OUTLINE PROGRAMME

Following is an outline programme for Thursday evening:—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Brockville visitors, accompanied by the 41st Batt. Band, will arrive by evening train and proceed at once to the High School, where in reply to an address, the Premier will speak to the students of the village schools.

From 7 to 8 o'clock the band will render a programme of musical selections on Main street.

The programme in the hall will include the presentation of the address to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his reply.

Brief speeches by prominent men in the County.

Vocal numbers by Mr. Frank Bemrose, the distinguished concert tenor of Toronto.

Instrumental music by the Brockville Orchestra.

Press Comments

Mrs. Cochrane is gifted with a rich contralto voice of great power and compass, while her perfect enunciation and thorough interpretation of the many vocal gems which comprise her repertoire has made her famous wherever she has appeared. This talented lady will sing at the new town hall on Monday evening.

Scottish Canadian: Mrs. Cochrane sings as to the Manor born. Her Scotch is genuine, no mere acquirement for repertoire purposes, but a talent bred in the bone and flowing from the heart.

Toronto Globe: Mrs. Cochrane is the possessor of a magnificent voice of range, and sings with a dash and vim that is very taking.

Cannington Gleaner: Anna Don Cochrane eclipses anyone heretofore engaged by the Sunderland people.

Detroit Courier: Probably the biggest hit of the evening was made by Annie Don Cochrane, from Dumfries, Scotland.

Lindsay Post: She is considered one of the best Scotch artists in Canada.

The Royal Month and the Royal Disease

Sudden changes of weather are especially trying and probably to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive. The progress of scrofula during a normal October is commonly great. We never think of scrofula—its lumps, cutaneous eruptions, and wasting of the bodily substance—without thinking of the great good many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose radical and permanent cures of this one disease are enough to make it the most famous medicine in the world. There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved its merit in more homes than one, in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious and as much to be feared as its near relative,—consumption.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women

Medicines, sold alike for men and women, never contain what will do a woman the most good, that is, the uterine and other female tonics. Such medicines may relieve for a little but that is all. They do not cure, because they do not reach the cause of nine-tenths of the ills of women.
Women need a remedy compounded for their special needs. Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women are such a medicine.
They are a special remedy compounded by a specialist for a special purpose. The specialist is Dr. Hugo, of Paris, who perhaps knows more about the needs of women to-day than any other living physician. Their special purpose is to cure the ills of women and their alone. They are not for men.

Are Just for Women.

BRITAIN AND RUSSIA IN CENTRAL ASIA.

Rumors That the Two Powers May Come to an Understanding on the Matter.

Britain's Policy in That Region is Defence and Not Defiance, Says Gerald Balfour.

The Russian Ambassador and Lord Lansdowne Have Long Interview on the Subject.

London, Oct. 9.—Following closely upon the publication of the text of the Anglo-Japanese treaty, there has been considerable talk of the possibility of an understanding between Great Britain and Russia. All the newspapers are devoting columns to the discussion of the question, pointing out that if Russia is sincere in her expressions of a desire for peace in Central Asia there is no reason why the two ancient enemies should not come to an agreement that will not only assure peace, but clear away the suspicions leading to frictions which have existed for years. That negotiations with this object in view are pending seems possible, though definite official confirmation is lacking. Color is lent to the rumors that have been floating about by the recent frequent visits paid to the Foreign Office by the Russian Ambassador since his return from his holidays. A fortnight ago, and the fact that Foreign Secretary Lansdowne, who returned from his vacation to publish the text of the Anglo-Japanese treaty, has not resumed it. Count Benckendorff, the Russian Ambassador, had a long interview with Lord Lansdowne at the Foreign Office yesterday, and the latter left London immediately thereafter for Balmoral, Scotland, where Premier Balfour is at present, as Minister in attendance to the King.

Of course the visits of the Russian Ambassador to the Foreign Office may have been connected with Emperor Nicholas' invitation to Great Britain to participate in the second peace conference at The Hague, but Great Britain has already answered His Majesty's preliminary invitation. It is thought here that the present is an opportune moment for reaching a better understanding between the two countries, both the British and Russian papers having strongly advocated it for the past week. The position of the British Government was clearly stated in a speech delivered by Gerald Balfour, President of the Local Government Board, yesterday, in which he said: "Great Britain has no intention of making aggressive movements in Central Asia. Our object is defence, and not defiance, and if the Russian Government desires to come to an understanding with us with reference to our respective interests in that part of the world, it will not find the British Government backward in readiness to consider any proposals which it might desire to put forward."

M'CURDY FAMILY HAD GOOD THING.

Enormous Profits Made Out of the Mutual Life.

President's Son and Brother-in-law Collected Over $2,500,000.

How the Insurance Companies Overlook Legislation.

New York, Oct. 9.—That Robert H. McCurdy, a son of the president of the Mutual Life, and Louis A. Thebaud, the elder McCurdy's elder son-in-law, made enormous profits through the relation with the Mutual Company was disclosed today in the hearing before the Armstrong Insurance Committee.

Robert H. McCurdy, who is 46 years old, has been general manager of the Mutual Life since 1902, and is drawing at present a salary of $30,000 a year. Prior to that time, in fact since 1893, Mr. McCurdy had a commission on all foreign business written by the Mutual Company, and he has, it was shown today, been getting that commission annually, even after his appointment as general manager. In some years the commissions have amounted to more than $90,000, which is a sum almost as great as his father draws as president of the Mutual and considerably in excess of the amount which President Paul Morton, of the Equitable, is receiving.

Mr. McCurdy collected these commissions under a contract which he entered into with the Mutual Company back in 1893, when he went to Europe as the company's foreign manager. At that time the Mutual agreed to pay him 5 per cent. on all premiums from the foreign business. But the volume of business increased so rapidly that the amounts to which Mr. McCurdy would have been entitled assumed such stupendous proportions, that the commission was gradually reduced—he says, at his own request—until he is receiving now but 1 per cent. on the annual premiums of the foreign business. Even at this rate his income from this source amounts to more than $80,000 a year, and the Mutual, according to its contract with Mr. McCurdy, will have to pay him these commissions until 1919. The Mutual had the right to terminate its contract with Mr. McCurdy at any time. The total amount which he has received as commissions in the last 20 years amount to almost $1,200,000.

Other Profits. It was shown further today that during the greater part of the period in which Mr. McCurdy was collecting commissions on the foreign business from the Mutual Company he was also receiving large amounts—as profits—from the firm of R. H. Raymond and Co., who were the Mutual's general agents for the New York city district. Mr. McCurdy left this firm in 1895, and upon his retirement Louis A. Thebaud, his brother-in-law, made his appearance in the firm. This firm, it was shown today, has received from the Mutual as much as 80 per cent. of the premiums on first-year business written by the Mutual. Out of the receipts under this contract, however, the firm was obliged to pay about $25,000 per year for branch offices. Mr. McCurdy's net receipts from this firm since 1895 amount to $335,283, part of this being his interest in renewals, from which source he still continues to derive a small income. Mr. Thebaud, since he became a member of the Raymond firm in 1892, has received net profits aggregating $928,223. In 1904 he cleared $1,438,741. For the last few years Mr. Thebaud has been receiving three-fourths of the profits of this firm. Mr. McCurdy's net profits from his foreign commissions and his commissions through Raymond and Co. together with his salary, amount to more than $1,600,000, and Mr. Thebaud and Mr. McCurdy have together cleared more than $2,600,000. Besides this, there has, of course, been going into the McCurdy family from the Mutual the salary of Richard A. McCurdy, as president, which is at least $100,000 a year.

Mr. Thummel told in detail what he did for the Mutual in the matter of overlooking legislation. He repeated what President McCurdy of the New York Life said, that the greater number of bills introduced in the Legislature concerning insurance matters, were nothing but "strike" measures. Mr. Thummel corroborated the testimony of the Equitable associate auditor, to the effect that the entire territory of the United States was divided as regards legislative supervision among the New York Life, the Mutual, and the Equitable, and that the expenses incurred in this work were divided equally among the companies. Mr. Thummel told of the different States which he had visited in the last few years, and cited some of the measures which he had combated. He said that the Equitable spent probably about $15,000 a year on legislative matters. Mr. Thummel talked generally about "countering the situation," and about "getting acquainted with persons who were behind legislation, but he denied emphatically that he has ever paid a penny to a legislator for the purpose of influencing his vote on any measure.

I. WRIGHT'S DEATH.

INGERSOLL DOCTORS UNABLE TO EXPLAIN IT.

Evidence Given at the Inquest at Ingersoll—One Witness Describes a Merry Time on the Bridge Where Deceased and Prisoners Were.

Ingersoll despatch: At the inquest tonight on the death of Isaiah Wright, whose body was taken from the Thames River on Thursday morning, Sept. 28, Dr. McKay, who assisted by Dr. Cole-ridge performed the post-mortem, was examined at length. His evidence was to the effect that death was not the result of natural causes or acute alcoholism. He was, however, unable to state definitely what caused death.

Witness was inclined to the opinion that Wright was alive when immersed. He might have been insensible at the time, as there was no well marked indication of the deceased having struggled in the water. There were no marks on the hands from the finger nails, nor gravel under the nails, as is common in a case of drowning. The bruise on the back of the head might have been caused after death. A blunt instrument would cause such a bruise as was found. A man very much intoxicated, falling from the bridge in question and drowned in that way, might show the conditions revealed by the post-mortem.

while returning home on the night of September 22 he saw Wright in company of some of the men now in custody on the charge of murder. He met Ewart Bell and Wright near the bridge. He also recognized George Hartwell, Thomas Wilson and George Dennis. He could not say who the others were. The party had an accordion, and were having a merry time on the bridge. Just as witness was leaving the bridge Hartwell said he was going home.

METHODIST MISSIONS.

Meeting of the General Board at London.

London, Ont., Oct. 9.—The General Board of Missions of the Methodist Church in Canada met today in annual session in Dundas Street Church. There was full representation of the board present.

This is an increase of $30,811.56. The other sources of revenue show a healthy growth. The estimated expenditure is $330,265.24.

The following telegram was received from Rev. Newton Powell, Victoria, B.C. "Baron Komura does not support disunion of schools, was arrested today upon an indictment by the Grand Jury charging forgery. The arrest is the result of the examination by the Grand Jury of the books of the Peoria School Board. Within a comparatively brief space of time a shortage of $75,000 was discovered, but the further discovery was made that the speculations have been extending over a long term of years. The shortage will reach hundreds of thousands of dollars. The crime for which he was arrested was forging a voucher for $164.50 for coal alleged to have been delivered for school purposes, but which was not delivered.

Mr. Dougherty is President of the Peoria National Bank, a heavy stockholder in the Dime Savings & Trust Co., the Title & Trust Co. and other concerns, and a trustee of the fund of $175,000 held by the National Educational Association. He is a close friend of Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University of New York, and has been for many years regarded as one of the foremost educators in the country.

SHE WILL NOT EAT FOOD.

Surrounded by Luxuries, Baltimore Girl Starves Herself.

Baltimore, Oct. 9.—Miss Louise Cole, eighteen years old, the daughter of Joseph Cole, seems doomed to starve to death, although surrounded by the daintiest and most inviting luxuries. For more than two years Miss Cole has not tasted water, and has taken no nourishment save milk, ice cream, and these in small quantities. A week ago she refused to eat even the latter, and since that time has taken no material nourishment.

The doctors, after a thorough examination of the girl, have agreed that she is suffering from no physical disorder, except nervousness, and the refusal to eat has proved a problem that they have been unable to solve.

SCOW FILLED AND SANK.

Gordon Donaldson, Aged 22, Drowned in Toronto Bay.

Toronto report: Gordon Donaldson, a polisher in the employ of the Palmer Piano Co., met his death a little before 10 o'clock last night in the bay at the foot of Spadina avenue. He was out with his brother-in-law, Albert Prince, a piano fitter, searching for their gasoline launch, which had left its moorings, when the scow they were using filled with water and sank.

U. S. CUTTER AFTER FISHERMEN WHO POACH IN CANADIAN WATERS.

Those Who Break the Law Will be Arrested and Their Vessels and Cargoes Confiscated.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—The U. S. revenue cutter Morrill left Detroit last night, having on board Collector of Customs Leach, of Cleveland, who will take a hand in of putting a stop to depredations of American fishing tugs in Canadian waters. The Morrill will cruise Lake Erie for several days, going as far east as Dunkirk. Collector Leach has a license to investigate the cargo of any fishing boat he comes upon. Any fishermen found guilty of violating the revenue law he returns to enter his catch in Canadian waters will be arrested, his cargo and vessel seized and proceedings of confiscation instituted by the collector. This puts the poachers between two fires, both Governments being arrayed against them. It is believed that the latest turn of affairs will largely put a stop to the wholesale taking of fish in Canadian waters by American fishermen. In his letter of instructions Secretary Shaw, of the Treasury Department, said: "The relations between the United States and Canada are of the most cordial character, and it is regretted that any of our people will violate both the law of their own country and that of Canada."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Maj.-Gen. Corbin and wife sailed today for Manila, Australia, on a two months' leave of absence.

Provincial Treasurer McCormick, of Quebec, says the Government is convinced of the justice of the principle of the tax on commercial travellers, but may make some modifications.

Governor A. E. Mead, has offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of the bandits who robbed the Great Northern train near Ballard, Wash., on Monday.

The tender of Foley Bros., Larsen & Co., Winnipeg, to build the branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Fort William and Lake Superior Junction, a distance of 219 miles, has been accepted.

Mrs. Catharine Albert Penfield, wife of Frederick Courland Penfield, a former American diplomatic agent and consul-general to Egypt, died on Wednesday of heart disease, at a hotel at New York. She was 60 years old.

The report of President C. D. Warren to the shareholders of the Lake Superior Corporation stated that the last Canadian property to remain in the receiver's hands, the Lake Superior Power Co., has been released and has passed into the full control of the corporation within the past few days.

ON TRAIL OF RED MEN.

A Detective Trying to Arrest Them on the Muncney Reserve.

St. Thomas, Ont., despatch: Detective Minor is on the Muncney Reserve. He is trying to round up a gang of half-breeds and Indians who have been the terror of the neighborhood for the past three months. The trouble started when Sam Plain died about six months ago, and left an estate valued at about $20,000. Plain left his estate to his supposed wife, Julia Waucaush, and there has been considerable litigation over it. She bought a valuable horse, which was stolen from her stable. When Miller went up to investigate he found the horse and in a ravine.

Mr. James Cousin, of Middlemiss, leased the estate of Sam Plain from the government, and last Saturday night his house was burned down.

Detective Miller has traced fifteen robbers for all of them, but the warrants for the gang live in the bush, and so far have escaped arrest. He claims that he traces all these crimes to the fact that liquor is supplied to the Indians at a hotel in a nearby village.

WANT RECIPROCITY.

MASSACHUSETTS REPUBLICANS HAVE A HOT TIME OVER TARIFF.

Boston, Oct. 9.—A factional contest upon the question of tariff revision, especially with reference to reciprocity with Canada, was being conducted in the nomination of a candidate for lieutenant-governor and the presence of five aspirants for the nomination for attorney-general, gave unusual interest to the Republican state convention in Tremont Temple here today.

Although the committee on resolution yesterday evening, in hearing the arguments of the reciprocity supporters, and late last night had reached a decision to introduce a compromise plank in the convention platform, early today it seemed likely that a collision between the advocates of reciprocity and those who opposed tariff changes on the floor of the convention could be prevented because of the demand of the revisionists for more specific utterances than the committee was willing to make. The reciprocity delegates declare they will insist on a plank demanding the removal of the duty on hides, iron ore, lumber and wood pulp.

PLENARY COUNCIL.

Archbishops Discuss Proposals, But Action is Deferred.

Ottawa despatch: The annual conference of the Roman Catholic archbishops of Canada was concluded this morning. The archbishops discussed the proposals for the Plenary Council, but no definite action was taken. Mgr. Sharretti, Papal delegate, visited the archbishops, and had luncheon with them. Archbishop O'Connor has left for Toronto, and the others are to leave tonight.

Archbishop Duhamel, it is understood, will lay the proposals of the Plenary Council before Pope Pius, when he goes to Rome, and it is likely that the conference of all Canadian archbishops and bishops will take place in Ottawa next summer.

Mr. Marshall is president of the Pere Marquette Railway at

MRS. KYLE THANKS GOD THAT HER TRIAL IS OVER.

Says She Expected the Verdict and is Glad to be Back With Her Dear Husband.

An Ingersoll despatch: At her pretty little cottage on the Culloden road Mrs. Emily Kyle, who was acquitted last night at Woodstock of the murder of David Magee, was seen this morning by a reporter and congratulated on the verdict which made her a free woman. Mrs. Kyle was busily engaged in her household work when the newspaper man called, and was in splendid spirits. She showed signs, however, of the ordeal through which she had passed, but stopped work long enough to chat a few minutes.

"The verdict was just what I had expected," she said. "When a woman tries to do the right thing and be true to her husband, no other kind of a decision could be looked for. It would have been a great wrong had I been convicted." "You have been under a severe nervous strain, Mrs. Kyle," suggested the reporter.

"Yes, I have, but, thank God, it's all over now, and I am back with my dear husband and family again. The papers have all been very good to me, and I am thankful to them for that. Judge MacMahon is a saintly old man. Isn't he?" "I can never begin to thank him for that address of his to the jury, and Mr. Robbette was splendid, too. I had the best that money could get for a man will sacrifice everything he has for the wife he loves, and my husband has done that."

"The whole affair was very unfortunate," continued Mrs. Kyle, "and no one regrets it more than I do, but I thought my life and honor were endangered, and I had to save myself." "Were there many at the car to meet you when you got home?" "I didn't notice," replied Mrs. Kyle. "I shrink from publicity, and I came right home along with my husband. When we got to the house my brother, Mr. Andrews, of the Canada Cycle and Motor Co., Toronto, and some other members of my husband's and my own family were there, and we had a great rejoicing together. Though I had never doubted the result, I was very glad to get back to my little house and my little ones, the birds, the cat, and the flowers, which I was sure had been neglected when I was away. I couldn't have parted with them, they are all so dear to me."

Mrs. Kyle is a motherly-looking woman, about 35 years of age, pleasantly looking, and with a very pleasing and well modulated voice. She is receiving many callers to-day, who are offering their congratulations, and she says that she never knew she had so many friends till she got into this trouble. Ingersoll people as a rule are very much pleased with the result, as Magee was a worthless character, and was quite capable of attempting almost any crime. Great interest was taken in the case, and to-day the favorable verdict is the sole topic of conversation on the streets.

SHOOTING OF HAUCH. NO LOVE FOR GERMANY.

YOUNG SIMON HAMMER ADMITS PARTICIPATION IN IT.

Claims It Was an Accident, as He Was Unloading His Revolver at the Charivari—Jury Take the Same View.

A Tavistock despatch: East Zorra's tragedy is no longer a mystery. This afternoon at Cassel, a little hamlet six miles southeast of Tavistock, where the shooting was being conducted, Simon Hammer, a youth of nineteen, while tears streamed down his face, told of the fatal charivari, and intimated that his hand held the weapon by which John S. Hauch came to his death on September 10th. He claimed that it happened accidentally, and was so unnerved when telling the story that it was necessary for Constable J. F. Wilson to revive him with a glass of water before he could proceed.

The confession was anticipated by Coroner Holson, but was a great surprise to the public. When the youth's story led him to the words, "I had a revolver," the Coroner stopped him and said: "I want to be fair with you; you are not bound to answer any question that might be used to incriminate you." "I will tell you the very truth; it happened accidentally," said the young man with great earnestness. "When the charivari at William Wagester's home was in process I stood beside Hauch, about three feet away. He fired three shots and I fired my revolver. When he was done with his shot, I thought I had shot him off, and so I pointed the revolver towards the ground, I tried to remove the shells. As I was doing this the hammer went down and the revolver jumped up and Hauch was shot. If it had not jumped the bullet would have gone right into the ground."

The jury at 9.15 returned a verdict to the effect that J. S. Hauch came to his death by a bullet from a revolver, accidentally discharged while in the hands of Simon Hammer.

The weapon, a 38-calibre bulldog, was then handed over to the Coroner by the witness.

Other witnesses included Charles Harbottle, the groom, George Junkers, Wm. Wagester, George Beaman, and Dr. M. Stool, who performed the post-mortem and removed the bullet from the body of the victim.

THE ANGLICAN MISSIONS.

Annual Meeting in Wycliffe Convocation Hall.

A Toronto despatch: Thankfulness for past triumphs and hopefulness regarding the future were the dominating features of the annual meeting of the Canadian Church Missionary Society, held last night in Convocation Hall of Wycliffe College. The attendance was large. Mr. N. W. Hoyles, K. C. presided.

Rev. R. E. Welsh, of the Upper Canada Bible Society bore testimony to the earnest, faithful work of the C. M. S. workers.

Rev. T. R. O'Meara, Secretary of the society, said this special field was the seeking out, the accepting, the training and the maintenance of workers in the foreign mission field. Four mission-aries had been accepted this year and four others were under probation.

Rev. Arthur Lee, who is on leave after eight years of mission work in Japan, said the Japanese were a clever and progressive people and unless the Gospel was everywhere proclaimed to them they might substitute envy on their affairs without Christ.

FRANCE WAS NOT TO BE EITHER PERSUADED OR COERCED.

A Gratuitous Injury is Not Easily Forgotten by the French People—Russian Nation Looking Upon the Situation Rather Cynically.

London, Oct. 9.—The Paris correspondent of the Times cables: Count von Buelow has had no better luck than his master. It may be said that the attempt to reduce France to submission by persuasion meets with the same failure as the efforts to do so by force. In both instances there has been manifest ignorance of the character of the French people. They do not forget a gratuitous injury as easily as is evidently supposed in Berlin. From the point of view of Christian morality it would have been well had the French let bygones be bygones, but there is, alas, no trace of such a praiseworthy disposition. They are still chafing under the brutal treatment recently received at the hands of Germany. Count von Buelow's suggestion that France has said she is ready to shake hands with Germany and act the honest broker between Germany and England is looked upon rather as adding insult to injury than as testifying to an honest intention on the part of Germany to behave better in the future.

HOW RUSSIA VIEWS IT.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times cables: Count von Buelow's efforts to conciliate French public opinion by claiming that M. Delescluse is responsible for German action in Morocco evokes sceptical smiles in the Russian capital, where it is recognized on all sides that the Moroccan incident, resulted from Russia's reverses, and that the conciliatory attitude now adopted at Berlin is due to tardy regret for the mistaken policy initiated by the German Emperor at Tangier. You have No Reason for Not Using Zutoo

Some people think that all headache cures are alike—that they all undermine the health, even if not perceived at the time of taking them.

Well, we'll admit that the drug cures do this, but that is no reason why you should not take Zutoo.

Zutoo is a harmless vegetable remedy. One ingredient is soda—just old-fashioned soda that our grandmothers used to take to settle the stomach, when they had sick headache. And there is nothing better.

The principal ingredient—the one that stops the headache, is a vegetable ingredient, imported for us from Japan. It won't hurt you any more than will the soda.

There is absolutely no reason why you should not use Zutoo.

If you suffer from headache there is every reason why you should.

Taken in time, two tablets will ward off a headache. Taken later, they will stop it in twenty minutes, and leave you feeling good every time.

If you are using a drug remedy, why not discard it? Zutoo will cure just as quickly and will save you the penalty, that all must sometime pay, who take the drugs which these cures contain.

If you will give Zutoo one trial, you will never take any other headache remedy again.

NERVOUS DEBILITY CURED

Excesses and indiscretions are the cause of more sorrow and suffering than all other diseases combined. We see the victims of vicious habits on every hand; the pale, pinched face, dark circled eyes, stooping form, stunted development, bashful, melancholic countenance and timid bearing proclaim to all the world his folly and tend to blight his existence. Our treatment positively cures all weakness by overcoming and removing the effects of former indiscretions and excesses. It stops all losses and drains and quickly restores the patient to what nature intended—a healthy and happy man with physical, mental and nerve powers complete.

For over 25 years Drs. K. & K. have treated with the greatest success all diseases of men and women. If you have any secret disease that is a worry and a menace to your health consult old established physicians who do not have to experiment on you.

We guarantee to cure Nervous Debility, Blood Diseases, Stricture, Varicocele, Kidney and Bladder Diseases. Consultation Free. If unable to call, write for a Question Blank for Home Treatment.

DRS. KENNEDY & KERGAN, 149 Shelby Street, Detroit, Mich.

MEN DON'T YOU SUFFER SECRETLY

Unnatural drains, the result of early indiscretions or excesses, may be undermining your vigor and vitality; poisons in the blood may be sapping your very life; the presence of Stricture or Varicocele may be making your life miserable; Nervous Debility symptoms may cause you to feel life is not worth living, some secret disease may be preventing you from getting married—what are you doing for it? Rouse yourself and be a man. Your future happiness is at stake. Consult specialists who are incurable they don't want your money. Responsible parties may pay after cure. We cure Varicocele, Nervous Debility, Stricture, Blood Poison, Secret Diseases, Kidney and Bladder complaints. Examination Free. If you cannot call, write for Question List for Home Treatment. Charges reasonable. Booklet sent Free (sealed).

INTERNATIONAL LESSON No. 11. OCTOBER 22, 1905.

Commentary.—I. The Foundation of the temple laid (vs. 10-13). 10. The builders—Joshua and Zerubbabel as managers, with the people as workmen.

(Ezra ii. 2). It had been specially enjoined that only upon that site should sacrifices be offered and only at Jerusalem the feast be kept.

III. Consecration. "They offered burnt offerings" (Ezra ii. 2-6). This fact is emphasized by repetition.

IV. Order. "The builders laid the foundation of the temple" (Ezra iii. 10). The arrangements for the laying of the stone were methodical.

V. Praise. "They praised the Lord because the foundation was laid" (Ezra iii. 11). Pastor C. B. Ford says: "To praise God at the commencement of a work without waiting for its completion is appropriate and not without waiting for its completion is appropriate and not without precedent."

VI. Opposition. "The adversaries of the Jews" (Ezra iv. 1). Years after the greatest spiritual builders wrote: "A great door and effectual is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries" (Cor. xii. 9).

DISGUISED AS A MAN. IS A DIAMOND THIEF AND AN EXPERT SMUGGLER.

With a Male Companion She Stole Thirty Thousand Dollars' Worth of Jewelry and Silverware in New York—Valuable Gems Found on Her.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8.—Henry Hoffman and Mrs. Henry Schiller, each of whom is said to have a number of aliases, are held here under arrest on a charge of smuggling. It is alleged that they were implicated in a robbery in London and in at least two large burglaries in New York city.

The prisoners are each suspected of having robbed the Ansonia Hotel, in New York, of thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry and clothing. Hoffman was once arrested in Boston on a charge of smuggling diamonds from Europe.

He also admits that he aided her in escaping. About 270 diamonds were found in the possession of the couple when they were arrested.

will stimulate the organs of circulation and digestion, because it makes the blood more milk and at a profit. For cows at "Calving," there is nothing better as it tones and regulates the system, helping her to "clean" better, and lessening the usual danger.

can communion would be resented, and would even weaken the authority which Canterbury now possessed. There was the same objection to a central judicial tribunal localized in England, but the constitution of the Advisory Council had been welcomed by the general colonial churches.

There must be certain legal bonds voluntarily accepted between the colonial churches and the mother church. He did not think they could do better than tangible spiritual bonds as might be secured by common faith, the exchange of visits to the conference, invitations to which might be withheld so as to mark by exclusion any grave departure from Anglican standards.

WILL BREAK NAVAL TRADITION.

London, Oct. 9.—According to the Express, the battleship Dreadnaught, building at Portsmouth, will break naval tradition by having the officers' quarters in the fore part of the vessel and the seamen's quarters astern. The necessity for furnishing accommodation for a crew of 900 men and extraordinary allowances of ammunition, coal and provisions. The Dreadnaught will be the largest battleship in the world.

RANSAY OUT OF WABASH.

New York, Oct. 9.—Joseph Ramsay, jun., was ousted from the Presidency of the Wabash Railroad Company at a special meeting of the Board of Directors, held in this city. F. A. DeLano was elected as his successor. Eight directors, including Mr. Ramsay, were present at the meeting. Mr. Ramsay has been engaged in a contest with Mr. Gould for the control of the road. Mr. Ramsay, after the meeting, said his resignation was entirely illegal, for the reason that the meeting had not been properly called.

Tired. Nervous Mothers

Make Unhappy Homes—Their Condition Irritates Both Husband and Children—How Thousands of Mothers Have Been Saved From Nervous Prostration and Made Strong and Well.

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of a nervous breakdown, is often the ruin of her children; it ruins her own life and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves; it is impossible for her to do anything like a firebrand.

Free Advice to Women. Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write to her for advice. Mrs. Pinkham's vast experience with female troubles enables her to tell you just what is best for you, and she will charge you nothing for her advice.

THE MARKETS.

Toronto Farmers' Market.

The grain receipts to-day were moderate, and prices generally firm. Wheat is unchanged, with sales of 300 bushels of white and red at 71 to 75c per bushel. Barley unchanged, 1,500 bushels selling at 50 to 55c. Oats firm, 200 bushels selling at 35 to 36c. Peas unchanged, with 100 bushels bringing 70c per bushel.

Table with market prices for various goods like wheat, barley, oats, etc.

The Cheese Markets.

Brookville.—To-day 4,875 boxes were registered, 2,841 colored, balance white. 11c for white, 11 1/2c for colored; none sold on board.

British Cattle Markets.

London.—Cattle are quoted at 9 1/2 to 11 1/2c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

Exporters—Exporters are not wanted on the Toronto market at the present time, but really first class are worth from $1 to $1.50 per cwt. One good load was sold on the market yesterday at $1.25.

Toronto Fruit Market.

The market is moderately active, with receipts fair. Apples, basket, 15 to 20c. Grapes, Champaign, small basket, 15 to 20c; do, large, 20 to 25c. Nectarines, small basket, 17 to 20c; do, large, 25 to 30c.

Bradstreet's on Trade.

Montreal—Trade conditions here continue to reflect satisfactory conditions generally and a bright outlook for the future. Some apprehension had been felt regarding the way in which paper due on the 4th of the month would be met.

Winnipeg—The volume of wholesale trade here continues very large and all lines are moving briskly. On the whole, collections are good. Activity in the dry goods trade is general. Wools hold very firm. Grocers say their trade compares well with that of any previous year.

ARMENIAN CUSTOM.

ADVANCED AS REASON FOR THE BRANTFORD SHOOTING. Brantford Expositor: Any mystery that surrounded the Armenian shooting affair is rapidly being cleared up. It appears that in shooting his daughter, Kasparian, or Salamonie, was simply following the custom of his country when a daughter refuses to do the will of the family in marriage affairs.

DEAF MUTES MARRIED.

A Unique Wedding Ceremony at Peterboro'. Peterboro' dispatch: A unique wedding ceremony, the first ever celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral, took place here this morning. The principals being both deaf mutes. The groom was W. A. O'Rourke, foreman of the Belleville Star newspaper office, and the bride Miss Nellie De Roemer, daughter of Mr. Israel De Roemer. The silent ceremony was witnessed with great interest by the large congregation that filled the church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. O'Brien, Professor Devoys of the Deaf and Dumb Institute, Belleville, acting as interpreter. The bride, a pretty, dark-haired girl, was very neatly gowned in many blue silk.

SEALING IN PACIFIC.

First Steamer Returning Reports That Catches Were Good. Victoria, B. C., Oct. 9.—The sealing schooner City of San Diego returned from Behring Sea to-day with the first news from the fleet of eighteen sealing vessels from Victoria. The City of San Diego, which brought 732 seal skins, reports eleven schooners with good catches. The season's catch will exceed that of last year, better than for some years. Good weather aided the sealers, there being but two heavy storms during the season. No seizures were made, and few accidents are reported.

MINIO TO TAKE DANCERS.

How Victory of India Will Take Expects With Him. London, Oct. 9.—Lord Minto, the new Viceroy of India, is expected to arrive at Calcutta and shortly afterwards to draw some of the best dancing men and some of the smartest ballroom dancers into his viceregal entourage. Perhaps the crack dancing champion of last season in London was Lord Minto himself, himself a fine ballroom dancer in the mid-Victorian days. Lord Minto has placed Lord Grenville on his staff as a dancing master, and the Viceroy's household is a great resort for the social notice of view. The Irish Guards, so far as the officers are concerned, are a dancing regiment in excelsis.

WILL BREAK NAVAL TRADITION.

London, Oct. 9.—According to the Express, the battleship Dreadnaught, building at Portsmouth, will break naval tradition by having the officers' quarters in the fore part of the vessel and the seamen's quarters astern. The necessity for furnishing accommodation for a crew of 900 men and extraordinary allowances of ammunition, coal and provisions. The Dreadnaught will be the largest battleship in the world.

RANSAY OUT OF WABASH.

New York, Oct. 9.—Joseph Ramsay, jun., was ousted from the Presidency of the Wabash Railroad Company at a special meeting of the Board of Directors, held in this city. F. A. DeLano was elected as his successor. Eight directors, including Mr. Ramsay, were present at the meeting. Mr. Ramsay has been engaged in a contest with Mr. Gould for the control of the road. Mr. Ramsay, after the meeting, said his resignation was entirely illegal, for the reason that the meeting had not been properly called.

Tired. Nervous Mothers

Make Unhappy Homes—Their Condition Irritates Both Husband and Children—How Thousands of Mothers Have Been Saved From Nervous Prostration and Made Strong and Well.

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of a nervous breakdown, is often the ruin of her children; it ruins her own life and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves; it is impossible for her to do anything like a firebrand.

LOVE AND A TITLE

Hal rides up bare-headed, and is greeted with an innocent smile of surprise, and with as innocent a light of pleasure in her dark eyes.

"And you have taken my advice?" she says, "and so soon; and is it not beautiful?"

Hal looks around for the first time, but his eyes come back to her face almost instantly.

"Very fine," he says, scarcely noticing the view. "Very fine."

"And you see that?" she asks. "We are all in Forbach so proud of the castle! It is grand, is it not?"

"Yes," says Hal, throwing a swift glance at the noble pile.

"Our poor little villa looks an ant-hill in comparison," she says, with a smile.

"I don't think so," says Hal. "Stand still, you brute!" This was to the horse, of course.

"He is frightened at Carlo," says the princess. "Carlo, come here. Is he your horse?"

"Thank heaven, no!" says Hal, "I got him in the village after a vast amount of trouble. He is the prize stud of Forbach. I wish you could have seen the animal they first offered me. Stand still, will you? I give you my word, I have had the greatest trouble to get him along when I wanted to go, and now—stand still!"

"Let us get down," says the princess; "I always walk to the point. It is dangerous to ride so near. This is a beautiful view."

Hal drops from the saddle, and goes to help her to dismount.

With a light touch on his arm, she floats down to the ground, and, gathering her habit-skirt, leads the way, Hal leading the two horses.

"Oh, you may leave Florida," she says, "she will wait anywhere for me for hours, if I wanted her to."

"And I'll tie my brute up here," says Hal, and he latches the gate to a tree.

"There," says the princess, extending her tiny hand, clothed in white gloves, and lets it drop upon her lap as she sits on the edge of the hill.

"Reminds me of the view from the cliff," says Hal; "where I live, you know, in England. Only you want the sea—that I'll surround you."

"Tell me about it," she says, with quiet eagerness.

"Oh, there's nothing to tell," says Hal, looking at her exquisite profile, as she gazes dreamily at the view. "We live in a village on the coast. In a little house. Not a villa or a castle; we are poor, your highness," and he smiles.

She looks around quickly.

"Poor," she says, "and she has long legs with her hands."

"Yes, Jeanne is the only swell—the only wealthy individual—in the family. Oh, we just are poor!"

"Poor," she repeats, in a very low voice. "I wish—"

"What?" asks Hal.

"That I was. How happy you must be!"

He stares and bursts into one of his short, hearty laughs.

"It's plain you haven't lived in England, princess," he says. "There poverty is the worst of crimes. Well, if to be poor is to be happy, I ought to be the poorest fellow in Christendom. Why, I haven't got a sou; Jeanne stands the racket at college, and I've got to make my own way. And that's not easy work in England."

"Poor—and free," she says, and over the childish face comes a great wistfulness which puzzles Hal.

"Yes," says Hal, "that's the great fault with the Bertrams, excepting Jeanne. But we try to console ourselves with the fact that we come of 'good stock.' That goes for something—but very little."

While he is talking she looks at him with an arched regard. Then she slowly takes off the glove of her right hand and puts it on again, lost in pensive meditation.

Suddenly she jumps up.

"I must go back," she says. "It is late. I know by the shadow on the convent down there. They will be expecting me at home."

"They—the prince and the lady whom I saw," says Hal.

"And the count," she says.

"Count Mikoff," says Hal. "Is—is he at the villa?"

She nods, and looks straight before her with a fixed expression.

"Yes, he is staying at the villa; he is on a visit."

A mad kind of curiosity consumes Hal. "Is—is he your uncle?" he asks.

She turns her lovely face, with a surprised look in her dark eyes.

"My uncle," she says.

"Any relation?" says Hal, desperately.

"No," she says, and a faint, troubled look comes into her eyes, as if she had suddenly been struck by an unwelcome fact.

"An old friend, then," says Hal. "He must be, for I noticed that—"

And he pines.

She looks at him expectantly.

"Yes?"

"I'm very impertinent and rough—I always was. I was just going to say that I noticed he—kissed your hand yesterday."

"Did he?" she says, a little troubled, puzzled over her face.

"Yes, he is an old friend. I am going to marry the Count Mikoff."

If she had said, "I am going to be executed to-morrow morning," Hal would not have looked more startled or horrified.

Instead of bowing, with a courteous smile, he stopped short and stared at her, his bright face turning white as death, and his eyes starting from his head.

Perhaps she is startled, for she blushes a deep crimson, which the next moment leaves her face as pale as his, and stands with her hands folded, and her eyes cast moodily down.

Hal cannot speak, cannot bow, and so they stand opposite each other, with this awful gulf dividing them.

Then Hal awakes to the situation, and breaks the silence with the insane remark: "You horse has got four white feet." "Do you think he is pretty?"

"Oh, very—not at all—yes, extremely," says Hal, disinterestedly.

Then he holds the stirrup, and takes her tiny foot in his hand, puts her in the saddle, wakes up his own horse, and mounts and comes up to her.

Still he cannot speak. "I am going to marry Count Mikoff," rings in his ears, and renders him dumb and stupid. Has he dreamed that she said it? It can't be true! He glances at her, scrutinizing her. She is but a child—seventeen at most. Until now he has not thought of her age, but now she seems a child, only a child, and the count appears Methusalem—Methusalem himself. Up before Hal's vision arise the wrinkled face, with its varnished smile, the gray hair and white moustache, and the vision makes him red-hot, furious, mad! It is monstrous, horrible, unheard-of, criminal! Why should she do it?

Suddenly, without looking at him, she says, "I have a touch of serious gravity; my sister married the marquis—is he handsome?"

He rouses himself to reply. "Handsome? Vane? Yes."

"Is he very old?"

"Not much older than Jeanne. Yes, he is, perhaps, nine years!"

"No more?" raising her eyes with soft surprise. "And she is quite young?"

"A year older than I am; quite a girl!"

"My age," she says. "I did not think I did not know English ladies married so young?"

"No," says Hal; "but Jeanne looks older; she is tall and—womanly, I suppose."

"I shall see her—perhaps," says the princess. "I am going—we are going in a month."

"Hal's heart sinks like a plummet of lead."

"Going!" he says with dismay.

"To St. Petersburg," she answers in a low voice. "I am going to be married next month."

Hal nearly falls out of the saddle.

"Going—to be married!" he echoes.

She looks around at him, still with the little, sad, puzzled look, as if his palpable emotion had aroused a doubt in her mind.

"Yes, so it is arranged. Papa and the count arranged everything. We have been engaged—is that the right word in English?"

Hal groaned.

"Since I was—oh, for years ago."

Then she adds, with a low, musing voice: "He is very good and kind."

Hal smoothes a groan again.

"And he's papa's oldest friend."

Hal groans again, inaudibly, but as he says nothing, nothing polite and conventional, she turns her eyes upon him.

"Will you not wish me happiness?"

"At this modest request, poor, maddened Hal turns crimson, white—all colors. "Wish you—oh, yes, certainly. I—I wish you happiness; that is, I mean—let us go quicker, let us have a gallop. It's very cold—I mean it's very hot."

And he strikes his horse a smart blow with his light whip.

Much surprised and wounded, the animal gives bound and dashes down the hill; the princess says the word to Florida, and follows. But Hal, evidently laboring under the delusion that he is riding a race, gallops recklessly down the steep path and keeps ahead, utterly oblivious of the well-known truism, that strange horses are safest at the trot, and that galloping down hill over a loose, shingly road is dangerous.

The princess is safe enough; her horse knows every inch of the way, and is as sure-footed as a Spanish mule. She sees his danger, and calls out, "All colors!" "Step—take care!" but it is too late; with a sudden stumble the horse of Der Krone Hotel lurches on one side, and Hal flies over his head like a stone thrown from a catapult. With a cry, the princess throws herself from the saddle and bends over him.

"Are you hurt—are you?"

But Hal does not move, lying with his face on his arm.

With a sudden pang, and a succession of low, terrified cries, she throws herself down beside him, and tries to turn him.

But Hal is as stalwart and heavy, and her hands are as powerless to move him as if he were a block of marble.

With a face as white as snow, she springs to her feet and looks around for help.

Save the two horses, and Carlo, who sniffs curiously the senseless youth, not a living creature is in sight.

"What shall I do—what shall I do?" she means. "He is dead."

But only for the moment does weakness hold her. In a second, the next woman's art comes to her assistance.

Taking off her hat, she turns up a shallow path until she reaches a brook. Stooping down, she fills the hat with water, and, once more bending over the still figure, she bathes the bright chestnut head.

After a minute or two, Hal stirs and raises his head, to her unutterable joy.

With a low sob, she slips her arm around his neck, and lays his head on her lap.

There is an ugly cut on his forehead, from which trickles a thin stream of blood, which makes her shudder and cry as she wipes it away with her wet handkerchief; so still and peaceful is the face that one would think the boy was asleep; and perhaps, in the moment of excitement, and perhaps, in the moment of unconscious movement, she bends forward and presses the handsome head to her bosom, and, stooping the lovely head, lays her lips on his, kissing him passionately; not once or twice, but with a gush of sweet, womanly tenderness.

It is her soft, warm kisses that wake him, and Hal, as he opens his eyes for the moment, is under the delusion that he is asleep at the hotel and dreaming, but, starting up hastily, he sees her face so close to his, and raising himself on his elbow, stares about him.

"Princess!" he says.

"Yes—yes! you are better!" she answers, eagerly, a warm flush on her cheek.

"Better—what? Ah! that horse! I know! I remember—I mean, where are we?"

"On the hill," she says, murmuring in his ear. "Do not move—do not speak—oh, I am so glad—so glad!" and she began to cry silently, still holding him to her.

One tear escaping through her fingers, fell on Hal's face and roused him effectually.

With difficulty he stood upright, with reluctance, also, if the truth must be told, and then, Hal-like, laughed.

"That was a cropper!" he said, wiping the water from his face and forehead.

"You did not fall, did you?" he asked, anxiously.

"No! No! It was only you who were hurt," she replied, softly watching him with wide-open eyes, as if she expected he would fall at her feet again.

"That's all right," said Hal, cheerily, but rather shakily. "It don't matter, though."

"Oh, that's nothing!" said Hal, smiling, as he brushed the hair from his forehead.

"Saved me right if it had been worse and I've made you uneasy. That's the worst of it. Let me help you to mount."

"Not yet—not yet," she says, earnestly. "Let us walk."

"I will walk, but you shall not," he says, "Come."

She falters a moment, then allows him to put her up in the saddle, and, with his hand on her arm, he walks slowly by her side. To assist him, no doubt, he put his hand on her horse's neck; and accidentally, of course, her hand, ungloved now, falls there also.

Quite accidentally, no doubt, his hand touches hers; but it cannot altogether be as accidental that his fingers should creep around hers and hold her tight.

She does not withdraw her hand; perhaps she thinks it assists him. And so they go down the valley—the English youth who is as poor as Job, and has to make his way in the world, and the rich princess who is to marry the Russian count.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Forbach, sleepy Forbach, is in a state of excitement. Its usually quiet street is almost filled with a curious, alert and merry-making crowd; the windows of Der Krone Hotel are all ablaze with light, faces, all turned toward the road leading from Baden-Baden. The little florist's shop window is quite hidden by a row of white-capped, red-cheeked village maidens, laughing and talking and eating ripe figs, all three things at once; the steps of the church itself are gathered here, some laughing and chatting. The sight is not there, simply because he has come up to the castle to welcome the great English milord, of whom he is the valued and most esteemed friend.

Judging by the aspect of Forbach, alive any vivacious, anyone would think that the emperor himself were about to pass through; and, indeed, his presence did not prove of greater interest to the quiet people of Forbach than the advent of the great Marquis of Ferndale; for his presence at the castle, with a long train of servants, means a great increase of business and profit—in a word, prosperity. The butcher and the baker, and the florist—even the little old fruit-woman—rejoice and make glad, and lay waiting in the road to greet their patron and give him a hearty welcome.

But a less interested motive has drawn the red-cheeked maidens and white-capped, demure matrons of the village, for the story of the marquis's wedding has reached them, and they have come out to get an early glimpse of him.

They are talking about her now, as they click their knitting needles and glance expectantly up the road.

"Herr Graf, the steward," says that she is very handsome with a nod; "very beautiful. There is a portrait of her hanging in the great hall, which milord the marquis painted with his own hand, and sent over that might hang there before the guests arrive. And Herr Graf says it is the face of a child—a girl—"

"Surely not!"

"So says he; a mere girl; but beautiful—oh, as beautiful as a flower, with dark eyebrows and eyes like jewels. Herr Graf is quite enamored of milady's picture."

"But is she so young?" asks another.

"A girl—a girl only," replies the first gossip, proud of her superior information. "But a few months older than the young milord, her brother, who has been staying at Der Krone."

"Ah, is he not handsome?" says a girl, with a little upraised glance of her eyes. "He is like—like—oh, I know not what he is like!"

"Gretchen!" exclaims her mother, who is standing by, reprovingly, "guard thy tongue, girl; what is that young milord's fair face to thee?"

The girl shrunk away and blushed, expecting a further rebuke, which would certainly have been forthcoming, but, fortunately, some one at the outskirts of the little crowd sees a cloud of dust, a very small cloud, in the distance.

"They are coming!" runs down the line, and knitting needles and fingers stop instantly.

"Yes, it is them!" repeats the first authority. "I can see the blue jackets of the postillions! See, too, they have run up the flag at Der Krone! Do you think IT'S IN THE BLOOD.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Drive Out Rheumatic Poison.

Rheumatism is rooted in the blood—any doctor will tell you that. Nothing can cure it that does not reach the blood. It is a foolish waste of time and money to try to cure rheumatism with liniments, poultices or anything else that only goes skin deep. Rubbing lotions into the skin only helps the painful poison to circulate more freely. The one cure, and the only cure for rheumatism is to drive the uric acid out of your blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They actually make new blood, and the new blood sweeps out the poisonous acids, loosens the stiffened, aching joints, cures the rheumatism and makes the sufferer feel better in many other ways.

Mrs. Joseph Perron, Les Eboulements, Que., says: "I suffered from rheumatism in a chronic form for nearly twenty-five years. I spent much money in liniments and medicines, but without avail, until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sometimes I was so stiff I could hardly move. The trouble seemed to be growing worse, and finally seemed to effect my heart, as I used to have pains in the region of the heart, and sometimes a smothering sensation. I grew so weak, and suffered so much that I began to consider my case hopeless, and then one day a little pamphlet, telling of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, fell into my hands, and I learned that they would cure rheumatism. I sent for a supply, and in about three weeks I found they were helping me. The trouble which affected my heart soon disappeared, and gradually the pains left me and I could go about with more freedom than I had done for years. I still take the pills occasionally, as I now know it is wise to keep my blood in good condition."

It is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood that they cure such troubles as rheumatism, anaemia, indigestion, kidney troubles, backaches, headaches and sideaches, neuralgia, erysipelas, and the special ailments that burden the lives of so many women and growing girls. But only the genuine pills can do this, and these always have the full name Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WAYS OF CHINESE DOCTORS.

Their Remuneration is From Sale of Drugs and Gifts After Recovery.

Chinese physicians of much repute never visit a patient, but are carried to the patient on a horse, mule or jack, or in a carriage. At the patient's residence the doctor first rests awhile, and in the meantime is served with liquors and confections and often with a formal meal.

He usually collects no fee, but receives a percentage of the fees of the apothecary, if he does not himself have an apothecary shop. In all cases of cure, however, he is rewarded with rich presents, whose value depends on the rapidity and completeness of the relief. Apothecary shops exist in every village of any size.

Prescriptions always consist of several drugs, as high as twenty ingredients being frequently used. They are put up in pill shape or given in their natural condition and boiled together by relatives. This mess, usually of bitter taste (and whose odor generally horrifies foreigners) is always administered hot and usually in big cups.

The Chinese medicine book, dating back to the Wing dynasty (1608-1644) contains no less than 28,730 receipts. Materials of the materia medica sinensis consist of vegetables, minerals and articles belonging to dragon's teeth, centipedes, scorpions, Spanish flies, roaches, beetles, tadpoles, etc.

Chinese doctors are, however, not content with medicines alone. They are adepts in massage, especially of the head and of the stomach and bowels. Then light massage does not work a cure or give relief (in pains of the stomach, for instance), the doctor will knead on the stomach and rub and knead with his knees and hands the painful part, and this he will keep up until the patient is relieved (or says he is).

Another of his remedies is acupuncture, or plunging a needle into various parts of the body—a treatment that is said to be very effectual in many complaints, and is highly regarded.

HOTEL'S UNSEEN HELPERS.

Patrons who enjoy the luxurious physical comforts offered by a great modern hotel do not, as a general rule, give much thought to how much luxury is provided and how maintained so that it shall be always on tap with no possible chance of failure in the supply. Fewer still know that in the largest establishments a great majority of such supplies are manufactured on the premises or secured in a way wholly independent of any outside sources.

Under the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, for instance, far down below the surface of the street, in the lower or second basement, is a whole village devoted to the manufacture and distribution of such supplies, ice, heat, light, power and other things being there produced. It is a village of many climates, too, and one does not need to consult a thermometer to be conscious of the violent changes in temperature in passing from one street to another. It is always summer—warmer than the Philadelphia brand—the engine room, while in the place where the garbage is frozen before being sent away, it is a realistic imitation of the Arctic regions. Each part of the immense plant needed for the hotel is itself a town of good size, for the hotel is, in the matter of population, as large as such a town, and the population, though a floating one, is given over to the enjoyment of creature comforts as large as the parts are duplicated, too, so that in case of accident the supply shall not cease, and this makes a still further realistic imitation of the Arctic regions.

For the hotel is so constructed in itself for a town of good size, for the hotel is, in the matter of population, as large as such a town, and the population, though a floating one, is given over to the enjoyment of creature comforts as large as the parts are duplicated, too, so that in case of accident the supply shall not cease, and this makes a still further realistic imitation of the Arctic regions.

In the engine room, where most of the power for all purposes is produced, are four Corliss engines, having each a cylinder of 45 inches, the fly wheels of which are 22 feet in diameter. Only one of these is needed to supply all the power needed in the day time, and two at night. The other two are held in reserve in case any one or two of the four engines should be taken temporarily out of service. Each of these engines runs an immense dynamo, all the power used for electricity and each dynamo has a capacity of 250 kilowatts. The engines are oiled by an automatic system by which one man does the work of four. The engine and boiler rooms alone occupy a floor space of 120 by 140 feet. The boilers are five in number, with automatic stokers and a capacity of 300 ft. each. From 20 to 25 tons of coal are consumed in winter for all purposes, and from 35 to 40 in summer. A coal storage of 700 tons capacity is always maintained. Among the machines operated by this power are three pumps for the elevator plungers, two for the hot water boilers, whence hot water is forced all over the building, two high pressure fire pumps, a vacuum pump for the steamers, the aspirators of air so as to prevent any "popping" when steam is turned on, a drinking water pump, which automatically draws drinking water over the building, and several smaller ones. Even the dumb waiters, of which there are many, in addition to the freight elevators, have plungers like the 12 passenger elevators. The plungers of the freight elevators are 28 feet long. Just now a distilled water plant is being installed which will have a capacity of 50,000 gallons a day, and will furnish water for drinking and bathing throughout the house. The water used comes from three artesian wells over 100 feet deep, which have a flow of about 200,000 gallons a day. The water is pumped into a water storage capacity at the top of the building of 15,000 gallons, and this is always maintained.

The question of ventilation is, of course, an important one, fully considered. There are two towers, each of 25 ft. H. P. in the basement, and on the roof are two towers, each of 75 ft. H. P. Each has six exhaust fans of seven and a half H. P. each.

The electrical switchboard for the country being 32 feet long and 3 feet high and equipped with certain new devices which insure its not being put out of commission by the failure of one or more of the connecting cables. They are put in the switch-board for bells and pneumatic tubes, the latter being much used to send messages and small articles from one floor to another.

The ice-making plant has two machines with a daily capacity of 50 tons each, and in addition there is an immense system of pipes and machinery for cooling by ammonia, is sent to refrigerators on every floor. These refrigerators are for the keeping of meats, and are being served on any floor desired—and of frozen carraffes for iced water. The carraffes are frozen in the basement and distributed to the refrigerators. For the serving of ice itself at the bar and tables and everywhere it is used there are machines which cut it into pieces an inch and a half square, 20 pieces at a cut. Even these machines are run by power.

Two interesting features are the incinerating plant, where all the rubbish is burned, and the place where the garbage is handled. The incinerating plant solves the waste paper problem completely, and the ashes need no removal. The garbage, before being disposed of, needs to be carefully examined for silver and other valuable articles, which may have found their way into it. For this purpose each can is taken down from the platform, is dumped into a trough and spread out and searched. Table ware is almost invariably found, and thus silver and waste is stopped. All this handling of garbage is done on the same level as the other work described, but not under the little alley in the rear of the hotel. Nevertheless, to further guard against all the other work described, but not under the little alley in the rear of the hotel. Nevertheless, to further guard against all the other work described, but not under the little alley in the rear of the hotel.

Also to be found in the basement is a complete machine shop, a carpenter's shop, plumber's shop, and locksmith's shop. In the latter is the key room where are to be found three duplicate keys, and sometimes more, to every lock in the house, any one of which may be had instantly upon application. The locksmith also stands ready to make a key to unlock any trunk or other receptacle of any patron. Scattered throughout the basement in various convenient locations are the locker rooms, one for each different class of employees—mechanics, laundresses, cooks, waiters, bell boys, housemen and so forth.

Presiding over all of this immense working place, known as a whole as the mechanical department, is the chief engineer, G. P. Shellenbarger, whose besides being an expert engineer and mechanic, must be equipped to meet promptly many problems somewhat outside of his line. He has a staff of 20 men, exclusive of the boiler room, dry, from 50 to 100 men, according to the season. Just now because of reworking and new installation work, his force is about 140.—Philadelphia Record.
