Peat-McGregor Wedding

In Central Presbyterian church Monday afternoon, with a profusion of Madonna lilies forming an effective background, the marriage was solemnized by Rev. Dr. Sedgwick of Hazel Kate, youngest daughter of Dr. J. O. and Mrs. McGregor, to Mr. Oswald David Peat, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Peat, Petrolea. At the organ, playing the wedding music was Mr. F. Arthur Oliver and during the signing of the register Mr. Clifford Mordon sang "My Sweet". The bride, brought in and given away by her father, was gowned in a beautiful wedding creation of shell pink velvet in draped effect, tiny orange blossoms adorning the softly draped velvet bodice. She wore a tulle veil arranged in a Juliet cap held with orange blossoms, the long folds of the veil covering the length of her full court train. Her bouquet was a shower of lily-of-the-valley and sweetheart roses.

Attending the bride was Miss Winnifred McGregor sister of the bride, as maid of honor, and Miss Rosa Davis as bridesmaid. The maid of honor wore a lovely frock of orchid crepe de chine, hat of same shade with tulle veiled water lilies, and bouquet of mauve sweet peas and Marguerites. Miss Davis was in blue taffeta in shot effect, pink hat with rose garniture, and an old fashioned nosegay bouquet of forget-me-not and roses. Mrs. McGregor, mother of the bride, was in black velvet, black hat to match and bouquet of violets. Mr. Huntley Gordon was best man, and the ushers were Mr. W. H. Marsh, Mr. Arthur Aranson (Chicago), and Col. McFarlane, Toronto.

After the church service a reception was held at Dr. J. K. McGregor's apartment in The Herkimer, where jonquils and yellow tulips formed a charming spring floral decoration. Later Mr. and Mrs. Peat left on their honeymoon, the bride going away in a suit of navy serge, blue hat with French flowers, and opossum furs. Among the out-of-town guests present at the interesting event were Mr. James Peat, Petrolea, Miss Elizabeth Peat, Mr. John Peat, Miss Muriel McGregor, Mr. and Mrs. Frid, Toronto, Mr. Walker McGregor, and Major Douglas McGregor.

TO-DAY

in medicine, as in every other necessity, the public is satisfied with nothing but the best! This explains the ever-increasing demand for Zam-Buk. Not only is this great balm the best household remedy to-day, but it is also the most economical.

Zam-Buk's superiority is due to the fact that it is all medicine, containing none of the coarse animal fats or harsh mineral drugs found in ordinary ointments. Again, the medicinal properties are so highly concentrated that they contain the maximum amount of healing, soothing and antiseptic power, so that a little of this balm goes a long way.

Another reason why Zam-Buk is most economical. It will keep indefinitely and retain to the last its strength and purity. Best for skin diseases and injuries, blood-poisoning and piles. All dealers, 50c. box.

CITY OF MYSTERY.

None Have Read Picture-Writings of Copan.

Copan is a city of mystery. The people who once thronged its streets and bowed at its altars are long since gone, leaving no record of their existence save the masonry stones of their city. These stones, built into pyramids, walls and monuments, bear their story carved in the Maya characters. But no descendants have survived to interpret the stories, and no scholar has arisen wise enough to read the picture-writings of Copan.

Ruling of this oldest city of the Maya Indians may still be seen by those sufficiently persistent and enthusiastic to seek them out. A little Indian village in western Honduras, and the river on which it lies keep the name of Copan alive to-day. To visit the ruins of the great Copan you must seek out this village by train and then so a long journey on horse-back. Just beyond the village lies the old Maya metropolis.

The only inhabitants of Copan to-day are queer figures of the Maya gods, that peer out of unexpected hiding places like the creatures of a bad dream. Wonderfully carved many of them are, grotesque in attitude and expression, according to the artists' conception of the beings of the other world.

When Copan flourished, how it fell, and what became of its last people, no one knows. The city is as desolate as only a deserted city can be, oppressive and sad even in the bright sunlight of a tropical mid-day.—"Niksah," in Indianapolis Star.

LOYAL TILL DEATH.

South African Ostrich is a True Monogamist.

Fifty-five years ago the ostrich was not a domesticated bird in South Africa. True, a few wild ostriches had been captured and kept in captivity for private or public exhibition, but no attempt appears to have been made to farm them seriously. The few ostrich feathers that reached European markets were from wild ostriches, and, commercially, were considered much damaged. Nevertheless they fetched over high prices, which naturally drew the attention of South Africa to the possibilities of the ostrich-feather trade.

The more venturesome stock-breeders and speculators practically started the present extensive ostrich farming industry by offering very high prices for eggs, chicks, or full-grown birds. The Kalahari—the favorite haunt of the wild ostrich—was searched for eggs and chicks, but the demand for some time continued to exceed the supply.

In a comparatively very short time hundreds of domesticated or half-wild ostriches were successfully reared, partly with the help of incubators; but the loss by death through lack of experience was for a long time considerable. Fortunately this drawback has since been largely overcome by the application of new methods, which, taken in conjunction with greater attention to selection for breeding purposes, has put South African ostrich farming foremost in the world.

In the life of the ostrich there are some characteristics that deserve mention, because they have been frequently misstated or misunderstood.

In the wild or natural state ostriches pair in the spring. Once paired, they remain paired "till death doth them part." The female, or hen bird, makes a shallow hollow in the ground away from water-courses for her nest. During the sitting period the male remains on the nest by night, the female by day. As the eggs are in greater danger of wild animals by night this mutual arrangement between the parent birds is as obvious as it is instructive. On the approach of danger, the parent bird sitting on the nest will put its neck and head flat on the ground in front of it, for by doing so it can be easily mistaken for an ant-heap or low bush. Even while going in search of food it may resort to this deception.

In the domestic state they retain the characteristic. In course of time they will no doubt cease to be monogamists—a fate that seems ever to await animals selected by man for domestic use.—Family Herald.

MARCH WEATHER DANGEROUS TO BABY

Our Canadian March weather—one day bright, but sloppy, the next blustery and cold—is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mothers to keep the little ones indoors. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against these colds and to keep the baby well till the better, brighter days come along, a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels and thus they relieve colds and simple fevers and keep the baby fit. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE GNU

Has the Most Terrible of All Voices.

Few people know what a satisfactory animal is the gnu. Quite a number of hooved animals, like the ibex and the sacred ox, are more tiresome combination of Burbankisms, but the gnu has qualities all his own. His head is homely to an unpainted barn—flat nose and very broad mouth and ears misshapen and unlovely. His body is that of an exceedingly powerful, full pony, with strong neck and rakish tail. His galvanic energy puts to shame the glorious abandon of a cat on a tin roof.

When I arrive before his enclosure, he has usually retired to the shed in which he sleeps, and stands in the doorway with faraway eyes. Efforts to entice him forth are futile. I turn at last as if to go, and as I move, he bursts forth with the most heathenish cry that ever clattered from an animal throat. It resembles anything it is the trench klaxon that warns of an impending gas attack—a series of staccato shrieks which would shake the teeth from a band saw. I don't see how he can stand the noise he makes. Arm a rabbit with the voice of a gnu and lions will slink from his path.

Reaching the bars of his enclosure in three or four astounding leaps, the gnu halts, with head averted and feet wide apart, ignoring me utterly. When I move to right or left, he remains motionless until fifteen feet are between us, then he closes the distance with a bound, shrieks terribly twice or thrice, and once more affects to be utterly oblivious of my presence. When finally I leave him, the clatter of his fearful voice pursues me for hundreds of feet, drowning all other sounds.—Atlantic Monthly.

WOMEN WHO KILL.

A Few of Them Have Been Real Mercenary.

Do women commit cold-blooded murder? That there have been thousands of women killers within a generation we know. But are their slayings not always either what the French call crimes passionnels, or killings of revenge, or homicide? French call crimes passionnels, or killings due to pathological conditions—insanity, neurosis, hysteria or epilepsy? In a word, do women kill, as countless men in every age and clime have killed, for exclusively mercenary motives and with calm premeditation?

These old but ever fresh questions are revived by the confession and life-long sentence of Mrs. Amy E. Archer Gilligan in Connecticut. A few days since this mature woman herself brought to an end a three years' fight against charges of the state which inferentially involved the deaths of perhaps 40 human beings.

This woman was not emotionally or erotically concerned with any of her victims. At no point was any hatred or passion against any one shown. She tried to plead insanity, but repeated examining boards of physicians found her all too sane. She had simply murdered a number, and perhaps a very large number, of old men and women to profit a few hundred dollars extra on each trucidation.

A complete and perfect Borgia, one with few parallels.

But if Lucretia Borgia's record, true or fabulous, in no way compares to this story, there are other women along the backwaters of history, old and new, whose doings will add evidence to support the truth that woman can kill and does kill as calmly and consciously as man.

The celebrated Marie d'Aubray, Marquise de Brinvilliers, 1630-76, is one of the best examples from olden times. Having exhausted her husband's fortune and disposed of him, she poisoned her mother, father and other relatives in startling succession, to possess herself of their money. She finally poisoned her lover by mistake, was caught and decapitated. The only crime of her many in which any emotional elements were at play was her last, and it was more accident than crime.

France has had a number of other examples. Marie Bompard, that abysmal child of crime, will be example sufficient. In 1880 this young girl formed a plot with her lover, one Eyraud, to lure Gouffe, a rich notary, into an apartment and there strangle

h. m. She went from Paris to London with Eyraud and there bought the paraphernalia of her crime—a large trunk and a strong colored cord to match a dressing gown. With this equipment she and her lover returned and then she led the smitten Gouffe into her room and sat in his lap in a chair. She slipped the strong cord of her gowns about his neck and remarked what a lovely necktie it would make. That was the signal. Eyraud, hidden behind a drapery, tugged at the cord. In a few minutes Gouffe was dead. His body was hidden in the trunk and she sat beside it all night. She and her paramour were caught after prolonged search. Indeed, she brazenly walked in the prefect's office and said she had heard he was looking for her, hoping to shift the blame to Eyraud. Both finally were convicted. The girl had done her crime only to get money.

Da Vinci Thought of Tank.

Italy has just celebrated the fourth centenary of Leonardo du Vinci's death. His name has often been mentioned during the war and his prophetic genius recalled. It is known that he intended to build airplanes for war purposes, but it is now claimed also that he was the first to think of the tank. In his letters to Il Moro he speaks of armored cars which could shelter the occupants and drive right amongst the enemy's masses, slaying and shattering all opposition. It is unfortunate that more is not known of Leonardo's intentions, and of the way in which he proposes to propel his craft. Horses might possibly have been intended, for if a horse could carry less weight than the armored motor, protection in these days was more easily got than now. But it is certainly very singular to read that his cars were to charge ahead while the infantry would follow behind—for this is exactly what happened four hundred years after his death.—Manchester Guardian.

Placing the Whale.

Scientists class the whale as a mammal, but the Board of United States general appraisers in New York has ruled that whale meat is fish, for purpose of levying import taxes.

The whale meat which was the subject of the discussion was imported at Seattle, and was classified by the customs officers as "fish in tin packages not specially provided for" and duty was levied at the rate of 15 per cent. ad valorem. Importers contended that the merchandise was meat, and in a lengthy decision there was not a single fact to support statements that the flesh of the whale, if it is meat, is ordinarily accepted as a meat of commerce.

"It is as meat," said the board, "is so limited that we have the right to accept it as conclusive that commerce has not placed it in the domain of meat; therefore we must give it the meaning understood by ordinary people of common intelligence."—The Nation's Business.

NEW ANTI-INFLUENZA SERUM PREVENTS AFTER-PNEUMONIA

Army Medical Men in Montreal District Getting Good Results.

Montreal despatch: A new anti-influenza serum is now being used by Col. Bridge, A.D.M.S., and the medical officers of M. D. No. 3, as a preventative, not only of the influenza itself, but chiefly of the pneumonia diseases and lung abscesses which have proved more fatal than the influenza. This is a serum known as the polyvalent serum, and it is administered subcutaneously, just as was the anti-typhoid serum with the overseas troops.

Col. Bridge stated yesterday that all the officers and men of the R. C. R. stationed at the Peel street barracks were inoculated with this serum last week, following a mild outbreak of the influenza at the barracks. Whether or not it was a result of this treatment, the outbreak had been of a very mild character, and there have been no cases of serious after-complications.

Trial is Inexpensive.—To those who suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism or any ailment arising from derangement of the digestive system, a trial of Parmed's vegetable Pills is recommended, should the sufferer be unacquainted with them. The trial will be inexpensive and the result will be another customer for this excellent medicine. So effective is their action that many cures can certainly be traced to their use where other pills have proved ineffective.

Record Novels.

Nowadays the shorter novel is in vogue as well as the short story. Occasionally a novel runs to 100,000 words, and sometimes a little over, but 80,000 is about the limit as a rule.

Martin Chuzzlewit and Dombey and Son probably run to 400,000 words. The longest novel in the English language is Richardson's "Clarissa Harlowe," published in 1749. It was originally issued in eight volumes. It runs to over 800,000 words!

But even this is far surpassed by Mlle. de Scudery's famous novel of the seventeenth century, La Grand Cyrus. This ran to ten volumes, and was translated into English and appeared in five folios of 500 pages each. Yet it was read widely.

Then there was La Capreneche, who wrote Cleopatra. This novel, which found hosts of readers, actually ran

HIS PASSION.

(Yonkers Statesman.) Mrs. Flatbush—I understand her husband has a passion for music. Mrs. Bensonhurst—Yes, he has. Every time she sings he flies into one.

AN IDEAL LIFE.

Tiny Bay Island, Utilia, Lazy Man's Paradise.

Life in the Isle of Utilia is described in The Oregonian as an existence of unbroken ease. There are no worries or ceaseless struggles for your daily outflakes. Nature takes care of all that. Utilia's place on the map would be hard to find, but it's worth discovering. Away off in a southern sea, never heard from before and but little known it comes to the knowledge of the Pan-American union that here have Americans found a home that others enjoy when they are dead.

"We call it a lazy man's paradise," says the message from this land of delight, "not that the inhabitants are necessarily indolent, but simply because a large amount of labor is superfluous. Nature provides for nearly all our wants here as in most tropical countries. Farming is our principal occupation, yet there is not a plow on the island. Frost is unknown and extreme heat is never experienced. Ninety degrees in the shade would be an unusually high temperature. Our grade schools are of high standard, attendance being compulsory 10 months in the year. American textbooks exclusively are used and social life could not be distinguished from that of the United States.

Utilia is one of the Bay Islands, a string of six verdant keys in the Bay of Honduras, an arm of the Caribbean sea, which were discovered by Columbus in 1502. They were then thickly populated by native Indians who became slaves. The islands now are inhabited wholly by English-speaking people.

In 1852 settlers on the island petitioned the governor of Belize to administer them as a British colony. This was done until 1960 when the island was ceded to Honduras. "The change somewhat discouraged the people at first," says the letter, "but they soon learned that the laws of Honduras were equally just and allowed all the privileges in the pursuit of life and happiness enjoyed under British rule. The administration of the present governor, R. Barahona Mejia, whose headquarters are at Roatan, the capital, is giving general satisfaction."—New York Times.

Internal parasites in the shape of worms in the stomach and bowels of children sap their vitality and retard physical development. They keep the child in a constant state of unrest and, if not attended to, endanger life. The child can be spared much suffering and the mother much anxiety by the best worm remedy that can be got, Miller's Worm Powders, which are sure death to worms in any shape.

PEANUTS ARE FINEST FOOD

Roasted peanuts are more nutritious than sirloin of beef, mutton, veal, turkey, chicken and eggs. Many of us can scarcely believe it and yet it is true. They have more heating properties than skim milk, whole milk, or cheese. They contain more ash, the brain and bone-forming property, than rice or cornmeal, and they are richer in flesh-forming qualities than whole wheat flour, lima beans, rice, barley, macaroni and vermicelli. Like popcorn, chocolate, raisins and coconut, peanuts are rich in fat-forming qualities, the quality that fits one for enduring cold weather, so the craving of school children in winter for chocolate candy, popcorn and peanuts is the natural craving for suitable food to supply heat to the body.

As an evenly-balanced food peanuts are far above eggs, rice, hominy, chicken and salmon. They are nearly twice as good a fat builder as potatoes, and about eight times as nutritious. They are about four times as heavy in the qualities that nourish all parts of the body as whole milk, and about six times as nutritious as almost all kinds of fish.

A WINTER FOOD.

As a winter food, therefore, these things are better than peanut sandwiches and peanut butter, or any cooked dishes containing peanuts, because the olive oil or cream used in making peanut butter furnishes the fattening units of nutrition necessary to renew the fat cells and furnish heat and energy, while the peanuts furnish the flesh-forming unit.

Peanuts, milk, pure butter and good bread are almost an ideal dietary.

A PEANUT BUTTER.

This is the way to make delicious peanut butter: Take freshly roasted peanuts, shelled and skinned, and pound them to a powder in a wooden mortar or heavy earthenware bowl, or you can grind them in a food-chopper. Then mix with fresh butter or cream, adding a little salt, making the nut butter as thin as desired, and work to a smooth paste, when it is ready to use. Oil or egg may be used also, when the butter will keep indefinitely.

PEANUT MEATOCE.

Dissolve one cup of cornstarch in two cups of tomato juice, two cups of peanut butter and one teaspoonful of salt, stir for a few minutes, then pour into a baking dish and steam for four hours.

OTTOMAN EMPIRE REDUCED TO DUST

Turk Frontiers to Hold Only 6,000,000 People.

Navy Wiped Out, Sultan's Sway Small.

London cable says: The once powerful Ottoman Empire was finally reduced to dust by the Allied Supreme Council to-day through its decision to so restrict Turkey's future frontiers that they will contain a population of only 6,000,000 as compared with Turkey's pre-war population of 30,000,000.

Territorially, the Turkish away, formerly extending from the Danube to the Red Sea, is now limited to a small corner of Anatolia. At the same time the Sultan, titular successor to Mohammed the Prophet, will exercise his Caliphate from a circumscribed area in and around Constantinople, under the perpetual menace of British, French and Italian naval guns.

This, the Supreme Council announced to-day, will be Turkey's punishment for her war against the Allies and the Armenian massacre.

Following a long discussion with Admiral Earl Beatty, who was called in to attend the morning session, the Council also determined to wipe out the Turkish navy. The warships that are left to Ottomans will be either scrapped or apportioned among the Allies. Only a few revenue cutters will be allowed to fly the Crescent.

Turkey's monetary indemnity has not yet been fixed. A commission was appointed, however, to investigate the Ottoman finances, and its report will be made the basis of financial reparation.

ASTHMA NO LONGER DREADED. The dread of renewed attacks from asthma has no hold upon those who have learned to rely upon Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. So safe do they feel that complete reliance is placed on this true specific with the certainty that it will always do all that its makers claim. If you have not yet learned how safe you are with this preparation at hand get it to-day and known for yourself.

ACUTE AGONY.

(Birmingham Age-Herald.) "I thought the prima dona seemed upset about something." "She had a quarrel with her accompanist just before the concert began and he revenged himself on her in monstrous fashion." "What did he do?" "Just when she was reaching her highest note he struck the wrong key."

has been increasing potato and other vegetable yields every year for 40 years. It is a general vegetable fertilizer especially compounded for potatoes, turnips, carrots, onions and sugar beets. Expert agriculturists say that potato fertilizers should supply 3 to 5% Ammonia, one half of it coming from a readily available source of Ammonia such as nitrate of soda and the other half from blood or tankage, 6 to 8% available phosphoric Acid and 3 to 5% potash.

Freeman's 4-9-4 Potato and Gardener's Special is the ideal fertilizer. It is well balanced; it supplies 40 p.c. Ammonia, 9 p.c. Phosphoric, 4 p.c. Potash.

Pale, Wan Cheeks A Sign of Anaemia

To Have Good Color and Health
The Blood Must Be Kept
Red and Pure.

Many women who had good color and bright eyes in their girlhood grow pale and colorless and lose much of their charm when they become wives and mothers. Why is it? When the fading color in the cheeks and lips is accompanied by a loss of brightness in the eyes and an increasing heaviness in the step and a tendency to tire easily, the cause is to be sought in the state of the blood.

Many causes may contribute to the condition of the blood known as anaemia. Care of the home, overwork, lack of outdoor exercise, insufficient rest and sleep, improper diet, are a few of them. The important thing is to restore the blood, to build it up so that the color will return to the cheeks and lips, brightness to the eyes, and lightness to the step. To do this, nothing can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They begin at once to increase the red corpuscles in the blood, and this new blood carries strength and health to every part of the body. The appetite improves, digestion becomes perfect, and energy and ambition return. Proof is given in the statement of Mrs. Alex. Archambo, Cornwall, Ont., who says: "Two years ago my health began to fall. I was suffering from headaches, pains in the back and sides, and a constant tired out feeling. I had used a lot of medicine, but instead of it helping me I seemed to be growing weaker. My friends urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and while I felt disheartened at my experience with other medicines, I decided to do so. To my great joy I soon found the pills were helping me, and their continued use for a time fully restored my health if I did not give my experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, in the hope that it may point the way to health to some other poor sufferer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained through any medicine dealer, or may be had by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

John on the Isle of Patmos. Print 1; 4-18.

COMMENTARY—I. The Revelation of Jesus Christ (vs. 1-3). The Revelation is an unfolding or a revealing of the future that God gave to His Son Jesus Christ, who gave it by an angel to John, the apostle. John made a faithful record of what was revealed to him, as being the word of God and the testimony of Jesus. A blessing is pronounced upon those who shall read or hear the words written and shall observe them.

II. John's introductory words (vs. 4-8). 4. To the seven churches which are in Asia—The message from Jesus is addressed definitely to the seven churches of Asia. By Asia is meant the extreme western part of Asia Minor governed by a Roman procurator. The names of the seven churches are given in v. 11. Grace and peace—Paul used a similar form of greeting in the Epistles which he wrote to seven different churches. From him—From Jehovah. It was to come. Eternity of existence is here declared. He now exists, he existed in the past and he will exist forever. Seven spirits—This term must certainly mean the Holy Ghost, as it stands between the names of the Father, the Son and the Spirit. The faithful witness—The testimony of Jesus is true and faithful. No part of it can fail of fulfillment. The first begotten of the dead—"The firstborn of the dead."—R. V. It is true that Lazarus and others were raised from the dead, but they were raised to die again; Jesus arose from the dead to live forevermore. Washed us from our sins—This implies both that he made an atonement for our sins and that the efficacy of the atonement had been realized by individual believers in the washing away of personal sins in the blood of Christ. 6. Made us kings and priests—Christ has made his followers a kingdom to be priests unto God.

7. Behold—The raptured vision of the sacred writer saw the coming of the Lord so clearly that it seemed all but realized. With clouds—See Acts 1: 9-11. Every eye shall see him—His coming will be visible to every member of the race. They also which pierced him—Not only the righteous shall see him, but also those who would not believe in him, and also those who were responsible for putting him to death. Shall wall because of him—It is he that tells us that all tribes of the earth must mourn, either now for the woe our sins caused him, or then for the woe they will cause us.—Cam. Bib. 8. I am—The Lord God is now speaking. Alpha and Omega—These are the first and the last letters of the Greek alphabet, indicating "the beginning and the ending."

III. A vision of Jesus (vs. 9-20). 9. I John—The writer identifies himself. There is no doubt about his being the Apostle John. Companion in tribulation—He was suffering persecution in common with his fellow Christians. In the kingdom and patience of Jesus—John and those whom he was addressing were not only companions in tribulation, but also companions in Christ's kingdom, enjoying all the benefits of citizenship therein. They were also companions in suffering with patience whatever of distress there might be in consequence of their relation of Jesus. Patmos—An island in the Aegean Sea, not far from the western coast of Greece. It is about seven miles in length and about a mile wide. 10. I was in the Spirit—John was in a state of spiritual rapture. The Lord's Day—The day on which Christ rose. 11. Write in a book—For a permanent record to be sent to the seven churches to be named. Unto Ephesus—This and other places mentioned are in the western part of Asia Minor. 12. Turned to see the person whose voice was heard. Seven golden candlesticks—These were seven separate lamp-stands, made of gold, and hence, precious. 13. Like unto the Son of man—Like unto a son of man.—R. V. This was Jesus Himself. Garmet down to the foot—A garment representative of priestly dignity. Golden girdle—This girdle was not worn about the waist, but over the breast, holding together the folds of the garment. 14. White like wool—White is a symbol of purity. The description of the physical appearance of Christ here given is in harmony with that of the transfiguration. His eyes were as a flame of fire—Here was a supernatural brilliancy, indicating his clearness of vision. 15. Fine brass . . . burned in a furnace—As brass molten and at white heat. Voice as the sound of many waters—Nothing could be a more sublime description of majesty and authority than to compare the voice of a speaker with the roar of the ocean.—Barnes. 16. In his right hand seven stars—The stars may represent the angels or ministers of the seven churches. Out of his mouth, etc.—The two-edged sword fittingly represents the divine authority. Jesus' words were of divine authority. 17. I fell at His feet as dead—John was overcome by the brightness and glory of Christ's person and by the sound of His voice, which was like "the sound of many waters." His right hand—The right hand is indicative of power and authority, but when Christ laid His right hand upon John, he expressed His love for him and thus encouraged him in his time of need. I am the first and the last—This expression denotes Christ's eternity of existence. 18. Live—He was dead—He assures His servant that the doctrine which He had been preaching was true. Christ used the expression and the one before it and the one after it in describing Himself. Alive for evermore—Jesus was not to suffer death again. Have the keys of hell and of death—In rising from the dead He conquered death and unlocked the abode of the dead. The dead shall rise again. 19, 20. The apostle here received his commission. He is to record what he then saw regarding his own times and what should be in the future. Scholars differ in their views regarding the angel of the churches. Some hold the view that they are the guardian angels of the several churches. Others that they are the personified spirits of the churches. A third view is that they represent the pastors of the several churches. The last view seems reasonable.

Questions.—Who wrote the Book of Revelation? Under what circumstances was it written? What blessing is pronounced in the third verse? To whom were the messages sent? What is meant by the expression, "I am Alpha and Omega"? Describe the appearance of Christ as he appeared to John. What effect had his appearance upon the apostle? What do the seven stars and the seven candlesticks represent?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic. The glorified Christ the centre of the Revelation.

I. Patmos.

II. The banished apostle.

III. The glorified Jesus revealed.

I. Patmos. Patmos, the scene of John's banishment, is a rocky and barren island about twenty-five miles in circumference, situated near the coast of Asia Minor in the Aegean sea. It was used as a place of banishment by the Roman Emperors. The cave which is the traditional scene of the Revelation is still shown. A celebrated Greek monastery was built above it. The Book of Revelation has been the subject of much controversy, but the abounding external and internal evidences remove any doubt of its authenticity of canonicity. It asserts itself to have been written by John too plainly to be understood of any other than the apostle. The testimony of the early church seems to fix the date A. D. 94 or 95. Varied methods of interpretation have been

Women of Canada Testify

Dreer, Ont.—"I am more than pleased with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I was run-down and so nervous that I could not even stay in the house alone in the day-time and tried every kind of medicine I heard of but got no result. One of my friends advised me to take 'Favorite Prescription,' and it did. After taking four bottles I felt like a new woman and it is also the very best medicine for a woman bringing up a family. I will recommend 'Favorite Prescription' to any one suffering like I did."—MRS. JOSEPH BEAUDRY, R. R. 2.

WEAK AND NERVOUS
Tillsburg, Ont.—"I found Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription an excellent medicine for the ailments of women. I had become very weak and nervous. I was just unbearable when I began taking the 'Favorite Prescription' and it proved most beneficial. It so completely restored me to health that I have never had any return of this ailment. I do advise the use of 'Favorite Prescription' by women who suffer with womanly troubles."—MRS. GEO. WALKER, P. O. Box 490.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine were injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it, in liquid or tablet form.

applied to its contents, the kernel of which is however best expressed by the name it gives itself, "The Revelation of Jesus Christ"—the revelation, manifested in the appearing of Jesus Christ. It discloses Christ in his Person, offices, and future administrations, when he shall come from heaven (Acts 1: 11). There are two schools of interpreters, the historical and futurist. The former holds that all or nearly all of the prophecies of the book in the history of the Jewish race or of pagan Rome; the latter, that most of the book refers to events yet future, and which precede, accompany or follow the second advent.

II. The banished apostle. It is unanimously agreed that John was banished after ineffectual attempts had been made to end his life by immersion in boiling oil. The general testimony of ancient authors places it in the latter part of the reign of Domitian, at the date assigned for The Revelation. He was banished "for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ." The master himself declared that the world hated him because of his testimony that "the works thereof are evil." The revelator saw under the altar the souls of those who beheld "for the testimony of Jesus." Evil resents reproach and vents its antagonism on the witness. A pronounced type of piety, which is a living rebuke to wrong doing, will awaken antagonism.

III. The glorified Jesus revealed. The lesson centres in the sublime vision of the glorified Christ given to the seer. It affords us the first view of him since his ascension. The description is overwhelmingly magnificent. One is not surprised that the enraptured seer was overpowered with the glory and "fell at his feet as dead." It was too bright for mortal vision. Only the glorified saints will enable men to contemplate it. Glory of person corresponds to the glory of character. Royalty and magistracy combine with priesthood in the revelation. In the lesson he is revealed as Judge of the churches and of the world in the fuller revelation, and Priest invested with royal prerogatives. W. H. C.

STALKING SEALS.

How Mammals Are Hunted in Northern Canada.

The seal sun naps on the Arctic ice are continually disturbed by the dreams of his enemy, the polar bear, or at least that seems a reasonable way of interpreting his behavior, for after sleeping for thirty seconds or perhaps a minute, he will wake up, raise his head as high as he conveniently can, which is fourteen or sixteen inches, and make a complete survey of the horizon. If nothing suspicious is seen, this survey takes about ten seconds, after which he drops his head on the ice again and sleeps a minute more.

Sometimes the ice is a little rough in his vicinity and you can crawl up and shoot him from behind cover, but more frequently he has chosen a level expanse where no concealment is possible, and you must, therefore, approach him realizing that he is going to see you before you are near enough to shoot.

No mammal that is known has eyesight which at all compares with that of a man. A wolf can see you under favorable conditions a little more than half a mile away; a caribou at a little more than a quarter of a mile, and a seal commonly at about three hundred yards, if you are standing up, or one hundred and fifty yards if you are lying down. You can walk unconcernedly toward a seal until less than four hundred yards away, after which you begin a careful approach. You crawl ahead on all fours while he sleeps and you lie flat and motionless while he is awake. It might seem that something could be gained by wearing white clothing to match the snow, but this is the reverse of wisdom, for the seal's one enemy that he fears is a polar bear, and the polar bear is white. If a seal sees anything that is suspicious and white he takes discretion to be the better part of valor, and dives promptly into his hole. If the suspicious object is black, he assumes that it is probably another seal that has come out of another hole to bask in the sun. It is, therefore, the task of the hunter to simulate a seal. When the seal first sees you his actions are unmistakable. He turns so as to face you directly, he raises his head a trifle higher than before, and instead of bending his neck to survey the complete horizon he looks at you steadily and intently. You must be careful that his first view of you shall be a broadside view, for a man lying flat resembles a seal most in that position. It is best to lie still with one's head on the ice for about half a minute; but the seal knows the habits of his own kind as well as the careful hunter knows them, and if you were to lie motionless for more than a minute at a time he would strongly suspect that you were not a seal, and in two minutes he would probably be convinced and would go into the water. It is necessary, therefore, after about half a minute of quiescence, to raise your head seal fashion twelve or fifteen inches above the ice, keep it there about eight or ten seconds, and drop it on the ice again. By the time this has been repeated three or four times the seal is commonly convinced that you are one of his kind and will begin again to take his interrupted naps.

If he is more suspicious than ordinary it may be possible to move your feet a little as well. Like many other animals, a seal is commonly lousy and scratches frequently with his hind flippers. If a man lying flat flexes his legs from the knee the motion is similar to that of a seal scratching with his hind flippers. These tactics nearly always convince the most sceptical seal, and when once his regular naps are resumed you move ahead snake-wise while he sleeps and play seal whenever he is awake, watching you.

Approaching a seal in this fashion is tedious at best, for it takes an hour and a half or two hours to get within fifty to seventy-five yards.

YOUR EARS BETRAY YOU

The science of identification is a fascinating one, says London Tit-Bits.

Everybody is familiar with the finger print method. Infallibility is claimed for this by the police, but there are some experts who refuse to believe that every one of the thousands of millions of people who inhabit the world has a different design on the under side of his or her thumb.

Is it possible that some other system will be discovered? There is the eye, for instance. Here we have one of the most wonderful mechanisms known to man. All eyes differ, and in addition to that there is what we might call the setting. There are hazels with deep sockets, blues with prominent brows, browns with soft overhanging skin, and so on.

Then there is the index of expression—surely a source of inexhaustible variety. Who does not know the cold, steely glare of the man without a soul, or the flashing eyes which speak of ardor, love, passion. Between those extremes there are countless shades.

A police officer declared to the writer that it is possible that scientists will one day discover a means of identification by the eyes.

"But the camera," he adds, "holds out most hope. All that is wanted is a system of photographing the numberless details which go to make up the human eye. Here is a vast field for inventors. A fortune awaits the successful man."

Then there is the ear, a less romantic portion of the anatomy, but equally full of possibilities. In fact, aural idiosyncrasies are sometimes so pronounced as to strike the most unobservant among us.

"We cannot yet rely implicitly on ears as a means of recognition," declares a Scotland Yard official, "but all the same, they frequently lead to detection. I was on duty in the city some time ago when I saw a man approaching with ears of a very curious formation. They spreadeagle like semaphores, and the lobes, or fleshy parts, were very noticeable. I instantly recalled that the person suspected of a big diamond robbery had an exactly similar peculiarity."

"I went up to him and tapped him on the shoulder. 'You are —' I said, mentioning his name. He was taken by surprise and muttered something to the effect that I was mistaken. 'I am not,' I said. 'Please come with me to the station.'"

"He made no demur. We quickly applied the finger-print test, and very soon he was safely in prison for a stay of five years."

The ear is also a common guide for the public. They cannot divine what sort of print a man's thumb will make, but they generally notice anything out of the ordinary about his ears. More than once they have been able to give us information of that kind which has led to arrests.

It will be remembered that in the famous Slingsby baby case Justice Bragrove Deane, who had heard the evidence of Sir George Frampton, the famous sculptor, as to the extraordinary resemblance between Mrs. Slingsby's ear and that of the boy, found that the baby was that of Commander and Mrs. Slingsby. But the court of appeal and the house of lords upset the verdict.

Our ears may not yet be an infallible test of our identity; but they have already reached the stage of being a tell-tale. It remains only for some Bertillon to find means of placing them on a card index, and the criminal will be definitely undone.

Cotton Growing in China.

Now that China has decided what kind of cotton seed does best in that country, and is distributing it by the ton to farmers, cotton growing starts on a new geographical development. The time may yet come when the Chinese laundryman, far from home, will croon over his collars that he is still longing for the old plantation. Work done for several years in four experimental stations indicates that out of forty varieties of seed the kind known as "Trice" is best suited for Chinese cultivation. It appears that "Trice" yields 141 catties to the mu, which is the Chinese way of saying something more than 1 1/2 pounds per one-sixth of an acre, for the catty weighs about one-third more than the English pound. The Chinese pound, for that matter, is called "kin," but for some reason foreigners prefer to call it a "catty."

SIR WILLIAM'S WILL

Without doubt, Hesketh Carton was a fluent and effective speaker, and possessed of a self-possession and self-command which even those who knew him best did not suspect. It might have been urged against him that he was, if anything, rather too self-possessed, and that his voice and manner lacked warmth. Old Garden was a shocking speaker, but he was an extremely genial man, and in winning an election geniality goes much further than eloquence. However, the party was confident of success, and there was even a rumor that Mr. Hesketh's opponent, a stranger, was already so disheartened that he intended retiring; but, like most rumors, this proved inaccurate, and the fight went on with vigor on both sides, the candidates addressing meetings every evening and canvassing all day.

As a rule, every candidate is more or less hampered by some disadvantage; but Mr. Hesketh Carton's opponents could discover no blot on his scutcheon; he appeared to be one of those rare men without a past; he was popular with his workmen, and in every way a respected member of society; there was really nothing in his life which the other side could lay hold of, and Hesketh went about with an air of smiling modesty and a white waistcoat—emblem of a blameless life.

The polling day approached, and the usually quiet Bramley worked itself up to a state of excitement which was as exhilarating as it was novel. It was arranged that Hesketh should address a big meeting on the eve of the poll, and one or two politicians from London were coming down to support him. The speakers at the meeting were to dine at the Chillingfords', and Lord Chillingford had asked as large a number of the local gentry as was possible to make up the party.

As Hesketh was returning from canvassing that afternoon he met the Danbys, who were driving through the town with the conservative colors attached to the horses' rosettes and the coachman's whip. They pulled up to exchange greetings with the popular candidate, and the crowd, which always gathered round Hesketh Carton when he appeared in the street, looked on approvingly and, indeed, admiringly, as he leaned on the carriage gracefully, and conversed with his usual ease and self-possession with Lady Danby.

"It's quite a foregone conclusion," she said. "Everywhere I go I hear there is no chance for the other man, and I really feel quite sorry for him, we are all looking forward to your speech to-night, and I hope you have not been tiring yourself."

"No, indeed," said Hesketh, in his soft voice. "Yes, I hope that I shall win, Lady Danby; and it will be very ungrateful of me if I do not, for no candidate ever had kinder or more zealous supporters. I shall never forget all you have done for me; it is impossible that I should even try to thank you."

Lady Danby beamed on him as he pressed her hand, and he was telling the coachman to drive on, when she checked him suddenly and said:

"Oh, I have some news for you!"

Miss Bramley and Mollie have returned!"

His eyes did not flicker for a moment, and his face expressed just the proper amount of pleasure.

"So sudden and unexpected!" said Lady Danby. "No one knew they were coming back. They arrived about a couple of hours ago. Lord Danby met them, and said they looked so well. Wonderful thing, change! It is not only news, but good news for me; for if you could persuade Miss Bramley to canvass for you—ah, it's almost too late for that, I'm afraid—but, if you could get her to appear on the platform to-night with the rest of us! Oh, that would be splendid!"

"I will see," said Hesketh, with a little nod and a smile. The carriage drove on, and he went home.

A pile of letters stood on his desk, and he took one up and opened it mechanically, but dropped it and stood looking before him thoughtfully. Yes, it would be a great thing for him if Clytie would consent to appear on the platform among his supporters, and he experienced a thrill of gratification, of pleased vanity, at the reflection that she, who had refused him, should be present at one of his triumphs; for, with the quiet confidence of the eloquent man, he knew that he should speak well that night. A very large majority of the audience would be members of his party; there would be excitement, enthusiasm, in fact, triumph—a foretaste of the great and crowning triumph that awaited him to-morrow. Yes, barring accidents, to-morrow he would be a member of Parliament, another step up the ladder of his ambition. His political success would be a happy augury of the future. The master of Bramley and the possessor of Sir William's wealth, to what heights, social and political, might he not rise!

He changed, dressed carefully, and went up to the Hall. The servants were in a state of excitement and bustle, and Sholes came forward with a smile on his expansive countenance, expressive of his delight.

"You've heard the news, I see, sir," he said, as if he were bubbling over with joy. "The young ladies have come home! Come home quite unexpected and suddenlike. None of us knew, excepting Lord Stanton. His lordship went up to London to meet them. I beg your pardon, sir, I'm keeping you standing!"

"I came up to welcome the young ladies," said Hesketh. "I don't know whether they will be too tired to see me, but I will come in on the chance."

He waited in the drawing-room, looking round with half-closed lids, and deciding the style in which he would have it redecorated when it came into his hands. The door opened and Mollie entered. She had a small parcel in one hand and some flowers in the other, so that it seemed that she could not shake hands. She was very brown, not to say freckled, and her eyes looked at him and then hurriedly down.

"How do you do, Mr. Carton? We've come back, you see. Oh, yes, we are very well—both of us. Her eyes rested on his face for a moment, and she went on still more hurriedly: "We've heard of your great doings; Bramley. You are going to be a member of Parliament. How nice! It was very kind of you to spare time to come up, and so soon. I'd ask you to stay to tea, but I am so busy unpacking."

Hesketh Carton murmured the proper response, then said:

"I am afraid you will consider my request an unreasonable one, but I have been hoping—how earnestly, you may guess!—that you and Miss Clytie would be present on the platform at my meeting to-night."

Mollie's eyes flashed for an instant, but she hid them quickly.

"How kind of you!" she exclaimed. "But I am afraid it is quite impossible. Clytie is rather tired—it has been a long journey."

"You must tell me all about your travels," he said.

"Yes," she assented. "Oh, by the way, I have a little present for you, a souvenir. You mustn't open it now. It is only a trifle. And now, I really must go up to Clytie! Good-by! I wish you all the success—you deserve, Mr. Carton."

She put a small box in his hand, instead of shaking hands, rang the bell for Sholes to show him out, and, with a nod and again that strange, quickly hidden flash in her eyes, ran out of the room. He went back to the house at the works and tossed the box, unopened, on his writing-table.

The dinner at the Chillingfords' was an extremely lively one. Everyone felt so certain of success, and the party drove down to the Hall in carriages liberally decorated with Mr. Hesketh Carton's colors. An immense crowd awaited them at the entrance to the Hall; the interior was packed; a thunder of cheers rose from the mass as the party, with Mr. Hesketh bringing up the rear, ascended the platform. Hesketh Carton, with a demurely modest smile, sat down.

looked over the audience with that all-comprehensive gaze which is so soon acquired by the public speaker. Suddenly he started, and his eyes were fixed on a man seated in the middle of the third row. The face of the man was that of "the insolent fellow" with whom he had had a vulgar and unpleasant disagreement at Withycombe; but the man was no longer dressed in working attire; he wore the conventional clothes of a gentleman, and wore them well. What did it mean? Had the fellow come there to make a disturbance? If so, thought Hesketh, with satisfaction, he would no doubt, and very properly, be roughly handled.

Lord Chillingford, the chairman, was on his feet, made the usual stammering speech of the ordinary country gentleman, and was followed by one of the great men from London, who warmed up the audience and prepared the way for the candidate. At this moment, Hesketh Carton saw Mr. Granger come on the platform, and, with a friendly smile, he beckoned him to a seat in front which had been modestly left vacant.

Mr. Granger was passing to it, with a murmured apology for being late, when his eyes fell on a gentleman in the third row. He started, stared, and half-unconsciously rose from his seat, as if forgetting the place and the rest of the audience, and approached the edge of the platform. Before he could recover from his astonishment, it had been noticed by those around him, and many eyes were focused on the young man at whom the old lawyer was staring.

Suddenly some one—it was Lady Chillingford—murmured a name; it was "Sir Wilfrid Carton." It was caught up and ran around the platform, some of the occupants of which rose and stared with intense curiosity and interest, which seemed to be contagious, for the audience in the back of the hall began to look in the same direction and to murmur the name. The incident had now become so conspicuous that Mr. Granger was compelled, so to speak, to make some movement; so he came down the front steps of the platform and, going straight up to Jack—for it was he, and we will let him bear his old name—held, holding out his hand, said, with a voice that was a little unsteady:

"How do you do, Sir Wilfrid? I need not say that I am rejoiced to see you!"

Now, Jack had followed Clytie and Mollie by a later train, because he did not wish to appear in public at first, in his proper character, as their fellow traveler; but, on the other hand, he did not wish it to be thought that he had skulked into the town; so Clytie and he, both ignorant of Hesketh Carton's murderous designs, had thought it a good thing for him to attend the meeting. If he were recognized—well, the excitement which would be caused by his appearance would be swallowed up by the larger one of the election, and Jack would get over the fuss attending his unexpected return more easily than he would otherwise have done. That Mr. Granger should catch sight of him, and publicly recognize him, of course did not come within their calculation.

BABY'S OWN SOAP

In the interest of your skin, insist on Baby's Own Soap. Cleansing—Healing—Fragrant.

Jack rose and shook Mr. Granger's hand, whispering: "For goodness' sake, don't let's make a scene!" He made room for Mr. Granger beside him, hoping that the recognition would pass, if not unnoticed—it was too late for that—but without the fuss which Jack hated and dreaded.

But the audience, already strung up, caught at his name, and, rising to its feet en masse, shouted and cheered him.

It was impossible for the chairman to ignore the incident, and Lord Chillingford rose and said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I am delighted to find that we have in our midst the son of our old and valued friend, Sir William Carton. We have all deplored his absence, and I am sure you will permit me, in your name, to accord him a hearty welcome, and to invite him to come upon the platform here and support his cousin, Mr. Hesketh Carton."

The audience applauded vociferously and shouted:

"Go up to the platform, Sir Wilfrid! Welcome back to Bramley! Go up where we can see 'ee."

(To be continued.)

What Did He Mean?

The minister had eaten a very good dinner and was getting ready to leave for a long time. He happened to glance at the eighteen-year-old daughter.

"Well, well," he laughed. "I suppose that pretty soon I'll be coming back to marry this young woman to one of the interesting young men of the congregation."

The irrepressible eight-year-old son spoke up:

"Oh, no, you won't," he offered. "Mary is going to be an old bachelor."

The family laugh told him that he had used the wrong word. So straightaway he started to make it right.

"I mean an old witch," he asserted more positively than before.

FRANK HANNON SWEARS BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

States that they cured his backache after other medicines had failed and that he would not be without them.

Corcoran, Joliette Co., Que., March 8.—(Special)—Claiming that he is completely cured of backache from which he was a severe sufferer, Mr. Frank Hannon, a well known resident here, is shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"After trying various medicines for my backache," Mr. Hannon states, "I finally bought a supply of Dodd's Kidney Pills. From the start of the treatment I felt benefitted and now I am completely cured."

"I therefore proclaim Dodd's Kidney Pills the finest on the market. I would not be without them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills strike right at the seat of the trouble, the kidneys. They are no cure-all. They are simply and purely a kidney remedy. But as cured kidneys strain all the impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of the blood, Dodd's Kidney Pills naturally get credit for curing a number of different diseases.

WHAT FACTORS INFLUENCE SEED YIELDS IN ROOTS?

During the last few years considerable quantities of field root seed, including mangel, Swede turnip and carrot seed, have been raised by the Dominion Experimental Farms' System for the purpose of safeguarding against a threatening shortage in the supply. Much valuable information has been accumulated on the subject of root seed production, the more so because, while engaged in seed growing as an emergency undertaking, the Experimental Farms' System at the same time desired to gain reliable data bearing on the possibilities of making root seed growing a permanent agricultural industry in Canada.

One of the more important subjects in connection with root seed growing which have been investigated is the question of under what conditions the heaviest possible seed yields may be expected. This question, of course, of particular interest, as the size of the seed yields will largely determine the profit from seed growing.

In the first place, it is necessary that the roots to be used for seed raising are absolutely sound when planted out. Our experience is that planting of roots which show signs of disease or rot, especially at the crown, leads to most disappointing results. Such roots may linger along for some time, but sooner or later they die off, with the result, of course, that the seed field becomes patchy and consequently gives a comparatively low yield per acre.

In the second place, the seed roots should be planted as early as possible in the spring. The earlier they are set out the heavier are the seed yields which may be expected. This applies

ACUTE ECZEMA ON BABY'S HEAD

Face, Neck, Arms, Terrible Slight, Itched And Burned. Cuticura Heals.

"Baby was two months old when I noticed little pimples on her head. They kept getting worse and spread till her head, face, neck and arms were one mass of eruptions, burning, itching, and bleeding. I was told it was acute eczema. Had to sew up her arms and legs in linen. She was a terrible sight. For one year I had no rest night or day."

"We got Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In less than two weeks she began to mend and in a few months she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Boorman, 243 McDonnell St., Peterboro, Ont., April 19, 1919.

Stop the use of all doubtful soaps. Use Cuticura for all toilet purposes. Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c. Sold throughout the Dominion. Canadian Depot: Lyman, Limited, St. Paul St., Montreal. Cuticura Soap shaves without soap.

to all kinds of field root seed crops and has been demonstrated over and over again.

In the third place it is absolutely necessary that the land is in good tilth and in a high state of fertility. Several experiments conducted the last few years have most decidedly shown that the land must be in the best shape if good seed crops are to be expected. An experiment carried out at Ottawa in 1915 gave results to the effect that an application of 20 tons of barnyard manure to the acre, or of a commercial fertilizer, composed of 500 pounds of superphosphate, 200 pounds of nitrate of soda, and 200 pounds of muriate of potash, increased the seed yield of mangels with almost 50 per cent. Experiments carried out later have not only substantiated this result, but also shown that a still greater increase in the yield may be realized if the land is given both manure and artificial fertilizers in liberal quantities.

Sound roots, early planting and rich land are the main factors which determine the size of the yields. It should be added, though, that the yields are also influenced, to a not unimportant degree, by the supply of farm labor that may be available and by the size of the seed fields. Profitable root seed growing requires plentiful labor at certain periods and under present conditions, the writer would say that to a farmer who has not had years of experience in root seed growing one or two acres may prove more remunerative than a large acreage, because with a small acreage, the yield is apt to be much greater per acre than if the acreage is so large that it cannot be handled conveniently.—M. O. Malte, Dominion Agrostologist.

LOOKING FOR HIM.

"Where's that infernal proofreader?" shouted an irate man with blood in each eye.

"He certainly would be right hard to find now," said the editor uneasily. "What's he done this time?"

"In that advertisement for my valveless motor he turned the second v into a u!"

A Costly Shot.

A druggist fired a shotgun at a burglar who entered his store, putting the intruder to flight, and thus saving about $175 in his cash drawer, but smashing with the shot a $250 showcase and $250 worth of bottles.

Relic Queerly Preserved.

A steel ladle seven inches long, supposed to have been used by Indians in melting lead for bullets many years ago, was found imbedded in the heart of a red oak tree sawed up for firewood at South Altoona, Pa. Rings on the tree indicate it was more than one hundred years old. The ladle, made of the finest charcoal steel, is believed to have been driven into the tree when it was a sapling.

GOAT AS A MASCOT.

Billy Got "Cigarette Habit" From the Tommies.

Billy, a goat, mascot of the 83rd Flying Squadron in France, is a wonderful animal, if he is alive. Should Billy be dead, an "ally" has been lost. But he will always live in the minds of many men who fought in France, particularly those of the 83rd Squadron. An interesting tale of the animal's life and experiences is told by Lieut. Noel S. Jones, of the Royal Air Force, recently arrived home.

When Billy was a kid, probably about three or four weeks old, he was bought for 10 francs by flying men from a peasant at Franqueville, and was turned loose among men of the 83rd Squadron for bringing up. In every sense of the statement Billy was a "high flyer." He didn't think anything of "stunts" at an altitude of 10,000 feet, he was horribly addicted to cigarettes, and ate chocolates in as great quantities as a girl, and the story has it that he had a fondness for liquor. But Billy, so the story goes, could "always keep on his feet."

Billy wouldn't accept a cigarette from the hand. That goat demanded he be allowed to accept a fag from a silver and initialed case, or from a box. He was a positive "fiend," having been known to eat as many as 50 cigarettes at one time. When the squadron moved Billy was strapped in a plane and taken along. Arriving at the destination the goat was lifted from the plane and would commence eating grass or wandering about in a matter of fact manner. The shelling of the squadron by enemy craft had no terrors for him.

"Dowdy" or "Doughty."

The danger of using a word that sounds very much like another word that has a less flattering meaning was amazingly illustrated in Toronto recently, when an eminent judge who loves to make speeches was widely misquoted. Then it turned out that he had said something entirely different from what people thought. Towards the close of his speech at the Ontario Bar Association, Mr. Justice Riddell spoke appreciatively of the King and Queen, but in doing so applied an epithet to Queen Mary which was widely commented on. The phrase, as understood by practically everyone present, was as follows:

"Dear King George V—a plain man, a plain sailor, with a dowdy wife, who minds her business, looks after her children and her household, and sees that the smaller children succeed to the old clothes of the older as they grow up; a man and a woman like other men and women, who know their duties and devote themselves to their duties, and work hard in the position in life to which it has pleased God to call them."

One man who was in an excellent place to hear, and was very attentive to what was being said, declared that Mr. Justice Riddell did not say "dowdy," but that he used the word "doughty." It proved that this man was right. The word used in the speech was "doughty."

The word "dowdy" is an unfortunate one in that it has meanings which are complimentary, and other meanings which are the reverse. Here is what several dictionaries say:

Murray: "Shabbily dull in color or appearance; without brightness, smartness or freshness."

Wright's English Dialect Dictionary: "Slovenly, untidy in dress; dark, dull in color, faded; of quiet, homely habits, old-fashioned; stunted in growth."

Worcester's Dictionary: "Awkward, ill-dressed."—Applied to women.

Webster's New International Dictionary: "Dressed in a manner neither neat nor becoming; untidily shabby; wearing dingy or cheap attire; awkward and slovenly in dress; slatternly."
