POETRY.

The Day Beyond

When the youth is with us all things seem
But lightly to be wished and won,
We seem to-morrow in the dawn
And take our toll for work undone;
"But life is long, and time a stream
That sleeps and sparkles in the sun—
What need of any haste!" we say;
"To-morrow's longer than to-day."

And when to-morrow shall destroy
The heaven of our dreams, in vain
Our hurried hands we employ
The best we can to mend the gain;
We have no leisure to enjoy,
So few the years that yet remain;
So much to do, and ah! we say,
"To-morrow's shorter than to-day."

But when our hands are worn and weak,
And still our labor see unblest,
And time goes past us like a hawk
Last twilight waiting to the west,
It is not long—the bliss we seek;
The brief life for happy rest,
And yet what need of grief? we say;
"To-morrow's longer than to-day."

—A. St. John Adcock, Chatham's Journal.

When a Man's Single.

BY JAMES M. HARRIS.

"Don't the master whip him for that?"

"What? Whip Greybrooke?" Will laughed hysterically.

"You should just see him at breakfast with old Jerry. Why, I've seen him myself, when half a dozen of us were asked to tea by Mrs. Jerry, and though we were frightened to open our mouths, what do you think Greybrooke did?"

"Something silly, I should say."

"He asked old Jerry, as cool as you like, to pass the butter! That's the sort of fellow Greybrooke is!"

"How is Mary?"

"Oh, she's all right. No, she has a headache. I say, Greybrooke says Mary's rather slow."

"He must be a horror," said Nell, "and I don't see why you brought him here."

"I thought you would like to see him," explained Will. "He made a hundred and three against Bagby, and was only bowled off by his pads."

"Well," said Nell, yawning, "I suppose I must go down and meet your friend."

Will, misunderstanding, got between her and the door.

"You're not going down like that," he said, anxiously, with a wave of his hand that included the dressing jacket and the untidy hair. "Greybrooke's so particular, and I told him you were a jolly girl."

"What else did you tell him?" asked Nell, suspiciously.

"Not much," said Will, with a guilty look.

"I know you told him something about kissing people."

"Oh, you nasty boy, Will—as if kissing a child like you counted!"

"Never mind," said Will, soothingly. "Greybrooke's not the fellow to sell tales. Besides, I know you girls can't help it. Mary's just the same."

"You are a goose, Will, and the day will come when you'll give anything for a kiss."

"You've no right to bring such charges against a fellow," said Will, indignantly, strutting to the door. Half-way down stairs he turned and said, "Good-bye, you'll never see me again."

"I say, Nell," he said, "you—when you come down, you won't kiss Greybrooke?"

Nell drew herself up in a way that would have scared any young man but Will.

"He's so awfully particular," Will continued reproachfully.

"Was it to tell me this you came up-stairs?"

"No, honor bright, it wasn't. I only came up in case you should want to kiss me, and to—have it over."

Nell was standing near Will, and before he could jump back she slapped his face.

The snow was dancing outside in a light wind when Nell called into the drawing-room. She could probably still inform you how she was dressed, but that evening Will and the captain could not tell Mary. The captain thought it was a reddish dress or else blue, but it was all in squares, like a draught-board, according to Will. Forty minutes had elapsed since Will visited her up-stairs, and now he smiled at the conceit which made her think that the captain would succumb to a such thought. She always dressed carefully because—well, because there is never any saying.

Though Miss Meredith froze Greybrooke with a glance, he was relieved to see her. Her mother had discovered that she knew the lady who married his brother, and had asked questions about the baby. He did not like it. These he thought, were things you should pretend not to know about. He had contrived to keep his niece and nephew's start from the fellows at school, though most of them would have been too just to utter any blame to him. Of this baby he was specially ashamed, because they had called it after him.

Mrs. Meredith was a small, stout lady, of whose cleverness her husband spoke proudly to Nell, but never to herself. When Nell told her how he had talked, she exclaimed, "Nonsense!" and then waited to hear what else he had said. She loved him, but probably no woman can live with a man for many years without having an indulgent contempt for him, and wondering how he is considered a good man of business. Mrs. Meredith, who was a terribly active woman, was glad to leave the entertainment of her visitors to Nell, and that young lady began severely by asking, "How do you boys mean to amuse yourselves?"

"Do you keep rabbits?" she said to the captain, sweetly.

"I say, Nell!" cried Will, warningly. "I have not kept rabbits," Greybrooke replied, with simple dignity, "since I was a boy."

"I told you," said Will, "that Greybrooke was old—why, he's nearly as old as—ourselves. She's older than she looks, you know, Greybrooke."

The captain was gazing at Nell with intense admiration. As she raised her head indignantly he thought she was looking to him for protection. That was a way Nell had.

"Abinger," said the captain, eternally, "what up?"

"Don't mind him, Miss Meredith," he continued; "he doesn't understand girls."

To think he understands girls is the last affront a youth pays them. When he ceases trying to reduce them to fixed principles he has some of age. Nell, knowing this, felt sorry for Greybrooke, for she foresaw what he would have to go through. Her manner to him underwent such a change that he began to have a high opinion of himself. This is often called falling in love. Will was satisfied that his friend impressed Nell, and he admired Greybrooke's politeness to a child of a girl, but he became restless. His eyes wandered to the piano, and he had a lurking fear that Nell would play something. He signed to the captain to get up.

"We'll have to be going now," he said at last; "good-bye."

Greybrooke glared at Will, forgetting that they had arranged before-hand to stay as short a time as possible.

"Perhaps you have other calls to make?" said Nell, who had no desire to keep them there longer than they cared to stay.

"Oh, yes," said Will.

"No," said the captain. "We only came into Silchester with Miss Abinger's message for you."

"Why, Will," exclaimed Nell, "you never gave me any message."

"I forgot what it was," Will explained, cheerily; "something about a ribbon, I think."

"I did not hear the message given," the captain said, in answer to Nell's look, "but Miss Abinger had a headache, and I think Will said it had to do with that."

"Oh, wait a bit," said Will; "I remember something about it now. Mary saw something in the Silchester paper, the 'Mirror,' I think, that made her cry, and she thinks that if you saw it you would cry too. So she wants you to look at it."

"The idea of Mary's crying!" said Nell, indignantly. "But did she not give you a note?"

"She was too much upset," said Will, signing to the captain not to let on that they had refused to wait for the note.

"I wonder what it can be," murmured Nell.

She hurried from the room to her father's den, and found him there surrounded by newspapers.

"Is there anything in the 'Mirror,' father?" she asked.

"Nothing," said Mr. Meredith, who had made the same answer to this question many hundreds of times, "nothing except depression in the boot trade."

"It can't be that," said Nell.

"Can't be what?"

"Oh, give me the paper," cried the ex-mayor's daughter, impatiently.

She looked hastily up and down it, with an involuntary glance at the births, deaths, and marriages, turned it inside out and outside in, and then exclaimed, "Oh!" Mr. Meredith, who was too much accustomed to his daughter's impulses to think that there was much wrong, listened patiently while she ejaculated, "Horrid!"

"What a shame!" "Oh, I wish I was a man!" and, "Well, I can't understand it." When she tossed the paper to the floor, her face was red and her body trembled with excitement.

"What is it, Nellie?" asked her father.

Whether Miss Abinger cried over the "Mirror" that day is not to be known, but there were indignant tears in Nell's eyes as she ran up-stairs to her bedroom. Mr. Meredith took up the paper and examined it carefully at the place where his daughter had torn it in her anger. What troubled her seemed to be something in the book notices, and he concluded that it must be a cruel "slattering" of a novel in one volume called "The Scorn of Scorn." Mr. Meredith remembered Scorn, and that Nell had compelled him to read that book and to say that he liked it.

"That's all," he said to himself, much relieved.

He fancied that Nell, being a girl was distressed to see a book she liked called "the sentimental pourings of some silly girl who ought to confine

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

"You won't hit him very hard?" she asked, apprehensively, adding as an after-thought, "Perhaps he is stronger than you."

Greybrooke felt himself in an unfortunate position. He could not boast before Nell, but he wished very keenly that Will was there to boast for him. Most of us have experienced the sensation.

Nell having undertaken to keep Will employed until the captain's return, Greybrooke set off for the "Mirror" office with a look of determination on his face. He went into two steps, the one a news-shop, where he bought a copy of the paper. In the other he asked for a thick stick, having remembered that the elegant can he carried was better fitted for swinging in the air than for breaking a newspaper man's head. He tried the stick on a palling. Greybrooke felt certain that Miss Meredith was the novelist. That was why he selected so thick a weapon.

He unrolled into the advertising office, and demanded to see the editor of the "Mirror."

"Stairs," said the clerk, with his head in a ledger. He meant up-stairs, and the square of James took his advice. After wandering for some time in a labyrinth of dark passages, he opened the door of a dark composing-room, in which half a dozen silent figures were bending over their sheets.

"I want the editor," said Greybrooke, somewhat startled by the sound his voice made in the great room.

"Stairs," said one of the figures, meaning down-stairs.

Greybrooke, remembering who had sent him there, did not lose heart. He knocked at several doors, and then pushed them open. All the rooms were empty. Then he heard voices saying,

"Who are you? What do you want?"

Mr. Liqueur was the speaker, and he had been peering at the intruder for some time through a grating in his door. He would not have spoken at all, but he wanted to go into the composing-room, and Greybrooke was in the passage that led to it.

"I don't see you," said the captain; "I want the editor."

Sarsaparilla Sense.

Any sarsaparilla is sarsaparilla. True. So any tea is tea. So any flour is flour. But grades differ. You want the best. It's so with sarsaparilla. There are grades. You want the best. If you understood sarsaparilla as well as you do tea and flour it would be easy to determine. But you don't. How should you? When you are going to buy a commodity whose value you don't know, you pick out an old established house to trade with, and trust their experience and reputation. Do so when buying sarsaparilla.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been on the market 50 years. Your grandfather used Ayer's. It is a reputable medicine. There are many Sarsaparillas—but only one Ayer's. It cures.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., NOV. 5, 1897.

Editorial Notes.

President Trotter is becoming the interests of Acadia among the Maritime Baptists. Last week we reported $4,000 from the Amherst church. About $1100 was subscribed by the Moncton Baptists on Sunday last in aid of the college fund. It is proposed to raise $75,000, of which $10,000 will be for a new building.

The sudden death of Henry George, the great "single-tax" advocate, took place on Friday last. He was a candidate in the great contest for the mayoralty of Greater New York and the excitement of the contest proved too much for his strength and he succumbed to an attack of apoplexy. He was a great and good man and one the world cannot well afford to lose.

Professor John Craig, horticulturist at the experimental farm at Ottawa, has resigned, in consequence of a difference with Director Saunders in reference to the work of the horticultural branch. Prof. Craig is quite well known in Wolfville, and the many who have met him here in connection with the meetings of the Fruit Growers' Association will be sorry to learn that he has severed his connection with the horticultural work of the experimental farm.

The amendments in the water rates for the town have at length received the sanction of the governing-in-council and are now in force. The council has spent considerable time over them and we hope the new schedule will give better satisfaction than the old one did. There is one item however that the council has passed over, whether intentionally or not we do not know. We refer to the fact before alluded to by the ACADIAN that owners of real estate in the town, under the present system, are not called upon to pay anything for fire protection. A man may own any amount of property in stores and dwellings in the town, which receive the benefit of fire protection, without being called upon to pay one cent towards the maintenance and support of our water service. It may be said that if a resident of the town he contributes by paying the rate for domestic service, etc. He simply pays for the water that he uses, as does the poorest tenant. This matter should receive a little attention we think.

The ACADIAN has received the latest bulletin of the department of agriculture. It is from the pen of Dr. Daucus Mc. Eschran, chief veterinary inspector, and deals with the subject of tuberculosis in cattle. This officer states that the subject is one affecting the cattle industries of Canada, as well as the health and lives of the people. Attention is called to the Animals Contagious Diseases Act, which requires every farmer to give notice to the minister of agriculture on perceiving the appearance of any infectious or contagious disease among his cattle. On receipt of such notice an officer of the government will be sent to test the animals without charge to the owner. The law imposes heavy penalties on a cattle owner who conceals the existence of infectious diseases among them, or who sells cattle or the meat of cattle known to be affected. After explaining the nature of tuberculosis, which, as is well known, is the same disease as consumption in human beings, the author of the bulletin expresses the opinion that heredity is not an active cause, though it is a predisposing cause of tuberculosis. The most active agent in spreading the disease is a tuberculous bull, but the disease is also transmitted through attendants suffering from pulmonary consumption. Farmers are cautioned to see that their animals are free from the disease, and after that to allow no animals to associate with them unless they are known to be healthy. Particular instructions are given to allow no consumptive person to have anything to do with the herd. Other instructions relate to good food, ventilation and cleanliness. The inspector believes that if farmers and breeders will co-operate with the department the disease will be entirely eradicated in a few years from Canadian herds.

Madame Harrison's Concert.

The Morning Chronicle of Nov. 2, says: "The concert last evening enabled a large audience to hear Madame Harrison on her first appearance in Halifax since her return from Europe, where she has taken a two years course under the great French and Italian voice builders and trainers. Some four or five years ago she made her first appearance in Halifax, and even then had many admirers; but last night as the bird like notes of the air from Rosalind died away her admirers and friends turned into mad enthusiasts. It was the verdict of the severest critics and masters present that no such voice had ever been heard in this city. It is of wonderful compass and power, set in the most exquisite and sympathetic key. Every note in the immense compass of her voice is colored with the great heart of a woman, and in operative staging she is bound to win first place. She has that rare quality in a singer which enables a half dozen people with different tastes and musical education to be delighted with the same piece for a half dozen different reasons. "Some people were disposed to find fault with the programme, as Madame Harrison had only two pieces assigned her, but she soon rectified this and gave the audience six pieces in one of which she played her own composition, and in God Save the Queen opened the eyes and ears of the audience by showing them that she could appear to so much advantage in this piece as in any other."

Windsor Fire.

DEAR ACADIAN.—In your issue of this date I note you say concerning the sufferings by the Windsor fire, "The town council have been perhaps a little slow." Read the following statement of facts and see if you are justified in making such a remark:

On that memorable Sabbath I was called from church to hear that St. Windsor was in flames. I at once ordered the fire bell to be rung, and messengers sent to the church doors to state the fact and call the firemen together. The fire company came in a few minutes and were told that any who wished to assist could go by a special train in about an hour. All volunteered, 20 were selected, and with a hose reel fully equipped got on the train. Two councillors accompanied them to find what was required. On their return your mayor and some other councillors met them at the station, and learning that bread and other cooked food as well as clothing were urgently needed, immediately sent messengers to every house in town to ask for these. Waggon followed them, and collecting the donations had them packed and taken to the station to meet another special train to leave in an hour. Your mayor and several councillors bought from the shops all the bread, biscuits, canned meats, etc., that could be got. Altogether thirty-two barrels, cases and packages were collected and put aboard the train. Your mayor and Mr. Franklin accompanied these gifts to see that they went to the proper person for distribution. Next morning I wrote the mayor of Windsor asking in what way we could best aid him. He wired for some goods which in half an hour were on their way to him. On the next day a council meeting was called and a relief committee appointed to conduct a house to house canvass for aid. The committee spent all the next day in this work. Another council meeting was held and on the 25th the Windsor relief committee was notified that the sum of $316.38 was placed to their credit in the bank, and that Wolfville would contribute about $500.

Your town council may be slow in getting into print, but I think were not slow in acting or uniting with the citizens in showing their sympathy. As one of the collectors I can say the kindly expressions of every one asked to aid were most cheering, and the considerable sum raised principally from farmers in this unpropitious year proved their earnestness.

Geo. Thomson, Mayor.

Wolfville, Oct. 29th.

Died in Chicago.

The death of Mrs. Mary A. Masters occurred yesterday morning at her home, 3565 Rhodes avenue, as the result of an illness lasting nearly three months. Mrs. Masters' maiden name was Boston. She was a native of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, where she was born Jan. 7, 1817. At the age of 17 she was married to Horatio Nelson Masters, of Kentville, N. S., with whom she resided thereafter in Boston, until 1876. After some years spent with her son in New York, in 1892 she came to Chicago to make her home with her youngest daughter, where she continued to reside until her death, in the eighty-first year of her age.

Mrs. Masters, during her residence in Boston, was especially active in works of benevolence and public character, which brought her in contact with many of the most eminent men of that period. Among her acquaintances of that time were Charles Sumner, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, John Greenleaf Whittier, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, Phillips Brooks, and many others of Boston's most famous citizens. She retained in her later years many memories of these men, including a letter addressed to her by Mr. Longfellow, being the last he ever wrote. At the outbreak of the war of the rebellion she gave evidence of her love for her adopted country by encouraging the enlistment of her only son, Henry B. Masters, who afterwards became Quartermaster of the Sixth Corps of the Army of the Potomac, retiring at the close of the war with the rank of Colonel. This led to frequent visits to the City of Washington, and became the personal acquaintance and became the personal friend of Abraham Lincoln, Secretary Stanton, and many other statesmen and officers of the Union Army. She was active in hospital work and more than once was passed through the Union lines by permission of Secretary Stanton on some errand of mercy or service to the cause. Of six children born to her three survive—Colonel Henry B. Masters, of New York, and Mrs. Henry M. Knickerbocker and Miss Belle G. Masters, of Chicago. The funeral will take place at 4 p. m. Saturday next, the remains being taken to Roseliff for interment.—The Chicago Tribune, Thursday, Oct. 21.

Greater than the Klondike Rush.

The official reports from Montreal are to the effect that the Post Office authorities have been obliged to put on extra clerks to handle the letters arriving with subscriptions for the Family Herald and Weekly Star and in the Family Herald office itself, it is said that their enormous staff of clerks had to be heavily reinforced to meet the unprecedented rush of new names. The Family Herald and Weekly Star is a great paper and it is getting a glowing reception.

The late general legislative election in Newfoundland resulted in the defeat of the Whittier ministry. Sir William Whitway, the premier was defeated by 852 votes in twenty districts.

Town Council.

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council was held on Tuesday evening. Present—the Mayor, Councillors Borden, Caldwell, Ewles, Chase, Sawyer, and the Recorder. The committees on poor, license and police, water, and streets, presented reports.

The following bills were read and ordered paid:

The Mayor presented circulars and correspondence relative to prices, etc., of chemical engines for extinguishing fires. Considerable discussion took place relative to the efficiency of the fire department, when it was resolved that the fire company be asked to meet the Mayor and Council of Wolfville at the town hall, to discuss matters relating to the fire department, on Monday evening, Nov. 8th, at 7.30 o'clock.

The town clerk reported that the sanitary regulations and the new water rates had received the sanction of the governor in council.

The clerk was authorized to have 300 copies of the sanitary regulations printed. A communication was read from the sanitary inspector stating that complaint had been made to him by residents on Locust avenue, of superphosphate recently stored in Mr. W. Sleep's barn as a nuisance and a menace to health. On personally investigating the matter he had found the odor decidedly apparent, and unpleasant and annoying to persons who may require to pass. He suggested that it might be advisable to require the owners of the phosphate to remove the material to some place distant from residences. He also stated that the past summer and early autumn complaint had been made by householders resident in the neighborhood of the creamery that no adequate provision is made to carry the liquid refuse matter to a safe distance. On investigation he found a covered drain opening into a large open ditch on the south side of the railway track.

On motion it was resolved that the matter of conveying the refuse from the Crematory to Mud Creek, or other safe place, be brought to the notice of the president of the Creamery, and he be asked to take immediate steps for disposal of same.

Mr. Hugh Fowler, agent of the company owning the superphosphate, was present and asked permission to address the council. He stated that while the odor was offensive he thought that after remaining a few days very little odor would be noticeable. After some discussion it was

Resolved that the agents controlling the superphosphate complained of by the Health Inspector be asked to once to treat the superphosphate with land plaster in such a way as to kill the smell arising from the offensive material.

All Three Prizes Won by Canadians.

In the recent competition instituted by the Faneuil Watch Tool Company, of Boston, Mass., open to students of the various horological schools in the United States and Canada, the three prizes offered were won by Canadians. The first prize consisting of a $50 rivet lathe combination, was awarded to Fred H. Sprague, of the Canadian Horological Institute, Toronto, who sent as his exhibit, a finished nickel watch movement, chronometer escapement—17 jewels, and 4.23 c. m. in diameter. The second prize, a $35 rivet slide rest, was taken by W. L. Smith, and the third prize, a rivet setting tool, valued at $15, by Lorne Totton, also members of the Canadian Horological Institute.

The Grand Concert.

The spacious and beautiful Centenary church was crowded to the doors on the occasion of the anniversary concert, with Madame Marie Harrison as the bright particular star, last evening. The concert was a great artistic success, every number being a gem, and the interest remaining unflagging to the end. Canada's sweet singer was in excellent voice, and it was hard to say whether she charmed her audience most in Gounod's beautiful Ave Marie, the pathetic Song of Trust, the brilliant On Mighty Pans, or the bird-like Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark. Each number was inimitable in its way, and the lady delighted all by her beautiful voice and her wonderful versatility.—St. John paper.

A SCIENTIST SAVED.

AN INTERVIEW WITH A COLLEGE PRESIDENT.

His Many Duties Caused His Health to Break Down—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored Him to Activity.

Prof. Alvin P. Barnaby. A reporter recently called at this famous seat of learning and was shown into the room of the president, Alvin P. Barnaby.

"Oh, yes, I am much better than for some time. I am now in perfect health, but my recovery was brought about in rather a peculiar way."

"Tell me about it," said the reporter. "Well, to begin at the beginning," said the professor, "I studied too hard when at school, endeavoring to educate myself for the profession. After completing the common course I came here, and graduated from the theological course."

"My physician prescribed for me for some time, and advised me to try a change of climate. I did as he requested and was some improved. Soon after I came here as professor in physics and chemistry, and later was financial agent of this college. The change agreed with me and for a time my health was better, but my duties were heavy, and again I found my trouble returning. This time it was more severe and in the winter I became completely prostrated. I tried various medicines and different physicians. Finally, I was able to return to my duties. In the spring of 1896 I was elected president of the college. Again I had considerable work, and the trouble which had not been entirely cured, began to affect me, and last fall I collapsed. I had different doctors, but none did me any good. Professor Bowman, who is professor of natural science, told me of his experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and urged me to give them a trial, because they had benefited him in a similar case, and I concluded to try them."

"The first box helped me, and the second gave great relief, such as I had never experienced from the treatment of any physician. After using six boxes of the medicine I was entirely cured. To-day I am perfectly well. I feel better and stronger than for years. I certainly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to similar sufferers and overworked people."

Meteor. A meteor is a mass of matter, chiefly solid rock, that follows a course of its own around the sun. Some meteors weigh many tons, while others are mere "earth dust."

NEWS FROM ST. KITT'S. E. J. Munson Jr. steps the glasses of Dodd's Kidney Pills—He was bed ridden for months and his strength was sapped by Diabetes—He found his cure in six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Catharines, Nov. 1.—For several months E. J. Munson, Jr., one of the most capable painters in the city, was confined to his bed, a sufferer from that painful disease—diabetes. The complaint sapped his strength, fed upon his muscles, and reduced him to a skeleton almost. Then, providentially, he heard of that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done in similar cases. He bought six boxes. This is what he says of "his work": "After using my third box I could lift light weights. I used the other three boxes, and now I am well. I have tried many other medicines, and consulted many doctors. All gave me poor encouragement. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

THE WHITE RIBBON.

"For God and Native Land."

Conducted by the Ladies of the W. C. T. U.

President—Mrs Tufts. Vice-Presidents—Mrs Hale, Mrs Archibald, Mrs Borden. Recording Secretary—Miss Bishop. Cor. Secretary—Mrs Caldwell. Treasurer—Miss Annie S. Pritch.

Next meeting in Temperance Hall, Thursday, Nov. 11th, at 3.30 p.m. The meetings are always open to any who wish to become members. Visiting members of other W. C. T. Unions are cordially welcomed.

Close of the Great Convention that has been in possession of Toronto for three days.

(Special to the Herald.) TORONTO, Oct. 26.—This afternoon's session of the W. C. T. U. proved to be the most crowded of any of the whole convention. The meeting was opened with prayer, and the minutes of the whole convention were read by Miss Slack. Mrs Mathilda B. Carre read a report on the department of world's archives, and a paper on "The Press," by Miss C. E. Read, was read, showing that about 6,588, or one-third of the newspapers published in W. C. T. U. columns, giving space for the W. C. T. U. column. Mrs Kirk, secretary of the Australian W. C. T. U., read the report of the committee on resolutions. With reference to labor questions, the committee favored the eight-hour day for wage-workers, and opposition was expressed to strikes and movements of like nature. Training schools were commended, and recognition and help requested, and a means of influence and confidence was expressed in the official organs of the unions.

Armenia was referred to and the massacres were deeply deplored. Lyuching and drink on ships and rivers, and gambling, were the topics of the other resolutions, the whole pointing the feeling of the association.

Dr. Mary Wood Allen, superintendent of the social purity department, offered a resolution, regretting the absence of Mrs Josephine E. Butler, expressing appreciation and sympathy in her unflinching crusade against social vice, and requesting that she be still the union's leader in purity work. With this addition the report was submitted to the meeting and unanimously carried.

Miss Willard made an announcement that in spite of contrary rumors, General Dow's life, written under his own personal supervision, by his son, Colonel Fred Dow, of Portland, Maine, would soon be in the hands of the publishers. A discussion on the subject, "How we may advance the white ribbon cause in all countries," followed.

Miss Phelps, of Canada, followed, giving a short resume of the system of regas in Canada. Mrs Eastman, assistant secretary of the United States W. C. T. U., made a stirring address, which aroused the greatest enthusiasm, as to the best methods for the work.

Miss Kirk, of Australia, also addressed the convention on the same subject. Mrs Todd, co-president of the Dominion W. C. T. U., presented a plan of doing more thorough and better work, by sending Miss Francis E. Willard, with her right-hand worker, Miss Gordon, around the world to propagate and strengthen the union work in other countries.

Other speakers were Miss Cummins, of Australia; Mrs Helen Bullock, United States; Miss Willing and Dr. Emily Yeomans, vice-president of the Dominion W. C. T. U., and the session was closed by benediction.

At the meeting of the executive committee to-day the following officers were unanimously re-elected:

P. president—Miss Francis E. Willard, Evanston, Ill. Vice-president—Lady Henry Somerset, Easton Castle, Salisbury, England. Hon. Vice-president—Mrs Mary Clement Leavitt, Boston, Mass. Secretary—Miss Margaret E. Slack, Ripley, Derbyshire, England. Assistant Secretary—Miss Anna Gordon, Evanston, Ill. The superintendents were all re-elected, including Mrs Butler, England.

Bicycle Riding on Sunday. In an address before the young men of Boston, Rev. Edward Everett Hale, whose views cannot be challenged as narrow or illiberal, declared that "when a club of high-minded, moral, and intellectual young men mount their bicycles on Sunday morning, by public appointment, and ride to Newport, they say, far more distinctly than any words could say, that so far as they are concerned they mean that the next generation shall have no Sunday. Courts are not to be closed, stores shut up, sheriff kept back from executing writs, in order that young gentlemen may ride all day on bicycles. The institution of Sunday, if it is to be maintained at all, will be maintained for the nobler purposes of the higher life."—Baptist Union.

QUESTION.—Does the word cider, in our pledge, mean sweet cider, fermented cider, or just cider? ANSWER.—The exact wording of our pledge is, "distilled, fermented and malted liquors, including wine, beer and cider," but inasmuch as sweet cider begins to ferment within twenty-four hours after it comes from the press, the National officers of the W. C. T. U. feel that our women can afford to abstain from cider when the line must be so closely drawn. It is almost impossible to tell whether cider is perfectly sweet, and the chief objection to it is the threatened danger to the young in the creation of an appetite that once will soon cease to satisfy.—Union Signal.

A recent strike in Pennsylvania was caused by a kiss. This is the first case on record where a kiss has caused a strike, though it has sometimes been followed by a blow.

Carrie—He said he would go to the end of the earth for me. Mand—What did you say? Carrie—I proposed that he compromise and simply go home.

"I don't know," she answered thoughtfully. "The cause of education is making great strides these days, and it is possible to learn most any old thing."

For SALE.—A No 51 Walker Parance with 9 pipes and registers. Suitable for either hard or soft coal. Apply to L. W. SKEER.

Laurs—I get so nervous trying to pass pedestrians. Mors—It is no trouble if you know just how. All you has to do is to wobble one's wheel until the pedestrian gets so scared he can't move, and then he is as easy to pass as a pool.

A religious sect has been discovered in Russia which has as its principal tenet the mortifying of the body by never permitting it to come in contact with soap and water. There is a large following of the same faith in this country, except that it is not religious and has no thought of mortifying anything.

"Cornhill" tells a story of an English woman of high station who bequeathed to a friend the loss by death of a somewhat ill-bred but extremely wealthy neighbor, who had been very liberal in his help to her country charities. "Mr. X. is dead," said she; "he was so good and kind and helpful to me in all sorts of ways; he was so vulgar, poor, dear fellow; he could not know him in London; but we shall meet him in heaven."

THE WORLD'S FAVORITES FOR DYEING Light, Medium and Heavy Goods! Diamond Dyes do a range of work far beyond the possibilities of soap and crude package dyes. The common dyes on the market are deceptive in character and composition; they are made to sell, not to give guaranteed satisfaction. The majority of our color of soap green and crude package dyes are so weak that they will hardly stain the hands. Diamond Dyes give color to light, medium and heavy material that are as fast as a rock, and last as long as the goods hold together. The heaviest tweeds and cloths can be dyed with Diamond Dyes. Soap greens and imitation package dyes dare not attempt such work, because the colors are not fastly penetrating and powerful.

If you desire success in the dyeing operation, and wish to save money, use Diamond Dyes for home dyeing. All up-to-date dealers sell Diamond Dyes and strongly recommend them.

He—I wish I had a gun. Evidently that cat thinks he can sing. She (drowsily)—Very likely. He ate too canny this morning.

Minards Liniment Cures Colds, etc. "You should have heard Smith cackling up his wife's blarney this morning. 'I believe I hit her this morning. I thought at the time he was chipping wood.'"

Minards Liniment Cures Garget in Cows. Teacher—What is an island? Johnnie Chaffin—A boy surrounded by water. Teacher—Give an example. Johnnie—A boy in swimming.

The Groom—The minister seems to think he knows more about you than I do. The Bride—How's that? "I gave him a ten and he handed me back five of it!"
