WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXIV.

"Ugh!" said Nat, expressively, making a comical grimace.

Major Constable, turning his bronzed face and kindly dark eyes upon the willful little figure, laughed. He always treated her more or less as a child. So did Alice, for that matter.

"So Adonis isn't a favorite of yours, Miss Natalie?"

"I hate him!" said Nat, promptly.

Alice's blue eyes went from my face to hers, and she laughed teasingly.

"And after the poor fellow's coming all the way from Jamaica, too, and getting so horribly seasick! It's too bad, Nat. And now he stays here just freezing himself to death, and hating England and the English with all his might. You might find it in your heart to pity the poor martyr, at least."

"I don't then," Nat returned, ungraciously. "He need not have troubled himself. Nobody asked him to come, any more than any one wants him to stay. I'm sure I didn't."

"What a thing it is to be sought after!" quoted Miss Deeping, satirically; and then we all laughed.

"Who is Adonis?" Rosa Thrale queried, looking from one to another, perplexed, as well she might be. "Does he belong to Whittleford, Mr. Chavasse?"

"The fates forbid!" I ejaculated. "He belongs to Jamaica, Miss Thrale, and has a mighty poor opinion of England after it as Alice was saying. His name is Raby St. George."

"Oh, what a love of a name!" the young lady cried, clasping her hands, enthusiastically. "And an Adonis in to the bargain, too! Alice, you must tell Miss Orme to hand him over to me—I left my sweetheart at home. Adonis will do to keep my hand in. Don't you think so, major?"

The major had no chance to say what he thought, for the door opened to admit St. George just at the moment. Inwardly I concluded that he had been giving himself a toast at the ball fire, for he was not blue now, and his handsome face made such a very obvious impression upon Miss Thrale that I could not help wondering what "my sweetheart" left at home would say to it, and decided that the young lady certainly meant to "keep her hand in" if possible.

I do not think any of us, with this exception, were glad to see the young man, and Nat, gave him a reception so very chilling that it would have just left him unnoticed altogether; but his entrance did not check the talk and laughter that was going on.

Presently in came madame, with the pale governess in close attendance, as usual; then luncheon was brought in, there being no other place in which to eat it, and at its conclusion the visitors rose to go—that is, the two girls and the major, for St. George showed no signs of budging, seeming perfectly unconscious of the many side-glances which Miss Rosa shot at him from her bright eyes. It was not until she was in the hall, into which we had all unceremoniously crowded that Alice suddenly turned round to speak to my mother.

"Oh, madame, I declare I was nearly forgetting! I have such a rattle of a head. Father wants to know whether, if you would not mind the trouble, you would drive over and call at the rectory to-day? He says he must see you about the school-festival; and the time is getting so short."

The rector, I must say, was laid up with a sharp attack of gout—the consequence of too much Christmas jollification, old Dizarte said. Madame hesitated and looked doubtful.

"I really hardly know, my dear; I am so terribly busy, you see, in consequence of this tiresome ball. Is it very important?"

"I think so, or father would not have asked you. Do try to come, madame!" Alice slipped her fur-topped glove within my mother's arm with one of her most coaxing smiles. "The drive will do you good. You are only overting yourself; and, if you do that, how will you play the grande dame to Daleshire in general at the ball? Besides, Nat is dying to see my dress, she says."

This last artful clause conquered madame, as the young lady had probably expected, although I have no doubt that my mother would have contrived to comply with the rector's request without it. But of course, if Miss Nat wanted a thing, she must have it; and madame promised to be at the rectory as early in the afternoon as possible.

The point gained, Alice and her cousin went off, with Major Constable in attendance; madame rustled way toward Batterbin's domain; mademoiselle following her, and I turned about to look for Nat.

She was standing by one of the deep windows, shrinking back against its cushioned ledge, her hands locked in front of her and her face flushed while with would-be indifference she stared out of the window. For St. George was standing in front of her, talking eagerly—I might say fiercely, though his low, soft tones were too well under control for me to hear what he said. That she was meditating a dash past him, and would make it at the first chance that offered, I could see, and I hesitated as to whether I should interfere or not. But then he suddenly caught her hand in his with a gesture which was quite as much a threat as a caress, and that was enough for me. I was not going to have Roger's sweetheart plagued if I knew it, and I called out, loud enough to make both start:

"I say, Nat, hadn't you better see about getting ready if you are going? I don't suppose madame will belong."

Nat was across the hall and half-way up the stairs before the words were well out, and St. George wheeled round, muttering a word which sounded the reverse of proper as far as I could hear it. But, as he looked away again, there was an expression of such intense baffled misery upon his face that the thrill of pity which I had felt more than once or twice since that first night touched me sharply. He began to say that he would go now, and to ask me to make his excuses to Mme. Chavasse; but I stopped him by saying:

"Whittleford I'll come with you, if Whittleford I'll come with you, if you like. I have to get a book from Poinsett."

"I thought you were going with the ladies?"

"Oh, they can pick me up at the rectory. I'd sooner walk there—it's a jolly day for a tramp."

"Then I shall be glad of your company," he said, though I believe it was a fib.

But I knew that he liked me after a fashion, having seen, I suppose, that he certainly need not trouble himself to be jealous of me. So he stood by the hall fire until I should be ready, and I went upstairs to change my coat. But at the end of the corridor, almost hidden by the thick curtains which swept round her little figure as she stood with her elbows on the sill and her chin on her hands, I almost tumbled over Nat. She turned round with a cry as I cannoned against her.

"Almost came to grief that time!" I said, laughing and recovering my balance; then, dropping my voice that it might not by any chance reach the ears of Raby St. George, standing warming himself below—"I say, Nat, was Adonis saying to you just now?"

"Oh, the usual thing"—she shrugged her shoulders impatiently—"what he always says whenever he gets the chance, and what he always contrives to make me understand without saying anything at all! He made me listen to-day, somehow. Oh, Ned, if he would only go away!"

"Well, so he will directly," I said, consolingly. "He'll never be fool enough to stay when he sees the game's up, you know. Don't bother yourself, it can be only for a day or two now. And, Nat, I wouldn't drop upon the poor chap too much if I were you."

"Are you going to take his part?"—and she flashed a rapid glance of wonder and suspicion at me.

"Of course not—you know better than that! I only mean that I can't help feeling sorry for him, after all. He's awfully found of you."

"Yes, I know that," she conceded, but with anything but a grateful face, whispering close to my ear as she had done all along. "Has he gone, Ned?"

"No, I'm going to walk into Whittleford with him—I want a book from Poinsett. I'll go round to be picked up at the rectory, you tell madame."

"All right—only, whatever you do, don't bring him to be picked-up, too."

she returned, and with that ran along the corridor and into her room, closing the door behind her.

CHAPTER XXVI.

A very gloomy-faced silent companion I had on the long chilly tramp to the village—indeed I do not believe that St. George spoke a word at all. I remember that I had half a mind to give him a hint about Roger, and so send him packing if possible; but we were in the High Street, in front of Bover's window, full of saddies and dog collars, before I had quite made up my mind whether I should speak or not. I parted with him gladly enough, and ran up to get my book from the Reverend Titus; but, when I came down with it, at the end of five minutes or so, St. George still stood on the pavement with his hands in his pockets.

"I have been thinking that I owe a call at the rectory," he said, not looking at me as he spoke. "Mr. Deeping asked me to call there when I met him at the Mount. I may as well walk there with you."

"All right," I returned, knowing well enough that he wanted to go there only to catch another glimpse of Nat. "But it's of no use going just yet. Madame won't be there for the next hour most likely. I have to go on to the Lodge. Major Constable has a lot of books of Indian poetry he promised to lend me this morning, and I said I would look in for them to-day. Come too, if you've nothing better to do. He'll be glad to see you."

We went. Major Constable, sitting smoking by the fire in his snug little "living-room, with his big mastiff at his feet, gave us the warmest of welcomes, and produced a tall bottle of some uncommonly hot Indian cordial, of which he made us drink some—to keep the cold out, he said. Talking about that and the books of Indian poetry took up more time than we knew, and I started up at last as the major's clock chimed, declaring that I should miss the carriage at the rectory, and have to tramp back to Chavasse, books and all.

But at the end of the corridor, almost hidden by the thick curtains which swept round her little figure as she stood with her elbows on the sill and her chin on her hands, I almost tumbled over Nat. She turned round with a cry as I cannoned against her.

"Almost came to grief that time!" I said, laughing and recovering my balance; then, dropping my voice that it might not by any chance reach the ears of Raby St. George, standing warming himself below—"I say, Nat, was Adonis saying to you just now?"

"Oh, the usual thing"—she shrugged her shoulders impatiently—"what he always says whenever he gets the chance, and what he always contrives to make me understand without saying anything at all! He made me listen to-day, somehow. Oh, Ned, if he would only go away!"

"Well, so he will directly," I said, consolingly. "He'll never be fool enough to stay when he sees the game's up, you know. Don't bother yourself, it can be only for a day or two now. And, Nat, I wouldn't drop upon the poor chap too much if I were you."

"Are you going to take his part?"—and she flashed a rapid glance of wonder and suspicion at me.

"Of course not—you know better than that! I only mean that I can't help feeling sorry for him, after all. He's awfully found of you."

"Yes, I know that," she conceded, but with anything but a grateful face, whispering close to my ear as she had done all along. "Has he gone, Ned?"

"No, I'm going to walk into Whittleford with him—I want a book from Poinsett. I'll go round to be picked up at the rectory, you tell madame."

"All right—only, whatever you do, don't bring him to be picked-up, too."

she returned, and with that ran along the corridor and into her room, closing the door behind her.

CHAPTER XXVI.

A very gloomy-faced silent companion I had on the long chilly tramp to the village—indeed I do not believe that St. George spoke a word at all. I remember that I had half a mind to give him a hint about Roger, and so send him packing if possible; but we were in the High Street, in front of Bover's window, full of saddies and dog collars, before I had quite made up my mind whether I should speak or not. I parted with him gladly enough, and ran up to get my book from the Reverend Titus; but, when I came down with it, at the end of five minutes or so, St. George still stood on the pavement with his hands in his pockets.

"I have been thinking that I owe a call at the rectory," he said, not looking at me as he spoke. "Mr. Deeping asked me to call there when I met him at the Mount. I may as well walk there with you."

"All right," I returned, knowing well enough that he wanted to go there only to catch another glimpse of Nat. "But it's of no use going just yet. Madame won't be there for the next hour most likely. I have to go on to the Lodge. Major Constable has a lot of books of Indian poetry he promised to lend me this morning, and I said I would look in for them to-day. Come too, if you've nothing better to do. He'll be glad to see you."

We went. Major Constable, sitting smoking by the fire in his snug little "living-room, with his big mastiff at his feet, gave us the warmest of welcomes, and produced a tall bottle of some uncommonly hot Indian cordial, of which he made us drink some—to keep the cold out, he said. Talking about that and the books of Indian poetry took up more time than we knew, and I started up at last as the major's clock chimed, declaring that I should miss the carriage at the rectory, and have to tramp back to Chavasse, books and all.

All I disease tended, give he symptom matic of medicine,

Will Stake This Medicine Against Your Time

A Few Days Will Be Sufficient to Prove That You Are Curable

A few minutes of your time for a few days and I will demonstrate to you, without expense to yourself, that I have a medicine that drives Uric Acid poison from the system and by so doing cures kidney trouble, bladder trouble and rheumatism. I don't ask you to take my word for it, but simply want you to let me send you some of this medicine so that you can use it personally.

I am trying to convince sufferers from these diseases that I have something far better than the usual run of remedies, treatments and such things, and the only way I can demonstrate that fact is to go to the expense of compounding the medicine and sending it out free of charge. This I am glad to do for any sufferer who will take the time to write me. Understanding I will not send you a so-called "sample" proof or test treatment, nor will I send you a package of medicine and say that you can use some of it and pay for the rest, but I will send you a supply free of charge and you will not be asked to pay for this gift nor will you be under any obligations.

All I want to know is that you have a disease for which my medicine is intended, and if you will write me, I will give herewith some of the leading symptoms of kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles, and you can see more of these symptoms you need this medicine, and I will be glad to send you some of it if you will write me the numbers of the symptoms you have, give your age and address, and I will address my address to Dr. T. Frank Lynnott, 511 Franklin Building, Toronto, Ont. You promise me nothing, you pay me nothing for it. All I ask, so there shall be no mistake, is that you send me the numbers of your symptoms or a description in your own words, and that you take the medicine according to the directions I send you. It is my way of getting publicity for my medicine so that it will become widely known.

You will agree when you have used it that it dissolves and drives out uric acid poison. It tones the kidneys so that they work in harmony with the bladder. It strengthens the bladder so that frequent desire to urinate and other urinary disorders are banished. It stops rheumatic aches and pains immediately. It dissolves uric acid crystals so that back and muscle no longer ache and crooked joints quickly straighten out. It reconstructs the blood and nerves so you soon feel healthier and more vigorous, sleep better and eat better and have energy throughout the day. It does all this, and yet contains nothing injurious and is absolutely harmless, according to law. Sufferers from these dreadful and dangerous diseases can surely afford to spend a few minutes each day for a

A few days to demonstrate to their own satisfaction if they are curable, especially when you consider no expense is involved, and I willingly give you my time and my medicine. All any fair-minded afflicted person wants to know is if a certain thing will cure HIM or HER, and here is an opportunity to find out without cost, obligation or important loss of time. THESE FEW DAYS may be the turning point in your life.

All who are interested enough to write me for the free medicine will also receive a copy of my large illustrated medical book which describes these diseases thoroughly. It is the largest book of the kind ever written for free distribution, and a new edition is just being printed. I will also write you a letter of diagnosis and medical advice that should be of great help to you; but in order to do this I must know that you need my medicine. Write me the numbers of the symptoms that trouble you, and your age, and I will promptly carry out my promise. Show an inclination to be cured and you will be.

These Are the Symptoms:

- 1-Pain in the back.
- 2-Too frequent desire to urinate.
- 3-Burning or obstruction of urine.
- 4-Pain or soreness in the bladder.
- 5-Frequent urination.

Rod and Gun.

Piercing the Northern Barrier is the title of a story by R. J. Fraser, which occupies the premier position in the February issue of Rod and Gun, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont. This story, which is appropriately illustrated, describes graphically the dangers of a voyage through the ice floes encountered en route from Sydney to Ft. Churchill, on Hudson Bay. Two Pioneer Trips Through a Playground of Tomorrow (Jasper Park, Canadian Rockies), comes next and Frank Houghton contributes another Western tale, The Kid's Luck. Of special interest to followers of the trap line is the first of a series of articles on Small Furbers and How to Take Them. The Diary of a Canoe Trip in 1854 from Orillia, Ont., to Ottawa, is of more than passing interest while A Week's Moose Hunt in New Brunswick, Winter Duck Shooting in the Okanagan, Hunting and Fishing in British Columbia, A Qualifying Climb on Storm Mountain, The Vanishing Wild Turkey and other stories make up an interesting mid-winter number.

WONDERMENT.

I wonder why we often know a strong desire for sleeping, when to the synagogue we go to hear the pastor's sweeping discussion of the vital themes? What is the strange incentive? Why do we snore a n d dream in dreams when we should be attentive? Insomnia may rack our heads when we're remote from preaching; we toss and founder on our beds, for slumber vainly reaching; but in the quiet house of prayer we've no such frantic battle; we sleep and dream and saw the air with cross-cut snores that rattle. I wonder why it always rains when we have planned excursions, as picnics in the woods or plains, or kindred mild diversions? I wonder why my neighbour's pup his noisy watch is keeping, when I am trying to make up some large arrears of sleeping? I wonder why the rooster crows so early in the morning, when people, roused from their repose, shout words of wrath and scolding? I wonder as I walk abroad among the men who bore most why things are all so wapperjawed and fierce and hindend foremost?

At the City Hall.

The weekly session of the Council Board was held yesterday afternoon. I. G. Sullivan replied to Council's letter, which stated that the firemen failed to send in an "all out" signal the night (January 26th) the fire took place on Harvey Road. The Inspector sympathized with the Council employees but had more sympathy for the firemen who had to respond to a second big fire the same night. He considered the Council and Inspector's report incorrect and that water distribution at the time of fires should be improved.

The Mayor thought this a reflection on the work of the employees and explained that when the alarm was rung in for the second fire the men at the water shed thought it was the "all out" signal for the first fire, consequently there was a delay in diverting the water supply to the eastern section of the city.

Councillor Martin was of the opinion that some one was lying and suggested an enquiry.

Councillors Ryan and Myrick thought the Council officials acted promptly on the night in question.

The Mayor intimated that a reply be sent Mr. Sullivan and it was ordered so.

Secretary Knight, of the Board of Fire Underwriters complained of the water supply during fires. The Underwriters, he said, were going to get expert opinion at their own expense.

Mayor Ellis said it was quite easy to cope with two fires at one time.

Councillor Ryan believed that the city had not sufficient firemen to fight two big fires at the one time and thought the matter worthy of consideration.

Councillor Myrick agreed with Councillor Ryan, but Councillor Martin intimated that the Reserve firemen were always on hand to fight a double fire.

The Mayor suggested that the Underwriters Secretary should get after the system of fire fighting as well as the water system.

Councillor Ryan said a six inch pipe should connect with the main at Rawlin's Cross so that when there is a fire in the West End of the city the whole East End supply will not be cut off.

Councillor Mullaly suggested that a fire alarm be put in the Engineer's Office or at his house so that the Engineer could direct his men at the sounding of an alarm.

This suggestion was supported by Councillors Martin and Ryan.

Engineer Ryan retorted: "Put an alarm in my house and you can have my job." He thought the whole thing a nuisance. The matter was then dropped.

Councillor Mullaly moved that the voting of $200 to the Secretary for extra services be reconsidered. Continuing he criticised the practice of voting public monies to public servants without proper thought or consideration.

Councillor Myrick seconded the motion, but believed it should be deferred to a later meeting, and believed also that the Secretary was entitled to vacation.

Councillor Ryan asked for a postponement until Councillor Coaker was present.

Councillor Martin seconded this and believed Councillor Mullaly was hitting below the belt in referring to the Secretary's vacation.

Councillor Mullaly thought two months per year vacation was too much. The matter before the chair was the reconsideration of the vote

The Secretary. He asked that they decide now on the reconsideration and that a vote be taken when the full Board was present.

Councillor Ryan thought it unfair to proceed with the discussion in the absence of Councillor Coaker who was ill. To do so would put the Mayor in the unpleasant position of being compelled to give the casting vote. After some very acrimonious cross-firing between Councillors Mullaly and Ryan it was decided by the Mayor's casting vote that the matter stand over for consideration at a full meeting.

United Service at Gower St. Church.

The closing service of the week proved to be one of the best in the history of Gower St. Church, and one which made impressions that must certainly tell for good. There was an immense congregation present, and interest was evident in every face. The Rev. J. W. Bartlett led the service right through, and proved himself an evangelist of no mean order. The address was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Whitemarsh, who selected a topic instead of a text. The topic was "Disregarded Signals." This subject the speaker treated for fourteen minutes, and drew some very convincing lessons as to the danger of disregarding signals in any department of life, but particularly of doing so in the higher principles of religion and the soul. The speaker was in very good form, and the subject was well adapted to such a service.

A special feature of the meeting last night was the singing, notably that rendered by Mrs. Cochrane which of itself had a very telling effect upon the solemnity and impressiveness of the service. The efforts of the week have been very encouraging, and the services are to be continued next week in the same order, but at George Street instead of Gower Street; and as George Street is a very spacious building, and is fairly central for many people, there is no doubt whatever that big congregations will attend, and that continued good will be accomplished, for where good is done, Heaven is not far off.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The harbor now from the Point of Beach to Riverhead, is frozen over and will soon be firm enough to walk on.

To-day being bright and clear, we hope the Valentine rhyme will not prove its truth:—"When Valentine's Day comes fine and clear "The worst of the winter is to appear."

Mr. Henry Gordon arrived from Boston last week on a visit to his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Gordon.

The public message of Wednesday, contains the following. It speaks for itself. But we cannot understand why Sir Robert is termed the Premier. It's all right, brother McGrath, you're just a little too previous:—"Bruce with Governor Davidson aboard left North Sydney ten last night. Wireless from her this morning at seven reported her off Flint Island, twenty miles from Sydney, working through heavy ice in snow storm with Invermore, following in her wake. Bruce due St. John's about noon. Sir Robert Bond left for England by Sardinian yesterday evening. Telegram last night made no declaration regarding Premier's movements or political intentions. Opinion therefore is that he left without declaring his political attitude."

During last night's severe frost, we thought quite a lot about the poor family referred to by us on several occasions lately, and for whom we asked, through the Telegram, for a stove. This morning, Mr. James Moore, of Harvey Street, called to say he had one that he would give the people referred to in the item. We felt as happy as could be and at once sent word to the unfortunate ones, and no doubt made them happy too. Thanks, Jim, thanks.

Quite a number of cases of mumps are now in this neighborhood, and with ordinary colds, Lagrippe, etc., are keeping our doctors busy.

Mr. Mark Walsh, of the West End, is still very sick, and his son Harrison, who is at Sydney, was wired for a few days ago.

A shebeen case, before the court here on Tuesday, was dismissed owing to insufficient evidence. In a recent case of a female on Water St., convicted of shebeening, we noted

At The Nickel.

"Excellent" was the general expression of the programme presented at the Nickel theatre, last evening. Hundreds were in attendance and all were highly pleased with the pictures. The Pathe weekly contained many incidents of world-wide interest and was shown in perfect manner. The brilliant procession of the Lord Mayor through the streets of London, is indeed marvellous and one which should be seen by all. "In the Northern Woods," is a sensational drama. It is one of the best ever seen here. There is also an abundance of comedy. The programme will be repeated this evening for the last time.

NOT YET ARRIVED.—Up to last night the s.s. Morwenna had not arrived at Louisburg as far as can be heard. She is no doubt being detained by ice.

If Headachy, Bilious, Constipated and Nervous Take Delicious "Syrup of Figs."

A harmless cure for sick headache, for biliousness, for a sour, gassy, disordered stomach, for constipation, indigestion, coated tongue, sallowness, pimples—take delicious Syrup of Figs. For the cause of all these troubles lies in a torpid liver and sluggish condition of your thirty feet of bowels.

A teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs tonight means all poisonous waste matter, the undigested, fermenting food and sour bile, gently moved on and out of your system by morning, without griping, nausea or weakness. It means a cherry day to-morrow—many bright days hereafter.

Please don't think of gentle, effective Syrup of Figs as a physic. Don't think you are drugging yourself, for delicious figs, senna and aromatics can not injure anyone.

This remarkable fruit preparation is a wonderful stomach, liver and bowel cleanser, regulator and tonic, the safest and most positive ever devised. The day of violent purgatives, such as calomel, pills, salts and castor oil is past. They were all wrong. You got relief, but at what cost! They acted by flooding the bowels with fluids, but these fluids were digestive juices. Syrup of Figs embody only harmless, laxatives, which act in a natural way. It does what right food would do—what eating lots of fruit and what plenty of exercise will do for the liver, stomach and bowels.

Be sure you get the old reliable and genuine. Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Company. Hand back, with scorn, any Fig Syrup imitations recommended as "just as good."

Notes and Comments.

We observe that the Morris gang are still using the outport message for partisan purposes.

Our Harbor Grace correspondent sends us a copy of the message which was sent broadcast through the country.

The object is obvious, and that object is to damage the Liberals in the interest of the Morris Party, in order to stabilize a cause which is on its dying legs. It is a gross outrage to use the taxes wrung from the fishermen to boost up a Government which the fishermen themselves despise, and to use as a weapon the public service which should be absolutely non-partisan.

The news service was instituted in the interest of the people of the outports, and they resent that it should be used for party political services. It is a most heinous offence, and it is an offence which is perpetrated apparently when every chance affords an opportunity.

We have exposed the outrage on other occasions and lodged strong protests against this unfair, invidious and perfidious use of a service to sustain an unpopular and discredited administration.

The object of this scandalous use of the outport message is to create an impression that Sir Robert Bond does not intend to lead the party which will fight to oust the Morris Party from office next fall.

The public service is being used in an effort to disrupt and disorganize the Opposition. Such an effort might by some be held legitimate warfare if conducted by Morris party means and Morris party organs, but it is unfair, illegitimate and dishonourable to conduct it through a service organized and paid for by a department of the public service.

Moreover, the story circulated is absolutely untrue. Sir Robert Bond has been in politics for the past thirty years and has never given up politics. There has been no change whatever in his political hostility to the Morris party. He is opposed to that party tooth and nail. He wishes to see that party ousted from power. He is disgusted with the blatant misgovernment which has been going on now for some four years.

His great object in life is to bring the present misrule to an end. He is disgusted with and has long been disgusted with the Morris administration. That has been his attitude for a considerable time past, and he has spoken in no uncertain voice in the House of Assembly since 1909.

Sir Robert Bond has in no way changed his attitude of hostility to the Morris Government, and he is more pronounced now than he ever was. He has no intention of giving up politics. His intention is to be in the fight next fall and to exert himself to the utmost to drive out the Morris party. That is his intention. That is the intention of the Liberal party. That is the intention of the Opponents of the Morris Government. That is our intention, and we shall spare no pains to do it.

To-Day's News.

Special to The Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-day.

The Board of Trade announced that the whaling ship, Scotia, formerly employed in the Scottish Antarctic expedition has been engaged to patrol the ice regions of the North Atlantic, for the purpose of notifying wireless stations on American coast and steamers of location of icebergs and similar dangers. This is in accordance with negotiations recently entered into by British government and North Atlantic steamship lines. The Scotia will be equipped with powerful wireless installation. She leaves Dundee at an early date.

LONDON, To-day.

An uncensored Constantinople despatch to the Chronicle reports the Bulair line of fortifications were captured by the Allies. According to this account the Turkish fleet operating from the Dardanelles were assisting to repel the Bulgarian attack. The Bulgarians feinted a sudden retreat followed by the Turks. The Turkish warship not realizing the situation continued the bombardment, and inflicted heavy losses on their own men. The Greek fleet in Gulf of Saros supported the Bulgarians who resumed and drove home their attack, and thereby captured the forts. Thirteen thousand Greeks landed on the Aegean coast at Alvaljli on Monday. The Turkish position is considered precarious, all along the line. The capture of Bulair is not confirmed by other sources. A Dardanelles despatch Mail describes a similar ruse having occurred on previous Friday with a result that the Bulgarian batteries on slopes of Kurudagh opened a terrific shrapnell fire. The Turks fled back to shelter of Bulair entrenchments with loss of 2,000 killed and wounded.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

The news of Francisco Madero's voluntary relinquishment of the Presidency of Mexico brought relief to official circles at Washington, which situation during the last five days has been hourly growing more tense. Cable News.

LONDON, Feb. 14.
The British Nation to-day paid its last sad respects to the memory of Capt. Scott and his heroic companions, at a great Memorial Service in St. Paul's Cathedral, which was attended by people in every walk of life, from King George, in the uniform of Admiral of the Fleet, to laboring men. Premier Asquith, with the whole Cabinet, was present. The police had to turn away many thousands who could not even get within view of the Cathedral doors.

CHRISTCHURCH, Feb. 14.
Commander Evans, when questioned as to the suggestion that the bodies of Capt. Scott and his comrades should be recovered, said that the best people to judge are those who served under Capt. Scott. Had we been in the same place as the victims we should have wished our bodies to remain at rest where we had given our best efforts in the cause, that we so earnestly believe in. Commander Evans will remain in New Zealand until the arrival of Capt. Scott's widow.

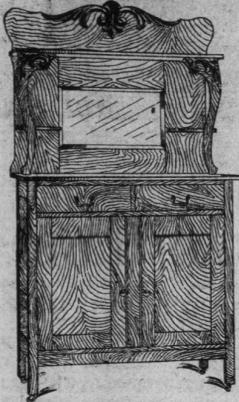

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.
President Taft declared to close advisers to-day that the only thing that could force him to ask Congress to interfere in Mexico, would be if the crisis of Madero or Diaz should turn upon Americans, merely because they are Americans or foreigners. Taft let it be known that he would, in that event, rush a special message to Congress in thirty minutes' time. He does not regard the killing of a few Americans as a cause of battle, but looks upon such casualties as unavoidable, believing that the proper authorities should be held liable in damages. The President was disturbed to-day when he heard reports that communications between Mexico City and the United States might be cut off. At the first usual semi-weekly session of the Cabinet, the Mexican situation was discussed. It is understood that its members are in complete accord with the President's attitude.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 14.
The rebels opened battle to-day at 5:45 a.m., when they started firing in the direction of the Federal concentration point. It had been expected that the Federals would attack first. President Madero, this morning, sent another ultimatum to Diaz, demanding his surrender. The reply came in the shape of a number of cannon balls from the biggest guns of the insurgents. A stream of refugees, most of them Mexican citizens, were observed carrying bundles and scurrying to the suburbs, from the densely populated district between the National Palace and the Arsenal. Soon the firing became more intense. In many churches special services were started for restoration of peace. Thousands of refugees knelt in the city edifices and joined in the prayers, at the same time trusting, not a little, to the heavy walls for protection against the projectiles. Diaz made preparations to contest every inch of the advance of the Government troops, as he intended he would do in its reply to the President's ultimatum when he told the Government that he and his followers preferred to die at their posts rather than surrender. They would never ask clemency, nor did they wish it.

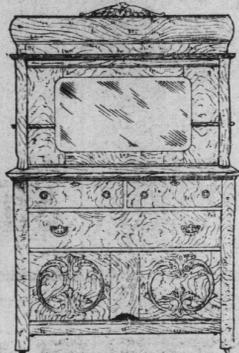

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z., Feb. 14.
Comment was made here yesterday that Capt. Scott, Dr. Wilson and Lieut. Bowers might have been saved if the rescue party had pressed south vigorously from its base in March last. Its failure, according to the critics was due to the inexperience of the acting-Commander, Surgeon Atkinson, who allowed the bulk of the party to remain at Cape Evans, cut off by open water from the Hut Point edge of the barrier. At the end of February two men went south 155 miles to a depot near which Scott died, but returned on March 10th. On March 17th, Dr. Atkinson, with one companion, went out 80 miles and then returned, and the southern explorers were left. Their re-appearance made it obvious that the need of assistance was intense. Relations between Evans, now leader of the expedition, and Atkinson, are reported to be very strained. Asked for a statement regarding results, Lieut. Evans said, "There is Dr. Atkinson; he is the man who knows. If he makes a statement, I may have something to say after him." Dr. Atkinson made no reply. In a formal enquiry as to the conduct of the search party, in answer to a cablegram from the editor of the Daily Chronicle, informing him that that paper had donated two thousand pounds to the Scott Memorial Fund, and asking for further news of the expedition, Lieut. Evans begged to be excused from "going into details, which may be painful, in regard to the end of our beloved comrades. The whole history of this expedition," he adds, "will certainly be given to the public in due course, but please let us complete our work in quietness."

Women's Mission Closing.

The women's mission being held in the R. C. Cathedral will come to a close to-morrow afternoon.

Last night the Church was filled when Rev. Father Holland preached, an instructive and eloquent sermon on the Commandments of God and the Precepts of the Church. Rosary was recited and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament imposed by Rev. D. O'Callaghan. A large number of women folk were enrolled in the Order of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and rosaries, crucifixes and other religious articles were blessed by the Fathers.

The 5.30 and 8.30 Masses this morning brought large congregations, and special devotions to the Blessed Virgin will take place at 7.30 this evening when the Altar of the B. V. M. will be beautifully decorated. The service at 3 p.m. to-morrow will bring the women's mission to a close.

During the week, while the most intensely frosty weather prevailed the women crowded the Cathedral at the 5.30 Mass, and the average attendance during the series of exercises must have been well over 6,000.

The mission for the men of the Cathedral parish will begin to-morrow night.

Met It Rough.

The schooner Adriatic arrived last night from Louisburg, after a lengthy and eventful passage of seventeen days. At the outset stormy weather was met and each succeeding day strong gales and blizzards were encountered and tremendous seas repeatedly swept the deck of the vessel damaging some woodwork. In the early part of the week while making for this port, the vessel was forced back and had to put into Cape Broyle for shelter. She left there yesterday forenoon and made a good run down the shore, bringing a cargo of coal consigned to A. S. Rendell & Co.

Bold Scheme

Mr. Grahame-White proposes to fly across the Atlantic to New York in 30 hours! The attempt will be made this year. All the plans for the trip are practically complete. A large hydro-aeroplane, driven by four engines of 250 h.p. each, is being designed for the journey. A smaller machine, driven by four 35 h.p. engines, has been constructed for experimental flights. A number of trials will be made with the larger machine, which, it is estimated, will be capable of a speed of a hundred miles an hour, enabling the journey from this country to America to be accomplished in 30 hours.

"Nothing is impossible in aviation," said Mr. Grahame-White, in outlining his scheme to a Press representative. "I am confident that the journey can be accomplished. We shall, of course, test these machine fully before attempting the flight. I propose to carry six persons—two pilots, two mechanics, and two passengers. One man who is anxious to accompany me has already made a handsome offer. The machine will be constructed at Hendon.

"I hope to land in New York Harbor, and doubtless our appearance there will cause some surprise. Such a flight has been talked about a good deal in the world of aviation, and I may say that for me it has a great attraction. I estimate that the experiment will cost anything from £15,000 to £20,000. The quantity of petrol which we shall use, for instance, will be enormous."

His Excellency the Governor will hold a Levee on Tuesday, the 18th February, at 11 a.m.

Sensational Arrest

Knight of Columbus Cause Arrest of Capt. Swift for Criminal Libel, and Charges Him with Being Connected in the Circulation of the So-Called Oath.

Yesterday afternoon on a deposition sworn to by Mr. C. O'N. Conroy, of the Knights of Columbus in this city, Capt. Swift was arrested by Const. J. Nugent and placed in a cell in the police station on a charge of criminal libel. It will be remembered that some few weeks ago it became known that an oath purporting to be one taken by the Fourth Degree K. of C. was largely circulated in the city and outports. While Mr. C. O'N. Conroy, Grand Knight of the Order, was ill in hospital, Mr. Fenelon, Advocate of the Order, in a lengthy communication to the press, set forth that the alleged "oath" was bogus and circulated for the sole purpose of defaming and damaging the Order in the estimation of the people of the country. He emphatically denied that such an oath was used by the organization, and it was determined to prosecute the author or authors when they were discovered or identified. Mr. Conroy, we hear, has taken action as Grand Knight and on behalf of the Order. Capt. Swift is an Englishman, who arrived here a few months ago from the Old Country. It was said that he came here to take a position in the King George Institute, but the management of the establishment assures us that such is not the case. He had no connection with that Society except that he applied for employment and was refused. Captain Swift spent the night in the cells. Friends offered bonds for his release last night but this was not acceded to. The Knights of Columbus, we hear, have retained A. B. Morine, Esq., K.C., who will act with Mr. John Fenelon in prosecuting the case.

PROCEEDINGS TO-DAY.

Accused Remanded and Admitted to Bail.

Capt. Swift was formally arraigned and charged with criminal libel for being concerned in the publication of the so-called Knights of Columbus Oath that has been widely circulated of late. The accused was represented by Mr. F. A. Mews, and Mr. A. B. Morine, K. C., and Mr. Fenelon appeared for the prosecution.

Mr. Mews asked for postponement till Thursday. The Court, however, remanded the hearing till Tuesday, at 3 p.m., and released the accused on bail. Messrs. Blach and Croucher giving bonds of $500 each for his appearance.

While cutting a pig's jowl at Steer's grocery store to-day Mr. Wilfred Whiteaway, who was recently married, gave his hand a nasty gash with the knife he handled. He cut the top of one finger and cut the hand. He almost fainted from pain and loss of blood and had to be treated by a doctor.

GREAT NEWS.

She was a soldiers widow, and to her the realm of football were a sealed book.

She therefore found the conversation of her grandsons, James and Henry, about as interesting as the "Angloxy of St. Plato."

One evening James came in to tea in hot excitement, a newspaper crushed within his palm.

"Well!" asked his brother, "Great news!" exclaimed James, in a white heat.

The old lady looked up from her knitting.

"What is it?" she inquired.

"Arsenal lost!" shouted James.

"Well, well!" sighed the old dame, turning resignedly to her knitting once more. "It's that blessed muddlin' War Office again! They're always mislaying something or t'other!"

An Object of Pity

That part of our nature which we call the emotional is much more highly developed in women than in men. They are more sensitive, more tender, more sympathetic, more pronounced in their likes and dislikes, more susceptible to the influence of pleasure and pain; and these refined mental qualities, no less than beauty of form and feature, make up the atmosphere of attractiveness and charm which always surrounds true womanliness.

The continued existence of these winning, engaging womanly characteristics depends to a very large extent on the regularity of the womanly functions and the condition of the womanly organs; and when these functions and organs become disordered or diseased the same mental qualities which are the glory of a well woman become the source of suffering and torture almost indescribable. Her cheery hopefulness is changed to a feeling of despondency, almost of despair, and she is haunted by forebodings of worse evils to come.

Instead of being entertaining and comely, she becomes morbidly sensitive, imagining that she is being slighted or forsaken by her relatives and friends and she has a most humiliating sense of her miserable condition and of her loss of her womanly attributes. If she is religiously inclined she is very liable to be oppressed with doubts and fears in regard to her spiritual condition, or to think that she is eternally lost. In addition to this, she has also to endure the most distressing aches and pains.

What makes the case still more pitiable, especially with married women, is the fact that few men understand or appreciate the extent of their suffering, or the seriousness of the troubles causing it. Many doctors even speak of these disorders as subjects for ridicule, and the poor sufferer often gets a reputation for being a crank or a scold when she more nearly approaches being a martyr.

As these disorders are due to a disordered condition of the womanly organs, it is evident that to effect a cure these organs must be restored to normal condition; or, in other words, the circulation, which has become congested and stagnant in these parts, must be improved so that the waste matter will be expelled, and the nourishment so badly needed be brought to these suffering organs. It is the waste matter, or broken down tissue, which is held in the stagnant blood vessels in these parts, that causes most of the suffering by oppressing the nerves located in these parts.

The remedy known as ORANGE LILY will positively relieve this congestion and restore normal circulation in the disordered organs.

It is an applied or local treatment, and acts wholly on these parts. It is absorbed into the blood vessels in these organs, and as it has powerful antiseptic properties, it immediately acts on the waste matter held there, and causes it to be discharged, thus the dead matter is discharged, the nerves are relieved, the pains and mental troubles become less, and the nerves and blood vessels become stronger. ORANGE LILY thus proves its merit by actual, visible results. It acts as certainly and as positively on all female troubles as anti-toxin does on diphtheria.

Winning, April 23rd, 1909.
Dear Mrs. Currah.—I am very grateful to ORANGE LILY for the change it has made in my life. When I commenced its use eight months ago I would be surely insane before the year was ended. The pain I suffered often made me wish for death, and besides I would have such fits of depression and nervous twitching that I would have to scream. I had doctor'd with three different doctors for over two years, and had also used both the Pierce and Pinkham medicines, but none of them seemed to reach my case. I felt some improvement after the first month's use of ORANGE LILY and have kept gaining ever since. I do not feel that I am entirely cured yet, but I am so much better than I was that I am sure I will soon be entirely well and feel cheerful and happy, except that I am occasionally somewhat depressed, but these spells are getting fewer and milder. I have also noticeably improved in appearance. Enclosed find $2 for which please send me two boxes of ORANGE LILY and one of Cerate Massage. I might add that the letter which used to be freely discharged, and which looked like a chicken's gizzard, is becoming very scant, and I imagine that the circulation is pretty well restored. Am I not right in this? Your sincere friend,
MRS. L. E. A.

Free to all Sufferers

In order to enable every woman suffering from any form of female disorders to test the merits of ORANGE LILY, I will send to everyone who will send me her address, or the address of any suffering friend enough of the remedy for ten days' treatment, absolutely free. It is worth doing, it is only because I know that it must give relief that I make this free trial offer. Further, if any woman wishes expert medical advice, and will write me a full description of her case, I will submit same to the staff of the Conroy Medical Institute, Detroit, Mich., and they will write her direct without expense to her. INCLOSE THREE 2-CENT STAMPS and address MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT.

Seven Years for Selling Secret Naval Plans.

Leipzig, Jan. 30.—Wilhelm Ewald, a mechanic, formerly employed in Siemens and Halske's engineering works, was to-day sentenced to seven years' penal servitude, ten years' loss of honour and police supervision during that time, for espionage on behalf of Great Britain.

It was alleged that Ewald, who was formerly engaged in fitting telegraphic installations on board warships, sold certain information to the British Intelligence Department.

Evidence was adduced at the trial to the effect that Ewald was regularly employed as a spy by the British Admiralty, to whom he had delivered seven reports and plans.

This information was said to have been given while Ewald was in Wilhelmshaven, Kiel, and London.

The Hunted Premier

Mr. Asquith, already four times a Scott's burgess, received recently at the Lord Provost's hands a casket in which lay the vellum scroll bestowing on him "the freedom of the city and royal burgh of Dundee of the first class, with all and sundry liberties, privileges, and immunities thereunto belonging."

Mr. Asquith, although Dundee—forgetting Mr. Redmond for the moment—pronounced him a freeman, came here a hunted man. As soon as he rose at Kinnaird Hall to express his thanks to the Lord Provost the turmoil began.

"Lord Provost, magistrates —" The Premier had got thus far, when a strident female voice shouted from the gallery, "Mr. Asquith, be a statesman!"

The woman was ejected, and the Premier began again, and reached exactly the same word, when a more striking interruption occurred. A young woman rose in the front of the gallery and shouted some interjection which was drowned in the angry murmur of the crowd. Stewards and police dived at her from a half dozen directions. The woman grasped the handrail and raised her foot, and it looked for a moment as if she was about to hurl herself into the throng below.

Mr. Asquith delivered fifty more words, and then another feminine voice shouted, "No." The rest was cloaked by a steward's hand as he hurried her out, but the incident so disturbed the meeting that the Lord Provost had to rise and make a special appeal to the audience to keep their seats.

Still another interruption occurred when Mr. Asquith said:—

"It is a peculiar satisfaction to me to-day that I should receive the freedom of Dundee."

"You are not worthy of it!" shouted a young man, whose name is given as McIntosh, and who is said to be a student from Edinburgh.

Mr. Asquith was only disturbed once more, when Miss Mary Grant, daughter of a local minister, shouted, "How dare you come to Dundee, you traitor to women!"

Storm Aroused Lloyd-George's Land Prospects.

London, Feb. 5.—The land policy of the Chancellor of the Exchequer has sounded the rock bottom of the Tory hatred of Liberalism and all its ways. At first the necessity of the land reform was vigorously denied. Then it was ridiculed. Next it entered the realm of practical politics, and now it is accepted as a leading plank in the Liberal programme.

The Conservative press, and behind it, the Conservative Party, are tumbling over each other in order to show that the rural life in England is ideal, and the lot of the laborer such that he is contented and happy. His perquisites are extolled, and his lot compared with that of his brothers in the Dominions overseas—to the disadvantage of the latter.

Landlordism is up in arms against Mr. Lloyd George and all his wicked ways, but the "Pall Mall Gazette" frankly admits that if the laborer is left to choose between such a policy and no policy at all, the contest will be waged on terms which must take the heart out of the Unionist party. Thus there is hope for rural England.

Journalistic Scoop

A young American journalist who had recently come over from the States was taken on the staff of a big London newspaper. One day he lashed into the editor's room and pushed a few slips of "copy" under his nose. The startled editor glanced through the report, and was ever more startled. It contained a vivacious account of a quarrel between the King and the Prime Minister.

"Can you vouch for this?" asked the editor, eagerly.

"You bet I can!" was the confident reply.

"How did you find it out?" the editor wanted to know.

"Oh, you needn't be afraid; it's all right. I knew the Prime Minister had gone to Buckingham Palace, so I waited outside and saw him come out to his motor-car. I thought he looked worried, so I got as near as I could, and I heard him say the King was angry."

"But to whom did he say it? To the chauffeur?" asked the editor.

"Yes, I suppose he was an old family retainer—a sort of confidential servant. Anyway, he said it plain enough."

The editor looked puzzled.

"Yes; but what did the Prime Minister say? Did he say in so many words that the King was angry?"

"No, not exactly," the American admitted. "He said, 'King's Cross,' and got in and drove away."

Do Your Hands Chap?

Zam-Buk Will Heal in One Night.

For badly chapped hands, cold cracks, frost bite, etc., Zam-Buk is the best known balm. Wash the hands or part affected in water as hot as can be borne. Dry with a soft towel, and then smear the Zam-Buk well over the part. If it is the hands, wear a pair of old gloves overnight. By morning the pain will be gone. Then use Zam-Buk a few more times and the cracks will be healed. Mrs. A. F. Phillips, of Ayers Cliff, Que., says: "I suffered terribly from chapped hands. At times my hands were so sore that I could almost have cried with the pain. I tried Zam-Buk, and in a very short time my hands were cured."

Mrs. W. M. Bailliant, of Port Hawkesbury, N. S., writes: "Some time ago my hands were very badly chapped. Ordinary ointments did not heal them, and I was advised to try Zam-Buk. To my great delight it healed my hands completely."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for piles, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld., on receipt of price.

Reasons For Failure.

Not long since some investigations were made into the causes that lead to some men's failure in life, while others, apparently similarly situated at the outset, have met with nothing but prosperity.

Here are a few of the reasons as disclosed by the unfortunates themselves. It is noteworthy that comparatively few ascribe their present position wholly and solely to ill-luck.

Quite a number of people declare that they would have been successful had they but kept to one thing, instead of trying to be Jacks-of-all-trades, and nearly as many attribute their want of success to lack of attention to details and overconfidence in their own ability.

A few, on the other hand, complain of failure of courage at the critical moment, while only too many have fallen victims to extravagance, conviviality, and want of concentration.

A mistaken sense of duty proved one man's ruin. Considering he was fitted for the occupation into which he was forced by stress of circumstances destroyed another's ambition and rendered his life useless.

In some cases the blame is laid at the door of a mistaken marriage, while a few people openly avow that they were tempted to crime and fell.

But, taken altogether, the most frequent method of failure seems to have been "the attempt to get from the bottom to the top of the ladder without touching the intervening rungs."

Just One More Splendid Proof

THAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURE BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Ontario Man's Kidney Disease Gradually Grew Worse Till He Used Dodd's Kidney Pills—Then He Found Speedy and Complete Cure.

Lefaire, Ont., Feb. 14. (Special)—Rescued from the grasp of deadly Bright's Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Mr. Amable Lamarche, a well known resident of this place, is singing the praises of this standard remedy for Kidney ailments.

"My sickness started from a strain," Mr. Lamarche states, "and for a year I did not know a well day. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing, my appetite was fitful, and my limbs would swell. Then rheumatism set in, and neuralgia, backache, headache, and heart trouble added to my tortures."

"The doctor who attended me could give me no relief, and finally, when Bright's Disease had me in its grasp, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After taking three boxes of them I was as well as ever I was in my life and I have had no pain since."

Mr. Lamarche's case again demonstrates two things: The first is that neglected kidney trouble brings the most painful and dangerous of diseases; the second that Dodd's Kidney Pills cure kidney disease in any part of its stages. Dodd's Kidney Pills are where every other medicine has failed.

A HOWLER.

A good story is being told of a gentleman not unknown in South African musical circles. He is rather proud of his vocal abilities. Recently he attempted in public to render "The Owl."

A friend afterwards remarked that his music was not suitable to his compass, and that he should get it in the key of C.

Our friend immediately marched off to a music store and announced:—"I want 'The Owl' in C."

"Very sorry," replied the shopman; "we have not got 'The Howling Sea,' but we can do you 'Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep.'"

CHAPTER XIII.—THE LAD FROM SUNNY FRANCE.

With a company of some fifty men all huddled together more or less, and meeting in crowded quarters for a term of some six months, and with abundance of liquor, as most French vessels had at that time, and with such hardships as we endured, it is not to be wondered at that tragedies occurred, and that men quarrelled, and that blood was shed, and that life was endangered. Under such conditions it could not have been otherwise, and it would seem that every voyage had its share of quarrel and dispute. Much of this was, no doubt, the fault of the men themselves, but not all of it. Some of it was because of the harshness of the Captain and of his injustice to his fellowmen. And so it came about towards the end of the voyage when things were pretty well settled up and ready for returning home that I quarrelled with the Captain, which, as I have already said, resulted in my being left in a strange land. Perhaps the fault was mine, perhaps I needed discipline and did not understand it, but I have learned much of it since. But I decided to stand up for my rights and let the Captain see that there was one at least of his crew who would take his chance for his life, for the purpose of letting him know that the crew had rights, and that their rights were sacred to them.

And so the almost fatal day arrived, and the Captain and myself met on the quarter deck and he assumed his usual tyranny and overbearing conduct towards me. Evidently he did not know that I was prepared for him, or that I had premeditated my course; but I had done so, and decided that come what would I would have it out with him. And so when he attacked me I assumed the defensive, and being young and strong, and determined and prepared, I was well able to hold my own. We tussled and struggled on the deck; we clinched and fought it

Exhausted Nerves Sleepless Nights

Continually Crew Worse Until Or. Chase's Nerve Food Restored Vigor and Strength.

Mrs. Campbell.

What misery to lie awake nights and think of all sorts of things without being able to get the rest and sleep which is necessary to restore the nervous energy wasted in the tasks of the day.

This symptom of sleeplessness is one of the surest indications of an exhausted nervous system. You must have sleep or a breakdown is certain. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food feeds the feeble, waded nerves back to health and strength. In a few days you obtain the natural, restful sleep which helps so materially in restoring vitality to the nerves and strength to the whole body.

Mrs. Sarah Campbell, 108 Alma street, St. Thomas, Ont., writes: "For months I was so bothered with nervousness that I could not sleep nights. There were other symptoms of exhausted nerves, but none caused so much misery, and I found myself continually getting worse.

"I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it was not long before I noticed great improvement in my health. It built up the nervous system wonderfully, strengthened the nerves and enabled me to rest and sleep well."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 1 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

out while the crew looked on. They all knew that I was the Captain's brother-in-law, and perhaps because of that they did not interfere as readily as if I had been only a sailor and no relation.

I knew that to attack an officer of a ship was a criminal act, and that it meant trial and court-martial, and punishment, and perhaps death, when I returned to France, but I was prepared for it all. With me it was a dash for freedom, a fight for fair play. It was a rebuke to cowardice, it was a challenge to mis-used and prostituted authority and a check to the tyranny, which alas! has been so often practised on the high seas. I stood to lose all, and I did lose all, and have paid an awful price for my challenge. I lost my wages, I lost all that I possessed, and was left a stranger upon a desolate shore and paid the price, which it seemed to me at the time, was the only price by which tyranny could be checked and oppression discountenanced.

I loved France as any Frenchman ever loved her, I love her still; and now and then I pay my respects to the French Consul at St. John's; and I am in touch with rich friends in France who have often asked me to come home; but it is too late now. I took the stand for manhood and protection and sacrificed myself for them, and now after so many years I am satisfied as to what I did. In the encounter with the Captain I had the best of it, but fortunately there was no serious injury; and after the heat and passion of it had passed off he was satisfied to let me go; and thus it was that the ship sailed away and went back to France, leaving me behind.

I found that my relative had played me false, and that because of his treachery I was left a stranger in a far off country, and on a coast but little known and but little inhabited. But I found friends, got safely through the winter, and had no difficulty in earning money at the fishery. I put in much time at the Gros Islands, a good deal at St. Julien's and around the coast of Hare Bay, and soon became an expert fisherman, and learned to like my work, and to like the country to which I had come.

So the years passed on, and they have rolled by until the second generation has come upon me, and though I have never seen my cottage home since, and though I left it but for a few months, the life I have lived in Newfoundland has satisfied me. I found in a Northern part of Newfoundland the woman who was all the world to me. We were blessed with children. We have risen to comfort and independence; and as I have given my years to the fisheries, and to the development of the Northern coast, and have grown almost to know every rock around the French Shore, I count Newfoundland my home. And soon, when the voyage of life will end and I take my departure for the higher life, I can lay down my charge and say—"I have a goodly heritage, the lines have fallen to me in pleasant places."

FAMOUS RUNNER.

Have you ever heard of Ernest Mennen? Sixty years ago his renown spread all over Europe. His exploits make the pedestrian feats of the present day look insignificant.

He was a man who first came under notice by running from Paris to Moscow, a distance of 1,760 miles, in thirteen days and eighteen hours. In 1836 he ran through Central Asia from Calcutta to Constantinople, bearing despatches for the East India Company. The distance is 5,615 miles, and he accomplished it in fifty-nine days, one third of the time taken by the swiftest caravan.

A favourite employment for him was the messenger extraordinary of Sovereigns. He ran from country to country, bearing letters and despatches of the highest importance, and always beating mounted couriers matched against him. He never walked. Invariably he took the direct route to his destination, climbing mountains, swimming rivers, and guiding himself through forests in a way known only to himself. His food was a small quantity of raspberry syrup.

Murdered By Consent.

Paris, Jan. 30.—The question of whether murder is permissible in the case of a person suffering from a painful and incurable disease is again being discussed in Paris in consequence of a double tragedy which took place in the Rue de Belleville.

Eugene Carriere and his wife, who lived with their son in a little flat, were found dead by the son this morning. The wife had been strangled, and Carriere hanged himself in the adjoining room.

Mme. Carriere was suffering from spinal trouble, and the physicians told her husband that she could not be cured. She suffered greatly, and she and her husband agreed to die together.

When the son came home from work his father told him that his mother had been removed temporarily to his bedroom, and asked him to sleep at the residence of his uncle.

When the son returned to the flat this morning he found his mother dead in bed. A note written by his father lay on the table. It explained that, unable to see his wife suffer any longer, he ended her life with her consent, and was about to hang himself.

If Constipated or Bilious--Cascarets.

No Billionsness, Headache, Sick, Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Coated Tongue or Constipation.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gasses, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret-to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, general cleansing, too.

Two Strange Tragedies

Paris, Jan. 30.—Two curious accidents, both of which were fatal, occurred in Paris last night and this morning.

A young bride, Mme. Louise Blondin, who was only nineteen years old, and who was married a few days ago, received a visit from some friends who were anxious to see her new flat on the sixth floor in the Avenue de la Grande Arquee. When her friends left she waved good-bye to them from the window, and to see them longer got on a chair and leaned out. The chair slipped on the polished floor, the young woman pitched head first into the street at her friends' feet, and was killed.

Mme. Jeanne Lebel, who lived in the Avenue de Paris at St. Ouen, was on her way there and followed a short cut across some fields by the river-side near the bridge of Genevilliers. Her road took her across marshy ground which the recent rain had made dangerous. She stuck there, sank in deeper and deeper, and was only rescued this morning, when she

CITY CIRCULATION AGENT

Of Leading Montreal Daily Endorses GIN PILLS

"I have long years of suffering from Kidney Trouble—two boxes of GIN PILLS—and it's all gone. That has been the experience of Mr. Eugene Quesnel, Chief City Circulation Agent of La Patrie, of Montreal. He describes it feelingly:—

Montreal, May 3rd, 1912

"I have been suffering from Kidney Trouble for over five long years. I had also Rheumatism in all my bones and muscles, could not sleep nights and on some occasions could hardly walk. I had been treated by some of our best Physicians but without relief and I lost over fifteen pounds. One day I met one of our leading horsekeepers, who had been cured by your famous GIN PILLS, and he advised me to try them. So I bought two boxes at my druggist's and before I had used one box I felt a big change. Before I finished the second one I was completely cured. I can assure you I can hardly believe it for if I had only known what I know now I would not have spent over One Hundred Dollars for nothing when two boxes of GIN PILLS cured me."

BOY SAVED FROM BEING A CRIPPLE

By Douglas' Egyptian Liniment

Mr. W. B. Perry, Tamworth, Ont., has a son who owes a good deal to Douglas' Egyptian Liniment, for without it he would certainly have been partially crippled for life. His father writes:—

"My son Marshall had his foot so badly frozen that the doctor said he would have to amputate the toes. The boy cried so much that we declined to allow the doctor to amputate.

"A friend hearing of the case sent us a bottle of Egyptian Liniment and strongly advised us to try it before consenting to amputation. We wished if possible to save our son from being a cripple and used the Liniment.

"Three days after the first application the frozen flesh (frozen off and the boy's foot began to improve and was saved."

The way Egyptian Liniment removes unhealthy matter from frost bites, scalds, burns and festering wounds, and restores sound, healthy flesh, is simply wonderful.

had sunk in up to her chin. She was taken to the Beaujou Hospital, but died half an hour after her arrival there.

Kin of Royalty Bigamist Said

New York, Feb. 9.—Charles Weiss a cigar-maker, pleaded guilty to bigamy yesterday before Judge Mulqueen in the Court of General Sessions, when confronted by three women he had married within the last five years. He has five children by this triple matrimonial alliance, but not all of them were in court. He was arraigned on two indictments and pleaded guilty to both.

The women who called him husband, and who seemed to be on terms of perfect friendliness, each came up in turn to testify against the accused man. The first was Mrs. Jellner. She said:—

"I married him because he said he was a descendant of a royal family."

The second was Ida Krause. She said:—

"I married him because he said he was a descendant of a royal family."

The third was Minnie Weisberger. She was smiling as she came and said:—

"And I married him for his money."

"And I possess none of these," admitted the accused man, and added—

"All I have is three wives."

"How many more have you?" asked Judge Mulqueen.

"Two more," said Weiss, softly, "but they are dead."

Weiss was remanded for one week for sentence.

IS YOUR COUGH GOING FROM BAD TO WORSE?

If you catch a cold (which very often develops into a cough), every one can tell you how to cure it! If one tried half the things his friends recommended he would be a physical wreck!

Fortunately it isn't necessary to experiment with ginger, turpentine, and such things, get a bottle of Stafford's Phoratorine Cough and Cold Cure, take according to directions and you will be relieved in a few hours.

Phoratorine is not like most things put up for this purpose. There isn't a particle of Quinine in it. It relieves the inflamed congested condition of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat, and soon rids the system of the poison that cause colds.

Don't wait until you get that horrible, hacking cough which you are not able to get rid of. No treatment having been found successful up to the present time. Try Phoratorine Cough Cure at once.

Price 25 cents a bottle. Postage 5 cents extra.

The S. S. Bonaventura left to-day for Sydney to bring along her supply of coal for the sealing voyage.

The S. S. City of Sydney is expected to leave New York to-day for Halifax and this port.

The bargt Lake Simcoe is now eight days out from Pernambuco to this port.

The S. S. Almirante will leave Halifax on Tuesday next for this port.

More Particulars Of Tragedy

The Marine and Fisheries Department had the following message yesterday afternoon giving further particulars of the loss of the schr. Lucy House, near St. Lawrence.

"Schr. Lucy House, Robert Courtney, master, from Cadiz, salt laden, struck the rocks when beating in here in yesterday's storm. She came off the rocks shortly afterwards and sank, carrying down the captain; McCarthy the cook, and seaman Molloy with her. Three other members of the crew were saved by a dory from the shore. Inhabitants are trying to recover the bodies of those drowned. The vessel floated again last evening, bottom up."

With the Puck.

The City fourteen held a practice last night at the Prince's Rink and will meet again to-night for their semi-final rehearsal. The selecting committee have not as yet decided on the seven who will represent St. John's against the Haligonians.

It was expected the Wanderers would be leaving Halifax to-day and arrive here Monday, but this arrangement, we understand, has been cancelled as the League have wired the outside team that the S. S. Bruce would not leave Sydney again for this port until Monday night and have asked them not to leave Halifax before Monday. In this event the visitors will not reach the city before Wednesday, the first match to be played the same night. The probable line up of the team will be:—

S. Walsh, goal; G. Herder, point; E. Collier, cover; L. Sidel, rover; E. Pinsent, left; R. Herder, centre; —, right.
