Fifty Vessels Ashore on the Coast of Newfoundland,

And Ten Lives at Least Reported Lost.

Numerous Disasters on the New York and New Jersey Shores.

Tugs, Barges, Schooners and Numberless Yachts Go Down-Wrecks Strew the Coast for Miles.

FIFTY VESSELS ASHORE-TEN LIVES LOST. ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Oct. 10 .- A terrible northeast gale raged at St. Pierre last night. This morning fifty vessels were ashore badly damaged. About ten lives were lost. A fleet of some 800 banking vessels was forced to abandon fishing on account of the gale on the Banks Sept. 29 and 30. These vessels have been returning here during the past few days with heavy losses of cables, anchors, lines and dorries, and several of the crew are reported missing and it is feared are lost.

THE STORM IN NEW YORK. NEW YORK, Oct. 10 .- New York is today a center of one of the most violent storms that has been known about these parts for years. It had been a genuine hurricane that found its origin in the Indies, swept the Gulf of Mexico, moved upward along the coast, doing much damage and last night reached this city. The storm is moving northeastward, and New England is now feeling its violence. The wires to Sandy Hook are down.

Two yachts were wrecked at Statem Island. The yacht Verena is ashere near Greenwich, Conn. Her crow are in the rigging anticipating a rescue. The East River gas tank, one of the largest in the country, was blown down this morning. Along the shore the wind blew at the rate of 77 miles an hour, A WOMAN KILLED. ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 10 .- During the gale this morning the large brick chimney on Mr. Kerr's house on Chestnut street was blown down, and the debris fell through the roof on Miss Mary Kerr, killing her instantly.

Hunting, L. I., Oct. 10 .- During the storm this morning the tug Belle Williams, with seven barges in tow, was wrecked while trying to make shelter at Lloyd's Harbor. Four of the crew are missing and it is feared were drowned.

WHERE ARE THE CREW ? FORT MONROE, Va., Oct. 10. - The schooner Henry Lippitt (Capt. Howes), with coal from Georgetown, while anchored in the roads, was run into by the schooner Redwing last night and sunk. Capt. Howe, the mate and steward took to the rigging and were rescued at midnight by the crew of the Bay Line steamer Alabama. Five of the crew took to the boat and have not since been heard from.

HOUSES BLOWN DOWN. SEABRIGHT, N. J., Oct. 10.-A row of one-story frame buildings was blown down by the gale here this morning; lose, $4,000. The fishing smack Maria Louise, loaded with fish, was driven ashore at Highland Beach and wrecked. The crew of ten men were saved by the life savers.

MANY SMALL CRAFT DESTROYED. ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., Oct. 10 .-The storm last night was the most violent that has visited these and adjoining shores for many years. A large number of small craft were destroyed.

TROLLEY CARS KNOCKED OUT. JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 10.—The storm did great damage in this city and greatly interfered with the working of trolley cars. The high wind tore down the wires in every direction and caused several accidents, two of which proved fatal to horses.

A DOZEN YACHTS WRECKED. NEW YORK, Oct. 24. - There was a great amount of damage done along the shore near Whitestone. About 6 a.m. an unkown schooner was seen off Whitestone going b fore the wind in the direction of New York. Her foremast was gone and most of her bow had been tern away. It is not known what became of her crew. Great damage was done in the harbors along the Westchester county share of the Sound. A lozen or more yachts were wrecked at a loss of $20,000. TREMENDOUSLY HIGH TIDE.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Oct. 10.—A terrible rain storm accompanied by a northwest wind swept over this place today. The tide is the highest ever recalled here, and many docks are under water. A number of small craft anchored in the harbor have been driven ashore. The sloop Dexter, H. A.

Townsend, was sunk. GONE TO PIECES. GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 10.—The schooner Adelaide (64 tons), owned at Bangor, Me., was driven on the rocks near here during the storm today and went to pieces. The crew effected a landing in their

A WILD STORM. WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 10.—The wild storm of last night along the South Atlantic coast doubtless caused many marine disasters. The bark Ogir, of Norway, from Hull, England, to Wilmington, N. C., in ballast, grounded on Cape Fear Bay and became a total loss. The crew of eleven men were rescued by the life savers. THREE LIVES LOST.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., Oct. 10 .- During the heavy gale last night several barges loaded with coal, bound east, and the large steam tug Williams, went ashore at Lloyd's Harbor. A woman and two children were lost. Some men belonging to the crews are missing, and are believed to have been drowned. The beach for a mile is covered with wreckage. The woman who was lost was aboard the barge Jennie Hughes, whose captain, James Murphy, was her brother. With her were her three children. At the height of the storm the woman and children took refuge in the cabin, which was built upon the deck. A wave tore away the cabin and carried it into the sea. The wrecked cabin, in which lay the woman's body, was afterwards found about a mile from where the barge went ashore. One of the children, an 11year-old boy, still alive, was found on the

DRANK CHLOROFORM.

Arthur Waterman's Deliberate Attempt at Suicide,

Emptied a Half-Onnce Bottle of the Drug -He Had Been Drinking.

One of the most deliberate and sensational attempts at suicide recorded in the city occurred at the corner of York and Ridout streets about 10:30 last night, when Arthur Waterman, a young man 25 years of age and unmarried, drank an ounce of chloroform, while in a frenzy caused by drink. Waterman is the junior partner in the firm of Simons & Waterman, second-hand furniture dealers. King street, and is an industrious and hard-working fellow. Drink, however, has been a curse to him, and while under its influence he is almost uncontrollable.

Yesterday he was was engaged at the residence of Mr. B. C. McCann, South London, putting up stove pipes. He quit work at 6 o'clock, and Mr. Simons, who lives at the corner of Simcoe and Henry streets, with whom Waterman boarded, watched for his return at the usual hour. But Waterman, instead of going home to tea, went on a spree. He failed to return by 9 o'clock, and Simons, feeling uneasy at his partner's absence, started up town in search of him Waterman was found half an hour later at the corner of Talbot and King streets engaged in a war of words with a stranger who, too, had been drinking. Simons and a friend named Frank Mann had to use a great deal of persuasion to get Waterman's consent to withdraw. He was in a rage and wanted to fight-nothing else would satisfy him. Finally he agreed to go, and down King street to Ridout he went, Simons and Mann holding either arm, At the corner of Ridout and York finally succeeded, and as he freed his right arm from the hold of Mr. Simons he dipped bottle, drank the contents, uttered the vial to one side. Waterman was unconscious in a very short time, and was removed to Dr. Logie's office, near by. The doctor was not at home, and Drs. Fraser and Teasdale were summoned. They administered an emetic, but as the poison had been absorbed it was powerless. A galvanic battery was then applied, and it soon resulted in the respiration being restored.

the hospital, where his recovery will probably be a matter of a few days. The Nettie mentioned above is a daughter of Mr. Simons, and was on the scene shortly after the suicidal attempt was made. The bottle was recovered and handed to the police. The drug had been

Closing Session of the Middlesex Assizes.

The Slayer of Wm. Cain Sent to Penitentiary for Five Years.

Mr. McEvey's Plea for Mercy on Behalf of the Prisoner-Justice Rebertson's Remarks in Passing Sentence.

Wodnesday Afternoon. The jury in the Bowers manslaughter Robertson took his seat at 2:30 this afternoon. Bowers, in the dock, wore the same haggard look that has characterized his eatures since his incarceration on June 24. The spectators filled the seats and chairs around the table, and included Father Connolly, the prisoner's spiritual adviser for eight years past, and Father Tiernan, of this city. The clerk of the court inquired in the usual way whether or not a verdict had been reached; if so, what? "Guilty, with a recommendation to the greatest degree of mercy," responded the foreman, and the silence pervading the room was deathlike. Judge Robertson discharged the jury, thanking them and all the petit jurors for their attendance.

Sentence of the court upon the prisoner was then moved by Mr. McDougall. "Well, I will ask the prisoner what he has to say," said Judge Robertson. Bowers stood up, and in a broken voice said: "I am guilty in the eyes of the law

-but it was simply an accident.' Prisoner's counsel appealed for leniency. Bowers, he said, had a family of seven children depending upon him. He was 53 streets Waterman again became boisterous years of age. "The only point to which I and wanted to free himself. In this he desire to call your attention," said Mr. Mc-Evoy, "is that the prisoner was living in a neighborhood well known as capable of his hand into his vest pocket, pulled out a terrorizing any person, and that at the time of the unfortunate accident he was in words "Good-bye, Nettie," and threw the a high state of excitement and fear. He was afraid he would be murdered in his house, together with his family. He went out of the house simply for fear of having his family maltreated. There is no doubt as to the truth of this. In view of his age and these facts, therefore I would ask you to be as merciful as you can."

Judge Robertson, in addressing the prisoner, said that every person convicted of manslaughter was liable to imprisonment for life. The grand jury had taken a most merciful view of the prisoner's case in bringing in a bill of manslaughter, but he (the judge) was sorry it had been done. They had been very strictly charged. From the evidence before the grand jury a verdict of murder should have been returned by them, and the case left to the petit jury to reduce it to manslaughter. However, the action of the grand jury was not to be criticised. He was bound to consider that the jurors had acted conscientiously. They had relieved the court from investigating a charge of murder, as laid down by the crown-and most warrantedly laid, the judge thought. all the facts. The prisoner's counsel had done all he could in his behalf, and had | sought to bring facts before the court which could not be admitted as evidence. 'Your counsel stated that you were living in terror," continued the judge. "You took upon yourself to commit an act which hurried to eternity one of your neighbors, and for that you will have to answer in the hereafter. It is only for me to carry out the law. Fortunately for you, I have discretion in the matter, and I shall give heed to the recommendation of the jury formercy. cannot say that there was the slightest provocation for your act. You possessed yourself of that pistol for some unlawful purpose. You must have intended to make use of it when you put it in your pocket. As to the young men-the Cains and John Bennett-I have nothing to say in their favor. They acted in a disgraceful manner. You interfered with them, but you should not have done so-and this is the result. The public must be protected. It is my duty to make the law what it is intended to be-a terror to evil-doers. Fortunately Cain lived long enough to receive the consolation of the good old father who attended on him, and to make a dying statement. The sentence of the court is Penitentiary at Kingston for five years."

NATURE'S TREASURES.

This Summer's Finds by Botanists

of London.

An Insectiverous Plant - A' New Geranium-Alfa-Alfa Appears-The Chicory Pest-A New Clover-A Birr That Pains.

The botanical section of the Entemological Society has just completed another summer's research among the woods and dales and mossy dells of London and vicinity, and as a result many specimens have been obtained that are foreign to and in cases entirely unknown in the flora of the case were in their places when Judge London district. With the cold weather this section of the society, like many of the plants which its members study, changes somewhat in the winter time, and is known as the microscopical section, When the flowers bloom again and the leaves begin to sprout they will once more be the botanical section. Mr. John A. Balkwell, South London, the treasurer of the society, is chairman of this section and an indefatigable searcher after botanical knowledge. Mr. Wm. T. Clement, B.A., teacher of botany at the Collegiate Institute, and secretary of the section, is also a lover of this branch of study, and accompanies many of his pupils in their rambles through wood and fen, amid nature in all her leveliness. Dr. Hodson, another member of the Collegiate Institute staff, is deeply interested in the study, but has an especial fondness for microscopical research. Prof. J. H. Bowman not only is well posted in all matters botanical but can talk about the finds of the section in an interesting manner. Mr. Wm. E. Saunders, whose father compiled the first flora of this district, while an earnest student of all pature, is much interested in this branch of the study. Inspector Dearness is one-as men who should know will tell you-who knows as much or a little more about the botany of Loudon than any other man. Dr. Stevenson, Mr. Melmoth Althouse and Mr. Samuel Baker, the last two named public school principals, also find the study fascinating. It's a very peculiar thing, but such is the case, that among the bogs in the region of London botanists will find in one the flora of this district, while in a neighboring bog the flora of the far north. And migratory birds from the north always seek out the ponds with their native flora. There are two very fruitful sources of new plants in the world of flora-the railway tracks and river beds. Why the former should be so is easily understood, with so much foreign travel in freight and passenger cars. Mr. Bowman recently discovered something entirely new to this locality-an insectiverous plant-utricularia. Its roots form little traps which hold fast the animalcu'æ, on the decomposition of which it subsists. Mr. Dearness' recent find of the obnoxious Russian tumbling weed has already been made known through the press. He recently brought down a very rare cream violet from Port Frank. Mr. Bowman found many specimens at Bala, Muskoka, that local botanists consider The prisoner had been given a fair trial, and a most patient inquiry was made into It is a fodder product from Colorado. and has become so much at home as to be discovered in three or four parts of the city at the same time. It has been reported in Canada before, but not in this city. A new geranium has made its appearance-geranium Molle. Mr. Balkwell discovered it and since then it has been found in all directions. It is a very pretty plant and worthy of cultivation. The members of the society notice with apprehension the growth of the chicory plant among the different farms. It promises to become a great pest unless farmers get to know it and weed it out. It was originally planted in the States for the sake of the product, but runs wild here. It is two or three feet high and of straggling growth. The birr grass or grass birr has appeared for the first time. It is a good deal like the clot birr in appearance but cannot be handled without pain. Mr. Balkwell has discovered a new clover. It is in size and formation like the small white clover but of a bright red color. There is no doubt but what it comes from a foreign country. A new wayside plant-spargula-is also credited to Mr. Balkwell's keen search. A product of the last few years, the new verbena-bracteosa-has lately become very common in the sandy soil of East London. A new blue-solored flowerviper buglos - is fast becoming a pest and painting uncultivated landscapes a bright blue. Its appearance along the railway tracks suggests the route by which it reached this part of the world. President Beadle, of the Toronto Horticultural Society, was in London recently examining its flora to see how much would be good for cultivation as natural flowers. wanted a specimen of the great fringed gentian, but returned without it. This beautiful flower looks just like a piece of blue sky clipped from the firmament. It is

Compromise Verdict in a Notable

The Plaintiff Secures a Verdict of $1 Damages.

Libel Suit.

HAMILTON, Oct. 10 .- At the Assize Court before Judge Falconbridge this afternoon the libel suit of Beaton vs. Brierly was concluded. This was one of a series of suits brought by Mrs. Elizabeth Beaton, of Burlington, against several newspapers for publishing an article taken from a New York paper in August, 1893, regarding the mysterious disappearance of a wealthy gentleman named Cicero Harrison Case, who was lost overboard from the old Dominion Liner Guyandotte, on a voyage from South Carolina to New York. A woman who claimed to be a daughter of Case was with him on the steamer and she was suspected of knowing more about Case's death than she would divulge. This woman by the name of Mrs. Oliver disappeared soon after the arrival of the steamer. A reporter of a New York paper started out to hunt her up and claims he recognized in Mrs. Beaton, of Burlington, the same woman who accompanied Case on with him. Mrs. Beaton filed papers and rested the case in her lawyer's hands. Mr. Brierly defended himself and made an eloquent address in which he stated that he had received the matter from a concern in Toronto, which furnished news all set up, and had it published in the usual way. As soon as he received notice from Mrs. Beaton's solicitor, he made a retraction and published it through the journal. The jury returned a verdict of $1 and costs for plaintill. It is understood the verdict was a compromise one, seven of the jurors being strongly in favor of a verdict for the defense.

OXFORD.

A. Abell, the brother of Mrs. J. S. Parmenter. Woodstock, died Monday in the Rochester General Hospital from injuries sustained by an accident by a trolley car on June 26. Deceased was well known in Woodstock, and was about 50 years of age. Lawyer C. F. Clark, of Tilsonburg, on trial for arson, was severely lectured by Judge Finkle, of Woodstock. "Yours is one of the most deplorable things," said the judge addressing the prisoner, "that it has ever been my misfortune to see-a man educated for a profession honorable and noble in itself, to be sitting in a box with such a charge hanging over his head, all 1 D Beattie, 2 John Laidlaw; shearling ewe, brought about by the beastly habit of drunkenness."

Successful Exhibition at Lambeth on Wednesday.

The Entries Much More Numerous Than Last Year.

Cold Weather Mars the Attendance-Speeding in the Ring-The Prise List.

For probably the 50th time the Westminster Agricultural Society's annual fall show was held yesterday. As has been the case for the last few years, Lambeth was honored by its presence. Like all good things, the Westminster fall show has to be handed around. It first saw the light of day on con. 2 of the township, on lot 20— Wm. Beattie's property. Then it traveled to Frank Nicholls' place on con. 5, or the middle of the township. The Wharncliffe was honored with its presence for a while, and then it drifted to Odeil's. For many a year it was held there, and then Glanworth claimed a share of its attention. Last, but not by any means least, came Lambeth. There were men at the show of yesterday who were at the first one held in the township, and many were the stories told of the gallons of whisky that constituted the bulk of the prize list in the early days. One old gentleman with a Scotch accent and a scarcity of teeth remembered the day because he got "blin' fou" on that occasion. But his memory was bad for dates. It must have had Donnybrook characteristics in those days, as another old gentleman remembered the time because he had all the buttons ripped off his vest with a kick. He was quite a young man in years, and returned a kick for every button lost. But there was no kicking at yesterday's neighbor's. Then it was only a mild, metaphorical, verbal kick, and no buttons were lost. The exhibits, with the exception of ladies' work and fruit, were displayed in an open lot to the north of the village. The admission fee charged was 10 cents, with nothing extra for the grand stand. Those who had not the necessary could stand outside the fence and look in at the long rows of garden products spread out on the ground. If they felt extra reckless they could even put their hands through and touch the exhibits. The show was purely agricultural, and there were no 'special" attractions outside of the horse trotting on the ring improvised on the field where a few weeks ago waving grain stood. Even the usual fakir was absent. One Italian banana vendor and a taffy booth were the only temptations on the ground.

north and the skeep and pigs 200 yards to the east of the entrance. The day was dull and chilly, and the attendance was not up to former years. However, the entries were much more numerous, with the exception of horses. The ladies' work and fruit were shown in a etc. "Sport in Samoan Craft" is treated most in Samoan Craft" is treated most indigestion. For the first time in his literary career Jerome K. Jerome is about to write directly for an American audience. This work consists of a series of papers similar in vein to his "Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow," but addressed to American girls and wemen. The articles will begin shortly in the Ladies' Home Journal (Philadelphia), which periodical will print the entire series. ###

The new novel which Longmans, Green & Co. (New York and London) have issued this month is "The Watchmaker," one of L. B. Walford's best. Like more than one of the popular stories which have been issued in recent months, "The Watchmaker" has a Scottish thread running through it, but it is none the worse on that account. In "The Mischief of Monica" Mrs. Walford made a great strike. For her new story there will likely be an equally good demand. The Longmans Colonial Library series of new novels are deservedly popular.

Canada is likely to have some such experience, according to present indications. There are now two or three such printed and published reports in the library at due, though the Premier assured the Commons months ago he was on the lookout for it every day. That long-looked-for and long-delayed report, which has already cost the taxpayers some $120,000, will not probably affect the action of the Government one particle when it comes. THE CAIN TRAGEDY.

The ass zes which have been in progress in various parts of the country recently reveal a state of affairs that may well cause the community to reflect. There has been an alarming tendency to the use of murderous weapons. In some cases murder has really been intended, and has been accomplished. In others, the object has been to maim the persons attacked, as a means of revenge, and the result has been fatal; while in still more the use of revolvers, guns and knives has been resorted to, on slight provocation, in supposed defense. But in almost every instance where severe bodily maining or actual killing has taken place the evidence in court has revealed the fact that but for the tendency to carry and to use murderous weapons-to settle quarrels by their agency, rather than by argument-the crimes would not have been committed. Take the case of the unfortunate man Bowers, who at the Middlesex Assizes in this city was sentenced to imprisonment for five years in Kingston Penitentiary. His crime was the slaying of Wm. Cain, a neighbor. Can there be a doubt that the ready resort to firearms as a means of defense was not the cause of the crime which was laid to the charge of this Biddulph farmer? Bowers, we are credibly informed, has borne a good character. He was not a man who ordinarily courted For many years, however, he had been trouble, but he seems to have regarded a loaded revolver as the best argument to use against aggressive neighbors with whom he had a dispute, and of whose intentions towards Essex. It was a Detroit newspaper canard. him he was in dread. It is not at all probable that when he fired the fatal shot he had murder in his heart, but that did not prevent the bullet from taking effect and finally causing the death of Cain. For this hasty resort to firearms Bowers goes to the penitentiary at a time when he can ill be spared by his family, and Judge way, the latest politician to refuse the Robertson told him he narrowly esleadership is Mr. Patterson, Minister of caped being tried for his life. Our intention is not to make his punishment harder to bear for those who in a measure must share it with him. It is well, however, to emphasize the result of his hurried action at this time. There has been far too much of this species of unintentional crime in recent years, and it is necessary that a determined effort should be made to counteract the tendency | Bullied. FUTURE OF OUR BUTTER. Mr. John H. Croil, Aultsville, Que., writes to explain the reasons for the recent meeting of oreamery men at Ottawa. He says the gathering originated with W. C. Ottawa, and another is now two years past Binion and himself. The creamery business, Mr. Croil asserts, has been in a very unsatisfactory condition this year, and the meeting held to consider how it could be bettered was chiefly attended by Quebec butter manufacturers. The one object of the convention was to devise "some plan of giving our butter to the British consumer when it is fresh and in its finest condition.' Then the report sent but from Ottawa to the effect that is had been recommended that In a paper on the sense of smell, read to Prof. Robertson be dispatched to Great the anthopologists who met recently at Britain to see what could be done for the butter interest was not true. SAD END OF A NEWSP APER MAN. To almost every public man and newspaper editor in Western Ontario the lamentable death of Mr. Joshua G. Buchanan, city editor of the Hamilton Times. last night, will come with a shock. Mr. Buchanan was returning from Rockton fair along with Mr. H. F. Gardiner, editor of the Times. The night was dark, and Mr. Buchanan, who was driving, mistook the road alongside the Desjardins Canal for the main road. When the error was discovered, he undertook to turn the horse round, and the rig slipped over the side of the canal. Mr. Gardiner could swim, and saved himself, but he found it impossible to render aid to his companion, and ran for assistance, which was obtained, but not till life was found to be extinct,

Mr. Buchanan was one of the best known newspaper men in the Province. He had been in harness for 28 years, first doing service for the Hamilton Spectator in the time of the Fenian raid of 1866, when the late Hon. Thomas White controlled that journal. the city editor of the Times, and had built up a reputation as a newsgatherer second to none in the country. In the early days of the Canadian Press Association Mr. Buchanan was a zealous member, and to his work as secretary not a little of the success of the trip to the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876 was due.

The deceased was a kindly-hearted, genial man, and his place in Hamilton journalism will be hard to fill. There will be unfeigned sympathy with his widow.

THE POLICE COURT.

Bullied Again Sent Before the Judge-Moses Greenburg Admitted to Bail -Harris' Bloody Clothing.

A couple of weeks ago Judge Elliot discharged Whitney Builled from jail, where he had been sent for lack of securities to keep the peace with his wife Margaret. The discharge was on the express condition that he should not in any way molest Mrs. Police Court twice at the instance of his wife, and this morning he was again sent before the judge by Police Magistrate Parke to answer to the charge of non-support. The judge warned Bullied the last time he came before him of the conse-

Moses Greenburg sat in the dock along with Bullied. A small-sized Jewish colony held the fort on the sidewalk, as the rule enforced at the Police Court nowadays forthe cage his eyes roamed over to where four dark-eyed and black-haired little children sat. They were his children, as Mr. Meredith afterwards explained to the court. The prisoner was charged with the observance of those principles which assault, inasmuch as he did yesterday push glass in Carroll & McKenzie's window. Harris was too badly out to appear in court today, and Mr. McKillop read a statement from the medical man in attendance to the effect that it would be several days before he could appear. Detective Rider produced a bundle of Harris' clothes. The shirts were completely steeped in blood. Mr. Meredith, Greenburg's lawyer, said that the men had been engaged in some conflict brought about, as the defense alleged, by the complainant, Harris. He pointed out the prisoner's little children, and stated that his wife, who had been ill for two weeks, was obliged to go to the hospital today. In view of that he asked

AS VIEWED OUTSIDE. (Brantford Expositor.)

Mr. T. S. Hobbs, who made such a plucky fight last June, is spoken of as the probable standard-bearer of the Reform party in London to fill the vacancy in the Legislative Assembly of Ontario created by the promotion of Mr. Meredith to the bench. In no other place in Canada can the Liberals put up as good a fight as in London, and with the Meredith prestige no longer to oppose they should be able, in a contest in which Judge Elliot cannot intervene, to win a great victory.

FATHER MATTHEW'S BIRTH

Celebrated by a Parade of 15,000 People in Chicago.

Bishep Watterson's Pointed Address-A Warning to Saloon-Keepers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 .- The birth of Father Matthew was colebrated yesterday in a temperance parade in which 15,000 persons participated. The procession was received by Gov. Aitgeld and Mayor Hopkins. The parade was preliminary to a mass meeting in the Auditorium at which Bishop Watterson, of Ohio, whe issued an order to Catholic priests in his diecese forbidding them to accept liquor dealers as members, was the chief orator. A letter of approval of Bishop Watterson's course written by Mgr. Satolli was read.

Bishop Watterson had an enthusiastic reception. His address dealt largely with the controversy regarding saloon-keepers. In the course of his remarks he said: "If the liquor traffic in particular places becomes so bold, se outrageous, so overmastering and defiant that it cannot be controlled in any other way than the legal wiping out of the saloon, then let the saloons be legally wiped out; and I say in God's name, and in the name of an outraged community, the sooner they are legally wiped out in that case the better for the community."

THE CESAREWITCH STAKES. London, Oct. 10. -At Newmarket today the Cesarewitch stakes, a handicap of 25 sovereigns each, with 500 sovereigns added, for 3-year-olds and upwards, were won by Shrine, aged 4, third. Nineteen other horses started. Childwick was four lengths ahead of Callistrate at the finish, and the latter four lengths in advance of Shrine. The betting was 20 to 1 against Childwick, 70 to I against Calistrate, 20 to I against

COLD DAY FOR FLYERS. LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 10.—The chief features of the races today were the at-tempts of the trotting queen, Alix, and the stallion king of sidewheelers, John R. Gentry, to lower their records. The weather was cool and the wind high. John R. Gentry paced a pretty mile, but 2:05½ was the best he could do. When Alix came down a hard wind raised such a storm of dust that the mare and her driver were almost invisible at the first turn. The time

THE WHEEL. Sir Benjamin Richardson, an eminent English authority, says an exchange, attacks the position assumed by a vast majority of cyclers. He says "the stooping attitude assumed by many is undoubtedly most harmful. In this position the spinal curves, which are the most perfect in nature, both for strength and beauty, are destroyed. The chest bone is affected by the unnatural pressure upon it. The circulation is impaired, and no doubt the lungs are interfered with," However, he does not consider cycling unhealthinl if the erect position is assumed, and as he is himfelf a rider, his opinion should carry weight. Grapes are thought by English trainers to be the best possible form of refreshment for road racers, says an exchange. In the recent great North Road 24 hours' race, that ne mistakes might occur, the trainers of the two rival tire companies agreed that one would feed only white grapes, while the other used only black ones. By this means the racer knew by the colored grapes handlers held whether the fruit was intended for them or their opponents, and the public knew by the grape skins the fliers cast away just what make of tire they rode. Every rider was an amateur-of course.

In speaking recently of the respective merits of wood and cement for a racing path, Zimmerman said that he favored the latter. Banker, the Pittsburg crack, now in France with the champion, and Harris, the famous English racer, also prefers a clay surface. CURLING.

We appreciate the self-years old, was second, and Mr. Manton's denial which marks their history from the commencement of the movement until the present, and cherish the assured hope that victory shall crown their unsurpassed moral heroism. We would take advantage of the present opportunity to declare our unfeigned thankfulness to Almighty God that the malicious slander charged against her honored head, Miss Frances Willard, has so speedily been proved false."

Scholars from the lower forms of the public schools were addressed by Revs. Joseph Philp and Dr. Jamieson. Bible class work was exemplified by Mr. M. Houston, of Chatham.

The evening session was opened by a song service, conducted by Rev. J. C. Haylock, and was followed by an interesting outline of the life of Christ by Rev. Joseph Pnilp, of Ridgetown, at the close of which Miss Freeborn rendered the "Holy City" with splendid effect.

Mr. Alf Day, Provincial secretary, after referring to Provincial undertakings, took as his aubject "Better Christian Work," and was listened to with deep interest. The convention continues in session to-

DAIRYING IN THE WEST.

Notes on a Trip Through Illinois Wisconsin and lowa,

By the Secretary of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario-The Methods of Butter and Cheese Making Described.

On Aug. 20 the writer left on a twoweeks' trip through the chief butter districts of the Western States. He visited some of the principal dairy sections of Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois. At that time, as was the case in Ontario, the serious effects of the extremely dry period were to be seen. The smaller streams were dried up, leaving only the bare, stony creek-beds, with here and there a pool of green, slimy, stagnant water to mark their former course. The larger streams and runs had dwindled down to small rivulets. Even the majestic Mississippi had been forced to yield up some of its grandeur and greatness to the exacting demands of the drouth, and to pursue its course to the gulf with half its usual volume. Nature everywhere seemed to be crying out for water. Every hillside and nearly every field were without a vestige of green. The trees, where any were to be found, were beginning to droop and wither. The corn fields were the only green things to be seen, and in many places the corn itself was beginning to fade and lose its freshness. In fact, considerable of the corn was being cut as its period of growth had ended.

Under these conditions, to one visiting it likely to present a very favorable appearance. It seemed hardly practicable that Macfadden, W. Dick, W. S. Watson, S. butter factories were all in operation, and though the milk supply was very small, were running with a fair degree of success. Dairying has made rapid progress in Wisconsin during the last decade. In the northern portion of the State dairying is almost exclusively confined to cheese making, while in the southern portion it is almost exclusively confined to buttermaking. The sections visited were in the south. Here the butter factories are chiefly run in combinations. A private individual or a company owns the plant and factory and operates a number of them to gether. These combinations are operated from some central place where, as a rule, elegant offices are fitted up, and where a number of clerks are employed, who look after the business for all the factories connected with them. The proprietor usually buys the butter at a price agreed upon at patrons the balance after deducting 4 center per pound for manufacturing. The prices are regulated generally by the sales on the Elgin, Ill., butter market. This market is held weekly and governs the price of butter for the Western States. Ex-Gov. Hoard, editor of Heard's Dairyman, and favorably known in Canada, operates eight creameries at Fort Atkinson, Wis. He pays the patrone Elgin prices for the butter made in these factories and either sells it direct or puts it in cold storage, as he may see fit.

A new method of operating creameries has developed of late years among some of the farmers. It is something after the plan upon which our cheese factories are land in a certain district the same as a schoolbouse. The milk supplied is charged with the repairs and expenses of manufacturing the butter, the balances from sales going to the patrons. By this method the cost of making is made very low and the large manufacturer, or middleman, done away with. The cost of making at these co-operatives varies from 1 3-10 to 21 cents per pound. These figures do not include teaming.

There are a large number of silos in Wisconsin and corn ensilage is the chief winter feed for cows.

At Machison, the capital, in connection with the State University there is a wellequipped dairy school, one of the oldest and best institutions of its kind on the conthe world as the inventor of the Babcook milk tester, is one of the staff connected with it. A few years ago students attended this school from all parts of the Union and from Canada as well. Lately, however, many other dairy schools have been established, making it unnecessary for parties requiring a technical education in dairying to go so far for it. Butter making has developed in Iowa only during rhe last few years. There are not so many combinations as in Wisconsin. Each factory is run separately by the farmers or by some single individual. Iowa is essentially a corn-growing State. It has been the general practice not to cut the corn, but merely to pull the ears off or to "shuck" it and leave the stalks for the cattle to trample over during the winter. More care will be taken this year. There is estimated to be about one-third of a crop of corn in Iowa this year and the farmer, therefore, will be compelled to cut and utilize the stalks as well as the corn for winter feeding.

At Ames, Iowa, the State Agricultural College was visited. There is also a wellequipped dairy school in connection with it. In fact, all through the West there is a movement for the better education of the farmer in his own particular work. The northern part of Illinois in the immediate vicinity of Eigin, is the pioneer butter district of the Western States. In this section the chief income of the farmer is derived from the production of milk. In this connection another industry has assumed large proportions in this locality. This is the manufacturing of condensed terday that a reduction of 13 per cent factories in this part of the State. One was milk. There are several large condensing visited in Elgin where from 25,000 to 90,000 quarts of milk per day were condensed. This is regarded as a more profitother workers out of employment. A cut milk is bought from the farmers at the of 10 per cent was made upon the employes factory at from 11 to 21 cents per quart. The creameries in this district are very old, and, as a rule, are decidedly out of repair. They are somewhat in the same condition as the cheese factories in the old dairy districts of Ontario. They did good service years ago when first built, but are entirely behind the times as compared with the weil-equipped creameries and cheese factories of the present day. One of the chief features in connection with the butter industry of the west is that nearly all the creameries run the year round. In fact, many of them never shut down during the year, Sundays included. consequently winter dairying is one of the principal branches of the business. At nearly all the factories when visited the that he was not instantly killed. He was supply of milk to increase very rapidly; it falls off again in August. Many farmers home votes.

DRESS

Take our advice and dress up now for the winter. There is no better time than now to secure dress materials for fall and winter wear. A great deal more service can be got out of a dress bought now than one bought later, because you can wear it if you like during October, November, December, January, February, March and April, while if you delay purchasing for two or three months, so much of the season has passed. Most assuredly now is the time for more reasons than one. There is a better selection now. Later you will have to take what we have.

have fresh cows to begin milking early in October. This plan increases the supply during the fall and tends to keep up an average supply all the year round. It also enables the farmer to put his cows dry during August, when as a rule the supply of succulent feed is very scarce and the flies more troublesome. Besides he has the advantage of producing milk during the winter months, when it will command a much higher price,

Last year was an exceptionally good one for the western butter-maker as regards prices. The World's Fair created an unusual demand for food products, and the butter producer profited thereby. The creameries which ran all the year paid an average of $1 05 and $1 07 per 100 pounds of milk for the year to the patron, besides returning the skim milk, the dividends ranging from 70 cents per 100 pounds of milk in June to $1 37 in January. They will not be so high this year. The rates for June this year averaged from 60 to 65 cents per 100 pounds. The price received per pound for the butter sold this season has been from 15 to 17 cents for June, and from 18 to 19 cents for July make. Where winter dairying is pretty well developed farmers calculate to make from $50 to $80 per cow each year. The legitimate butter and cheese-maker in the States has one or two difficulties to contend with that his Canadian brother has not. He finds on the market in competition with his products oleomargarine, filled cheese and the like. He would not fare so badly if these things were sold for what they really are. But too often in the larger cities these imitations are sold for the genuine article. Efforts and being made now to improve the laws and make them more rigid in regard to these products; but it will be some time before any great change can be made, as the vested interests in the manufacturing of these imitations are very large, and the promoters have considerable influence with the Legislatures. The dairymen of Canada should be on the alert to prevent such imitation products gaining a foothold in this

-While Mr. W. L. Brown, of the Free Press, was on his way to Lambeth fair yesterday he had the misfortune to run over a woman on the corner of the Market square and King street. The woman fell between the front wheel and the shaft, and the wheel passed over her body. The horse commenced to back, and the wheel was in a fair way to run over the woman again, when some grain buyers standing near seized the rig and tipped it up. Some one pulled the woman out and she was helped into the buggy and driven home by Mr. Brown before her name could be ascertained. She lived in South London and Press, was on his way to Lambeth fair Brown before her name could be ascertained. She lived in South London and was pretty well bruised and shocked.

Money Troubles Did It.

The friends of Arthur Waterman, the unfortunate young man who tried to end his life by chloroform last night, assert that money difficulty was the cause that led up to the doed, and no affair of love. He has been worried about financial matters for some time, and naturally being of an excitable temperament, his perves were not allayed or soothed by drink. The young lady whose name has been brought before the public by the event is of a very modest and retiring disposition, and feels her position keenly. The family has had its share of trouble, and only buried the mother a short time ago, after a long and painful illness. Mr. Waterman was reported as recovering at the hospital today. The Tariff Did It.

"Yes, I am going back to the old country to make some money," said Mr. Alfred Tup-per, a Dundas street drygoods man, to a reporter this morning. "I like the country and its climate, but the enormous tariff and the werry of getting goods through the customs is calculated to annoy any business man who has been used to a different order of things. We can get the same price for our goods in England without having the heavy duty to pay." Mr. Tupper yesterday sold his beautiful residence and property on Dundas street east to Mr. T. H. Robinson, corset manufacturer. The price paid was $2,600. "I could make a speech against the National Policy," said Mr. the country."

A Sensation that Failed.

"An Incendiary About," the Free Press stated this merning. "Daring Attempt Men and Women's Clubs Organized-The Made to Burn Thomson's Oatmeal Mill, was cried in glaring headlines. Then the article proceeded to give the police "fits' for suppressing the case. An ADVERTISER reposter, in conversation with Mr. Thomson today, learned the true facts of the affair. About a mouth ago a workman son offered to go halves with Mr. Hunt to hire a night watchman until the cold weather set in. He told Mr. Hunt that he thought some one had tried to burn his woodpile. "The Free Press probably printed the story on hearsay," said Mr. Thomson. Batting and Fielding Averages For 1894.

Five Games Less Played Than in 1893-A Falling Cf in Percentage by Several of the Players-Averages for 1893 of the Still Attached Members.

The ADVERTISER again gives to the publie the percentages of the Alerts for the year 1894, as it did exclusively last year. The records this year were obtained from the official scores published in the ADVER-TISER during the season and were figured out by a member of the staff. The results for the year 1893 are also given below. A comparison will show that the team's percontages both in batting and fielding have fallen off considerably this season. This is no doubt due to the shift around of the infield during the beginning of the season. Had the men played the same positions all the time, the fielding averages of some

"Ruin," emphatically replied Dr. Rane.
"The men will play at bo-peep with reason until the trade has left them. Fools!

'It's not the poor men, Oliver. I have lived amongst them — some of them at any might be better to allow all speculation on rate — since I was a child, and I don't like the point to rest," that first gave Dr. Rane to hear them blamed. It is that they are the idea of Richard's suspicion of himself. mis'ed. Misled by the Trades' Unions.'

"Nonsense!" replied Dr. Rane. "A man who has his living to earn ought not to allow himself to be misled. There's his work to hand; let him do it. A body of would-be autocrats might come down on me and say, Oliver Rane, we want you to join our society; which forbids doctors to visit patients except under its own rules and regn'ations.' Suppose I listened to them? - and stayed at home, and let Seeley, or any one cases - and Ann, the housemaid, was drawelse, snap up my practice, and awake presently to find my means of living irrevocably cone?—nothing left for me but the work-house? Should I deserve pity? Certainly Bessy laughed a little. They were going in, and she - still keeping her hand within his arm - coaxed him yet for another moment's recreation into the drawing-room. Sitting down to the piano in the fading light — the piano that Richard had given her — she began a song that her husband was fond of, "O Bay of Dublin." That sweet song set to the air of "Groves of Blarney," by the late Lady Dufferin. Bessy's voice was weak and of no compass, but it was true and rather sweet; and she had that, by no means common, gift of rendering every word as distinctly heard as though it were spoken; so that her singing was pleasant to listen to. Her husband liked it. He leaned against the window-frame, now as she sang, in a deep reverie, gazing out on Dallory Ham, and at the man lighting the roadside lamps. Dr. Rane never heard this song but he wised he was the emigrant singing it, with some wide ocean flowing between him and home.

"What's this, I wonder?" Some woman, who he did not recognize, had turned in at his gate and was ringing the door-bell. Dr. Rane found out he was called out to a patient; one of the profitless people as usual.
"Piersons wants me, Bassy," he looked into the room to say. "The man's worse. I shall not be long." And Bessy rose when she heard the street-door closed. Taking a duster from the drawer, she carefully passed it over the keys before closing her plane for the night. Very much did Bessy cherish her drawing-room and its furniture. They did not use it very much; not from fear of spoiling it, but because the other room with its large bay window seemed the more cheerful; and people feel more at ease in the room they usually sit in. Bessy took as much pride in her house as though it had been one of the grandest in all Dailory; happy as a queen in it, felt she. Stepping lightly over the drawing-room carpet - fresh as the day when it came out of Turtle's warehouse — touching, with a gentle finger, some pretty thing or other on the tables as she passed, she opened the door and called to the servant. "Molly, it is time these shutters were

Molly Green, in an apology of a cap tilted on her hair, and a white muslin apron, came out of the kitchen. Molly liked to be as amart as the best of them, although she had all the work to do. Which all was not very management.

"You had better light the hall-lamp," added Mrs. Rane, as she went up stairs.
It was tolerably light still. Bessy often did what she was about to do - namely, draw down the window-blinds; it saved Molly trouble. The wide landing was less bare than it used to be; at the time of Dr. Rane's marriage he had covered it with some green drugget, and put a chair and a book-enelf there. It still looked too large, still presented a contrast to the inxuriously furnished landing of Mrs. Cumberland's opposite, especially when the two wide windows happened to be open; but Bessy thought her own quite good enough. Of the two back rooms, one had been furnished as a spare bed-chamber; the other had not much in it besides Bessy's boxes that had come from the Hali. Richard had spoken kindly to her about this last chamber, "Should any contingency arise; sickness, or other; that you should require its use. Bessy," he said, "and Rane does not find it quite convenient to spare money for furniture, let me know, and I'll do it for you." She had thanked him gratefully: but the contingency had not come yet.

Into this back-room first went Bessy, passed by her boxes, closed the window, and drew the white blind down. From thence into the next chamber—a pretty room with chintz curtains to the window and the Arabian bed. Dr. Rane was very particular about having plenty of air in his house, and would have every window open all day long. Next, Bessy crossed the landing again to her own chamber. She had to pass through the drab room (as may be remembered) to get to it. The drab room was in just the same state that it used to be; Dr. Rane's glass jars and other articles used in chem-Formerly they were strewed about anywhere; under Bessy's neat rule they were statered into a small space. Sometimes Bessy thought she should like to make this her own sitting and work-room; its window looked towards the fields beyond Dallory Ham. Often, when she first came to the house, she would softly say to her heart. What a nice day-nursery it would make! She had left off saying it now.

Taking some work from a drawer in her own room, which was what she went up for - for she knew that Oliver would tell her to leave off if she attempted to stitch the wristband by candle light — she stood for a minute at the window and saw some gentleman, whom she did not recognize, turn out of Mr. Seeley's, and go towards Dallory.

"A fresh patient," she thought to herself;

with a sigh very like envy. "He gets them all. I wish a few would come to Oliver." As she watched the stranger up the road, As she watched the stranger up the road, something in his height and make put her in mind of her dead brother, Edmund. All her thoughts went back to the unhappy time of his death, and to the letter that had

"It's very good of Oliver to comfort me, saying he could not in any case have lived long - and I suppose it war so," murmured Bessy; "but that does not make it any the less shocking. He was killed. Cut off without warning by that wicked anonymous letter. And I don't believe the writer will be ever traced now; even Richard seems to have cooled in the pursuit, since he discovered it was not the man he had suspec'ed.

Close upon the return of Dr. and Mrs. Rane after their marriage, the tall, thin stranger who had been seen with Timothy Wilks the night before the anonymous letter was sent, and whom Richard North and others fully believed to have been the writer, was discovered. It proved to be a poor artist, traveling the country to take sketches - who was sometimes rather too fond of being a boon companion with whatever company he might happen to fall into. Hovering here some days, hovering there, in pursuit of his calling, he at length made his headquarters at Whitborough. Hearing he was suspected, he came forward volun-tarily, and convinced Richard North that he at least had had nothing to do with the letter. Richard's answer was that he quite helieved him. And perhaps it was Richard North's manner at this time, coupled with a remark he made to the effect that "it Things had been left at rest since then; and even Bessy, as we see, thought her brother was growing cold.

Turning from the window with a eigh, given to the memory of her dead brother, she passed through the ante-room to the landing on her way down stairs. Mrs. Cumberland's landing opposite gave forth a brilliant light as usual — for that lady liked to burn many lamps in her hall and stairing down the window blind. Mrs. Rane's window had never had a blind. (To be Continued.)

AND $50 A WEEK.

Emmet's Wife Gets a Divorce.

NEW York, Oct. 10 .- A report of Gilbert M. Speir as referee was filed yesterday in after as perhaps no other man in Canada the Supreme Court in favor of giving Daisy May Emmet an absolute divorce from Actor Joseph K. Emmet, the custody of their child, Eleanor, 7 years old, and $50 a week permanent alimony for the support of herself and her child. Emmet, although represented by counsel at the proceedings, did not defend the case, and it was on his consent that the alimony was fixed at that sum.

Emmet married the plaintiff on May 14, 1886, and they lived together until April 29, 1891, when she went to Europe with her child and J. K. Emmet, sen., father of her husband. She remained abroad about two years furthering her musical studies, chiefly at Geneva. Young Emmet gave her $1,200 when she left, and agreed to send her $500 every two months. His allowances fell short of this amount. It was shown that Emmet took a trout fishing trip to Canadensis, Pa., with his leading lady, Emily Lytton, in April and May, 1892, and that he had subsequently lived with Miss Lytton in a flat on west Onehundred and Fourth street.

Finally two little feet were discovered sticking out of the top of the lard bucket, which was half filled. The child had tottered to the bucket and fallen in headforemost.

A Junk Shop Relic. A man named LeSueur, residing at Melbourne, Que., has made public what he declares to be the real history of the

"Wolfe sword" which Hon. J. C. Patterson recently got possession of and presented to the people of Canada. According to his evidence the sword was originally found in a junk shop in Quebec City by Mr. Derbi-shire, and though it was afterwards called, for the sake of giving it a name, Wolte's sword, no evidence was ever forthcoming that such was really the case. In view of this additional testimony, it begins to appear as if the Minister of Militia had paid a pretty stiff price for old junk.

FAMOUS POISONING CASE.

The Brant County Woman, Who is Accused of Killing Her Husband, to Be Tried This Month.

She Has Had a Visit From Mr. Osler, Her Counsel.

The Brantford Fall Assizes commence on Oct. 22, before Mr. Justice MacMahon, and the trial of Mrs. Hartley, of New Durham, for the alleged poisoning of her husband by arsenic will, of course, prove the main item on the list. The case is attracting an extraordinary amount of interest, and there will be a tremendous rush for seats on the part of those who will want to be present at the hearing. Several newspaper men from outside places have sent in applications for tickets, and it is evident that the press will be well repre-

Mrs. Hartley is reported to be keeping well, and she gets up at 7 a.m. and retires at 6 p.m., just as the other prisoners do. Each day she is given a regulation amount of exercise in the jail yard. She is taking more interest in the trial as the day draws near, and seems to be very hopeful as to the outcome. She is to be defended by Mr. B. B. Osler, Q.C. In his hands, it goes without saying, her case will be looked could handle it. Mr. Osler arrived in the city on Saturday, and, after a consultation with Mr. Oles, Mrs. Hartley's lawyer, he visited the accused at the jail. Mrs. Hartley was manifestly pleased to see him, and he remained talking with her in her cell for half an hour. What transpired is, of course, not known, but it is said that the eminent Q. C. considers that his client's chances of acquittal are good. Mr. W. Lount, Q. C., will appear on behalf of the crown.

THE ST. CLAIR CANAL

The Montreal Witness evidently is not in favor of the construction of the proposed St. Clair Canal. It says: "Engineers of experience whose duties have compelled them to consider and decide upon the advantages promised by projected public works, are very doubtful indeed as to the utility of the proposed canal through the Essex and Kent counties peninsula, between Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie. From the point in the present route, by way of the Detroit River, at which the proposed canal route would diverge, to the point where it would again join the old route at the mouth of the St. Clair River, the proposed route forms one side of an almost equilateral triangle, the other sides of which are formed by the old route. One side of the triangle thus formed represents the distance saved by the new route, about 140 miles. The greater distance can be done by lake vessels in the open waters of Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River and Lake Erie at a rate of, say, fourteen miles an hour, or in twenty hours. Engineers are of the opinion that going by the canal route the detentions and reductions of speed necessarily involved inlocking through and sailing in the canal would reduce the speed by that route to eight miles an hour, and perhaps less; five hours' detention at the Sault Ste. Marie lock is said to be n uncommon thing. At the above rates the time over the old route would be twenty hours, while that over the proposed canal route would be seventeen and a half hours; not a very great saving in time, and it is time, not distance, which tells in favor of commercial routes. In order to secure this advantage of two and a half or three hours it is proposed to dig a 21-foot channel, the cost of which would be somewhere between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000, with all probabilities in favor of its approximating far more closely the greater sum. The question raised by the engineers is whether it is worth while to spend so much money in order to save so little time. Beyond Comparison

At Death's Door .- Dyspepsia Conquered.-A Great Medical Triumph. GENTLEMEN, -My medical adviser and others told me I could not possibly live, when I commenced the use of Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY for Dyspepsia. My case was one of the worst of its kind. For three years I could not eat meat and my weight decreased from 219 to 119 pounds. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking the VEGETABLE DISCOVERY consisted of milk. am now entirely cured and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over 30 dozen VEGETABLE DISCOVERY since it cured me, as I am well-known, and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I could not possibly be cured. They are eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life, as I never expected to recover when I first commenced using it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as a certain JEAN VALCOURT, cure for Dyspepsia. GEORGE SCEALEY'S DEATH. His Daughter Takes Action to Set Aside the Will-A Curious Case

Recalled. The mysterious death of George Scealey. of Vienna, two or three months ago, which the coroner's jury decided was occasioned by poison administered by some person unknown, but the investigation of which the Attorney-General's department have so far declined to take up owing to the slovenly manner in which the postmortem was conducted, was inquired into at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, Monday, when Scealey's only surviving daughter, Mrs. Henry Whitesell, who was not made a legatee under the will, brought action to set the testament aside. Under the will the $14,000 worth of property which Scealey possessed was left to Sarah Jane Robbins, with whom he lived, and Murphy H. Best, a relative of the Robbins woman. It was owing to this will and the disinheriting of his daughtor that steps were first taken to investigate the cause of Scealey's death .- [St. Thomas Journal.

En Route from Mexico to Jerusalem-Strikes This City and Talks a Little.

"Hello!" "Hello !" "Where are you going?"

"Jerusalem!" "Where did you come from?" "Mexico." These queries were addressed by an AD-VERTISEE reporter yesterday afternoon to a young man with a wild woolly west appearance, an old "prairie schooner" and a pair of mules. He had just struck the market and was looking around. "The Strange Young Man" was painted in sprawling letters on the side of the caravan. On the back was the announcement, "From Mexico to Jerusalem. "That's right," explained the strange young man. "Doing it on a bet of $10,000. Left without a sou and expect to make $100,000 when I return. Am going to write a book. Got to make the round trip in a year. How do I live? Tip-top. Can do almost anything. Been sailor, wood-man, business man, lecturer, outlaw, cowboy and showman. CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

Sixth Annual Convention of the Ontario Union. KINGSTON, Oct. 10.-Today the sixth annual convention of the Ontario Christian Endeavor Union opened in the First Congregational Church with a large attendance of delegates wearing bright badges. Rev. Mr. Phillips in his introductory remarks said it seemed fitting that mention should be given to one of the most prominent features in the Christian Endeavor motive -the prayer meeting. Without this feature being carried out conscientiously and taken part in by the members and faithfully attended to, the society has no use for existence.

The subject, "Christian Endeavor meetings, our troubles and how to meet them,' was discussed.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by Mayor Herald and others in Sydenham Church, which was crowded to the doors.

A West Oxford Farmer Narrowly Escapes Premature Burial—The Cause of His Threatened Fate and Lucky

Escape. INGERSOLL, Oct. 8 .- W. H. Bailey, of West Oxford township, claims to have escaped premature burial a short time ago. He had had kidney disease for four years back and so badly at times that he was completely laid up. Many doctors treated him, but their treatment, in Mr. Bailey's opinion, made him worse rather than better. His escape from a premature grave was effected by the use of the infallible Dodd's Kidney Pills. Three boxes of these cured him completely. Mr. Bailey claims to be able now to do a bigger day's work than his 24-year-old son.

A curious thing has been discovered about the relation of perfumes to plagues. It is said that they are a positive preventive. It is related that in the cholera epidemics not a single workman employed in the manufacture of perfumery in Paris or London took the disease, A famous French perfumer is authority for the statement that during the epidemic four thieves protected with perfume passed through the plague unscathed and robbed the dead bodies. The reason is that perfumes counteract mrlarial vapors. It is a good thing that per-
