THE ITALIAN QUESTION.

There are spirits in Italy, (we may call them revolutionary if we choose) which so long as they live will never cease to agitate for making Rome the capital and never tire of laying plans for the redemption of their country from ecclesiastical rule. Chief among these, if we except perhaps Garibaldi, is the veteran Mazzini, who has lately written a letter on the present state of things in Italy. He berates in severe terms the moral cowardice of the Italians of all parties during the recent crisis. He asks what Italy did after she had at great sacrifice of blood and treasure established the national independence, and proclaimed to the world that Rome was to crown the edifice. What could she do? Italy as represented by Garibaldi and his followers performed wonders under the circumstances; but Italy as represented by Victor Emmanuel was fettered by the power of the Emperor of France. The nation was responsible for its conduct to the other kingdoms and empires of Europe, and chiefly was it answerable to him who held the rod over it in terrorem; the Garibaldians had but life to lose, and if they survived they had every prospect of pardon, and a restoration to such privileges as they had enjoyed before. It is true, that while Napoleon hesitated Victor might have acted, but had he done so the last field that would have been fought in Italy might have been much more disastrous than fatal Mentana. Mazzini reproaches his countrymen thus: "In opposition to the unanimous will of the nation, and the declarations which all Europe had greeted with applause, an intruding voice is raised, the voice of the French Emperor, a voice of prohibition, unjustifiable, unprovoked, arbitrary, insolent, and without the excuse even of personal interest. What then takes place? Kings, Ministers, and Parliament tremble at the sound of that voice, accept the prohibition, and acknowledge its utterance as their undisputed law and master. Choose for yourselves another capital! cries this foreigner; and they choose another. Put down Garibaldi by force of arms! and they put him down. Defend against Italy, and on behalf of the Pope, what you have declared to be Italian ground! and they undertake to defend it. Back from that frontier! and they go back. Then, as if in act of solemn defiance, and to close the door of the future, a French Minister rises in his place, and says before all Europe: 'Italy shall never have Rome, for France wills it so; and King, Ministers, and Parliament in Italy listen in silence. The country dare not shake off its sluggish apathy, and quietly brooks the insult. Is there a more shameful page than this in the history of nations?' He then adds: "In an army which counts among its highest grades the names of Bixio, Medici, Cosenz, and Cialdini, not a single officer broke his sword in two, and that in a chamber in which are sitting Bertani, Cairoli, Nicotri, Miceli, Asproni, Fabrizi, Norelli, Pianciani, and Tamalo, not ten could be found with the courage to demand the instant evacuation of the French troops. He then quotes the taunt of Ugo Foscolo in the teeth of his countrymen half a century ago: "A nation that uses its name as a theme for arrogance and not as an incentive to courage, a nation that whimpers over its servile state, but dares not raise to put an end to it, gives an excuse to its neighbors to deride its frivolity, to humble its pride, and to seize its wealth, adding its name to that of the herd of conquered peoples. Such a nation, O Italians, is yours! Be slaves, therefore, and hold your peace." Mazzini then condemns the recent movement as premature, and therefore doomed to failure. The work of silent preparation, he says, must be begun anew under the guidance of a single name, with a clearly-defined time of action, excluding all who refuse their adhesion to the entire programme of the party.

Livingstone Safe beyond Doubt.
We are sure every one of our readers will rejoice to learn that all doubts regarding Dr. Livingstone's safety are now dispelled. Sir Roderick Murchison has received a letter from the distinguished traveller, in which he says he is in good health, and will soon return to England.

Dr. Mudd, one of the Lincoln conspirators, who was sentenced for life to the Dry Tortugas, is said to be hopeful of pardon. His conduct is exemplary, and his professional services during the continuance of the yellow fever at the post last fall have made him rather popular with the officers of the garrison.

The authorities are employing every possible means to find out the murderer of Mr. McGee. All the machinery of the law is at work, and no effort is being spared to bring the assassin to justice. Additional testimony goes to strengthen the suspicion that Whelan is the murderer. It is true the evidence so far is but of a circumstantial character, but that is the only kind which can be expected to be obtained about a crime so foully conceived and darkly perpetrated as this. It is not likely that any human eye witnessed the actual perpetration of the deed except that of the assassin himself, and the probability of obtaining direct evidence of the crime is therefore very remote. But circumstantial evidence, when each link is perfect, is now held by many good jurists to be as trustworthy and in some cases even more trustworthy than direct testimony, because to make the chain complete requires concurrent evidence of numerous parties, while in the other case the proof rests upon one or two who may after all be in error.

The testimony given by the boy Trotter at the inquest is clear and intelligent. It was expected he could throw some light on the direction the murderer had taken, but on this point he could throw no light, and the supposition is that as soon as the assassin had accomplished his purpose he ran round the corner of the Queen's Printer's building, and fled down O'Connor street into the open country to the south-west which commences at the end of O'Connor street, and soon gets broken and wooded. It is also evident from Mrs. Trotter's testimony, that Mr. McGee knew that he was dogged, and sought by tapping at her door in a very rapid and agitated manner to seek instant admission and shelter from the person whom he knew to be following him; also that he had just succeeded in his agitation in inserting his latch key in the lock, as she was opening the door, when the shot was fired. Strange to say Mrs. Trotter neither saw nor heard anything of the murderer.

The Maiden's Choice
OR, THE LAIRD OF BIRKENLEUCH
A Tale of the Covenanters.

CHAPTER XXV.—WALTER IS CAPTURED AND CONDEMNED TO IMPRISONMENT IN THE BARR.

The shout of his pursuers was to Walter Elliot what a spur is to a high spirited horse. Amusing as had been his exertions in the race he had already run, that sound from behind, intimating that he was seen, and already considered captured, acted like a stimulant, which banished weakness and exhaustion, and he bounded on at a speed greater than anything he had yet reached.

It was dreadfully galling the thought of being overtaken, and the packet lost just when it was on the eve of being put into the hands of Sir Gilbert. His own escape, he knew, was hopeless. He had made up his mind as to that even before he had made his exit from Birkenleuch, but this misfortune, serious as it was, would be greatly increased if he had sacrificed himself uselessly. It would be a still more bitter element in his fate if he knew that he had risked and lost his life in vain.

Moment by moment the huge irregular mass of the building he was straining to reach grew nearer and more distinct through the darkness. If he could but reach it, rouse Sir Gilbert, and give him the packet before Allan and his men came up, he would yield himself almost with contentment to his fate, but another shout fearfully close behind him nearly dashed this hope from his heart, though it did not cause him to relax his superhuman efforts.

It was the rear of the mansion he was approaching—the great entrance was in front, and lay on the other side; he had, therefore, to pass round the end of the building before he could rouse the inmates by his importunate summons. A thick impetuous hedge of yew, of immense height, enclosing within its assemblage of ancient yew clumps, surrounded the mansion, and this was, he knew, a small advantage in his favour, for it would compel the troops to skirt the outside of them and take a circuit round, while he could dash through at the nearest. This thought flashed through his mind like lightning. The yew hedge was just before him, and his keen eye having detected a hole near the roots, he glanced round before darting through to see how far his pursuers were behind.

They came on in a group of half-a-dozen or so, and had still a considerable portion of the park to traverse. He was now within the deep shadow of the yews, and was but out of their sight, though, of course, they had seen his course hitherto, and knew that he had approached the mansion.

Diving towards the ground, he forced a passage through the thick hedge, leapt to his feet again on the other side, threaded his way at headlong speed among the massive clumps which grew on the lawn, and stood at length with panting lungs and bursting heart before the great oak door.

He clutched convulsively at the chain of the bell which hung in the hall, and pulled at it with frantic vehemence, shouting at the same time with hoarse and desperate eagerness—

"Ho! Sir Gilbert. Sir Gilbert Barton, open quickly—quickly open!"

The bell clanged with a long and startling peal reverberating like thunder through the silent mansion, and Walter waited with feverish impatience for his summons to be answered. Some moments passed without any noise of stirring within, and again he clutched convulsively at the chain, making another tremendous peal resound through the building, and accompanying it with still louder and more urgent shouts for instant admittance.

"Ho! within; within there open; for God's sake open. A moment's delay is ruinous—Great heaven! they come not, and the packet is lost."

Listening with an impatience beyond endurance, and listening in vain, for any noise intimating that the inmates were aroused, Walter was about to give a third desperate tug at the chain of the bell, when the foot-steps of galloping horses thundered on the lawn on the other side of the high hedge, and he knew that in another moment he would be in the hands of the troopers. He looked aside and caught sight of their flying forms passing the openings between the yews with the swiftness of lightning, and knew that his chance of gaining admittance to the mansion was lost. He uttered a bitter ejaculation, and looked instinctively round for a place of concealment. Close by his side was a square cut yew, reaching down to the very ground, and without a moment's further consideration he tore its lower branches aside and forced his body into the centre of the bush, where there was a small space sufficient to contain him. He had but time to coil himself up and put the outside branches back into their place when the troopers came thundering forward to the entrance.

"He has got within, Captain!" exclaimed a gruff deep-set voice.

DR. MAGGIE'S is the founder of a new medical system. The quantarians, whose internal doses enfeeble the stomach, and paralyze the bowels, must give precedence to the man who restores health and appetite from one to two of his ordinary Pills, and cures the most virulent sores with a box or so of his wonderful and all-healing Salve. These two great specifics of the Doctor are fast superseding all the stereotyped nostrums of the day. Extraordinary cures by Maggie's Pills and Salve have opened the eyes of the public to the inefficiency of the (so-called) remedies of others, and upon which people have so long blindly depended. Maggie's Pills are not of the class that are swallowed by the dozen, and of which every box-full taken creates an absolute necessity for another. One or two of Maggie's Pills suffices to keep the bowels in perfect order, tone the stomach, create an appetite, and render the spirits light and buoyant. There is no griping and no reaction in the form of constipation if the liver is affected, its functions are restored, and if the nervous system is feeble, it is invigorating. This last quality makes the medicine very desirable for the wants of delicate females. Ulcers and eruptive diseases are literally extinguished by the distasteful use of Maggie's Salve. In fact, it is here announced that Maggie's Bilious, Dyspeptic and Diarrhoea Pills cure where all others fail—White or Burns, Scalds, Chilblains, Cuts, and all Abrasions of the Skin, Maggie's Salve is infallible. Sold by J. HAYDOCK, 11 Pine Street, New York, and all Druggists, at 25 cents per box.

It affords me no small degree of pleasure and satisfaction to know that I am still to continue to serve and be a means of profit to the great mass of the inhabitants of the County of Wellington and its vicinity. I shall in the time to come, as in the past, make it a study and one of the leading features in my business affairs at all times to be in a position to secure Goods in the very best markets, and to the best possible advantage. My purchases will all be made for Ready Money—and money will command Bargains such as credit cannot. This advantage will be given to my customers. PELLATITE
WHO CAN TELL
How Nature Colors the Peach?
How Nature Colors the Plum?
How Nature Colors the Green Grape,
And Berries of various kinds?

The celebrated Portuguese Chemist and Botanist, Professor Esmeraldo, has contributed one of the most useful and valuable discoveries of our age for the benefit of mankind, and known as PROFESSOR ESMERALDO'S PELLATITE.

This Pellatite is the Concentrated Juice of the Fruit of the Anthemium Pyrethrum, a Brazilian Shrub that grows along the banks of the Amazon River. This fruit contains in its juices the peculiar properties of imparting its color to the Human Hair only, and gives it an elastic, Glossy, Brown or Black Color, which is permanent, and promotes its rapid and luxuriant growth. It will not stain the skin or clothing. Among Ladies and Gentlemen whose hair is turning or already become grey, the Pellatite stands as

THE VICTORIA
OF ALL
GREY HAIR RESTORERS!

It differs from all others as follows:
The Joyful Side.
The Melancholy Side.
Other Preparations
Are all made of preparations of Lead, Sulphur and other Minerals. They are poisonous and cause pain in the hair and make its fall and harsh. They stain the skin & clothing. They are filthy—execrable.
WHAT THEY DO.
They are carried to the brain by the absorbents—cause pain in the Head, Dizziness, Blindness, Softening of the Brain, Lunacy and Death.
HOW THEY ARE PUT UP.
They are carried to the hair in colored glass Bottles, with the Labels closely pasted around them from cork bottom, in order to hide the demon inside.

WHICH WILL YOU HAVE? WHICH WILL YOU USE?
Compare them. Test them and decide. Away with filthy, dangerous Compounds, and use the clean and Harmless Pellatite.
At one bound it sweeps the field, and the old fogey crucibles of Minerals are dropped by the public like a red hot iron.
Go to your nearest Druggist and ask him to furnish you with the Pellatite. Don't fail to give it a trial, and don't wait until your Hair is destroyed or you are the inmate of a Lunatic Asylum. Go at once.

What the People Say:
"It does not stain the skin, but colors the Hair immediately."
"Professor—My head was sore from other Dyes on your Pellatite healed my scalp and colored my hair beautifully."
"I am delighted with your Pellatite—I will never again use any other wash or dye."
"No more lead or sulphur dyes for me—your Pellatite is a Botanic Wonder, and no mistake."
"Enclosed find $5 for six bottles more. Send immediately."
"Your Pellatite leaves my hair soft and smooth. Other dyes made it harsh and brittle."
"Since using your Pellatite my head is entirely free from pain and ache."

Despatches to the Evening Mercury.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

London, April 8th.—It is reported that Lord Cranborne has been offered the Governor-Generalship of Canada, and Earl Mayo that of India.
Lord Fitzgerald, Lord Justice of Court of Appeals in Ireland, is said to be on the point of resigning his office.
The Irish Anglican Hierarchy will soon renege on the Queen against any change in the Established Church in Ireland. Deeds of violence daily occur in Cork. The Grand Jury have brought in bills of indictment against all the prisoners, except O'Neil, who were charged by the Coroner's Jury with complicity in the Clerkenwell outrage. The trials will commence next week.
All doubts of the safety of Dr Livingstone, the African explorer, are now dispelled. Sir Roderick Murchison to-day received a letter from the distinguished traveller, which came by the way of Zanzibar. Dr Livingstone writes that he is in good health, that his journey of exploration has been successful, and that he will soon return to England.

American Despatches.

Chicago, April 8.—In the billiard match between McDevitt and Foster, for the championship of the U. S., in the 54th inning McDevitt ran 200. The score then stood—Foster 103; McDevitt 845. When Foster had made 1242 points, McDevitt then took the cue and went from about 950 to 1243, with all the balls close together, when Foster claimed a foul and threw down his cue, refusing to continue the game. The referee then decided the game in favor of McDevitt.
New York, April 9.—Officer Jas. Grim, of the Canadian Frontier Police, arrived here from Fort Columbus yesterday, having in his possession a prisoner named John Hoag, who is charged with having committed an atrocious murder and robbery in the city of Toronto in February last. They started for Buffalo last night.
New York, April 9th.—World's Detroit special says the majority against negro suffrage in Michigan is over 30,000.

Strange Suicide in Ottawa

One Dent, an Englishman, shot himself dead on Wednesday morning about eight o'clock, but whether accidentally or purposely is not yet officially determined. Deceased was a grey-haired man of nearly sixty. He was in quite poor circumstances, and lived with his daughter and son-in-law on Ashburnham Hill, straight south of the Parliament buildings. A prevailing rumour is to the effect that he committed suicide, on account of being, somehow or other, implicated in the murder of Mr. McGee. What we have heard from the nearest neighbours seems altogether opposed to such a conclusion. He was night watch at the Parliament buildings, but got discharged two weeks ago for drinking. He was working the day before at a job of hauling for a neighbour. He had drunk hard on Tuesday night, and also on Wednesday morning. His body presented a terrible sight. The whole of the face was blown off, and the brains were cleanly scooped out of the skull. From the position of the ramrod, also of a rude instrument for gun cleaning, and other circumstances, it seems clear that he must have cleaned the gun first, and then loaded it with an enormous heavy charge of shot. The verdict of the coroner's jury was to the effect that he did so under temporary insanity from drink.

DEATH OF MIKE MURPHY.

It is a very singular circumstance that on the very day that Mr. McGee was martyred for his adherence to law, order and country, Mike Murphy, of Toronto, the father of Fenians in Canada, should have been on his death-bed, an exile, at Buffalo. It will be recalled that he and some companions were arrested on the Grand Trunk Railway, on their way to Lower Canada, to assist the Fenian movements. They were found armed with weapons, and plenty of proof was at hand to convict them of treasonable conspiracy, ransacking and plunder. They were committed to Cornwall Jail, but after lying there eventually escaped by digging a hole under the wall, and making for the river got into a boat that was waiting, and gained the American shore. For some time after he arrived in Buffalo he attained a little notoriety, but at last fell into that despicable obscurity that befalls those who conspire to betray their country's cause. Latterly he kept a little grocery, and died at 38 Exchange street, on Monday night. Thus, one Irishman clinging to the fortunes of his adopted land, died a martyr to its cause; and a nation's tears bedew the spot on which his mangled remains fell; the other seeking to introduce a horde of foreign outlaws to overthrow the Government and carry weeping and wailing a jokers' sorry far. The box in which she travels is literally covered with express tags and remarks, such as "one more unfortunate," "properly hen-closed," &c., to which something new is added at each office through which she passes. A bag of corn is suspended from her travelling apparatus; she has the liberty of the offices for exercise, and seems good for another six months.
The Provincial Government offer a reward of $500 for the apprehension of the murderers of Sykes, the drover on the Grand Trunk Railway.

Guelph Markets.

MERCURY OFFICE, GUELPH,
April 9, 1868.

The rough weather for the past few days rendering farming operations impossible has contributed to make the market somewhat more lively, though the deliveries even yet are but small. The average receipts of wheat are not more than 600 bushels daily, and there is but little alteration in price. Spring wheat is quoted a little easier than last week, and oats keep at the same figure. Barley is lower, and buyers do not seem to be so keen in their demands for it. Peas have also fallen five cents a bushel. Eggs are plentifully supplied at 11c a dozen.
