Kansas has produced the most eccentric character as a candidate for office to be found in any state in the Union. This man Hugh Cameron, one of the most picturesque figures of Kansas since the days of any person. I know Joseph Vandine by Jim Lane, announces his candidacy for Congress in the second congressional district subject to the will of no convention, but to the people when they shall go into the Australian booth to cast their votes. He declares that he is neither a Republican, Democrat nor Populist, but that he proposes to go to the homes of all the roters and convince them that it will be to their interest to SEND HIM TO CONGRESS His plan of campaign will be as novel and peculair as have been his habits of life during the past third of a century. With his old and faithful mule that has been his companion for more than fifteen vears, he intends to penetrate every neighborhood in the nine counties in the district and appeal to the citizens to cast off the party yoke and vote for their best interests. Until forced to do so by the frosts he will wear no shoes, holding to his established custom of going barefooted during the summer months. Hugh Cameron is the most eccentric individual that Kansas ever produced.

His home is three miles northwest of Lawrence, on the banks of the Kaw River. at what is known as Cameron Bluff. He is at once a scholar, a soldier, a vegetarian, a celibate, a whilom statesman and withal a hermit. Little is known in Kansas of his early history, although he had lived in his unique cabin at Cameron Bluff since the early territorial days, When he first put in an appearance in Lawrence the place was mere an outspot of civilization. He was then in the FULL VIGOR OF EARLY MANHOOD being about thirty years of age. With little delay he selected a homestead in the wilderness, and, building a little log house, began the development of a farm. He mingled little with his neighbors and at first took little part in the stirring event that followed his arrival. Finally he was drawn out of his seclusion by Jim Lane, when that leader in 1855 called a convention of National Democrats. This convention proved a failure and again General Cameron was lost in sight. When the war broke out he was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas the war, coming out as a lieutenant colonel brigadier general.

THEY LIKE TO SIP SOMETHING. The members of the French parliament practice a custom when in discharge of their public duties, which seems strange to people in this country, and which probably is common in no other country but France. The Daily Chronicle's Paris correspondent says that the Rorique brothers, who were tried and found guilty in Brest on December 5 last and were sentenced to death for having committed murder aboard ship in the Pacific ocean, are likely to be exonerated by new evidence. A searching official enquiry is impending, and since being sentenced they have been incarcerated at the penal servitude establishment at Noumea, New Caledonia.

After a long trial the Maritime Tribunal of Brest sentenced to death the brothers involving murder and robbery, obtained possession of a French vessel bound from Tahiti in the Southern Pacific to the Tuamotu Islands with a cargo of treasure worth 400,000 francs. The owner of the ship was the Tahitian Prince Hinoi, a nephew of the king, Pomare V, whose Duncan McDonald, who cut his leg confidence the Rorique brothers had gain-

DEAR SIR.- I notice an article in the Daily Gleaner of the 14th inst. headed 'Registrar of Wills and Deeds of Carleton" in which article John S. Leighton, Registrar, is represented as my agent, as having collected monies for me, and not having accounted for the same.

Now, Mr. Editor, had you asked me for nformation before you used my name in say, that John S. I now see by the Weekly Gleaner of the 25th instant that you return to the attack, this time John S. Leighton, jr., s my agent. Correct now Mr. Editor. You also proved by receipts that Mr Vandine paid Mr. Leighton, jr., for me $620 principal, the last payment being made Aug. 24th, 1889. Correct again sir; you have proved by my letter that I directed Mr. Vandine to pay money for me to Mr. Leighton, jr., my agent. Then certainly it was right for Mr. Leighton jr., to receive said money for me.

DR. ALEXANDER

Gives Some of His Reasons for Renouncing Protestantism and Joining the Roman Catholic Church.

An Open Letter to his late Parishoners TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:

DEAR SIR,- Will you do me the kindness to insert the following in your next Yours Faithfully, FINLOW ALEXANDER Fredericton, Aug. 11th.

To my ever dear friends of the congregations of Christ Church Cathedral Fredericton, and St. Mary the Virgin, New Maryland, New Brunswick: The time has come when, with great pain to myself, I must take of you a final connection with your attack on Mr. Leigh. and affectionate farewell. Of my recepton I would have said to you what I here tion into the Holy Catholic Roman say, that John S. Leighton, Esq., Registrar | church, on the 23rd of July, you are all,

> I have before told you that a conviction of the truth of the claims made upon all by the Catholic Roman church has been growing on me

For Many Years Past. Again and again I have struggled to put this from me, but the call of God has proved too powerful, and, upon conviction, slowly gathered, has followed acceptance. With others, for many years your spiritual guide and instructor, my desire has been to bring before you, from time to time, the whole counsel of God. A better knowledge has taught me, latterly that under the circumstances in which I was placed, this was impossible, seeing that the teaching of many and important truths, set forth from the first by the Church of Jesus Christ is forbidden in the Anglican pulpit. Having became assured of this, I could not conscientiously continue to teach what I now see was

But a Fragmentary Christianity. As I look back, however, it is a comfort money paid to him by Mr. Vandine; being to me to reflect, that I have ever taught you, at least substantially, the truth nothing hidden or concealed, everything since avoiding matters of controversy, I rarely passed beyond a ground of Christianity common to the Anglican Communion and the Catholic Roman church alike. I thank God now that of the latter holy church of Jesus Christ my tongue has never uttered an adverse word. So far as I preached to you the truth, so far intended. Being in Woodstock on the 11th, I hum ly pray God to bless it to you. If The Knights of Pythias picnic at Lower instant I discharged the mortgage and wrote at any time I have unwittingly said any Burton, Wednesday, was a success, and was Mr. Vandine to that effect. I do not feel thing opposed to that truth, I pray it may To give you the reasons in full which rompted my present action, would fill a volume, not a letter. I will only say that prominent among them has been the distressing sense of the impossibility, as it seemed and still seems to me, of arriving, in the Anglican communion, at .Any Thing Like a Certain Faith. The toleration, within its pale of schools of thought opposed to each other; the consequent party strife; the fierce consroversies often raging around holy doctrines especially the doctrine of the Holy Encharist; the spectacle of men ever learning, but never seeming to arrive at a knowledge of the truth; bishops, clergymen and laymen, differing from one another, but each proclaiming his own particular view or opinion to be the true one; the absence in the Anglican communion of any tribunal whose decisions would be accepted by the whole body; the ultimate necessity, therefore, of resting (if one could rest in such a war) upon the basis of private judgment - uncertainty and confusion such as this, I felt Could not be of God. The conviction, therefore, was irresistible that, flowing from our Lord's promise there must somewhere exist a divine source, which I must seek, and from which, according to our Lord's words, the truth might be fully and infallibly drawn. This source, dear friends, not in the Anglican communion, and still less in the other many forms of Protestantism, I have, by the mercy of God, after long and weary searching, found. It is that "one Christian body, which, claiming to teach upon authority, exercises the authority she claims"; the church, with its visible to which all questions and disputes in faith and morals may be referred, and of whose decisions there has been, through all Christian ages, no reversal; a church therefore, in which the pride of self opinion cannot long find place, which has, moreover, a fixed and certain faith, unfolded through the ages from the first council to the last, unchanged and unbeing the living body of Christ, is to hear Christ himself; to refuse which, through wilful or careless ignorance, is to risk the danger of refusing Him that speaketh; a church which is emphatically that of the Saints, and which, though in many ages and lands, that of the learned and the rich, is emphatically also The Church of the Poor. Such, dear friends, are a few among the many marks of the one Catholic and Apostolic church, into which the great mercy of God has now received me. My doubts at length are at an end. Temporally, the step I have taken has ruined me. The loss to me is that of home, friends, means of livelihood, indeed, which make life dear; the gain, inexpressibly blessed to me, has been wholly spiritual. While I was with you The building, a fine brick one, was I loved you with a strong love; absent erected in 1886, cost about $4,000 and was from you, I shall love you no less. Had the Executive Council and guests, leave by

THE BOBOLINK

What bird is that with liquid notes, This May-day morn to cheer? Oh, on the air now sweetly floats A song we heard last year-A snatch of song repeated oft, My ears with pleasure drink, And as it falls both clear and soft, I know 'tis "Bob-o-link."

Oh, welcome back to meadows green, Ye bird, so blithely gay! Our joy like yours, is fresh and keen, And half your notes convey; A "rice bird," South, a song bird here! Your coat is black as ink. And feathers few of white appear,

To make you "Bob-o-link."

They shoot you South, esteem you sweet, For there you never sing, When once you reach that far retreat, And fold your faded wing; But here you come with early flowers, And purpose kind we think-To fill with joy these May-day hours, Oh, happy "Bob-o-link!"

The dandelions welcome you, The apple and the plum, While violets of white and blue All smile that you have come: And if they yield to daises bright. From buttercups do shrink, These touch thy heart with gay delight, Thou long-gone "Bob-o-link!"

In all the world no bird we see, Allied or closely kin; Changest oft like thieves who flee, Or men who run from sin; Three names thou hast and song so strange The mocking bird will shrink-Dares not provoke thy notes to range, Provoking "Bob-o-link!"

I laugh sometimes your pranks to see. You saucy songster near! Your notes are jumbled, wild and free, Like nothing else we hear; Your air grotesque, you are a flirt, "A catch," yourself you think, But soon, too soon you may desert, You heartless "Bob-o-link!"

At wedding-time you woo with song, And fairly burst your throat! You sing and sing, the whole day long, And glossy is your coat; But soon your dress is faded quite Your married song is "chink!" And never give your queen delight, Gh, naughty "Bob-o-link!"

Oh, how we love to hear thy song, Upfloat from meadows green, Or fields of flowers the roads along, Where thou art ever seen! Our hearts are light with notes you sing,

So airy free we think. They could not fail sweet thoughts to Thou much loved "Bob-o-link!"

The priest opened the door for her to pass through; then closed it behind her. She stood in the dark, narrow room, and advanced softly towards the bed on which Carl lay. She stooped down and gazed with tender pity upon the pallid face; then started back with a stifled cry, while wild thoughts and feelings passed like lightning through her heart and brain; for that pale, death-like face be fore her, though it still bore a resemb lance to her servant Carl, was the face of him whom she had loved - whom she had mourned as dead: he who had been

Reserves in Their First Field Day. The first division of the naval militia of the Connecticut national guard had its first public appearance. The regulation orking uniform of the naval reserves was worn and the new organization, the only ne in the state, made a creditable appearance under command of Major Reynolds. After target practice, says a New Haven dispatch, the division was marched to an open lot at the base of East rock for drill and was commanded by Ensign Goodridge The company drill was gone through and, with the division formed in double ranks, Ensign Goodridge started his men across the field at double time. Half way across an innocent looking Jersey heifer, down on the heifer in beautiful order. When about one hundred feet away the heifer raised her head and looked at the army of white tufts and glittering arms H. P. Yeomans A. B., M. D. coming towards her. First her delicate ears moved forward, then there was a defiant shake of the head and distention of the nostrils, followed by an elevation of the tail util it assumed a position on a line with her spine, the end waving like a flag of warning. Then, lowering her horns to a fighting position, the heifer, with a loud and angry bellow, came toward the young navy men. Ensign Goodridge saw her coming at about the time that the men on a line with the heifer began to waver. He called a halt, and his men came to a standstill at the same moment that the heifer was brought up at the end of her rope only four feet away. The young Jersey was game, and for a noment stood watching the reserves, pawing the earth and shaking her sharp horns at them. Then, with a bound, she came on again, dragging the log of wood and prepared to do battle. "Backstep,' ame the order from Ensign Goodridge. and backstep his men did in lively order, soon getting out of range of the heifer's horns. As soon as order was brought about in the ranks the naval reserve was marched into the city, leaving the pretty

For meat and other sandwiches, cut slices of bread about one-eighth of an inch thick, then with a sharp knife cut off all the crust, leaving trim, straight edges; butter each slice and cut across the centre, or, with two more sharp cuts, shape each piece into the form of a triangle, making the three sides as nearly even as ply. possible, and fold carefully together. bread to use, how to cut evenly, butter smoothly and fold exactly, the sandwich may be varied indefinitely. Slice ham or tongue to almost paper thinness, and lay between buttered bread-Roast beef, ham and chicken should be chopped fine and seasoned before spreading, and a delicious variety is made by using thin slices of Hamburg loaf. In making cheese sandwiches or sandwiches of smoked fish or sardines, use, if possible, bread made from some form of the entire-wheat fine brown flour. This will cut smoothly without crumbs. Spread with sauce Tartare and then with the cheese or fish.

To make egg sandwiches, boil fresh eggs five minutes, plunge them into cold water and leave until cold; this will prevent any discoloration of the yolks, which sometimes darken if left to cool otherwise To chop the eggs, use a knife and plate season with salt, pepper and a little mus tard, and spread on the buttered bread.
