FALL ADVERTISING!

The MERCURY has a guaranteed circulation THREE TIMES MORE than that of any other paper published in Guelph, or in the County. Merchants when they are arranging for their Fall Advertising should not forget this fact. Contracts made for any period at moderate rates.

A Political Judge.

The Milton Champion has very properly taken Judge Miller, the County Judge for Halton, sharply to task for interfering in politics. The Judge being a friend of the "Moderate" Party, as he calls the Conservatives, is exceedingly sorry that they should have been so badly beaten at the late elections, and suggests the formation of a Central Club in Toronto, which would manage elections and all other political matters for the party through the Province. On this the Champion very correctly says:—"The spectacle of a Judge openly interfering in politics or in any way exhibiting a political bias is fortunately rare in this, or any other part of the British Empire. The Legislature wisely intending that the Bench should be elevated above the arena of party strife, has enacted that no Judge should be allowed even to vote at an election; the judicial position is thus guarded to avert the slightest suspicion of partiality, and to the honor of the Canadian Bench, be it said, the confidence of the country in the purity of their decisions is deservedly great. The reasons why a Judge of the superior Courts should keep himself sedulously aloof from politics are too various to require argument; they apply with even greater force to a County Judge, who is brought into more frequent and direct contact with the people, and probably knows the political opinions of every man whose rights are adjudicated upon by him; he also finally decides appeals from the Courts of Revision, and all know that a careful manipulation of the voters lists has turned the scale of victory in more than one close contest. If Judge Miller, or any other Judge, should become a partisan, and interfere either directly or indirectly in politics, he will necessarily destroy that feeling of confidence which we ought to have in his impartiality, and will in this way seriously impair his usefulness in the county. The matter is one of the most grave importance, affecting not one party, but the general public. It was bad enough that the reputation of the county should have been imperilled by our Sheriff being a candidate for Parliament, but it will be infinitely worse if our Judge should actively interfere in furthering the success of any political party."

NOTE—Since the above was in type a letter is published in Saturday's Mail from Thomas Miller, of West Flamboro, nephew of Judge Miller, stating that he wrote the letter above referred to, and that he happened to be in Milton at the time, and dated it from that place. Ed. Mercury.

Political Items.

Sir John A. Macdonald will receive a pension of £1,000, says Le Minerer, as one of Her Majesty's Privy Counsellors.

In the South Grenville controverted election trial on Thursday, Mr. Harrison, on behalf of the petitioner, abandoned the charge of corruption practices, except so far as they may affect the scrutiny of votes.

The nomination in West Middlesex of a successor to Hon. A. Mackenzie, in the Ontario Legislature, takes place on the 10th inst. Mr. Hugh McMahon's name is mentioned as likely to be the Reform candidate. The nomination in South Bruce also takes place on the 10th.

Four British Columbia members are now elected, viz.: Nelson, Sir Francis Hineke, De Cosmos and Nathan. Yale and Cariboo are yet to be heard from.

No less than seventy-three members who sat in the last Parliament will be missing from the next.

During the late election contest twenty-three constituencies in Ontario were wrested from the hands of U. Progs. The net gain to the Liberals is 18, making a difference of 36 in the vote of the House. In the Province of Quebec the Liberals have a net gain of 11 constituencies, making a difference in the vote of the House of 22; thus the difference in both Provinces will be 58. This looks sealy for Sir John.

DEATH OF MR. T. C. STREET.—We regret to announce the death of Mr. T. C. Street, M.P. for Welland, which took place at his residence, Chippewa, on Friday evening. Deceased was the son of the late Hon. Samuel Street, of Niagara Falls, from whom he inherited a large fortune. He was called to the bar of Upper Canada in 1838, and first went to Parliament in 1851 as representative of Welland. He was defeated in 1854, but again elected in 1861. He retained his seat till the Union, when he was elected by acclamation in the Dominion Parliament, and at the recent election was returned by a considerable majority. In the Niagara district he enjoyed considerable influence, and popularity, which he owed more to his wealth and hospitality than to public spirit. Yet he was upright in character, just in all his dealings, abounding in hospitality, and a man of prudence and moderation.

EAST TORONTO ELECTION.—"Old Jeames," of the Leader, the "constitutional" member for East Toronto, is now amusing the people of that city by publishing the names of the electors who voted for Mr. O'Dono. "Old Jeames" at the close of the election talked very pathetically about burying the hatchet after the contest, and this is the way he is carrying out his promise. The mere publication of the names does no harm, for the men who voted for Mr. O'Dono are not ashamed to own that they did so, and they are not afraid that the world should know it, but it shows the revengeful spirit which dwells in the breast of Brother Beatty, and which he manifests on every occasion. The editorial remarks, too, which precede this list are by common consent considered disgraceful. But nothing else could be expected from the man who robbed the country through the York Roads.

THE CANVASS IN SOUTH BRUCE.—Mr. Wells is vigorously pushing his canvass in South Bruce. He held a meeting at Tiverton on Thursday night, when he made an excellent speech. No Opposition candidate has yet declared himself, although several names have been mentioned. Mr. Wells' friends are well organized and at work like beavers, prepared for any emergency. It is extremely doubtful if any one can be found foolhardy enough to contest the riding against such a strong candidate. Hon. E. B. Wood was to meet Frozen William at Teeswater on Friday night.

Rather Personal.

The Lindsay Post reports the following somewhat personal dialogue as having taken place at the South Victoria nomination. Being the last nomination of the campaign it was but proper that it should be a lively one:—
Hon. W. Macdougall.—Presuming that the people did succeed in turning the Cabinet out of power, whom would they put in their places? Would it be men like the one who had preceded him—a narrow-minded, pettifogging—"well you know who that, so I won't say."
Mr. Mackenzie (coming behind Mr. Macdougall).—Did you call me a pettifogger, sir?
Mr. Macdougall.—"Yes."
Mr. Mackenzie.—"You're a blackguard."
Mr. Macdougall.—"You're a scoundrel."
Mr. Mackenzie.—"You renegade, you."
Mr. Macdougall.—"If you call me any more names I'll spoil your face for you."
Several parties here interposed between William the Frozen and Kenneth the Fervid.

Judging from the tone of his remarks, it is evident that Mr. Macdougall's temper has been sweetened by the events of the campaign. That William the Frozen should be belligerent in however nothing new. When he was located at Pembina as the locked-out Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, he was prepared single-handed, to make war on the people of that Province, and now, when reduced in rank, it is but characteristic that he should have a personal game at bat with an individual opponent. We presume that this last act of rufianism winds up his career, and that he will now be content to subsidize his private life with all his honors thick upon his head.

Mr. Stanley's little bill against the New York Herald is only $5,000. Africa is expensive.

California has this season reaped the greatest wheat crop she ever raised, but, notwithstanding, the Pacific Railroad finds much difficulty in moving it. Railroad freights are too high to admit of profitable returns to shippers, and there is a great scarcity of marine tonnage. Shippers have paid $1.15 a ton for wheat from San Francisco to Liverpool.

It is reported that the younger Bennett has given orders for a magnificent monument to his father, intended to be the finest in Greenwood. The price is unlimited, but it is estimated that it will cost not less than $250,000. The shaft is to be of white marble, elaborately sculptured with symbolical figures representing the profession of journalism. The inscription will be simply "James Gordon Bennett," with age and date, and "Founder of the New York Herald."

The Broad Arrow has an article criticizing the organization of the United States regular army, which it describes as being very imperfect. The National Guard and States Militia it considers altogether unadvisable.

More trouble about the Boston Coliseum! It is to be disposed of by lottery; but now the discovery has been made that lotteries are "against the peace of the Commonwealth, and contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided." Whoever has anything to do in Massachusetts with the setting up and drawing of a lottery is liable to a fine of $2,000! The fines in this case, if inflicted, would amount to some $40,000 or $50,000, so that poor Mr. Gilmore and the other sufferers would derive but small benefit from the transaction. What a bother from beginning to end that Coliseum has been!

Fires by LIGHTNING.—In the township of Turnbury, on Friday morning at one o'clock, a barn owned by Mr. John Millin, was struck with lightning. The flames soon spread, and the building with its contents was consumed. Several barns were struck by lightning in the vicinity of Turnbury, and burned down the same night. One close to Lockport, owned by Thomas Webster, containing the season crop, 280 bushels of threshed wheat, besides wagons and other farming implements, all burned; small insurance.—Such a terrific thunder storm has never been known to visit that section of the county. The same night a barn was burned in the township of Morris, being struck by lightning, also the barn of Mr. Marrs, on the 10th concession of Bruce, burning all his grain and one mare.

The Foster Brother;

The Orphan of the Wreck.

SUMMARY OF THE FIRST SIXTEEN CHAPTERS.

The story opens at the dusk of a stormy evening, and the scene the Ayrshire coast in the room of a villa, a young man stands before a large picture which he has almost finished—a picture of the coast as seen from the front of the villa. This is Kenneth Bruce, the proprietor of a small property in Aberdeenshire, named Mossgrove. He had married Lucy Morrar, the niece of the proprietor of the large estate of Ardgowan, adjoining it, and who was disinherited by her uncle and cousins for preferring the poor painter to the laird of Carswell, whom her uncle desired her to marry.

As the twilight closes in, the artist's wife enters the room with her baby in her arms—a girl—a few weeks old. They had been residing at that place all the summer, that Kenneth might paint his picture on the spot. It was nearly finished now, and they expected to return home to Mossgrove in a few days. While they sat at tea—the tempest raging violently without—it comes out in a conversation between them that Lucy's uncle had died during their absence leaving Ardgowan to a nephew—a cousin of Lucy's named, George Morrar, a planter in Jamaica, the only one of the family who had shown kindness to Lucy and Kenneth and whose return they looked forward to with pleasure. Besides him she had two other cousins—Stephen and Malcolm Gibson, captain in the army—proud, resentful men, who had shown her no countenance since her marriage.

As they sit conversing, the night grows dark, the storm rages with ever-increasing fury, and the cry is heard that a vessel is drifting on the "Wreckers"—a reef of jagged rocks about a mile from the shore. Lucy and Kenneth rush out and join the people on the beach. The vessel strikes on the rock and goes to pieces. No help can be given, and soon spars, cargo, and dead bodies come ashore. One of the latter Lucy recognises as the body of her cousin George Morrar. The vessel itself proves to be West Indian trader named the Eglantine, and George had evidently been one of her passengers, and on his way to take possession of Ardgowan. The body is taken to the house where Lucy and Kenneth lodge, and information is sent the elder cousin—Stephen Gibson—who, by George Morrar's death, is heir to Ardgowan.

In the morning a portion of the wreck is seen upon the rocks, and from a window Kenneth Bruce observes through a telescope some one moving near it. He rushes to the beach, and gets some fishermen to go out with him in a boat. On the rocks they find a maniac sitting with a child on his knee, and the dead body of a woman lying near. The terrors of the wreck had evidently deprived the man of reason. The child, a boy of two or three years, is able to tell almost nothing except that the man's name is "Walley," and that the lady is his mother.

They are brought ashore—the lady is buried, the maniac is placed in the District Asylum, and Kenneth and Lucy take charge of the boy, who calls himself Georgey. He and the maniac are the only survivors of the wreck. In two or three days Stephen Gibson sends the factor with horses for the body of his cousin, to bury it at Ardgowan; and the same day Kenneth and Lucy, with their own child Caroline, and Georgey, the Orphan of the Wreck, leave the villa, and return to their home at Mossgrove.

A inquiry after the relations of the little orphan proved ineffectual. Neither in Scotland nor in Jamaica could any trace of his relatives be discovered. Kenneth and Lucy resolved therefore to adopt him, and rear him as their own child. Stephen Gibson had now entered into possession of Ardgowan, fully believing that he was his legal owner, but, to his dismay, in a few months' time there came from Jamaica one Nathan Garrett, the manager of the plantation there, bringing a woman and a child, who are given out to be the widow and son of George Morrar. As no one had ever heard of George Morrar's marriage, Stephen Gibson was naturally incredulous, but Garrett presents proofs which cannot be resisted, and he is obliged to give place to the widow and child.

The widow, a harsh, vulgar, fierce-tempered woman, makes Garrett factor on the estate, and gives him full power and control. The former factor, Matthew Greigson, an upright, estimable man, is turned off, and the unprincipled Garrett manages the estate as he has been accustomed to manage a negro plantation. There is one thing mysterious about him, and it is this: he takes an unaccountable interest in the maniac, Walley, and is intensely anxious to learn if his reason will ever return to him, being evidently in great dread lest this should happen.

About this time, Kenneth Bruce resolves to leave Mossgrove, and reside in Edinburgh, to pursue his professional career, and he lets the property of Mossgrove to the ex-factor, Matthew Greigson. Captain Stephen Gibson, when turned out of Ardgowan, had a wife and son, the latter named Henry. The Captain did not return to the army, but went to live in a house two miles from Ardgowan, his belief being that the weakly child of the widow would not live long, when, in the event of his death, he would again get possession of Ardgowan.

Nearly two years passed away, and one hot summer day Stephen is walking in his garden when he notices a negro girl trading along the highway foot-sore and weary. She accosted him and asks the way to Ardgowan. His curiosity is roused, he enters into conversation with her, and finds that she has come from the plantation at Jamaica; and from what she says he has reason to believe that George Morrar's wife and child were drowned in the Eglantine—that the woman and child who had been brought by Nathan Garrett were his mistress and his son, and that therefore she (Stephen) had been defrauded of the property. In furious rage he accompanies the negro to Ardgowan, and with her by his side, confronts the impostors. They are obliged to admit the charge, but strangely enough Stephen Gibson does not turn them out of Ardgowan. He is about to do so, when Nathan Garrett makes a communication to him which causes him to look agast, and the consequence is that a compromise is effected. The discovery which has been made is carefully concealed from every one. The poor hapless negro girl is taken by Garrett to Aberdeen, and shipped off to the plantations, and no outward change occurs at Ardgowan, though every one wonders at this sudden friendship which is struck up between Stephen Gibson and the inmates of the mansion.

This closes the first part of the story.

DENNIS COFFER, Guelph, April 11th, 1872 dw

How it can be done.—Many of the Tory journals are bitterly complaining because Mr. George Brown is not in Parliament to meet the men he attacks in the Globe face to face. It is a new idea that newspaper editors are bound to meet their opponents on the floor of the House as well as through the newspaper columns; but presume that editors generally would not complain if it were carried into practice. The worst of it would be that there would need to be a considerable enlargement of the Commons to embrace the whole fraternity. With regard to Mr. Brown, however, if the Tories think it of such vital importance that he should be in Parliament, why do they not force him by electing him for their own constituencies in spite of himself. That would be a good way to revenge themselves, and compel him to face Tupper. It would be a capital joke for say Carling to resign and elect Mr. Brown for London, and then Tupper could skin him at leisure. Let them do it and be happy.—Hamilton Times.

SHABBY TREATMENT.—Great indignation prevails at the treatment of the Canadian cricketers at Toronto. Up to the close of the playing on Wednesday evening, none of the English and Canadian teams were formally introduced to each other, save, of course, Mr. Pattison, of the Mail, on the Canadian team, and though playing together for three days, they conducted themselves toward each other as entire strangers. Hospitality was also on different occasions extended to the English team to the exclusion of the Canadians. To such an extent has this been carried that a prominent Canadian player left for home in disgust. It is also intimated that Mr. Pattison is chiefly held responsible for this state of things.

GERMANY is making gigantic efforts to place herself on an equal footing with England, France and Russia. When the ships actually begun are completed, Germany will have a war fleet of 62 vessels, with an armament of 5,000 guns. This mark, like all great conquerors, is ambitious to shine in the field in which he has not won his victories. Naval powers, however, like poets, are born, not made; or at least they are all built up slowly, and many years must elapse before the fleets of France, Germany or Russia will be as efficient as that of Great Britain.

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, December 9th, 1871. JAS. I. FELLOWS, Esq.—Dear Sir:—We are receiving orders almost daily from the Outposts for your invaluable Syrup of Hypophosphites, and the sale is steadily increasing. I firmly believe it has done more good than any medicine yet discovered, in the cure of consumption, bronchitis, asthma, whooping cough and kindred diseases. It is the only medicine we have which cures these diseases by strengthening the nervous system; and it is also what we call a sound chemical preparation. I predict for it a more extended demand than any other remedy in existence. Yours very truly, W. H. DUNSTON.

BRANFLET—EPPE'S COCOA.—GUAIFERUL and COMFORTINE.—By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Eppe has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills.—Globe Service Gazette. A Chemical Food and Nutritive Tonic.

Without Phosphorus no thought, say the Chemists and Physicians, can be formed, since Phosphorus and the Compounds are known to be the motive power of the nervous and muscular systems. They constitute more than half the material of the human body, being found in every tissue, and their presence is absolutely essential to nutrition, as they promote the conversion of albumen in the food into fibrin, which is the vitalizing agent of pure, healthy blood. They are now coming into universal use in Europe and America in the treatment of Scrophulous, Consumptive and Venereal diseases, which are caused by impoverished or poisoned blood; and in diseases of women suffering from irregularities, obstructions and exhausting discharges, in pale, puny children, and that condition of nervous and physical prostration resulting from bad habits, excessive use of stimulants and tobacco, and all that train of evils known as fast life. The great reliability and promptness in its effects is immediately and permanently restoring the derelict constitution has made DR. WHEELER'S COMPOUND ALKALINE PHOSPHATE and CALISAYA a great favorite with the Physicians and Public. Sold at $1.00. dw
