GENERAL SMATER VIEWS

Glasgow, May 20.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—Speaking at Glasgow University, where he received the degree of LL. D., General Smuts, referring to Ireland, asked whether Ireland was going to be the only exception to the rest of the British Empire. The law of life admitted no exception and it was the aim of the British Empire to solve the Irish problem as it had solved that of South Africa. It was impossible to admit the right of anybody in the empire to be an exception to the common obligation to fulfill the common duties of the empire. In Ireland some people were talking of a republic and some were appealing to the enemy.

Patriotic Fund Was Discussed

Question of Payments to Relatives of Others Than Enlisted Canadians—Railway and Canal Supplies Passed.

Ottawa, May 17.—The total estimates of the railways and canals department chargeable to income, amounting to $88,844,447, were passed before the house rose at twenty minutes to one this morning.

Mr. Morphy took the ground that if the fund was to be placed at the disposal of the female relatives of soldiers, it would not be long before pensions were being paid to all soldiers.

Mr. Morphy said the clause would bring Japanese and Italians within the scope of the fund.

Mr. Duff, of Lunenburg, suggested that the clause be so amended as to make it clear that it will deal only with the dependents of men actually enlisted in the Canadian army.

Mr. McMaster maintained that it was the duty of Canada to look after the dependents of all reservists who were in Canada when the war broke out.

The government, said Mr. McMaster, should not raise an army by compulsion, and then hesitate to raise the money required for looking after the wives and children of the soldiers, by taxation.

Mr. McMaster introduced an amendment providing that the corporation administering the fund should distribute it to relatives and dependents of soldiers who were domiciled in Canada on the 22nd of August, 1914.

Hon. C. J. Doherty stated that he did not wish to find fault with any suggestions which would tend to improve the operation of the fund.

Mr. McMaster withdrew his amendment before the house adjourned for lunch.

The act to amend the Canadian patriotic fund act was carried in a few minutes when the house re-assembled after the noon recess.

A resolution to amend the inspection and sale act to provide more effectively for the marking, inspecting, and packing of fruit, was carried and a bill based on the resolution given first reading.

THE WAR SITUATION.

The correspondents at the front agree in expressing the belief that the German offensive is soon to be resumed on the most formidable scale possible. It is explained that the delay is partly due to a desire to have in readiness to throw into the struggle an immense army, and partly to the need of giving those whose ranks were so terribly thinned in previous assaults time to recover from the effects of that experience. The Allies are meanwhile strengthening themselves to meet the shock, which they await with confidence.

President Wilson announced on Saturday that the United States would set no limit to its efforts to win the war, and would not be diverted from its purpose by "insincere approaches on the subject of peace." He declared he would stand by Russia as well as France, adding that "the war is to save the world."

The Allies still have the supremacy in air fighting. A German air raid on London has proved to be a failure. The submarine menace grows less formidable, and the United States shipbuilding programme is now making remarkable progress.

WHAT SEA POWER MEANS.

A recent issue of the Literary Digest, reviewing the military situation, said: "If the Germans drive better its way through to the Channel ports, German guns may drop a gigantic barrage behind which German armies can be ferried across to invade England."

If Germany should win through to the Channel ports she might attempt an invasion of England, perhaps even bringing out her fleet to take part in the undertaking; but the odds would be too heavy against her for any hope of success. Even if the worst should happen and the British and Americans be compelled to take to their ships; Germany would not win the war; for the struggle would still go on, and without the mastery of the sea the German gain of territory would be of more apparent than real value. Of course it would prolong the war, and impose greater hardship and suffering upon the world; but the British Empire and the United States will never consent to a German peace.

The German press realizes that land victories will not bring complete triumph for the Central Powers. A German naval expert, writing in the Vossische Zeitung, has said: "England has closed the gates of the North Sea. From bases dominating all the sea-routes, her cruisers swept the seas free of enemy ships. Invisible, secure against sudden invasion, and yet ready at any moment to strike a blow with overwhelming superiority, the English high sea fleets lie waiting in their ports. Under their protection, England's sea trade follows the old profitable roads. If England's allies collapsed militarily and economically, England could continue the war as a pure naval war with almost the whole tonnage of the world at her disposal. If she were to succeed at the conclusion of peace in forcing or persuading the Central Powers to limit their naval armaments, England's position of pre-eminence in Europe would be as secure in the future as in the past. The economic harvest of the war could then be gathered in without interference. That was the situation which forced us to take up the decisive struggle against British sea-power. At the moment we could not produce a decision by throwing in our high-sea forces. Even after a successful battle, our fleet, without any bases, could neither blockade England nor keep the ocean open for our own sea-trade."

The Arbeiter Zeitung of Vienna, was very emphatic. It has said: "Do not be deceived. Germany's victories will never force the Entente to accept a peace of violence. If the Germans could take Calais and Paris, and even force France and Italy to capitulate, then there would remain the English, safe in their island, and America, protected by the ocean. They can always continue the war by sea, and the greatest victory on land can not impose a peace of force on America and England."

America and England, with their control of raw materials and of harbors and coaling stations, and with their great navies, would be able to paralyze the trade and industry of the Central Powers. The London Spectator, while admitting that her Russian conquests give Germany an easier source of supplies and an avenue of commerce, points out that control of the coaling stations of the world gives the Allies the whip hand. It said in a recent issue: "Looking at the facts as a whole, it is clear that unless the Germans succeed, as they still hope to do, in acquiring command of the sea by means of submarines, her economic life after the war will be to a very large extent indeed the mercy of those countries with whom she is now fighting. In particular, her shipping industry could be strangled if all the Entente Powers refused to permit German vessels to enter their ports or to obtain coal from their coaling stations. It may be assumed that her statesmen are at least as well aware of these facts as we are, and it is quite certain that the commercial party in Germany attaches even more importance to the re-establishment of the commercial and maritime freedom which existed before the war than to mere territorial conquests. That is a factor in our favor which we are entitled to press up to its utmost value. In the earlier days of the war we certainly did not make full use of our relative economic strength."

It is now fairly well established that the submarine will not give to Germany the control of the sea which it was so confidently predicted would soon be hers. Whatever her success on land, therefore, the sea power of Britain and America will still bar her path toward the goal of world-domination. Let no faint heart believe that all is lost when ground is yielded by the Allies, for Germany pays a terrible toll, and before she could finally dispose of the Allied armies on the western front her own man-power would be reduced to the point of exhaustion. Let it be understood and accepted that we are going to win this war if it takes ten years, and that even the loss of the Channel ports would not weaken our determination.

The Times received the following blurb this morning: "Sir,—Isn't it a grand and glorious feeling when you can sit in a comfortable office and defend the evils of capitalism, and criticize Messrs. Trotsky and Lenin, who have no chance to reply. Oh, boys, isn't it a grand and glorious feeling. It takes a coward to do it. One good coward makes two."

The British continue to give the Germans all the fighting they can take in the air—in fact more. Saturday's record shows twenty-three more Hun machines downed. Thirty-five fell on one day last week and thirty-seven on another.

The question of public health is just now of exceptional importance in St. John, and its discussion by those qualified to speak is therefore an opportunity for citizens to gain information of present and permanent value.

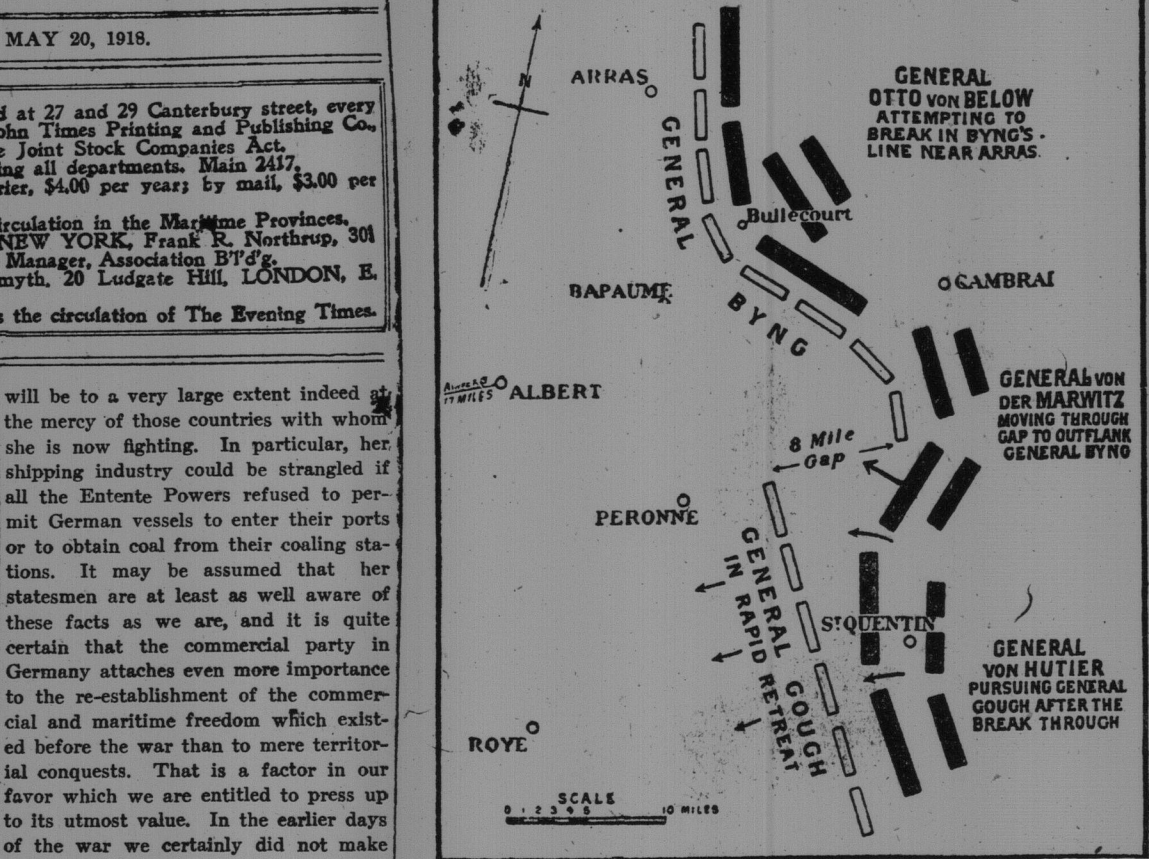

Reduced rations for German soldiers on the western front will not strengthen their appetite for severe fighting, but the promise of more and better food may encourage them to fight for it.

The American shipyards are daily becoming more and more a factor in the war. A cheering announcement is that of Mr. Bealbridge Colby, U. S. shipping commissioner, published today.

In your own interest as well as that of the city, it is your duty to be vaccinated. You should have it done at once.

An Irish rebellion of German origin would be the worst possible thing that could happen to Ireland.

THE GERMAN'S LAST OPPORTUNITY

The chance the Germans missed on March 23, when the British line broke. The gap was filled by General Carey's "scratch division" of singlers, aerial mechanics, Chinese laborers, and American engineers, who held the breach for six days.—London Sphere.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE IS THE PRICE OF SAFETY

There are more than 200,000 motor vehicles in operation in Canada and their use is increasing daily. Here is a picture illustrating the maxim "safety first." It represents, in striking form, a large number of accidents which statistics have shown are most common on city streets and country roads. Intentionally, or unintentionally, however, it is contended that in practically every one of these accidents the carelessness is nine-tenths the fault of the pedestrian and one-tenth that of the motorist. In this photograph the boy, scurrying across the street on roller skates, back of a trolley, falls directly into the path of an oncoming automobile which, although on the right side of the road and moving slowly, can scarcely be brought to a stop in time to avert a serious accident. No better illustration could be found of the fact that the motorist must do the thinking for two people—himself and the careless pedestrian who may be any one of the thousands on the sidewalk.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN EAST

Four Things Necessary, Declares London Sunday Observer

London, May 19.—Concluding a long review of the present political situation in the east, the Sunday Observer says: "If the Central Powers could secure peace on their present basis their subsequent position would be by no means an easy one. Nevertheless that position would mean sooner or later a new world war. It is life and death for all the Allies to secure in this war the reconstruction of a free Russian federation as powerful as was the Czarism. Several things are necessary.

"First, a fuller organization of India, which now is going on.

"Second—A firm touch with those strong elements in Russia which are anti-German to death, however socialist and revolutionary.

"Third—President Wilson's attention to the burning appeals of men like Savinkoff, Bourtsief and Kerensky, if he is indeed at hand.

"Fourth—Some action by Japan. If the Allies could not secure a move by this latter great power as a mandatory acting under a proclamation of disinterestedness their collective diplomacy would seem to be a feeble agency."

COMMUNED IN THE WILDERNESS

Whiled the Birds Warbled Around Them—Notes Along the River—Good Growing Weather

Two newspapermen met yesterday in the depths of the thickly wooded gorge through which the brook flows to the river at Public Landing. There had been times when they reviled each other, and times when they turned with mutual joy to fall upon each other and rend some other victim; but yesterday, in the tall timber by the babbling brook, each of them accompanied by a young daughter with a large bunch of violets, they just hung their chins over an ancient snake-fence and said with one accord, "This is the life."

But it was worth while to have had another week of the Landing. The willows, poplars, birches and tamaracs have put on a coat of green. Almost the last touch of brown has left the fields, giving place to the green of the new grass and clover. The earth is warm, and a thin season for gardeners and planting crops have not been experienced for many years. Oats are above ground in some fields. Rhubarb, asparagus, rhubarb pie and dandelion greens make a meatless day a season of joy.

On Saturday a thermometer placed in the sun on a sheltered verandah on the hillside registered ninety degrees, and after eight in the evening it stood at sixty-four. It was more like a day in July than in May. A fresh breeze tempered the heat. Yesterday was not as warm, but one needed no wraps while sitting out of doors.

There were more potatoes to be planted on Saturday, and beets and onions and cucumbers. It was a delight to do a little work in the garden, and to walk about the fields and breathe the odor of budding trees and flowers. Excursions to the butternut jar were perhaps more frequent because of the heat, but on general principles one does not neglect a butternut jar on any kind of day.
