No Mechanical Training in Pub### lic Schools.

Some of our contemporaries are serfously discussing a cock-and-bull story sent out from Toronto to the effect that Hon. Geo. W. Ross, Minister of Education, had in contemplation and was actively preparing for the intro- Scnsational Disclosure by duction of mechanical training into the public schools. On the assumption that the statement was correct, learned homilies have been penned on the foolishness of adding to the studies of boys in public schools. It turns out, however, that the report of innovations has no foundation. The Minister was seen by a reporter of the Toronto News, and this is his reply: "There will be no revolution in our present methods. I do not think we are preparing to teach the mechanical trades in our schools. I am favorable to teaching cooking and plain sewing, as is done in some of the big cities in England, and I think that by thus educating the wives and daughters of mechanics we can perhaps benefit the echanics more than by teaching blacksmithing and carpentering in the schools. The addition of cooking and sewing classes is therefore the only improvement likely to be made."

If she fired a single shot or took action alone it would mean that at that mo ment there would be a European war. TYNAN'S APPEAL.

London, Sept. 22.-A Paris dispatch Money loaned to complete purchase, build resays: The fact that Patrick J. Tynan, the alleged dynamite conspirator, had appealed to Mr. Eustis, the American ambassador to France, and to President Cleveland demanding protection as an American citizen, was announced on Tuesday last, but at that time the contents of the letter were not known. It is now learned that in his letter to Mr. Eustis. Tynan informs him of the fact of his arrival in the United States in March, 1883, and his naturalization in 1888. He gives his place of residence in New York, and enumerates the members of his family, and refers to Judge Fitzgerald, Recorder Goff, and Judge Roger A. Prior as his friends. He adds that he left New York with the object of making a European tour, but learning that he was being shadowed by English de-tectives, he traveled under an astectives, he traveled under an as-sumed name. return to New York on Sept. 20. He appeals to Mr. Eustic to use his influence to prevent his surrender to the British authorities, for, he says, to hand him over to the British Govern-ment would certainly mean death. He recalls the help given by Irishmen to France at Fontenoy. The letter is dated Sept. 15, but Mr. Eustis did not receive it until yesterday. He immediately notified the French Government of its receipt, and informed them that Tynan was a citizen of the United

RENEWED HORRORS. London, Sept. 22.-A dispatch from Constantinople says: Details received here regarding the massacre at Egin, in the vilayet of Kharput, show that it occurred on the 15th and 16th of the present month. The Kurds attacked the Armenian quarter, killed a large number of its inhabitants and pillaged and burned their houses. Many Ar-menians escaped to the mountains. According to the accounts of the Turkish Government, 600 Armenians were killed at Egin, and these advices also state that the outrage was provoked by the Armenians firing into the Turkish quarter. No authentic details of the massacre have yet been received. The Armenians of Egin escaped the massacres of 1895 by purchasing their security with money and produce. It is feared that the massacre is the beginning of a fresh series of massacres in Armenia, which was anticipated after the massacres

A FIENDISH FATHER. London, Sept. 22.-A Berlin dispatch says: One of the most extraordinary results of drunken frenzy ever known in the country has just occurred in East Prussia. A farmer named Schlott, of Gemirre, while looking over his domain one morning last week, saw a lot of cattle coming through broken gate into his corn field. He hunted up his young son, who was in charge of that particular field, and upbraided him for not better attending to his duties. The boy's answers enraged the man, and he swore that he would have his son's life. He called together half a dozen of his companions, who, like himself, had culprit was summarily tried and convicted, and Schott himself sentenced his son to be beheaded. Preparations were at once begun. They bound him hand and foot, and placed his head upon the stump of a tree. One of the wretches secured an axe, and the Russian visitors to Balmoral. 'sentence of the court" was actually about to be carried out, when the found later that fear had not only people lined the way to the docks and made him dumb, but deaf as well, and physicians say it is doubtful if he will ever recover the use of his faculties again

The millionaire to whom this belongs contemplates a more ambitious scheme. He has upon his estate two square miles of forest. This tract he intends to inclose: first, by a wide, deep trench; second. by a strong iron railing, and third, by a high stone wall. He will then turn loose into the inclosure every sort of wild animal that he can procure-lions, tigers, elephants. and every other kind of beast-in order to ascertain if they can live at large in this climate and without unduly interfering with each other. There is to be a network of underground passages leading to numerous stone towers in the different places in the forest, and from these he intends to watch the animals and study their habits when in a comparatively wild state.

The dispatch adds that all the troops in South by selling our hardy varieties of the second of t grown suddenly silent, and it was in spite of this enormous crowds of greeted the arrival of the royal party with the greatest enthusiasm. The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of the Kieff Dragoons, and the Duke of Connaught was in the uniform of the Scots Guards. After inspecting the reception room, the royal party joined the Duchess of Buccleuch and the Countess of Lytton and embarked on the steamer Tantallon Castle. The steamer then proceeded down the firth to meet the Czar and Czarina. The Channel fleet, which lined the Firth of Forth, saluted as the Prince of Wales and the royal party traversed the lines. The Russian imperial yachts, on their arrival, were saluted by the fleet, and immediately dropped anchor. The Tantallon Castle soon afterwards ran alongside the Standard, the latter having their Russian Majesties on board and the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught and M. De Staal went on board and welcomed the Czar and Czarina to Leith. The greetings exchanged between the imperial travelers and the British Princes was most affectionate. The party afterwards lunched together on board the Standard. Though the weather was far from being all that could be wished for the reception, there was no mistaking the fact that the people of Leith and its vicinity had turned out in the fullest possible force, determined to give the imperial travelers a hearty and genuine welcome to the shores of Scotland. The whole harbor was full of merchant vessels from all parts of the world, and they were all decked from stem to stern with bunting, and placed in the neatest possible trim on both sides of the water, so that, after passing through the lines of powerful warships the progress of the Standard up the Firth of Forth was parade like in the extreme. The precautions taken afloat for the protection of their majesties were unprecedented, it is believed, in naval annals. Picket boats, steam launches, and torpedo boats of the smaller class, from the warships Majestic. Magnificent, Repulse and Resolution, each commanded by a lieutenant, formed a complete net around the Russian yacht in order, estensibly, to prevent the shore boats from crowding about the Standard; but in reality to prevent any possibility of an attempt to commit a dynamite or other outrage. The shore boats were in such vast numbers on the water that there is no doubt that the precautions taken by the British naval authorities were warranted.

The precautions adopted ashere were equally thorough, although few people give more than a passing thought now to the alleged dynamite conspiracy, supposed to have been discovered by Scotland Yard. On the Tantallon Castle ashore, on the train which was to take their Majesties to Balmoral, at different places along the route, at Ballater, and about Balmoral itself, were picked numbers of the Russian secret police, and the most trusted members of the Czar's Nihilist detectives. Other Russian detectives were on board the Standard, and they were reinforced on landing by a picked souad of the very best Scotland Yard detectives, who will re-main attached to the Czar and Czarina's party until they leave Great Britain. After luncheon, their Imperial Majesties boarded the Tantalion Castle, accompanied by the British princes, and that steamship proceeded slowly up the Firth of Forth, close ly guarded by the swarm of picket boats, through the lines of the British

Although E. C. Stearns & Co. have not during the present season maintained a racing team on the National Circuit, the closing of the season finds a large percentage of the speedlest men in America mounted on "Yellow Fellows"—a forcible demonstration of the fact that the Stearns' racer possesses speed qualities. Of the men who are now winning races on the Stearns bicycles in every part of the country, Tom Butler, of Cambridgeport, the international champion, stands at the front. Butler's marvelous record has been unparalleled in racing annals, and experienced racing men and trainers are at a loss to explain how he can even hold his own against men so much stronger and hardier than he appears to be. Whatever the explanation may be, be it heart or brain or brawn, Butler continues to win races, and unless all indications are wrong he will be the man of the year for the season of 1897.

A FICKLE LOVER.

Twice Bought a License, Then Married

the Other Girl-Now He Is Sued. Woodstock, Sept. 21.-Charles Rennick, four years ago, met, courted, and became engaged to Edith March. In April, 1894, he purchased and became engaged to Edith a marriage license but for some reason the wedding did not materialize. After another four months' courtship Rennick again brought his courage to the marrying stage, and another li-cense was procured, but the marriage did not take place as determined, and both the licenses were destroyed by Rennick. Rennick and Miss March kept company until Aug. 4, of this year, when Rennick was quietly mar-ried to Miss Frances Luddington, a West Zorra girl.

Miss March says three days previous to the marriage Rennick again promised to marry her. Miss Edith has brought suit against Rennick for $1,-000 for breach of promise. The case will come up at the spring assizes.

Mr. Fisher replied to Mr. Foster that the buildings and apparatus of the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa have cost $176,012. It came out in a reply by Mr. Davies to Mr. Lemieux that Hon. Mr. Angers, late Minister, had authorized Commander Wakeham to Government cruiser La Canadienne at the disposal of the Conservative candidate in Gaspe during the late general elections.

Mr. Clancy asked if the position of collector of customs at Waliaceburg had been filled, and Mr. Waliace asked about the collector at Berlin. Mr. Paterson understood that they had. He did not know if the officers had been notified of their appointments. This reply led to a discussion regarding appointments sanctioned by his Excellency before the late Government went out. Mr. Laurier said that Lord Aberdeen had approved of all the appointments except those which came within these categories: First, new offices; sec-ond, those vacant over twelve months; third, vacancies caused by superannu-

ATTACK ON LORD ABERDEEN. The action of the Governor-General in refusing to sanction the appointment of Senators and civil servants upon the recommendation of the defeated Government was the subject of an exchange of opinions across the floor of the House between Sir Charles Tupper and the Prime Minister. Sir Charles complained of the course of his Excellency in withdrawing his confidence from his chosen advisers before he was officially aware of the result of the election, and he went so far in the imputation of partisan motives that the Speaker was obliged to remind him of the rule of the House which forbids a member to speak disrespectfully of the

Sir Charles Tupper said that he would bow with all deference to the decision of the Speaker, and would be as careful as possible to avoid any thing that would infringe upon any rule of the House. But he was speake ing of his Excellency's representa-tives who were here. Mr. Laurier—Speak of the First Minster, then.

Sir Charles Tupper—I am afraid the First Minister's shoulders are not broad enough to bear all this Continuing, the leader of the Opposition said that he had not spoken of his fixed-lency as a partisan, but if he had been a partisan he could not have treated a partisan he could not have treated this matter in a stronger way. Sir Charles asserted that Lord Aberdeen should have consented to every nomination to office made to him. He also attacked Sir Oliver Mowat for not accepting the list of 176 Q. C.'s prepared by the late Minister.

Sir Charles further said his Excel-Sir Charles further said his Excellency was wrong in regarding the Senate as a partisan body. In the cases of Mr. Angers and Mr. Desjardins, they had occupied places there, and had been honored in those places At the invitation of the crown they had stepped down and submitted themselves to the people. Having met with a reverse they had a special claim upon the crown to be re-appointed to the Senate, because they had left it at the crown's invitation. (Ministerial "Oh, oh.")

AS TO THE JUDGES. Sir Chas. Tupper then briefly referred to his Excellency's reference to the judges of Canada as Liberals and Con-servatives. This characterization Sir Charles dissented from. The judges were neither Liberals nor Conserva-tives. But this reference of his Excellency was an illustration of the effect of secret informants.

There was a strong tinge of disrespect in the voice as well as Sir Charles' words during this part of his speech. Mr. Laurier called "Order, order," and the leader of the Opposition was for a second time stopped by Mr. Speaker.

In reply to a disclaimer by the leader of the Opposition, Mr. Laurier pointed out that he had referred to his Excel-lency's "secret informant." "Well, I certainly do not know who his informant is," retorted Sir Charles. Mr. Speaker, however, ruled that the language had been disrespectful to his Excellency. In conclusion, Sir Charles said he did not intend to conclude with a mo-tion, because he did not want the ma-jority of the House, by solemn vote, to approve of what had taken place. PREMIER LAURIER.

Mr. Laurier said on July 9, the country thought Sir Charles Tupper and his colleagues had loyally accepted the verdict of the people, but such did not now appear to be the case. It was evident the hon. gentleman was willing to be kicked once more. The Opposition leader had the boldness to come to Parliament and to sk Parliament implicitly to censure the Governor-General. Here was his (Mr. Laurier's) answer to his Excellency. The Governor-General had committed no wrong to the people of Canada. (Cheers.) He went further. He was fulfilling the commission which her Majesty had entrusted to him. He made himself the custodian and champion of the rights of the people of Canada. (Loud cheers.) He twitted Conservatives on a new-found zeal on constitutional procedure. Now their leader was objecting because they were unable to fill the Senate with his friends and all the offices with his creatures. The fact was, Sir Charles had been promising his friends posi-tions all over, having told them that he was sure to carry the country. But Ottawa, Sept. 22.—Hon. Edward ed to appoint the Senators and make vice. Sir Charles contended that his result from his Premier, because the Conservative press of June 25, two days after the election, contained an interview with Sir Charles, in which the latter admitted the defeat—"the disaster," and surely, continued Mr. formed the newspapers, and, having told his Excellency. the Governor-

RIGHTS OF THE DEFEATED. As to the rights of the defeated Government to meet Parliament, he admitted that, but at the same time the Government was responsible under the modern practice to the people from whom Parliament got its mandate, He quoted recent precedents for the resignation of a Government after defeat at the polls without waiting to meet Parliament. True, Lord Salisbury, in 1892, preferred to meet Parliament, there being doubt about the exact result of the elections. There was no doubt, he contended, in the case of Sir Charles as to the right to appoint Senators after defeat, essential in England, according to Todd, such appointments should have previously been sanctioned by the Crown, then the honor of the Crown having been Mr. Bergeron learned from Mr. Blair pledged, the Government successors would be bound to make the appointcellency before the election that if Mr. Angers were defeated he should be reappointed to the Senate. And such was different from the House of Lords, in that it was limited as to it's membership. The Senate was already crammed with Conservatives, because for eighteen years the Conservatives had disregarded the spirit of the constitution, which called for the appointment of representatives of both parties equally. Therefore, with the promise the appropriations as contained in the appropriations as contained in the appoint an Ontario leader to the appoint an Ontario leader to the Senate, every man who has in his breast the elements of justice would approve of his Excellency's course in refusing to fill a vacancy which would embarrass the Government. (Cheers.)

THE BENCH.

As to the bench, without aspersing it as a whole, he (Mr. Laurier) would say that for 18 years appointments thereto had been made not for judicial fitness, but as reward for party ser-Judges were but human, they unconsciously retained their traits, and anyone who had to do with political cases in the courts knew this was so. The Supreme Court of the United States had in the Presidential election case of Tilden and Hayes shown its partiality, and could it be pretended that Canadians are better than the people of other countries? As to the case of Mr. Payne, Mr. Laurier only referred to it to remark that Sir Charles had done an injustice to Mr. Magee, and his Excellency, in refusing the advice of Sir Charles Tupper, simply refused to act illegally. And, too, Sir Charles had misrepresented to his Excellency the circumstances under which Parliament had refrained from passing estimates last session.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S POSITION. Mr. Laurier spoke under high pressure, and concluded in these words: "The hon, gentleman today comes before Parliament for what, to vindicate the constitution? No, sir. The complaint of the hon. gentleman is the last wall of the disappointed office-grabber. All this quibbling and equivgrabber. All this quibbling and equivocating and hatrsplitting is absolutely meaningless, unless there were behind it some moral wrong. But moral wrong there is none in this case. His Excellency committed no harm to anybody and conferred a great benefit upon this mation, because he showed that in this nineteenth century, under the British crown and by the aid of the British crown, the people shall have the government of the people, by the people and for the people. And for this all true Canadians will revere the name of Aberdeen for ever and for ever. (Loud Liberal cheers.) The subject then dropped, and the House proceeded with the estimates.

nen is that there is no reason for this rast difference in prices except that the Mexican dollar, being coined without limit on private account, is worth no more than the silver it contains, while the United States silver dollar, being coined only on Government account and maintained at par with gold by the credit of the Government, is worth about twice as much-will buy about twice as muchas the Mexican dollar. It is therefore argued that if the United States silver dollar were coined as freely as that of Mexico. it would fall, like the Mexican dollar, to the value of the metal it contains, and buy no more goods than the Mexican dollar buys.

These are strong contentions, and they have not yet been met. The workingmen delegates who have gone to Mexico to investigate the matter may find some new information as to the new conditions of labor, and the emuneration obtainable under a single silver standard. But until new light admitted that the evidence is so far against silver as a standard of value

But Canada as a dependency of a European power is included in its operation. One result of an alien labor law passed by us may be some day to deprive the newly opened mining district in British Columbia of the power of supplying itself with ne-cessary labor. This state of commercial warfare is hateful to all whose interests are bound up with industry Those who see it with complacency and stimulate the international feelings which maintain it belong chiefly to the salaried classes or to the classes whose incomes are unaffected by hostile tariffs or alien labor laws. Mr. Laurier had better lay the alien labor question aside, to be settled with other international questions, if possible, in a friendly way. A retaliatory law, though, we repeat, it is perfectly justifiable, will not work in well with his promised effort to obtain a reciprocity treaty at Washington, is not the struggle of life hard enough already for most of our people? Unpleasant Experience of a Kent County Young Man.

sis Doad Friend Held the Beins for Miles-Thought It Was Sleep.

Chatham, Sept. 21 .- Edward Alexander Everett, of Dover, met a startling-ly sudden death on Saturday evening, and another young man named Hannon had an experience, the memory of which he will always recall with a shudder. The two men came to town together in a sulky drawn by one horse. They started home in the moolight, Everett driving. Nothing unusual occurred except that Everett's hat fell off. Hannon stopped the rig, got the hat and replaced it on Everett's head. He noticed that Everett seemed sleepy. The horse knew the road well, and plodded steadily on towards the home of David Everett, of the sixth concession of Dover, the uncle of the young man, and with whom he had been living for two years past. Hannon made no attempt to remove the reins from what he thought to be the sleeping man until the horse stopped at the barn. He then spoke to his companion, and told him they were home. He received no reply, and thought that he would not arouse him until the horse had been stabled. The horse was taken from between the shafts of the sulky, and the sulky put in such shape that the form man would not be thrown off. When Hannon had put the horse a shake, but this had no more effect than words had before. He rushed to the house and aroused the family. When David Everett went out and the sulkey was drawn up to the door, where the light fell upon the ashy face, it was seen at once that the form was lifeless. The left hand had been firmly grasped to the slender iron which encircled the seat, and this was sufficient to hold the dead man in position. The body was taken into the house, and it still re-mained in the sitting posture in which death found him. The deceased was the youngest son of the late William A. Everett, of Kentbridge. His wid-owed mother resides at the corner of Thames and Chatham streets, in this city. He was in his 37th year, and unmarried. He was a man of strong frame, and weighed more than 200 pounds. Death was undoubtedly due to heart failure.

Young Robert Moore Charged With the Theft of a Horse and Rig.

Alone in the World He Fellewed the Devices of His Own Heart.

About 11:30 today Detective Northgreaves walked into Jailer Kelly's office, leading by the hand young Robert Moore, a most intelligent looking youngster, who is charged with the theft of a horse, rig and harness from Charles T. Fitzgerald, near Devizes. He was clothed in a pair of blue overalls, a little tweed coat and a red guernsey, under which was a cotton shirt. His hat was a little black straw, while his boots were coarse and heavy. He took the matter very coolly, and answered with indifference all questions. "How old are you?" said Jailer

"Thirteen," replied the boy.
"Where do you live?" was the next question. then said, "I guess I live all over."

The little fellow said his mother and father had died when he was a baby, and he did not know where he was born, but thought he was a Can-adian. He said "he would say he was "Did you ever go to church?" asked the jailer. "Yes, sir," said the boy, "to the Methodist Church." This ended the conversation, and the boy was led away to be placed be-hind the bars for the first time, to come up before Squire Lacey, who remanded him until the 29th.

Young Moore is the boy who was taken from the Salvation Army Home and put into a situation. He was employed by Charles T. Fitzgerald, a farmer on the town line of Nissouri, near Devizes. On Wednesday last the boy took a mare from the field where she had been with the colt, harnessed her, hitched her to a wagon and drove Word was sent out to the police authorities, and yesterday High Constable Schram received word that the boy had been arrested at Hibbert, about seven miles the other side of Mitchell. The boy drove to St. Marys, and about two miles from there he traded the horse and harness to a man named Dave Cousins. He took Cousins' horse, which was not so good as the one he had traded, and drove to Mitchell, thence to Hibbert, where he engaged with a farmer to work with the horse, which he called his. The whole outfit, Cousins' harness and horse, and Fitzgerald's rig, were found in his possession. Upon receipt of the news of the arrest of the youngster Detective North-greaves was dispatched to bring the boy here. He was brought before Squire Lacey and remanded. It is understood that the Children's Aid Society will take the matter in hand and try to shield the boy, who is one of more than average intelligence

About 100 men, all London citizens, were engaged today cleaning the bricks which were in the old walls at the car shops. These worked piecework at 50 cents per 1,000 bricks, and as many more might have had employment had they been on the spot. Every man applying secured work. There are from 300,000 to 400,000 bricks in the old walls, which are perfectly good, and will be utilized in building the new structures, but a large number of new bricks will be required. Tenders have been called for supplying 1,000,000, and many more will be needed. The contract will probably be awarded in a day or two. There are over 3,300 feet of brick wall, with two-brick panels, 19 feet high, to be erected, and it is estimated that 4,500 bushels of lime, 1,000 cubic yards of sand, 400 yards of gravel, and 700 barrels of cement will be used. The lime is being secured from Limehouse, and the cement from Owen Sound. One car of each has been

Millinery Opening

THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY

The Western Fair (which brought us a first prize for fancy work) has closed, but another exhibition that is far more important to the ladies of London is about to open. We refer to our Millinery opening, which takes place on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. It will be an unparalleled exhibition of that which is so dear to the hearts of women-Fashionable Headwear. The very latest of French novelties are here—that is a commonplace advertising saying of Millinery, but here it means a great deal. Our Wings, Flowers, Ribbons, etc., are direct from France, and set off the showrooms in princely attire-s showing that can only be made in showrooms such as ours.

Just Tell Then That You Saw . . . .

Our magnificent display, and most everybody in London will know that you have seen an exhibit that is not often excelled by the big stores of the big American cities. During the past summer our European buyer made a tour of the French markets—the birthplace of fashion. He has brought home with him the very best qualities of Flowers, Ribbons, Ornaments, etc., etc., and commencing Thursday a dazzling and alluring sight will be presented.

Jackets, Wraps, etc.

Nor is the display confined to Hats and Bonnets. The new Mantle stocks are open, and those who have had years of experience in placing this class of goods on tables are in raptures over their magnificence and beauty. You must see the Millinery, you must see the Mantles, and you will not miss the Dress Goods and other displays on the first floorin a store that has no competitor in the Dress Goods, Millinery and Mantle business.

This is a "Human Nature" Story.

London police courts seem to attract many persons who are in need of advice rather than of justice, and who in this country would never think of seeking outside the circle of relatives or friends. tiser from Toronto this afternoon announces that Senator John Ferguson died at noon. His death from Bright's disease had been hourly expected for some time, and Dr. Sylvester, his medical attendant, was beside him when he passed away.

The deceased was a son of the late John Ferguson, of London township, and a brother of Judge Ferguson, of the Ontario bench. He was educated in this city, and for a time taught school. Then he graduated as a medical man, and practiced his profession first at Glencoe and afterwards at Niagara Falls. He resided at that point until a few years since, when he moved to Toronto. At one time or another, he was interested in contracting and other financial speculations, in which he was highly successful, and he amassed a fortune. Dr. Ferguson was a strong Conservative, and an able debater on the stump, and when the late Senator Plumb died he was appointed to the vacancy. He had many friends in London and the family in their bereavement.

He got up to defend himself, when, it is alleged, Sutton tripped him, and caused him to fall heavily to the ground. As a result, the bone of his right leg was broken in two places. It is also alleged that Sutton kicked Gillespie while he was helpless on the ground The injured man was removed to the hospital in the ambulance. The cause of the trouble no one seems to know, but it is thought that the men had words earlier in the afternoon. No arrest has yet been made.

H Busy Season

In the Fur Line - Milne, Spittal & Co.'s Staff Working Overtime-The Prevailing Style.

To paraphrase the poet, in the fall everybody's fancy lightly turns wards thoughts of furs. But the touches of winter that have been so early felt this year have turned fancy to reality, and sensible people are preparing to fortify themselves against the attacks of J. Frost by ordering their furs in plenty of time.

"We started night work this week," said a member of the firm of Milne, Spittal & Co. to an Advertiser reporter today. "Our staff of fur cutters are fully employed filling the orders which are pouring in, and which seem to assure a splendid season's trade. The styles? Well, ruffs and short Astrachan gray lamb jackets are going to be very fashionable, but we have secured all the varieties to meet different tastes. The firm have a handsome assort ment of ruffs in sable, mink and Astrachan, and in the popular short jac-kets they have sable and marten in large quantities, as well as the popular Astrachan. This fall they have also on hand a complete stock of the latest New York and English hats and caps, a nice line of French and domestic gloves, Tam o' Shanters and silk toques, the latter being imported direct from the German markets. They are also well supplied with waterproof goods, which the inevitable rains October and November always create a great demand for. The succes of this firm, now nearing their third year, has been remarkable, and is the combined result of management by practical men, of enterprising methods, of direct purchase from the centers of trade, and of good judgmen in buying, and in interpreting the public's wants.

persuading Katherine the coach came, the disguise was assumed, and the two drove rapidly to the King's Arms. Hyde was lying upon a couch which had been drawn close to the window. But in order to secure as much quiet as possible, he had been placed in one of the rooms at the rear of the tavern-a large, airy room, looking beautiful garden which stretched away backward as far as the river. He had been in extremity. He was yet too weak to stand, too weak to endure long the strain of company, or books, or papers.

He heard his aunt's voice and footfall, and felt, as he always did, a vague pleasure in her advent. Whatever of life came into his chamber of suffering came through her. She brought him daily such intelligences as she thought conducive to his recovery; and it must be acknowledged that it was not always her "humor to news of Katherine that she believel he would die wanting it, and she had therefore fallen, without one conscientious scruple, into the reporter's temptation—inventing the things which ought to have taken place, and did not. "For, in faith, Nigel," she said to her husband, in excuse, "those who have nothing to tell must tell

Her reports had been ingenious and diversified. "She had seen Katherine at one of the windows the very pic-ture of distraction." "She had been told that Katherine was breaking her heart about him"; also "that Elder Semple and Councilor van Heemskirk had quarreled because Katherine had refused to see Neil, and the Elder blamed Van Heemskirk for not compelling her obedience." Whenever Hyde has been unusually depressed, or unusually nervous, Mrs. Gordon had always had some such comforting fiction ready. Now, here was the real smiles, her tears, her words would be a consolation so for having all her keeping." Her very presence, a consolation so far beyond all hopes that the girl by her side seemed a very disagreeable, and she also jeal-

She was far more than a miracle to Hyde. As the door opened, he slow-ly turned his head. When he saw who was really there, he uttered a low cry of joy—a cry pitiful in its shrill weakness. In a moment Ka-therine was close to his side. This was no time for coyness, and she was too tender and too true a woman to feel or affect it. She kissed his hands and face, and whispered on his lips the sweetest words of love and fidelity. Hyde was in a rapture. His joyful soul made his pale face luminous. He lay still, speechless, motionless, watching and listening to her.

Mrs. Gordon had removed Katherine's veil and cloak, and considerately withdrawn to a mirror at the extrem ity of the room, where she appeared to be altogether occupied with her own ringlets. But, indeed, it was with Katherine and Hyde one of those supreme hours when love conquers every other feeling. Before the whole world they would have avowed their affection, their pity, and their truth. Hyde could speak little; but there was no need of speech. Had he not nearly died for her? Was not his very helplessness a plea beyond the power of words? She had only to look at the white shadow of humanity holding her hand, and remember the gay, gallant, handsome soldier who had wooed her under the water-beeches to feel that all the love of her life was too little to repay his devotion. And so quickly, so quickly went the happy mo-ments! Ere Katherine has half said: "I love thee," Mrs. Gordon reminded her that it was near the noon, "and I have an excellent plan," she continued. "You can leave my vell and cloak in the coach, and I will leave you at the first convenient place near your home. At the turn of the road had, my Katherine, so many things to say to you. In my joy I forgot all. Come but once more. Upon my honor, I promise to ask Katherine Van Heemskirk only this once. Tomorrow? No. Two days hence, then?"

"Two days hence I will come again.
Then no more."

He smiled at her and put up his hands; and she knelt again by his side, and kissed her "farewell" on his hips. And as she put her cloak and veil on again, she drew a small volume towards him, and with trembling hands tore out of it a scrap of paper, and gave it to her.

Under the lilac hedge that night she read it—read it over and over bit of paper made almost warm and sentient by Phaedrus' tender petition to his beloved: "When you are in company with that other man, continue to love me by day and by night; want me, dream of me, expect me, think of me, wish for me, delight in me, be wholly with me; in short, be my very soul, as I am yours."

CHAPTER VIII. If Katherine had lived at this day, she would probably have spent the time between her promise and its fulfillment in self-analysis and introspective reasoning with her own conscience. But the women of a century ago were not tossed about with winds of various opinions, or made foolishly subtle by arguments about principles which ought never to be associated with dissent. A few strong, plain dictates had been set before Ka therine as the law of her daily life and she knew, beyond all controversy, when she disobeyed them.

In her own heart she called the sin she had determined to commit by its most unequivocal name. "I shall make happy Richard, but my father I shall deceive and disobey, and against my soul there will be the lie." the position she admitted, but every woman is Eve in some hours of her life. The law of truth and wisdom may be in her ears, but the apple of delight hangs within her reach, and with the full understanding of the consequences of disobedience she takes the forbidden pleasure. And if the vocal, positive command of divinity was unheeded by the first woman, mere mortal parents surely ought not to wonder that their commands, though wisdom, are often lightly held, or even impotent against the voice of some charmer pleading personal pleasure against duty, and self-will against the law infinitely higher and purer. In truth, Katherine had grown very weary of the perpetual eulogies which Batavius delivered for everything respectable and conservative. A kind of stubbornness in evil followed her acceptance of evil. This time, at least, she was determined to do wrong, whatever the consequences might be. Batavius and his inflexible propriety irritated her; she had a rebellious desire to give him little moral shocks, and she deeply resented his constant injunctions to "Remember that Joanna's and his own good ously noted the influence he was exercising over Joanna. There are women who prefer secrecy to honesty, and sin to truthfulness; but Katherine was not one of them. If it had been possible to see her lover honorably she would have much preferred it. She was totally destitute of that contemptible sentimentality which would rather invent difficulties in a love affair than not have them; but she knew well the storm of reproach and disapproval which would answer any such request; and her thoughts were all bent towards devising some plan which would enable her to leave home early on that morning which she had promised her lover. But all her little arguments failed, and it was almost at the last hour of the evening previous that circumstancs offered her a reasonable excuse. It came through Batavius, who returned home later than usual, bringing with him a great many patterns of damask, and figured cloth, and stamped leather. At once he announced his intention of staying at home the next morning in order to have Joanna's aid in selecting the covenings for their new chairs and counting up their cost. He had taken the strips out of his pocket with an air of importance and complaisance, and Katherine, glancing from them to her mother, thought she perceived a fleeting shadow of a feeling very much akin to her own contempt of the man's pronounced self-satisfac-tion. So, when supper was over and the house duties done, she determined to speak to her. Joris was at a town meeting, and Lysbet did not interfere with the lovers. Katherine found her standing at the open window, looking thoughtfully into the autumn garden

Street Railway Extensions in the Fifth Ward Discussed.

The Grading of Wellington Street Condemned-Mr. Hiscox's Request-The Cold Storage Agreement.

Mayor Little, Ald. Pritchard, Taylor, John Heaman, O'Meara, Powell, Douglass, Carrothers, Skinner, Wm. Heaman, Cooper, Garratt, Dreaney, Bennet, Nutkins, Parnell, McCallum and Gerry attended last night's meeting of the

TRUSTEE GILLEAN. The business was chiefly of a routine character. One of the most important items was the election of a high school trustee to succeed Mr. W. to say whether they should pay for M. Anderson, resigned. Ald. Dreaney moved that Scott Murray be appointed. Ald. Wm. Heaman moved Thomas

Ald. Pritchard moved S. S. Casey. Ald. Parnell moved W. H. Weston. Ald. Cooper moved Walter Morgan, but he was declared too late. The first ballot resulted thus: Murray 4, Gillean 15, Weston 4, Casey 5.

On the second ballot Mr. Gillean was elected almost unanimously.

Ald. Parnell moved that W. H.

Weston's name be inserted in the bylaw in place of Mr. Gillean's. Lost. Mr. Gillean's election was then confirmed by bylaw.

STREET RAILWAY EXTENSION. Mayor Little made an announcement relative to the application at Ottawa of the street railway company for crossing privileges at Rectory street. The mayor said the matter could not be decided for some weeks, as the railway committee had not met yet. Are You Interested in Your Own He had, therefore, written Mr. Carr, asking him not to commit himself to either route-straight out Hamilton road to the city limits, or on Rectory street from the Hamilton road to Dundas street-until the council had decided which it preferred.

Ald. Dreaney championed the Hamilton road extension, which, he said, the people of the fifth ward wanted. They had received nothing from the franchise except the Dundas street

Ald. Taylor said Ald. Dreaney's motion encouraged the building of a village outside the city. He argued that the railway should not be built past Rectory street. Ald. Bennet agreed with Ald. Taylor. The street railway company had a monopoly of all the city inlets now. Ald. Nutkins favored Ald. Dreaney's

THE BOARD OF WORKS. the board of works. Claims for damages from John Cook and Wm. Diplock were referred to the city solicitor and street railway company respectively. The third clause submitted the bylaw governing the gas company in opening up city streets. Ald. Carrothers thought it should be made more stringent, so as to compel the company to ask the council's permission before opening up streets, and to put the streets in proper condition after their work is done. Ald. Bennet said the waterworks company also left the streets in bad condition. He moved that a bylaw be brought in compelling the company to notify the city before tearing up streets and to leave them in a proper state. the committee had replaced, at a cost

Clause 4 informed the council that of $12 75, the fixtures removed from agricultural hall, Queen's Park, by Court Forest City, A. O. F., for drill purposes, and which the latter refused to replace. Ald. Parnell recommended that in future, before the hall be lent, it be specified that the fixtures should be replaced by the parties using the place.

Clause 5 left the council to deal with John Price's request for a foot bridge on the east side of Clark's bridge, and have part of Wellington stree

Ald. Pritchard, Ald. Carrothers and Ald. Taylor complained that the condition of Wellington street, north of the bridge, was disgraceful, and that would have to be repaired.

Ald. Parnell said it would be graveled to make it safe, but to grade and fix it permanently would cost $1,000 and it could not be done this year. Ald. O'Meara said Wellington stree was a mud hole, and had been lifted out of the mud. Other streets, used far more, were in worse condition. He denounced the building of the stree rallway on High street, which led to a cow pasture, just to please "John McClary and a few big nobs." And now they wanted the city to widen and improve it, at a cost of $3,000 or $4,000.

They should do the work themselves. Ald. Carrothers and other colleague criticised the engineer's judgment grading Wellington street. The former moved that the street railway grade !

lowered to the proper level. At Ald. Parnell's suggestion the mat ter was referred back to committee consider what could be done. In the absence of Chairman Armstrong, Ald. Powell read the report of the finance committee.

After a long discussion, Mr. A. E.
Davis, of South street, was refunded his rates paid on a sewer which was of no use to him. Ald. Cooper pro-tested that he knew 50 or 60 people on William street who were in the same plight.

The remainder of the report dealt largely with tax remissions, chiefly on account of charity. COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Mr. George T. Hiscox asked for an artificial stone walk on King street, corner Richmond, in front of his new building, and wanted to know what percentage of the cost the city would pay.

Ald. Cooper thought that Mr. Hiscox should be allowed one-half the cost, because of the fine building he had erected. Ald. Taylor seconded.

Ald. Bennet said Mr. Hiscox should have just what any other citizen would get. Ald, Powell agreed with this view.

Ald. Garratt's amendment that Mr.

These included ineffective greater pressure lack of a double ive water pressure, lack of a double main, want of a chemical engine, and lack of sufficient reliable hose. Referred to No. 3 committee.

In reply to the mayor, Ald. Pritchard reported progress on the great watering cart mystery.

Ald. John Heaman wished for copy of the aerial truck contract with the Waterous Engine Works Company. He could not find it. Ald, Powell, chairman of No. 3 committee last year, thought the city solicitor had it. He understood the company were charging for some ex-tras, but it remained for the council

Ald. O'Meara said the contract might be in one of the missing watering carts.

Ald. Taylor moved that the clerk kets. write the manager of a local contemorary, demanding the name of the alderman whom it charged with pre-senting, at the Aberdeen reception, a piece of brown wrapping paper, inscribed, "A Man and His Family," instead of a proper card. This was carried unanimously. All the aldermen who attended the reception denied having done any such thing.
The agreement with the Dominion Cold Storage Company was again laid over, as their representative had not arrived. Some of the aldermen hinted that if the company meant business they had better hurry up.

Skeptics are frequently found on sick beds, and many of them go down to the grave with the idea that they have done their duty and lived well. Such individuals, while they live, positively injure their families, and are a source of danger to the community in which they live.

LEAMINGTON'S LEAPS.

Evidence of Progress in the Western Town,

Capt. Johnston, of No. 2 Company, Twenty-first Essex Fusiliers, who was here in camp, will likely feel more at home in the editorial chair of the Leamington Post, of which he is editor and proprietor. The captain is just about to be confronted with an opposition paper, and this will be conducted and managed by three graduates of the Post-Messrs. C. Williams, Gordon Lane, and A. Scrase. They have purchased the plant of the old Amherstburg Leader at a cost of $1,200. Capt. Johnston says he fears nothing, as he has run out one opposi-tion sheet and bought out the other two. The captain is mayor of Leamington, and speaks in glowing terms of the prospects before the little town. He says the income from natural gas and water, will nigh run the place and keep the taxation down to 10 1-4 mills. There are two gas wells, each having a capacity of 1,000,000 feet per hour, and a pressure of 120 pounds to the square inch.

"The town has cruck oil, too," said the captain. "Last week we made our first shipment of oil, which was over 200 barrels." The captain is a fruit grower, He has 5,000 peach trees. Last year he shipped $600 worth of the velvety fruit, and this year h expects to ship 2,500 baskets. The trees are yet young, and next year he says he expects to ship 100,000 bas-

DOMENION C. E. CONVENTION. Great interest is being taken by Cantional Convention, which is to be held in Ottawa, Oct. 6, 7, 8 and 9. It is the first attempt at a joint meeting of the provincial unions, and the result will probably determine the feasibility of organizing a Dominion union. The pro gramme has been arranged so as to permit of sufficient time being given the provincial unions to meet and transact business. The speakers will be the most prominent in Endeavor circles in Canada, and a large attendance is already assured. Good citizenship is being given a prominent place on the programme, and the Hon. G. W. Ross, Ontario's eloquent Minister of Education, has promised to address the gathering on this most important theme. A feature of the convention will be an open air patriotic service, to be held at Aylmer, Que., on Friday, 9th, when addresses will be delivered by Dr. G. M. Grant, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, and Mr. John Willis Baer, of Boston, secretary of the United Society of the Christian Endeavor. Aylmer is the birthplace of Rev. Lectures to a Large Audience on Human Nature-An Entertaining Address.

Prof. Alexander opened a series of lectures last night in the Music Hall services of that stalwart son of Mebefore a large and appreciative audience. His subject was "Human Nature," and he handled it in a very entertaining and instructive way, dealing with the boy as the father of the man. Artemus Ward said there was a great deal of human nature in mankind, but the difficulty was in understanding that nature. The lecturer said a man might study his wife for 30 years and then not know her. Again, there were many wives who had studied their husbands, and they wished they had never begun. People with large heads were not necessarily brainy. Brain was the making of the man, not bone, and there might be much bone and very little brain. He exhibited the head of Chauncey Leonard, a horsethief, who was condemned to death, and who sold his body for a pound of candies, and who, on the day of the execution, sat up in his coffin and ate them. The professor dealt with the wide and the narrow-headed boys. The former were the making of smart men, if they were started in life on the right road, while the later were only Willies and Johnnies at the best of He had often heard sermons all his life from the words, "Children, obey our parents in all things," but he had never heard a word from the text, "Parents, provoke not your chil-dren to anger." The time was coming when this latter kind of preaching would be equal to if not better than the former.

Rousing Rally

Methodist Church. They Hold Their First Epworch League Anniversary-Rev. W. F. Wilson and Rev. R. Hobbs Give Telling Addresses.

The young people's rally last night in connection with the Epworth League anniversary services at Dundas Center Church was largely attended. It was the celebration of their first anniversary. Mr. J. D. Keenleyside, of the league, was chairman, and on the platform were the pastor of the church, Rev. E. B. Lanceley, Mr. Wm. Jeffery (president of the local union), Rev. H. J. Uren, and the speakers of the evening, Rev. W. F. Wilson, of Trinity Church, Toronto, and Rev. R. Hobbs, of Askin Street, South London. The president spoke briefly on the Epworth League movement-a good and growing one, which represented the young life of the church. Introducing Rev. Mr. Wilson, he said they were very fortunate in securing the thodism. Mr. Wilson's address was a rich treat-amusing, pathetic, instructive and inspiring. He recorded some of his impressions received at the great Christian Endeavor convention in Washington, and spoke of the wel-come the Ontario delegates received. Whenever they said they were from Canada, they always had the right of way. He said he was proud to tell them of Toronto what he might have said of London-no Sunday desecration. One thing the speaker was impressed with when he saw the behavior of the forty thousand young people attending the convention was that they were intensely patriotic. Everywhere were to be seen Stars and Stripes, ranging in size from 50 feet long and 12 feet wide, to the little flags worn in the button-hole. He attri-buted it to the intense love and spirit of intense patriotism instilled in the young people. "Let's talk of our country when we go away. When in Detroit for a holiday, don't try to make people believe you are from Toledo. The speaker was struck with the power of a single consecrated life. He then gave a brief description of F. E. Clarke, the founder of the Christian Endeavor movement. His third impression was that of the practical, wide-awake spirit of the young people. He concluded by saying that no other name than that of Christ, and no other book than the Bible, could have brought together such a large gathering Rev. Mr. Hobbs spoke very earnestly on "Our Duty and How to Measure It." Christ would never ask them to do what was not for their highest good, and His greatest glory, nor what they had not the ability to do.

The Scripture lesson was read by Rev. H. J. Uren, and the special Epon this advice, I procured the medi-cine and less than half a bottle cured der the direction of Mr. W. H. Hewlett, organist, was very fine. Solos It was with reluctance that I were rendered by Miss Roblyn and

Its best use is before you fear consumption; when you begin to get thin, weak, run down; then is the prudent time to begin to take care, and the best way to take care is to supply the system with needed fat and strength.
