BECK DENIES ALL CHARGES MADE BY SETTLE Two Children Meet Death When Owen Sound Home Burns

SIR ADAM EXPLAINS ALL IN DENIAL OF CHARGES

Beck, on Witness Stand at Snider Probe Into Settler Charges, Declares All Transactions Were Fully Understood and Agreed to by Hydro Commissioners—Tells of Refusing Check For $45,000 For First Six Years' Work.

NO LOAN EVER SECURED FROM MOLSONS

Canadian Press Dispatch.
Toronto, Nov. 12.—Judge Snider, probing the charges made by Clarence Settler, former secretary of the hydro, against the Ontario hydro commission and Sir Adam Beck, concluded his inquiry at 12:15 today. When W. S. Brewster, government counsel, invited anyone who could give evidence to step forward, F. H. McGuigan, who had a contract for a transmission line, did so. When he inferred a charge against the hydro, his honor, stopped him, stating this inquiry was only into charges made by Settler and not by others. Mr. McGuigan said that he had been asked whether he got the contract "where the chairman got off."

Mr. McGuigan was just going further to allege a partnership by Sir Adam Beck with some contractor when I. B. Lucas, hydro commission counsel, interrupted to state that this surely constituted another charge, or would constitute another charge if Mr. McGuigan were allowed to proceed with it.

Had Made Threats.
His honor agreed with the objection, and Mr. McGuigan was not allowed to proceed further.

"You have been presenting a claim against the hydro for years?" asked Mr. Lucas of Mr. McGuigan.

"Yes, and this is the first time I was ever able to get in," was the reply.

"An arbitration board, in which your counsel was W. N. Tilley, made a settlement of your account against the hydro?"

"Yes, you said angry words about it."

"Well, you said angry words about it."

HI-JACKERS CREATING PROBLEM

Operating on Ontario Trains in Guise of O. T. A. Officers.

TRAVELLERS WARNED

Department States Genuine Officials Demand Greater Information.

Canadian Press Dispatch.
Toronto, Nov. 12.—"Hi-jackers" operating on inter-provincial trains under the guise of O. T. A. enforcement officers, are the latest problem with which the provincial police have to deal. Reports to the police show that during the last few days, several of the O. T. A. officers' badges, have gone through the baggage of adventurous Ontarians coming back from Quebec, and have taken any stray bottles they found. These they retain in Ontario towns at high prices.

In passing, provincial police point out, for the information of future victims, that a genuine enforcement officer is not likely to be content with ascertaining the name and address of people who are found to be drinking liquor into the province. This is all besides the liquor, which the "hi-jackers" are asking of those molested.

Belcourt Urges New School Law

Senator Declares Ontario Regulation Direct Blow at National Unity.

Canadian Press Dispatch.
Toronto, Nov. 12.—Before a gathering of educationalists, professors and businessmen comprising what is known as the Unity League, Senator N. A. Belcourt, former president of the French-Canadian educational association, spoke of the bilingual school question. Regulation 17 of the Ontario department of education struck, he declared, a direct blow at national unity, outraged every consideration of British justice, and if continued, would jeopardize the future of Canada.

The wording of the regulation limited the use of French in the primary schools of Ontario for the purpose of communication and instruction in the form only or at the most, to two years. He said that even then it could only be used in schools that had been established prior to 1912. It had been a failure from the very start.

The purpose and effect of the regulation was the immediate proscription of the French language in all Anglo-French schools erected after 1912, and the gradual extermination in all other cases if the regulation was applied.

Williams is Ready to Appear

A. Lloyd Mennie May Become Next Provincial Constable for District.

A. Lloyd Mennie, one of the most efficient motorcycle officers on the staff of the provincial police force, will be the next officer slated for duty in Middlesex county if he wants the job.

This information was given to The Advertiser this afternoon by General Victor Williams, head of the provincial force.

Mennie is a splendid officer," declared General Williams. "He can have the appointment if he wants it. I have received no written applications as yet for the position and have not been in touch with Officer Mennie."

Mr. Mennie is quite conversant with duty in the county of Middlesex. He has been stationed here at various times during the summer months in pursuit of speeders. His present headquarters are in Chatham.

MOVE TO REDUCE MEAT PRICES IN FRANCE STARTS

Associated Press Dispatch.
Paris, Nov. 12.—To bring down the price of the family steak and chop, the federation of French provisions traders has submitted to Premier Herriot a scheme for the importation on the hoof of 70,000 sheep and 20,000 cattle. Ten thousand of the cattle and 30,000 of the sheep would be brought from the Argentine and 5,000 cattle and 20,000 sheep each from Uruguay and Abyssinia.

The federation spokesman claimed that this imported meat would be at least 10 cents a pound under the price of the home-grown article, and would be sold at a profit to the importer to the extent that the latter agreed to redempt to the minister of agriculture to let the plan go into operation.

MANUSCRIPT OF 'KIDNAPPED' AUCTIONED FOR $10,000

Associated Press Dispatch.
New York, Nov. 12.—At the sale in Anderson galleries yesterday, when the original manuscript of "Kidnapped" fetched $10,000, two other manuscripts of Robert Louis Stevenson's were sold.

The single page manuscript of "Stevenson's" "Requiem" brought $1,500, while his notebook for his travels with a donkey brought $2,000.

FEW LONDONERS SEEKING HOMES IN UNITED STATES

School Figures Reveal Many Returning to Canada From South.

CASE IS ALTERED

Many More Now Coming In Than Leaving For Other Countries.

That the exodus of Canadian citizens to the United States has decreased rapidly during the past six months is generally recognized as a fact. Concrete proof of that fact lies in statistics prepared by M. M. Sims, chief attendance officer of the board of education concerning school children constantly moving into and moving out of the city.

During the past two months there have been 23 more school children come into the city of London than have left the city to cross the line. There have moved into the city from the United States during the period mentioned 48 children while only half that number have left London to take up their residence in the States.

During the period, Jan. 1 to Oct. 2 of this year, 67 children entered the city schools from points outside the city. Of this number 580 moved in from points in Canada, all the way from Vancouver to Halifax, from England, Scotland, and other European countries, and 67 from the United States. On the other hand 551 children left the city, 434 to reside in other points in Canada and 117 to live in the States.

Encouraging Figures.
The figures for September and October of this year are very encouraging, indicating as they do that the exodus is rapidly abating. If not being altogether wiped out. During September 225 children entered the city school from outside points. Of this number 183 came in from Canada and other countries and 36 from the United States. Of the 117 children who moved out of the city during September, 92 remained in Canada, while the remainder, 19, went to the States. During October the "return" continued. Of the children entering the city schools, 81 being from Canadian points, and 10 from across the line. Children who left the city in October numbered 39, of whom 35 went to other Canadian centers, while only 4 went to the States.

Since Jan. 1 last the London school population has increased by drawing from outside points by 55 children; it has lost to the States 50 children. The encouraging feature of the situation lies in the fact, however that during the first six months of the year the loss to the States numbered 73 children, the "return" gained during the past two months has very appreciably reduced that number by bringing it down to 50 children.

Mr. Sims stated that of the children going to the States, the majority take up their new homes in Detroit, Cleveland and San Francisco, fully 70 per cent of them going to Detroit.

Change Coming.
Byrd N. Campbell, chairman of the board of education, expressed his great pleasure with the statistics as quoted. He said: "So, doubt, the trade conditions of the United States for such that an even larger return of Canada's sons may be expected from now on. Such is the sincere hope of every patriotic citizen."

Trustee George F. Copeland saw in the statistics a barometer which pointed to a change in the future.

FRANCE HONORS LOCATION OF FIRST OFFICIAL FLIGHT

Associated Press Dispatch.
Paris, Nov. 12.—A memorial stone, commemorating the first officially-controlled aeroplane flight in France was inaugurated this morning by the mayor of the city of Paris, M. Albert Sarraute, in the Bois de Boulogne, where M. Santos-Dumont covered 220 meters in 21 1/5 seconds on Nov. 12, 1908. During the ceremony, M. Santos-Dumont received from the Belgian aviator, Copeland, the decoration of grand officer of the Order of Leopold Second, sent by the King of the Belgians.

FEW APPEALS MADE IN CIVIC VOTERS' LIST

Total of Ninety-Three Granted to Ratepayers Who Applied.

THREE REFUSED

Only 25 or 30 ratepayers appeared before voters' revision court at the county buildings this morning to back up appeals for changes in the municipal voters' lists. In all, there were only 93 appeals granted to ratepayers who had asked to have names added, the smallest figure in years.

Applications made by City Clerk Baker for some 200 alterations in the lists, chiefly changes from one subdivision to another and none of them additions, were granted. In some cases he asked to have names cut off. Information was taken from applications supplied at the provincial voters' courts of last month and was accepted by the judge.

Only three applications were refused. One at least was under age, another was not a tenant, as he had claimed to be, and another was not a freeholder.

Only 40 minutes was needed to complete the sitting of the court. When revision court was hearing appeals for the provincial voters' lists, sittings were held morning, afternoon and evening for ten days.

"I never saw so little interest," declared City Clerk Baker. "A great deal of money was spent in advertising revision court and the entering of appeals. Not half of the people who entered applications were interested enough to appear at the court today."

OWEN SOUND CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

Helen and Loretta Featherstone Perish as Home Burns.

MOTHER ESCAPES

Firemen Succeed in Recovering Bodies From Upper Rooms.

Canadian Press Dispatch.
Owen Sound, Nov. 12.—In a fire which destroyed their home, Helen and Loretta Featherstone, aged eight and nine years, respectively, were burned to death at 5 o'clock this morning, and their grandmother, Mrs. Fred Featherstone, with whom they were living, is seriously burned and may not recover. The fire, which broke out in the back kitchen, quickly spread to the bedrooms where the children, and before the children could be got out they were suffocated and burned to death.

An employee of one of the local factories on his way to work noticed the kitchen blazing and with much difficulty he aroused Mrs. Fred Featherstone, expecting that she would arouse the others and get them to the safety while he summoned assistance. The aged woman ran to the door opening into the kitchen and opened it, allowing the flames to get a start on the remainder of the house. It was here that she was badly burned.

The mother of the children also escaped. When the firemen reached the house flames were pouring from the upper windows. Firemen entered the upper rooms and succeeded in getting the bodies of the children out. One had apparently been suffocated, but the other was quite evidently burned to death.

PROTESTANTS IN U. S. WATCH UNION BATTLE

If Cause Fails American Church Will Retard a Generation, Minister Says.

Canadian Press Dispatch.
Winnipeg, Nov. 12.—Should the church union movement in Canada work out successfully, it will mean a great deal for the union of the Protestant churches in the United States, according to Rev. A. G. Sinclair, D.D., of Bloomfield church, New Jersey, speaking before the Presbyterian synod of Manitoba here last night.

Dr. Sinclair was formerly pastor of St. Andrew's church, Winnipeg. In extending greetings from the church in the United States, Dr. Sinclair said the church union movement in Canada was a step toward the union of the Protestant churches in the United States, and was being watched closely. If it failed it would set back the cause of the union of the churches, and if it succeeded it would mean a great deal for union in the United States.

U. S. STRENGTHENS BORDER PATROLS IN THE WEST

Canadian Press Dispatch.
Winnipeg, Nov. 12.—To combat the smuggling of aliens into the states of North Dakota and Minnesota from Manitoba and Ontario, the United States border patrol is to be strengthened by additional motor patrols and guards, according to information received by the Winnipeg police.

Many aliens who tried to evade the patrol have been captured since September 1, when the new motor patrol laws, attempts are becoming more numerous and additional patrolmen are required to cope with the situation.

AERIAL SERVICE PLANNED FROM MOSCOW TO PARIS

Associated Press Dispatch.
Moscow, Nov. 12.—Plans are under way for a direct aerial passenger service between Moscow and Paris. The first direct flight will be made by a route which covers Strassburg, Prague, Warsaw, Vilna and Smolensk, arrived at Minsk yesterday carrying the director of the French society of aviation, who will direct the service. Regular bi-weekly flights will be inaugurated early in the spring. The 1,500-mile journey to be covered in 19 hours by planes carrying eight passengers each. The machines will be equipped with grackles and other accessories for night flying. The present railroad journey between Moscow and Paris occupies nearly five days.

POSTPONE MURDER CASE.

Canadian Press Dispatch.
Montreal, Nov. 12.—Mary Serafini, wife of Giuseppe Serafini, hanged recently with three others for the Hochelaga bank murder and body, appeared in the court of King's Bench this morning charged with playing a part in the robbery. Her case was postponed until Nov. 18 at the request of Crown-Prosecutor Chidley.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Burglars entered the apartment of Miss A. Mackenzie last night and stole $5,000 of Victoria coupon-bearing bonds.

MINISTERS TO LAUNCH NEWEST FRENCH LOAN

Associated Press Dispatch.
Paris, Nov. 12.—Finance Minister Clementel is to open the selling campaign of the new French internal loan in comfortable and modern fashion, broadcasting from his office armchair a talk extolling and explaining the advantages of the new bonds, both to the investor and the general public.

Premier Herriot will do his share by addressing a meeting of the presidents of the chambers of commerce and industry of the French cities on the same subject.

U. S. IMMIGRATION PATROL IS BEING STRENGTHENED

Associated Press Dispatch.
Washington, Nov. 12.—The United States immigration border patrol for the Canadian boundary is being recruited to its full strength of 450 men. The end of the Canadian border is being taken against this drive.

A despatch from Winnipeg last night said that the United States border patrol is to be strengthened to combat the smuggling of aliens into North Dakota and Minnesota from Manitoba and Ontario.

SENATOR N. A. BELCOURT.

in an address to the Unity League, vigorously condemned regulation 17 of the Ontario school act, which specifies the limited use of French in the primary schools of Ontario. Belcourt declares the present act is a blow at national unity.

Later a bigger flat was used, and all the furniture for it was brought from his London residence. When Sir Adam Beck was appointed chief engineer, he had stipulated that he be allowed to do outside work as a consulting engineer, Sir Adam continued. The commission had full confidence that this eventually would be the result.

"We shall reach our goal," he said, "by virtue of the strength of right, of the union of the people, and of their attachment to the throne, and of the solidarity of all for the safeguarding of our rights in the two lakes of the valley of the Nile with- out admitting or recognizing any act or fact likely to prejudice them."

"I think all expenses were paid by the federal government," said Sir Adam. He bought horses for the British government also. He was entitled to use the car, and the commissioners knew it.

Sir Adam said that the charge that there were changes made

CHARGES AGAINST BECK ARE BEING INVESTIGATED

Full Force of Hydro Investigation Yesterday Is Directed Against Beck, Who Is Accused of Using Commission's Funds For Private and Other Irregular Purposes.

SIR ADAM EXPECTS TO TAKE STAND TODAY

Toronto, Nov. 11.—The main volley of E. C. Settell's broadside on the Ontario hydro-electric commission resounded through Queen's Park today. The target for the volley was Sir Adam Beck, Settell's former chief, against whom he laid 29 specific charges of irregularity, arising in most cases out of alleged expenditure of hydro funds for personal or other purposes.

Settell and his one-time employer came face to face today for the first time since the former secretary's flight from Toronto more than a month ago. Sir Adam Beck entered the committee room where Judge Snider's investigation is being conducted shortly after the morning session was under way. The hydro chairman seated himself behind the press table, at the opposite side of the room to the spot where Settell sat.

Probe Charges.

The charges against Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the commission, included allegations that the hydro chairman's motor car had been engaged in smuggling goods into Canada from the United States, that the chairman had given a banquet to 100 nurses at the hydro's expense, that the chairman had benefited from both hydro labor and hydro materials, and that a hydro deposit of $20,000 in the Molsons Bank had been to offset a loan to Sir Adam from that institution. Investigation of these charges was opened today and in the day's evidence it was the matter of the $20,000 deposit chiefly that remained unexplained.

The smuggling incident was declared to have been nothing more than the bringing back from New York of Miss Beck's personal baggage; a voucher was found showing that a meal had been prepared for a party of 88, and witnesses explained that many of the electric lights which were charged as having been sent out to Sir Adam had really been sent out to municipalities for experimental purposes. The Molsons Bank manager testified that the deposit had come to that institution without prearrangement, as commission chairman Brewster or, as commission chairman Brewster expressed it, "as a thing of mere providence." Major W. W. Pope, secretary of the hydro, upon whose instructions the check to the Molsons Bank had been issued, was almost equally unable to cast any light upon the incident. He could only suggest that the banks at the time had been urging the hydro to split up its business amongst them. He admitted, however, that the Molsons Bank had been the only one which had been favored, and that it had received only one deposit.

Book Gave No Evidence.

For the rest, the evidence of the day was upon matters less important. Supplies and labor charges, as having been employed in the service of Sir Adam at the expense of the hydro. Allegations that disbursements had been made from hydro expense amounts to the London sanatorium, were, however, declared to be not borne out by the books of the commission. Evidence of the day was largely given by H. E. Gilfoyle, hydro auditor. The reply of Sir Adam is expected tomorrow, when it is expected that the hearings of the Snider commission will be concluded.

Produces Invoices.

Mr. Gilfoyle at the afternoon session produced an invoice with reference to Settell's charges. Sir Adam had produced one hundred copies of the issue of "Construction," which had contained pictures of the London sanatorium and that he had distributed these to his friends. Referring also to the banquet for nurses and flowers Mr. Gilfoyle said none of these items were charged to Sir Adam Beck.

In the matter of Sir Adam's settlement for his hydro meals, it was explained by Mr. Gilfoyle that such had been effected by checks for varying amounts. The $1,500 check which Sir Adam had secured from the hydro had not, Mr. Gilfoyle said, been a refund as Settell had alleged. It had simply represented an annual sum allowed to Sir Adam Beck for his out-of-pocket expenses in lieu of his submitting itemized accounts.

Charges of irregularities in connection with a shipment of cotton-wood and spruce from the west were analyzed by Mr. Gilfoyle until it was disclosed that the hydro had not only lost nothing in the matter, but it had collected from Sir Adam Beck, as its share of freight cost, $147.32, to which it was not entitled.

Deny Hydro Paid For Wells.

The witness gave evidence in respect to the charge that bills of J. Glaubitz for work upon the artesian wells at London, Ontario, had been paid by the hydro. He produced all Mr. Glaubitz's accounts to the hydro, and stated that none of them showed any connection with work upon London's water system.

Evidence was given on the allegations that airlift patterns for Sir Adam Beck, in connection with the London water system, had been paid for by the hydro. In this matter, hydro vouchers were produced, showing that payments of $18.85, $17.73 and $21.18 had been made in February, 1902, to the Downer pattern works for plans for an airlift system. These monies, the witness stated, had been charged to the general expense of the hydro, and not to Sir Adam Beck or to the city of London.

Sir Adam Beck's expense account for $1,807.75 after his trip to Berlin in 1911 was filed as an exhibit. It was stated that no itemized account for this amount had been rendered to the commission.

Invoices were read from the Simplex Electric Heating Company for goods totalling in value $399.96. No details of this transaction could be given by the witness. Other invoices for lamps were read from the Engineering and Supply Company. One was for $23.85. Another was for $32.90 and had been marked upon it "shipped to Hon. Adam Beck, London. Another was for $10.54.

"Were these items charged to Sir Adam?" Mr. Brewster, counsel for Judge Snider, asked.

Charged to Commission. "No, they were charged to 'commission account,'" Mr. Gilfoyle replied.

who will reply to the 29 charges directed against him by E. C. Settell, his former private secretary. Sir Adam attended the hearing yesterday, and came face to face with Settell for the first time since his former employee was arrested.

Another invoice, Mr. Brewster asked, same company was for $17.42. "From this invoice," Mr. Brewster asked, "has anything been erased?" "Yes," witness stated. "The destination of the shipment would appear to have been erased, but you can read that it was 'shipped to Hon. Adam Beck'."

The auditor could give no explanation for this erasure.

Inspecting the charge that the expenses of Sir Adam Beck to the Ottawa Horse Show on May 12, 1912, had been paid by the hydro, the witness could only find in Settell's expense account items of $10.25 for a C. P. R. ticket to Ottawa on May 9 and for an unspecified amount for a lower berth from Ottawa to Toronto on May 17. As bearing on the charge that there had been "practical theft" of a motor car, which had been sent to London, Mr. Gilfoyle stated that for some years a motor car and chauffeur had been maintained for Sir Adam in London.

Passing to the charge that $5,000 had been advanced during the past summer to Sir Adam on account of his trip to England, and that no mention had been made of it in the commission minutes, Mr. Gilfoyle stated that a total of $8,143.64 had been advanced jointly to Sir Adam and Mr. Gaby.

"Has there been any accounting made for this sum?" Mr. Brewster asked.

"Sir Adam's and Mr. Gaby's detailed expense accounts have not yet been presented," Mr. Gilfoyle stated.

Authorization Lacking. The witness was asked concerning the statement that no minute of the advance had been made in the commission records. He agreed that none had been made, and that there had been no authorization for the money for the trip.

With regard to the charge that a motor car was maintained in England for the use of Sir Adam's family, invoices were produced by Mr. Gilfoyle. In April, 1913, $4,000 had been

LONG DRY SPELL BROKEN BY RAIN

Scattered Showers Throughout Last Night Bring Little Relief.

Scattered showers last night, the first since Oct. 7, broke one of the longest dry spells in the history of Western Ontario. London seemed to be the center of the rain, for there was little rainfall in other sections.

The small amount of rain that fell was of little benefit. Farmers who are unable to proceed with fall plowing on account of the lack of moisture were not helped a great deal.

The rain had little effect on the forest fires that have been raging in parts of the province for several weeks. A heavy rain at this time is badly needed to extinguish the smouldering fires. These are liable to break out at any time, and the sooner they are put out the sooner the danger from that source will be over.

ONE WOMAN GIVEN POST BY BALDWIN

Duchess of Atholl Becomes Secretary To Board of Education.

Associated Press Despatch. London, Nov. 11.—The Duchess of Atholl is the only woman among the more than a score of ministerial appointments made public tonight. The duchess becomes parliamentary secretary to the board of education in the new Baldwin ministry. Aside from other parliamentary appointments are announced as follows:

Sir William Mitchell-Thomson, postmaster general; Lieut.-Col. Wilfrid Ashley, minister of transport, and Major C. C. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, minister of agriculture, which post he previously held. The Earl of Onslow is made under-secretary of war; Sir Philip Sassoon, under-secretary for air, and Earl Stanhope, civil lord of the admiralty. Sir Thomas Inskip again becomes solicitor-general.

Others who will retain their old posts are Ronald McNair, under-secretary for foreign affairs; Walter Guinness, financial secretary to the treasury; and Earl Winterton, under-secretary for India. Lieut.-Col. J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon again becomes parliamentary secretary to the ministry of transport.

H. M. Samuel, M. P. for the Farnham division of Surrey, has been appointed parliamentary secretary for overseas trade. The post of under-secretary for the colonies has been offered to Hon. W. G. Ormsby-Gore, who represents Stafford in the new parliament. He is at present in East Africa, and his acceptance of the office has not yet been received.

SOLUTION TO NO. 24.

Lightfoot, Rev. Mr. Chapman of Empress Avenue Methodist church conducted the services.

APPOINT MONTREALER TO C. P. R. DIRECTORATE

R. H. McMaster Named To Succeed the Late Lord Shaughnessy.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—At a meeting of the directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company held today, the vacancy in the board occasioned by the death of the late Lord Shaughnessy, was filled by the appointment of Ross Huntington McMaster of this city. Mr. McMaster is already a vice-president and director of the Steel Company of Canada, and a director of the Northern Electric Company, and of the Canadian Explosives, Limited. He was born in Montreal on Oct. 11, 1880.

The board also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. payable Dec. 21 to shareholders of the Dec. 1 record.

SCHOOLBOY HOLDS CLUE TO MURDER

Fashionably Dressed Woman Now Sought in Slaying of O'Bannon.

NOTED GANGSTER

Associated Press Despatch. Chicago, Nov. 12.—A schoolboy's story that he saw a young, fashionably dressed woman drive the automobile in which escaped the three slayers of Dion O'Bannon, notorious gang leader, florist and hijacker, was used as a guide today by the police in their efforts to run down the slayers.

Anthony Pferschy, 13, said he was one of several boys passing O'Bannon's flower shop when the shooting occurred. One of the three men who ran out bumped into him and knocked him down. The man ran to the corner and crowded into the automobile, the door of which was held open by the woman.

The story renewed the "find the woman" activities of the police begun when they heard of a quarrel between O'Bannon's lieutenants and a rival gangster over the slapping of the latter's wife by Margaret Collins. Another girl who figured in the investigation was Mary Lauder, 17, who was held after she came to the federal building inquiring for the wife of Louis Alterie, a friend of the slain leader.

Detectives also sought any connection with the slaying of O'Bannon and the shooting last night of James Marks, Canton, Ohio, who said he was a truck driver, although his clothes of private make bore New York labels and his hands belied the story of his occupation, according to detectives. Marks said two men shot him and dragged him into an alley. Investigators admit frankly they are without much definite information. Meanwhile preparations were made for the dead gangster's funeral set for Saturday from an undertaking establishment only a short distance from the scene of his boyhood and in the neighborhood he dominated as a gang leader.

LONDON RESTAURATEURS DEMAND CLEANLINESS

London restaurateurs insist on pure food and cleanliness, if an incident related in the November report of R. H. Sanders, city sanitary inspector, is a criterion. The inspector records that, with two or three exceptions, 34 cafes and restaurants visited were found to be clean and sanitary.

"One cafe," according to the report, "sold a roasted chicken, which was found to be musty, and not fit for human consumption. The buyer brought it into this office and I took it to the cafe and advised the proprietor that unless some drastic action was taken we would have to bring the matter before the court."

The result was that the disenchanted waiter who served the chicken and also the chef. The buyer was given two freshly-roasted chickens.

Ed. Jenkins Addresses Lord Roberts Mothers' Club at November Meeting.

That boys should be directed in choosing a life profession, but should be allowed to make their own choice, was the point strongly stressed by Ed. Jenkins in an address given last night before the Lord Roberts mothers' club. The speaker pointed out how great might be the mother's influence in this direction, but that she should be careful that the final choice was the boy's own, not hers.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN TO GATHER IN TORONTO

A conference of the women in the Presbyterian synods, Toronto, London and Hamilton, takes place tomorrow in Knox Presbyterian church, Spadina avenue, Toronto. The afternoon meeting will begin at 3 o'clock and the evening session at 8 o'clock. During the session the necessary information and plans for the effectual taking of the ballot on the church union question will be given.

Mrs. Charles Thorburn of Ottawa, Canadian representative to Wembley, will be the special speaker for the event. It is expected that all Presbyterian women will attend the services. Mrs. Crawford Brown, St. George street, Toronto, is in charge of the bulleting, and a large number of London women are expected in Toronto.

City Churches

FIRST METHODIST W. M. S.

The Thanksgiving meeting of the W. M. S. of the First Methodist church was held on Tuesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, in Wesley hall, with a splendid attendance of 53 members. The meeting opened in the usual way, after which the devotional exercises took the form of thanks giving quotations from each member. Following the business session, Mrs. Ed. Wyatt gave two very pleasing songs, and in the absence of Mrs. E. W. Gairns, who has charge of the temperance paper of the society, Mrs. (Rev.) Peck read Mrs. Gairns' paper. An outstanding point was, "We have the ballot now, let us use it for God and our country." Mrs. (Rev.) Green, of Colborne street Methodist church, brought a Thanksgiving message to the society, taking the subject, "A Practical Way of Giving Thanks."

CHALMERS MISSION BAND.

The regular meeting of the mission band of Chalmers Presbyterian church was held in the schoolroom yesterday afternoon. Margaret Stanfield led the devotional period, which was followed by a reading of the New Testament given in unison by memory, and the Sunday school lesson for the coming Sunday was taken for the coming Sunday. Pessie Black told a short story on "Things to Do," and Mrs. G. Bryce told another story of "A Time for Missions."

ROBINSON MEMORIAL LEAGUE.

The regular meeting of the league of Robinson Memorial Methodist church was held on Tuesday night, with Mrs. W. E. P. A. in charge of the Christian Endeavour department, with Mrs. W. E. Shales presiding. Mr. Dymon took the text from Shewell's edition of the Bible, "The Crisis." Being a short reading on "No Time for God." V. Abram contributed a solo, and the evening proved of one of interest to the members. Next week is the missionary night of the league and an interesting speaker has been secured. Slides will be shown and the topic will be "His Dominion." Miss Hall will be in charge, and it is hoped that there will be a splendid turnout of members.

KNOX CHURCH TEA.

Mrs. V. K. Greer Ridout street, is lending her home tomorrow afternoon from 3:30 to 6:30 o'clock for a silver tea in aid of the women's association of Knox church. There will be vocal solos and other music during the afternoon, and it promises to be a most interesting event.

OLDE TYME FAYRE.

Mrs. J. Gillett, Nelson street, is lending her home on Friday afternoon for a tea in aid of the Olde Tyme Fayre, which is being given by the Centennial Methodist church in the near future.

REDEEMER A. Y. P. A.

The regular meeting of the A. Y. P. A. of the Church of the Redeemer was held on Tuesday night, with George Taylor in the chair, and proved to be a very successful business meeting. Arrangements were completed to enter the A. Y. P. A. of the Centennial Methodist church, when the students of Huron college will also be guests at the social evening. Next week there was a lengthy discussion about the debate which will be held in the near future, and the A. Y. P. A. donated $150 to the church to carry on their work in the church. A game of carmpball was enjoyed by the young people, and after the meeting social hour was held. The members of the association, and it promises to be a meeting of much interest.

ASKIN STREET SENIOR M. C.

The regular meeting of the senior mission circle of Askin street Methodist church was held last night in the schoolroom, with the president, Mrs. R. J. Bowen, presiding. After the Thanksgiving Bible lesson, given by Mrs. (Rev.) R. J. Garbutt, the thank-offering was taken and a report was given by Miss Winifred Hardy, the watch tower convener, and Miss Edith Dunn gave a report on the Christian stewardship department. Two musical numbers were given, the first being a violin and piano trio by the

HALF OF TOTAL RAISED FOR PARK WAR MEMORIAL

Five hundred dollars has been raised so far by the Manor Park Progressive Ratepayers Association toward the war memorial. When the money is raised, the gift of the 14 men from Manor Park the sum of $1,250 was decided upon as being necessary. The association has now a brass tablet, the gift of the Empire Brass Company, containing the names of the men. The contract for the supply of the memorial is now being completed by the Granite and Marble Company, and it is hoped that the rest of the money will be raised soon in this district. The monument will be placed in front of the Church of the Epiphany.

HESPERIAN CLUB.

The Hesperian club of the university of Western Ontario holds its first meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Miss I. Griffiths, 355 Dundas street. The members will take up the works of the late Peter MacArthur.

MISS FOSTER AND A SOLO BY MISS TREVELLICK.

The circle was fortunate in having Rev. R. J. Bowen give his illustrated lecture on "The Origin of the Bible," tracing its earliest history down to the present day, when it is printed by the Bible society in hundreds of languages. The program was in charge of Miss Lillian Robinson, and at the conclusion of the meeting a social half-hour was enjoyed under the convener'ship of Mrs. Norman Thompson.

COUNCIL ADVISED TO DISMISS PIPER

Number 2 Committee Recommends Dropping of Building Inspector.

Action of Mayor G. A. Wenize in suspending A. M. Piper, city building inspector, was last night upheld by No. 2 committee of the city council, and a recommendation passed, advising the council to dismiss with Mr. Piper's services.

After waiting an hour for a quorum the committee finally got four members in attendance at a few minutes past 6 o'clock. The mayor presented his charges in writing, pointing out that the building inspector had been absent from his duties a number of times, and that it was generally known that he had taken intoxicating liquor while on duty. Mr. Wenize had an affidavit sworn to by the building inspector, Mr. Piper, admitting that he had been under the influence of liquor and had neglected his duties.

"What would you recommend, your worship?" asked Chairman Greer, when the charges had been read. "Oh, I have no recommendations," said Mr. Wenize, "that's up to No. 2 committee to decide."

"Isn't there some other way than discharging Piper outright?" came the chairman's question. "The law and there's nothing else that we can do except to make the suspension permanent," suggested Mr. Wenize, "and that also the department be placed under the city engineer."

"How about Piper?" came back the chairman, inquiring if he would go like this, with this charge hanging over his head? Do you think we can get another inspector who will do his work as well as Piper has done? "You're looking at the thing from a new angle," cautioned the mayor. "It's just good business to keep Piper on."

Just then Mr. Piper came into the committee room, responding to a telephone call. He had little comment to make on the charges concerning the services he had rendered.

"I didn't even look at the date when I signed that paper," he declared. "That has nothing to do with the fact that this confession is here," averred Mr. Wenize.

"But you wouldn't do it," said the papers had it right afterwards. "Look here, I don't publish the papers, and I don't have to answer any such question."

"What do you mean when you say the mayor promised he wouldn't use these papers?" asked the chairman, "that some of the papers of the case might still be a mystery."

"You've no right to make such a statement as that," said Mr. Wenize, "suggesting anything of that sort."

Nothing To Say.

"I have nothing else to say," declared his worship. "That's all I have to say, and that's all I have to say," declared his worship. "That's all I have to say, and that's all I have to say," declared his worship.

Scientists See a Normal Boy Except For Confessions—Likes To Ride in Chief's Red Car.

By L. C. OWEN.

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 12.—Psychiatrists, psychologists and other varieties of mental experts who have been racking their scientific brains without much result over Kenneth William Green, Oakland 14-year-old self-alleged $3,000,000 pyromaniac, may evolve something useful out of their learned investigations after all. Even if the youthful Kenneth shouldn't turn out to be the terribly dangerous firebug he claims to be, his may be able to learn something valuable regarding juvenile Munichhausen complexes.

On the strength of his confessions to date, Kenneth has easily proved himself the champion incendiary in the world. For a week now he has been confessing fires—big fires and little fires—69 in all. Each day he fattens his batting average with a dozen or more "confessions."

In the same week, scientific men, shocked at the boy's seemingly destructive bent, have been seeking him to study, questioning, analyzing him and all other tests that persons with supposed queer mental twists sometimes are subjected to. About the only conclusion the mental savants' only conclusion is that Kenneth is pretty much a normal boy, except for his fire confessions.

He likes to read newspaper stories, and he likes to read newspaper stories, and he likes to read newspaper stories, and he likes to read newspaper stories, and he likes to read newspaper stories.

TO RAISE FUNDS FOR UNEMPLOYED

New "Sunshine Relief Circle" Will Launch Campaign to Relieve Distress.

Mayor George Wenize attended yesterday's meeting of the executive of the newly organized "unemployment sunshine relief circle" held in the Y. M. C. A. He pointed out to the members the great need among the unemployed of the city and the need for such an organization as theirs could offer. The city was doing its part in trying to give employment, but the need for relief could help greatly in relieving conditions where unemployment prevailed.

A campaign for funds to assist the families of unemployed men will be launched shortly. And through the kindness of the manager of the city hall branch of the Bank of Montreal, donations will be received there.

The aim of the new organization is to have a complete oversight of the London families where distress is caused through unemployment. It is caused through unemployment, it is caused through unemployment, it is caused through unemployment, it is caused through unemployment, it is caused through unemployment.

Following the chicken supper, a sacred concert was rendered by the choir, with the assistance of H. Lindon of St. Thomas, who sang a number of selections, including Kipling's "Recessional," and "The Drunken Sailor," and St. Paul's cathedral of this city.

Billy Ellison, the boy violinist, played two memory selections. Jack Ellison and Mrs. Beckman sang selections which were much appreciated by the audience.

SANSONE, FOX APPEALS STILL INCOMPLETE

The appeal for a new trial being filed by counsel for Thomas Fox and Sylvadore Sansone has not yet been completed, counsel for defence stated today.

The men were sentenced to terms in Kingston penitentiary with lashes by Mr. Justice Riddell on Oct. 18. Counsel has 40 days in which to appeal sentences in which whippings are meted out, which would fix the final date for appeal as Nov. 28.

Ed. J. Walters, 47, Convicted in Court Today—Appeal Will Be Made.

Despite strong protests on the part of his lawyer, Ed. J. Walters, 47 years old, a farmer at Brynston, was fined $200 and costs or three months in jail by Deputy Magistrate Gladman in police court this morning on a charge of having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling. Walters' wife, who appeared in court as a spectator, fainted and had to be carried from the room as the case commenced.

When Walters was arrested last night at Ridout and Bathurst streets by Constables Monahan and Knight. A bottle of rubbing alcohol was found on him. He was in an intoxicated condition, the officers testified.

In court this morning, Walters explained that he had purchased the alcohol from a local drug store yesterday afternoon and that he had used a portion of the liquid on his horse, which was suffering from contracted feet. He advised the court that he had several drinks earlier in the afternoon at a friend's home.

He stated that he had been using rubbing alcohol for his horse's ailments for the past two years. The "infirm" could not be purchased in Brynston, he said. For that reason he had to drive his horse to London for the remedy.

At the conclusion of the case, E. W. M. Flock, counsel for the defendant, stated that Magistrate Gladman had dismissed a similar case not very long ago.

"We are up against the difficulty where one magistrate convicts and another dismisses," he declared. "I think it would be stretching the act to convict this man. This is not a case intended by the act to make the man a criminal."

"Walters' explanation doesn't satisfy me," Deputy Magistrate Gladman replied. "He is assuredly guilty."

"In that case take notice of an appeal, your worship," Mr. Flock announced. "Rubbing alcohol is not liquor under the act, and it would be unheard of if a man is not allowed to get a horse ready. Rubbing alcohol is not a beverage."

FIGHTING IRISHMAN IS STOPPED BY POLICE

Bernard McClary, Irish, 21 years old, and full of fight, sat in the prisoner's box at police court this morning. He was charged with disturbing the peace by fighting with a woman.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of being intoxicated. He was arrested last night in front of a local hotel after he had attempted to fight four other persons. He would have succeeded in winning the battle, according to the police, but for their timely intervention.

"No, sir, I have never been in court before," McClary told Deputy Magistrate Gladman.

"In that case the fine will be $10 and costs or ten days in jail," his worship replied.

WILL ESTABLISH ART CLUB IN CITY

Nicholas Wilson Chapter Plans Early Showing of Work of London Artists.

The members of the Nicholas Wilson chapter for some months past have been working towards the establishment of an art club in London. The ultimate aim of the chapter is to have a permanent building or group of rooms for the showing of works of art in the city. For the establishment of such an institution the chapter will seek the support of the businessmen of the city.

As a preliminary move the members are arranging a showing of the works of London artists in the near future. The exhibition, which will continue for about two weeks, will be held in some suitable building. And works of the following artists will be hung: Eva Bradshaw, Caroline Farncombe, Dr. J. R. Le Touzel, J. P. Hunt and Edward Glen. It is also hoped that pictures painted by Mr. Hunt, Thomas Hunt of California, will also be shown on this occasion, as well as paintings of the late Mary Healey.

Mrs. J. W. Russell is convener of arrangements for the exhibition and is being assisted by Mrs. J. R. Le Touzel and Mrs. A. D. Robertson.

WEDDINGS

BOWES-CARROTHERS.

An interesting autumn wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Carrothers, Askin street, at 3:30 o'clock on Saturday, when their daughter, Marjorie Eldene, became the bride of Mr. E. Bowes, of this city, son of Mrs. Bowes and the late F. G. Bowes of Avon. Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, pastor of Askin street Methodist church, officiated.

The ceremony was performed beneath an arch of mums and foliage. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was becomingly gowned in brocade white crepe, with ostrich trimmings. She wore the conventional veil, caught back with a pearl bandeau, and carried a shower bouquet of Onchella roses. Miss Alma Carrothers, sister of the bride, played the wedding music.

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Bowes leaving later for Niagara Falls and Buffalo. The bride donned a smart gown of brown cut velvet for travelling, and wore a sand heaver coat, with beaver trimmings, and smart purple hat. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Bowes will reside on Richmond street, this city.

Among the out-of-town guests were Newman Bowes of Windsor, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Bowes of Delmar, Mrs. Bowes of Avon, and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Harding of Port Stanley.

GRIEVES-HODGINS.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Hodgins, Piccadilly street, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at 2 o'clock on Saturday, when their second daughter, Gladys Marguerite, became the bride of James B. Grievs.

of Cleveland, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Grievs, of this city. Rev. J. B. MacKay, pastor of New St. James' Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. In the presence of only the immediate friends of the bridal couple.

Chrysanthemums were used effectively in the drawing-room, where the ceremony was performed. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was unattended. She wore a lovely gown of blue georgette with trimmings of gold lace, and a bandeau of gold in her hair. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of Onchella roses. She also wore the groom's gift, a platinum wrist watch. The wedding music was played by Miss Edna Mantle, and during the signing of the register, Miss Muna Mottusah sang "O Promise Me."

The gifts included a substantial check from the groom's parents. Following the ceremony a buffet wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Grievs left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, and on their return, will reside in Cleveland. The bride travelled in a gown of sandal-wood shade, a coat to match, trimmed with seal, and black panama velvet hat.

STONE-BITTLE.
A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday, Nov. 8, in St. David's Anglican church, Toronto, when Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bittle of Toronto, became the bride of Mr. Percy Stone of Toronto, formerly of London, son of Mr. William Stone, Grosvenor street.

The bride looked very charming in her gown of brown beaded chamois, with fox fur, and hat and shoes to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Stone left for Buffalo and New York on their honeymoon, and on their return will reside at 82 Sellers avenue, Toronto.

WYLE-MILLS.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Wyle, Wonderland, was the scene of a pretty wedding recently, when Miss Helen Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Mills of Scotland, became the bride of their son, Samuel Wyle, the Rev. George Young of Kensington Park officiating.

The bride couple took their places to the strains of wedding music played on the bagpipes by the bride's brother, Mr. James Mills. The bride wore a pretty gown of blue beaded tulle, with gray velvet hat, while the bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Parker, was attractively gowned in black beaded tulle. Mr. James Fisher attended the groom.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Wyle will spend their honeymoon in Galt and on their return will reside in London.

WOOD-LIZMORE.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lizmore, Brice street, was the scene of an interesting wedding on Saturday afternoon, when their daughter, Kathleen May, became the bride of Mr. Leonard Wood of this city. Adjutant Smith of the Salvation army, officiated.

The ceremony was performed beneath an arch of ferns. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an attractive gown of sand crepe de chine, with shoes to match, and carried a shower bouquet of Butterflies roses. Miss Lillian Parsons, who acted as bridesmaid, was gowned in blue tulle and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies.

John Lizmore, brother of the bride, was best man.

Following the ceremony a wedding

PUTS W.C.A. CLAIMS BEFORE LOCAL I.O.D.E.

Chapters Will Carry Standards to City Schools Next Empire Day.

Mrs. Donald McLean, president of the W. C. A., visited the regular meeting of the Municipal chapter, I. O. D. E., yesterday afternoon, putting before that organization the claims of the kindred of London. The association was trying to get for London a new W. C. A. building, she said, and was asking the support and interest of the I. O. D. E. members.

A recommendation came in to the meeting that all of the I. O. D. E. standardbearers visit the city schools during the month of November, to see the work of the Municipal chapter. A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. McLean, and Mrs. E. H. Nelles, educational secretary, for action. A recommendation was extended to Captain Fenlon for drilling the standardbearers for their ceremony at the recent provincial chapter meeting.

The campaign for the Canadian institute for the blind has been postponed until the beginning of the year. An appeal has come from the Victoria hospital auxiliary for more books for the library. The hospital library is filling a long felt need and has the support of the local I. O. D. E. chapters.

Interesting reports of the chapters' activities were presented by the C. E. F. chapter, the Campbell Becher chapter, the Nicholas Wilson chapter, Janey Canuck chapter and Seventh regiment chapter.

The Municipal chapter is planning a band concert to be held in the Grand theatre in December.

Reddy Fox Is Thoroughly Beaten By Honker and His Flock

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Nearer and nearer to the shore swam the Geese in the pond of Paddy the Beaver. One of them landed straight in where an old log lay close to the water. Behind that old log lay Reddy Fox. The Black Shadows were deep there. Reddy could not see him. Reddy could not see the end of the log and watch the Geese, but the Geese could not see him.

Peter Rabbit, hidden in a clump of grass, could see Reddy Fox and could see the Geese. Peter had never felt worse in all his life. There was one of the children of his old friend, Honker the Goose, going ashore right where Reddy Fox was hiding, and there was nothing that he, Peter, could do about it. He didn't dare. Reddy Fox knew that he was there.

As that Goose came out on the shore Peter closed his eyes. "I can't look," he kept saying to himself, "I can't look. Something dreadful is going to happen, and I can't bear the thought of seeing it."

He went on for a long time, but which really was only for a few seconds. Then he opened them again. He opened them just as the Goose, going straight at that Goose. Then things happened so fast that Peter was hardly sure what he saw, a great white neck stretched straight for the neck of that young Goose, but quick as he was that Goose was quicker. That long neck moved like a flash, and struck quickly and hard with his bill. Reddy whirled to spring again.

Before he could move, a great white neck stretched straight for the neck of that young Goose, but quick as he was that Goose was quicker. That long neck moved like a flash, and struck quickly and hard with his bill. Reddy whirled to spring again.

CHAPTER HOLDS ARMISTICE DINNER

C. E. F. Returned Soldiers Members Entertain Guests at Wong's Cafe.

The spirit of Armistice Day was struck last night at the banquet held in Wong's cafe by the members of the C. E. F. returned soldiers' chapter, I. O. D. E. It was the occasion of the third anniversary of the founding of this chapter and was marked by an Armistice Day program of toasts, with Col. Clifford Reason, patron of the chapter, in the chair.

Fifty guests sat down to tables arranged in the form of a cross at the center of which reposed a great wreath of crimson poppies for remembrance. The red, white and blue colors of the flag, and quantities were used elsewhere on the tables. The guests of honor included Col. Reason, Mayor and Mrs. George Wenig, Mrs. Cl. T. Campbell, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wray.

The chairman's address, which opened the program of toasts, recalled the days of the late war with its tragedies and discomforts which culminated in the signing of the armistice. The national anthem voiced the feelings of the gathering when a toast to the king was proposed. The program also included toasts "to the Empire" with J. J. Foote replying; "to the city of London" with Mayor Wenig replying; "to the war veterans" with H. Wray replying; "to the C. E. F. chapter" with Mrs. B. J. Dunne replying; and "to the guests" with Mrs. Cl. T. Campbell replying.

A very fine musical program was also a part of the evening's enjoyment. The following artists contributed: Stanley Carter, piano solo; Miss York, vocal solo; Mr. Dingate, and Miss Dingate, violin and cello duet; and "the guests" with Mrs. Cl. T. Campbell replying.

WOMEN and THE HOME

How to Help
Your Husband

Dorothy Dix

Gives Valuable Tips
to Young Brides

The Wife Who Always Looks Her Best, Who Cultivates Worth-while People, and, Above All, the Wife Who Believes Firmly in Her Husband's Success, Is Truly a Helpmeet.

A young bride asks me to tell her how to help her husband. The old idea used to be that the way for a woman to help her husband was by being thrifty and industrious, by doing her own housework, and peeling the potatoes a little thinner, and dusting off the mouse that fell in the flour bin, and making over her old hats and frocks, and generally sweating every penny.

To a certain extent, this theory is good; but it can be easily overdone, and the woman who makes of herself nothing but a domestic drudge, and who goes about looking like something that has been fished out of the ragbag is not a help to her husband. She is a hindrance. The world judges us largely by appearances. If we wish to be successful we have got to look successful. And, in this country at least, a man's wife is the show window where he exhibits the measure of his achievements.

Once upon a time I knew a brilliant physician who was married to one of these scrumptious-looking women, a woman who kept her stockings, and cheap shoes, and dowdy gowns, and hats that she trimmed herself. Her husband used to implore her, almost with tears, to buy some good clothes. "You injure my practice by the way you dress," he said, "for people are bound to think one of two things—either that I am so poor a doctor that I have no patients, or else that I am so mean and stingy that I will not give my wife decent clothes."

There is a lot to that view of the subject. While the wife who wishes to help her husband should keep well within her means in her expenditures, it is equally important for her to make as good an appearance as she can. It pays a man for his wife to look prosperous.

It is the popular doctor and dentist that patients flock to, not the ones that nobody else goes to. It is the big shop on the avenue we like to patronize, not the little one on a back street. Nothing succeeds like success is an old saying, and a true one.

Without doubt, a domestic wife is a blessing sent direct from heaven to a man, unless she is too domestic. Then she becomes a curse, especially to a professional man.

Sometimes you will hear a woman say that she never goes anywhere; that she has given up society completely, and that she just stays at home and devotes her entire time to taking care of her husband and children. She accounts this unto herself for righteousness. But instead of being a help to her husband, she is being a handicap. She forgets that the biggest deals are put across over luncheon tables; that we meet at dinners the people who can push our fortunes, and that we are advertised by our loving friends. Say what you like, kissing goes for favor, and nine times out of ten we pick out our lawyers, and our doctors, and our dentists, or go to such-and-such a shop, not because they are superior to others, but because of our personal likings for those we patronize.

The woman who cultivates a circle of worth-while people, who belongs to clubs, who makes herself interesting and agreeable to all with whom she is thrown in contact, and who goes along with everybody is a help to her husband, just as the unsocial woman, the tactless blunderer, the quarrelsome, high-tempered woman, the woman who always makes enemies, is the ruin of the man to whom she is married.

A woman can "make" her husband by believing in him and by making him always feel that she expects great things of him. Before every victory comes a long, hard, discouraging fight, when the heart of even the strongest man faints within him and his courage ebbs, and he is tempted to surrender. Then is the time when a good wife shows her mettle. Then it is that he goes on to success or fails, according to whether his wife bolsters him up with her faith or discourages him with her forebodings of disaster.

There are women who put ambition into men by just their certainty that their husbands are going to achieve great things. They think their husbands are so wise, so gifted, so wonderful, that the men are driven into making every effort of which they are capable to justify their wives' notion.

And there are other women who are wet blankets that chill every enthusiasm, that take every bit of pep out of a man and kill even his belief in himself. They knock everything their husbands do. They oppose everything their husbands attempt. They croak failure until they actually bring it upon him. Many a man fails who had it in him to succeed because his wife is a hoodoo.

Perhaps the best way a woman can help her husband is by making him happy and contented. Not many will think of domestic happiness as a factor in a man's success, but it is, and there is a good reason for it. The man whose mind is at peace and rest has nothing to distract his thoughts from his business, and he can give all his intelligence to that. More than that, the man who has got a wife he loves and a happy home will fight to the last gasp for it.

A woman can help her husband in a thousand ways by looking after his health, by seeing that he is not worried by little things, by sympathy and tenderness, and most of all by loving him and believing in him.

It is a great game and great fun, with great rewards. Try it, ladies. DOROTHY DIX.

CLUB NEWS

RYERSON MOTHERS' CLUB.

Miss Sager of St. Thomas and Miss Lethbridge of the Ryerson school staff, exchange teachers from England, will be the speakers at Thursday night's meeting of the Ryerson mothers' club. The subject will be "English Mothers' Clubs."

TEACHERS' GUILD.

Canadian book week will be marked by the London women teachers' guild when they will entertain at tea at the Alexandra school on Dec. 1.

PARENTS' ASSOCIATION.

The meeting of the parents' association of the South London Collegiate has been called for Friday evening of this week, when Professor G. Dorian of the university of Western Ontario will be the speaker.

EMPRESS AVENUE MOTHERS.

Final arrangements for a bazaar to be held on Nov. 29 were made at last night's meeting of the Empress avenue mothers' club held at the school.

Following conveners were appointed: groceries, Mrs. Bryant, Jun., Mrs. Newman, apocryphs, Mrs. Moir, Mrs. Wright, and Mrs. Geary; home cooking, Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Scott; candy, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Hutchison, and Mrs. Gregg; tea room, Mrs. Bernard and Mrs. Lamont.

A very fine program was given. Miss Clara Cotton contributed an instrumental, Miss Mallock, a reading, and Miss Wildgust, a vocal solo. A very fine talk on "Good Citizenship," given by Mrs. A. T. Edwards was an important feature of the evening, at the close of which refreshments were served.

WORTLEY ROAD MOTHERS.

Mrs. W. L. Armitage gave a very interesting talk on "Teen age girls at the Wortley road mothers' club meeting held last night at the school. The club is planning a money shower to be held at the home of Mrs. G. McWain, 114 Wharfedale road south tonight. A very fine program included a violin solo by Miss Dorothy Roy, violin duet by Miss N. Yeo and Miss Dorothy Roy, with Miss M. James acting as accompanist; piano selection by Miss M. James, and readings by Miss Loretta Holland.

HALE STREET M. C.

Miss Bertha Smith, supervisor of the child welfare nursing staff, was the speaker at last night's meeting of the Hale street mothers' club. The infant death rate in the city, she said, had been cut in half in the last six years by the clinics held in the schools. The association is now trying to form classes in mothercraft for young girls in the school district. Mrs. Stapleton accompanied Miss Smith to the meeting, and also spoke a few words on behalf of the work.

The bib shower for the day nursery resulted in a fine array of these very necessary articles. They were brought to the meeting, and will be forwarded to the day nursery. Following the meeting a social hour was spent over the tea cups. Mrs. McNiven, the president, occupied the chair.

THE SEA HAWK

By RAFAEL SABATINI

She looked out to sea again, and beheld those friendly lights falling farther and farther astern. "We are drawing steadily away," she groaned. "They will never overtake us now."

So feared Sakr-el-Bahr. He more than feared it. He knew that save for some miraculous rising of the wind it must be as she said. And then out of his despair leaped inspiration—a desperate inspiration, true child of that despair of which it was begotten.

"There is a chance," he said to her. "But it is as a throw of the dice with life and death for stakes." "Then seize it," she bade him instantly. "For though it should go against us we shall not be losers."

"You are prepared for anything?" he asked her. "Have I not said that I will go down with you this night? Ah, don't waste time in words!"

"Be it so, then," he replied gravely, and moved away a step, then checked. "You had best come with me," he said.

Obediently she complied and followed him, and some were there who stared at these two who attempted to hinder her movements. Enough and to spare was there already to engage the thoughts of all aboard that vessel.

He thrust a way for her, past the boatswain's mates who stood over the slaves ferociously plying tongues and whips, and so brought her to the waist. Here he took up the lantern which had been muffled, and as its light once more streamed forth, Asad shouted an order for its extinction. But Sakr-el-Bahr took not the least heed of that command. He stepped to the mainmast, about which the powder kegs had been stacked. One of these had been braced against its being needed by the runners on the poop. The unfastened lid rested loosely atop of it. That lid Sakr-el-Bahr moved over; then he pulled one of the horn sides out of the lantern, and held the now half-naked flame immediately above the powder.

A cry of alarm went up from some who had watched him. But above that cry rang his sharp command:

"Cease rowing!"

The tomtom fell instantly silent, but the slaves took yet another stroke. "Cease rowing!" he commanded again.

"Asad!" he called. "Bid them pause or I'll blow you all straight into the arms of Shalhan!" And he lowered the lantern until it rested on the very rim of the powder keg.

At once the rowing ceased. Slaves, coxswains, officers, and Asad himself stood paralyzed, all at gaze upon that grim figure illuminated by the lantern, threatening them with doom. It may have crossed the minds of some to throw themselves forthwith upon him; but to arrest them was the dread lest any movement toward him should precipitate the explosion that must blow them all into the next world.

At last Asad addressed him, his voice half-choked with rage. "May Allah strike thee dead! Art thou djinn-possessed?"

Marzak, standing at his father's side, set a quarrel to the bow which he had snatched up. "Why do you all stand and stare?" he cried. "Cut him down one of you!"

And even as he spoke he raised his bow. But his father checked him, perceiving what must be the inevitable result.

"If any man takes a step toward me, the lantern goes straight into the gunpowder," said Sakr-el-Bahr serenely. "And if you shoot me as you intend, Marzak, or if any other shoots, the same will happen of itself. Be warned unless you thirst for the Paradise of the Prophet!"

"Sakr-el-Bahr!" cried Asad, and from his erstwhile anger his voice had now changed to a note of intercession.

He stretched out his arms appealingly to the captain whose doom he had already pronounced in his heart and mind.

"Sakr-el-Bahr, I conjure thee by the bread and salt we have eaten together, return to thy senses, my son. 'I am in my sense,' was the answer, 'and being so I have no mind for the reserved my in Algiers—by the memory of that same bread and salt, I have no mind to go back with thee to be hanged or sent to toil at an oar again.'"

"And if I swear to thee that naught of this shall come to pass?"

"Thou'lt be forsworn," I would not trust thee now, Asad. For thou art proven a fool, and in all my life I never found good in a fool and never trusted one—save once, and he betrayed me. Yesterday I pleaded with thee, showing thee the wise course, and affording thee thine opportunity. At a slight sacrifice thou mightest have had me and named me at thy leisure. 'Twas my own life I offered thee, and for all that thou knewest it, yet thou knewest not that I knew."

He laughed. "See now what manner of fool art thou? Thy greed hath wrought thy ruin. Thy hands were opened to grasp more than they could hold. See now the consequence. It comes yonder in that slowly but surely approaching gale."

Every word of it sank into the brain of Asad, thus tardily to enlighten him. He wrung his hands in his blended fury and despair. The crew stood in appalled silence, dreading to make no movement that might precipitate the end. "Name thine own price," cried the Basha at length. "And I swear to thee by the beard of the Prophet it shall be paid thee."

"I named it yesterday, but it was refused. I offered thee my liberty and my life if that were needed to gain the liberty of another."

Had he looked behind him he might have seen the sudden lighting of Rosamund's eyes, the sudden clutch at her bosom, which would have announced to him that his utterances were none so cryptic but that she had understood them.

"I will make thee rich and honored," Sakr-el-Bahr, Asad continued urgently. "Thou shalt be as mine own son. The Bashaik himself shall be thine when I lay it down, and all men shall do thee honor in the meanwhile as to myself."

"I am not to be bought, O mighty Asad. I never was. Already wert thou set upon my death, him of command it now, but only upon the condition that thou share the cup with me. What is suggestion is written. We have sunk some tall ships together in our day. Asad! We'll sink together in our turn tonight if that be thy desire."

"May thou burn forevermore in hell, thou blackhearted traitor!" Asad cursed him, his anger bursting all the bonds he had imposed upon it.

And then, of a sudden, upon that admission of defeat from their Basha there arose a great clamor from the crew. Sakr-el-Bahr's sea-hawks called upon him, reminding him of his fidelity and love, and asking could he repay it now by dooming them all thus to destruction?

"Have faith in me," he answered them. "I have never led you into aught but victory. Be very sure that I shall not lead you now into defeat—on this the last occasion that we stand together."

"But the galeon is upon us!" cried Viglietti.

And so, indeed, it was; creeping up slowly, under that faint breeze, her tall bulk loomed now above them, her prow plowing slowly forward at an acute angle to the prow of the galeon. Another moment and she was alongside, and with a swing and clank of metal and a yell of victory from the English seamen lining her bulwarks her grappling irons swung down to seize the corsair ship at prow and stern and waist.

Scarcely had they fastened, than a torrent of men in breastplates and morions poured over the side, to alight upon the prow of the galeon, and not even the fear of the lantern held above the powder barrel could now restrain the corsairs from giving these hard-boiled receptionists the ruddy glow from lights aboard the Silver Heron. Foremost among these who had leaped down had been Lionel and Sir John Killigrew. Foremost among those to receive them had been Jasper Leigh, who had passed his hand through Lionel's body even as Lionel's feet came to rest upon the deck, and before the battle was joined.

A dozen others went down on either side, before Sakr-el-Bahr's ringing voice could quell the fighting.

Hold! he had bellowed to his sea-hawks, using the lingua franca. "Back, and leave this to me. I will rid you of these foes."

Then in English he had summoned his countrymen also to assist.

"Sir John Killigrew!" he called in a loud voice. "Hold your hand until you have heard me! Call your men back and let none others come aboard! Hold until you have heard me, I say, then wreak your will!"

Sir John, perceiving him by the mainmast with Rosamund at his side, and leaping at the almost inevitable conclusion that he meant to threaten her life, perhaps to destroy her if they continued their advance, flung himself before his men, to check them.

W.C.T.U. PLANS WARD BRANCHES

Reorganization of Local Union To Give It Wider Scope, Is Under Way.

The W. C. T. U. of this city is taking a radical step in the proposed plan to organize a branch union in every ward of the city, at the same time retaining the central union as it exists today. The matter was brought before the regular meeting of the union yesterday afternoon by Mrs. H. W. Paddell. Approval was expressed by Mrs. J. W. Jones and Mrs. Gordon Wright, while the suggestion was endorsed by the members.

The following members were appointed to deal with the situation: Mrs. R. E. Gregory, ward one; Mrs. H. W. Paddell, ward two; Mrs. John Jones, ward three; Mrs. J. J. Goodman, ward four; Mrs. A. J. Chapman, the central group. Mrs. A. J. Chapman presided over yesterday's meeting.

It was announced that the county executive would meet in the W. C. T. U. rooms at 2 o'clock today.

Rev. Bruce Hunter was the speaker of the afternoon. His talk dealt chiefly with Armistice Day. He pointed out how during the last one hundred days of the war, the feeling throughout the allied armies was very serious, and when at last the armistice was signed, the boys just lifted their hats and said "Thank God." "There was no great outburst of cheering over there," he said.

The speaker urged the women to remember that there were men still suffering as a result of the war. They should never be forgotten.

Mr. Hunter also referred to the recent O. T. A. victory. He spoke warmly of the promises made by Premier Ferguson both before and after the vote—that the O. T. A. would be more strongly enforced should that be the will of the people.

Following Mr. Hunter's address, a resolution of thanks from the union to Mr. Ferguson for his attitude was suggested, and is now being drawn up. It was pointed out that the ultimate goal of the temperance workers should be total prohibition for the whole of Canada, with Dominion-wide legislation.

Mrs. W. Dods was appointed fee superintendent at the meeting, her seeing being to take charge of fees for regular members. Mrs. James Fitzgerald is fee superintendent for honorary members. Superintendents from the different churches are yet to be chosen. Mrs. H. Templin was introduced as a new member.

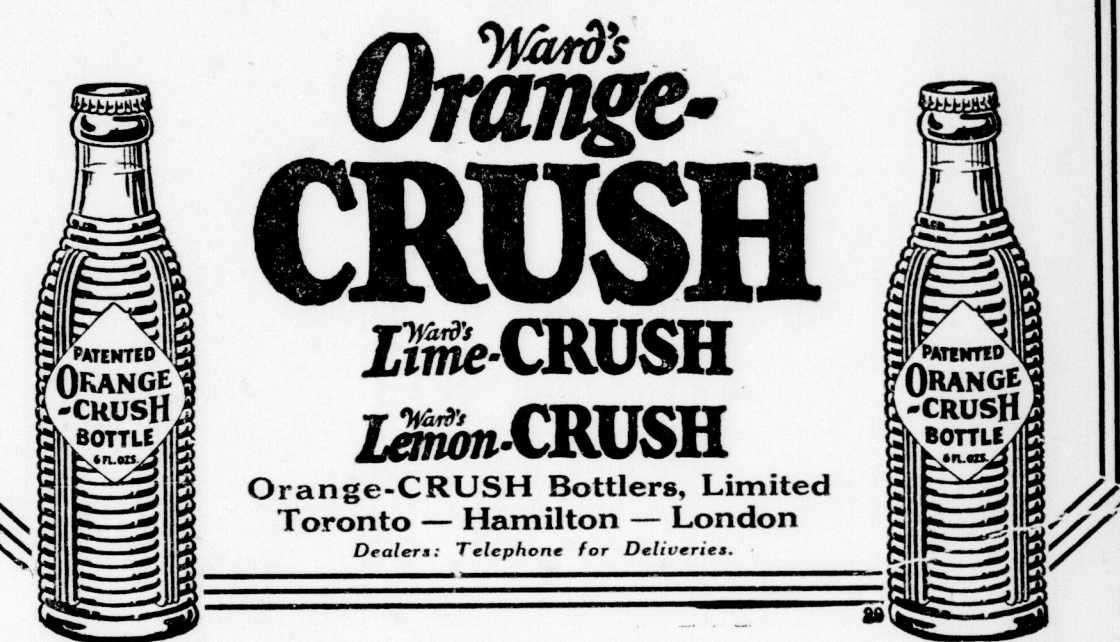

The program included a Bible reading by Miss Cannell, and a vocal solo, "Let Us Forget," by Mrs. W. Pearson. Mrs. S. R. White gave a very interesting report of the work among the soldiers.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Local Seniors Start Week of Strenuous Team Drill

Will Appear in New Colors in First Exhibition Game.

PRICES ANNOUNCED

The local seniors started their week of strenuous team drill last night from 6 to 9 at the arena, and they came through the steady hours of drill fairly fresh and hardy. Very few of them have any more to take off. It's mostly a matter of wind, and getting endurance.

They will work out at the same hour every night this week, and by Saturday should be showing some evidence of real team work. It looks very much as though team work will decide the Big Five race, because, individually, most of the clubs are on an even basis.

Colors Changed.

The London team has had to choose new colors, and will trot them out for their first exhibition game. The body of the sweater will be white with black letters across the chest, and the sleeves will be red. The socks will be red and white, and the pants will be red and white.

Care had to be taken to avoid clashing with Preston and Stratford, both of whom have red and white. Preston sweaters of last year looked very much like the ones worn by the L.A.A.A. intermediates.

Prices Fixed.

The prices to be charged this season have been arrived at by the L.A.A.A. hockey committee and the arena company.

The high-priced sections are B and C sections, and these for the senior games will be $1.50. For senior exhibitions and junior games, they will be $1.00. A and D sections come at $1 for senior league games, and 75 cents for senior exhibition and junior games. The south section will be 75 cents for senior games, and 50 cents for senior exhibition and junior games. The north end gallery will be 50 cents for senior games and 35 cents for senior exhibition and junior games, scheduled or exhibition.

Juniors To Play Toronto Sextet

Arrangements Under Way For Exhibition Game Here.

The London Juniors, who return to their ice workouts at the arena tonight between 6 and 7, and tomorrow night at the same hour, will probably be given an exhibition game here on Nov. 28, it was announced last night.

A Toronto junior team will probably be chosen as opposition for the locals' 1925 debut. It will probably have to be a Toronto team as few other junior crews would have had ice practice by that date.

The juniors were just beginning to get some conditioning last week when they closed down workouts, but from now on they'll be at it steadily. They look very promising, probably the most likely-looking crew of youngsters the city ever sent into an O. H. A. campaign.

They do not go much to weight and size, but they bear heavily to speed, which seems to be the main asset in any hockey team these days, senior or junior. There's a real battle on line up for regular berths in the junior ranks, and there will be little to choose between the eight men who will eventually make the team.

MOOSE JAW-CALGARY TILT ENDS IN FREE-FOR-ALL

Canadian Press Despatch.

Moose Jaw, Nov. 11.—Moose Jaw went into the final of the Western Canada junior hockey series yesterday afternoon, winning by default over Calgary.

Despite the fact that the game was played on a field covered with half a foot of snow, the game was a free-for-all exhibition, when with the scored tied 8 to 8 in the first quarter Calgary quit as a protest against the decision of the Moose Jaw officials in charge. Moose Jaw was ordered to continue play, and after a short delay, the game was resumed. The result was a 12 to 8 win for the Moose Jaw. 'Red' McKelvey May Be Through

Canadian Press Despatch.

Kingsport, Nov. 11.—A meeting of the athletic board of control will be held Wednesday, when the question of continuing into the Dominion finals will be discussed. The meeting tomorrow will probably only decide whether or not McKelvey will be sent against the Hamilton Tigers. If McKelvey does play they may be without the services of "Red" McKelvey, who had the ligament of his leg torn in Saturday's game.

NEW SCHEDULE MADE BY PALMERSTON A.A.A.

Dec. 5—Businessmen at Farmers.
Dec. 8—Town at Pros.

Finals.
Dec. 10—Winners group A. at winners group B.
Dec. 12—Winners group B. at winners group A.

In the event of each team winning one game in the finals a sudden death game will be played. If the game is tied, it will be allowed and any team agreeing to postpone a game will forfeit its right to play in the finals. The Freight Sheds 13 to 10, while the Motive Power Shop defeated the Farmers 14 to 7.

The juniors were just beginning to get some conditioning last week when they closed down workouts, but from now on they'll be at it steadily. They look very promising, probably the most likely-looking crew of youngsters the city ever sent into an O. H. A. campaign.

They do not go much to weight and size, but they bear heavily to speed, which seems to be the main asset in any hockey team these days, senior or junior. There's a real battle on line up for regular berths in the junior ranks, and there will be little to choose between the eight men who will eventually make the team.

LUIS ANGEL FAVORED TO DEFEAT WEINERT

Argentinian Beginning Another Campaign For Crack at Dempsey's Crown.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Nov. 11.—Luis Angel Firpo, the Argentine champion, who was named as the best boxer in Jersey City by Harry Wills, the colored heavyweight champion, will fight a return engagement with Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship of the world.

After his scheduled fight with the so-called Newark Adonis, the Newark Adonis will meet Charley Weinert, the so-called Newark Adonis, in the Newark Adonis.

After twelve rounds, but there seems to be little likelihood of their going any such distance. Firpo, according to most reliable reports, has done some real work for his scrap, because he realized that his defeat at the hands of Wills has struck his American prestige a fearful blow. He is in anything like good condition he could defeat the veteran Weinert early and often.

Firpo's bout with Weinert will mark their second meeting. They met in an encounter took place in Philadelphia, August 12, 1923, and the Newark Adonis was spread on the canvas in two rounds. In the first round, however, he made Luis Angel look like a selling pitcher.

Arthur Richardson star of match at Adelaide.

Associated Press Despatch.

Adelaide, Australia, Nov. 11.—The M. C. touring cricket team beat South Australia in the match concluded here today by nine wickets. South Australia went to bat first and scored 348 runs for four wickets, the innings being then declared. Of this score Arthur Richardson obtained 200, not out. In the second innings South Australia made 163 runs.

The M. C. C. made 406 runs in the first inning, Wooley obtaining 90, and in the second inning the M. C. C. knocked off the 41 runs necessary for victory for the loss of one wicket.

Urban Shocker sought by Washington Senators.

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, Nov. 11.—With the question whether Walter Johnson will be a member of the Washington Senators next season still under discussion, President Griffith has announced his intention of bringing a deal with St. Louis for the services of Urban Shocker, its star spit-ball pitcher.

Mr. Griffith said he expected to confer on the subject with Manager Slater of the Browns at the annual American league meeting in New York next month.

Rochdale beats Leeds.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 11.—Rochdale defeated Leeds this afternoon in a northern union game by 25 to 6.

Under the rugby union code Dublin defeated London Hospitals at Richmond by 7 to 3.

HOME AND HOME GAMES IN WOSSA NOW LIKELY

Either Sarnia or St. Thomas Should Give Easterners Hard Battle.

The senior Wossas rugby finalists were to have been declared by Saturday, but an extension of time is being sought by Dr. Smith, so that home and home games may be staged between St. Thomas and Sarnia C. I. two-time finalists.

Whichever wins, Western Ontario is confident that the east intercollegiate champions are in for a tough time before they'll succeed in taking the title from this neck of the woods.

The junior series will probably not be concluded until Monday. The return game between Woodstock C. I. and Windsor was to have been played Saturday, but the Boy City lads could not get a playing field.

ST. THOMAS JUNIORS PROMISE BOOMERANG

Declare Sarnia Teams Violated Several Rules of O. R. F. U.

Special To The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Nov. 11.—Should the St. Thomas Junior O. R. F. U. team carry out their threat and protest the game here Monday, President of the O. R. F. U. of the Elgin regimental A. A. A. association, and manager of the local juniors, Tuesday that the T. and N. City would find themselves in a sad predicament. In the first place, Sarnia would be without one playing certificate. The Sarnia officials asked to see the St. Thomas birth certificates and playing cards, but could not produce any themselves. This alone would warrant the replaying of the game. Their uniforms were not according to regulations and bore no numbers. The new rules of the junior O. R. F. U. distinctly stipulate that every player in the play-offs must have a number. St. Thomas could have protested the game, but the O. R. F. U. officials would make it "hot" for Sarnia if the protest was forwarded to Secretary C. W. McQueen of the O. R. F. U., explaining the situation.

There are plenty who think that Hamilton Tigers will beat Sarnia, but a Hamilton fan who missed all trains to Hamilton Sunday, and thought he'd see the best game on the calendar, over at Tecumseh park, is afraid that Sarnia's too strong for the Hamilton-coached pets.

In four games, London played Sarnia to 16, all tie, counting points, London crossed Sarnia's goal line twice, while London kept their line unmarked. But enemy footies did enough damage without crossing the goal line.

Balkwell is the big casualty of the London rugby season. He is still hobbling about on a crutch, but will be ready for basketball within a few weeks.

Shades of Mierke, whose bonehead play gave the Chicago Bears football team a reputation for ineptitude, members of the Chicago Bears football team are considering equipping their uniforms with compasses, following his stunt in Sunday's game with Columbus Tigers. Knop scooped up a fumble and raced 35 yards toward his own goal posts before one of his team-mates tackled him.

Despite Oscar Bears won, 12-6. McGill football players, in their contest against Dartmouth at Hanover recently, wore football pants that were cut well above the knees, with regulation nades under long stockings to protect the knees. The style may be tried by U. S. teams before the season closes, as they give the players greater freedom of action.—Chicago Tribune.

Stratford apprentices made the break into rugby this season for the first time, and went through without winning a game. However, they did shake friends in the group, who admired their sportsmanship throughout. Stratford will yet be heard from on the gridiron.

The intercollegiate rugby series started in 1898, and continued until 1915, when the series were suspended during the world war. They resumed in 1916, and Varsity has 12 championships tucked away. Queens and McGill each have five, while the Ottawa college has one championship recorded.

The official records follow, and show the winners of the various years: 1898, Varsity; 1899, Varsity; 1900, McGill; 1901, Varsity; 1902, McGill; 1903, Varsity; 1904, Queens; 1905, Varsity; 1906, McGill; 1907, Ottawa; 1908, Varsity; 1909, Varsity; 1910, Varsity; 1911, Varsity; 1912, McGill; 1913, McGill; 1914, Varsity; 1915-18, intercollegiate series suspended during world war; 1919, McGill; 1920, Varsity; 1921, Varsity; 1922, Queens; 1923, Queens; 1924, Queens.

Perhaps the Queen's team had so much to be thankful, for they did not feel disposed to eat until Thanksgiving. Following their victory over Varsity at the stadium on Saturday, at any rate they did not appear at the House for the dinner given to the teams on Saturday evening after the game, and after waiting from 5 until 8 o'clock the Varsity boys sat down and dined by themselves, with a mental toast to absent friends.

PROSPECTIVE FUTURE HOME OF TORONTO LEAFS.

Above is shown the property immediately south of the York street bridge, which it is said, will be turned into an athletic ground by the Toronto harbor board. As will be noticed, work of some kind is now in progress. It is surmised that it is the intention of the board to erect an up-to-date stadium capable of accommodating 30,000, which will be the largest in Canada.

On the Side Lines

With C. S. G.

Tecumseh Park, which has been London's chief athletic field since 1875, or thereabouts, has often been under eight and ten feet of navigable water, but now it's under the hammer and will go to the highest bidder. Its fate will likely be division into building lots.

Common tradition would have it that as Governor Simcoe posed on the eminence where stands the court house, and gazing out over the forks of the Thames decided that this was to be the site of a new city in the Canadian wilderness, he also chose the present site of Tecumseh Park as a cricket pitch for ye citizenry, but Tecumseh Park was to be a pasture and then a commons for a good many years, so history shows, before it was to become a playing field.

It was first made into a playing field in 1876 when the world's champion Tecumseh made it their home. It continued as such for three years until the International baseball league of that day displayed a tendency that is marked even unto these modern days, and "blew up" league baseball was played in 1887 and 1888 in the old fair grounds on Pall Mall street, taking in part of the old military grounds which is now Victoria Park.

Tecumseh Park in these years became a center for the sport of bicycling, then in its hey-day and which brought with it an even more varied and ornate sartorial display than that made by the blue-fours and King Tut designs of golf togs today, not to mention hirsute adornments which drew the breeze. In 1888, a brick track was built and that year the Canadian Wheelmen's Association held a huge meet here.

It is unfortunate that Tecumseh Park had to go this way. Not only because it is an old landmark, but because it is a natural site for an athletic field, and ideally located.

It was purchased several years ago by the present owners, partly for city amateur sports, but mainly so that Western University would have a playing field. There was a chance one time that it might become the site of a huge athletic plant, with an artificial ice arena as the first unit and other improvements to follow, even to a large club house and possibly in the far-away future a huge boat-house. Long vision and short pockets do combine in this hustling world of today. When economy demands diverted the rink to another site and Western University became the possessor of a playing field at the new site, this dream began to fade. The plans for an athletic plant in the inclosure at Queen's Park and their fulfillment saw the vision fade out entirely.

Nothing but civic ownership or wholly unexpected philanthropy can save the old field from the fate which seems imminent. It's a fate that will cause a good deal of regret among those who have some regard for that which has some touch of the historical.

Sugar Theory Given Setback

Rations of Sweets Fail To Bring Yale Victory.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 11.—Though fed sugar in an attempt to increase their physical energy during the game with Pennsylvania here Saturday, Yale's soccer team failed to respond sufficiently to defeat the visitors, who won by 5 to 2. The "sweeter" theory of the efficacy of supplying sugar to offset its depletion in the blood during violent exertion.

The experiments are being conducted by Prof. Yandell Henderson of the department of applied physiology and the Yale department of health, according to Standard-Bell.

QUEBEC-ONTARIO LOOP DECIDES TO CARRY ON

Will Continue As Six-Club Circuit With Royals Out.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—Leo Dandurand's Quebec-Ontario professional baseball league next season, according to present indications, as gleaned from club owners who are here for a special meeting of the directors of the loop to wind up affairs of the last year and prepare for the annual meeting to be held at the end of December. A. O. Gaudet, Royals' territorial rights here for a time, under an agreement with the Canadian management, and will not operate in 1925.

The majority of club owners, Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa in particular, despite a bad season, favor continuing the league next year as a six-club organization. This will likely be conducted with clubs from Canadian cities only, the new ones to come from cities in eastern Ontario.

Edmonton Eskimos are looking for two players, a goaltender and a right-hand shot. Duke Keats is a hold-out. Edmonton claims Garbath of Everett, who is reported to have signed with Boston and then tore up his contract.

Frankie Burke, last season with St. Mary's, will likely be found with Aurora last season. Burke is equally at home on the defence, right wing or center.

Rus. McAllister, goaltender, with Sarnia intermediate. H. A. team last season, is now located in Toronto. A mighty good net guardian for some senior team.

Charlie Larose, last season with Cornwall, is a student at Varsity. He will be a candidate for one of Connie Smythe's teams.

Jack Adams has purchased an interest in a hotel in Vancouver.

It is understood that at the N. O. H. A. meeting at North Bay on Nov. 15, Port Arthur and Port William will have a representative present to discuss the matter of forming a league composed of the Twin Cities and the Soo and Sudbury. Such a group was decided upon two years ago, but when the Soo and Sudbury teams jumped to the Manitoba association.

Toronto Star.

London is surely on the sporting map this fall. The town has taken up rugby with a vengeance and is now a hotbed of inter-collegiate and O. R. F. U. teams in enthusiastic style. And the town is simply hockey mad. The O. H. A. senior team attract big crowds, and local enthusiasts predict that the new rink, which seats over 4,000, will not begin to accommodate the crowd this winter.

Since that time, Florida has become perhaps the most alluring and most resorted to in the world. A warm-watered ocean offers bathing at its best; a few miles off shore the monstrous and more adventurous disciples of Isaac Walton; a marvelous beach fringed with exotic palms, broad motor roads and sub-tropical flowers, steeped in glorious sunshine and perfumed with the fragrance of fruit blossoms and sub-tropical flowers.

Nature has lavished her bounties on Florida, and man has molded them for his convenience. There are facilities for every summer recreation—surf bathing, deep sea fishing, boating, golfing, tennis, riding, motorizing, bowling and dancing; beautiful hotels, splendid apartments and bungalows house the visitor in luxurious comfort.

Canadian National Railways can offer a splendid service in helping you plan your visit, together with many choices in routing. Any agent will gladly supply full information and make your reservations.—Adv.

The league this year will include four teams, McClarys, Perrins, C.N.R. and Yale department of health, according to Standard-Bell.

"Wide open" will be the main characteristic of the Manufacturers' hockey league of this year which will make it look different than the circuit of last season. This, however, does not mean that O. H. A. players may play in the industrial loop, but that teams may use any number of men not actual employees of the firms they represent.

The league this year will include four teams, McClarys, Perrins, C.N.R. and Yale department of health, according to Standard-Bell.

Junior Grid Team Needed To Develop Football Here

Poke and Cross Checks

Will Appear in New Colors in First Exhibition Game.

Prices Announced

The local seniors started their week of strenuous team drill last night from 6 to 9 at the arena, and they came through the steady hours of drill fairly fresh and hardy. Very few of them have any more to take off. It's mostly a matter of wind, and getting endurance.

They will work out at the same hour every night this week, and by Saturday should be showing some evidence of real team work. It looks very much as though team work will decide the Big Five race, because, individually, most of the clubs are on an even basis.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Featherweight Tourney Commences November 21

Kid Kaplan To Meet Bobby Garcia in Opening Match.

SIX ELIGIBLE

Special To The Advertiser.
New York, Nov. 11.—The first bout of the tournament to decide a successor to Johnny Dundee as world's featherweight champion will take place in Madison Square Garden on the evening of November 21. The semi-final will occur three weeks later and the final either two or three weeks after that. The ultimate winner will be regarded as featherweight champion of the world, so far as the local boxing board is concerned.

Dundee retired, ostensibly because he found the task of making the featherweight limit of 126 pounds too arduous. When he made his comeback, Eugene Cribari, the Frenchman, from whom he won the title, Johnny negotiated the monumental task of coming down from 140 pounds to 126. In order to do it he was forced to go through probably the most strenuous training session that any contemporary scrapper ever engaged in.

He started to train in the hottest days of the summer of last year, for weeks he worked in the sun, wearing a suit of rubber with heavy woolen flannel trousers over that. He was literally sweating blood during that fearful process, but he finally made 126 pounds. He was then put up one of the greatest fights of his career.

Kaplan in First Match.

The results were as follows: Louis Kid Kaplan of Mexico, Conn. defeated Bobby Garcia of Camp Holabird, Md., in the first bout, which, like the other three, will be ten rounds. In the second bout Danny Kramer of Philadelphia will meet Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill., while in what could be called the main event Mike Paluso, formerly of Salt Lake City, but now of New York, will take on Jose Lombardo, so-called featherweight champion of Central America.

There will be another drawing immediately after the bouts on Nov. 21, in which one of the four victors will be lucky enough to draw a bye. This drawing, like yesterday's, will be conducted by the boxing board. If any one of the first three bouts should result in a draw, it is understood that the match must be fought over again.

Tex To Stage All Bouts.

The entire tournament will be conducted under the aegis of Tex Rickard, who was announced yesterday. There was a rumor current in boxing circles that Johnny Dundee, when the elimination tournament is finally completed, will come back and say "I was only fooling." But he is now regarded as the real featherweight champion, inasmuch as the boxing public has a well grounded habit of believing that champions are champions until they have been actually knocked out, such a manoeuvre by Dundee is probably as likely as not to be taken seriously by him.

If Dundee should do such a thing, it would in all likelihood result in the coming of the coming featherweight tournament and place the winner of the same fight in the hands of Billy Muldoon's synthetic champs occupied a couple of years ago. There was a most intensive effort made by the featherweight champion to succeed Johnny Wilson when the latter was in bad standing wherever boxing flourished.

HAMILTON TO PLAY IN SARNIA SATURDAY

Final Series With Camp Borden Will Commence November 29.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—As a result of a meeting of the representatives of the three clubs that have reached the semi-final round of the intermediate O. R. F. U. championship this afternoon, the dates for the three games yet to be played in the series were determined.

Sarnia and Hamilton play a home-and-home series, total points to count, the first game in Sarnia next Saturday and the return game on Nov. 22 in Hamilton.

Camp Borden drew a bye into the final, and will meet the winner of the semi-final on the latter's ground on Nov. 23, which will allow the O. R. F. U. champions to be ready for the C. R. U. series on Dec. 6.

ST. THOMAS EXPECTING OPENING W. O. S. S. A. FINAL

Special To The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Nov. 11.—There is a possibility that the first final game between the Sarnia and the St. Thomas team winners of this group will be played here Nov. 15.

The local players were in hopes that the customary order of events might be reversed to give them the first game at the Tunnel City on the latter's ground on Nov. 23, which will allow the O. R. F. U. champions to be ready for the C. R. U. series on Dec. 6.

TWO TREASURY EMPLOYEES WILL BE TRIED IN JANUARY

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—After a long argument in Mr. Justice Logie's court, the trial of Edward V. Donnelly and M. A. Thomas, formerly employees in the office of the provincial treasury, was enlarged until the next session, which opens on January 12.

The two men were charged with the theft of $3,128.10, the property of the government, and also with the falsification of certain books and documents.

The Griddle

The Recruit Bullied—A Youth in Despair—His Only Pinch Hitter.

CHAPTER XI

By H. G. SALSINGER.

Ball players, at the time of Ty Cobb's major league debut, were a different type than the players of today. They were a hard, rough and ready lot, as a whole. They battled on and off the playing field. A man had to win his position in those days by showing that he could take it.

The veterans were clannish. They held as common enemy any recruit who tried to break in. They did everything to handicap him. They made the youngsters the butt of coarse jokes, bullied them, "ragged" them.

Such was the feeling, the attitude and the situation Cobb faced when he broke in. They resented Cobb's appearance. They were more resentful than usual because he had broken into the regular lineup as soon as he arrived at the camp. He was on the bench for a season or two as recruits were expected to do.

When the season of 1906 opened Cobb was in luck. He had a certain amount of success and this reacted on him in the clubhouse. Few of his team-mates spoke to him, except to fling some new insult in his direction.

They Broke His Bats.

Cobb showed ability to bat. The day after he made three hits in four times up he arrived at the camp. He was missing. He had brought them with him from Augusta—two black bats that he had used ever since he started with Detroit. Cobb hunted for the bats. He was told he could find them outside the fence. Cobb found them in splinters. Some of his team-mates had taken a hatchet and destroyed the bats. They believed that by destroying the bats they would lessen his hitting ability, for it is the belief of most ball players that certain bats "hold more hits" than other bats.

If they treasure it more than anything else, crediting most of the hits to that particular bat. Cobb had such a faith in his bats, and he returned to the clubhouse he slouched to one corner of the locker room—in despair.

Charlie Schmidt, then the regular catcher of the Detroit team, had witnessed the destruction of the bats. Schmidt walked over to Cobb and extended one of his own bats.

"There's just as many hits in this one as the bats they broke up for you," said Schmidt. "If anybody tries to break up that bat they'll reckon with me."

Cobb used Schmidt's bat. He made two hits in his first game. The day he made two more. He continued using it for a week. Then there arrived two new bats that he had ordered. But he had demonstrated with Schmidt's bat that he could get hits out of a strange bat, so he did not bother to chop up the new ones.

Outside the Circle.

That season, as well as the succeeding year and even a few after that, a witness to a middle of the field, Cobb, the tempestuous, found it difficult to get into the ways and habits of his team-mates. He did not like them, and they detested him. He was pretty much alone.

In 1906 Cobb was beginning to find himself. The spark of ambition that led him to leave Hamlet, N. C., for Detroit, was still there. Cobb had faith in himself, but this faith was not shared by his team-mates. And Manager Armour, who had selected him, also had little confidence in Cobb's possibilities. He was regarded generally as a "morning glory," a "flash in the pan," a "sucker." He'll be in the minors inside of another year," they said.

Cobb played in 57 games in 1906. He scored 44 runs and made 112 hits in 340 times at bat and he stole 23 bases. His batting average was .320 and players that can bat .320 in their first full season in the majors are not sent back to the minors. They are kept at least until they furnish proof that they are morning glories.

Payne Battling for Cobb!

During this season Cobb, although batting above .300, had not convinced his manager that he was a sure thing. In that season Cobb saw a pinch-hitter go to the plate for him; the only time in his career that he has happened, because the manager wanted a better man at bat.

Detroit was playing Chicago. "Hitless Wonders" of this period and world champions that year, "Doc" White, a smart left-hander, was pitching. White was the hardest-hitting pitcher in the league for Cobb, but against him and he was particularly hard on this particular afternoon. Cobb had faced White three times and struck out each time. When it came Cobb's turn to bat again Manager Armour called him back and sent in instead Freddy Young, second string catcher. And Payne, who went out of the majors a few years later, won a distinction that never fell to the lot of another player.

Duties of Four Pitchers Prearranged By Harris

Each of Quartet Knew Part He Was To Play Before Crucial Game of World Series at Washington Commenced.

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Nov. 11.—The physiology employed by Manager Stanley Harris of the Washington Americans in handling his pitchers in the final game of the 1924 world's series, which has been the subject of much speculation ever since, was revealed today by a member of the Washington team, close to Harris.

The number of innings each one of the four pitchers who participated in the game was to work, and the exact time of their entrance and departure, were outlined by Harris before the team took the field, according to the informant, and this schedule was followed to the letter, except for two circumstances, one of which was the fact that the game went into extra innings.

The other exception was in the case of "Curly" Ogden, the young pitcher who was started on the mound for Senators. According to Harris' plans, Ogden was to pitch to but one man, Lindstrom, and then he was to be relieved. But Ogden, anxious to make good, crossed his manager by fanning Lindstrom, thereby giving Harris no legitimate excuse for yanking him.

How Long Can U.S. Stand It?

Divorces in United States in 1922 numbered 148,815, and in 1923 165,139. It was an increase of 11 per cent, while in the same time marriages increased 8 per cent.

As each divorce affects two persons it means that in 1923 there were 330,278 more divorced persons in United States, or in the two years 630,408.

Allowing all possible margin for legitimate and pressing need for divorce, there is yet a tremendous number who have gone through the divorce mill on some pretext or other, doing so because they realized they were living in a land where it was comparatively easy to evade the ties that bind the foundations of a nation's strength.

The figures are daring enough to constitute a challenge to the future of United States, and to call into question the rigor of its moral stamina and the virtue of its national creed.

Old Things That Endure

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been playing in London. Old, certainly, but people didn't seem to think of that. When they saw the announcement of the show they didn't say, "Oh, I saw that in a tent when I was ten years old." Chances are that they went again and took the children with them.

One of the most famous world singers who has visited London in recent years closed her program with "Home, Sweet Home." People knew what was coming as soon as they heard the first few bars of the accompaniment, but they didn't get restless. No one remarked, "I've heard that before—it was the first thing I learned to play." Not a bit of it. If a vote had been taken "Home, Sweet Home" would have stood away up on top of the whole program.

The manager of an opera house in a western mining town had booked nothing but burlesque shows for months. He had an opportunity to put on "The Bohemian Girl" by a first-class company that had two open nights. He decided to "take a chance." The miners, who had been fed on loud burlesque, heard a fine baritone sing "The Heart Bowed Down" and they insisted on its being sung five times the first night, and on the second night, when there was not even standing room left, the singer was not allowed to stop until he had sung that old song the seventh time.

It is the same with hymns. Occasionally a committee will sit in session to revise the music of a church—they imagine there is a call for something new, and so a number of the old favorites get the go-by. And the man in the pew, not much of a vocalist at any time, but who found vent for a great many emotions in some of those old hymns—he tries to tag along, wonders where the organist got that tune, wishes he had sense enough to play the old one, and glares his protest at the offending choir and its master.

Age is the real test to which a play, a hymn or a song must submit itself. Time has a peculiar faculty of letting the froth of newness turn into the flatness of disapproval. It also, by the same turn, plants its hoary stamp of approval on the real thing.

The Coming Ottawa Session.

The Dominion parliament will be called into session earlier than usual in 1925, and there should be few dull moments. The whole matter of freight rates has been thrown back on the House, although it is doubtful if the most equitable settlement can be expected from a political debate. Senate reform will open the flood gates of oratory; the tendency toward centralization in banking circles will surely draw fire. The Progressives, realizing that they must soon face the electors, are almost certain to employ their time seeking additional tariff decreases.

This latter case, which has passed the stage of speculation, is attracting the attention of the practical politician. He sees the Progressives as a group of hard bargainers who will support the King government only when the government is promoting the legislation favored by the Progressives. The man who looks at this situation from the point of practical party strategy also asks if, when an election comes, will the Liberals have to go to the country and fight Progressive candidates just the same as if there had been no co-operation promoting certain legislation, and the answer undoubtedly is that such will be the case.

The next question is: How far can the Liberal party go in dealing with the Progressives and still carry with them the following which they have from centers where the further reduction of tariffs would not be viewed with favor. From Ontario alone there are eleven such members from centers that are largely industrial. Some of these voted against the government on the last tariff, not so much on account of what it contained, but to register their opinion against a general movement in this direction. The problem of holding this Ontario vote and at the same time securing enough support from the Progressive party to see the budget safely through is going to be in itself assurance against any dull moments around budget time.

The Progressive party itself is divided on the matter of co-operating with the government. A section of it served notice on Robert Foulke last session that it would not attend caucus meetings, holding that its members were not elected for the purpose of sanctioning any working arrangement with existing parties. That cleavage in the Progressive party is likely to reassert itself in the next session at Ottawa, which may be the last before a general election. If that tendency becomes more marked it is likely to cause the Liberals to look more to solidifying their own ranks than to drawing support for government measures from the Progressives.

The government would be well advised to deal with such matters as civil service expenditure in a way that can leave no doubt that it intends to insist on maintaining a pay roll sufficient to do the work in hand, but no more. It will find the country responsive to any such move that will reduce needless expenditure. In Senate reform it should go as far as it can get authority. A much smaller and less expensive body would perform all the senatorial work necessary, and it would also prove to the country that the government does not regard the chief virtue of the Senate as being a place where political service meets its reward.

The government has to its credit a record of sound financing, a reduction of the national debt and a decrease in expenditure, and this is a claim not easily overlooked. It has paid its way and had money left over in spite of a falling off in revenue; it has taken less money from the people in taxation. It should continue definitely in this direction.

A Stupid Publication.

German chemists have issued a book on the war, in which they state that the Canadians broke and fled at Langemarck, where gas was first used. As a matter of historic fact, the Canadians stood their ground, extended the line from which French colored troops fled in the face of gas, and barred the road to Ypres.

The publication of such rubbish in Germany is evidence of political and commercial stupidity that has served Germany to no good purpose in the past.

Spending Money

One time I bought a suit of clothes, 'twas from a firm in Timbuctoo, they said they had the finest rags all carved and shaped in lines then new. I reckoned I would show the lads just how a fashion plate should look, me thinkin' I'd look like the dude he had paradin' in his book.

But when I put the garment on I looked much like a tin-horn sport, the trousers wrinkled at the knee, the legs was carved two inches short. The coat it bulged up in the neck, it humped upon my collar bone, it looked as though I'd bought the cloth and made the thing myself at home.

I penned a letter to them chaps, what dwell in far-off Timbuctoo, a-tellin' them just what I thought, a-askin' what they was to do. Well I got back a note from them, as saucy as a note could be, they figured that the fault, must lie in how the fates had fashioned me.

Since then I buy my duds at home, I go unto the folks I know, a-tellin' them as how I want my jacket to hang so and so, the trousers loose to hold my frame, the vest cut close beneath my chin, a suit that covers up the fat and makes me look straight-like and trim.

And if the thing ain't just that way, I go unto his shop once more, he doesn't sweat me on the jaw and plant my carcass on the floor. That shop man smiles upon my views, he doesn't get ruffed up at all, proceedin' for to make the thing hang like the paper on the wall.

And all the seeds I leave with him he uses them for rent and pay, so folks what work for him all week can buy their full of corn and hay. The merchant points at me with pride, as I go prancin' down the street, a-wearin' of his raiment on, and lookin' happy like and neat—he tells another chap he sees as how I do my tradin' there, the other chap allowin' too as how I'm lookin' pretty fair.

The coin it circulates round here, it's better business through and through than takin' from my hard-earned wad and shippin' it to Timbuctoo, because I reckon it this way, a-tradin' with my own town men, I've got an even break at least of layin' hands on it again.—ARK.

The Oldtime Religion.

In a sermon by Rev. Halford E. Luccock, he insists that the trouble with the old-time religion is that it is not old enough.

"Give me the old-time religion. It is good enough for me! It was good enough for Moses, for which he was arrested. A few days ago Bayless was elected to Congress, and can now view the scenery at Washington from the seats of the mighty."

What people usually mean by the old-time religion is that they do not want to be disturbed. They want to retreat into the old conventionalities and have nobody stir them up.

The essence of religion, however, is revolution. It is doing something opposed to convention and backed only by conscience.

The religion of Moses which is sung about was not that of mildly sitting down, under Egyptian conditions, but in doing something adventurous and brave.

Abraham had the same kind of religion. Paul and his companions were accused of turning the world upside down. A man cannot have real religion unless he revolts at the requirements of convention and habit, which clamp down the rest of the world.

Religion is something that removes a man from custom and habit and makes him a creature of conscience only. It is a disturbing factor. It is the element of progress.

It is, and always will be a protest against things as they are and a going back to first principles.

If, therefore, a man has the old-time religion, the religion of Moses and Abraham and other worthies of ancient history, he has something that makes him independent and courageous and adventurous, something that makes him depend more upon the cosmic laws of the universe and his conception of God than upon the law of custom and the traditions of man.

Religion is the oldest thing in the world, and it is also the newest thing in the world. It is like water that has flowed for many a year and is continuing to flow. It means an ever-present inspiration for an ever-present need. It is not something that can be crystallized in the past, but something that is ever new and fresh for the future.

Glasgow's Cathedral

The following description of Glasgow cathedral and its relation to the traditions of Scottish religious history was written by A. C. Thomas, a former Lobo boy, now on a tour through the British Isles, using a motorcycle, and making an investigation of conditions and places as he finds them.

Glasgow, Nov. 3.—The traveller in approaching the city of Glasgow cannot help but be impressed with the stern and defiant appearance of this magnificent city of the north. It is to Scotland what Liverpool is to England—a great seaport. Aside from this, however, it has grown to be quite a manufacturing city, especially in the manufacture of marine engines and accessories, as was demonstrated at the British Empire exhibition.

To one who has not previously witnessed a city built entirely from stone, the architecture and construction of this mammoth Scottish city is indeed a pleasant revelation. However, it does not possess the places of interest to the extent that its sister city, Edinburgh, may rightly claim. True it has probably without doubt the most magnificent cathedral in Scotland, dating from the twelfth century, and which fortunately has weathered the storm of the days of the reformation. The column to Sir Walter Scott in the center of George square, and near by "City Chambers," and the beautiful cenotaph erected to the memory of the heroes of the late world war are worthy of mention.

Glasgow university, a magnificent block of Gothic academic buildings, is located on the summit of Gilmore hill, on the banks of the Kelvin, and beneath this, to the south, is the museum, one of the most interesting it has been my privilege to visit in Great Britain. The Necropolis, situated near the heart of the city and to the east of the cathedral, contains the tombs and monuments of many noted men who have helped to make Scottish history. The grounds of this beautiful ornamental cemetery are approached by a path running along the south wall of St. Mungo's churchyard, which surrounds the cathedral. By a winding ascent, the visitor reaches the summit of the grounds. Conspicuously placed on the extreme summit of the hill, the Doric column, with the statue of the stern reformer, John Knox, arrests attention. The square base is filled with inscriptions on its four sides, one of which reads:

JOHN KNOX

Chief instrument under God of the Reformation, died in Edinburgh, Nov. 24th, 1572, 67 years of age.

The elevation being very considerable at this point, the whole city is stretched out beneath the eye of the spectator, while at hand rises the lofty and imposing spire of the cathedral. On the opposite side, the eye ranges over a large expanse of fertile and well-cultivated country, embracing the upper valley of the Clyde. At the northwest corner, situated near the heart of the city and to the east of the cathedral, has been set apart for the interment of members of the Jewish faith—a lofty and ornamental pillar marks the spot. The ground was opened in 1830 for interment, and belongs to the Corporation of Merchants.

The Ancient Cathedral.

WITH reference to the cathedral, it is said there is no edifice in Scotland that has attracted more of public attention than this magnificent structure, and a peculiar interest attaches to it, from its being the only ecclesiastical edifice of importance, with the exception of Kirkwall, that has come down to the present time in its original state.

In visiting the cathedrals of the British Isles, the visitor is usually curious to learn of the incidents and happenings of the days of the reformation as regards each particular edifice. From the history of Glasgow cathedral, I learned that shortly after the election of Archbishop Gavin Dunbar in 1523 the infallibility of the Church of Rome began to be freely and boldly questioned; and "Jeremiah Russell, one of the Greyfriars, a man of great learning, and John Kennedy, a youth belonging to Ayr, were brought to stake as heretics, and were burned at the east end of the cathedral." Thus began the troublesome days of the reformation. The cathedral occupies a prominent and important position, being situated on a rising ground at nearly the northeastern extremity of the city. The architectural features are said to possess one of the finest examples of the early English or unadorned Gothic. In the edifice, including those of the crypts, there are 147 clustered columns, and 159 windows of various dimensions, many of them exceedingly beautiful. Its length from east to west is 319 feet. The spire from the floor attains a height of 225 feet.

On entering the church by the south porch, the stranger finds himself in the nave of the cathedral, where instantly is beheld many relics of interest.

A glass cabinet contains the original "Glasgow Cathedral Reader's Bible," printed in London in 1617; used in the cathedral subsequent to the reformation. Removed from the church about 1745, discovered by Mr. Allan Clark and restored to the church on Aug. 11th, 1849, as was also an hour glass which was found with the Bible.

An old oak chest, made from material used in the construction of the cathedral in 1129; sterling silver communion set presented by Robert Tennent in 1745.

Upon the wall of the transept is suspended the tattered remnants of the colors of the 93rd Highlanders. These colors were presented to the 93rd Highlanders at Canterbury on Oct. 7th, 1834, by the first Duke of Wellington, and carried by the above regiment during the Crimean campaign, 1854-56.

I have discovered that the "crypts" are usually worth while visiting, when the stranger is permitted to explore these dark and usually gruesome chambers. Having gained permission from the attendant, I penetrated the most remote recesses of the crypt. The room beneath the chapter house, about 15 feet square, represents a dungeon in many respects, and cemented into the wall I discovered an old head stone bearing the following inscription:

"Here lies the corpse of Robt. Buntin, John Hart, Robert Scott, Mathew Patoun, John Richmond, James Johnston, Archibald Stewart, James Winning and John Main, who suffered at the cross of Glasgow for their testimony to the covenants and work of the reformation, because they durst not own the authority of the tyrants destroying the same, betwixt 1666 and 1668."

Years '66 and '68.
"Did send their souls home into glory, Whose bodies here interred by,
Then sacrificed to tyranny.
To covenant and reformation,
Cause they adhered in their station,
Those nine, with others in this yard,
Whose heads and bodies were not spared,
Their testimonies, foes, to bury,
They'll know at resurrection day,
To murder saints was no sweet play."

The following lettering also appeared at base of the stone:
"The original stone repaired and new lettered, MDCCCXXVII, at the expense of a few FRIENDS of the CAUSE for which the MARTYRS SUFFERED."

This stone had been removed from the graves of the martyrs, distant about 20 feet, from the northeast side of the churchyard.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home,
but it beats them all for quick relief.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time. It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing like Pinex for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound. If you prefer, use pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

DRINK WATER IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Salts If You Feel Backache or Have Bladder Weakness.

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.

By all means, drink lots of good water every day. Have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Advt.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stings hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove the hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses. Without soreness or irritation.—Advt.

SCORES TRIUMPHS AT FAIR IN GUELPH

Championships For Herefords and Percherons Go To the West.

PRESENT TROPHIES

Special to The Advertiser

Guelph, Nov. 11.—Western Canada scored a double triumph today in the judging at the Ontario provincial winter fair, when O. A. Boggs of Daysland, with his Alberta cattle, cleaned up in the Hereford classes, and Dr. Charles Head of Regina, Sask., carried off the championship for males in the Percheron class.

One of the features of the night's judging was the awarding of silver medals in the hackney classes, the special going to Waverley, King's, eight-year-old, owned by Joseph, Telfer, Guelph, and Waverley Josephine, a classy four-year mare, the property of C. E. Hill, Milton.

Award Trophies.

Among the prominent visitors in attendance at the fair today were Hon. J. S. Martin, minister of agriculture, who was a speaker at the annual banquet of the Ontario poultry association, this evening, and Manning Doherty, who was present in the afternoon and presented the Doherty trophy and prizes to Wellington junior farmers' team, winners of the inter-county judging competition. Mr. Doherty briefly outlined the purpose of this important contest and the splendid score which they piled up against strong competition. The exhibition minister stated that while the Guelph winter fair was not to be compared in size with the royal show at Toronto, he felt that the class of exhibits were on a par with those of any show on the continent, and despite the strong opposition, predicted that the Ontario winter fair would continue to prosper and continue to be the purpose for which it was inaugurated.

The seven students of the fourth year at the O. A. C. who captured first place honors in the annual inter-year judging competition, were presented with the George E. Day trophy, by the donor tonight in the arena before a fair-sized crowd. The members of the team were A. E. Davey, N. Jones, A. G. Kerstin, J. Y. Kellough, C. Fahrig, R. L. Demaray and F. J. Parish.

Three classes of Percherons, three classes of Hackneys and specials in both classes were judged tonight, the heavy draft horses being the best shown since the inception of the provincial fair.

MOVE TO PREVENT THAMES POLLUTION

City Engineer Asks $150,000
For New Sewage Disposal Plant.

Recommending $150,000 expenditure for improvements in sewage disposal, W. P. Near, city engineer, appeared before the board of health last night and discussed present conditions and immediate necessities in the matter of cleaning up the Thames.

That $50,000 would be required to pay for a new actuated sludge plant at the foot of Wellington and High streets would be necessary within a year, was the contention of the engineer. He also told the board members that a duplicate syphon system for the foot of Riverview avenue would make an expenditure, also within a year, of $100,000.

The city engineer, along with W. M. Veitch, assistant engineer on sewers, came at the request of the board and showed charts of the present method of sewage outlets into the Thames. It was not practical, Mr. Near told the board, to have all the sewage going into the river at one point because of the topography of the various districts.

Eliminate Factory Wastes.
Some members were interested in the elimination of factory waste from the waters of the river, but admitted that the city should act first in stopping pollution. Mr. Near told of interesting information picked up by

III, Lowe and Heibon, Elora.
Champion heifer—Karama of Bonnie Brae, James Turner, Carroll, Man.

him and Mr. Veitch recently in the New England States. They had found a great deal of civic pride in making sewage disposal efficient. Co-operation had been general between mills, dye works, tanneries in conjunction with eastern municipalities, and much money had been spent in making disposal plants efficient and attractive.

Problems in London were first in the efficient disposal of sewage, so that the waters of the Thames will not be contaminated. According to the city engineer, some of the criticism is really justified and some comes from imagined grievances. At present sewage disposal is about 50 per cent efficient. According to Dr. Downham, medical officer of health, water tests in the river this year have shown no serious, dangerous pollution, though there was much criticism in 1923.

Matter For City.

Mr. Near said that pollution of the river by industrial plants was not a matter for him to censure. Much discoloring was being caused that wasn't really dangerous to health. He said that the factories could be made to take definite steps to make sewage disposal more efficient.

On the motion of Ald. Douglas, seconded by Ald. Anderson, the board approved of Mr. Near's recommendations, and these will be brought up at Friday night's council meeting. Chairman Mitchell promised support from the board when it came to getting a new sewage plant at Wellington and High streets.

Reports were heard from the various department officials, all showing considerable activity in keeping the city clean and sanitary. S. C. Charbonneau, medical officer of health, secured the approval of the board for a new sanitary milk and strainer which he is trying out.

AUTOMOBILE IS RETURNED
AFTER 2-HOUR JOY-RIDE

Fred H. Beltz had his car stolen from in front of his home last night, about 10 o'clock.

The police department notified all police in the vicinity of London of the theft.

The car was seen at eleven o'clock on the Wellington road near St. Thomas, coming toward London at a fast clip.

Shortly after 12 o'clock, Mr. Beltz notified the police that his car had been returned.

The culprits drove the car up to the house without making any sound and it must have been there sometime before it was noticed.

Mr. Beltz is of the opinion that some friends took the car as a prank.

MYSTERY MAN IS TAKEN TO TORONTO

Bert T. Thompson, 40, Is Charged With Passing Bad Check to Buy Diamonds. MANY ALIASES

Bert T. Thompson, 40 years old, and of many aliases, who was arrested at the C. N. R. depot last night by Sergeant of Detectives Harry Down and Detective Thomas Bolton, following receipt of information from Toronto police, will probably turn out to be a very much wanted man, according to a Toronto detective who arrived in London this morning.

Thompson, who also travels by the name of Harry Thomas Jenkins, is alleged to have obtained jewelry from a Toronto diamond merchant by passing a worthless check. Ten minutes after he had obtained a diamond-studded lady's wrist watch, valued at $445, and a diamond ring costing $365, from Toronto jeweler, he was comfortably seated in the parlor car of a westbound train.

Toronto police lost sight of the case when it was reported Thompson's check was worthless. They wired Hamilton and London detectives to be on the lookout for the man.

In Hamilton he succeeded in evading the police, but when handcuffs were slipped on him at the London depot by Detectives Down and Bolton, he agreed to accompany them to the police station with no further fuss.

Toronto detectives first believed that Thompson was an escapee from a prison of Michigan state prison and the Buffalo prison, who travels under more than twelve aliases, and who has, since his escape, dyed his hair brown. Should he prove to be the escaped convict, his real name is Chris H. Worth.

When arrested last night, Thompson had more than $200 in Canadian and American currency on his person. He also carried three suitcases filled with new clothes. According to a letter which he wrote in his pocket, he was married four days ago in Syracuse, under the name of Harry Thomas Jenkins.

Thompson told local police today that the check he gave in payment for jewelry in Toronto was good, and that payment would be made if he called his bank in Syracuse by telephone. He intimated that he was a diamond smuggler, and that he was making for the border to take the wrist watch, ring and other jewels across.

Securely handcuffed, Thompson left for the Queen City in company with the Toronto detectives this afternoon, where he will stand trial on a charge of fraud.

NO CHARGE IS LIKELY AGAINST MOTORMAN

Crown Attorney Points Out Sections of Evidence in Child's Death.

It is not likely that a charge of manslaughter will be laid against James Thompson, motorman of the London street railway, in connection with the death of John Woodhams, baby son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Woodhams, 21 Askin street, who was struck and killed by a trolley on Tuesday, according to Crown Attorney Albert M. Judd.

Although the verdict of a coroner's jury meeting in inquest last night, stated that the motorman been looking toward the front of the street car the accident could have been avoided, Mr. Judd stated to the advertiser today that from the evidence he is inclined to believe the motorman not guilty of any criminal negligence.

Dalton McKenna, a 5-year-old boy, who testified at last night's inquest, told how John Woodhams, who was in the wheel or behind the motor of the trolley and was run over. If this is the case, according to Mr. Judd, the motorman had no choice but to avoid the child, street car motorman being situated well under the front fenders.

TWO CUPS WON BY JUNIOR FARMERS TO BE DISPLAYED

The two cups won by the junior farmers of Middlesex county in competition with junior farmers of Elgin in stock judging, will be on display in the Mount Brydges community hall Saturday night.

Members of the junior farmers' and junior women's institutes are holding a meeting in Mount Brydges on Saturday night to arrange for a winter program.

Alexander McLaren, in charge of recreational work in the province, will be present to help map out the program. R. A. Finn of the department of agriculture stated today.

ATTENDANCE OFFICER WILL ATTEND SESSION

M. M. Sims, chief attendance and vocational officer of the board of education, leaves tonight for Windsor to attend the 34th annual convention of the national league of compulsory education officials.

Miss Radcliffe, assistant to Mr. Sims, has been in Windsor during the last two days attending the convention.

Trustee Mrs. John A. Rose left last night to attend the convention as the official trustee delegate of the board itself.

The convention, which began on Tuesday, lasts until Friday.

AGED FARMER ILL

John Lawson, aged farmer who resides on the Wonderland side road and who was thrown from a motor car in collision on the Pine Line road a month ago without sustaining serious injuries, is ill at his home with pneumonia. While his condition is regarded as serious, friends and neighbors are hoping that his rugged constitution will pull him through his illness.

SEDAN IS RETURNED

Motor thieves "borrowed" a sedan owned by Fred Beltz from a motor car in collision on the Dundas street last night, returned the car after a joy ride lasting several hours, but kept a kit of tools and a spare tire. Police were notified today of the theft.

S. F. Lawrason Will Not Run

Rumor persisted today that S. F. Lawrason, trustee of the board of education, would be a candidate for the mayoralty. Common talk on the streets was that Mr. Lawrason, in spite of a denial given The Advertiser last Friday, had changed his plans and would oppose Mayor Wenige. According to Mr. Lawrason, however, there is no such possibility.

"I am sticking by the statement that I'll be a board of education candidate," again Mr. Lawrason told a reporter at noon. "I know there is much opposition to Mayor Wenige and many people would like to see another candidate, but I am going to stand by my decision to be a candidate for trustee."

office as an electrical appliance. He had seen it around the office, but knew nothing about it. It was not bought for him personally out of his salary, he said.

Sir Adam said he had no apology to make regarding the entertainment of nurses at dinner. His trip to England in 1924, he said, was authorized by the dominion as a delegate to the power conference there.

Sir Adam said he knew Mr. Gaby was interested in the Cataract and Gravel Company, from which the hydro bought a steam shovel. He understood the other commissioners knew it also.

W. S. Brewster, counsel for the government, said every witness had been gone into. He invited anyone who could give further evidence to step forward.

F. H. McGuigan, contractor, stepped forward and said there was something he wanted to clear up.

Ross Macklem, a former hydro chauffeur, denied ever taking Mr. Gaby to Rochester. He took Mr. Gaby to Niagara Falls on business on one occasion. He denied that he could "sell lots."

Another former chauffeur, Arthur Dunlop, said he had hauled coal in a hydro truck to Clarkson for C. Boddy, superintendent of hydro garages. There had been no time sheets put in on these trips. Witness also said he had seen J. B. Lucas driving hydro cars.

Mr. Lucas cross-examined witness on this and witness said he had never seen Mr. Lucas in a commission car after he ceased to be a commissioner.

Mr. Lucas himself then went on the stand and was asked questions at the request of Mr. Settle.

"Since you have been solicitor for the hydro, have you ever taken a hydro car to Markdale?"

"I think on one occasion I made a trip to Markdale and from there, to Owen Sound, with Mr. Berry, local superintendent, to examine the pole lines upon which there was litigation at the time between the hydro and Grey county."

"Have you received from the hydro or its associates any money in addition to your salary?"

"Not one copper," said Mr. Lucas. "Have you ever used a hydro car on holidays or Sundays?"

"No, I have a car of my own."

City Churches

BAPTISTS VISIT ARKONA. Large numbers of B. Y. P. U. members of the Lambton and Middlesex association of the Baptist church visited the district B. Y. P. U. rally at Arkona on Monday afternoon and evening.

There were about 100 Londoners present, and all parts of the district were represented. The district president, Rev. Mr. Vincent of Stratford, was in the chair, and Rev. J. Moore, of Arkona, gave the address of welcome, to which Rev. J. Stones, of Wyoming, replied.

Oliver Rayner, of Toronto, president of the interprovincial B. Y. P. U., was the speaker of the afternoon, giving a very inspiring address. The presidential address was given by Rev. Mr. Vincent, after which Miss appreciated reading.

Rev. R. S. Murphy, pastor of Wortley road Baptist church, London, presided at the evening resume of his trip to Ireland, in which he spoke particularly of the revival in that country. His address was one of the best of the evening program, and the other address was given by Rev. R. Mackay, of Sarnia, on "Consolation." The program was interspersed with musical numbers.

MONTHLY REPORT. The monthly report of Nurse E. Raymond of the city tuberculosis clinic shows that 486 visits were made during October. New cases reported numbered 14, while 107 cases were treated at the dispensary. Two deaths were reported.

SECURES EVIDENCE. City Engineer Near is securing evidence for the sitting of the dominion railway board here on Nov. 20. Applications of the city for gates at the C. N. R. tracks crossing Dundas street at Pottersburg and the C. P. R. tracks at Quebec street will be heard.

OFFICERS RETURNS. Following four days of visiting different Salvation army corps between Port Elgin and Owen Sound, Commandant Hurd and Sharpe of London returned to the city yesterday.

The officers took part in the Armistice day and Thanksgiving services in the different corps and also gave illustrated lectures of the Halifax disaster. Commandant Hurd, who was stationed at Halifax at the time of the explosion, gave a vivid description of the relief work following the disaster.

UNIQUE INK WELL. County Clerk John Stuart is the proud possessor of a neat little well used by the famous Canadian well soldier, Col. Mahlon Burwell, in writing his experiences during the war of 1812. Col. Burwell was taken prisoner by the Americans, and during his captivity in the United States kept a diary, which was turned over by Mr. Stuart for the Dominion archives.

Col. Burwell was the grandfather of Charles Talbot, who is now the well of the city assessment department.

TENDERS RECEIVED. The diapole to be erected in front of the court house will probably be ready for use by the time the county council meets. County Engineer Charles Talbot stated this morning.

Two tenders have been received for the erection of the steel pole, but no action has been taken as yet.

People travelling on Dundas street near Ridout at 11 o'clock this morning didn't waste much time in conversation. They hoofed it along as fast as their limbs would carry them, while their faces bore looks of disgust which varied according to their sense of smell.

"Somewhere, no person seemed anxious to discover the exact spot, a little skunk was working overtime spreading that peculiar aroma for which his breed is famous.

Licensed Inspector Walter Bolton, who was at the court house, was called on by a reporter to "do his duty," but the inspector declared that Mr. Skunk, although not a citizen in good standing, could not be classed among O. T. A. offenders, and gracefully declined to accept the job of arresting the offender.

High Constable Wharton also stepped the case, stating it was a matter for the city police.

Two months ago the same odor was wafted on the breeze near the old registry office, and it may be that Mr. Skunk and all the little skunklets are moving down to the new registry office on court house property.

BOYS' HOBBY FAIR COMING MAY 4-9

Rotarian Roy Cunningham Announces Arena Has Been Obtained For Show.

The Rotary club hobby fair will be held in the arena May 4 to 9. The prize list for the fair will be distributed early next month.

Announcement to this effect was given by Rotarian Roy Cunningham, acting chairman of the Rotary club hobby fair committee.

The decision to hold the fair, the third under the auspices of the Rotary club, in the arena during the first week in May was reached at a lengthy meeting of the committee, which was held yesterday afternoon.

The committee decided also that cash prizes should be eliminated this year. This year the prizes will consist entirely of silver cups, shields and medals. Last year 125 medals were awarded. There will be no solicitation for the donation of prizes this year, as has been the case in previous years.

It has been the desire of the Rotary club for some time past to hold the hobby fair at the same time as the Western fair, in a building within the fair grounds. A genuine effort was made during recent months on the part of the Rotary club committee and the board of directors of the Western fair to get together on some scheme whereby the change could be effected.

After several conferences on the question, it has developed, however, that the cost of putting the machinery building into proper shape to house the hobby fair is prohibitive. While sympathetic and desirous of bringing about the transfer, the fair board felt unable to set aside the amount required, approximately $3,500, to fit up the building. Such a sum being beyond the capabilities of the Rotary club, the committee has decided that the hobby fair should continue on its own for the next year or two.

Use of the armories having been directed and retained this year very largely for military training purposes, the club could not secure a building for the hobby fair during the last week of March. This concession was made by the Rotary club on account of the nature of the hobby fair and also on account of the fact that the fair has been held in the armories since its inception two years ago.

The change of dates of the hobby fair from the third and fourth week to the first week in May was made at the suggestion of the public school authorities in order that the schools might be reduced to a minimum.

Coal dealers in the city are finding themselves with large stocks on hand, and very few orders, owing to this continued fine warm weather. This weather they regard as most unusual, and its results as far as their own businesses are concerned as somewhat depressing.

Another reason given by the coal men is that the greatly increased use of electric heaters in the between seasons, from autumn into winter, and from spring into summer, has made an inroad into their former privileges in the way of selling coal.

One dealer said: "It is surprising how little coal is sold in the city this winter. It has been the long and cold a spring as we did last year they will be burning coal into June. It seems as if the seasons are changing, because unless less coal is used before Christmas than formerly there is just as much used if you take the whole winter into consideration."

Of the householders' point of view this is the ideal weather. It is the last word. A good electric heater or perhaps the gas stove or fire warmed on a few hours in the evening keeps the house comfortable together with a shovelful or two of coal in the furnace.

SPLENDID SHOW

W. D. Jackson, secretary of the Western fair, who has returned from a trip to the international winter fair at Guelph, states that the show is deserving of much larger crowds than it is receiving.

"I have seen the best show of sheep I have ever seen at the winter fair," stated Mr. Jackson today. "The cattle and heavy horse entries are splendid, and the show is a fine one. Poultry entries are down, principally because there has been a cut in the prize lists."

Nova Scotia Cow Sets New Mark

Canadian Press Despatch.

Truro, N.S., Nov. 12.—"Home-Steak" cow, owned by William A. Fleming of Riverview farm, has set up a new Canadian butter record, according to advertisement received from the federal dairy department. In 365 days this cow produced 24,770 pounds of milk containing 1,922 pounds of butter fat, or 1,273.5 pounds of butter. The record is for three daily milkings.

This is the first session of the seventh annual meeting. The afternoon session will also be held in the Masonic temple, and the Friday sessions in the chambers of commerce.

Evening addresses in the Tecumseh house will include "Dominion In-Citizens Research Institute of Canada," and "The Reduction of the Rural Population of Western Ontario," and Steps Which Might Be Taken With Success to Combat It," by Prof. A. Leitch of the O. A. C.

At lunch on Friday there will be addresses on "Lakeshore Erosion" by Col. W. J. Brown of London, and "Natural Resource Survey" by W. J. Boulton of the department of natural resources, Ottawa.

Two resolutions of general interest will be brought in and discussed as follows: A resolution brought in by the London chamber of commerce asking that a national day of commerce be observed on March 1 to May 31 each year in the city of London.

After the fish coming from the river may be allowed to spawn and a resolution, also from the London chamber, suggesting the use of a justice and address that already one of the two witnesses had been "approached."

Justice Mowat stated that the defense had a weak case, and early this afternoon denied the application for the postponement, announcing that the trial would go on tomorrow morning.

"VOTE AS YOU PLEASE, BUT VOTE," CITY URGES

Officials To Distribute 25,000 Little Red Stickers in Publicity Drive.

In order to "pep up" the vote on Dec. 1, the city of London has had printed 25,000 little red stickers, which will be distributed to voters today. They are going on motor cars, store windows, office mail and other places where they may be conspicuous.

"Vote December 1st. Vote as you please—but vote," is the incitation of the council's message to citizens. Already notices have been sent out to ratepayers, and the Kiwanis' message to get citizens out on polling day has gone direct to 25,000 voters.

More publicity is being given to polling day this year than at any other time in the history of the city. Figures show that during the past 15 years, more than 100,000 voters stayed at home on election day, and it is in an attempt to get a more complete representation that the city is spending money to tell the electors.

EUROPEAN STUDENT RELIEF WILL BE CONTINUED

European student relief is to continue for another year. In July last 130 students and student workers met at Elmau, Germany, to consider whether help should be given to the world students during 1924-1925. It was unanimously decided to continue the work. Among those who were present were four workers from Canada.

Today collections are being taken at the University of Western Ontario to help fellow students among the refugees of Russia and other countries.

The student effort in 23 countries last year netted over $600,000, which was spent on food, clothes, books, housing and organizing.

The students' Christian movement is taking the collections here. Miss Louise Garbutt is the local president.

MEVOY NOT DECIDED IN DEFENDING BARNED

J. M. McEvoy, K.C., who returned to the city last night from Toronto, stated this morning that he had not yet decided to defend Frank Barned, charged with murder in connection with the death of Smylie Muirhead at Niagara Falls.

"I have seen the best show of sheep I have ever seen at the winter fair," stated Mr. McEvoy, "and I do not know just when the young man will come up for trial. It is possible, however, that I will take the case, which will probably be tried at St. Catharines."

E. S. LITTLE IS BIG WINNER IN GUELPH SHEEP CLASSES

E. S. Little, proprietor of Belvoir stock farm, Delaware, was among the big winners in sheep classes at the Guelph Winter Fair. Mr. Little took first prize in his entry in the yearling ram class and also showed the champion ram in the Shropshire class.

Mr. Little as well as six second and sixth ewe lambs, fourth in wether lambs, fourth in the marketing class, and second in the breeding class.

With No. 1 committee meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight, little business was on the agenda today. So far as could be learned there is little new to report on juvenile court or relief work matters, which were referred back to the committee at the last meeting of the council.

The city council's last session before November day has been set for Friday evening at 7:45 o'clock. It promises to be one of the shortest meetings of the year, with only brief reports from the various committees.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR LAUDS RESPONSE

The contribution of the First Presbyterian church to the self-denial week campaign has reached a total of $2,135, with more to come in.

Rev. Wm. Beattie, D.D., C.M.G., pastor of the congregation, is greatly delighted with the response made by the church to the appeal. Dr. Beattie considers the congregational spirit and general generosity of the members as individuals as something to be commended.

The contribution of $2,135 to the self-denial fund is all the more magnificent in view of the fact that the congregational anniversary offering just two weeks ago for current expenditures of the church amounted to over $1,300.

DELEGATES WILL HEAR J. N. MARTIN

Minister of Agriculture To Tell Trade Boards of Vacant Land Problem.

Hon. J. S. Martin, provincial minister of agriculture, will speak at the lunch meeting of the Western Ontario united boards of trade in the Masonic temple tomorrow at noon on the vacant lands of Western Ontario.

This is the first session of the seventh annual meeting. The afternoon session will also be held in the Masonic temple, and the Friday sessions in the chambers of commerce.

Evening addresses in the Tecumseh house will include "Dominion In-Citizens Research Institute of Canada," and "The Reduction of the Rural Population of Western Ontario," and Steps Which Might Be Taken With Success to Combat It," by Prof. A. Leitch of the O. A. C.

DR. R. I. WARNER CALLED BY DEATH

"Father" of Alma College Was Widely Known—Ill
Several Weeks.

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, Nov. 11.—Robert Ironside Warner, beloved "father" of Alma college, passed away at his rooms at the college late tonight, after a lengthy illness. Perhaps no man in Western Ontario is known more widely than Dr. Warner. Wherever Alma daughters are found his name is a household word, and news of his death will be received with sadness.

Dr. Warner was appointed to the staff of Alma college in 1881 after serving as a probationer on the Beverley, Seaford, Forest and Embro circuits. In 1897 he was appointed principal, which position he held till 1917, when at superannuation he was made principal emeritus.

Dr. Warner's Christian spirit and his devotion to the interests of the school were remembered by all those who have passed through the doors of Alma.

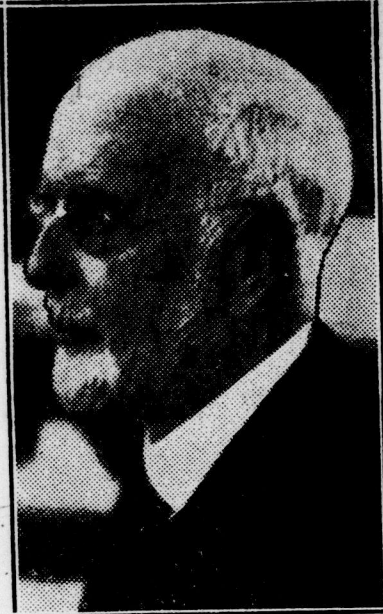

Prominent at Conferences.

Dr. Warner's ancestors came to America during the eighteenth century, settling in Pennsylvania. His great-grandfather served with distinction during the American revolution, following which the family moved to Canada as United Empire Loyalists. Dr. Warner was born in Niagara township in 1848. He studied at Thorold grammar school and, having received his first class teaching certificate, he taught school for four years. He graduated a B.A., valedictorian and gold medalist in 1877, and was ordained to the Methodist ministry in 1881.

He was a delegate at four general conferences and president of the London conference from 1911 to 1912, served on the general board of missions, the deaconess' board, and the general board of education. In 1912 the Victoria university conferred on him the doctor of divinity degree.

Served as Trooper.

Rev. Dr. Warner served as a trooper in the St. Catharines voluntary cavalry, and has been a member of the I. O. O. F., the R. T. T., the Canadian club, the Ontario historical society, the U. E. L., the horticultural society and the ministerial society.

The necessities and duties of college life put a distinct limit to extra undertakings. However, anniversary sermons and addresses made demands on his time. Lectures were frequently given on topics giving evidence of wide reading, and his contributions to newspapers were numerous.

Besides his wife, formerly Miss Catherine D. Parsons of Watertown, Ont., he leaves two sons, Robert Ironside Warner, Jun., Toronto, and Dr. Wilfred W. P. Warner of Toronto.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Twenty-six out of a total of 30 ministers in the Presbytery of Pictou, Nova Scotia, have issued a signed declaration of the union of entering the united church of Canada, according to a message received by the church union bureau of information and made public today.

MOTORMAN MAY FACE DEATH TRIAL

Matter To Be Discussed With Attorney-General's Department.

Had Motorman James Thompson of Normal car No. 120 of the London Street Railway been looking ahead at the time his trolley struck and killed John Hux Woodhams, baby son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Woodhams, 12 Askin street, on Tuesday afternoon of last week, and had he seen the child toddle onto the tracks, he would have had ample time and opportunity to stop the car and avoid the accident, according to the verdict of a coroner's jury meeting inquest at the police station last night.

As a result of this verdict Crown Attorney Albert M. Judd will take up with the attorney-general's department today the question of leaving in charge of manslaughter against Thompson.

Mr. Judd stated to The Advertiser last night that in justice to Mr. Thompson himself a manslaughter charge should be laid in order that should he be found not culpably negligent he would be cleared of all blame. Should Thompson be charged with manslaughter it would then be a question for Magistrate Graydon to decide whether or not he should be sent for trial.

Dangerous Practice.

The jurors agreed that the practice of motormen in stopping and starting cars at places other than regular stops was a dangerous one, and this matter will be brought to the attention of London Street Railway officials.

Conflicting evidence which arose last Friday on the first night of the inquest necessitated an adjournment until last night, when five-year-old Dalton McKenna, 19 Euclid avenue, an eyewitness of the fatality, testified.

John Woodhams died in Victoria hospital from shock on the evening of Nov. 4. He was struck down by a Normal street car at the corner of Wharncliffe road and Askin street, after 2 o'clock of the same afternoon.

In his evidence Dalton McKenna stated that he saw the child playing with a ball on the sidewalk onto the road the child followed, but stumbled on the street car tracks. The trolley struck him directly after he got up.

Failed To See Child.

At the request of Friday night witnesses declared that Motorman Jas. Thompson was looking toward the back of the car as it started forward from a stop on the curve leading to Askin street. Thompson himself denied this. He stated, however, that he did not see the child in front of his car, and consequently, failed to stop until his attention was attracted by people on the street and a conductor on a passing Ridout car.

Street railway rules state that a motorman must not look back or around when a car is in motion.

Motorman Burly Doyle of the passing Ridout street car and Mrs. Woodhams also gave evidence at last night's inquest.

Witnesses called at Friday's inquest included J. W. Soutar, William Whitley, conductor of the Normal car, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Snook, Miss H. Coombs, Dr. A. R. Post, who attended the child at Victoria hospital, Roy White, conductor of the Ridout trolley, Mrs. J. Mills and A. E. Belbrough.

Verdict of Inquest.

The jury's verdict reads as follows: "John Woodhams, one year and seven months old, died from shock at Victoria hospital due to injuries received by being run over by Normal car, No. 120, of the London street railway, on Tuesday, November 4, near the corner of Askin street and Wharncliffe road."

"The jurors are of the opinion from the evidence, that had the motorman of the Normal car been looking forward, and that had he seen the child getting on the tracks, the car could have been stopped in time to avoid an accident at the slow rate of speed at which it was moving at the time."

"The jurors wish to draw the attention of the London street railway to the practice of stopping and starting cars at other than regular places as a dangerous practice, and one that ought to be prohibited."

The inquest was conducted by Coroner Dr. Robert Ferguson before a jury composed of J. G. Pritchett, John Anderson, George Steer, Thos. Casey, T. W. Thomas, Percy Ashton, T. Bice, F. H. Thompson and L. Brigham.

Albert Judd appeared for the crown, and J. G. Gillanders for the London street railway.

SPENDS MONEY FOOLISHLY, THEN COMMITS SUICIDE

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—Attaching a rope to a clothes hook in the wall, John A. Winton, 60, committed suicide in a local rooming-house yesterday. After a non-appearance of four days, the proprietor of the house broke down the door of Winton's room and found the body last night. Winton, a former resident of Perth, Scotland, left a note addressed to "Dear Jennie," in which he expressed regret that he had spent his money foolishly instead of sending it to her.

The New Blouse—a Fashion Link

The tunic blouse is an important fashion link. It may join the costume slip to make a smart afternoon frock, or it may combine with a long-coated suit to produce the modish "ensemble." And smart costumers stress it, as a style feature at once beautiful and useful.

These new blouses are in the correct tunic length of knee or fingertip. And they enhance their smartness of line with distinctive new trimming features.
