Dancing by the Mile.

At the last meeting of the Paris Academy of Teachers, Authors and Professors of the Dance, Professor M. E. Giraudet, who is all three, broke out in figures. He read a statistical paper on the acquisition of the art of dancing which he said was based on observation of twenty-five hundred pupils. These are some of the questions that he undertook to settle: What is the number of steps, beats, demi-beats, movements of the feet and turns necessary to each dance? What distance is traveled in each? What speed should the various dances have? What time and how much study are required to acquire perfect proficiency in dancing? He found that six and a half hours was time enough to become complete master of the ordinary waltz with the reversing movement. He considers that it should be danced to very slow music and that in the three steps which go to each bar of the music a distance of two feet six inches should be traversed. The speed should be forty-four bars of music a minute, involving really 132 revolutions of the feet and twenty-two complete revolutions of the dancing couple. The duration of a dance should not exceed six minutes. The pupil should be proficient after about sixty-five trials involving 17,160 bars of music, 51,480 steps, 8,580 turns, and a distance danced of about 38,870 feet, more than seven miles.

Only an hour and forty-five minutes is necessary to acquire the mazurka. It needs 14,490 steps, 1,207 turns and about 10,593 yards or about two miles dancing. The polka is another easy one. It needs twenty-eight practice dances of four minutes each to bring perfection. This means 9,200 steps, 2,300 revolutions and a distance of 13,500 feet, or approximately two and a half miles. —New York Sun.

Campobello Schemes.

St. John Telegraph—Important changes which it is planned, will add to the attraction of the island of Campobello as a summer resort are promised from the policy of the Campobello Corporation, Limited, which is now Douglas, Paul Askenay and Paul Armitage, all of New York. The capital of the company is $250,000. Mr. Merriman intends to remain on the island all winter to supervise the development of the island. Mr. Merriman said the corporation had bought out the interest of the Campobello Island and Company and now owned 8,000 of the 10,000 acres which compose the island. It was proposed to modernize the Tyn-y-mae's and Tyn-y-coed hotels and to develop the natural resources of the island, including the fishing and lobster industries. A number of cottages would also be built for tourists and summer visitors. Much was expected, Mr. Merriman added, from the development of the fisheries. A drying plant was to be put up and it was expected to make large shipments to the West Indies. Lobsters would find a ready market in the States. The Dominion government was building a new wharf on the island and with an hourly service to Eastport in the summer season it was confidently expected that the prosperity of the island would increase considerably, not only as a summer resort but as a centre of the fishing industry.

Improvements to the hotels, which are already underway. Mr. Merriman has also secured a camping privilege at Lake Utopia. He was very much impressed with the beauty of this section of the county and made several trips up the river last summer.

Antoine Boohanna, a bright young Serbian, started soon after his arrival in Canada, has landed him in Dorchester penitentiary. Boohanna, who claims to have a wife residing in St. John, secured gramophones and sewing machines on the installment plan, under assumed name, and then disposed of the goods wherever he could. Having swindled a Quebec firm out of several gramophones he came down into New Brunswick, where he proceeded to do up the sewing machine agents. He had got away with six Singer machines and one or two Williams machines when his scheme was found out and he was arrested in St. Stephen.

He elected to be tried by the Speedy Trial Act, Judge Carleton and Clerk Stearns came here on Tuesday last for that purpose. The prisoner was represented by M. N. Cockburn, K. C., while N. Marks Mills appeared as prosecuting

The Simple Life.

Marcus d'Favor in black and white.

Daphne had a simple mind! And when Philip--her husband--suggested they should have a cottage in the country and lead a Simple Life, she clapped her hands with delight, just as if she had been three, instead of three and twenty added to it.

"The Simple Life," she cried, "Oh, how delightful!" and Philip echoed, "Yes the Simple Life," in as pleased a voice as hers. So they rented a country cottage--not too far from London--and with the aid of fumed oak, chints and a few sarwigs, began to lead the Simple Life in earnest. Philip went up each morning to his work, and Daphne remained in the cottage spoiling her slim white hands in her efforts to be sufficiently simple. She cooked, she sewed, she gardened, she was busy from morning till night, and she thought of Philip, with whom--though they had been married a year--she was still in love, from 9 in the morning, the hour at which he left her, until the most uncertain hour in the evening, when he returned; and she planned new dishes as a welcome to him, and considered him dreadfully ill-used when he was detained late (as was so often the case), and invented a whole list of dishes which did not spoil by keeping hot. It was an ideal life, and it was her delight to entertain her own and Philip's friends in her little Eden. One particular afternoon she was entertaining Lydia Fosbury--an older married school friend of hers. Lydia had come down to lunch; she had admired the cottage (it was her first visit) the garden, the beehives (the latter from a respectful distance), and had eaten of a lunch cooked entirely by Daphne.

Daphne walked with her to the village where, Philistine-wise--despite Daphne's entreaties to walk--she had ordered a pony trap to take her to the station. "There is something wrong with Lydia. I wonder if she is in love?" she said, "I wish she would marry again--happily. Poor Lydia! It does seem hard for one woman to have such a beast of a husband, and another to have a perfect dear like Philip I'm so glad she divorced Reginald at last, but it must be dreadfully lonely!" She mused thus for some minutes, then suddenly remembering her duties as a housewife, fell to reviewing in swift array the remains of the luncheon and their possibilities with regard to dinner.

Her heart fell. "It is to tell me Philip is kept late again," she cried. "Oh, it is too bad." She went to meet the boy, took the telegram, opened it and read:

Can't get home till 8. Sorry.--Philip.
"It's a perfect shame!" she cried, crushing the offending message in her clenched hands; "It's the second time this week. It seems like an evil fate, directly we get the cottage, and he wants to get off early! Poor old Phil."

Suddenly she caught sight of a little engagement book lying in the grass. "Lydia must have dropped it," she thought as she stooped to pick it up. "How sweet," she exclaimed, noticing the decoration of the cover, the rough edges of the leaves, and the little green pencil; she pulled the latter out, and immediately the newness of the small book asserted itself, and it opened--opened on the first page, and showed her plainly the first and only entry. If an adder had uncoiled itself from between the leaves and stung her, Daphne could not have dropped it more hastily.

But suddenly she paused on the path, and turning, retraced her steps, picked up the little book, and ran, without stopping, into the cottage, slamming the door behind her, and up the little crooked stairs into her bedroom. There she sat down on the bed and read the fatal words again: "Friday--Dinner and theatre, Philip," in Philip's most clear, rather feminine handwriting! She cried aloud in sharp, hard groans, and lay thus till her passion had spent itself; then, nearly as suddenly as she had flung herself on the bed, she rose and stood, full of aimless action, looking burning in front of her right through her reflection in the long glass. Suddenly the meaning of her reflection struck her. The rose-flaming cheeks (Daphne was one of the rare women whom tears cannot disfigure) grew a deeper rose, an expression of hope flashed across her face, an eager expression of relief, as if a friend had come unexpectedly in some deadly peril; she flung out her hands in passionate welcome.

"I am beautiful," she said. Drawing back a few steps, she noted all her graces--the lovely hair, the wide eyes, the delicate shape of her face, the round white throat, sloping shoulders, the slimmest of waist and hips, the long line from hip to the white sandaled feet. "I am beautiful," she added again, and laughing hardy added, "and I am not simple any more, I will not go on dragging it out! I will do what I am going to do at once." She regarded her face in the mirror again. "Yes she said, getting up, I will go on the stage! I will go to Mand's friend, Mr. Hodges, he's so well known, and he offered to help me that Christmas he saw me act at Mand's--If at any time I wanted to go on the stage. Oh, how keen I was about it till--till--I met Philip!" She pulled herself up here. And he's just got a theatre of his own--what luck!"

She collected the tea-things most quickly and prosaically, and was soon back in the little red-tiled kitchen, realizing for the first time in her life the relief of action! The cups and plates once more shining on the little deal dresser, she began to cook the dinner. She had just laid the table in the sitting room when she heard the click of the garden gate, and for a few minutes her heart beat wildly, passionately, her cheeks burned, and the tears rushed to her eyes. Then she controlled herself. "I will say nothing," she thought; "I will hear what he will tell. I will be quite natural till then. Oh, how I hate him."

The next moment Philip, fair, small and neat-looking, was kissing her on the cheek. "What a color you've got," he said. "Cooking your dinner," she retorted laughing. Oh, I've had a busy day." Then feeling he might know and that silence on her part might look suspicious she added: "Lydia has been here"; and then, not quite satisfied that the tone of her voice was altogether natural, and over anxious not to betray herself, she turned and ran to the kitchen, saying: "I must see to the dinner."

But by the time they began dinner she was quite herself again and awaited his lie with smiling lips. They had just finished the soup when Philip suddenly said: "Did Lydia tell you nothing--nothing particular, I mean." Daphne, in spite of her outward composure, was glad that at that moment Philip had just gone to the sideboard "with the plates, and so was behind her." "No," she answered carelessly, "she didn't tell me anything exactly, but of course, I guessed there was something." "I've gone and mixed myself up in it," said Philip. "Well?" thought Daphne. "And tomorrow night, Daphne"--he paused, and, pressing her, rubbed his hands softly against her cheek--"tomorrow night I'm to be sacrificed on the altar of friendship. Will you be lonely?" "What do you mean?" said Daphne, a trifle bewildered. "Well," he replied, resuming his seat, "Lydia and Dick Morris have fallen out." "Dick Morris," echoed Daphne. "Yes, Dick, a great pal of mine, though I haven't seen much of him since we married. Yes that's it. They were keeping it dark. Engaged, you know, and I'm to play the part of loyal friend and bring these two foolish young people together again; so I've asked Lydia to dinner and a theatre, and--and, well, Dick's to come in somewhere, and I get a wire and leave him to see her home, and the thing's done! Neat isn't it? So you see that's why you couldn't come; easier for one to clear out than two." "Hullo!"--for Daphne had risen and was standing white and trembling at the end of the table. "I inquired, getting up and putting an arm round her--"going to faint? Steady, old girl." He led her towards the couch, but Daphne laid her fair head on his shoulder and burst into a flood of tears.

The next night, while Daphne sat in the cool garden, still chastened and humble, and mused, with tears of contrition in her lovely eyes, on Philip's goodness and her own unworthiness, Lydia's brown eyes were dancing and sparkling as she leaned forward across a little table at the Florence, and listened to Philip, who--flushed with laughter and the approval of his fair guest--told her how skillfully he had managed the rather delicate affair of the entry in the little engagement book.

"What a good thing it was you thought of wiring to me when you missed it," he concluded. "What a good thing it is that Daphne has a simple mind," responded Lydia laughing.

From a Woman's Point of View

The arrival of young women immigrants this fall at the rate of 500 and 1000 per ship, most of them destined for domestic service, might at first seem to promise some relief from the perplexities of the household servant question. But when we note that with considerably more than a hundred thousand already in that service in New York that city is loudly complaining of an under-supply it is evident that the season's recruits will be but drops in buckets.

In these circumstances, then, the wages for house servants will continue high; and the servants, knowing the economic strength of their position, will continue to be as unsatisfactory as they choose. The hotel affords a refuge from the difficulties of getting satisfactory domestic service which perhaps mainly accounts for the rapid increase of hotels and similar dwellings in all the larger cities.

For the family of each grade above that of the very limit income there are hotels of their equivalent which afford attraction refuges from the servant difficulty. Nothing else can account for the amazing increase of hotels and apartment houses; and it is not a wholesome social condition.--Providence Tribune.

It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Antiseptic methods are becoming popular with the country barbers in England. A man dropped into a village shop the other day and was shaved. Then came a wash by a sponge whose odor suggested the morgue. The victim's face was burned like fire. "What on earth have you got on that sponge?" he demanded. "Ah," answered the villager, proudly, waving the sponge in the air, "that's carbolic acid. It's so safe!"

Trial Catarh treatments are being mailed out free, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. These tests are proving to the people--without a penny's cost--the great value of this scientific prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Catarh Kennedy. Sold by All Dealers.

Does a big Christmas tree with all its "radiance" take too much time and seem to make it worth the trouble? If so, do have a Christmas peanut hunt. Then hide a set for each one in the family, enclosing in each direction for some new place to look. At the final place he must find some of his gifts.

Another substitute for the tree is a grab bag, in which all the smaller gifts are found. A waftah is put in the middle of the parlor floor, and each one takes a turn in choosing a package. If he gets one marked for some one else he must wait till his turn for another grab. The outside of the bag may be decorated as prettily as one wishes, of course. It could be covered with white paper, and a few sprays of evergreen wound around while the larger gifts are piled around the base.

One family prolonged the day by having a gift for each hour from 8 in the morning till 5 at night. This kept the children happy all day, and saved that hill about the middle of the forenoon when all the gifts have been received and there's nothing to do.

This School has a Class in Weaving

Greenville, Ill., Dec. 12.—Prof. H. G. Russell, superintendent of the High School, has introduced instruction in loomweaving into the school curriculum. Parents of some of the pupils declare they do not want their children's thoughts turned so early to love; but Prof. Russell and his wife, who is his assistant, say they will see the experiment through. Russell thinks in time courtship will be taken out of the realm of empiricism and lifted into the realm of exact science as chemistry followed alchemy.

Twenty-three pupils, ten of whom are girls, constitute the first class in the world to receive formal instruction in courtship. Prof. Russell has given them three lectures and they have written essays. The instruction will be chiefly through study of the literature of love, including the courtship of Miles Standish, "Romeo and Juliet," and other Standard works. Pupils will be expected to manifest their love by letter. How to take heart by storm or by siege. How to detect the advent of the grand passion. How to behave if parental objection is manifested. How to pay a compliment. How to encourage a bashful suitor or corner an elusive girl. How to allay unfounded jealousy.

How to propose.

The etiquette of the engagement ring. Department during engagement. Girls will learn how to promise to be a sister. The year's course will take the students all the way from the first sweet sting of love to the altar.

Christmas "Tips."

Flat card cases of Dresden ribbon are the latest. They are lined with chambray. They ribbon ties are as popular as ever. Candle shades covered with pale pink baby ribbon in little crinkly loops are attractive, and as presents would please most housewives. Perfumed coat and skirt hangers are popular and so are the ribbon cases that contain the glass tube hanger holder. Small pasteboard boxes covered with flowered ribbon are charming for jewelry cases. White headed pins are stuck into the corners as legs.

In Memoriam Mary Ann Dewar

The long, rough road is ended
Her weary feet have pressed
How rough to her weak footsteps
Perhaps we never guessed
But with the weary journey
She'll be no more distressed
The face we held and softly kiss
Bears no impress but that of bliss.
We know that many pages
Within the book of years
She has pursued with anguish
Amid her falling tears
That partings, change and doubting
Have caused her many fears
Forgotten now each pang of woe,
No grief again her soul will know.
We gaze at her dear features,
Within the sunset beam,
And think that she is dwelling
Where changeless peace is found;
That there no painful partings
Her loving heart will wound;
And weeping for her, loved and gone
We gather strength to walk alone.
Along the way before us,
Whither we do not know,
It may be strewn with blessings,
And pleasures we may know,
Or, thickly set with dangers,
May bring us naught but woe;
Yet, o'er life's pathway, she has come
At last unto her heavenly home.

The World Over

It is said in Montreal that the Dominion Iron and Steel Company have closed a deal for the Cow Bay coal areas of the Cumberland Railway and Coal Company situated 10 miles from the Steel plant.

French archeology has suffered a serious loss in a quarter where the tourists of the world will feel it most. In the commune of St. Sever in the Pau region stood the ancient chateau of Dumes, rich in historical association, and an admirable type of a style of architecture now almost forgotten. This most interesting building has been totally destroyed by fire.

The building of the biggest airship in the world, recently decided upon at a conference of aerial navigation interests, which took place in Rochester, N. Y., is an ambitious experiment. It is to combine the two principles represented by a monster gasbag and aeroplanes, so that if accident befalls the gasbag the aeroplanes can be started working immediately.

W. J. Collis, a building contractor of Seattle, believes the British steel ship Andelana, which sank in the harbor at Tacoma twelve years ago, can be raised and another attempt will be made. Thousands of dollars have been spent in futile attempts to raise the ship in the past ten years. She would be worth $100,000 and Collis thinks it can be done for $10,000. He has devised a steel cage to carry out the project.

SYNOPSIS OF
Canadian North-West
Homestead Regulations.

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 3 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person or by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate.
Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of the homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line, exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

BY THE WAY

1907. LUCAS COUNTY, Christmas.

How time passes? Many a sigh will follow the smile bestowed on the happy children just after the dawn at Christmas.

The joy that Christmas brings is tinged as age creeps on us, with sorrow for those who have 'gone before.' In every family circle some familiar face is missing, some loved one gone.

A touch of sadness is usually present in our happiest moments.

'Granite Town Greetings' extends to all the compliments of the season.

The man who makes money in a community has a duty to perform to that community. It may be that he has made his money by his superior business ability, and that he would have done as well anywhere. That does not alter the case. If his gifts are great his responsibility is equally as great. No man was placed on earth for the sole purpose of making money, and the man who has this as his ideal had better never have been born. It is not an act of charity, but the performance of a simple duty for the man who has made money to pass a little of it on for the benefit of the community, even though he never expects to see a dollar of his contribution back.

The beautiful weather of last week proved bonanza for the store keepers. "PEACE ON EARTH."

How shall it be brought about? Capital and Labor; these are the two giant conflicting powers in the world today. Between them there is continually the noise of battle. Can peace be restored? Is there anything in this Christmas song we sing today that will bring together these contending elements?

To produce a holy populace is the object of that religion introduced by the angel's song. The measure of the "good news" is found not alone in its spread to "all" laterally, but also by its penetration up and through every state of society vertically. It is the work of the gospel to change and save the world. In this change we have the elements of peace.

This latter problem is but another name for the problem of our country. We are fond of boasting of our progress in the wealth of certain successful men, but the test in the weaver of their employees. Not the achievements of the great but the state of man in the ordinary walks of life, is the index of a country's achievement. Not our armies, men-of-war, or fortresses, but the health, integrity, and intelligence of the workmen in the country's surly and defense. Until recent years labor was despised. When capital and labor chanced to meet, the former would, with averted face, pass by on the other side.

The past few years have witnessed a change which, although peaceful and attended with comparatively little violence, has been of greater significance than any revolution the world has ever seen. But while much has been done to bring these powers to clasp hands and seek a common good, much yet remains to be done. The "rights of man," must take no second place to the "rights of property."

How shall labor gain its proper ends, and the toiler at last enter into his kingdom? Only the general acceptance by mankind at large of the sentiments of Him whose name we honor today, will accomplish the end in view. This will exalt him that is low and bring down him that is high, so that they shall meet on the same level.

"Peace on earth." Let the world sing it from the heart and sing it altogether. It will hasten the time when, unmindful of the fact that one may be employer and the other employee, men shall meet each other as men, and fraternize under the royal arch,—the "Brotherhood of Man."

Uncle Sam's demonstration, in the starting out of eighteen battleships for the Pacific at this time, is altogether out of harmony with the spirit of the season, whether it means merely a demonstration or something else. The chip which "fighting Bob" has on his shoulder may be knocked off by the little Jap who so "treacherously" attacked and defeated Russia, in the open sea.

The Provincial opposition could have made no wiser choice that which they have made in Dr. Taylor. If success is at all possible, in their coming campaign much of it will depend on the popularity and moral strength of their fourth man.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Father Lavery received word last week of the death of his brother, Edward Lavery, in Roxbury, Mass.

The House of Commons adjourned on Thursday for the Christmas vacation. It will meet again on January 8th.

Although the House of Commons has only been in session a few weeks two of its members have already died. Mr. Lovell was a Liberal and Mr. Gunn a Conservative.

Don't forget to get your Xmas supply of peanuts, Xmas mixture, and fruit at A. G. Brown's. Also a good line of Xmas postals to select from. Come early and get the best.

The engagement is announced of Miss Stella Lynott, daughter of Mrs. Lynott and the late P. Lynott, Esq., of Edmuntston, N. B., to Mr. F. Dillon Henderson of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

At Woburn, Mass., on the 9th inst by Rev. W. J. Stewart, D.D., Dr. Vernon C. Stewart, A. B., to Miss Louise Thompson of San Francisco, California. Dr. Stewart is a son of Rev. W. J. Stewart.

Recent storms on the coast have worked great havoc among shipping. The Thomson liner Kildona, bound from Shields for Portland, Me., became a total wreck on Brazil Rock, Cape Sable. The crew were rescued and taken to St. John.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—The Union Trust Company has served notice on George W. Fowler, M.P., and others, in a suit for fifty-five thousand dollars, the alleged excess price charged in a British Columbia timber and mills deal, which was ventilated before the Insurance Commission some time ago.

The Thomas W. Lawson, which was wrecked in Broad Sound last night, was the largest schooner and the only seven-master afloat. The Lawson was launched at Quincy, Mass., in 1902 and was owned by the Coastwise Transportation Company of Boston. When wrecked, she was under charter which brought her owners a return of $78,000 a year. Thomas W. Lawson, the financier, was a part owner in the boat. It is a peculiar coincidence that the big seven-master went to her end last night—Friday, the 13th inasmuch as that was the title of a book written by Mr. Lawson.

Hon. J. Israel Tarte former Minister of Public Works, died at his home in Boncherville on Wednesday last. Mr. Tarte was within one month of completing the sixtieth year of a strenuous life. The son of a farmer living at Lanoré, Que., Mr. Tarte studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1871. He early took to journalism and to politics, and has been very much in the public eye since 1877, when he was elected to the Quebec legislature. Quarrelling with his party, the conservatives, he was elected to the House of Commons in 1891, and succeeded in driving Sir Hector Langevin from public life. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier founded his government in 1896 Mr. Tarte became Minister of Public Works, retiring from the ministry in 1902, and declining to be a candidate for the House of Commons in 1904. Since then he has been successfully conducting his paper, Le Patrie.

Fredericton, Dec. 15.—Bishop Richardson's enthronement is to take place at Christ Church Cathedral on Thursday, Feb. 6, nothing has been decided as yet as to what time of the day the ceremony will take place, in fact his lordship has as yet been unable to arrange any of the details for the ceremony which, however will be imposing and impressive.

Rev. C. D. Schofield, now stationed at Sydney (N. S.) who has been appointed Dean of Fredericton, is expected to arrive about the end of January, and it is altogether likely that the installation of the new dean will take place on the same date.

It is also possible that the beautiful new organ, which is now being erected, will be dedicated at the same time, thus combining three most impressive and beautiful services.

Capt. Pratt, late of the Curlew, is first officer of the United Fruit Co.'s steamer Sam Jones, 3,200 tons. She recently arrived in Boston from Central America.

Dr. Hugh P. O'Neill, of St. Andrews, was in St. John last week taking the medical examinations which entitle him to registration in New Brunswick—Freeman.

For several seasons as the holidays approached, Jonas Paul has disposed of a marvelous basket of wood, worked by his wife. These baskets are very beautiful in design and skilfully put together. Jonas usually holds a lottery and he is a lucky man who holds the winning ticket. Mr. R. T. Wetmore was fortunate last week.

Perhaps the very best present you could give your absent brother, father, cousin or friend, would be a year's subscription to the Granite Town Greetings. This is the season of giving. Everybody you meet has a parcel of some kind, in their hands. The spot you carelessly used for your hat in the hall, the sitting room and even the shelf at the head of the stairs, is no longer available, there are boxes, parcels, horses, trains, dolls and buildings round everywhere. It is a pleasure to give, a pleasure to receive, and generally in giving we hope pleasant memories will linger with the gift. A year's subscription to "Granite Town Greetings," will awaken these pleasant thoughts fifty two times a year.

The public school examinations took place on Friday last. One trustee, Jas. O'Brien, attended. This shows a woeful lack of interest on the part of the school board. There may perhaps be some excuse for a few of the members, this being the busy season, in the stores, but it would appear to us the duty of at least a majority of the nine trustees to attend the public examinations. Their presence would be an encouragement to the teachers and have a stimulating effect on the children. Regarding the general public it is a shame that only three or four were interested enough to attend. The children acquitted themselves with credit and gave every proof of careful attention on the part of the teachers.

Dr. Bayard of St. John, died on Dec. 17th. He was the oldest practicing physician in New Brunswick, probably in the world. In 1848, Dr. Bayard married Susan Maria, daughter of John Wilson of Chamcook, N. B., formerly a large ship owner and merchant, and one of the promoters of the St. Andrews and Woodstock Railway. It was from him that Dr. Bayard received the first telegram sent to St. John, and which read thus: To Dr. W. Bayard: Being the first subscriber to the Electric Telegraph Company, I am honored by the first communication to your city announcing this great and wonderful work God has made known to man by giving him control of His lightning. (Signed) JOHN WILSON.

A large number of the Electors of the Eastern parishes attended the meeting held in Court's Hall on Thursday evening last. A. B. Copp, M.P.P., of Westmorland—Provincial Organizer of the Liberal Party in New Brunswick, was present and delivered a forcible address on the issues of the campaign. The gentleman gave a thorough explanation of the stand of the Government in regard to the road law and claimed that Mr. Hazen and his followers did not oppose the law when it was placed on the statute— they merely differed with the Government on the question of the administration of the law. Mr. Copp made a very favorable impression on those present, aggressive and eloquent his remarks indicated confidence in the Government cause and confidence in their success at the polls when the battle comes.

A short address by Mr. Edward McCattan followed by an explanation by Dr. C. C. Alexander who then proceeded to nominate Mr. R. T. Wetmore as the candidate for Eastern Charlotte and no other name being submitted and a ballot taken Mr. Wetmore was declared the nominee. Mr. Wetmore thanked those present for the honor paid him and promised at a future meeting to outline and go fully into the platform on which he intended to stand.

I want to do some Christmas shopping today dear," said a fond wife—"that is if the weather is favorable. What are the forecasts?"

At the other end of the table his husband, consulting his paper read aloud: "Rain, snow, thunder, lightning and floods."—Lippincott's.

Will Shirley of Milltown, who has been employed in the round house at McAdam for the past six months, met with a serious accident Saturday evening about 5.30, with the result that he was brought home on the late train that evening suffering with injuries to his chest, back, neck and head, and some anxiety is felt that his spine may be injured.

One of the large steel buckets, which have a capacity to carry one half ton of coal to the engine tender, in some manner failed to perform its part and Mr. Shirley, in an effort to adjust it, was jammed between the bucket and sluice way. He was unconscious from six o'clock Saturday evening until five o'clock Sunday evening.

Dr. Lawson is in attendance. Harold and George Shirley accompanied Mr. Shirley from McAdam to his home.

Druggists everywhere are now dispensing Preventives, for they are not only safe, but decidedly effective and prompt. Preventives contain no quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh nor sickening. Taken at the "sneeze stage" Preventives will prevent Pneumonia, Bronchitis, La Grippe, etc. Hence the name, Preventives Good for febrile children. 48 Preventives 25 cents. Trial boxes 5 cts. Sold by All Dealers.

Charles Fuller of the Pulp and Paper Co. returned from a trip up river on Saturday. He reports good progress in lumbering operations and said all that is wanted now is a few inches of snow. The bears are taking to winter quarters, so we may look for cold weather.

Midnight mass will be celebrated in the Catholic church and a special programme of music has been arranged in which a number of the young people will participate. As is customary Rev. Father Carson will celebrate three masses.

Christmas evening the children of the Baptist S. S. will give "Santa Claus Dream" and have their Christmas tree in Court's hall.

The churches will hold special services on Christmas day. The young people of the Church of England have decorated their temporary place of worship with evergreens and potted plants. Services will be held at eleven a. m. on Christmas day. Solos commemorating the day will be sung by Miss Annie Brown and Arthur Dove and Rev. Mr. Lynds will preach.

Miss Maxwell gave her scholars a Xmas tree on Thursday evening last. The school room was prettily decorated with evergreens and the tree laden with presents and lighted with candles proved a pleasant attraction for the children. Governor Parks acted as Santa Claus and distributed the presents with dignity.

The services in the Baptist Church on Sunday will have reference to Christmas. Sermon morning and evening by the pastor Rev. E. V. Buchanan. The anthem in the morning will be "The Shepherds' Vision" at the evening service "I bring you good tidings." "And there were Shepherds."

With the success of Donalds the famous young singer and the sailing for Europe for advanced instruction of two other promising young Canadian Singers, Miss Blanche Gilmor of Montreal and Miss Blanche Gilmor of St. George, Canada would seem to have every chance of being well represented in the great world of vocal art in the near future. Miss Blanche Gilmor spoken of in the above taken from the Montreal Standard is the daughter of Senator and Mrs. D. Gilmor. She was born in St. George and educated at McGill university. Possessing a charming personality, Miss Gilmor has many warm friends who will be delighted to hear of her success.

OFF TO THE SOUTH POLE

Latest British Expedition Sailed Under a White Flag.

The latest British expedition towards the South Pole left London recently when the Nimrod sailed from the East India Docks. It was announced that the King and Queen would visit the vessel which is called the Nimrod.

The Nimrod is an old steamer, and is well suited for work among the ice. The destination of the vessel is Fort Elysium. There the travelers will bid farewell to civilization for many months, while the Nimrod, under Captain English's command, carries on a series of scientific investigations along the ice fringes.

According to present plans it is intended that three of the land party shall go due south to the Pole, three due east, and three along a line between the courses taken by the two other parties. Should all go well, the land party will have returned at the base by Christmas, 1908, ready for the arrival of the Nimrod in January, 1909.

Lieut. Shackleton feels great confidence in the motor-car which forms part of the outfit. With this machine the task of haulage should be greatly diminished. It has been subjected to most careful tests, and the experiments regarding the freezing of the petrol have proved encouraging. The expedition is well fitted out with scientific instruments, which have been lent by the Admiralty.

When the Nimrod went down the Thames a white flag, the significance of which seemed to mystify the seafaring fraternity on the quay, waved from the foremast. An interesting fact is attached to this piece of cloth. According to shipping usage, the flag of the country to which the vessel is bound will generally be displayed at this point, and as the expedition will visit a veritable "no man's land" a white flag becomes necessary.

It is hoped that in future vessels making for the land in question will show the British flag.

ROYAL HOME LIFE

Spectator's Witness Pretty Scene at Buckingham Palace.

Several charming glimpses of the Royal home life were vouchsafed to a large crowd which gathered at Buckingham Palace the other day to witness the departure of the King and Queen for Hampton.

At an upper window over the main entrance of the Palace the Queen could be observed surrounded by the children of the Palace and Princess of Wales. Her Majesty was fondling and kissing the children, who appeared eager to return her caresses, even at the risk of disarranging the pretty tresses, with its loose blue feather, which Her Majesty had donned for the occasion.

Unattended even by a nurse, the older children shortly afterwards left in a brougham for Marlborough House, while the baby, in a very homely-looking perambulator, was taken for an airing in the grounds of the palace.

MANACLED SWIMMER'S FEAT.

Nine-Mile Journey in the Thames by Fifty-Year-Old Professor.

Prof. Jules Gautier, the well-known London swimmer, recently performed a remarkable feat in the Thames, covering the nine-mile course from Richmond to Putney with his arms and legs manacled. Despite his fifty years, he swam the distance in 2 1/2 hours.

At 5 p. m. his wrists were bound together with manacles of leather and steel, separated by two inches of steel wire, while his ankles were united in a similar manner. He then dived off a boat moored under Richmond bridge, while the crowd on the bridge cheered the daring swimmer.

Gautier at once adopted the stroke which he used all through his great performance. He kept on his right side, his manacled hands being brought out of the water as in the overhand stroke, and when they descended into the water he brought them down side by side so that they formed a large scoop. He could not kick in the ordinary way with his legs, so he adopted a motion like that of the screw of a steamer, which helped him along at a wonderful pace.

In fact, all things considered, swimmers could hope to equal. He did the first half-mile to Richmond lock in 11 minutes and 20 seconds, keeping up an average of twenty-eight strokes a minute.

The first three miles occupied 43 minutes, 33 seconds, and at the end of the first hour exactly four miles had been covered. Barnes railway bridge, five miles from Richmond, was reached in 1 hour 13 minutes and 22 seconds, and shortly afterwards the swimmer experienced his "bad time."

He reached a stretch of nearly dead water, and his tank proved nearly heart-breaking. But he never rested, and when he passed Hammersmith bridge the worst was over. The seven and a quarter miles had been covered in 2 hours and 18 minutes. The tide was then of much more assistance.

Exactly at four minutes to eight, two hours and fifty-four minutes from the time he had started, Gautier swam through the central arch of Putney bridge.

"I do not feel at all tired," he told the pressmen who followed in a boat. "But my eyes have suffered a good deal from the continual splash of the water."

BRITAIN'S SHIPPING.

Increase in the Number of British Seamen.

In two years the number of people engaged in the navigation of ships registered in the United Kingdom has increased by more than 11,000, and last year reached a total of over 170,000. The tonnage in actual employment rose in the same time from 10,275,000 to 11,035,000, and it is satisfactory to know that in the manning of these extra ships the British seaman has more than held his own. Indeed, the number of foreigners on British ships has declined since 1904 by nearly 2,000, while the Laosars have increased by more than 1,000.

STORY OF HARDSHIPS.

Alleged Ill-Treatment of Men in the Lumber Camps.

La Presse of Montreal in a recent issue devoted three pages to a thrilling story of hardships said to have been encountered in the lumber camps at Macdonnell's chate, and Druitwood City, in New Ontario.

That lumbermen are half starved, robbed of their wages, ill-treated by their foremen and threatened with five arms if they dare resist is hard to believe.

Still that is what a reporter of La Presse, who spent two weeks in the wilds, declares to be true. He interviewed a large number of shantymen. Before they reached the camp they say they had to travel 600 miles with dry bread and cheese as their only food. During their long trip on a slow train they were not even given water to drink.

Before arriving at camp after tramping through the woods for miles with out food they were relieved of their written contracts and subjected to altogether different treatment.

The men say that the company will not take cash to settle any indebtedness for board, railway fares or any other expenses, but demand that the men work till they have evaded up accounts, and the company invents all kinds of charges to keep the men at work.

A party of workmen once tried to escape, but were run down by private detectives and marched back to camp under cover of guns.

Food of a bad quality is supplied, they say, and scores of cases of exorbitant charges for necessities of life are recorded. The price even of postage stamps is increased.

A group of Italians newly arrived at Druitwood wanted to purchase rubber boots before they started to work in the swamps. The company refused to let them have any, however, before they had earned them in work.

The Italians insisted, and some of the clerks tried to disperse the crowd with revolvers. The Italians drew knives, and one of them had a rifle. The company furnished the footwear.

Hon. J. J. Foy was asked if his attention had been called to the story of La Presse.

He said it had not, but some time ago similar representations were made to the Dominion Government regarding the treatment of a number of Austro-Hungarians employed by the contractors building the extension of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway. Col. Sherwood, chief of the Dominion police, referred the complaints to Attorney-General Foy, who sent a special commissioner to Macdonnell's Chutes to investigate. The report of this officer has been sent to Col. Sherwood.

WHY SCOTCHMEN SUCCEED.

Some of the Best Immigrants Canada Receives.

Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, in a recent speech, gave a breezy description of the characteristics of Scotchmen and why they succeed in life. A description of which was the most interesting in that it came from an ardent Scot, says P. T. O. The Scot, said Lord Charles, is one of the most hard-headed men in the world. He pays the greatest attention to detail. He has proverbial honesty of purpose. He is absolutely straight in his dealings. He has indomitable energy. The Scot is very business-like in his methods, and in many cases he possesses exceptional ability so far as mechanical skill goes. These characteristics of the Scot are the characteristics that have brought the Empire to the place it occupies at the present time. Lord Charles Beresford adds that Englishmen and Irishmen have similar characteristics, but these distinctive qualities are essentially Scotch, and that is why Scotchmen all over the world have advanced to the great positions in every sphere of activity.

It was under a Scotman that Lord Charles served three years of his apprenticeship to the sea as a midshipman; namely, Sir Houston Stewart, who was one of the finest seamen who ever trod deck. Another great admiral whom he remembered in his early days was Sir Alexander Milne, familiarly known as "Sandy." Recently Lord Charles was over upon business in Canada. One day he saw two trains arriving with emigrants for this country, and he said to the mayor of Calgary, "What lucky people you Canadians are!" because in those trains were the finest specimens of Scotchmen and North of England Englishmen he had ever seen, full of energy and full of go.

Murder Through Ignorance.

In the case of the Indian chief and medicine man in the Keewatin district taken to Norway House for murdering a squaw of their tribe supposed to be possessed by an evil spirit, or Wendigo, it appears the prisoners were appointed by a meeting of the band to which they belonged to put an end to the unhappy victim of savage superstition. The woman was sick and afterwards became delirious, and the Indian believed that when this happens the Wendigo has entered the afflicted person, and if the latter afterwards dies a natural death, the evil spirit escapes to the woods and the game takes fright and disappears and famine results. The report received by the Indian department stated that the band assembled according to established usage, and "the high honor" of choosing the squaw to death in order that the spirit might remain imprisoned in the corpse was accorded to the chief and medicine man. The two executioners, therefore, placed a piece of canvas around the squaw's neck, with a noosed rope, and tightening the rope, the ravages of the poor demented creature were stopped and the band was satisfied that the evil spirit remained safely imprisoned and that the game in the woods would not disappear. News of the affair coming to the knowledge of the police, the chief and his assistant were taken into custody, the band protesting that what had been done was the custom of their fathers, and they did not know it was wrong, and asking for leniency.

Lighthouse Keepers.

A French writer, telling of the life of the lighthouse keepers along the coast of Brittany, thinks it strange that any of them escape insanity.

The system of relief that prevails in this country has no equivalent in the French service, and, with short intervals, a French lighthouse keeper may spend forty years of his life tending the lamps in one station. With a single companion, and that station may be on a rock out in the channel or the bay of Biscay, which boats can approach only in fine weather.

As a matter of fact, the men often do become insane or at least develop monomania. Sometimes it takes the form of hatred of each other.

In one case, at Terencec, one of two men was found by a party who come off from the shore in response to signals lying dead in his bed with a long keen bladed knife through his heart.

His companion's story was that he had committed suicide after a long period of melancholia. There was no proof to the contrary, but after examination the wound the authorities doubted the truth of the story.

On another occasion, where father and son tended, an isolate beacon together, the young man was seized with an attack of acute mania. When the time came to light up he planted himself in front of the doorway to the lantern and refused to allow his father to ascend.

The old man attacked his son and finding he could subdue him in no other way, so that the lights on which so many lives depended might be kindled, strangled him to death. The next day he signalled to the shore for help and gave himself up to the police, telling what he had done.

Sickness and death are no strangers in the lighthouses. There is ninety-nine times out of a hundred no chance of medical aid, and the well man prescribes from the medicine chest for the sick one as best he can. He also does doubt duty until his partner recovers or relief comes.

There are not infrequent cases when the survivor has to sew up his dead comrade in a hammock and launch his weighted body from the rocks into the sea. Then come long nights of lonely watching.

In winter time the lamps must be tended and the clockwork kept going for fourteen or fifteen hours, the lantern is unheated except for the glow of the lamps up in its ceiling, and the government allows the watcher no chair lest he fall asleep.

It is no wonder that weird fancies come to the men, they hear voices calling from the sea and see drowned men and women looking up at them from the breakers. One of their horrors is of the birds that beat against the windows of the lantern at night, attracted by the glare.

Just as is the case with American lighthouses, the feathered armies that migrate at night beat against the walls and balconies of the beacons with their wings and dash against the panes of the lantern, sometimes breaking the glass with their beaks. As their eyes shine in the glass they seem to express anger or bloodthirstiness to the men within.

One of the most pitiful stories of lighthouse life is told of the keeper at Four en Finisterre, who kept all alone a station on an isolate rock a couple of miles out from the shore, out so far beaten that only once a month or so was a boat sent out to it with supplies.

The cabin in which the keeper made his home was on the shore opposite his lighthouse, and the recreation he most enjoyed was watching it through his telescope. He could see the people go in and out and the children playing in front of it.

One day he saw something fluttering from the door jamb. He was puzzled. Then it flashed on him that it was a corpse and that some one had died in the house.

Was it his mother, he wondered, or his wife or one of his brothers? He counted the children later in the day, and they were all right.

The wind blew, and the water raged. No boat could come near him, and he watched the crowd of sympathizing friends come and go. Then he saw the funeral.

He recognized the cure at the head of the procession by his white surplice and the altar boys walking beside him.

Then came the coffin carried by six men. As the mourners walked after it he strained and strained his eyes trying to identify each and thus determine the missing one. But in vain. All walked with bowed head. The women's faces were buried in their handkerchiefs; the men held their hats before their faces. He could make out nothing characteristic.

The men who eight days later risked their lives to row out to him and break the news of his wife's death found him a physical and mental wreck from sleepless anxiety. But he had kept the light burning faithfully all the time.

The French lighthouse keepers receive from 700 to 950 francs a year--$140 to $190. When they are worn out they retire on a pension of $6.80 a month. --Chicago Record-Herald.

WILL KISSING BE PROHIBITED

The Osculatory Process Denounced by Scientists as Extremely Dangerous—How the Danger Can be Removed.

A keen discussion is being carried on by some of the best scientists as to the danger and "crime" of kissing, led by Dr. Somers, Health Officer of Atlanta City, and Dr. Nalpage, of the Medical Faculty of Paris. They charge the kiss with spreading grippe, scarlet fever, measles, mumps, whooping cough, typhoid fever, diphtheria, erysipelas, meningitis, tuberculosis, and many infectious skin diseases. They suggest legislation on the subject, and the posting of notices in railway stations, street cars and other public places, but they say it would be useless to post them on verandahs, in cosy corners, porches, shady nooks, or moonlit lawns. They also propose compulsory legislation for methods of disinfection of the mouth and purifying the breath, especially with a view to the protection of the innocent babies who are particularly subject to infection. The greatest and most effective purifier and germ destroyer known to medical science for the mouth, throat and breath, as well as for the blood, stomach and lungs, is Psychine, that triumph of the medical world that is attracting almost universal attention because of the wonderful results attending its use. One of its recent triumphs is told as a matter of experience in the following brief statement:

Dr. Storum Co. I am sending you photo and testimonial here with the first great remedy PSYCHINE. Your remedy did wonders for me. I was about 20 or 30 years of age when I took PSYCHINE. The doctor had given me two or three bottles of the same. My lungs and every organ of the body were terribly diseased and I was unable to breathe though I'd never get better. But PSYCHINE saved my life and I have never had a cough since, and Psychine is a permanent cure.

MRS. LIZZIE GARDNER, 303 Bathurst St., London, Ont.

Psychine, pronounced Si-hoon, is admitted to be the most wonderful of all disease and germ-destroying agencies. For building up the run-down system and curing all forms of stomach troubles and diseases of the chest, throat and lungs or head, it is simply unsurpassable. It is a reliable home treatment. For sale at all druggists, 50c and $1.00, or Dr. T. A. Storum, Limited, 179 King Street West, Toronto.

William Ludlow arrived from Woodstock last week where he purchased a very fine horse.

A paper is in circulation to raise money for a Dr. boat. We are all in hopes to see enough money obtained. It is very much needed, as we have not any resident doctor which makes it very bad in lowly weather.

All persons trespassing on the Thos. Seelye lots—woodland or farm—will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.
MARY McCL. CLARKE.

The scholars attending Miss Nellie Douglas' school enjoyed a Christmas tree on Friday last. As the tree was laden with good things the young people thoroughly enjoyed themselves.
