion. Arthur, in his emotion, seized her hard, and gazed at her. "It is true," she whispered. "He shot himself in the trouble and disgrace that Adair brought upon him. And you, his son, would have married the man's daugh-

With a horrible fear of what he had all but done-with a remorse that nearly turned him mad-with a sort of unformed row never again to see Mrs. Cumberland or Ellen Adair, Arthur Bohun dropped his mother's hand with a suppressed groan, and kent silence until they stopped before the house of Sir Nash Bohun.

Mechanically he looked up at the windows, and saw that the shutters were open, So James was not dead. Arthur gave his hand to madam, to help her in.

But James Bohun was as ill as he could be; very palpably nearer death than when madam had started from the house at break of dawn. In fact there had then been some hope, for he had rallied in the night. Arthur never knew that. He supposed his mother had really come off to fetch him, in order that he should be present at the close; he suspected not that she had frantically hastened down to disturb him

Mr. and Mrs. Chute, of Aylmer, desire that we should publish their testimonial and let other sufferers know what Williams' Royal Crown Reme'y (Nature's Liquid) has done for Mr. Chute. He writes: "For ten years or more I have been a sufferer with dyspepsia, and doctored with six of the most skilled doctors in this part of the country with but little relief and no benefit in return for the very large doctors' bills that I paid. I tried almost every conceivable remedy but all to no purpose, until April. 1893, when I took to myself a wife, and itso happened that three years previous to our marriage she had been in poor health, and used part of a bottle of Royal Crown Remedy, and, knowing of its excellent qualities, she prevailed upon me to give it a trial. I purchased one bottle of the Remedy and Pills, and by the time I had them used my general health was much improved, and by the time I had taken three bottles I was restored to good health, and my neighbors say that I am looking better than I have done for years. I believe Royal Crown Remedy to be the best value for the money on earth, and am thankfully yours.
