CHAPTER XVI.
(To be Continued.)

"They are all gone, Nora," he said; and added, mentally, "Thank God!"
She opened her eyes gravely.
"I am afraid you sent them away because I came," she said. "I am sorry. Will they be angry? Were they great friends of yours? Some of them looked nice."
"Not all," he said with a smile. She thought a moment.
"I liked the young one—the one with the soft voice, like a girl's."
"The Baby," he said; "and which of them didn't you like?" he added, talking for the sake of talking, and to get himself accustomed to her presence.
"After a second or two she said: "I don't know any of them, to take a dislike. Who was the one that looked at me so—so—she hunted for a word—"as if he were angry?" Vane pondered a moment.

"Oh, you mean Senley Tyers," he said. "He was not angry. He is a great friend of mine, and I hope you will like him."
"I will, if he is a friend of yours," she said, as a matter of course.
Then he plunged head-first at the question that had to be put, though he postponed it for a moment.
"And now tell me, Nora,—how—how you happened to come here."
Her color rose for a moment and her eyes drooped, but only for a moment; the next she raised them to his with a frank, sweet sadness.
"My aunt was going to leave the Caldron," she said. "She was going to take me away from England forever. We were to go to Australia." She paused as if she considered she had fully answered his question; but seeing by the expression of his face that he was still waiting, she went on in a low voice: "I did not want to go. She would not have let me stay there alone; and so—so—so—I left her and came away."
Vane nodded encouragingly.
"You came away? Yes, go on."
In her musical voice she recounted the manner in which she had reached Trelorne and counterfeited a wreck; and Vane found it impossible to repress an exclamation of amazement.
"Why, you must have the pluck of a man, Nora!"
She smiled as if he had accorded her high praise, and leaning back went on with her story.
"I walked all that night, and in the morning went to sleep in a linen."

"What's that?"

"A kind of stable in a field where they keep hay for the horses to eat in the winter. And in the afternoon I went on again, and walked till I reached Yideford."
"Why, how many miles was that?" Vane inquired.
She shook her head.
"I don't know. At Yideford I went into a shop where they sell clothes, and asked them to sell me a suit—this I've got on;" and she looked down at her serge suit with innocent satisfaction. "I said that it was for my brother, who was about my size. Then I bought a pair of scissors and cut off my hair." She laughed slightly, and put her hands through the short curls. "It was rather hard to do, because, you see, I only had a small pocket glass."
"Good heavens!" gasped Vane. "How could you do it—all that lovely hair?"
She looked at him with grave surprise.
"Are you sorry? What does it matter? Besides, I was obliged to."

Boys don't wear hair below their waists, you know."
"I know," he answered. "But it was an awful pity—awful!"
"I'm sorry you're sorry," she said, reflectively; "but it couldn't be helped; and I don't see that it matters."

He looked at her with wondering surprise. It was evident that she was quite unconscious of her great beauty, that there was not even the proverbial ounce of vanity in her composition.
"Well?"
"Well," she went on, with a little sigh, "at Yideford I meant to take the train for London; but when I got into the station I saw two women standing in front of a bill posted on the wall, and talking about it. I went and looked at it; but I couldn't read, you know, and I was turning away when I heard one of the women say: 'Poor girl! So young, oo, I wonder whether they've found her?' And I asked her what the bill was about."

She paused a moment, then raised her eyes to his.
"It was about me. It was a bill offering five pounds reward to any one who'd find me in the sea—lead, of course!"
Vane shuddered, and touched her hand, as if to convince himself that he really was alive.
"When I heard that, I was somehow afraid to go and ask for a ticket. I thought, perhaps, that the bill described me, and the man who sold the tickets would know me. And so I went out of the station, and made up my mind to walk all the way—at any rate, nearly all the way."
"My poor Nora!" Vane murmured. His sympathy was exquisitely sweet to her. She smiled up at him.
"It was nothing," she said. "I can walk all day—without feeling tired, but I rested nearly all the day and walked at night. Not that I need have been afraid, because when I left the Cornish towns the bills stopped; but somehow I felt strange in my new things."

She laughed softly.
"It was quite a week before I felt quite a boy."

"And you were walking all that time?"
She nodded.
"Yes. Why do you pity me? It was not bad; and all the time I told myself that I was free, and that very mile brought me nearer to—he was going to say "you," but said, instead, "London."
"And where did you take the train?" he asked.
She thought a moment.
"I forget. But it was still a long way off; and I got into the wrong train, because I didn't like to ask too many questions. But a lady was very kind to me."

She stopped and looked thoughtfully at him.
"All the women were kind to me," she said. "They never used to be. Why was that?"
Vane laughed.
"You forget that they took you for a boy," he said. "Any woman would be kind to such a handsome—I mean such a lonely boy as you were."

"I see," she said. "The lady asked me where I had come from and where I was going, and I told her that I had come from my ship at Plymouth, and that I was going to my brother at London."
Vane groaned softly.
"I wish to heaven you were, my dear child," he murmured, insensibly.
"What did you say?" she inquired.
"Nothing—nothing," he said. "At least, I said 'so you were;' for you regard me as a brother, Nora."

A smile glorified her lovely face, and her eyes beamed upon him gratefully.
"I thought that you would say that," she murmured, almost sung. "Indeed, I kept saying that to myself all the way, whenever I felt lonely and low-spirited. I knew you meant what you said when you told me how glad you would be if you could take me to London, and how you would take me if only I were a boy instead of a girl."

Vane nodded. His brain was whirling. That such light words, so lightly spoken, should have borne such fruit!

LONDON, Sept. 23.

Prospects of a compromise over Home Rule, are shadowed, according to the Unionist Pall Mall Gazette, which to-day, says that it is able to state that important communications have passed informally between British cabinet ministers and leaders of the opposition. Carson continues his campaign, and the liberal press asks whether he should not be re-elected for sedition or deprived of his Privy Councillorship. The business part of the Ulster campaign was entered upon to-day when Ulster Unionist M.P.s were informed of Carson's civil and military plans. Labour leaders are warning the public that they are sending it harder to control those of their followers who favor physical violence, in the face of the threats of forcible resistance being made by Carson and his followers.

EDGARTOWN, Mass., Sept. 23.

The five-man schooner, the L. Urann, with coal from Newell's Point, ran on the dangerous shoal in the Muskrat Channel, yesterday. For several hours, Capt. Thomas and his crew of eight, together with the wives of the captain and steward, were forced to remain in their vessel during a southerly gale, until the dense fog of this afternoon disclosed their presence to those ashore. Captain Jackson, holder of the Carnegie Medal for life-saving exploits, dashed out of the harbour in his auxiliary fishing schooner, Priscilla, purchased by money from the Carnegie Hero Fund. He was unable to bring his little boat alongside the big coaster. Jumping into a dory, he was the first one aboard the Urann. Handling the oars himself,

Mother Eve.

With leaves of figs and barks and twigs Eve built herself a garment; "ah, this will check the rubberneck," she murmured, "dreadful garment!" With a little modest taste around her waist she tied the home made apron; she understood that was good and through the woods was "paperin'". She had no looks on woman's looks, no fashion plates distressing; she was not dense—her own good sense inspired her in her dressing. And Adam gazed at her amazed, and cried: "God darn my galways! Without a crown to buy a gown, she's looking scrumptious always!" In modern times dames have the dimes to buy all kinds of dresses; they're anxious found to jog around in fittie but their tresses, transparent rags clothe withered hags and matdens young and tender; and jeers and sneers assail the ears of modesty's defender. Alas that we should toggle out be by France's shameless rotters; we well may grieve that Mother Eve had more sense than her daughters. Some day the dame who shows her frame and every joint, by golly, will wonder why the gods on high allowed such crazy folly.

Girls? Thicken And Beautify Your Hair

Bring back its gloss, lustre, charm and get rid of dandruff. Try the moist cloth.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Dandoline.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of Knowlton's Dandoline now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance; freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Dandoline is, we believe, the only sure hair grower; destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Dandoline and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

The Governor.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Sir,—I have read the letter, signed "Civis," which appeared in your issue of last night. I agree with everything your correspondent has said in respect to the recent appointments to the Legislative Council, and the Governor's ill-advised action. But the case is worse than your correspondent has put it, for the appointments are not "provisional" as he supposes. The Royal Gazette of the 18th inst., states that the King's Warrant has already issued. If the haughty files of the Gazette are turned up it will be found that "provisional" appointments are the rule, and the rule has been departed from in order to render a protest to the Colonial Office unavailing. His Excellency the Governor evidently does not realize the characters who sit around the Council table. They have either used him as a pawn on their political chess-board, or he is a partisan. He must perforce take one or other horn of the dilemma: "He is in a bad fix, and he has played the country in a bad position, but, have no doubt Sir Robert Bond will know how to deal with it." "He should go to the Secretary of State just to show up the disgraceful business."

What's the Matter With Coaker?

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—What's the matter with Coaker? At any rate he's the best advertised man in the country to-day. Is it because he's espoused the cause of the fishermen of the Colony, that he's being denounced as he is? One would think that he is Carson, by the way he's spoken of! Look here now: "the who runs may read." More depends on this election than most are aware of. Hon. J. A. R. editor of the Daily News, sees the Post Office slipping from him; although a few years ago he could denounce Morris! What I want to ask is this: Is Coaker inferior to Piccott or Morrison in character? At any rate Coaker has never advocated the destruction of our Crown Lands for his own benefit, and sent an appeal to the King's representative that "He Forget." Signs on it he's dubbed "Sir Donald Forget," and always will be. Any more allusions to Coaker's character will be answered by this pen which doesn't "forget" many things unsavory from Morrison down.
A LITTLE LASH.

The Tory Attacks on Mayor Ellis.

Editor The Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I have noticed several letters in the Daily News concerning Mayor Ellis and his connection with the Liberal Party. There is no better proof of the Mayor's popularity and his success at the Polls than this agitation to discount him by saying that he is a Coaker candidate.

Mayor Ellis is a candidate in the interest of his country and I thoroughly believe that his reasons for entering into political life is to save the country from disgrace. Every right thinking man knows the eventual outcome if the Morris Party is returned to power. The extravagance, waste and boodle of those in high places have set many a man thinking. When useless individuals are dumped in the different departments to give them employment and officials are made to hold their tongues and look on at the country being neglected of millions, it is time for Mayor Ellis and other right thinking citizens to get on the armour.
I am no politician, Mr. Editor, but I am not blind.
Yours truly,
A. D. POLITICIAN.

A gentle and luscious, yet effective and thorough, laxative. Its Syrup of Figs. One great feature about it is its value in the case of children. The small dose, the pleasant taste, the certain action, all render it one of the best laxatives and purgatives for the little ones. All mothers should keep it in the house, as of course it is useful for grown-ups as well as for children. Price 25 cts. a bottle.
Pesthrum Insect Powder has been shown by experience to be the most effective, quickest and cleanest insect destroyer to be found in any form, and it is surprising how well and how rapidly it will clear your house of these unpleasant visitors. Try a tin. Price 10 and 15 cts. a tin.

Prospero Sails.

The s.s. Prospero sailed for northern ports at 10 a.m. to-day, taking a large outward freight and the following passengers in saloon: Rev. B. Henderson, Capt. S. R. Winsor, Messrs. Ridley, Burden, Short, Barton, Barbour, Miller, Garland, Messdames Kean, Wiseman, Pelley, Prescott, Short, Barbour, Cummings; Misses Snow, White, Taylor, Hogan; and forty steerage.

Remains Sent Home.

There passed away at the General Hospital last night, through pleurisy, James Barker, son of the late Robert Barker, of Conchman's Cove. Mr. W. M. Clapp, who is always interested in the welfare of his constituents of St. Bartholomew's District, looked after the remains which went forward on the Prospero to-day to Conchman's Cove. The casket was accompanied by Mr. Bernard Barker, brother of the deceased.

Rossley Star Theatre.

There was another large attendance at the Rossley Theatre last night, and all present certainly enjoyed themselves. The Marens Co. are making good, and each night those who attend are well pleased with the show given. Last night Tommy Levene in the comedy farce, "Room 46," made everyone that could laugh, and had the appreciation of the audience. The Baby Queen in "Why did you Make Me Care?" was stormed with applause, as well as were the other players. There is the best kind of a show on for to-night and before making any appointments consider Rossley.

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 24th, 1913.

Sir Robt. Bond

An Able, Honest and Independent Parliamentarian

Yesterday we had under consideration the advantages to the Opposition Party of having as its leader a statesman who is universally recognized as able, honest and independent.

The Liberal Party can present to the country a man of proved ability, proved honesty, and proved independence as the leader of the House of Assembly and as Premier of the Colony. It is of these qualities as they bear upon membership of the House of Assembly to which we shall confine our attention to-day.

HAVE BEEN PROVED

In the case of Sir Robert Bond, they have been proved in the services he has rendered the country during a long and successful career in the House of Assembly. In his early public life Sir Robert had full opportunities of acquiring a full and thorough knowledge of parliamentary business and procedure for after two years in that Chamber he became Speaker, and was called upon to in the manner of conducting the business of the House in which he had been sitting for so short a time. This knowledge has stood him in good stead in his subsequent career and has been matured by the prominent part he played during the quarter of a century which followed his Speakership. To-day Sir Robert is without a peer in local parliamentary circles and is the equal of the leaders in the great Parliaments of the States of the Empire. His ability was early manifested in the action which he took in the granting of Manhood Suffrage and in securing the independence of the voter by the secrecy of the BALLOT BOX.

PERFECT HIMSELF

His ability was markedly shown when he led the House of Assembly to a sense of its own dignity and an appreciation of a proper settlement of the French Shore question by leading it to reject the settlement arrived at in London in 1891. His ability was clearly evidenced on the way he put through the Legislature the curtailing of expenditures in all departments in order to cope with the situation which arose out of the financial straits of 1894. His ability was exhibited in the great fight he put up on the Reid Deal, and the way he coped with the amendment of the Act in 1901. Then there was the legislation he put through which crowned the settlement of the French Shore difficulties in 1904, which earned the praise of His Excellency the Governor Sir Cavendish Boyle. Can anyone forget the fight he put up against

THE PRETENSIONS OF AMERICA

and the compulsion attempted to be exercised by the Colonial Office. In all these his foresight and actions have been abundantly justified by the calm judgment of later years. We might also instance the wisdom he displayed in a gradual and judicious reduction of duties which bore heavily on the fishermen and workmen and his constant effort to reduce taxation. But we have said more than enough to demonstrate the proposition that in Sir Robert Bond, the people have a parliamentarian

OF PROVED ABILITY.

We also stated that Sir Robert Bond is a parliamentarian of proved honesty. This honesty of purpose he showed in the period of the Thorburn administration by refusing to take a leading position on the Government side of the House, as Colonial Secretary, and remaining as a private member in opposition rather than sacrificing the principles which guided him and smirch his parliamentary honour. His honesty of purpose was shown in his opposition to schemes which would benefit the great capitalist at the expense of the people. His was shown in the fights he put upon the question of international import when he faced the frowns of those who could reward complacency and give cold shoulder to those who opposed their wishes.

In the third case we have stated that Sir Robert Bond is a parliamentarian of proved independence. He showed this in his preference for opposition rather than the dependence on the Thorburn Government for which he had no liking. He proved this in the independent stand he took in the French Shore debate when he withstood his leader and the Home Government at the same time. He showed this when he

in 1898. He showed this in his fight against American pretensions. He has thus abundantly proved that in parliament he is a man of ability, of honesty and of independence. That is the DEAN MILMAN died 1868, aged 77, of St. Paul's, London. He published in 1830 the "History of the Jews," treating his subject historically and subordinating the importance of miracles. The work provoked sharp and conflicting criticism and served to establish a new standpoint in the examination of Biblical History. Among his hymns are "When our heads are bowed with woe"; "Ride on, ride on in majesty"; "The kind of man the country needs at the present juncture. That is the reason why the country is looking to him to take charge of the House of Assembly next session. That is why we feel justified in claiming that he borne by the fishermen, the labourer and the workmen of the Colony. The present Government has spent during the past four years at the rate of about four million dollars a year besides loans amounting to nearly eight millions and what there is to show for it. Reid has built and is building railways from which he alone will derive benefit, whilst the portion of the colony is a millstone of debt which is bound under the Morris-Morison mismanagement, to drag it down to the pit of financial embarrassment and ruin. These railways have cost six millions up to the present time, and not one of them is completed. Each loan raised by Morris was on less advantageous terms to the preceding one, and now the Minister of Finance cannot raise a quarter of a million dollars although he has been advertising for it for over a year. Not only that, but there are people in the city to-day hawking about the debentures of the Colony and are unable to sell them. Think of this and remember that there are obligations amounting to millions of dollars still to be met under Reid's Contracts and that day after day Reid is running up a bill for railway construction against us which must be paid when he calls for the money. More money must be borrowed next year. It will depend on the condition of our finances whether we can get it or not and upon what terms. Morris proposes more railways, more obligations, more debts and consequently more embarrassment. Bond has on previous occasions by his wisdom and statesmanship rescued the Colony from ruin. It is necessary to put him in control of our affairs to straighten them out and the people know this and hence they say

Dear Sirs,—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes, so badly that I thought I would be disabled for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected, a few applications completely curing the irritation, and preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes.

McDONALD—PIEROWAY.
Dr. R. J. McDonald, of Port au Port, Nfld., and Miss Ada M. Pieroway, of St. George's, Nfld., were married at St. Stephen's Church, Watertown, Mass., on the 4th September, 1913, Rev. Fr. Gallagher officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Clementine McDonald, sister of the groom, while Dr. L. McPherson, of Antigonish, did the honors for the groom. After the marriage ceremony, a wedding reception, at which a number of friends and relatives were present, was held at the home of the groom's brother in Watertown, Dr. and Mrs. McDonald received many beautiful and valuable presents. After spending ten days in Boston and vicinity, they left for their future home in Port au Port, where Dr. McDonald has a large and lucrative practice.—The Caskey.

Nova Scotia Underwear Co.

Its Desirable Location

The mills are located at Eureka, in the heart of the sheep-raising district of Nova Scotia, with a near supply of raw material, excellent water power, and the best class of labor always available.

Its Extensive Market

Nova Scotia has a continent-wide reputation for knitted woolen goods, largely due to the peculiar quality of Nova Scotia wool which makes it particularly suitable for the manufacture of underwear, in which this Company excels. Orders have already been booked which will tax the capacity of its mills for the balance of the year.

Its Exceptional Yield

We refer now to the 7 p.c. Preferred Stock of this Company, which we offer at 98 p.c. to return the very handsome yield of 7 1/8 p.c. As there are no bonds or other fixed charges against the Company the Preferred Stock ranks as an unusually attractive and well-secured investment. Your enquiry for further information, in person or by post, is welcomed.

Minimise The Loss.

Practically farmers may easily minimise the loss, due to a backward and cold season, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer.

Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 20 per cent of nitrogen, as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 25 per cent better than nitrate of soda as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.

The use of Sulphate of Ammonia has increased enormously of late years and it is recognized to be the most valuable fertilizer obtainable. By its judicious use the production of root crops per acre may be doubled, and the growth of late crops stimulated.

We invite the attention of Farmers to our special pamphlet on the best methods of using Sulphate, copies of which will be forwarded free to any address on application.

The price of Sulphate is moderate, and our terms are accommodating.

Why Should Anyone Follow Higgins

INTO THE REID-MORRIS CAMP.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I don't wish to do an injustice to Mr. Higgins, but I should like to know what special qualification he possesses to ask the Liberais of St. John's East to change their politics and follow him into the Reid-Morris Camp. I admit "Billy" is a good fellow, popular among the sports, eager to aid in football, hockey and other matches, but is his popularity a sufficient justification to me to change my politics. I have never voted other than Liberal, I am a father before me, since the days of '54, I have always supported the Liberal cause. I voted for Mr. Kent in the last two elections. Now, I am asked by Mr. Higgins, for reasons good enough to himself if not to me, to follow him and if I can't vote for his colleagues, Howley and Bartlett, to split my vote for Higgins. Why should I? Higgins was talking Liberal politics until two or three months ago and was generally credited with a desire to oust Mr. John Dwyer from the Liberal team, so that he might find a place on it. When Mr. Higgins "converted" to the Tory cause was announced, the best explanation his friends could offer was the shameful one that he had been inflected in the Liberal ticket, Bond and Kent refused to turn down Dwyer for him and when the chance to get on the Tory team offered he accepted. Apparently Mr. Higgins nor the friends who offered this apology for him saw what a confession of political immorality this explanation implied. If it was sincere in his Liberal convictions and wished to fight for them and uphold them in the District of St. John's East six months ago, and this is the only reason he can offer to account for the change he must now inwardly condemn the Government and the policy he advocates. In other words he is a hypocrite. Now can he show me any good reason why I should do likewise. It does not profit me to vote for Morris or Bond. I am not getting anything out of politics. I am an ordinary Liberal voter.

"Some men," the editor of the News stated a few days ago, "change their opinion from conviction, others for consideration." I at least shall not be among the class that changes for a consideration. Whether Mr. Higgins has changed from conviction or for some reason sufficient to himself I wish to inform him that the great majority of his sporting friends are not so fickle minded as he is. He may get a few split votes but when the ballots are counted he will find the number very small. He will find, moreover, that the 1,800 votes obtained by Gibbs will far exceed anything he may poll. Gibbs was a straight Tory, appealed for votes as a Tory, had never been anything else and under the circumstances polled a wonderful vote, so much so that he could not believe he was defeated until nearly the last ballot was counted. Let me ask "Billy" Higgins what strength he has among the sporting voters of the town compared with the strong labor vote Gibbs brought to the Poll? I cannot see it, I cannot see the change. Why all this talk among the heifers of Higgins going to head the poll? Bluff! Just that and nothing more. The very fact that these same men ignore Howley and Bartlett in their canvassing is proof that their best hopes are to squeeze Higgins in as the third man.

According to these venacious writers P. T. and J. A. R. to sweep the East End. Not this time. COM. MAN. St. John's, Sept. 24th 1913.

Foreign residents are in no danger of conducting various business, travelling without fear of being molested. The blockade however continues at Puerto Plata Santa.

LONDON, To-day.
The announcement by the Admiralty that a fleet comprising eight battleships and three battle cruisers will be sent to the Mediterranean early in November, coupled with the dispatch of four large armoured ships which will have their base at Bermuda indicates a radical change in British naval policy which on account of friction with Germany has kept practically all fighting units near home for several years past. The Mediterranean fleet after the manoeuvres will cruise as far as Alexandria. With the vessels already in those waters, the visiting fleet under Vice-Admiral Sir Stanley Colville will make the most imposing naval demonstration ever attempted by Britain in the Mediterranean. The fourth cruiser squadron is leaving England on September 29th and will proceed direct to Bermuda. It is due there on October 10th, after which the ships scatter and visit various ports in the Caribbean.

An Old Will.

Editor The Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—When at my old home, New Bonaventure, Trinity Bay, a short time ago among old papers I came across a copy of an old will of my great grandfather, Samuel Miller, Boat Keeper, dated 1813. He was then advanced in years and must have come out to this country some where about 1750, from Strinell, near Poole, England. There were seven brothers and one sister named on the will.

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 24, '13.

Our Dutch Flowering Bulbs have arrived and will be open and on sale in a day or two, of which further particular notice will be given. The list will include Hyacinths, Tulips, Narcissus, Crocuses, Spanish Iris, Snowdrops and Polyanthus Narcissus, and the bulbs, being carefully selected, will, we believe, give the finest and most perfect blossoms. These bulbs are direct from Holland, and are supplied by one of the largest and most reputable bulb farmers in that country, which is the home of the flowering bulb.

Williams' Elder Blossom Soap is an excellent specimen of the soap makers' art in manufacturing good soap for general use at a moderate price. A bar of well dried soap, weighing half a pound, and suitable for all but the most delicate purposes for which soap is used, and bearing the imprint of a famous soap maker, for 15 cents, will be admitted to be good value. Why not try a bar?

What Good Would That Do Me?

By RUTH CAMERON.

A friend of mine had some expensive luggage stolen from a suitcase which she had checked on a railway trip this summer. Owing to peculiar circumstances, she did not discover the loss for some weeks, and she was then told that it was too late to get restitution. Whereupon she dropped the matter without notifying the company or making any complaint. Do you think that was right? I don't. I told her so, and she said, "But why should I bother to report it? It's too late to do me any good."

"Because if you tell them of your loss, the railroad officials will be on the watch to catch the thief, and thus save other people from losing their luggage."

"But what good will that do me?" she persisted. I gave it up.

Altruism, the belief that it is up to you to make the world a good place to live in for other people as well as yourself, is surely needed in this world.

"What good will it do me?" is a barrier beyond which many people are quite incapable of looking. In this particular line, for instance, I don't suppose that one person out of ten would bother to make the complaint when it is too late for him personally to be benefited by it. Nor is this indifference confined to intensely selfish people. I know a distinctly generous and kind-hearted woman who was the victim of an inexcusable carelessness in regard to the transmission of a telegram. Her husband was hurt in a railroad accident and was dying. Three successive telegrams were sent to her telling her of his condition, and urging her to come at once if she wished to see him alive. All three telegrams were delayed twenty-four hours and did not reach her until too late. She never reported the matter at all. "What good would it do me?" she said bitterly. "My husband is dead."

Of course an investigation would not have done her any good, but it might have saved some other woman from a similar terrible experience.

Mind you, I do not mean that one should always be making complaints about foolish little things such as a shop girl's impatient answer, or a telephone operator's mistake. Such fault finding is inexcusable, of course. But when serious wrong is done you that is quite another matter.

"It's no good to lock the barn after the horse is stolen," is not always a true proverb. You may prevent the thief from coming back after your carriage. Moreover, if anyone else has property in that same barn, you may save him from loss; and the willingness to do this is that rare and beautiful quality which the world needs so sorely.—altruism.

The Mystery After Death.

Remarkable Address by Sir Oliver Lodge—"Memory Persists"—Science and Existence Beyond the Grave.

"Facts so examined have convinced me that memory and affection are not limited to here and now and that personality persists beyond death."—Sir Oliver Lodge's Address to the British Association last night.

It is one of the curiosities of the address which Sir Oliver Lodge delivered to the British Association at Birmingham last night that the portion of it for which he felt constrained to offer some sort of an apology to the scientific critics in his audience should also be that in which the larger audience of the world outside must take a very much greater interest.

For he dealt with the problem, as old as human understanding and as perennially uprising as human hope, of the survival of human personality after bodily death.

Shall we live again? Is there something in us which does not die when death closes the door on the warm precincts of the cheerful day? And does death effect no more than the merging of the soul into some divine ether which encompasses us about, and from which individual souls are born and to which they return again, even as, in the theories of the physicists, planets and suns are born from the unseen palpable forces of space, and into them are some day again radiated and dissolved?

Communication Possible. To these immense, and to our way of thinking these unanswerable questions, Sir Oliver Lodge returns a more positive answer than any scientific man has ever ventured to utter from the chair in which he sat. Yes, says he, I believe, and those who have worked with me believe, that we have found and tested evidence that there is a supernatural world; that we are surrounded by intelligences, by spiritual essences, which have nothing in common with bodily existence, and yet can react on bodily senses and perceptions—can, in a word, make themselves felt by human beings.

Once Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are introduced into the family and their efficiency becomes known they are usually found too valuable to do without. For everyday ills arising from liver and bowel disorders they bring relief promptly, and when complicated diseases of the kidneys and liver develop, they often prove a successful cure after doctors have failed. As an illustration, you may read the following, which was received a few days ago.

Mrs. John Wright, 52 McGee street, Toronto, Ont., states: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for ten years, and would not be without them. My husband suffered from kidney trouble, and after taking treatment from several doctors without receiving any benefit, tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which worked a complete cure. Since that time we have used them for all stomach and liver disorders."

we may hope to attain some understanding of the nature of a larger, perhaps ethereal, existence, and of the conditions regulating intercourse across the chasm. A body of responsible investigators has even now landed on the treacherous but promising shores of a new continent.—London Graphic, Sept. 11.

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friend. Its only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of the world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well. You did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late then to talk of prudence; too late then to say: "If I had only, etc., etc." That "if" means too much to many forgetful people. Is it not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it. Is it any more than his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible? Can you call your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance with Percie Johnson's agency, the most popular office in Newfoundland and the least expensive.

Health More Than Wealth

It is a well-known fact that the three richest men in the world would gladly barter the greater portion of their wealth for good health—literally speaking, for a good digestion. A perfect digestion is the secret of the buoyancy and vitality of a really healthy man. The state of your body and mind at the time you partake of a meal are a big feature as to the ultimate good the food will do you. If physically and mentally tired, always rest for at least ten minutes before eating.

Bad temper is enough to give you indigestion, whilst cheerful company and interesting talk causes the muscles and juices of the stomach to work properly. It seems incredible that such inferior forces should be of importance, but science will not be denied.

Sooner than eat when not properly hungry, miss a meal. Never take food more than three times a day; use will soon accustom you to this habit. Take your meals in a well-ventilated room.

Had a Stroke of Paralysis

And Found a Cure in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is always better to prevent serious diseases of the nerves. There are many warnings, such as sleeplessness, irritability, headaches and nervous indigestion.

Prostration, paralysis and locomotor ataxia only come when the nervous system is greatly exhausted. Even though your ailment may not yet be very serious, there is a great satisfaction in knowing that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will cure paralysis in its earlier stages.

Mrs. R. Bright, 215 Booth avenue, Toronto, writes: "Two years ago my husband had a stroke which left him in a weak, nervous condition. He started taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and we saw the good results almost immediately. They have made a new man of my husband and we cannot speak too highly of them."

A Notable Song Writer.

A fortnight or more ago there died in Buxton, England, one whose songs have been sung the world over for years, but whose name and personality were known to very few. He was the author of that splendid song, "The Holy City," which breathes the very soul of Christianity and the Resurrection. His nom de plume was "Stephen Adams," but his real name was Mr. Michael Maybrick, he being a brother-in-law of the famous Mrs. Florence Maybrick, who was condemned to death for poisoning her husband and whose case was taken up with such zest by prominent Americans at the time. The result of that agitation was the commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment, and the Maybrick children were taken by their uncle and brought up in ignorance of their parentage. Mr. Michael Maybrick was born in 1844, at the age of eight he learned to play the piano well, and at fifteen became the organist of St. Peter's Cathedral Church, in Liverpool. At the same time he began composing anthems, and having a fine voice, he soon afterwards became prominent on the concert platform and the operatic stage, making the grand tour in 1871. During this tour, while confined to bed by a severe cold, he wrote "A Warrior Bold" which immediately became popular. A few days afterwards he composed that beautiful song reminiscent of the sea, "Nancy Lee," in some ways the best sailor song ever written. For the former song he received five shillings from a publisher who quickly made a fortune out of it. Mr. Maybrick took the song "Nancy Lee" to a publisher of the significant name of Boosey, who refused the requested twenty guineas for it. The author therefore took his manuscript away with him and sang the song at a concert in St. James' Hall, London, and Mr. Boosey offered one hundred guineas for it. Mr. Maybrick refused, however, and published it on the royalty plan, making thousands of pounds by the tremendous sale of the piece. Among other notable songs produced by him may be named "Thora," "Long Live the King," "Valley by the Sea," "Children of the City," "Midshipmite," "The Blue Alsatian Mountains," "Little Hero," "The Maid of the Mill" and "The Holy City."

Of course, these are but a few of a great number of pieces composed by him. For many years he had lived at Ryde, Isle of Wight, and had been mayor of the city five times. He was chairman of the Isle of Wight County Hospital, and was active in municipal politics, cricket, cycling and yachting. Through all his work he maintained the high level of lyricism and his noble pieces helped to save the English speaking world from being entirely given over to the unspeakable reign of "rag-time." Not only were his airs of stately melody and pleasing harmony, but his verses were genuinely poetical, not mere rhythmical balderdash wherein the tune is everything and the words mere "filling," like cobblestones set in a golden setting. The verse as well as the music of "The Holy City" is stately and moving, expressive of sublime emotions:

Last night I lay a-sleeping,
There came a dream so fair;
I stood in old Jerusalem,
Beside the Temple there,
I heard the children singing,
And ever as they sang,
I thought the voice of Angels
From Heaven in answer rang.

And then I thought my dream was changed,
The streets no longer rang,
Hushed were the glad hosannas,
The little children sang,
The sun grew dark with mystery,
The moon was cold and still,
As the shadow of a Cross arose
Upon a lonely hill.

And once again my dream was changed:
New Earth there seemed to be;
I saw the Holy City
Beside the endless sea,
The light of God was on the streets,
The gates were opened wide,
And all who would might enter,
And no one was denied,
No need of moon or stars by night,
Nor sun to shine by day;
It was the New Jerusalem
That would not pass away.

People Indignant.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—It is rumored here that Harbor Commissioners are about to be appointed and that one of them is now Captain of one of Reid's boats and the other an ex-Captain of the same.

It seems that nothing can be done to public surprise if they don't get Reid's men. Even the leading lights were put in position under the supervision of one of their captains. The fishermen have no say. All must bow down to Reid and his minions.

The people here are justly indignant over this last outrage and ask if there are no other interests to be considered but Reid's. What about the public? Have the people no interest which should be considered? It seems not. This is another nail in Reid's political coffin, and we won't forget his insult in November next.

Those whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad.
Yours truly,
VOTER.

Political Conversations

What is Going to Happen in St. John's

A day or two ago a certain prominent Tory heeler, who is locally famous for all the Government patronage that he gets, was confronted by Morris, who began the conversation, "Well, what's your opinion of the East and West Ends now? What do you think of Howley and Higgins?" (The Picnic Chief forgot that Bartlett was in his camp).

Answer:—"The East End, Sir Edward, is stronger Liberal than ever and I'll be surprised if they don't get a worse defeat than the three candidates got at the last election."

Here the swelled headed chief (losing his temper) said: "Tut, tut, man, you don't know what your talking about."

"Hold on, Sir Edward, interrupted the Tory henchman, you're not certain of your own election in the West End yet. The tide is flowing against you. Will Ellis seems to be like a magnet for getting votes. The people are with him and he's with the people. The West End is in his favour. The people are tired of graft. They are going to vote Bond and a clean progressive Government."

There the conversation ended abruptly and the Picnic Chief is beginning to realize the fact that

Quickly Stops the Worst Backache

Croxone makes Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatic Pains Vanish.

If you suffer with backaching kidney trouble, have disagreeable bladder and urinary disorders, or are tormented with rheumatism, stiff joints, and its heart-wrenching pains, you will be surprised how quickly and surely Croxone will relieve all such troubles.

It soaks right in through the walls, membranes and linings, neutralizes, dissolves and makes the kidneys sift out and filter away the uric acid and poisons from the blood, and leaves the kidneys and urinary organs clean, strong, healthy and well.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what you have used, it is practically impossible to take Croxone without results. It starts to work the minute you take it and is guaranteed to relieve you the first time you use it, or cost you nothing.

If you suffer with pains in your back and sides, or have any signs of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism, such as puffing swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, if you are nervous, tired and run down, or bothered with urinary disorders, Croxone really will relieve your misery and do it quickly. An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase if it fails in a single case.

C.L.B. Fall Dance.

The C. L. B. held its annual Fall dance in their Armory, Harvey Rd., last night and it eclipsed all previous successes of the Church Lads. Over three hundred persons were present and all enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The spacious hall was nicely decorated and arranged for those who tripped the light fantastic. The music was discoursed by the Battalion's Band and was of the excellent order for which these musicians are specially noted. The affair was brought to a conclusion at an early hour this morning. The success of the dance is mainly due to the untiring and zealous efforts of the non-commissioned officers, particularly to Chairman Ebsary.

Met With Accident.

Patrick Earles, a workman at Harvey & Co.'s premises, met with a painful accident yesterday. He was engaged operating a machine which is used for packing fish tightly into drums. Suddenly his left hand got caught and the flesh was badly torn and lacerated. Blood flowed profusely from the wound and the suffering man had to be brought to Hospital for treatment. It will be several weeks before Earles can resume work.

A Bitter Traitor!

President Coaker Expels Capt. Yates From the F. P. U.

This morning's News published a letter, signed A. Yates, in which the President of the F. P. U. was vilified and slandered because Captain Yates was not taken as a Candidate in the coming election. His statements are untrue and show that it is well he was not accepted as a Candidate, as his true value is exhibited in his letter; and such weak-kneed men would be a nuisance to the Union if returned to the Assembly.

He was always a Tory and always disliked Sir Robert Bond. When he was selected at Little Bay Island two years ago he stated that he was willing to retire at any time if it would be required. He was present at Bonavista and voted for the resolutions empowering the President to enter into an arrangement with any party, and did not raise his voice against it as the resolution passed unanimously, and reads as follows:—

Whereas this Council has held a secret session to consider the political situation;

And Whereas the President has explained the situation; Be it Therefore Resolved that this Council hereby empower President Coaker to enter into negotiations in view of securing the co-operation of the party most sympathetic to the F. P. U.'s proposals, and leave the decision to his discretion; failing to arrange with existing parties the President is empowered to organize a new political party to contest every district; and in the event of such to release our selected candidates from their oath.

He also voted for an amendment in the very section of the Constitution that he falsely quoted in his letter, and the amended section that he voted for and which was unanimously adopted read as follows:

63.—Candidates of the Union Party must be members of the Union in good standing. They shall be nominated by the respective District Councils subject to the approval of the President of the Union. When selected, each candidate must sign the necessary pledge of the Supreme Council and subscribe to the oath prescribed by the Supreme Council, to ensure resignation of the Assembly seats when their conduct in the Assembly is not compatible with Union principle and the interest of the fishermen. No member of the Union Party shall accept any position from the Government or any payment in any way except the sessional grant and any indemnity that the Supreme Council may grant him. The expenses of Union candidates must be provided by the Union, and every Union member must support, vote for and assist in every lawful way the Union candidates. The President shall be the custodian of the papers relating to candidates, pledges, etc.

Captain Yates knowing this to be a fact willfully states that section 63 read otherwise. We quote his words:—

"Now, Mr. Editor, what does the Constitution of the F. P. U. say on this point? I quote it for Mr. Coaker's benefit and for the information of the public. Section 63 says: 'The Party shall not hold more than sufficient seats to secure the balance of power between the Government and Opposition parties, and no Union member of the Assembly shall be permitted to hold his seat if he sit on the side of the Government or Opposition.'"

It appears that he is not particular as to what he states if in doing so he can attack the Union and President Coaker. There were but two candidates in the field, as Capt. Phillips resigned last December, when the District Council last met. In view of these facts it is apparent that the F. P. U. is well rid of such a Candidate. Captain Yates will probably be a Graball Candidate, as he was invited to be one in 1908, but owing to not having been asked in time he could not accept. He, however, will have lots of time to consider the Graball's invitation this time. President Coaker informs us that he has notified all Councils that Captain Yates has been expelled from the Union.

Let him stand against the Liberal team for Twillingate and he will be a wiser if poorer man when the votes are counted. Union men will know how to deal with such TRAITORS, who for selfish ends would, if they could, destroy the Union in order to appease personal animosity. Had Yates been a consistent Union man he would have stood by the resolution of the Supreme Council and loyally endeavoured to aid President Coaker in his efforts to uplift the Fishermen. As for giving up his schooner and losing his summer that is childish talk, for he knows that he could not gain anything financially if he was returned as a Candidate, and the Union would much sooner be continued to run his schooner than give up fishing. Perhaps he had his eye on some job in event of his being returned. It would surprise few if such were the case, in view of his actions and letter now under review. We are of the opinion that the Union will be delighted to have discovered just what sort of a man this Yates was, and will thank their stars that he is not a Candidate, and that he no longer belongs to the ranks of the Union.

Peter Lobengula at Death's Door.

London, Sept. 19.—Peter Lobengula, eldest son of King Lobengula of Matabeleland, who twenty years ago was fighting against the British forces in Africa and was the most notable figure after Cecil Rhodes at the great peace indaba at the foot of the Matopo Hills, has just received the right to vote in England.

He expects to die very soon beneath the Union Jack, for the doctors have given only twelve months to live to this strange man, who was once on African prince, later an actor in the Hippodrome exhibition and, then a coal miner in the Midlands. Now he is slowly dying from tuberculosis.

A constable called his name at the Pendleton Town Hall, Salford, last Thursday, and he came forward to defend his right to have his name kept on the voting list. Lobengula had been challenged on the ground that he was not naturalized in England, but the objection was thrown out because the revising barrister held that naturalization was unnecessary, as Lobengula became a British subject on the conquest of his country.

When he was seventeen years old, a year or two before the indaba of 1894 he was one of the chief participants in the annihilation of Major Wilson and thirty troopers who were on the track of old King Lobengula. Lobengula told the Tribune correspondent that he remembered well hearing Wilson and the troopers sing the British national anthem as their death hymn shortly before they were shot down like dogs.

Mr. Editor.—Yesterday's Telegram referring to a political meeting, held the night previous, mentions a person bearing the same name as myself, having been present, and signing the committee roll, and as numbers of my friends have mistaken it for me, I just wish through your columns to state that I am not the person referred to; that I was not present at the meeting, nor am I desirous of taking the credit of another man's work.

3.—Jeso Patronach Whitewah

Air: "O where are my Government orders?"
I du believe it's wise an' good
To sen' out 'urrin' missions,
Thet is, on sartin' understand
An' orthodox conditions;
I mean nine thousand' dolls, per ann.,
Nine thousand' more fer outfit,
An' me to recommend a man
The place 'ould jest about fit.

4.—Handopublichesto Piccittini

Air: "We'll Clap the Gripes Yr' Ho!"
I du believe hard coins the stuff
Fer lectioneers to spout on;
The people's oilers soft enough
To make hard money out on;
The Government provides fer us,
An' gives a good-sized junk to all,—
I don't care how hard money is,
Ez long ez mine's paid punctual.

5.—Duetto by Jan Lickstampo Robinsonbone and Patricky Villissimo Mugra.

Air: "O we were hit with a Coaker- nut!"
We du believe with all our soul
In thet Press's freedom,
To pint the people to the goal
An' in the traces lead 'em;
Praised the arm that forges yokes
At our fat contracts squintin';
An' withered be the nose that pokes
Inter the gov'ment prinlin'!

6.—Edibosso Poweranypiccro Morrisini.

Air: "A Vote! A Vote! My Country for a Vote!"
I du believe thet I should give
Wit's his'n unto Caesar,
Fer it's by him I move and live,
Frum him my bread an' these air;
I du believe thet all o' me
Doth bear his souperscription,—
Will, conscience, honor, honesty,
An' things o' thet description.

7.—Closing Chorus in which the foregoing are joined by Bombasto Blandford, Gahnil Woodford, Micullo Cashini and the remnants of the Trouper Tery.

In short, We firmly du believe
In Humberg generally,
Fer it's a thing thet we perceive
To hev a solid vally;
This beth our faithful shepherd ben,
In pastures sweet hath led us,
An' this'll keep the people green
To feed ez they hev fed us.

CERTAIN.
