PAYER STRIVES TO BLIND EYES OF HUN PEOPLE

Says Allies Are Feeling the War's Burden as Well as Germany

NO FOOD SHORTAGE

By Courier Leased Wire.

Amsterdam, Thursday, Sept. 12.—The postponement of peace prospects and the likelihood of a fifth winter weigh heavily on all belligerents, not on Germany alone, in the opinion of Friedrich von Payer, imperial vice-Chancellor of Germany, in a speech at Stuttgart.

"Our state debts," the vice-chancellor said, "are everywhere reaching fantastic heights, and everywhere we struggle against the encroachments of our personal liberty. All of the belligerents of Europe must admit, if they are not blind, that the longer the European forces lacerate each other the more certainly will the historical and paramount position of weakened and impoverished Europe be lost in favor of cleverer and more calculating people."

Herr von Payer reminded his hearers that after four years the war still was being waged almost entirely on enemy territory. He admitted that the U-boat warfare had not worked so quickly and surely as had been hoped. He added that it was useless to dispute whose fault it was. The enemy, he said, was still unable to compensate their losses by new construction, and declared that the robbery of neutral ships, almost without parallel by the entente could not be repeated.

"The more troops the United States sends the greater will be the need for reinforcements of munitions and provisions," Herr von Payer said. "The filling up of the enemy army by Americans therefore bears in itself its limitations."

He argued that the loss of shipping would become fatal to Great Britain after the war, because it would lose its shipping superiority to the United States, and the hope of compensating themselves from the German fleet, which still has to be conquered, will surely be adequate comfort only for the very imaginative Britishers.

Containing that technique and inventive genius, which already had helped the Germans over heavy obstacles, would still help them, von Payer said.

"If we lack cotton and oils, our enemies lack coal. Food is scarce here and there, but already things have probably turned in our favor. In the East the world is again open to us for a food supply, while our enemies supplies of food, munitions and raw materials give precedence to the front's calls for America's army and the provisioning."

The speaker said that the Germans have only to see that the war continues to be waged in a foreign country, that the Germans are fighting for their lives and their homes, and that the enemy's only hope is that the Germans collapse inwardly sooner than they. He asserted that the enemy attempts to sow discord were unavailing, and that the Germans were strong enough to reach a decision "in our differences of opinion regarding economic power and political rights, even down to the food question."

Herr von Payer urged the necessity of the Germans holding together in the hour of danger, and said that disappointed hopes must be prevented, justified hopes fulfilled and actually existing wrongs redressed. Regarding the Prussian suffrage bill, which he considered of prime importance, he said that it is no longer Prussian, but immediately a German question, and on its fate depends the confidence which the population places in the Prussian imperial government. Further postponement, he said, is not permissible, adding, "Moreover, it is my belief that the decision of the Prussian government may be regarded as already taken, and if equal suffrage does not issue from the committee of the Upper House, the government will proceed to dissolution."

Herr von Payer considered that the present terrible struggle would not end with a peace of the customary character. A mere glance at the state of complete exhaustion of the world excludes such a possibility, he said.

GUNMAN IS GIVEN YEAR IN PRISON

Sam Ponessa Sentenced For Shooting at Fellow Italian

Sam Ponessa the Italian who perpetrated the gun-play on the market on a Saturday morning some weeks ago appeared in the police court this morning, well dressed and wearing a flower on his coat. Although found guilty some time ago, he volubly told of the wrongs done him by Binonte the man he shot at. Binonte had, he said, broken into his house while he was away and stolen all his property of any value, including his registration card. Ponessa claims he comes of a very respectable family and has four brothers at the front at the present time. Ever since he had come to Canada he did not see a law abiding citizen and did not see why he should be sent to jail because of the shooting affray. Despite all his pleading the magistrate sentenced him to one year in the Ontario Reformatory.

PTE. J.P. POWERS REPORTED MISSING

More 125th Men in Casualties—Pte. Alfred Fitness Wounded

To Mr. and Mrs. John Powers, 153 Darling street, came the sad news this morning that their only son, Pte. John Patrick Powers has been missing since August 31, and that uncertainty as to his fate still exists. Pte. Powers was born and raised in Brantford, but held a position with a lumber company in Sarnia for some time previous to enlisting in the 125th Battalion, returning here to join that unit. He had been for nearly two years at the front. In addition to his parents, Pte. Powers has two sisters, Miss Sadie at home, and Mrs. D. Burke, also of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fitness, 420 Colborne St., have received word that their youngest son, Pte. Alfred W. Fitness was admitted on August 28th to Barrington hospital, Shropshire, England, wounded in the leg by Mrs. Copperwall, Erie avenue, by trade prior to enlistment in the 125th battalion, and went overseas with the rank of sergeant in the 125th battalion, reverting from that rank in order to reach the front. He is married.

Word was received in the city today by Mrs. Pte. Walsh, Erie avenue, to the effect that Pte. Tom Walsh had received gunshot wounds in his left side. Pte. Walsh went overseas with the 84th Battalion and went to France with the 75th Battalion. He has been over there a considerable length of time and has been wounded four times.

DISTRICT MEN WOUNDED

Pte. W. Layland, of Simcoe, and Pte. R. Deveny, of Brantford, were both reported in last night's official casualty list.

Herr von Payer urged the necessity of the Germans holding together in the hour of danger, and said that disappointed hopes must be prevented, justified hopes fulfilled and actually existing wrongs redressed. Regarding the Prussian suffrage bill, which he considered of prime importance, he said that it is no longer Prussian, but immediately a German question, and on its fate depends the confidence which the population places in the Prussian imperial government. Further postponement, he said, is not permissible, adding, "Moreover, it is my belief that the decision of the Prussian government may be regarded as already taken, and if equal suffrage does not issue from the committee of the Upper House, the government will proceed to dissolution."

American Troops Still Advancing South of St. Mihiel

Attention of the Nation Centered on the Present Operations

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Sept. 13.—By the Associated Press.—Bulletin.—Gen. Pershing's forces in their attack on the southern side of the St. Mihiel salient have advanced for a distance of eight miles. The assault was made on a front of fourteen miles.

The Americans this morning were making rapid progress in the continuation of their drive. German prisoners say the American attack was expected but that it was delivered so rapidly that they had no time to put up a stubborn resistance.

Pannes, which was energetically defended by the Germans, but easily captured by the Americans.

Was Unexpected. London, Sept. 13.—The British public has been anxiously looking for another move, but hardly expected it so soon and the news of the Franco-American attack to pinch out the St. Mihiel salient was received here with the greatest enthusiasm, and, according to British correspondents at the front, who saw the good process the Americans are making, with equal enthusiasm there.

As a big advance in this direction would soon cause great inconvenience to the enemy before Metz, it is fully expected that resistance would be met. According to military experts the German front between Verdun and the Swiss frontier for many months has been tightly held with inferior troops in comparison to the remainder of the front to the sea and one of the objectives General Ludendorff undoubtedly expected this section of the battle line to be the object of an attack by the American army, which was generally supposed to be somewhere in this neighborhood.

Tributes to U. S. Forces. London, Sept. 13.—The assault on the St. Mihiel salient, dominating the news columns of the newspapers to-day, which featured it was the biggest headlines. The opening blow in Marshal Foch's great offensive scheme claims attention in any case, but this one has a special attraction as the first stroke of the independent American army under direct American command and as such is hailed as one of the milestones of the war.

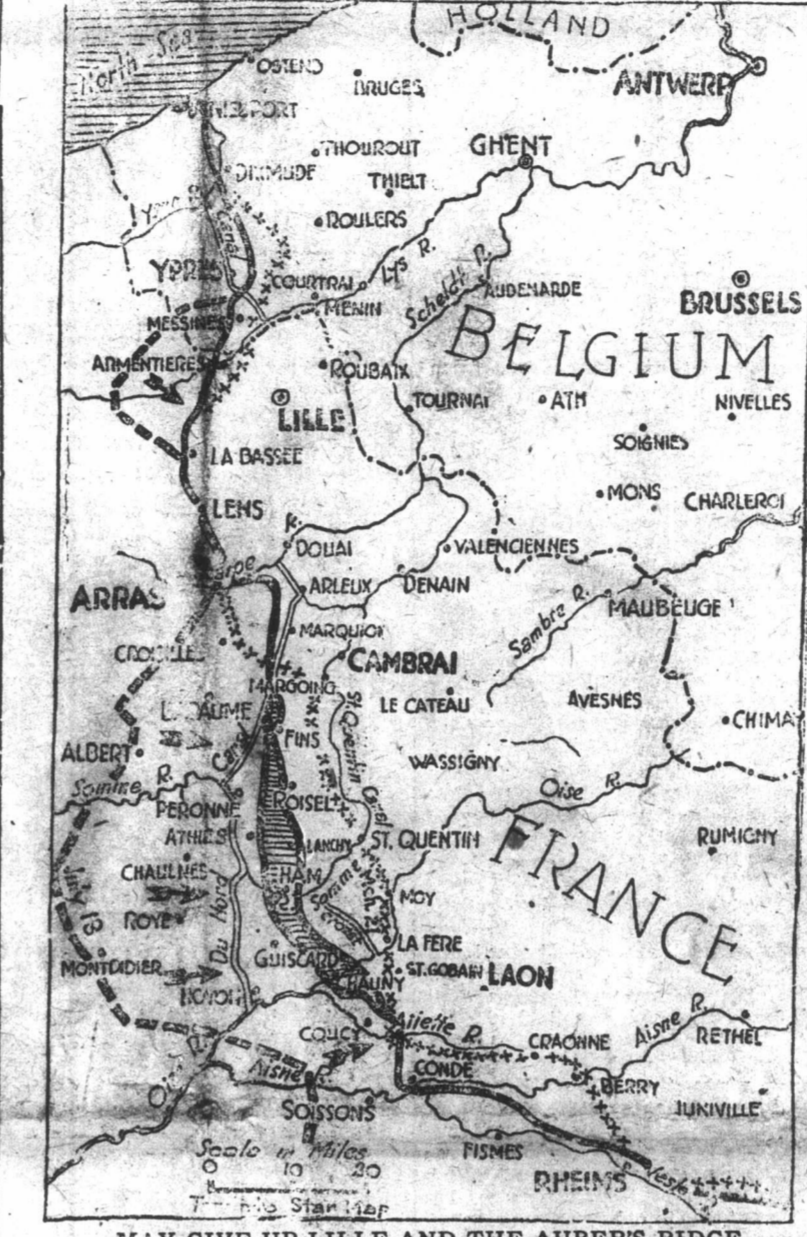

That the blow thus far has succeeded so well and brought such a large haul of prisoners affords an opportunity for congratulations by the supreme command.

"The day adds a glowing page of glory to American history," says The Graphic, "and it will be a proud recollection for America that here some had a lion's share in wiping out the battle map a salient which persisted there for almost four years."

The Daily News calls attention to the "strikingly restrained" tone of General Pershing's command and says: "This new formidable thrust adds to these enemies perplexities" and gives first proof of the commanding superiority and resources of the Allies, which foreshadows the future course of the war."

The Daily Mail describes the incident as "one of the great moments of the war."

"The enemy," says The Times "has very good reason for disengaging himself without delay. He is a sack and the strings are being drawn on both sides. Unless he can repel one or the other of the American force he must resort with all speed to 'the elastic defensive' he has been practising on the Marne and the Somme or run the risk of having the strings drawn and neck closed. The stroke is well conceived and the Americans may be trusted to deliver it with their usual vigor and determination."

MAY GIVE UP LILLE AND THE AUBER'S RIDGE On the map appearing above the shaded area represents the Allied gains since Friday which at some points reached five miles. The British gain on both sides of the Lys are not shown, as they do not make much of a showing on the map. Nevertheless they are very significant.

GERMAN ATTACK ON TOWN OF HAVRINCOURT BEATEN BACK

Enemy Forces With Co-operation of Airplanes, Launched Drive Against Town Taken by the British—Fresh Progress by Haig's Troops

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Sept. 13.—German troops last night delivered an attack, with the co-operation of airplanes, on the town of Havrincourt, southwest of Cambrai, recently taken by the British. The attack was repulsed with great loss. Field Marshal Haig announced in the official statement today.

Further south on the front opposite St. Quentin, the British have gained possession of Holnon wood, a German attack opposite Meuvres on the canal line west of Cambrai failed completely.

British troops have captured the town of Jeancourt, in the St. Quentin sector, north of Verdun.

In Flanders the British made progress, pushing ahead west of Ouchy in the La Bassée region.

The text of the statement: "Yesterday our troops gained possession of Holnon wood, driving the enemy from the localities in which he offered resistance. Further north our line has been advanced to the east of the village of Jeancourt, which is now in our hands. In the course of the evening strong hostile forces assisted by a squadron of low flying airplanes attacked our new positions at Havrincourt and were repulsed with great loss. Opposite Meuvres hostile infantry assembling for a counter-attack were observed and subjected to a heavy and accurate fire by our artillery. The attack which developed subsequently was completely unsuccessful, the few Germans who reached our positions being killed or taken prisoner. Progress was made by our troops during the night to the west of Havrincourt, and the British forces in France, Sept. 13.—By the Associated Press.—Bulletin.—British forces in their advance yesterday in the Havrincourt section, southwest of Cambrai, penetrated the German positions in some places for a depth of 2,000 yards.

YESTERDAY'S OPERATION A MAJOR STROKE UNDER AMERICAN LEADERSHIP

First in Which the U.S. Officers Commanded Operations—Salient For 4 Years Occupied by Germans is Now Near Deliverance

By Courier Leased Wire. With the American Force in Lorraine, Sept. 12.—By the Associated Press.—The Allied offensive on the western front for the first time is dominantly American, the French co-operating, and in a military way is regarded as a continuing phase of the battle, which began early this summer.

Secretary of War Baker, with several other notables witnessed the beginning of the battle from the vantage point of a French fort, close behind the middle of the line. The front over which the attack was made was so extended that the brilliant bands of vivid light soon stretched from far eastward to westward, lighting up the clouds. Soon there began to arise star shells, signal rockets and flares thrown up by the enemy to betray the Americans, should they leave their trenches suddenly to begin infantry attack. To this general color scheme there was soon added a reddish glow as ammunition dumps exploded and buildings set on fire behind the enemy lines began to blaze, and ammunition, giving off this color, exploded about four o'clock.

The character of the artillery fire changed slightly, lessened a little in intensity, and German star shells burst with more frequency as five o'clock approached, as though the enemy surmised that that hour was set for the attack.

More ammunition dumps exploded just before five, the artillery bombardment suddenly resumed its original intensity, and as the sky was beginning to be tinged with dawn, it again took on a white look along the horizon. Precisely at five o'clock the thunder of the guns accompanying the glare of light stopped, and in the sudden silence the Americans went over the top. All along the lines could be heard the chattering of German machine guns, and then suddenly the thunder commenced again, when a barrage was laid down to protect the soldiers as they approached the German trenches.

The immediate objective of the American drive apparently is to close the mouth of the salient from which the Germans will experience great difficulty in extricating themselves without great loss of men and material. Ultimately it is believed that General Pershing hopes to cut off the enemy's control of the Brie region, from which are obtained much of the raw material for German guns and munitions. At the present rate of the American advance the occupation of the German fortress at Metz is a possibility.

Well prepared by months of training the Americans were favored in their initial appearance as a unit in the great Allied force by favorable weather conditions and a firm terrain. In the first few hours they had reached their objectives at some points and were still progressing at others in the latest strategic move of Marshal Foch's program of offensive action, which since July 18 has resulted in driving the Germans from the greater part of the territory gained by them in their drive for Paris and the channel ports.

More than a dozen villages were captured in the early hours of the drive, which also netted the Americans 8,000 prisoners with more coming into the cages. On the northern side of the salient, both hinges of which are controlled by General Pershing's men the line has been advanced to Les-Marais la Montagne, Tresavaut and Bouilloulville, while on the southern hinge of the salient, American cavalry patrols and tanks are reported to be operating near Vimettes, ten miles northeast of St. Mihiel which indicates that the mouth of the salient is being rapidly closed. Cavalry patrols also are reported to be operating northeast of Pannas-Mousson along the railroad line leading to Metz about ten miles distant.

The battle began on a front of about 20 miles on the triangular salient with the French holding positions directly in front of St. Mihiel. As the conflict developed and the advance went forward the front was greatly increased in length, probably to about thirty-five miles. The distance between the points of greatest advance at the mouth of the salient is about ten miles. It is over this short front that the Germans in the salient must escape.

Field Marshal Haig's British forces are pressing the Germans in the north and advancing their lines near the coveted position of Cambrai after crossing the Canal De Nord. In this advance which resulted in the capture of Havrincourt, the British captured 1,000 prisoners.

Progress was made by our troops during the night to the west of Havrincourt, and the British forces in France, Sept. 13.—By the Associated Press.—Bulletin.—British forces in their advance yesterday in the Havrincourt section, southwest of Cambrai, penetrated the German positions in some places for a depth of 2,000 yards.

A local sheet contains statements purported to have been made in Council against the recent debenture sale, which statement are entirely untrue. It does not appear in any of the other newspaper reports, and which was not made by the member credited therewith nor by anyone else. The writer was informed to-day that the occurrence is in keeping with the time honored policy of the sheet to resort to the most glaring misrepresentation to further sinister ambitions, and that former members of Council have time and again been attacked.

We have fortunately, first information as to what was said. The speaker observed "the debentures should have been sold in March, 1918, when the tender of 98.46 was received. I said so then and would have insisted more strenuously had I not been a new member at this board."

The report published runs: "He further stated that he had turned down a good offer in the beginning of the game because he was green at the business."

Ladies of W. P. L. Served Lunch at Patriotic Bowling Tourney

The women of Brantford, who generously provisioned the various bowling greens throughout the city, and those who so untrudgingly dispensed the viands at the recent bowling tournament, had reason to feel well repaid for all their labor. At the request of the President of the Women's Patriotic League, the women of the city made their first effort for the faithful merchant marines, and as a result the gross receipts at each green were as follows: Parkside, $88; Heather, $75; Dufferin, $92.

The weather man gave the affair a fine nautical touch by a downpour of rain, which, however, did not daunt the spirit of the bowlers, who, with the true spirit of Drake, bowled merrily on in the face of the foe. When they returned to their respective club houses, dripping wet, the genial smiles of the bowlers and their generous appreciation, made the workers forget that it was pouring rain outside. One of the experts of the game vouchsafed the remark that he "had fared much better at the table, than on the green."

There are branches of work from which women are barred because they lack the muscular endurance, but whenever possible Lord Furness has been replacing fit men of military age with women. At first there were many sprained ankles, due to the habit of women going to work in flimsy boots, often with worn petting heels, which were no use among loose soil and stones. A standard low-heeled shipyard boot has now been introduced. Toronto retail milk dealers say they will not pay the increased prices to the producers.

Ruth's lip quivered when she realized that Brian had gone without the usual caress, but she choked back the tears and went about her work. Now that she had planned to have someone to do the distasteful tasks, they seemed more hateful than ever. Someway, too, she could not help but think of Brian and his displeasure. Finally she decided not to wash the dishes, but to clear the table, make the bed, and do the dishes when she prepared dinner.

"I know I shall just have to see them when I come home, but I haven't time to do them now," she said aloud as she looked at the clock. There was but an hour in which to dress and reach the office.

Promptly at quarter nine she walked into the door of the decorator. Mr. Mandel had not yet arrived, so the clerk, an innocuous-looking youth, told her—she found out afterward that, in spite of his looks, Jules La Monte was an expert in his line. She asked where she should put her hat, and then sat down to wait.

Just as the clock struck nine, Mr. Mandel walked briskly in.

"Ah, good morning, Mrs. Hackett," he said, then at once began to give La Monte some instructions in short, terse sentences.

"He doesn't waste words," Ruth thought as she waited, quietly listening, until he should be at liberty to attend to her. But when he finished with La Monte, he added:

"After you attend to what is necessary, I want you to tell Mrs. Hackett something of her duties. She will—in as far as she is able—take Miss Candee's place," then he walked into the room with "private" on the door, closing it after a moment.

Ruth felt a little disappointed. She had supposed he, himself, would explain her duties. That he had relegated them to the clerk, made her feel that he did not think her worth while spending his time with. This feeling showed, of course, how little Ruth knew of business or its ethics.

"I shall be only a few moments, Mrs. Hackett," La Monte said as he turned from her. Suppose you look around until I return.

"Thank you, I will," rising, Ruth sauntered through the shop—rather, the street floor. They occupied two storeys, but she did not feel free to go upstairs on her own initiative.

As she passed from one wonderful art object to another, as she allowed her fingers to touch caressingly the soft Oriental fabrics, she breathed a sigh of pure happiness and satisfaction. She had forgotten Brian's displeasure, she had even forgotten Brian himself, in her delight at her surroundings.

She had walked toward the front of the shop. Passing, was a man who reminded her of Brian. His walk, the set of his shoulders, his way of carrying his chin. She immediately felt guilty. She really loved her handsome husband, and that the beauty around her could cause her to forget him made her unhappy for a moment. Then came the thought of the four little rooms—the kitchen with the soiled dishes in a pan, covered by a towel. All the sordidness of her life as she lived it during the day, when Brian was at the office, came to her, causing her to again regain her placid manner before La Monte returned to her.

"This way, Mrs. Hackett!" he led her to the elevator. "Most of your work will be on the next floor," he explained.

An exclamation of delight broke from Ruth as she stepped from the lift. Piled in what seemed confusion, were silks and brocades, glorious colorings, wonderful weaves. The Orient had been robbed, it seemed to her, to supply these beautiful stuffs. And she was to spend her days here, in this place, instead of in her dinky little kitchen. Her eyes filled.

"How lovely!" she murmured, blinking them back so that La Monte would not see her weakness. That he had seen, and seeing had said to himself, "She'll soon have Miss Candee's place," Ruth did not know until long afterward. An artist himself, he recognized the temperament in her.

Ruth listened carefully while he explained what would be expected of her. Often he led her on to express herself, and was surprised at her breadth of knowledge. He said nothing of this to her, however. Yet when, more than once, she had, in speaking of some article, placed the period at once, he had been surprised.

Before he left her he showed her a desk which was to be her very own. Then he left her, laying down the plan of a room to be decorated (an order received that morning) and a note giving her a general idea of the house.

Could Ruth have heard what he said when he reached Mr. Mandel's office, she would have been more than delighted; she would have felt a great pride.

"That Mrs. Hackett is a find, Mr. Mandel. She knows fully as much of the technique of the business as Miss Candee did."

"That is saying a good deal, La Monte, but you only confirm my opinion."

Toronto Cook is Acquitted

Evidence Showed Phenol in Jar Rings

Report of the Analyst With Reference to Matter

Bracebridge, Sept. 12.—Isabel Brown, the Toronto cook, who was accused of attempting to poison Mrs. Mathew McDermott at Port Carling, was honorably acquitted this afternoon by Judge Mahaffy. It was shown by the analyst's report that phenol poison was contained in the rubber rings which were used by her to seal the jars, and that this serious condition was unknown to the cook. Crown Attorney Thomas Johnson subsequently intimated that further inquiries as to the source of the rubbers, or the extent to which they were in use, as he believed such investigation should be made by the Attorney-General's Department.

Miss Brown has been detained in jail for several days pending an investigation by Crown Attorney Johnson as to the source of the rubber rings used in sealing the jars. A jar of the jelly was then given to Mrs. McDermott, a neighbor. After eating the jelly, Mrs. McDermott was seriously and seriously ill and a doctor was called in. The jelly was blamed for bringing on the sickness, and Crown Attorney Johnson sent the jar to L. J. J. Rogers, professor of Analytical Chemistry, at the University of Toronto, for a report.

Jelly Permeated With Poison.

The analysis, according to the report sent by Mr. McDermott, showed that the rings used in sealing the jar contained phenol, and that the top portion of the jelly was permeated with the poison from the ring, the odor of which was detected from the rubber. While there was not sufficient poison on the ring to cause death, there was enough to result in sickness to the person eating the jelly tainted with the phenol.

"Will you take any further action to investigate the extent to which the infected rings have been used, and trace from whence they came?" Mr. Johnson was asked.

"I don't think so," he replied. "Any further action rests with the Department at Toronto. Thus far, Mr. Johnson has not been commended by the Department in reference to the matter."

Glass Company Detected Poison.

Hamilton, Sept. 12.—(Special.)—Dyson Lisson, 33 Beachwood Avenue, about a month ago bought a bottle of maple syrup off a local grocer. On his tasting it, he took it back to the grocer. All the bottles in the shop were opened, and had the same bitterness of taste, and an odor of carbolic acid. It was thrown out. A few days ago Mr. Lisson bought some rubber rings for fruit jars. His wife boiled them before using them, and discovered that they had a carbolic acid odor, and his belief is that he has come into contact with the phenol poison, and that the syrup of German activities, J. W. King of the Dominion Glass Co., sometime ago found a quantity of tainted rings and had them replaced before any were distributed.

Find Traces of Carbolic Acid.

Cal., Sept. 12.—In his investigation into the question of poisoned rubber preserve jars, Dr. J. H. Beard, Medical Officer of Health, has found that rings purchased at different stores showed traces of carbolic acid on them. But this afternoon he announced that a test showed only small quantities of the poison, so small in fact that there was not sufficient on one ring to kill a fly. Asked as to why the only should be, he could account for it was that carbolic acid was used in some process for preserving the rubber.

Its Mining Possibilities, which include gold, are very great; its forests are huge, and, in addition, it has a great future as an agricultural country, and already, for instance produces an amount of butter so large as greatly to arouse the cupidity of the Germans. As a field for agricultural implements and cognate manufactures the country presents a field whose importance can hardly be exaggerated.

AUSTRIAN CLAIMS

Vienna, Sept. 13.—"A successful attack on Tomorrica ridge in Albania gave us possession of the enemy position at a few points," is the official statement issued to-day by the Austrian war office.

HEAVY BARRAGE FIRE

By Courier Leased Wire

American Forces on the Lorraine Front, Sept. 13.—(By the Associated Press)—French and American artillery this morning directed a terrific barrage fire on the German positions on this front. The reply of the German big guns was vigorous at some places, although as a whole it was weak. There are some indications that the Germans are withdrawing their artillery, although it is more probable that they are going to fight hard before being driven out after enduring a stifling barrage of more than eight hours. The Germans at some points are increasing their volume of their big gun fire, but ineffectually.

FRANCO-AMERICANS LAUNCH ATTACK

By Courier Leased Wire

American Forces on the Lorraine Front, Sept. 12.—(Reuter's).—French and American forces this morning launched an attack against the German positions on both sides of St. Mihiel salient.

The weather is fine. The attack made by the French and the Americans was a most daring one and so far has been successful. The attack was preceded by a barrage lasting four hours.

The attack on the southern side of the St. Mihiel salient was made along a distance of two to three miles. The attack on the western side on a front of eight miles. There has been a great concentration of Franco-American artillery and Eutates airplanes are operating in large numbers.

American Forces on the Lorraine Front, Sept. 12.—(By the Associated Press).—(9 a.m.)—American forces this morning launched an attack on German positions. At nine o'clock they had progressed generally along the line. Some prisoners were taken at different parts of the sector.

The first wave of American troops met with little resistance and at eight o'clock the second American wave was in possession of several points of the German first line.

SIBERIA IS LIKE WESTERN CANADA

Close Resemblance in Climate, Physical Aspect and Other Aspects

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—That popular ideas as to the climate and resources of Siberia, where a Canadian force will shortly be fighting in the cause of the allies, are incorrect, was one of a number of interesting statements made in regard to that country to-day by Col. J. S. Dennis, head of the C.P.R. Department of Natural Resources, who is in the capital on Government business.

"The climate of Siberia, speaking generally," said the Colonel, "is not as severe as that of Manitoba. It rather resembles that of Northern Alberta." Vladivostok, the port at which the Canadian forces will land, is not unlike Prince Rupert in regard to climate, he said. It is now a town of 130,000.

Like Our Prairies in Winter.

"In the inland parts of Siberia," he says, "the winter climate resembles that of the Canadian prairies very closely. There is more snow, reaching a depth in the north, or Amur, railway line of four or five feet at times. On the southern, or Manchurian line, the snow is not so deep. The thermometer occasionally drops low, but the air and snow both as a rule are dry, as in Western Canada, so that the cold is not piercing. Spring comes at about the same time as in Canada, and the summers are hot.

"Travelers in Siberia who are acquainted with Western Canada," Col. Dennis continued, "are much struck by the resemblance between the two countries. Immigration into Siberia from Russia has been active for years, the old method of exiling political offenders, upon which current ideas of Siberia here are founded, having been replaced by a migration of Russian farmers to settlements surveyed in advance for them, in a way familiar to Canadians. With this immigration has gone commercial development, and the Trans-Siberian Railway is lined with new towns.

Country Immensely Rich.

"The country is enormously rich.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 13, 1918

THE SITUATION.

The outstanding feature of the war news is the fact that the American troops in association with French forces have advanced a distance of eight miles a front of fourteen miles in the St. Mihiel salient. This marks their first major operation and the outcome cannot be regarded as otherwise than most satisfactory and reassuring. They have demonstrated themselves to be made of the right stuff and will be a great future factor on behalf of the Allied cause.

Pershing was in charge of the movement and his men are not far from the German frontier. In fact it is quite generally understood that they will be the first to enter the Fatherland.

The British have made a further notable advance towards Cambrai, capturing Havringcourt, which lies on a dominating ridge and also Trescault.

In the Siberian campaign the Japanese are making excellent progress and are now reported three hundred miles north of Vladivostok.

Lloyd George in his notable speech at Manchester was most emphatic in the declaration, "We must impose a durable peace from our enemies."

MRS. PANKHURST

The Courier, in previous days, has more than once seen fit to criticize Mrs. Pankhurst, the Suffragette leader. This was not because of the votes for women cause which she espoused, as this paper has long advocated the extension of the ballot to the fair sex, but what this journal did protest against was the militarist methods,—in fact in one article stated that it could not see any difference between Huns setting fire to churches and militant suffragettes doing the same thing.

However, with the advent of the war, Mrs. Pankhurst called off her destructive hounds, and she has since depicted all of her undoubtedly very great ability and influence to achieving what she can on behalf of the great cause. In this she has been abetted in a most noble and self-sacrificing manner by all of her followers.

For this reason, the distinguished visitor should be given a very cordial welcome in Victoria Hall to-night when she speaks upon "War Aims."

THE KAISER'S LATEST.

The speech which the Kaiser made to the Krupp employes and incidentally the world, was a very chastened effort compared with what he would have delivered had the outlook for the Fatherland been rosier. In such event there would have been loud boasts as to the manner in which God had placed the Allies in the hands of his chosen people and a specific program as to the way in which Kultur would be rammed down the throats of all of us. Instead of this the All Highest took the tone that hostilities had been forced upon the Fatherland—a damnable lie—and that Germany was and always had been anxious for peace.

The ardent hypocrisy of the man was characteristically apparent when he declared that it was the democratic British nation which had endeavored to overthrow "the ultra democratic" government of the Russian people when all the world knows that it is Berlin which has been plotting to that and for the purpose of reducing the new Republic to "vassalage. In fact is already over lording it with regard to large sections of territory and using Lenin and the rest of the Bolsheviki leaders as tools of betrayal.

There was one gleam of truth amid the rhodomontade and that was when he said, "Everyone who knew the character of the Anglo Saxons knew what it means to fight them—how tenacious they are."

True for you William and they will attend to your finish just as they did that of Napoleon.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Kaiser is yelling "Peace, Peace," but (there'll be none of it for him) until he gets down on his royal knees.

The German Emperor expects the world to believe that when the Huns were strutting round armed to the teeth and drinking continually to "the day," that there was nothing meant beyond an afternoon tea party.

William doesn't like the stiff-necked British. He will love them even

Employees of the Canadian Express Discuss Question of Also Going Out

APPEAL TO MINISTER

Montreal, Sept. 12.—The outlook in Montreal to-day is that the expressmen's strike will spread. The striking employees of the Dominion Express Company claim to have addressed 47 to their number, and the employees of the Canadian Express Company are holding a series of meetings to discuss the question of a sympathetic strike. It is stated, will be made to-morrow morning, when the president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees is expected to arrive from Halifax. It is currently reported that the Canadian expressmen have already decided to strike and are merely awaiting the formal sanction of the president of the union. The Teaster's Union has refused to handle freight consigned to individuals, for the Dominion Express. Dominion Express Company officials state that they are experiencing no great difficulty in filling the places of their striking employees. In the meantime another request for a board of conciliation has been forwarded to Ottawa by the strikers.

MRS. PANKHURST IN CITY TODAY

Noted Leader of the English Women War Workers to Speak Here Tonight

HER SECOND VISIT

At two o'clock this afternoon, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the women's movement in England, and the guiding spirit of their war effort, addressed the pupils of the Collegiate Institute on the subject of the war. She is staying at the Kerby House while in the city, and will take her departure to-morrow. Mrs. Pankhurst's first visit to Brantford was in March, 1916, when she spoke on behalf of the Serbian relief fund in Victoria Hall. Since the outbreak of war, Mrs. Pankhurst has abandoned her militant campaign for women's suffrage, and has been successful in persuading her thousands of followers to do likewise. She has but recently returned from Russia, where she went at the head of a mission to counteract the pacifism of Ramsay MacDonald.

To The Editor of The Courier

Dear Sir,—Just a word about the Holmedale car service for the Watson and Slingsby girls. Only one car on a rainy night for Watson, Slingsby's and Steel Plant. Those who cannot get on the car have to stand in the rain, until another car comes along, or walk home, which is inconvenient for some of us who live in Eagle Place or East Ward. When you do get on the car the chances are you have to stand, which is uncomfortable when you stand all day, which most of the girls do. I am an East Warder employed in Holmedale. Hoping something will be done for the convenience of the Holmedale employees. Yours truly, "One of Holmedale's Employees."

Fighting Census in U. S. Will Determine Status of Every Man

Washington, Sept. 12.—While American soldiers in the front in France stood ready with French and British forces for what may prove the greatest battle of the war, thirteen million other Americans registered to-day for military duty and gave the most inspiring demonstration of patriotism in the nation's history. There was no delay in starting the machinery by which the man power of the country will be made available to bring the war to a speedy and triumphant end. Out of the tremendous bulk of men who responded with every race and creed represented, there will come soon from camps at home three millions or more fit for warfare and eager to see the day of battle.

ON A VISIT FROM OLD-LAND

Mr. J. M. Shuttleworth Pays Tribute to English

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Shuttleworth have arrived in the city from England and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Cook. It is some years since they were in their old home town here. In conversation with a Courier man Mr. Shuttleworth remarked: "The first thing that strikes you on arrival in Canada is the feeling that you would hardly realize that a war is on, although of course I am fully aware of the big sacrifices made by the gallant heroes of the Dominion. What I have reference to is the peaceful aspect of affairs. In England the war facts are much more visible on every side and I may remark that I thought I knew the English character fully, but this war has revealed a stamina and a purpose few even dreamed of. They are in quiet but deadly earnest and the solid foundation which has been exhibited of splendid national characteristics is something which it is a privilege to witness and be proud of."

The drawing to fix the re-enfranchising of 13,000,000 will not take place under three weeks, perhaps. But meanwhile districts boards will start at once numbering serially all of the cards filled out to-day. Questionnaires immediately will be sent to men of the 19-37 class, while older men will be classified later. By Saturday night General Crowder confidently expected to have the figures, showing the total registration. This may run above or below the approximately estimate of 13,000,000, but careful study placed that as substantially correct.

STOWAWAY WIVES IN DEADLY PERIL

The Life Partners of Young American Officers in France Sail on Torpedoed Ship

War is not able to drive romance from the seas and the world. German submarines, floating mines, 75 guns and liquid fire have turned the same glorious game into one of terror, mud and death; but romance will not be killed. For proof take this story of the wives of two fighting men who this day came to France to answer to the long call, who came stowaways on a steel cargo ship's maiden voyage, who were discovered when the boat was torpedoed and sinking, who were rescued by a destroyer and who are now in a French port waiting to be sent home; but with fair wind and high hearts they will come again—these wives who would see their soldiers whether paternal but stern Government rules against it. One was the wife of Captain Leslie Garner of the Ammunition train, and the other was the wife of Second Lieut. Frank M. Jones, of the field artillery. They wanted, more than anything else, in the world to see their husbands and be near them; but Uncle Sam said no. At that time, the first week in August, there was no possible way for a soldier's wife to come to France, no matter how urgent the need. So it was that late one night in August by means of fair or foul, the two girls slipped aboard one of the Shipping Board's new cargo boats at New York and were hustled down into the deep black hold, where there were piled thousands of tons of good white American flour for the fighting doughboys. The same friendly "Bob" that had brought them aboard found two cot mattresses for them and a pair of blankets and twice thereafter each day he would slip down with stolen food and fresh water. He was their sole guide, comforter and philosopher. The morning after the young women went on board they found that the ship was moving, and by night they knew they were well out to sea. On the eleventh day the ship was torpedoed. Before they could move the two girls were standing in water up to their knees and were frozen with terror. Then they heard the sailor calling them. Then his strong hands stropped them. He half dragged them up the ladder to the deck. The brave little destroyer was dropping its depth bombs and laying a barrage around the hidden submarine, and as each bomb exploded fifty or sixty feet under the surface it threw a great mountain of water that looked in the starlit night like some gigantic seaver. In less than a minute the sailor planted his two charges in a lifeboat where they lay sobbing. The ship was settling rapidly now. Already it was almost down to the deck line. In another three minutes the lifeboat had its crew. It was swung down and shoved off and the men rowed a hundred feet away from the torpedoed ship. By the light from the stars and the faint quarter moon, they could see other boats being lowered and pulled away. Ten minutes passed then the last one pulled away. The two men remaining behind to the last jumped overboard and swam to the nearest lifeboat. The ship settled to its main deck and went no lower. It was like a miracle. They brought back hope and spirits. They began calling from one boat to another and rowing slowly around the ship. The destroyers were there waiting and scurrying and searching for subs, and as the sea was smooth it would not stop to pick up the survivors. The morning they knew would bring help and rescue. The sailors began to joke and sing little snatches of songs. Slowly the men in the first boat became conscious of stifled crying. One of them located it and shouted a demand to know what was there. Thus it was that others besides the lone sailor found two stowaways cuddling in the bottom of his lifeboat. "Well, poor little scared kids," old Captain Carter, master of the seven seas, declared, reaching down and selling them gently on seats. "You're all saved and it's all over. Pretty soon the destroyers will pick us up, and when you get all ready and feel like it you can tell us how you got here." So it was that the story of the girls who wanted to go to France was first repeated while they were sitting in a lifeboat watching their sinking ship and while stars told the destroyers the way. Some day, even wars will end; but as long as women love and have youth in their hearts romance will go on.

DEMONSTRATION FOR PREMIER. By Courier Leased Wire. Manchester, Sept. 12.—Premier Lloyd George's arrival at Manchester yesterday was the occasion for a great popular demonstration. Thousands of girls from the munition factories with flags and banners were drawn up on the railway station platforms, while great crowds lined the whole route to the Mansion House to which the Premier drove amid the cheers of the throng. At various stopping-places on the way from London to Manchester, the Prime Minister received the heartiest reception. At Rusby, Crews and Stockport some hundreds of persons had assembled. They cheered and waited, evidently expecting speeches, but the Premier, who was busily working in his station, merely bowed his thanks. 14,000,000 REGISTERED? By Courier Leased Wire. FINEST BODIES OF TROOPS IN EUROPE

Their Deeds of Valor No

HIGH TRIBUTE IS PAID

By Courier Leased Wire
With the Canadian Forces, Aug.
11.—By mail from J. F. B. Live-say, overseas correspondent of the Canadian Press, (Limited)—Competent military critics do not view with surprise the greatest deeds of the Canadian forces during the last few days. By them, the Canadian force has come to be recognized as one of the best bodies of troops in Europe, so much so that they were recently in London on a public occasion by the first of English statesmen. It has achieved this eminence, not by valor alone—the commendable courage of the command and the earnest and stern application to the art of war.
This practical application of the theory that war after all is a business begun long before the time has been accepted by all ranks as the only sure foundation of success in the field. It is the amazing spirit of the youngest recruit. On this has been built the victory of the past few days, but spectacular though that which they originally had in long, patient months of preparation.

Canada's first contingent has been described with a good deal of enthusiasm as a model of discipline, passionately inspired to give their all for a great cause. However, discipline was lax, and the officers were not so much interested in the war there, it took time to transmit it into the perfect fighting machine.
Many weary months have intervened, but through all these weary months, the troops were being passed through a course of open warfare tactics and shock drills. The machine was being tested out for the great work before it.

All this went on secretly. The troops themselves did not realize that the termination of trench warfare was approaching, and that they were being made ready for quite a different business. And then came the admirable piece of work by which they were already at the front, and they went to the east and a little to the south of the beleaguered city of Amiens.
To attempt such a feat showed a fine courage and a most intelligent plan, but to carry it into triumphant effect was little short of a miracle. Nothing that has happened in this war is so astonishing as what when the wave broke upon the beach at twenty minutes past four last Thursday morning, there was not one of them from the trench, from the Berlin, and the slightest suspicion that the Canadians fronted them.

For so splendid an adventure, Sir Arthur Currie, his staff, his divisional leaders, and for the matter of that all ranks—for it was within the power of any one man to give the show-away by a single careless act—have borne, and must forever retain the gratitude of the Canadian people.
A number of special causes contribute to the excellence of the Canadian force. One is that it is maintained always at full strength; indeed when it went into action there were several thousand men in immediate reserve, who filled at once the gaps caused by casualties, so that the Canadian force could go two or three days fighting and still maintain its full strength without making a single draft on the other admirable reserves prepared for it.

Another reason why that perhaps it is the only force that has maintained its identity throughout all its units, its leaders, its staff and the whole body of its officers. The fact is fortunate that it has in Sir Arthur Currie a chief of both love and trust, a brilliant soldier it is proud to follow anywhere. His presence has led in the unconquerable spirit of the Canadian soldier, linked now with a splendid sense of discipline, thus transmitting the spirit of lawyers, railwaymen, lumberjacks and the like, into the finest body of professional troops this war has produced—but a body that also happily seeks only in victory the hour to lay aside the sword and return to the ploughshare.

ada Has Increased Rapidly

The pulp and paper industry has expanded very rapidly in Canada during the past ten years and it appears that Canada is destined to become perhaps the leading country in the world in the manufacture of pulp and paper products from wood.
This is largely because of our extensive natural resources of waterpower and suitable tree species. It is important to point out the opportunities and responsibilities for Canadian engineers in this technical industry. The consumption of pulp increases so rapidly from year to year in the more highly developed countries that there is no indication of slackening development, at least for some years to come. Canada now has a total of about 80 mills, many of which are large and of modern design. The export figures for the calendar year 1916 show that pulpwood, wood pulp and paper have increased to nearly half of the total export value (approximately $40,- 000,000) of all forest products with

MAKING THIRD YEAR

Next Sunday will mark the beginning of the third year that the Ontario Temperance Act has been in force. Brantford has been much in the vanguard with the "dry" law as a whole, though there are continually some places where are detected breaking it.

TEA CUP.

A tea cup has been donated by Mr. G. Scarfe for a competition in golf players with a handicap. The qualifying conditions for this competition will take place on Saturday afternoon, the eight best scores to qualify. The following round will be medal play and the play-off.

MINISTER APPROVES

Mr. Edward Kemp, Overseas Minister of Militia, has given a letter in which he sets forth that the Catholic and Huts Association is most worthy of support. That endorsement by a cabinet minister, and one who has personal knowledge of conditions, would carry considerable weight with the Canadian people.

PLAY SEMI-FINALS

The championship of the city league hasn't yet been decided, but the winners, whether Verity's or Paul & Letchworth's, must play Hamilton in the O. B. A. semi-final tomorrow afternoon, at 2.45. Rain again prevented the deciding game between the Malleables and the Blowmakers yesterday, but an effort will be made to play off this afternoon. If the weather renders this impossible, it will be necessary to play a morning game to-morrow, to decide which team goes up against Hamilton.

W.C.T.U. MET.

The opening meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held at the home of Mrs. John Kerr on Thursday afternoon, and the rain did not prevent over 40 being present. A report of the Trunk Fund showed over $1,200.00 raised, and some valuable articles have yet to be turned into money. A Bible reading on "Consecration" was given by Mrs. S. G. Read from the parable of the talents, in which the realization of power for the best service was given direct to each one willing to receive it. Mrs. Taylor sang "It Pays to Serve Jesus," which was followed by several earnest prayers for deeper spiritual light. A reading by Mrs. Wedlake on "Clearing out the Medicine Chest," showing the difference in the contents before prohibition and now. At the close of the meeting a social half hour was spent and afternoon tea was served. Mrs. Drake, 163 Sheridan street, offered her home for the October meeting.

HIGHER RATES COMING.

In British Columbia alone forty-one newspapers have gone to the journalistic graveyard since the outbreak of the war. Of all industries, that of newspaper publication has been most severely hit by the war. Higher subscription and advertising rates must come if the remainder are to be saved, says the Kingston Whig.

WHO SAID RAIN?

Rain, rain, rain, and yet more rain. The late crops are certainly getting a thorough watering this time. Rain has fallen in the city spasmodically for 48 hours and it is still falling. The weatherman says his back good taste has caused two postponements for the final game of the City Amateur Baseball League, besides many other minor events planned for these days.

PLEASED WITH ROADS.

City Engineer Jones, in company with Contractor Jutten, Ald. Robinson and City Engineer Heddie, of Hamilton, visited and examined the concrete pavements in the city yesterday. The Hamilton officials are very pleased with the roads, and as there are at present no such roads in Hamilton, it is probable that their construction will be contemplated immediately.

PENSIONS AND ALLOWANCES.

Mr. George MacDonald, secretary of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, has received notification from the Vocational Department of the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Commission in Toronto, that pension payments to returned men will be continued during the training period, but that the Vocational Branch will pay during that period, rates ranging $50 a month to single men and larger allowances to married men, varying in proportion to the size of their families.

Board of Education to Approach City Council in Regard to New School

Want Bylaw for $75,000.00 Submitted to the Ratepayers

SCHOOL IS NEEDED Increase Granted to Teachers at the Collegiate Institute

DENTAL CHANGES

Decision to approach the city council with a request by a by-law to raise the sum of $75,000.00 for a new school be submitted to the ratepayers at the next municipal election, was the most important step taken by the Board of Education at its meeting last night, the first since the summer recess. The conditions of congestion existing in many parts of the city but particularly in Ward 5, were shown to be inevitable, and the only remedy was seen to be the erection of a new school. The buildings and grounds committee were authorized to secure an option on suitable property somewhere in Ward 5.

Increases in salary are granted the majority of the teachers of the Collegiate Institute under a new schedule adopted. The janitors of the public schools also received salary increases. A. M. Overholt, the new principal of the Collegiate, gave the board a brief resume of conditions at that school, giving high praise to the students and holding forth hope for successful results.

Changes in the school dental system recommended by the dental committee gave rise to some discussion.

The following members of the board were present: Chairman J. W. Shepherson, Inspector Kilmer, L. L. Miller, Captain Jenkins, Mrs. Ballachey, Miss Coulter, A. M. Overholt, Mr. Lahy, Dr. Gamble and secretary-treasurer A. K. Bunnell.

A small number of communications including the resignation of Geo. Stenabaugh, the janitor of the Collegiate were read and referred to their various committees. The report from the dental clinic showed that over three thousand children had had their teeth examined and that cards had been issued to over two thousand six hundred. Besides this a great number of children had had work done on their teeth, such as filling and on their teeth.

Management Committee reported as follows:

That Miss Cleator be granted an extension of her leave of absence until the commencement of the January term, 1919.

That Misses Ross, Wood and Park be appointed on the staff of the Public School in Ward Five, and that that over three thousand children submit a by-law to the ratepayers at the municipal election in January to authorize to be raised on debentures cost of land, building and equipment.

Inspector Kilmer then spoke on the subject of a new school. Pupils had gone to Alexandria for some time still wished to go there and the only remedy would be to build a new school. An eight or ten room school would be plenty large enough to accommodate the excess pupils from the City of Alexandria, allowing the extra room to handle the excess pupils from other schools.

Captain Jenkins pointed out that the extra accommodation for the kindergartens could be resumed. Chairman J. W. Shepherson stated that there was some question as to whether the kindergartens in Alexandria should be closed.

A brief report of the finance committee was then read, a considerable number of accounts being ordered paid.

Dental Changes The dental committee reported as follows:

The establishment recently of a Child Welfare Clinic for Brantford, under care of the Medical Association organization best fitted to undertake the work had decided us to withdraw our request of last June.

That we discuss a complete change in our health system. The results of the present system have served to show how effective such work could be, if carried out in connection with educational work in the homes by a sufficient competent staff. It has been decided that for the present we can sufficiently cover the work with a staff consisting of a medical inspector of schools, two nurses and two dentists. The matter of one for all day work, and we would recommend that the board give authority to the dental and medical committees to provide, if possible, the additional officials by the beginning of the new year, their salaries to be included in the estimates for 1919.

Dr. Gamble thought it unwise to make any changes during this year, as the present staff was able to do the work until that time, and moved an amendment to that effect. Dr. Marquis's objection was that the present staff was not large enough to handle the work, and that he would back Mrs. Ballachey's motion.

Mrs. Ballachey then pointed out that the dental classes on Saturday morning should not be held, as the children frequently failed to appear. The following amendment to Mrs. Ballachey's report was read and adopted: That the report be referred back to the dental committee for information as to the added cost of officials therein asked for, and the outline of the plan in more detail and to report at the next meeting.

An invitation was read from Principal McIntyre, of Ryerson school, inviting the members of the board to attend the fair at his school.

The chairman then called for an address from Mr. Overholt, which brought much applause.

Mr. Overholt said that it was a little early to sum up the situation at the Collegiate Institute. He said, however, that he had never seen a body of students that impressed him so deeply at the outset. The great thing about them was their manners and the way they conformed to the orders. One thing he had done and that was to have the machinery moving right from the first day of school. There was no real crowding in the first forms and the seconds were only filled in gradually, as were the Commercial forms. The middle school, however, he stated, was too crowded to make progress easily. At

10,000,000 SHELLS FIRED IN 30 DAYS

British Cut the Enemy's Wire With Great Thoroughness

London, Sept. 13.—All indications on the British front point to the intention of the Germans to defend their positions in the highly organized battle zone of the Germans' old positions and the Hindenburg line, inundating the country where it is possible. Doubtless, however, they are considering the establishment of a strong line farther back with the big towns of Douai, Cambrai and St. Quentin as pivots.

It is pointed out that the Germans since July 14 have shortened their line approximately 70 miles, thereby saving between 30 and 40 divisions. A further shortening, however, is not impossible. Hence, the British expect strong resistance and counter attacks to continue.

Before the Hindenburg system now held by the Germans can be successfully dealt with, much reconstruction of communications will be necessary. But this is not viewed as a great task owing to the speed of the British engineers who are now engaged in the preliminary stages of this work.

In the recent advance the British fired more than 10,000,000 shells in four weeks. As a result the enemy's wire was cut with great thoroughness than ever before, and the British counter-battery work, according to the German statement, destroyed ten guns to the Germans' one.

PRESSED BUTTONS MILES AWAY

Ham Completely Destroyed by Infernal Machines by Germans

French Army Headquarters, Sept. 12.—Ham, the largest town in the devastated country which the Germans spared in their retreat, was visited with destruction even more complete and less justifiable than Noyon, which they methodically destroyed by fire. When the infernal machines were evacuated from the houses and fires started by pressing buttons miles away.

Save for the blowing up of the bridges Ham had not suffered previously by shell fire, neither side being interested in bombarding the place. The only excuse the Germans could make, that it blocked the roads against pursuit, is invalid. The destruction of the bridges alone made it impossible for the French to enter the town until they had been replaced.

How Sim Gwinn, Tennessee, Went Over the Top with the Canadians

"Hunky-Dory" Sim Gwinn of Tennessee doesn't come home with the V. C. it will be because he disobeyed orders twice in one day. They told him to go to the rear and he wouldn't go. They told him not to go into No Man's Land to get a wounded officer, and he went. Besides which he told a Canadian officer to "G'wan."

Sergeant Hapgood of the Canadians who is in New York helping to train soldiers for overseas service recalled the exploits of Hunky-Lory Gwinn the other afternoon.

Hunky-Dory's unit was brigaded with the Canadian near Boequey early in May," said Sergeant Hapgood. "He is a figure that would stand out in the crowd. About six feet tall, as straight as a ramrod and as high on his feet as a deer. He used to tell us how he came to enter the army. He seemed to have lived on a back farm, among the hills in Tennessee. When the news of the American declaration of war finally filtered into the nearby settlement he read the newspaper and presently packed a hickory shirt and a couple of pairs of socks and started off to the training camp. Two months there made a wonderful change in him. His great raw strength was tempered like finely drawn steel. At bayonet drill he was a demon; he could throw a hand grenade yards farther than the best and could knock the right eye out of a cat at 300 yards with an army rifle.

Hunky-Dory is Disappointed

In due time he came across with his regiment and we got to know him, as I said before, when his brigade joined ours near Boequey. When a thing suited him he used to say it was Hunky-Dory, and he used that expression so often that we fastened it on him for a nickname.

One night the American troops got orders to withdraw to a second position behind the line, and at the same time the word became known about the Canadians who were going over the top early the following morning. Up to that time we hadn't seen very much action in that sector, and things had been quiet for Hunky-Dory. He was the most disappointed man I ever saw when he got the order to retire, knowing that we were going over the next morning.

"Well he just didn't retire. He sneaked out of his company when the withdrawal began and hid behind an ammunition wagon at night. The zero hour found him crouched in a trench behind us, one lone American ready to go over with hundreds of Canadians.

"And over the top he went. He shot over the top like a skyrocket and sprinted over No Man's Land like he was after that gold medal in a hundred yard dash. He headed straight for a thick hedge where a machine gun was concealed, secretly three hundred yards away. They saw him coming and began to spray bullets at him like water out of a garden hose. But some how they couldn't quite get the range.

Hunky-Dory Couldn't Wait

"The rest of us had orders to run while take cover in the shell holes or other breaks in the terrain, and then climb out and run again, gaining our objective in a series of dashes. But Hunky-Dory didn't wait to cut up into chunks. He couldn't wait. So he was yards ahead of us when the machine gun bullets began kicking up the dust about five yards from his feet.

"By some miraculous chance he was spared until he got within a couple of hundred feet of the machine gun. Then it was an even fight. He took a hand grenade and balanced it in the palm of his hand for a minute getting his aim and a good foot hold at the same time. Then with a yell he let them have it. It was a beautiful hit. The flow of bullets ceased.

"We found seven dead Germans beside that machine gun when we came up a minute or two later. Hunky-Dory had the rest of them lined up with their heads over their heads and was cutting off their shoulder straps and regimental numbers for souvenirs.

"There were six crestfallen Germans in the little group he marched back to our line a little while afterward. Three heavy German helmets were dangling at his belt. Our commanding officer spotted him.

"Hello! Whats this?" he said. "You don't belong here, my man."

"I know I don't," said Hunky-Dory, but I couldn't stay away. My regiment went back last night and I decided to stick around and help your boys out a bit."

Sass For The Officer

My word," said the Canadian officer. "You'll have to get to the rear as soon as you can. This isn't at all regular." Hunky-Dory grinned apologetically.

"I'll go back," he said "but first I want to go out and bring in a wounded officer, I saw lying in a shell hole."

"Said the officer 'I'll—"

"Aw g'wan said Hunky-Dory, "You can talk to your own troops like that you don't try it on me. I come from Tennessee. And he started out over the embankment again. Ten minutes later he was back with a bullet hole in his shoulder, carrying a wounded Canadian officer like child in his arms. He was grinning sheepishly like a boy who played truant or disobeyed his teacher.

"It may be," said Sergeant Hapgood in conclusion, "that these two instances of disobedience will queer Hunky-Dory's chances of getting the Victoria Cross."

lating beginners into deep-water swimming, being holed for shore, with an onshore breeze, I have heard the milite remark, with deep concern, that there was a current against us. The feeling of being carried backward may be satisfactorily explained to most persons as arising in the same way as the effect commonly produced on a person seated in a stationary railway coach when a train on an adjoining track moves forward. It would be more strictly comparable with the effect produced by two trains, one on each side of the stationary coach moving forward at the same speed. When this optical illusion receives due publicity in courses in physics, physiology and physical culture in our colleges, schools and gymnasias, there will be less danger attendant upon open-water swimming for tank pond and river-trained swimmers who venture beyond their depths in larger bodies of water, and less danger will mean less loss of life. It will be obvious to the reader that a swimmer should choose fixed objects by which to gauge his progress."

FATAL WATER ILLUSION

Many Swimmers Mistake Movement of Waves For That of Water Itself

Hundreds of capable swimmers have been drowned by mistaking the movement of waves in the water for the movement of the water itself. Wrongly thinking that they were being carried seaward by some current, they have become frantic and have finally succumbed to what is a mere optical illusion. These somewhat startling statements are made in Science (New York, July 12), by Walter B. Shaw, of the University of the Philippines, Manila. Obviously a thorough understanding of the illusion to which Mr. Shaw alludes will, if he is right, save many lives, and he urges that publicity be given to it in courses in physics, physiology, and physical culture. Evidently it is particularly dangerous for persons who have learned to swim in tanks, or in still ponds, where there are no waves. When such swimmers see the waves racing ahead of them they at once feel that they are being carried backward, conclude that there is an "undertow," and are actually frightened to their deaths by an illusion. To quote:

"There is an optical illusion that has probably led, within comparatively recent times, to the death by drowning of scores, or even hundreds, of capable but inexperienced swimmers. A person swimming with the wind, and consequently with the waves, which travel in the same direction faster than it is possible to swim, receives the impression of being carried backward by the water. In the absence of knowledge or information covering the case, most persons, so situated, if headed toward the shore, immediately think of 'undertow,' a word which nearly every one has heard, and believe themselves to be caught in an offshore current. The instincts of an untrained or half-trained swimmer always lead to a nervous haste and over-exertion in deep water; even under conditions most favorable for swimming. When these instincts are supplemented by the panic that arises from the belief that the person is caught in an 'undertow,' the resulting increase of effort and acceleration of action reduces efficiency to a degree that must certainly have left many persons fatally exhausted before they reached a footing. My attention was first called to this phenomenon through two cases of able-bodied but indifferent swimmers who, after swimming just beyond their depths in an offshore breeze at Passay Beach, near Manila, returned to the bath-house in an excited state and reported having been caught in an 'undertow' with nearly fatal result. In each case I made immediate investigation of the water at the point indicated and found neither 'undertow' nor offshore current sufficient to embarrass any swimmer. Subsequently on numerous occasions, while int-

MERCHANT SEAMAN HELPING TO WIN WAR

Once Despised, He is Now Risking His Life Carrying Food and Supplies to the Allied Soldiers and Civilian Population.

Now the old man was 38. Thirty-eight years of wind and sun had dried his face to the resemblance of an overdone steak, but his teeth were as white as ivory. When the war broke it caught him rolling homeward up the bay from Gib. He was 18 hours from England, when a trawler came fussing across his bow and told him what course to steer—a nice thing to tell a British shipmaster on his own bridge! Especially in view of the presence of the helmsman.

And after that it was just one thing after another. First, the authorities issued a minute on the use of running lights. Then they gave him new charts with pink triangles on them, where he mustn't go; they gave him a Morse signal lamp which somebody had to learn how to use; and they gave him a bunker of smokeless coal to fire up with in extremely dangerous zones. Men-of-war instead of giving him their wash, began bobbing up continually at sea to inquire in a detached sort of way whether he was quite comfy. And about this time they added half a crown a day to his pay and all the skippers suddenly discovered that he was "Britain's hope and pride—the mercantile marine." And from that time on, to Gib or Genoa, or Salonica or sometimes as far afield as Port Said, and then home to England, he was passed from convoy to convoy, the senior escort officer delivering him and taking a receipt just as if he were a parcel in the post office.

Carrying Munitions Now Before the war she had been a rusty tramp, carrying the trash that younger ships scorned. But now she was running a nice trade in high explosives and airplanes. Last trip she had poured $30,000 into her owner's lap and now she was off in another convoy to double it. True she hadn't dry-docked for 18 months, and one day her owner come down from Greenock and waved his arms at the admiral and set their engines were falling to pieces. But the admiral only said to put a little oil on them and displayed no further interest in the matter whatever. For privately the admiral held the opinion that, although doubtless the old man could navigate a pine chip and a pocket handkerchief down the bay and into Gib, about his engine room he knew a little less than nothing at all. To the admiral, the old man's crew was as well disciplined as a chewing gum factory in Brooklyn, and the old man himself was as a battalion of rookies to be trained all over again at each convoy meeting.

For the week before the navy's high caste and the mercantile marine is low caste—only a little above those no-caste landmen who are believed to call themselves the army.

It was twilight of the first day out from England when convoy QGS was intercepted—twilight and the senior escort officer delivering him with the cruiser zigging on ahead, pushing down past Ushant to the bay with foam beads in their wake.

Across the hush—hush—hush of XYZ's barn-like bow, the deep bray of a distant whistle sent a sudden chill up the old man's spine. He got into the port wing at once. A mile off his quarter, slightly astern of the convoy, XYZ was falling out of position and now lay to bow on under a white, steam-plume, with two destroyers arching toward her their long wakes of boiling white. Excitement Abroad Already a new host was going up to the commodore's yard and the old man bawled to his helmsman to alter course to 220 degrees. He got to his telegraph, jammed its handle rapidly back and forth with a clamor of gongs below, and stopped it finally at full, exactly where it had been before. Then he bawled to his quarter-master, "Let the starboard wing peeled slot," and got into the starboard wing and kept an eye peered himself; as XYZ, now dashing away at great speed, dashing at 17 and a half knots, began to nudge on to her new course by piling up an acre of sea with her starboard bow. Up from the sea below her, through the bridge deck, he could hear with his feet a stiff concussion—and another—and another, in rapid succession. Depth charges.

Twenty minutes later, the cruiser suddenly slammed herself across the old man's stern at 22 knots, sheered through a booming sheet of spray and he brought her to a standstill. He went past with a whoosh of whelming indifference, leaving the old man a smother of cinders for himself. A wash that matted his hair and blinded his eyes and hung on the cruiser was merely resuming position, a chief radio shack dotting and dashing out to all ships and shore stations. "All right, all right, something north and something west, fifty-six minutes past seven o'clock."

Shortly afterward, when the blue-gray of this northern twilight was deepening into gray, a quiet trawler came up from astern, advising the commodore by a hoist that it had picked up 26 survivors and had provisions for 36 hours. That sent another chill up the old man's spine, and made him suck hard at his pipe. For XYZ's crew of 181.

Off to Duty Again "I shall leave you at 8 o'clock," said the senior escort officer. "Bon voyage," said the commodore. "Thank you," said the senior escort officer. And presently the little fellows of his escort were all gone, an incoming convoy and escort it through the danger zone into England.

Eighteen hours later, the escort fetched the convoy slowly in past the breakwater and the merchant skippers, with a few days on their hands before reforming into a new convoy around a table in a certain hotel on the beach.

As for the old man, his would be a sherry and lemon. "After was now," he apologized, "too many subs around."—Toronto Sunday World.

Muscles and Joints Terribly Swollen — Rheumatism Disappears After Taking Tanlac

"At the time I began taking Tanlac my condition was such that if I remained in one position for any length of time my joints would get so stiff I could hardly move," said Mrs. Martha Walker, of 262 Evelyn avenue, Toronto, the other day. Mrs. Walker is a well-known woman of education and refinement, and her statement in regard to the benefits she has derived through the use of Tanlac will be of unusual interest to her many friends.

"About six years ago," she continued, "my health began to fail, my blood was bad, my circulation poor, and I was in a dreadfully anemic condition. I suffered from rheumatism and my limbs and feet were so swollen that I had to wear shoes two or three sizes larger than my regular number. I felt bloated all over, even my eyes were puffy and I could hardly put on a pair of kid gloves without nearly ruining them. Why, four years ago I just had to have all my rings filed off my fingers. My flesh was so sensitive I could hardly bear the weight of my hand anywhere and I was almost in constant pain. My nerves were so frayed that I could hardly sleep at night and I was actually afraid to drive my car around.

"Although I tried all kinds of medicines, nothing did me any good, but when I heard so much about Tanlac I decided to try it next. Before I had finished my first bottle I felt so much better that I kept it up till now my nerves are more quiet, I rest well at night and am stronger and better in every way than I have been in years. The swelling and soreness have almost left me entirely. I am wearing my regular size of shoe. I have put on my rings again, and I have been driving my car around all summer. I cannot praise Tanlac too highly and have already recommended it to several of my friends."

Tanlac is sold in Brantford by Robertson's Drug Store, in Paris by as follows, the resolution being signed by all the representatives present: Moved by Controller E. S. Little, London; seconded by Mayor Clements, Chatham:

That whereas the Provincial Legislature has passed an Act providing for a system of Provincial highways; and whereas the said Act provides the system shall consist of a line of highways from the boundary between Ontario and Quebec to the south-western boundary of Ontario, together with highways connecting centres of population, or other important lines of highways passing from Hamilton through Brantford, Woodstock, London, Chatham to Windsor, via the Longwoods road from London to Windsor, is the most direct route, serves the greatest population, and has a route practically free from heavy grades and expensive bridges.

Therefore be it resolved that we, the representatives of municipalities between Brantford and Chatham assembled at the city of London request the Provincial Government to assume as Provincial highways the highways from Hamilton to Windsor through Brantford, Woodstock, London and Chatham to Windsor, following the Longwoods road from London to Windsor.

And be it further resolved that such other highways be assumed as will connect the centres of population and important terminals, and thus form a Provincial system of highways that when completed will render adequate service through the western part of the Province.

USE OF DRUGS ON INCREASE IN U. S.

Drastic Anti-Narcotic Law to Check Habit is Needed

By Courier Leased Wire
Washington, Sept. 12.—Habitual use of morphine, cocaine, heroin and preparations containing other narcotic drugs has increased rapidly in the United States within the last two years, and a drastic anti-narcotic law must be enacted at this session of Congress to check the wholesale spread of the habit. These are the conclusions made possible today by a special investigating committee, together with a partial report on the number of drug addicts actually under physicians' treatment in the States.

The investigation of the committee, which is headed by Representative Rainey of Illinois, showed that thousands of addicted men have been dismissed from military camps after it was found that they were drug addicts and that this number included many who systematically developed the habit after being drafted in order to insure their dismissal. This condition is a result given for the urgency of immediate remedial legislation.

OUT OF THE RAIN

By Captain H. B. C. Pollard. The scout lay behind the embankment of a little hedge some seventy yards out in front of the British line. The ditch was dry, and afforded enough cover to keep him out of view of the enemy's line, which ran some forty yards away on the other side of the hedge. He was there for the day, for he could neither regain his own line without being seen, nor could he advance further up the hedge, for a wide gap torn by a large calibre shell made a dangerous obstacle.

Twice during the morning he had crept up to the crater, hoping to angle across there unperceived, but each time a German bullet had whizzed into the earth of the embankment and it was plain that a sniper had the gap marked and was watching it with the utmost vigilance. Realizing that it was no use trying to get nearer to the German position, the scout accepted the position with resignation and lay still in the ditch waiting for the time to pass away.

Professor Delbrueck, in an article in the magazine 'Prussian Year Book' declares that the pan-Germans no longer bear a portion of the responsibility for the war, but also the chief responsibility for its prolongation.

MAKE WAR ON RATS Interesting Facts About the Immense Losses Caused by These Pests

The rat is responsible for more deaths among human beings than all the wars in history. This startling statement was made recently by David E. Lantz of the United States Biological Survey. Through the fleas that infest them rats are almost wholly responsible for the perpetuation and transmission of bubonic plague, and it has been proved that they are also active agents in spreading pneumonic plague, diseases which have destroyed, at various times, millions of the world's population.

CURING SKIN TROUBLES So many people, both men and women, suffer from skin troubles, such as eczema, blotches, pimples and irritation that a word of advice is necessary. It is a great mistake for such sufferers and those with bad complexion to smear themselves with greasy ointments. Often they could not do anything worse, for the grease clogs the pores of the troubled skin and their condition actually becomes worse.

LADY'S TWO GORED SKIRT.

A rather unusual style of two gored skirt is shown in No. 8656. The back gore is cut so wide that it extends beyond the hips, and at the top it is continued across the waist line to form a belt. The back gore is gathered at the slightly raised waist line as far as the sides of the figure and is plain around the front. The front gore is almost straight and it is gathered to the waist line under the belt. Soft lightweight materials, such as French serge, twill, henrietta or prunella may be used for this skirt.

HOW A YOUNG GIRL SUFFERED And Was Restored to Health By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Told By Her Mother.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for my daughter. She was 15 years of age, very sickly and pale and she would not stay home from school most of the time. She suffered agonies from backache and dizziness and was without appetite. For three months she was under the doctor's care and got no better, always complaining about her back and side aching so I didn't know what to do. I read in the papers about your wonderful medicine so I made up my mind to try it. She has taken five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and doesn't complain any more with her back and side aching. She has gained in weight and feels much better. I recommend this 'Pinkham's Vegetable Compound' to all mothers and daughters."—Mrs. M. FROST, 516 May Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. For special advice, write to such address as to Lydia E. ### IT PAYS TO SELECT POTATOES FOR SEED

Before Tops Die Down in Autumn is Best Time to do so

Recent investigations have shown that lack of vigour in the seed potatoes planted has been the cause of poor yields and inferior quality in the resultant crop. It has also been found that seed from New Brunswick or New Ontario gives better yields in older Ontario than home-grown seed. It may not be convenient for every farmer to purchase seed in New Brunswick or New Ontario, but a process of selection can be conducted which will materially increase yields and profits. Usually the best potatoes are found on the hills which have the strongest and most vigorous tops. They should be marked before they die down in the autumn and kept separate at digging time for seed the following year. This will not cost anything except a little time and it will be time profitably spent.

While conducting illustration work on farms, the Commission of Conservation has noted increases in yield as high as 32 per cent. from the selected seed over the seed from the common bin. Select enough now for a seed plot next year.—F.C.N.
