London, May 23 .- The scheme of the ! ed Mrs. Terry with improper relations Government for the relief of Ireland, as outlined in the House of Commons a surprise upon most of the members, and is the leading topic for discussion in the political world today. Both parties attributed it to the influence of of State for the Colonies, and it is adpopularize the Government in Ireland and also among its progressive supporters in England. On the other hand, many Liberals believe it will elp them rather than the "Unionists." for if it is a success it will disarm the opposition to home rule. Under the scheme the landlords will receive about £250,000 ($1,250,000) yearly, and the tenants will be relieved of about £400,000 ($2,000,000) of yearly taxation. It is un-

SETTLING DAY. The Graeco-Turkish trouble has now settled, and the Sultan of Turkey may be counted upon to drag the affair along as much as possible, with the view of bringing out the latent jealousies of the powers. His prompt compliance with the czar's request to arrange for an armistice is not at-tributed entirely to his desire to please the czar, but is looked upon as a stroke of diplomacy intended to excite the resentment of some other power and thus weaken the concert. Thus far everything tends to show the powers remain in entire agreement on the question. A European conference is discussed, but it is not thought likely of peace are arranged. Then the ambassadors at Constantinople, with the delegates of Turkey and Greece, may demnity is imposed upon them there will be a general collapse and serious internal troubles will occur. They estimate the damage done to Thessaly have accepted from at 25,000,000 drachmas, and they say adaptation of a well known work to food and tools. Moreover, they add, scene laid in the romantic period of the revenue will be greatly reduced Louis XIV. owing to the immense damage to cul vation throughout the country, due to the absence of thousands of workers. This year's budget will probably leave a deficit of 60,000,000 drachmas. The Greek statements, however, are now received with certain skepticism. It is pointed out that by the admissions of the Greeks themselves 70 per cent of the interest of the debt, which they have not paid, has been set aside among the Telugus of India. Theatrical London is to have a new sensation—no less than a presentation of Hogarth on the stage. For two years Weedon Grossmith has been engaged in designing the costumes, scenery and properties of a play, specially written for him by Thomas Hatton, intended to faithfully transfer to the "traffic of the stage" the famous series of Hogarth pictures known as "The Idle Apprentice," which, by the way, will be the title of the play. The part of the nero, Jack Sheppard, will be played by Weedon Grossmith. The principal role, however, will be that of Jonathan Wild. the celebrated thief catcher, and as yet no one has been cast for the part meet to settle upon the treaty of peace.

Charles Villiers might, but it is doubtful whether you could get him to talk. There is no one else that I know." But there was somebody else, whom Mr. Knowles knew, and that somebody else was a great find from an editorial point of view. Sir Algernon West's paper in the Nineteenth Century is such a compost of pleasant reminiscences as probably no other man in the country but Mr. Gladstone could have put together. It is far and away the great jubilee year.

THE DELIVERANCE OF WOMEN. In nothing is this change more nowomen. We of the younger genera-tion have never adequately realized time? the extent to which the foul habits of life and conversation which prevailed when the Queen came to the throne made woman practically a prisoner in her own house. Read the following extracts from Sir Algernon West's delightful article:

The awardling. age of emancipation. The swaddling-clothes of childhood have been cast aside, and the limbs are unfettered." HOW THE PIPE CAST OUT THE BOTTLE. I should like nothing better than to quote the whole article solid, but to that there are insuperable objections. First, I have not the space, and next, if I had, Mr. Knowles would justly object. I have, therefore, merely sam-oled it, quoting what Sir Algernor West says on the one point which, more than anything else, serves as a gauge of progress in civilization. But I cannot close this notice without loting another tribute which he pays of the improvement of the altered times, which—let the Anti-Tobacco Society take good note—he attributes largely to the substitution of smoking for drinking: "No gentleman ever smoked in the streets till after the Crimean peace; and ladies never sulfied their lips with tobacco, or even allowed men to smoke in their presence. It was not till the year of '45 that a smokingroom was first established in the Holy of Holies, 18 Dandydom, White's Club; and it was 1881 before smoking was allowed below the attics in Brooks'. "Thanks to the introduction by the Prince of Wales of smoking after dinner, wine drinking is over now. What it was in old days appears almost incredible. The late Lord Clanwilliam speaking w dined at a friend's villa near Putney.

The dinner was extraordinarily late for those days—at 8 o'clock. When they at last rose from the table and they at last rose from the table and they at last rose from the table and the shrouded figures being daughters. went to their rooms, Lord Clanwilliam flung open his window and saw the haymakers coming into the field. "I wonder," he thought, "what hour they makers were returning to work from their breakfasts!"

A SIGNIFICANT CHANGE. One more extract and I have done. Sir Algernon West says:

"I once asked Mr. Charles Villiers how he compared the morals of his early life with those of our time. He have at times done strange things. en-Nineteenth Century for April which everyone ought to read. When I began my studies of "The Sovereign and the Reign," I asked an intimate friend the Reign," I asked an intimate friend days, every young man, even if he if he could name anyone who was old was busy, pretended to be idle; now every young man, if he was idle, pretended to be busy; and that meant a Decrease in Contributions.

Eagle Lake, Ind., May 23 .- The Presbyterian General Assembly yesterday was opened with devotional exercises Samuel T. Studdiford, of Trenton, N. J. Among the papers referred to appropriate committees were four on organization of Presbyterian churches north and south. The regular order of the morning was the report f the board of ministerial relief, which in outline was as follows:

The receipts last year were $160,856, and the expenditures $182,264. While the permanent fund is now large, amounting to $1,551,783, it was still the udgment of the board that it should e very largely increased, and the conributions from churches and individuals should also be greatly increased year to year, for there was a steady increase in the number of applications for aid, and the aid granted should in many cases be much larger amounts now given for support of those under the care of the board. It was painful to notice that since the centennial fund was raised in 1888 the collections from the churches and Sabbath schools had been gradually falling off. In 1887-88 they raised $98,922, in in 1896-97 only $74,091, a decrease of $24,631.

The showing was all the worse since in 1888 there reported but 722,671 communicants, and in 1896 there were 943,-716. While the church was more than one-fourth larger than nine years ago, the collections were more than onefourth less. And what made the showing appear still worse was that in 1888 but 564 families were under the care of the board, and last year they had 835. The average gifts of communicants had fallen from 13 cents each to about 7½ cents each. The entire cash receipts from all sources, including interest, were $197.995, a little less than 4 per cent of the sum being used

After reviewing the work of the year, the committee recommended approval of a change of rule by which legacies will be extended for current work instead of being invested in a permanent fund. Efforts were recommended to fund. Efforts were recommended to increase contributions to this charita-
