MAGIC BAKING POWDER

'Margaret,' The GIRL ARTIST, OR, The Countess of Ferrers Court.

CHAPTER XVII.
"At last!" he shouted, between a hiss and a growl. "At last, mister! I've waited a long time, but it's my turn now, I think. You fine-tongued gentleman! I'll—I'll kill you. You thought I'd forgotten you, eh? You thought I was going to let you go scot free, did you? Ah! you'll know me better when I've done with you."

Blair struggled as hard as he could, but the man's long, bony fingers were like steel, and, with a shrug of his shoulders, he felt that his time had come. But even at that moment the old spirit came to the front, and, though he could not speak, he smiled up at the livid face of his assailant.

The smile seemed to madden the man. "What! you grin, do ye?" he said, between his teeth. "I'll teach you; I'll humble you!" Then an idea seemed to strike him, and, kneeling on Blair's chest, he said, "But I'll give you a chance, my lord, even now, curse me if I don't. Say, 'I beg your pardon,' and I'll let you go."

With the intention of giving Blair an opportunity for the apology, his grasp slackened slightly.

It was a small opening, but Blair seized it. With a tremendous effort he writhed himself free, and grasping Pyke by the forearm, raised himself to his feet, and forced Pyke to his knees.

"You miserable hound!" he said, with his short, curt laugh. "Beg your pardon, you mad fool! I'll teach you to set traps for a good horse, that's worth ten of you! You put the gate there, did you? Look here, I'll make you carry it back to its place before I've done with you! Ah, an' beg my pardon, too, into the bargain!" and with a tremendous force he flung the man backward.

Pyke was on his feet instantly, and the two men confronted each other, not as they had done on Leyton Green, for then Blair's face wore a smile, and there was joy and contentment in his heart, at the prospect of a fair fight, but now he knew that it would be as foul as his opponent could make it.

The sky grew blacker; the rain pelted down upon them, but neither of them noticed the weather.

With a bound they sprang at each other, dealing heavy blows, and taking them as if they were feather-down. The result was a foregone one. Blair had been riding, the man had been walking, and was weakened by passion. His blows grew lighter and slower, his breath came in short, deep gasps; Blair knew that another minute would make him the victor, and, already relenting, he was about to call to Pyke and offer him quarter, when the man stepping back, pointed beyond Blair, and shouted:

"Look! the lady!"
Blair turned. There was only one lady that could rush to his mind, and that was Margaret, and he thought, in the flash of the moment, that she had come to meet him. He turned, and Pyke caught up a heavy stick that lay where he had dropped it at his first spring, and struck Blair an awful blow on the back of the head.

Without a cry he went down face foremost, his arms outstretched, and lay like a figure carved in stone.

Pyke stood over him, looking down, at him with livid face and panting breath.

There was a pause in the storm at that moment, as if the wind and the rain had stopped to look on; then the elements resumed their warfare, and a flash of lightning played over the prostrate man's head.

Pyke went down on his knees, and with trembling hands turned the motionless form on its face, and peered at it.

Then he started back with an oath. "I've done for him!" he muttered, hoarsely, and the wind seemed to echo mockingly: "Done for him." "He's as dead as a herring! Curse him, it serves him right!" he ground out, and he raised his foot, but withheld the kick as a thought—the thought of self-preservation—came to him. "Looks ugly!" he muttered, "cursed ugly. There's more trouble in this than I thought on!"

He looked up and down the lane and across the hedge, with the keen, fearful face of a man who already hears the pursuers; then buttoning his wet coat round him, and giving a parting glance at the still form, began to run—like Cain.

He went in the direction of Lee, and was so absorbed in the one idea of flight, that a dark object which stood beside the hedge just before him made him spring aside; and almost shout with fear.

But it was only the colt, which, too frightened by the storm, and disheveled by the rain, was cowering under the lee of the hedge.

Pyke was hurrying by it, when he pulled up suddenly, and struck his leg as if welcoming an inspiration. "Dang it!" he cried, exultingly, "that's the game. Woa, horse, woa, horse," and he crept slowly up to the colt.

The animal was far too cowed to attempt flight, and Pyke got hold of the bridle easily. But he did not mount. Instead, he unfastened one stirrup and struck the colt with it. The horse, maddened by fear, started and shook, then tore down the lane at breakneck pace.

Pyke waited a moment listening to the clatter of its hoofs mingling with the rain and the thunder, then quickly retracing his steps returned to Blair.

He still lay where his assailant had left him. Pyke knelt down and thrust one unresisting foot into the stirrup, then he dragged the body for a few yards along the wet road and left it lying on its back, leaped over the hedge and fled. But once more he came back, and lifting the gate replaced it on its hinges and fastened it.

CHAPTER XVIII.
Mr. Austin Ambrose was spending an extremely unpleasant evening. It sounds as if it would be a very interesting thing to play with one's fellow creatures as if they were puppets—to pull the wires which govern their actions, and to make them dance to one's piping; but the wire-puller has sometimes a very uncomfortable time of it.

Mr. Austin Ambrose had up to the present found his puppets quite docile and obedient to the pulling of the wires. He had got Lord Blair and Margaret secretly married, he had hidden them away at Appleford; his puppet Lottie had played her part really quite admirably, and Margaret was fully convinced that she had been betrayed and ruined by the man she loved.

So far, so well; but still Mr. Austin Ambrose was uncomfortable. He had left Margaret to herself, knowing that if so left she would be more likely to carry out his desire and fly, than if he remained with her.

But he did not mean to lose sight of her; it was his intention to travel by the same train if possible, and to track her, unseen himself, to her place of refuge.

So he went and placed himself on the road leading to the station, and lighting a cigarette, waited as patiently as he could.

Hour passed after hour, and still she did not come. Then the clouds rose, and the sky grew murky, and presently the storm broke.

"Confound women!" he muttered, vainly trying to light the last of his cigarettes; "you can never count upon them. I would have sworn that she would have made for the station; and yet she hasn't. She's waiting to see Blair, after all. Well, I'll go and see. There'll be a scene presently, if she remains, and I hate a scene!"

With his coat-collar turned up he climbed to the cottage and knocked. There was no answer; and after waiting and knocking again, he opened the door.

To his amazement, the cottage seemed deserted. He was calling Mrs. Day impatiently, when a woman came running with her apron over her head from the neighboring cottage.

"Mrs. Day's out, sir. She's gone down to the beach," she said in answer to his inquiries, "and I've got the children with me. It's lonely for 'em here, and such a storm raging."

"But—but Mrs. Stanley?" he said quickly; "she's in, is she not?"
"The woman stared at him.

"Mrs. Stanley, sir—the lady," she said; "Oh, no; she went out hours ago."

"Nonsense!" he said roughly. "I beg your pardon; I mean that it is

How You May Throw Away Your Glasses

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunate, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bone-Opto tablets. The solve one Bone-Opto tablet in 1/4 glass of water. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind or nearly so, or who wear glasses might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes! It is not too late. Do this before a few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition. Better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

A prominent Eye Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bone-Opto is a very remarkable eye restorative and widely prescribed by them. It can be obtained from any good druggist and it is of the very few preparations, I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

improbable that she should be out in this storm."

"Yes, but she is, sir. I saw her go down the path in the afternoon with her mackintosh on her arm. I think she went to meet her good gentleman."

Austin Ambrose started, and his face flushed.

If she had, and they had met before—well, before something that he hoped had happened—all his plans, all his deep and skillfully laid plots would be smashed and pulverized.

He turned his back to the woman, that she might not see his face.

"I—I think she must be in the house still," he said, with a sudden hope; "she may have come back, you know."

"She may, but I don't think she could without my seeing her. However, it's easy to find out." And she lit a candle and went up stairs calling respectfully, "Mrs. Stanley, are you in, ma'am?" while Austin Ambrose listened intently.

In a minute or two she came down. "No, sir, she's not in the house. I'm afraid the poor lady's in the storm; leastways, unless she's taken shelter."

Austin Ambrose caught up his hat. "If she should come before I return," he said, hurriedly, "ask her to wait till I see her and speak with her. Do you hear? Do not let her go. You understand?"

The woman, frightened by his palor and sternness, dropped a courtesy, and he rushed out and down the path.

If she had gone down the road to Iffracombe, and had met Blair! His heart almost ceased beating at the thought. She would meet Blair, and he knew too well, frustrate the elaborate plot, and ruin the plotter.

He gained the entrance of the road to 'Combe; two or three men were standing under the shelter of a shed, with their tools beside them.

"Have you been working here in the fields?" he inquired.

"Yes, master, and we be drenched through, we be!" said one.

"Have you seen a lady—a lady with a veil—come this way—to Iffracombe, I mean?" he said, trying to steady his voice. "I am afraid she has got caught in the storm."

The men shook their heads.

"No," said he who had spoken first; "no one has been along this road 'cepting the gentleman who rode Farmer James' colt this morning."

"I know—I mean I don't know," said Austin Ambrose, catching himself up. "Are you sure?"

"Sure and sartain!" said another man. "We've been working in sight o' the road all day, and the lady couldn't a passed without our seeing her. Have you got a bit of 'bacca, your honor?"

He tossed them a shilling, and hurried back. It was just possible that she may have gone to the station by another road than that which he had watched. Fighting his way against the wind and rain, he reached the station.

From one and another of the porters he inquired if she had been seen, and the answer was the same. No lady answering to Madge's description had reached the station. Half wild with impatience and fear—not for her, by any means, certainly not; but for himself—he returned to the beach.

As he did so he saw a gang of fishermen and sailors standing under the lee of a rock, and peering out to sea. They did not hear him approach, and, in his noiseless fashion, he got close up to them and within hearing unnoted.

"No boat could put out from the beach, man," said the old man with whom Margaret had spoken that morning. "We've tried it with the best of them, the Lass and the Speedwell, and it ain't no manner of use. 'Sides, where's the good? the tide have swept over the rock an hour ago!"

"And you're sure you seed her?" asked a man.

"Do 'ee think I've gone silly all in a moment?" retorted the old fellow, pettishly. "I tell 'ee, I seed her on the top, half a-sitting and half a-lying. I did think as I'd get up and go to her, but I'd warned her in the morning, this very blessed morning; and the missus come and called me in to tea, and—and blame me if I didn't forget her."

"Oh, she's lost! She's drowned, as sure as a gun! Well, sakes a mercy, but it's a pity."

"We've all got to die," remarked a man philosophically; "and most of us dies by drowning; but then we're used to it, which makes all the difference."

Austin Ambrose pushed his way into their midst, starting them a little. "Of whom are you talking?" he demanded, and his voice sounded harsh and stern.

The old man touched his forehead and puffed at his pipe.

"It's the poor young lady up at Mrs. Day's, your honor," he said; "she've been and got washed off the Long Rock."

Austin Ambrose put his hand up with a strange gesture, as if to stop him, and his face grew livid.

"What?" he cried, hoarsely. "You say—oh, impossible!"

The old man shook his head.

"It's the possiblist thing as can be," he said grimly. "Seed her there myself, and I thought she'd gone to look at the tide. I never thought as she'd stop there after the warning I give her. I told her about the lady and gentleman as was lost there two year ago," he added to the others.

Austin Ambrose rushed out to the rocks and stared before him like a man dazed. Then he sprang to his feet.

"I'll give any man twenty pounds who will launch a boat and search for her," he cried, hoarsely.

There was a profound silence. Then the old fisherman said grimly: "Twenty pun ain't nauch for a man's life, your honor."

"I will give fifty—a hundred!" he cried desperately.

"Bless your honor's heart," said the old man slowly, "no boat could live in this—that is, near the beach—it might in the open! It is to be hoped it will, for Day's out," he said significantly. "No, your honor, a thousand pounds wouldn't tempt us; besides, it's too late! too late! The poor lady is drifting out to the sands, and the last's been seen of her or ever will be seen on this earth!"

Austin Ambrose uttered a cry, an awful cry. They who heard it thought that it was that of a sorrowing friend that it was that of a sorrowing friend pity for himself and all his shattered hopes. After all his cleverness, his deep-laid schemes and restless toil, he had been fooled—and by the woman he had fooled and deceived!

Avoid Harsh Pills, Doctors Condemn Them

Most Pills unfortunately are harsh and drastic; they cause inflammation and great discomfort. Rather like nature is the way a pill should act, mildly but effectively. Science has established nothing more satisfactory as a family pill than the old reliable pills of Dr. Hamilton's, which for forty years have had a premier place in America. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are very mild and can be effectively used by the aged, by children, and indeed by men and women of all ages. No stomach or bowel medicine is more reliable. No remedy for indigestion, headache or biliousness is so effective, so mild, so certain to quickly cure as a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Sight and Smash Order to British in Naval Battle

Engagement Off Sylt Island Fought in Blinding Blizzard—Snow and Hail Hide the Opposing Craft—Big German Ships Lost Chance to Leave Kiel.

London, March 31.—A special correspondent of the Edinburgh Scotsman gives a vivid account of the sea fight in the North Sea off the Island of Sylt, last Saturday. The fight took place in one of the worst blizzards that has raged this winter, he says. After describing the approach of the British ships to the German coast the Scotsman's correspondent goes on:

"By the time the coasts of Germany were within measurable distance there was a gale on the sea and the ice blasts which swept out of the north-west bore hail and blinding snow. That the German patrols were well and speedily informed of the approach of the British ships became apparent as soon as the British were within striking distance, and the action ended upon the first glimpse which the opposing squadrons obtained of each other in the blizzard.

To Restore Health, Vigor, Energy, There is Nothing to Compare to

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The grip epidemic has assumed huge proportions until there is scarcely a home but shelters one or more victims of this enervating disease. Urged on by sudden changes of temperature, this dreaded scourge sweeps over the country like a forest fire before the western winds.

In offices, stores and factories the forces are greatly reduced because so many are away with grip, while many who stick to their posts do so with the greatest discomfort, because of the pains and aches and the great weakness associated with this disease.

It only takes a few hours of this debilitating ailment to bring even the strongest to their beds and the process of recovery is often most tedious.

Just at this point Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does wonders to hasten the return of health, strength and vitality. By forming new, rich blood it builds up the system as nothing else can. Here is a case to illustrate this point:

Miss Amy C. Davis, 301 Perth Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "After a severe attack of quinsy and grip, my nervous system seemed to be completely run down. I had taken a good tonic, prescribed by my doctor, but still felt very nervous; would start up at the least sound, and was very irritable. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and, after taking two boxes, I felt so much improved that I continued to take four more, which completely restored my health. I cannot say too much for this great Nerve Food, and have recommended it to all my friends."

HOW TO AVOID GRIP

Rich, red blood is the greatest of germicides, and good vitality the strongest defence against disease. Keep the bodily vigor at high-water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and you need have no fear of grip or other contagious diseases. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

It is the older people who suffer most from grip. Finding them in a more or less weakened condition, grip breaks down their power of resistance and prepares the way for pneumonia, kidney troubles, or heart failure.

After every epidemic of grip the grim reaper makes a regular harvest, through the medium of these ailments. There is only one way to avoid such results, and that is by the regular use of such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure has proven a wonderful blessing to people in advanced years and all whose systems have become run down.

You need not linger in weakness if you will but put this treatment to the test. By supplying the ingredients required by nature, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food hastens the process of upbuilding and you can depend on the results proving of lasting benefit.

Miss E. J. Buswell, Centralia, Ont., writes: "Last Winter my mother contracted a bad cold. She was bothered with shortness of breath, wheezing, fevered and too sore to cough. Our doctor prescribed treatment which brought relief from these symptoms, but when she got up she was tired, always tired and weak. I got her three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and she soon improved. Her eyes became clear and bright, the ashen hue left the face and she began once more to take up the reins and look after the household duties."

Sight and Smash Order to British in Naval Battle.

Engagement Off Sylt Island Fought in Blinding Blizzard—Snow and Hail Hide the Opposing Craft—Big German Ships Lost Chance to Leave Kiel.

London, March 31.—A special correspondent of the Edinburgh Scotsman gives a vivid account of the sea fight in the North Sea off the island of Sylt, last Saturday. The fight took place in one of the worst blizzards that has raged this winter, he says. After describing the approach of the British ships to the German coast the Scotsman's correspondent goes on:

"By the time the coasts of Germany were within measurable distance there was a gale on the sea and the icy blasts which swept out of the northwest bore hail and blinding snow. That the German patrols were well and speedily informed of the approach of the British ships became apparent as soon as the British were within striking distance, and the action ensued upon the first glimpse which the opposing squadrons obtained of each other in the blizzard.

Big German Ships Stay in. There was provided the opportunity for the naval might of Germany sheltering in Kiel, to find that British fleet for which they have searched so long, and so fruitlessly, but the heavy fighting ships of Germany made no effort to come from the waters behind Heligoland to the succor of the decaying squadron which had been discovered by the British.

With the ships separated and lost from each other completely in the whirl of snow, and with visible signalling utterly impossible, the chase of German destroyers was a matter for individual ships.

"Sight and smash" was the order of the action, and there was no sighting save at close range and with dramatic suddenness wherever a German hull was revealed.

"For an instant through the smother of the storm the British guns made a deadly play. The weakest ships of the Germans were also the unluckiest. Two armed trawlers, putting up such a fight as they could, were disposed of first and very rapidly. They were well fitted vessels and the term trawler scarcely describes them accurately, so surprising was their ability.

"When it came to steaming into the midst of the action in the virtual blackness the destroyer Medusa and one of her consorts came down upon each other in the same bank of snow. Thus, in the stress of chase and encounter, stirring rescue work was proceeding at various points of the area of action.

German Suffer Severely.

"There are distinct evidences that the German destroyer squadron suffered severely. Again and again, as the snow cleared, the fleeing Germans received a terrific and accurate fire from the pursuing British vessels. One German destroyer was blazing from end to end on the second and last occasion on which she was seen. Further salvos were poured into her as the snow hid her again.

A second German destroyer also was on fire; both had been seriously mauled, and it is doubtful if, in the heavy weather which followed, either got back to port.

"Just such a sudden meeting in the blinding weather as caused the collision between the two British destroyers brought about the destruction of a German destroyer, which was rammed by the Cleopatra.

At the end of the stirring day the snow hid the ships from each other until they were at close range. The Cleopatra recognized the German vessel at once and rushed headlong at her, pouring in, at the same time, a sharp bow wave deep into the hull of the German ship, hurling ahead of her the destroyer, which was listing heavily. With the sea pouring into her stricken hull, the destroyer fell away from the cruiser's bows and the blinding snow came down and hid her.

"As the cruiser plunged on in the darkness there was a rush to place her where the destroyer was last seen, but the storm held and the snow descended steadily. When the spot where the destroyer had been was located there was nothing on the wind-driven surface of the sea but some debris and a film of oil."

Predicts Another Year More of War.

New York, April 6.—Paul Mack Whelan, editor of the Odd Lot Review, a financial publication formerly owned by John Moore & Co., who has recently returned from a tour of Europe in which he studied the attitude of the belligerent countries toward a speedy peace, has reached the conclusion that the war will continue for a considerable time, a year at least.

His observations, published in the Odd Lot Review, give the feeling in each of the principal countries. He points out that the Allies are determined to crush Germany, which still has enormous resources from which to draw. His conclusions may be summed up as follows: In Great Britain the government and people realize that a peace leaving the dominant party in Germany still in existence would mean only a postponement of the conflict, which later might be resumed with Great Britain alone.

In Russia, which now has the best equipped army in her history, the ruling class realizes that nothing but a complete victory will prevent a revolution.

France realizes her ability to protect herself from Germany and could probably secure the restoration of Alsace and other pieces of her territory held by Germany.

Italy, which broke away from the Triple Entente, wishes Germany deprived of offensive power. She is making money from exports of munitions.

Big Men of the Empire

Australia has provided many illustrations of the opportunities which the great Oversea Dominions offer to the man who is able to size them and make good. It was perhaps fitting that the first Prime Minister, Sir Edmund Barton, and the second, Mr. Alfred Deakin, should have been Australian born. But Mr. J. C. Watson, the first Labor Prime Minister, was born in Valparaiso, and worked as a compositor (in the hand-type-setting days) in Sydney.

Sir George H. Reid, M.P., has frequently told us that as a very early age he left his native land (Scotland). Mr. Fisher (now High Commissioner) had told in the mimes of Scotland before emigrating to Australia. Mr. Cook, another ex-Prime Minister, also hailed from the "old country," and knew something of mining before he went out, and Mr. W. M. Hughes, the present Prime Minister, was a Welsh schoolmaster before he emigrated to Australia.

Broken Pledges

The American stock market yesterday reflected the uncertainty of the outcome of the issue raised between the United States and Germany by the sinking of the French steamer Sussex by a German submarine. There was a slight recovery in some stocks yesterday, others maintained the low closing point of Thursday, and in others there were further drops. Even in those in which prices advanced the recovery by no means covered the fall of the past few days. It would appear that those who purchase and sell stocks are in doubt as to what will happen in consequence of the Note, which President Wilson is despatching to Berlin. It would appear that President Wilson still leaves the door open to German policy. Truly President Wilson and his colleagues are long-suffering, and American opinion will stand much before it compels the Administration to break with Germany. Day by day, these outrages continue, and the pledges and promises made to the Washington administration are violated as flagrantly as the treaty with Belgium. German promises are made to be broken, and agreements are treated as scraps of paper, which may be torn up, as soon as made. After the past twelve months experience which Washington has had in negotiating with Berlin, it is difficult to see what reliance Washington can place, in any repudiation and promises of amendment which may result from the Note, President Wilson is about despatching. Every promise Germany has made has been followed by the sinking of merchantmen and the loss of life and limb of Americans and the jeopardizing of the safety of others. Still President Wilson cannot make up his mind to take the plunge and sever diplomatic relations with Germany but like Oliver Twist he asks for more—more promises.

Returns of Northern Sealing Fleet for 1916.
Voyage an Unprecedented Success—Eight Ships Brought to Port 222,952 Seals Worth Practically $600,000.
We attach hereto a complete detailed statement of the northern sealing voyage. Only eight ships prosecuted probably the smallest fleet since the introduction of the industry, and brought to port the most valuable cargoes of seals in the history of the sealfishery. A total of 222,952 or an average of practically 28,000 for the eight ships was landed here, with approximately $600,000 not including the value of the skins. The sealfishery for 1916 so far as the northern voyage is concerned, was an unprecedented success from every standpoint and will be remembered as the "Spring of the big trips, big seals and big prices." The price paid for young fat is $6 a hundredweight which is phenomenal high. The average weight of all the whitecoats brought in went over 50 lbs. Another unusual circumstance that occurred was the quick trips made. The Sable L. was the first home on March 30th and on the same day the Eagle and Neptune arrived, after a fortnight's absence. Inside of another two weeks the remaining four ships reached port filled to the hatches. The main body of seals was found by the Eagle 75 miles N. by E. of the Funk Islands. The Florizel, brought to port the heaviest trip on record. In addition to the profit and encouragement given to suppliers and outfitters of steamers, the crews, out of the fine bills they made will be able to buy a more extensive outfit for the codfishery, such as motor engines, boats, etc., so that the codfishery is likely to be prosecuted the coming season more extensively than for many years. Thus far the doings of the Gulf ships have been unfavorable, mainly due to heavy ice conditions, but it is not unreasonable to assume that they will have picked up saving trips by the time the "old ones" are all disturbed. Latest reports from the Gulf are that the four ships operating there, namely, the Viking, Ranger, Seal and Diana have over twenty thousand seals between them. To conservatively estimate the entire voyage would be to put the total catch at 250,000 seals. The northern returns are:—

Tells of Withdrawal From Gallipoli.

General Sir Chas. Monro's Story of the Unfortunate Expedition.
London, April 11.—Additional light is shed on the withdrawal of the allied forces from Gallipoli in a long report from General Sir Charles Monro, published in the Official Gazette. The report gives the views of General Monro on the position when he arrived there last October to examine the situation. He says:—
"Our positions in Gallipoli presented a military situation unique in history. The force held a line possessing every possible military defect. Complete evacuation was the only wise course, as an advance could not be regarded as a reasonable military operation."
"The appalling cost to the nation involved through embarking on an expedition with no base for the rapid transit of stores and personnel, made it urgent that we should divert the troops locked up. In a November blizzard, two hundred men died from exposure. More than ten thousand sick were sent to the hospital. The progress of the Helles evacuation was delayed by the weather and the loss of a large horse ship sunk by a French battleship."
"On the evening of Jan. 8, the warship 'Prince George,' which had embarked two thousand men, was struck by a torpedo from an enemy submarine, which did not explode."
"General Monro pays a tribute to General Birdwood, and all engaged in the evacuation and also explains how he urged the French commander, General Sarrail, to withdraw from Serbia."

PRIVATE FRAMPTON WELL RECEIVED.
Bishop's Falls, To-day.
Dr. Lloyd.
Secretary Recruiting Committee.
A public patriotic meeting was held in Albert Hall, last night. Very large attendance of ladies and gentlemen, hall being nearly filled, in platform were Private Frampton, Mr. Harris, Dr. Smith, Mr. Colbourne and Magistrate Fitzgerald. Private Frampton was introduced by the Magistrate, and gave a graphic account of his experiences at the front and elsewhere, he was repeatedly applauded by the audience, and given a hearty vote of thanks. Mr. Harris and Magistrate Fitzgerald also spoke, both speeches being well received. Good recruiting results are expected from this meeting. The W. P. A. held a committee meeting afterwards and arranged a programme for a public welcome to the returning soldiers on to-day's express, which will be carried out at the railway station on arrival of the train. The W. P. A. of Grand Falls have taken similar action in this respect. Six recruits at Grand Falls yesterday, and elsewhere here awaiting train for St. John's.

Citizen's Committee on New Charter.

The second meeting took place last night at the Board of Trade rooms and was attended in large numbers. The deferred discussion as to the government of the city after June 30th was taken up and fully debated. While some were of the opinion that the Commissioners might continue in office for another year, yet it was felt that the desire of the general public was for an elective body.
The motion for an election in June was put and carried. Then a motion was put that the election be held as under Section 20 of the New Bill, which provides for a Mayor and six Councilors to be elected at large. An amendment that this arrangement be altered to the Ward System was moved, and the motion was defeated until the time came for adjournment, and consequently were deferred till the next meeting.
The utmost publicity of the proceedings of the Committee was desirable in the opinion of many speakers, although it was felt that it was unnecessary that individual names be mentioned in the newspaper reports. An intimation will be made to the papers that their representatives can attend the meetings.
During the meeting communications were read from Mr. A. H. O'Keefe re enlargement of the Committee and from Mr. Hy. Blair concerning several municipal matters.
The next meeting will be held on Monday night from 8.15 to 10.30.

Musketry Notes.

R. B. Job, Esq., has offered a series of prizes for the best scores made at the Rifle Range by our Volunteers, during the course of their musketry instructions. The great majority of the men are very keen to become good rifle shots, and the additional incentive of Mr. Job's prizes has created a healthy rivalry amongst our marksmen. Two of the prizes have already been competed for under the following conditions. A squad of twenty-eight men were given application practice at 200 yards at the head and shoulder target. The following made possible: J. J. Murphy, J. E. Moore, H. Thomey, W. Pys, A. Moore, and had to shoot off for the prize. The conditions being five shots magazine fire at the disappearing target, in five second intervals. The men were given a target with a score of 14 points out of twenty. A third competition will be held at an early date. On this occasion Mr. Job will present the prizes to the fortunate winners.

Painless Giving.

RUTH CAMERON.

Every now and then a letter friend writes me a letter so much more interesting than anything I have to say that my column belongs to him or her. To-day it belongs to the letter friend who has the story of a good habit to tell. "I wonder if you'd like to tell your readers," she writes, "about a habit which I formed some years ago and which has meant a great deal to me. "I call it the habit of painless giving. Six years ago, I think it was, I decided to put aside a tenth of my salary for charity.

The Advantages of Tithing From a Selfish Viewpoint.

"There is nothing new in the habit of giving a tithe to charity. I believe it dates back to Moses, if not farther. And the merit from the ethical point of view has been sufficiently dwelt upon. But I want to say something about the satisfaction the habit gives to the person acquiring it, its advantage from a personal, I might almost say from a selfish, point of view.

"Before I laid aside any definite sum for charity every charitable demand was a pull upon my pocket-book. It meant a painful struggle between my sympathies and my selfishness. I had usually planned how I was going to use all my income and if I gave, some plan for spending or saving had to be given up. And I hate to give up a plan.

No Sense Of Effort In Giving This Way
"But the moment I set aside a definite portion of my income, I ceased to think of the money set aside as belonging to me. When anyone asked me for funds for some charitable organization, or when I came into personal contact with a case of need, I could give without the slightest sense of effort. The money was there to be given, my only problem was how to give most wisely.

"There may be people who might give more if they gave by sympathy instead of by system. I don't think that is true of the average person and I know it is not true of myself. I am a working woman, with a comfortable but large salary. I am not absolutely sure when it was I started to give a tithe, but if it was six years ago, as I believe, and if my circumstances permit me to give as much for another year, I shall then have given away about a thousand dollars.

She Would Never Have Given That Thousand Otherwise.

"I feel sure I should never have persuaded myself to give as much if I had not acquired the habit of painless giving, and I wish more people could know the happiness which such a habit brings. "I can certainly say Amen to that last wish. I want to add one word. Too many people, feeling that they cannot afford to give a tenth, give up the idea of putting aside any definite proportion. That should not be a barrier. Have a seance with your conscience and your account book as to what proportion you can give, and then definitely decide to give that, no matter how small it is.

Calling Up Married Men

How Rent Difficulties are Dealt With Abroad.

That Parliament must, by some form of moratorium, relieve the attested married men when their groups are called up is generally recognized. With suitable safeguards for landlords and others, it is strongly urged that during the time a married man is serving in the Army, he should secure some measure of relief in regard to rent, leases, and agreements; instalments for hire-purchase; payments on insurance premiums, etc., etc.

In view of the great interest this question has aroused, it is interesting to turn to the systems adopted in Switzerland, France and Germany, where military service is compulsory. In the first place, it might be mentioned that in France and Germany there is complete rent moratorium (suspension) in the case of men called for service.

Extensive Protection.
Switzerland goes much farther than this, however. No soldier in the Swiss army may be sued at law during his period of military service, so far as his real property, personal possessions, and money are concerned. Furthermore, there can be no notice of ejectment, no recovery of debt, no cancelling of contract for non-fulfilment, or claim, for compensation or damages, for the State-imposed breach of contract can be introduced, provided the military call upon the person of the soldier is the actual cause.

Payment of insurance premiums cannot be pressed, and policies cannot lapse under the military moratorium. Arrears of rent stand over and cannot be collected, so long as the tenant can be shown to have no means.

What France Does.
In France, soldier citizens are strongly guarded by the moratorium. No rent, for instance, whatever may be the value or character of the property occupied, can be claimed either from the tenant who is with the colors or from the widow of a soldier who dies with the colors, or from the wife of a missing soldier, or from members of a soldier's family, who lived with him in the property occupied, or from a soldier discharged from the army owing to wounds or disease.

Furthermore, civilians are protected by the moratorium. A landlord cannot claim his rent, unless he can at the same time prove that his tenant is able to pay, when the property is situated in one of the twelve invaded Departments of the country. In a word, the French Government, it is pointed out by M. J. de Marsillan, the London editor of "The Journal," has tried to spare to all its children the anxiety of a threatened home.

It is unlikely, however, that such systems will be adopted in this country, for the simple reason that it is generally considered that any system which saddled our fighting men on their return to civilian life with a ballast of debt could never be adapted to the domestic conditions of this country. That is why, at the moment of writing, the Government are trying to devise better methods for the relief of married men called upon for military service.

Girls! Have Wavy, Thick, Glossy Hair Free From Dandruff

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments—try this!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scrub robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots flinch, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

Everyday Etiquette.

"Should I precede or follow an older woman when entering a room?" asked puzzled Bessie.

"On entering or leaving a room a young girl always permits an older woman to precede her," answered her mother.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drew them, I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. Our new RADIO X-Lamp and GASTHEM Radiators fill all light and heat requirements.

To-morrow morning the volunteers in training will hold church parade, accompanied by the C. C. C. Band. The turnout will, no doubt, be large, as there are over three hundred recruits in training at the Armoury now. After the various Church services the volunteers will make a tour of the city.

BE CHEERFUL. Don't talk of griefs and things like those, don't be a chronic fretter; for if you don't describe your woes, all men will like you better. Perhaps you have the largest corn that ever hurt a trill; but if you treat the same with scorn, you are more attractive. Perhaps you have an aching tooth that's given you the willies; why, then, conceal the hateful truth, and talk of Easter lilies. Time was when I would lose my chums as fast as I could gain them; they'd leave me gnashing teeth and gums—I never could retain them. My conversation gave a shock, and made the victims shiver, because I always wished to talk about my lights and liver. At last it dawned upon my mind that if I'd not be lonely, I must some cheerful subjects find—and cheerful subjects only. So I began to dance and sing, and talk of matters cheery, and people murmured, "You, by jing, no longer make us weary." I do not talk of how I feel, of anguish grim and gripping; if I have ear-ache in my heel, I talk of lambkins skipping.

Earn Money Knitting at Home. It is a fact at the present time that many ladies operating Auto-Knitters at home are making from $2.00 to $3.00 per day knitting hosiery. The work is pleasant and easily learned, and gives you steady employment at home the year round. Write to-day, to Auto-Knitter Hosiery Co., Dept. 260 D, 257 College St. Toronto, for full particulars, as more workers are needed at once.

Your Boys and Girls!

Supper for children from four to eight years should be made up of choice of strained rice and milk, rice pudding, junkets, custards, blanc manges, bread puddings, with cream toast as a hot dish. For the older children a plain cookie or sponge cake may be allowed, but is not necessary. Milk to drink should always be included at supper and breakfast and if a child has a small appetite a cup of milk with sweetener may be given in the middle of the afternoon, unless a very early supper is the custom. It will be noticed that no meat is included in the foregoing lists, nor is it necessary, but to add to the food value one egg a day may be given if cooked soft and given at dinner or supper is desired. One egg and one quart of milk daily takes the place of all meat.

BRITISH VICTORY REPORTED IN MESOPOTAMIA.

LONDON, April 14. The defeat of the Turkish forces in Mesopotamia, by the British, was reported only to-day. In an engagement on the Tigris the Turks were driven back from one and a half to three miles.

EVIDENCE OF HEAVY FIGHTING.

LONDON, April 14. Evidence that heavy fighting has been going on along the British front in France recently, is given by the casualty lists of the last two days. To-day's list contains the names of 24 officers killed and 107 wounded. Included in the list of wounded are a number of Canadians. There is a good deal of comment on the brevity of official reports. Of recent fighting actions, says a newspaper, one is continually learning from talks with men on leave, that they have been of great importance, but they have been described in curt two line reports.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, April 14. On the left bank of the Meuse was bombardment of our first lines west of Hill 304. On the right bank the Germans launched during the end of the evening a small attack against our positions, south of Douaumont, which was easily and completely repulsed. It was rather a quiet night, apart from the strong bombardment, south of Haumont in Woivre was an artillery duel, in Moulvaux sector. Nothing important on remainder of the front.

CONSCRIPTION FOR CANADA.

OTTAWA, April 14. National registration with a view to some form of conscription, is being urged upon Sir Robert Borden and the members of his cabinet by a large delegation, representing Ontario, the Maritime Provinces and the West. The gathering at the Premier's office to-day urged his support for the substitution of compulsory for the present voluntary system, saying that (1) the latter was not getting men, and (2) those who were coming forward were precisely those citizens which Canada could least spare.

UNITED STATES IN POSSESSION OF EVIDENCE.

WASHINGTON, April 14. #### POSTPONED SAILING.

NEW YORK, April 14. Sailing of the Cunard liner Orinda from Liverpool for New York, is postponed from to-morrow until April 18th, according to cable advices received by agents of the line here to-day. No reason is given in the message as to the cause of postponement.

PROHIBITIVE MEASURES.

LONDON, April 14. The British Government this evening proclaimed the absolute prohibition to export to any destination all kinds of pig iron and nearly all kinds of steel. The prohibition of steel applies to the variety used by railroads, ship builders, including rails, sleep-

PART OF CREW LANDED.

QUEENSTOWN, April 14. Sixteen members of the crew of the London steamer Isie, which was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, landed here today. A boat with eight men is missing.

BLOCKING THE WAY.

COPENHAGEN, April 14. The Norwegian Shipping Gazette says the German Navy has stopped the international passage way south of Sound Strait between Denmark and Sweden to stop British submarines seeking to enter the Baltic. Danish torpedo boats, says the Gazette, are watching the operations to make sure that obstructions are not placed in Danish territorial waters.

Pains Quit! Back-Soreness Goes, Torturous Lumbago Cured by "Nerviline."

This Wonderful Curative Linctament Has 'Most Magical Powers.

You can compare a congestive pain to a little fire. When congestion smoulders, pain comes and goes. Congestion grows into inflammation, and pain, now intense, grows excruciating and stays, too. There is an absolute antidote of pain—it is Nerviline. New, to you, perhaps is Nerviline, but known well in many lands as the most penetrating and pain-subduing pain remedy ever discovered. Not oily or ill-smelling, but pleasant—it rubs on. Not temporary action, but permanent in the control of pain.

Not an ache or a pain anywhere that it cannot reach. No soreness or strain that it has not the power to relieve.

Nerviline is the only remedy in the world sold under guarantee—it if it does not relieve you, you get your money back. Proof enough that Nerviline is a remedy that will fulfill absolutely every requirement of a pain-reliever, both for internal and external use. Backache it cures like magic. For rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, stiffness, sprains or strains, it is the only thing. Large bottle, 50 cents; trial size, 25 cents; at druggists.

Mr. Hickman presented a petition from Spout Cove, Bay-de-Verde District, asking that a railway station be erected between Spout Cove and Small Point.

Mr. Lloyd presented a petition from a number of inhabitants of the South Side of Trinity Bay, asking for a Magistrate. He pointed out that the entire district of Trinity has only one resident Magistrate. He is stationed on the North Side of the Bay, but has no jurisdiction over the South Side, the latter being served by the Magistrates of Brigus, Carbonear and Bay-de-Verde. He trusted the petition would receive earnest consideration.

Petitions on various public matters were also presented by Mr. Piccott, Mr. Grimes, Mr. Stone and Mr. Currie.

The Bills respecting the Encouragement of Shipbuilding and the Herring Fishery were read the third time and ordered to be sent to the Legislative Council for concurrence.

The Bill respecting Companies, payment of whose capital stock or of interest thereon is guaranteed by the Government, passed committee stage.

Yeomen of England.

Huntmen Volunteers Who Have Fought Nobly for Home and Beauty.

General Sir Ian Hamilton's stirring words of praise of the Yeomanry, during the operations on the Gallipoli Peninsula, must have brought home to the heart of every Briton a greater appreciation of the sterling services the "Yeomen of England" are rendering to their Country in her hour of need.

"The advance of these 'English Yeomen,'" said Sir Ian, "was a sight calculated to send a thrill of pride through anyone with a drop of English blood running in their veins."

Despite the critical events in other parts of the field, I could hardly take my glasses from the Yeomen; they moved like men marching on parade!

Thus, then, did the "Yeomen of England" bear out the traditions of their fox-hunting sires of bygone days throughout their baptisms of fire, through the hell of the fighting beyond Suvla Bay.

Known as the "Hunter Volunteers," Much, however, as the work of this magnificent force is appreciated, the "man in the street" knows little or nothing of its history or traditions. Yet it is one of the oldest forces in the British Empire, tracing its origin back to the Hobelers—i.e., mounted bowmen—of the reign of Edward III.

40,000 Yeomen enrolled themselves to defend our shores.

Up to 1828, the Yeomanry flourished and prospered greatly; but by that time the agricultural prosperity of England was on the wane. Many of the great farms were cut up into small holdings, and the farmers, themselves were beginning to emigrate.

The natural result was that, instead of the old Yeoman farmers and their hard-riding sons, the ranks of our auxiliary cavalry began to be filled with recruits from the towns, instead of from the country side—men not born to the saddle, or inured to dangers of the hunting-field from their youth up. For a time the Yeomanry felt upon evil times.

Nor was there any revival of the old spirit until the outbreak of the South African War in 1899. In that year Imperial Yeomanry companies for service overseas were formed throughout the land, and during that war no less than 35,520 officers and men went to fight for King and Country.

Praised by "Bobs," These were the men of whom the late Lord Roberts said, "I do not know what I should have done without them!" and who inspired Rudyard

"Sammy's" Luck Stick.

By the recent death of Sir Samuel Way, Chief Justice of South Australia since 1876, the Commonwealth has lost one of its most interesting and picturesque personalities. "Sammy," as he was known in Adelaide, was born at Portsmouth nearly eighty years ago, his father being one of the leaders of the English Bible Christians, and pioneer minister of the sect in Australia.

One of "Sammy's" most cherished possessions was a lucky stick, originally owned by Mr. W. B. Dalley, first Australian Privy Councillor, who gave it to Sir Alfred Stephen. Sir Alfred the second Australian Privy Councillor, bequeathed it to Chief Justice Way, and not long afterwards he was raised to the same dignity. "Sammy" carried the stick with him when he went to Windsor to be sworn in, and also when he took his seat in the Privy Council.

Sir Samuel was the hero of a love story which Australians liked to tell. It began when he was a poor man at the Bar, but as the years ran on the girl married another.

Many years later he found her a widow, and his early love became Mrs. Way—for the Chief Justice had refused knighthood again and again because he had no one to share the honour with him. When a baronetcy was offered him he accepted it. Lady Way died in 1914.

The high collar is not going to be very much worn this summer. Slippers of gold or silver are worn with frocks of any color.

"Our Boys."

They're coming, they're coming, who's coming you say? Why some of our Boys from lands far away; They're coming back home, for duty unit; They've been out to the front there, "DOING THEIR BIT."

Of course there's a few of this home coming crowd, Who didn't see "Battle," but of course we're proud; Of them just the same, they enlisted to fight; If we didn't welcome them too, why it wouldn't be right.

And take it from me, the "Doc" made no "His"; When he recommended "Discharge," as medically unit; They would all like to have had just a shot at the Turks; And deep in their hearts disappointment there lurks.

But those who have fought, and those who have not, Not for one single minute will they be forgot; And the old grey hair'd mothers who can't go to the station, Will be right there at home to give them an ovation.

So we're anxiously waiting for that incoming train; That's bringing our loved ones back home again; We'll sing "Rule Britannia" and make lots of noise; And we'll let everyone know, that they are all Our Boys.

No put out your flags, Union Jack at the top; And if business is slow, why, just close up your shop; No matter what weather, if its sunshine or rain, We must welcome THE HEROES back home again.

City. DAN DELMAR.
