CHAPTER XXXIV.

"Yes, I was crying. It was foolish; but I could not help it. I heard your pardon. The last time I heard that waltz I was—ah, so happy! and now—"

"Go on!" says Flossie, looking up at her, her own face pale and strained.

Paula gazes down at her as if she did not see her.

"When I heard that waltz last I was a girl, scarcely knowing what love meant. Now I know! It touched me to hear it, that is all. Go on playing, please."

"No!" says Flossie, with a strange smile. "I am not used to seeing people cry when I play or sing. And this waltz reminded you—"

Paula forces a laugh. "Of the time when I was very young and very foolish, and believed that happiness was possible in the world! I must have been very young and foolish, you see!"

"And he—" says Flossie, with a long-drawn breath.

"He!" says Paula, smiling through her tears. "Oh, it is the same old story: he loved someone else better, far better, and—and that is all."

Flossie looks up at the lovely face, so full of purity and dignity, so full of patience and long-suffering, and she rises slowly, painfully.

"Will you give me your arm to the sofa?" she says. "I have sung my last song, played my last waltz. I—I who used to make them laugh, have made you cry. Help me to the sofa!"

Paula almost carries the slight, frail form to the couch, and Flossie leans back for a moment in silence; then she raises herself and looks at Paula.

"You must have suffered much," she says in a strange voice.

Paula smiles. "Suffered!" she says, lightly. "Everybody suffers, sooner or later."

"And suffer!" says Flossie, with a wise shake of the head. "You are not of the kind who forget."

Paula smiles. "Does anyone ever really forget?" she says, absently turning over the books on the table. "I think not. We sometimes flatter ourselves that we do, but, sometimes, when we are least expecting it, the great sorrow, or, perhaps, the great joy, comes back to us; and of the two—with a reflective light in her deep eyes, and a pensive smile on her lips—"of the two, I think the memory of the great joy is the harder to bear."

Flossie leans back and looks up at her, a look of intense, strained attention in her eyes, her pretty, Grecian face pale and wan. That some sort of struggle was going on within her bosom anyone might have seen, but Paula was lost in the past and blind.

A heavy sigh broke from Flossie's lips, and she put her jewelled fingers to her lips with a gesture of hesitation and wistful weakness.

"Perhaps you will say, too, that it is impossible for us to—forgive?" she murmurs in so low a voice that it scarcely breaks the stillness of the room.

Paula sighs and shakes her head. "Oh, no. I think it is easy to forgive."

"Easy!" and the blue eyes open wide.

Paula laughs softly. "Yes, easy. What does it matter, once the wrong is done? If you cannot repair it, and cannot forget it, at least you can forgive. Besides, one cannot hate what one scorns or what one loves. Do you understand?"

Flossie's face grows paler. "I—I think I understand," she says, and her fingers close on to the palms of her hands. "Yes"—gazing at the lovely face so calm and serene in its purity and nobleness, gazing up at it with a childish kind of wonder as if it were the face of a superior being—"you, you are noble, while I—I— I—"

"And the red lips open and show a line of white ivory. "If I hate, I hate to the death! While you"—she stops—"would you be very angry if I asked you a question?" falteringly.

"Ask me twenty," says Paula, and she moves and leans against the couch, and looks dreamily down at Flossie's multitudinous trinkets and rings which glitter in the sunlight like rain-drops on a marble statue.

Flossie's heart beats fast. "You say that you can forgive those who have wronged you if you love them, because of your love, and forgive those whom you scorn because of your scorn? Have I got it right?"

Paula nods. "How serious you are," she says. "And her hand strays to the short curls. The tone of her voice, the caressing gesture, were just such as she would have used to a wayward child.

"Then you have forgiven him? You are not angry?"

For she feels Paula's hand suddenly clasp hers and motionless.

"No," says Paula. "But why do you speak of it?"

"You said you would answer me," pleads Flossie. "You have forgiven him, I suppose?"

"Yes, oh, yes," says Paula, as calmly as she can. "He knows—he knew

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.
 Here's an easy way to save $1, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 9 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth); then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 10 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 10 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for 5% ounces of Pinex with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

that at once, when we parted." Flossie's breath comes fast. "You forgive him! It is wonderful! I—I should have hated him. No, even if I had loved him, I could not have forgiven him. But she—she who came between you—you could not forgive her? Suppose, for instance—it's absurd, of course—she raises herself on her elbow, and gives a faint, sickening laugh, while her eyes fix themselves on Paula's dreamy ones—"suppose she came to you and—and told you that she was sorry—of course she would not! It's absurd, no woman ever did or would; but, just for argument's sake, supposing she came and went on her knees to you, and asked you to forgive her, what would you say?"

Paula's face is quite pale, and she stands silent for a moment. "I hope she would not," she says, very quietly. "I do not think she would—the happy so seldom need forgiveness. She is happy with him—"

Flossie starts, and raises her hand to her lips just in time to stop the exclamation that nearly sprang from them.

"Ah, I see," she says. "You think he went from you to her, of course—I suppose he must have done—and they were happy, while you—" She stops. She is trembling visibly, and the two spots glow like red camellias on her pale cheeks. "I thought you would break down," she says, with a laugh.

"A saint—and you are nearly one, I think—couldn't forgive her!"

Paula is silent for a moment; then she says: "I am not the least bit of a saint, but I could forgive her."

Flossie utters no word of comment, either of unbelief or surprise; but her eyes close and her hands clasp each other very tightly.

Paula looks down at her with tender concern.

"I think I must go now," she says. "I have tired you again."

Flossie shakes her head, and two big tears fall from under her closed lids.

"But yes," says Paula. "You are far too weak to bear even the mild excitement of a psychological discussion."

"Weak! Yes, I am weak!" murmurs Flossie, with bitter self-scorn. "But perhaps—wistfully—"I shall be strong some day, and then—then—will you come and see me, again? It is very slow for you—"

"I will come," says Paula, "and very often, if you will let me."

"Yes, I will let you," says Flossie, with a strange smile.

"Don't trouble to ring," says Paula. "I can find my hat and jacket. Good-bye!" and, moved to infinite pity for the pale, beautiful face, she stoops to kiss it; but with a sudden gesture, Flossie puts up her thin hands and puts them against Paula's bosom to ward her off.

"No!" she pants. "Not—not yet!" Then seeing Paula's face crimson with surprise, she catches her hand, and holding it tightly. "You—you don't think it is because I do not like you that I will not let you kiss me? Don't think that! You will know some day why—why I will not. Some day I shall tell you, but not yet—not yet!" Then seeing Paula's face still perplexed and troubled, she adds, with a nervous, forced laugh that rings sad and thin. "Haven't you heard of the superstition about kissing? You have not? I am very superstitious. So much so as to believe that those I kiss I must injure."

Paula stares, then her lips open, and she laughs softly, incredulously.

"Yes, that is right, laugh!" says Flossie, eagerly, still clinging to her hand. "I—I like to hear you. Of course it is only a weak girl's fancy. But as the doctors say, 'We must humour it.' Good-bye!" and with a strange gesture of suppressed emotion she turns her head away, so that it is hidden from Paula's gaze, and Paula goes quietly out of the room.

CHAPTER XXXV.

"Oh, it was awful!" exclaims Alice, the tears standing in her eyes for the first time in the course of this narrative. "It was awful!" and she extends and looks down at the pretty galatea dress, which, so crisp and smart in the morning, is now a limp and shapeless rag, besmirched with tar and grimed with sand. "Look at me! I was ashamed to walk up the parade! And I have so few decent dresses! I could sit down and cry; and I feel so ill, too!"

"But what has happened?" says Paula, staring at her with that mixture of astonishment and sympathy with which one regards the misfortunes of others. "You left this morning in the best of spirits—"

"This morning—yes!" retorts Alice, impatiently, as she makes a vain attempt to rub the tar marks out of her dress, and thereby rubs them still further in. "This morning was fine, the sea was like a piece of glass; you know it was!"

"Yes, yes," says Paula, kneeling down and examining the wrecked finery. "Well, and hasn't it been all day?"

"All day! Where have you been?" demands Alice, snappishly. "Have you been asleep, or lying with your head buried in the sand?"

"My dear," says Paula, gently, "you look as if you had been entirely buried!"

"That's right; soot at me!" says Alice, the tears of angry irritation springing to her eyes. "That is like selfish people all over; one sacrifices one's self for them and they—jeer. Paula, I think you are the most selfish creature in existence!"

"Perhaps I am," says Paula, placably; "but how have you sacrificed yourself for me?"

"How? You know I went in the wretched yacht for your sake—to to keep the thing together—"

"The yacht?" says Paula, puzzled. "The yacht! Paula, you are a fool! I can't help it, I really can't! The yacht! No! The Palmers. Do you think I don't care what becomes of you? Do you think I mean you to miss a chance like this, that has turned up for the second time?"

"I wish you'd leave me and my 'chances' alone," says Paula in a low voice. "But tell me about the trip."

"The trip!" echoes Alice, scornfully. "It has been the most awful 'trip' I ever shared in!"

"Worse than the coach drive to Sir Wolfert's tomb?" says Paula. "And it looked so fine, too, when you started!" (To be continued.)

Small meat left-overs can be mixed into a porridge of orzo meal, the whole poured into a mould until firm, then sliced and fried.

U. S. Government Reject Soviet Peace Offer.

French Premier Sees Revolutionary Movement in Railroad Strike -- Railway Men Blame Government-- Dempsey Indicted Before Federal Grand Jury-- Italians Agree to New Negotiations on Adriatic Question -- Strike May be Used as Weapon to Compel Nationalization of Coal Mines.

NO DEALINGS WITH SOVIETS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27. Soviet Russia's proposal to the United States for peace will receive no consideration from the American Government, it was said to-day at the State Department.

MILLERAND DECLARES STRIKE REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT

PARIS, Feb. 27. The railroad strike from which France is now suffering was characterized as a revolutionary development by Premier Millerand in the House this afternoon. The Premier, speaking on the bill introduced by Trocquier, Minister of Public Works, authorizing requisition of automobiles, trucks and airplanes in case of interruption of railroad traffic by the strike, said: "We are fearing a political movement or calling it by its name, revolutionary movement under a puerile pretext."

THE FRENCH RAILWAY STRIKE.

PARIS, Feb. 27. Railroad men at the east station in this city ceased work at seven o'clock this morning, and the strike situation also became worse at the northern station. The railroad service to suburban points was still further diminished with the exception of the line on the right bank of the Seine to Versailles. Railroad workers at Nice have struck, according to reports. The decision was reached by the French Cabinet this morning that the Minister of Public Works would ask the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon to discuss a bill authorizing the requisition of automobiles if railroad traffic is interrupted by the strike. Governmental intervention in disciplinary measures taken by the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean railway company towards employees, is opposed by Premier Millerand, who arrived here yesterday and at once plunged into consideration of the strike situation. Delegations of the Railway Workers' Unions conferred with the Premier yesterday afternoon relative to some action which would bring about a consideration of the dismissal of a workman named Campanaud, which caused the big walk-out, but the best Millerand could do was to advise the men to submit their case to arbitration. In the meantime the Railroad Company has dismissed 250 strike leaders in addition to Campanaud. The executive committee of the National Union of railway men last evening issued an appeal to railroaders, asking them to remain at their posts and not to follow the strike movement which "is clearly of a revolutionary character." In order to secure the revictualing of the city, "it is incredible," says the appeal in conclusion, "that after a five years' struggle against the enemy the railroad men would be promoters of civil war."

CLAIM GOVERNMENT SHOULD SETTLE DISPUTE.

PARIS, Feb. 27. The executive committee of railway men, after a long meeting, issued a statement throwing responsibility for the continuation and extension of the strike on the Government. They declare that to-day will be the decisive day and will determine the attitude of the Federation, and assert that the Government which has all the necessary powers can yet settle the dispute peacefully in the best interests of the country.

THE ADRIATIC PROBLEM.

PARIS, Feb. 27. Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand were able to quickly reply to President Wilson's note relative to the Adriatic through the action of Premier Nitti, who anxious to give proof of his moderation consented to enter into fresh negotiations with M. Trumbitch, the Jugo-Slav Foreign Minister, says "Pertinax," political editor of the Echo de Paris. The British and French Premiers, therefore, hastened to make known this new Italian concession to Mr. Wilson, begging him to use his good offices to facilitate an agreement. The Supreme Allied Council also considered yesterday morning the answer to the observations made by the Entente. "Pertinax" concludes. The Council he understands, maintains the treaty terms in their essentials particularly the clauses relating to territory.

WILL AID FARMER.

duce next year. The Minister says the Government is gravely concerned over the decline in wheat production of the United Kingdom which is attributable to State control and consequent absence of free market the result being that almost any other crop gives the farmer a better return.

DENMARK TO JOIN LEAGUE.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 27. The Parliamentary Commission named recently to discuss the Government's proposal that Denmark join the League of Nations has reported in favor of such action.

PAYING PRUSSIA'S DEBT.

LONDON, Feb. 27. A wireless despatch from Berlin states that the German State will take over the Prussian railways for thirty-four billion marks, of which twenty-four billion will be used to pay all converted and unconverted debts of the Prussian State. From the balance of ten billion marks the Prussian State will receive annually four hundred million.

FRENCH AVIATORS SAFE.

PARIS, Feb. 27. Major Vullemin, pilot, and Lieut. Charleaux, observer, who were lost for more than a week in their flight across the Sahara desert, are reported by the French aviation department to-day to have landed safely at Mentaka Village, east of Timbuctoo, on the Niger River.

RAILROAD BILL NOW UP TO THE PRESIDENT.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 27. The Compromise Railroad Bill was returned to the White House to-day by the Department of Justice, to which it was referred Wednesday for an opinion as to its validity. The President was expected to act on it to-day or tomorrow, Attorney General Palmer informed the President that he saw no conditional objection to the measure.

DEMPSEY IN TROUBLE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27. Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, and his manager, Jack Kearns, have been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury on a charge of conspiring to have Dempsey avoid the Selective Draft, according to a responsible Federal official here to-day.

GOOD ADVICE.

OTTAWA, Feb. 27. In the Senate to-day Senator Proudfoot opened the debate on the speech from the Throne. He took up the question of exchange and advised home purchasing until the United States accepted Canadian money at par.

GOOD FOR THE DOMINIONS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27. That the British Dominions would be forced by the exchange situation to trade more among themselves was declared by Mark Sheldon, the High Commissioner of Australia, at a luncheon of the Bond Club here to-day.

THE REPLY TO WILSON.

LONDON, Feb. 27. The reply made by Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand to President Wilson's latest communication on the Adriatic question repeats the assurance that they never had any intention of making a definite settlement without obtaining the views of the United States Government. The reply, which is dated Feb. 26th, states that the absence of an American representative had proved in practice an almost insurmountable obstacle to the success of the negotiations.

LABOR THREATS.

LONDON, Feb. 27. The Parliamentary Committee of the Labor Party adopted a resolution yesterday that a Trades' Union Congress was to be held on March 11th to take action to compel the Government to nationalize the mines. This may take the form of a general strike.

KOLCHAK EXECUTED.

LONDON, Feb. 27. The execution of Admiral Kolchak, head of the All-Russian Government, is related in a War Office despatch yesterday as follows: "Irkutsk had been recaptured by Siberian troops, formerly under Kappel, but now commanded by Voltshovskii. This force after cutting through partisan department appeared at Chermosovo, north-west of the city. Voltshovskii proposed terms to the revolutionary military Soviet in exchange for which his troops would not enter Irkutsk. These terms included unmolested passage of his army eastward, cessation of hostilities, payment of a large sum of money, provisioning of his troops, and surrender of Kolchak. This occurred February 5th. The Soviet refused these terms, executed the admiral, and began evacuation on Feb. 8. Voltshovskii's men are reported to have entered the city.

THE CAILLAUX CASE.

PARIS, Feb. 27. The cross-examination of Joseph Caillaux by Prosecutor Lescove took up the whole of the session of the Senate sitting as a High Court of Justice yesterday. The hearing did not bring out any new features or facts concerning Caillaux's activities during the war, but mainly dealt with the Treaty of Algebras which Leon Bourgeois, who is President of the High Court, declared was necessary, in order to throw light on Caillaux's activities during the war.

WRECKED STEAMER PLUNDERED.

QUEBEC, Feb. 27. Despatches reaching here from Tadoussac state that the steamer Canadian Recruit, which has been high on the rocks at Vache Point since December, has been plundered during the winter and goods and effects of considerable value have disappeared from the ill-fated vessel. When the depredation was discovered, Federal police were put on the case, and after an exciting chase they arrested a farmer whose home is at St. Firm, and discovered a quantity of stolen goods.

THE ST. LAWRENCE PROJECT.

TORONTO, Feb. 27. Toronto and other cities in Ontario will send representatives to Buffalo next Monday to urge upon the International Joint Commission the deepening of the St. Lawrence River Channels. The Great Lakes St. Lawrence Tidewater Association is strongly supporting the scheme of the St. Lawrence Seaboard system and is co-operating with Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association in connection with claims to be laid before the International Joint Commission at Buffalo.

INCREASING PRINTER'S WAGES.

SCRANTON, Feb. 27. Announcement was made by three newspapers published in this city yesterday of voluntary increase in wages to all employees of composing and news rooms of $5 per week. In future printers will receive $45 a week with corresponding increase for executives.

DELAY BRITISH SHIPS CAUSES LOSS.

LONDON, Feb. 27. The delay in the sailing of the former German liner Imperator under the British flag came up in the House of Commons yesterday. Answering a parliamentary question whether the delay with respect to British steamships such as the Imperator and consequent loss to British companies had been caused at New York or other American ports, Andrew Bonar Law in a written reply said that considerable loss had been caused the British Government by the retention of the steamers in question after the completion of the American services in which they were engaged. Representations had been made to the United States Government by the Ministry of Shipping and the question as to whether a claim should be submitted was being considered.

Among those who have risen from a comparatively humble position to considerable wealth during the recent past in Paris is a rag and bone dealer who formerly gained a meagre livelihood by picking over garbage boxes before doors along the streets during the early morning. He bought a large number of waterproof coats for 2,000 francs at a liquidation sale of American army stocks and made a profit on the resale of 180,000 francs. This sum he invested in further purchases from the liquidated stocks, buying boots, shoes and blankets. As a result of his business acumen he now has a bank account of over 1,000,000 francs.

Complaint Made.

Some of the parties who have been cutting ice on Long Pond for a number of years past have lodged a complaint with the Agricultural Department against the action of the parties who placed a concrete dam at the mouth of the pond. The ice men complain that since the dam has been placed in position the water will not run clear of the pond, causing the ice to flood and interfering with the work of cutting. One man who has a contract to cut some 500 tons of ice is quite indignant and threatens to demolish the structure, saying that the company who placed it there had no right to do so.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

HOW CHILDREN HAVE IMPROVED

RUTH CAMERON

"There's one thing," said a woman of the older generation, "about the way that children are taught nowadays that I think is a great improvement over the way we were taught."

It is so rare that a member of the older generation thinks that anything about the bringing up of children has improved, that I was naturally interested.

"The way they teach them current events in school," she elucidated. "I've noticed that my sister's children know a great deal about current events, and when I asked them how they knew so much, they told me the teacher talks about the news of the day in school and some times they had home lessons in it."

If there is a universal tendency in this way—and I am inclined to think so—then surely this is a fine ovation.

How to be a Good Citizen.

The first essential of being a good citizen of a democracy is the desire to be one, the second is the necessary knowledge. And if one begins with a child to take an intelligent interest in the real news of the day, he will be that much better able to take up intelligently one's share of the white man's burden—and privilege.

It Really Makes Me Blush.

It makes me blush when I look back and think how very little I knew as a child, and even as a high school girl and a college girl, about the current events of the day. An unexpected test given by our public law professor, in which he asked us all to answer questions on the lives of all who were our elected representatives in the seats of government and a few other simple questions along that line, brought out appalling results, even from the pupils who led their classes in the required work.

Expect when the child of this day gets to college he will be able to pass such a test with flying colors.

That a Wonderful Growth-Up He Should Be.

Indeed, if the child of to-day responds to half his opportunities, he ought to make a wonderful adult. Another friend of mine was commenting recently on how much the moving pictures teach children. He is a man who has travelled a great deal, and he says he seldom starts to tell the children something about his travels that they do not say, "Oh yes, we've seen that in the movies." Truly, the child of to-day ought to be a Daniel come to judgment when he—and she—grows up.

Biggest Washing Book in the World.

The "Register of Laundries and Laundry Marks," which is kept at Scotland Yard is undoubtedly the biggest "washing book" in the world, comprising, as it does, seven massive volumes, with an eighth in course of preparation.

Herein are recorded particulars that render it possible for the police to trace the ownership of any piece of wearing apparel that has ever passed through the wash, provided only that the laundry mark is decipherable.

Many scores of criminals have been brought to justice through its agency, two of the most notable being the notorious station thieves, who were sentenced to three years' penal servitude at the Old Bailey in 1904. Arrested on a minor charge, the men were found, when taken to Pentonville Prison to be wearing marked linen stolen from railway passengers, and were indicted accordingly.

It is, however, in cases where unidentified bodies are found, under circumstances pointing to foul play, that the Yard's "washing book" is most rigorously scrutinized. In one instance, that known at the time as the "Yarmouth beach mystery," over 300 laundries were visited by the police in order to ascertain if possible the ownership of a woman's under-garment, which bore what is known in the trade as a "customer's mark," but from which the establishment's private mark had been accidentally omitted.

It was traced at last to a small hand laundry at Woolwich, whither it had been sent by a Mrs. Bennett. Twelve hours later the dead woman had been identified, and her husband was in custody charged with her murder.

He had, he thought, obliterated every clue. He had persuaded the woman to stay at Yarmouth under an assumed name. He had also, by specious pretences, got her to hide her identity in every other possible way. And he had decoyed her to a lonely part of the beach at dead of night, and there strangled her—silently, swiftly,

Mainly About People.

Walter P. Chrysler, the Detroit man who developed and built up an automobile enterprise until it made $40,000,000 last year, is in the prime of life at 44, full-blooded and vigorous.

Paul Deschanel's persistency won him the Presidency of France. He directed the whole 408 votes in 1899 and 18 votes in 1913 and 408 votes in 1920. He directed the whole course of his life to that end and never tired in planning to its accomplishment. There are many Frenchmen more brilliant, but none more determined than the victor over Clemenceau.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., scion of the famous family of millionaires, is ambitious to become a great writer. He has graduated from the cub class of New York newspaper reporters and is getting more than $30 a week. He is not only living on his pay of $40 a week, but he is managing to save $5 a week for "the lean year."

President Wilson's official reporter and personal stenographer, Charles Lee Swem, came from Grovesville, N.J. He was a graduate of a Trenton business college when President Wilson was about to step from his man-sized job as Governor of the State to his present position of head of the nation. In answer to an appeal for "their best man," Swem showed up one day at the President's rooms. He was only a young chap in his teens. He didn't in the least look like the sort of person one would want as stenographer extraordinary to the President. But after a trial dictation he turned in a 100 per cent. correct transcription of the President's speech, he got the job.

Blunt, and if necessary, brutal, sums up the character of Lord Fisher, the dean of the British Navy, whose recent book, "Memories," created an international interest, who, in regard to the waste of money by the admiralty, says "Sack the lot." One of his greatest admirers was Queen Victoria. A delightful story is told of how, when a certain French admiral was about to pay a visit to Portsmouth, her Majesty, evidently fearing Lord Fisher's pugnacious bluntness, asked him to be sure and "be very nice." "Ma'am," he replied, "I'll kiss him if you wish."

SYMPATHY.

W. H. MASON

To-day there is an icy glare upon the walks and everywhere; and as I journeyed sadly home, I slipped and landed on my dome. I cracked an acre of cement, and in my head there is a dent. I sprained my neck and spoiled my face, my works were jolted out of place. And there were many people near who saw me sliding on my ear. They must have longed to laugh, all right, for I was an amusing sight, but no one shed a single smile; they all rushed up, in sprinter style, and lifted me upon my feet, and from my whiskers oozed the sleet, reclaimed my hat, which was a wreck, unwound my coatfalls from my neck, and voiced the hope, in anxious tones, that I had warped no costly bones. Perhaps they chorled in their glee, when they were where I couldn't see perhaps they leaned upon a fence and whooped as though they had no sense, but in my presence they displayed the finest sympathy that's made. Then I resumed my journey home, to write this realistic poem, and murmured, as I went my way, "These human beings are O. K."

Household Notes.

Clean wood ashes make a cheap and excellent cleanser, even for milk pans.

Pastry should be rolled lightly, that the air may not be pressed out of it.

Immature meat, such as veal, lamb and pork, should be thoroughly cooked.

Wilted celery can be crisped by standing in water with a little lemon juice in it.

Baby's underwear should be ironed on the wrong side as well as on the right.

Powdered orris root under the ironing blanket will perfume the muslins under it.

A paper bag makes a handy cover to slip over a pitcher which contains milk or food.

Badly spotted tan shoes should be put on a shoe tree and scrubbed with soap and water.

Cook the cauliflower entire, the leaves and stems that surround it are delicious served with it.

It is the worst possible economy to save on food to such a degree that the family health suffers.

A simple tapioca pudding is made of the tapioca flavored with fruit juice and served with boiled custard.

Never allow fat to smoke. It decomposes and forms a substance which is irritating to the digestion.

Save pound tins which have contained baking powder, they are nice for steaming brown bread and puddings.

If the housewife attends to the planning of the meals and goes over the pantry and refrigerator each morning to select the food, she will find that her supplies will last much longer than when she allows a servant to attend to the work.

Just Folks

Life.

Life is a blend of the good and the bad. A bit of the glad and a bit of the sad. A pinch of contentment, a time of unrest. A dash of the worst and a lot of the best. A little of failure, a little of luck. A bit of disaster and plenty of pluck. And who would live long must be willing to know Winter and summer and sunshine and snow.

Life is a mixture of laughter and tears. Hope and despair are a part of the years; Some one is born and then somebody dies. Some one is foolish and some one is wise; Some one is false to us, some one is true. Now it is play and then tasks we must do; Who grows to manhood must learn how to take Joy with its laughter and care with its ache.

Life is a blend of the good and the ill. And we must bear what shall come by His Will; There must come tears to the brightest of eyes. Care visits the rich and the strong and the wise; No one escapes when the rain pelters down. To-day you may smile, but to-morrow may frown; So stand to your portion of sorrow and strife. And know that it's all in the battle called Life.

The doctor was demobilized in October last, and has since taken a post graduate course in the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital and in the New York lying-in hospital. Dr. Dwyer graduated at Dalhousie University, and afterwards spent a year in Canadian Hospital work. He was here on a brief visit in 1917. After spending a short holiday at Holyrood, Doctor Dwyer will likely take up practice here.

Sunday School Staff Entertained.

A very enjoyable time was spent last night at the home of Mrs. A. Horwood, Barter's Hill, through a surprise party being arranged by the officers and teachers of George St. Primary Sunday School.

The ladies composing the party were Mrs. Hardman, of Leslie St., Mrs. Dalton, Pleasant St., Miss Bessie Snow, Water St., East, Miss Dalton, Leslie St., Miss Bessie Snow, Leslie St., Miss Coish, Hamilton St., Miss Gillingham, Cabot St., Miss English, Pleasant St. and Miss Muriel Rowe, Barter's Hill. Other teachers were unavoidably absent through illness and other causes. A presentation was made to Mrs. Horwood, consisting of a beautiful and costly silver Casserole dish, accompanied by a magnificent bouquet of Tulips.

The following address was read by Mrs. Hardman.

Dear Mrs. Horwood.—"We have called upon you this evening to show in some way our great appreciation of your past work with us. Our hope and prayer is that the years as they come and go may bring to you the utmost of happiness and only enough trials to temper character and make you even more of a ministering spirit than you have been before. Please accept the accompanying gift as an expression of our esteem and regard."

Signed on behalf of the Officers, Teachers and Scholars of George St. Primary Sunday School.

A reply was made by Mrs. Horwood expressing thanks for, and appreciation of the manifestations of exceptional kindness displayed by the donors. The enjoyment was continued by amusements, suitable to the occasion, interspersed with piano selections beautifully rendered by Mrs. Hardman, Miss Coish, Miss English and other performers. After partaking of a sumptuous repast, the party dispersed to their respective homes, with expressions of enjoyment derived from the hours all too quickly flown.—Com. St. John, Feb. 28th, 1920.

Richards Was as Helpless as a Little Baby

Halifax Man Suffered Sixteen Years From Rheumatism—Tanlac Again Proves Merit.

"Well, if ever a man had cause to feel grateful I'm that man," said Simeon Richards, 3 North Park Street, Halifax, in relating his experience with Tanlac to friends at Kinley's drug store, Halifax, recently.

Mr. Richards was born in Lunenburg county and has lived in Nova Scotia all his life. Mr. Richards not only has many friends in Halifax, but is also well known in Bridgewater where he formerly lived for eight years and was engaged in the lumber business.

"Besides getting rid of a case of rheumatism that made life miserable for me for sixteen or seventeen years," explained Simeon Richards, "I have gained fifteen pounds in weight and I can't help praising Tanlac. I have often been as helpless as a baby. My right arm, side and leg hurt me so bad I had to have help to turn over in bed. My muscles had so I couldn't even raise it off the bed clothes and for weeks at a time I couldn't feed myself. The leaders and muscles of my legs would draw up and ache so I couldn't walk a step and sometimes the pain in my right leg was so severe that if I tried to move it I couldn't help but scream right out. My joints seemed as stiff as a board and there was a dull, nagging pain from my hip clean down to my foot all the time. At times such keen pains would shoot up and down my sciatic nerve that I could hardly stand it. If my muscles had been tied in knots, or a red hot iron had been placed on my leg, the pain couldn't have been worse and for two weeks at a time I have been unable to sleep a wink. That awful throbbing pain never let up for a single minute. I couldn't straighten my leg out to save my life and there I would lie for two and three weeks at a time in so much misery I thought I would go wild with those terrible attacks of rheumatism."

"After getting out of bed it would take me a week to get so I could walk without a stick and, sometimes, I wouldn't get out of bed before I came down with another and would be as helpless as a child again. At one time for more than three months I was unable to hit a lick of work. My general health was bad also. I had no appetite, lost twenty-five pounds in weight, or more, and felt completely worn-out all the time. Now, this is what Tanlac has helped me out of and words cannot express my thankfulness. It was last August that Tanlac straightened me out and since that time I haven't felt a sign of rheumatism, and never enjoy my better health generally than I do now. Although I work every day and am exposed to all kinds of weather I never feel an ache or a pain. My stomach is in fine shape, my appetite couldn't be better, and I am just feeling in the pink of condition. My wife is now taking Tanlac with splendid results and you can say for me that I believe it is the greatest medicine in the world."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; in Harbor Buffett, by Thomas Wakely & Sons; in Placentia, by Mack Murphy & Son, and in Topsail by J. K. Bursell.—adv

Nature's Greatest Washers

The sea washes the world—Pears' Soap washes its inhabitants!

For over a century, Pears' has been making its way round the world. Ask for it in your local store; it is there! From the Cape to Cairo, in the bazaars of India, throughout Australia, Canada, the U.S., and South America Pears' has made its way with civilization,—on merits!

Pears' Soap is transparent because it is pure; it is the most economical soap because it wears but does not waste. It cleanses and purifies the skin and freshens up body and mind.

is not heavily scented. Its delicate perfume comes from pure natural ingredients; the difference is important,—it means again that Pears' soap is pure.

Stay in Bed to Grow.

How many people are aware that we are shorter when standing than when lying, and taller in the morning than in the evening? asks Tit-Bits. An Englishman was the first to discover this, but afterwards Dr. Marand, of the Royal Academy of France made several experiments to prove the theory. He found after a year's trial that usually in the night he gained almost three-eighths of an inch, and lost almost as much during the day. The cause of this is to be found in the different state or condition of the cartilages which go to make up the spine.

The joints of this part of our bodies are separated and yet joined by particular bony substances, every one of which has a springy resilience. These are capable of yielding on all sides without bending the backbone or spine itself. Of course, the difference is scarcely perceptible in one joint alone, but the combined effect is appreciable. Naturally when the spine is supporting the weight of the head it is liable to be contracted.

and we are taller after lying down for some time than after we have been walking about all day with our bodies in an upright position, with the spine supporting the weight of the head.

At night time, when we lie down in a more or less horizontal position, these top parts do not weigh so heavily, and the springy muscles being expanded, our spines consequently become longer.

Another proof of this is to be found in the increase of height sometimes experienced by invalids who have spent a long time in bed, and also in the fact that the most rest a young child has the taller he will grow.

Christianity and Bolshevism.

Part of the Charge of the Rt. Rev. J. E. Bidwell, D.D., at the Recent Synod of Ontario.

While the clash of arms in open warfare has now ended as far as we are concerned for over a year, the world cannot by any means be said to be at peace. Everywhere there is social unrest; the propaganda of anarchy and revolution are being spread far and wide even in our own country to an extent which the ordinary law-abiding citizen is totally unaware. For these sinister forces work largely underground and in secret, so that when they consider the opportune time has come they may strike unawares against an unprepared and unsuspecting people. Again, there is in political life a dangerous tendency towards the formation of groups representing certain classes of the community, which, however, lofty their profession of governing in the interests of all alike may be, are almost certain, human nature being what it is, to modify those professions in the direction of the interests of the particular section of the community which they represent.

Christianity Antidote for Anarchy.

There is no more powerful protection against the prevalence of anarchist teaching than to spread far and wide the principles of Christianity. For it bases all its teaching upon the twin foundations of a man's duty towards God and his duty towards his neighbor. Anarchy or Bolshevism, which is simply an inverted tyranny, aims at destroying all law and order in the name of a false freedom, which speedily becomes despotism of the worst kind. Christianity teaches men to believe in a God of Law, Order and Love, and that the only freedom worth while is the freedom to serve God and their fellowmen under laws which are wise, just and beneficial to the whole community. It, therefore, becomes of the utmost importance that most careful Christian instruction should be given not only to the young, but to all who can be reached, in order to strengthen them to resist the insidious attacks to which they are exposed. This is what the Church is trying to do, and it ought to be able to enlist the steady support of all those who desire peace, goodwill, law and order to prevail, rather than social strife, suspicion, anarchy, and disorder. Bolshevists hate Christianity, and suppress it wherever they have the power, because they are well aware that where Christianity is strong their tenets can never make headway. We ought, therefore, to take our obligations as Christian citizens, with the utmost seriousness, and see to it that no effort is lacking on our part to maintain and spread abroad that living Christian influence which is alone to be relied upon to overcome the subtle propaganda by which our liberties would be undermined and destroyed.

Group Selfishness.

At the same time it must be remembered that though as was often said, the war was waged to "make the world safe for Democracy," and though we have seen dynastic autocracies and oligarchies go tumbling to their ruin as its result, yet we must have the right kind of Democracy if the costly struggle is to be proved worth while. Group selfishness masking itself under so-called Democratic forms of government is little better than despotism. True Democracy does not mean that the majority shall relentlessly impose its will upon the minority. It is the government of the people by their duly accredited representatives in the interests of the whole people in which the rights of minorities and of individuals are duly protected and observed. In the support of government of this kind the Christian spirit is of the utmost value. For Christianity is at once social (not socialistic), and individualistic, social, in that it teaches that we are all members one of another in a great body of which Christ is the head, children of God and brothers in Christ, with duties towards one another which we may not overlook; individualistic, because Christ Himself taught us the infinite value of each single human life in the sight of God, so that no Christian dare despise even "the least of these His brethren." We need to approach whatever problems we have to face resolutely in this spirit, to get rid of selfishness, which only looks to the welfare of the section of the community to which a man happens to belong, and to substitute for it as our great working principle in all the activities of life, the rule to which all our conduct, private and public, shall conform, the foundation of all our relationships with our fellowmen in the many and varied interests of life—the teaching of Christ that we must never act in such a way as to forget that all of us are children of God, all of us are brothers in Him. To accomplish this, we need earnest Christians backed by a strong Church.

What the Forward Movement is. That, in a general way, is what the Forward Movement stands for. Now let us see what it is not. It is not an attempt on the part of the Church to seize, so to speak, the government of the world. That is not and should not be the Church's work. It is her duty to supply the inspiration and motive, to keep the spiritual alive in the midst of the material, to care for and tend men's souls, to foster the spirit of love, duty and service. But men are afraid, as they often put it, of the Church growing too strong, because they mistake for the voice of the Church as a whole the shrill cries of certain extremists who aim at eliminating and making illegal everything in the nature of enjoyment or amusement which does not meet the approval of their cramped and distorted view of life. On the contrary, the stronger the true spirit of Christ in the world, the weaker will fanaticism grow. It is just because the loving, large-hearted, wisely patient, and intensely human spirit of the Son of God has been so poorly represented in the Church, that narrow fanaticism has been able to take its place. But if the Church displays, as pray God it will, the true spirit of Christ in its dealings with the world, no one need be afraid of making it strong. For it is easy to see that the whole world would benefit from such strength as that.

A business man at Oil City, Penn., who took a drink from a bottle of whiskey sent him by mail just before leaving his home for the office, was sure that he had been tricked by wood alcohol and was stricken by sudden blindness when he looked up and could not see the church clock which he had consulted every morning for 20 years. Rushing to the doctor, he got great relief when the doctor told him that the church had burned down in the night.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice Sears, at New York, awarded Mrs. Robert W. Herwig a verdict of $2,000 against the Hotel Biltmore, at New York recently. She and her husband, Captain Robert W. Herwig, U. S. A., were ejected from the hotel one morning in June, 1918, because the latter had failed to register before going to the room which his wife was occupying as a guest. The manager of the hotel testified that he gave Herwig the choice of leaving the hotel or registering.

Because he couldn't take two quarts of liquor ashore at New York, recently, from the United Fruit steamship Carrillo, Major William B. Davis, Inspector-General of the U. S. troops in London during the war, decided to depart again. The U. S. could stay dry if it wanted to. He was through, and he said so in picturesque language. Henceforth he would make the Carrillo his home, or at least until such time as he could get back to South America. "If I can't bring my liquor back into my own country, then I'll stay right here," said the Major, and sent his valet to the ticket office of the United Fruit Company to buy return passage.

The Worst Spot in Europe is Village of Synatin.

Synatin, formerly a thriving village in Eastern Galicia, now a ruined town belonging to Roumania, is the worst spot in all Europe, according to Leo Wolfson, New York attorney and journalist, who recently returned from seven weeks spent in studying political conditions in Eastern Europe.

"Of all the suffering I saw during my trip through Europe, poor, wretched Synatin will always remain imprinted upon my memory as the most heart-rending and most harrowing of all," declared Mr. Wolfson. "Never did I encounter misery so deep and poverty so wretched as in this remnant of ruins, which reminds one of a cemetery."

"The few persons one happens to see, barring the soldiers, sit dejectedly on their doorsteps, gazing at the sky and waiting for salvation from there. Perhaps, too, they are waiting for the Angel of Death to come and release them from their too heavy burdens."

An old Jewish patriarch whom Mr. Wolfson met on the street, described the town in these tragic words: "The few persons left living would be better off dead. God forgive me for such words."

how the Russian army had driven out several thousand Jewish families, how 500 families have not enough to live through a single day and that the coming winter would undoubtedly wipe out the entire Jewish population. "We have no strength left to suffer; forgotten by God and the world, it is our bitter lot to perish here of hunger and cold." The old teacher wept as he recited to Mr. Wolfson the tales of suffering of the most tragic town in all Europe. "The help we have received has just sufficed to keep body and soul together. If not for that, no one would be alive here today. Many families have died."

"Practically every Jew is in need of help. There are few who can help themselves. There is no work, trade is at a standstill. We have no money with which to buy stock, and then there is no one one to sell to. We are in need of everything, food, shoes, and above all raw materials. If we could get raw materials, we would have something to work upon, and could perhaps earn something," the old teacher concluded.

In the Prize Ring.

RICKARD SIGNS DEMPSEY.

Paris, Feb. 14.—Tex Rickard, American fight promoter, who staged the Ward-Dempsey fight, will put on the next world's championship contest between Jack Dempsey and Carpentier.

Descamps, manager of the European champion, after announcing that he had received assurance that Rickard had signed Dempsey, said he probably would sign with the American promoter as soon as he arrived in America early in March.

In securing the signature of the world's champion, Rickard has outdone Theodore Vienne, Charles B. Brane and William Fox, who made offers for Carpentier's name on agreement.

Descamps left to-day with his wife for a week's exhibition in the Carlo, following which they will take a tour of Italy. Before leaving, Descamps in an interview expressed his hope that he would be able to secure the signature of the champion to permit the American fans to know the real situation.

New York, Feb. 11.—"I have nothing to say just at this time," Tex Rickard said here to-day when asked about the announcement of M. Descamps, manager of Georges Carpentier, that he was almost sure of landing the Dempsey-Carpentier fight.

COCHRANE BACK TO ENGLAND.

Liverpool, Feb. 16.—Charles B. Cochrane, fight promoter, arrived here to-day after a visit of several months in the United States. He expressed absolute confidence in his ability to land the Carpentier-Dempsey match in London.

Tex Rickard is my only serious competitor," said Cochrane, "and there are only two cities where such a bout can be staged—New York and London. It cannot be held in New York unless a special law is passed, and there is little chance of that."

Asked if he had succeeded in getting Dempsey to sign up, Cochrane said: "No, he has not signed yet. He has had reasons for not signing before the end of February. William A. Mulvey will make the necessary arrangements in my behalf."

How about Carpentier?" "He's bound to me for the rest of the year and part of 1921. His share of the money is to be $100,000 and an additional $5,000 for expenses. Dempsey's share will be $200,000. The stockholders now in Europe, trying to land the fight may as well start for home, because they cannot legally land Carpentier in the face of the agreement he has with me."

REMPSEY OFFERED $250,000 TO FIGHT O'DOWD.

New York, Feb. 18.—Georges Carpentier may make his first appearance in an American ring with Mike O'Dowd rather than Jack Dempsey as his opponent. It was learned to-day that Tex Rickard recently cabled Carpentier an offer of $250,000 for a meeting with either Dempsey or O'Dowd, and it is expected that the French idol will accept the offer.

If he obtains Carpentier's signature to a contract to box either the heavyweight or middleweight champion, Rickard will reserve decision on the matter of selecting the man to oppose him in his first engagement in this country.

There can be no serious objection to a bout between Carpentier and O'Dowd, for the Frenchman is a light heavyweight, who does not outweigh O'Dowd more than 10 pounds. Mike has expressed a desire to meet Georges, and neither the American Legion nor any other organization can take exception to O'Dowd's war record.

Carpentier and his trainer, Lascaris, will give sparring exhibitions, and with Lascaris playing the part of Beckett, of the now famous short bout in London last December, they will give a reproduction of that affair.

AUSTRALIAN BOXER FOR AMERICA.

San Francisco, Feb. 18.—Another Australian boxer soon will be on his way to this country. He is Jim Tracy, a heavyweight, who has been making good of late in the Antipodes. Tracy is a twenty-two-year-old youngster, built along the lines of Fred Fulton. He is 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 195 pounds.

Tracy has all kinds of confidence in himself. He says that if he cannot beat Gunboat Smith and Battling Levinsky, then he will return to Australia and never think of boxing again. According to Tom Andrews, who recently returned from Australia, Tracy is extremely fast with both hands and feet. He has a good left hand and is improving rapidly.

QUICK DEVELOPMENT OF HEAVYWEIGHT SCRAPPERS.

This is a period of reconstruction in boxing as well as in other things. With the ending of the war has come a flood of new talent. So far no great star has arisen from among the crop of soldier boxers, but there are several good prospects, any or all of whom may develop real ability in time.

These youngsters are being nursed along carefully. It will be some time before such men as Gene Tunney, Ray Smith, Bob Martin and Bob Fitzsimmons are ready to be classed as contenders for the heavyweight, but there is reason to believe that at least one of the lot will eventually make good.

Crack ring fighters are seldom made over night, although there have been some notable exceptions to that rule. Not more than ten or a dozen fighters who attained fistic fame without going through a long course of preparation can be named. Not one of the lot was a particularly clever boxer. Boxing is an acquired science and it takes time to master it. The men who reached the front quickly were natural fighters.

Jim Jeffries heads the list of those who emerged from obscurity and became famous without receiving the benefit of a long course of preliminary training. The giant bullfighter was a movie, with less than a dozen battles to his credit, when he went to New York in search of a match with Champion Bob Fitzsimmons. Fitz had done no fighting in over two years, so he thought it would be well for him to start with an easy one.

Fitz had been among those present when Jeff had tried to impress New Yorkers by taking on two men in one night, and the champion had laughed heartily at the big fellow's clumsy efforts. So when Jeffries returned to New York later, Fitz picked him out as a mark. But big Jeff had learned a good deal in a short time and he proved to be too tough for the eleven rounds and winning the world's heavyweight title.

Although Jeff was world's champion he still was nothing but a novice in many respects. It was his wonderful physique that enabled him to triumph over Fitz and his ring tricks. Later on Jeffries acquired a little of the science of boxing and he became a far more formidable fighter.

Lacks Experience.

Jack Dempsey, the present champion, is far from being an experienced fighting man. It is true that Dempsey had quite a number of battles and that he had disposed of all the contenders before he tackled Willard for the title, but most of his bouts were over so quickly that he did not gain Dempsey's natural speed and hit-much experience.

His ability were all that he needed to stam most of the clumsy second fatters to sleep in a round or two. He has been in few tight corners that required ring generalship on his part. He has not been hurt or tired except on a few occasions. It is only on such occasions that a boxer gains the kind of experience that makes him a better man than he was before.

Stanley Ketchel's rise to fame was almost as sensational as that of Jeffries. Ketchel was an unknown when he managed to get a match with Joe Thomas, then the leading contender for the welterweight title. His two battles with Thomas made the unknown Ketchel a star, and he continued to show remarkable form from that time on. Ketchel never did become particularly clever, but he was a natural fighting man and he needed little science to help out his splendid physique.

No one ever heard of Jack Munroe until the Butte miner boxed a four-round exhibition with Jim Jeffries. Jeff either slipped or was pushed down in that affair and the next day the miner was known all over the land. Eventually Munroe proved to be a diver as a glove fighter, but at that he did great work for a novice, beating such experienced hands as Tom Sharkey and Peter Maher before he stacked up against Jeffries in a return match. Like other ring sensations, Munroe had an exceptionally fine physique.

Tom Shurkey's rise to fame was sudden and sensational. The sailor had done considerable glove swinging while in the navy, but he had taken part in only half a dozen professional bouts before he met and defeated the noted Joe Choynski. Then he fought a four-round draw with Jim Corbett and the sailor was made. Sharkey lacked skill, but he possessed an abundance of strength, speed and endurance.

Little Men Need Science.

Among the lighter men there have been very few overnight wonders. That is because science cuts far more figure in the lighter classes than it does in the heavyweight division. Any big man who is game and has a great deal of speed and endurance is a dangerous proposition in the ring, because one well placed blow always will win a bout between heavyweights.

Among the little men science counts far more than strength. No unskilled novice can ever hope to get anywhere in the lightweight class, no matter how fine a physique he may possess. It takes years of experience to make a lightweight champion.

Lightweight history tells of no more sensational rise to fame than that of Willie Ritchie, who won the lightweight title before he was well enough known to have his fistic record included in the standard boxing guides. Yet Ritchie had been boxing for four years before he defeated Ad Wolgast for Young Corbett was another sensation. Corbett was practically unknown in the east when he came on from Denver and knocked out the great Terry McGovern at Hartford. But Corbett had men plenty of experienced men before he tackled Terry. He had four years of experience behind him, during which he had tackled such cracks as Benny Yanger, Ed Broad, Eddie Sanyer, Oscar Gardner, Joe Bernstein and Geo. Dixon.

Death of Sir John Tenniel.

Sir John Baptist Tenniel was born in Kensington, on February 23, 1820, and there educated. His stay at the Royal Academy was brief, and afterwards at the Clifton Street Art Society's School he met Charles Keene, with whom he formed a close friendship. His first introduction to fame was in 1836, when he exhibited at the R.E.A. a picture entitled, "The Stirrup Cup," which was bought by Tyrone Power, the Irish actor. In the following year Tenniel exhibited at the Royal Academy, and continued to do so until the late '70's. He will best be remembered, however, for his connection with "Punch," and in this connection he was described by Mr. E. V. Lucas as "the greatest of cartoonists and the whitest of knights." On the unexpected resignation of "Bucky" Doyle on November 27, 1886, Mark Lemon invited Tenniel to succeed him. He had made his mark by illustrating "Esop's Fables." In the following February there appeared in "Punch" Tenniel's first cartoon, "Lord Jack the Giant Killer," while his last appeared on January 2, 1907, narrating the New York. One of his most famous drawings was that of "Dropping the Pilot" (1890), which so pleased Lord Rosebery that he commissioned a drawing of the subject, and ceased

Eugenie Still Lives.

Wife of Napoleon III. Walks in the Tuilleries Gardens.

A very old woman walking in the Tuilleries Gardens stoops to pick an autumn flower from a fading clump. The passersby look at her again. She is even older than they had thought her; certainly over eighty, possibly ninety; the eyes are sad, as if they had seen too many tragic decades. It is against the law to pick flowers in the gardens of the Tuilleries, yet the police look on calmly and say nothing. She passed with her one maid, and a bystander asks who she may be. "The ex-Empress Eugenie," answers the policeman, "wife of Napoleon III. Ninety-three if she's a day. Comes here once in a while."

Eugenie, wife of Napoleon III, to whom Metz meant approaching disaster and Sedan the end of the world; Napoleon III, whose mother taught him in banishment that he must re-establish the Bonapartes as a dynasty, who became President and finally Emperor of France by one of the strangest shifts of history, and who lost his crown by precipitating the war that created modern Germany and started the controversy over Alsace and Lorraine; Bismarck and King William of Prussia, organizers of the German empire and arch-enemies of France in 1870—these are memories and shadows to the rest of us. But to the shadow of a queen, walking in the garden that was once the garden of her palace and plucking flowers absentmindedly, as was her privilege long ago, these are the only realities. What has Liege or Verdun or the Marne meant to her as she sat in her seclusion at the end of a long century? Has she known, or did it matter to her, which side was winning in the ancient struggle for the left bank of the Rhine? Has she any inkling that it was Napoleon III, as much as Bismarck, perhaps more than Bismarck, who set the forces in motion for the world war? Perhaps the world war itself, which has beat our nerves into agonized pulp, did not penetrate her solitude, or annoy her with the noise of bombs and long range cannon, or the sight of wounded men. She has escaped from our generation into the past, taking with her all sense of responsibility, all moods of the present tense. And the dead of her generation escape with her. What does it matter to them if we blame them for a war of our day? We might have avoided it, they would tell us, if we had wanted to badly enough. "We learn from history," says Hegel, "that men never learn anything from history."

Meanwhile the former Empress Eugenie walks through the gardens of the Tuilleries in the flesh, and the dreams of her youth have been dead so long that she herself hardly knows now what they were. Why should we try to lengthen our lives when the body so often continues on futilely beyond the life of the spirit, like an arrow shot past the target? To Eugenie, the old and forgetful woman, it must seem that she has lived quite long enough.

The Unemployed "Bread" Law.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I notice that the Board of Food Control recommends the enforcement of the Act of 1916 relative to the weight of bread. Permit me to say a few words on the history of this enactment. In June, 1906 I read in the Trade Review the following item:

"In Montreal, bakers must stamp the weight and their initials on every loaf they send out for sale."

I then wrote the Trade Review, giving the history of our own Act, which read (and still reads) as follows:

"Leaves of bread intended for sale shall be made of the following weights, namely: four pounds, two pounds, one pound, and eight ounces, and shall have stamped or marked thereon the initials of the maker and the weight of the loaf; and the vendor of bread shall keep a scale and weights, and shall, if required, weigh the bread for the satisfaction of the purchaser, and bread offered for sale of short weight, shall be forfeited and may be seized by the purchaser or intending purchaser, or any peace officer, and delivered to any justice, who shall dispose of the same for the benefit of the poor: Provided that this section shall not apply to loaves made to order and wrapped in the desire of the customer, nor to loaves or cakes weighing less than eight ounces. Prosecutions for breach of this section shall be commenced within three days after the offence shall have been committed."

The first Weights and Measures Act of our Legislature was passed in 1834. It made no reference to bread. In 1864 a new Act was passed which, among other things, provided for the seizure of short-weight bread. The "bread" clause then read as follows: "All bread, not biscuit, intended for sale shall be made to the following weights respectively, and no other, namely: four pounds, two pounds, one pound and eight ounces. And the seller of such bread shall have the initials of his or her name marked thereon in Roman letters, and also the weight, and shall keep on his or her counter a scale and weights to weigh such bread for the satisfaction of purchasers."

The next clause is the same as in the Act now in force and provides for the seizure of bread of short weight and the disposal of same by the Justice to the poor. Our ancestors were very careful, however, for, like the Daylight Bill, this Act was renewed yearly until 1867 and then made permanent. In 1866 and 1867 it was added to and provisions made for the sale of herring and for gauging. In 1872 the Act was consolidated and the wording used in the consolidation is the same as that in the Act of 1916.

Now here is an Act that has been the law of the land for over half a century, yet none under forty can remember ever seeing it carried out. Do bakers stamp their loaves with the weight and with their initials? When you buy a loaf of bread does the vendor weigh it and cut off a slice from another loaf to make up the weight? There are vendors of bread in this city, who never heard of such a law. Notwithstanding the fact that our legislators have repealed it twice since the fire of 1892 and once since the beginning of the Great War.

Here is an example of a law which is never enforced. Nobody who buys bread wants to carry around with him an extra slice. No one, on purely philanthropic grounds, attempts to enforce the Act and there is no appeal to selfishness, for the penalty is that the bread shall be given by the Justice to the poor. It is a question whether the general fine of twenty dollars applies to this section.

There are one or two other dead letter laws on the Statute Book. The Cigarette Law and the Sweepstake Act are instances and the Prohibition Act is falling into the same class.

Yours truly,

WARWICK SMITH.

He Could Hardly Walk to His Work

TILL HE USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Now Stating That He is Completely Cured, John Richard recommends All Sufferers from Rheumatism to Use the Dodd's Remedies.

Ringwood, Ont., Feb. 27. (Special)—After being crippled with Rheumatism so that he could hardly walk to his work, Mr. John Richard, a well-known resident of this place, says he is again as well as ever he was in his life. He states that the credit for his cure goes to Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I suffered greatly from Rheumatism and Lumbago," Mr. Richard says, in telling his story. "I had cramps in my muscles and specks before my eyes."

"I was so bad with Rheumatism I could hardly walk to my work."

"I took six boxes each of Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and they cured me completely."

"I recommend Dodd's remedies to all who suffer."

Dodd's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys. By strengthening the kidneys they enable them to strain all the impurities, all the uric acid, out of the blood. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. Crystallizing at the joints, it causes those excruciating pains so many people know. The natural remedy is to take the uric acid out of the blood by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

PRINCESS MARY TO TRAVEL.

I hear it said that towards the end of the summer Princess Mary will make a tour of the Northern capitals Copenhagen, Christiania, and Stockholm—and will probably be accompanied by Prince Albert. The Queen of Norway, during her recent visit, invited Princess Mary to stay with her in Christiania some time this year. Princess Mary accompanied the King and Queen when they paid their State visit to Paris in April, 1914, four months before the outbreak of the war. This is her only State visit to a foreign capital so far, and she will travel incognito to Scandinavia.

RESTAURANT-KEEPING FOR WOMEN.

It is many years since educated women first found that tea-shops provided a pleasant means of making a living, and there are several restaurants in London which have long been noted beyond their immediate districts. Now the idea is becoming more popular, especially among women who as cooks and waitresses in war-time restaurants have had a useful experience. Several W.A.A.C.'s have opened "The Good-Humored Ladies" Restaurant in Chelsea and last week a divisional recruiter for the W.A.A.C.'s has opened a delightful little restaurant near Fleet Street in Shoe Lane. It is known as the Brownie Restaurant, after the name given to the W.A.A.C.'s in France. Dame Florence Leach has visited it to congratulate the staff, all of whom have served under her command. Near by, in Wine Office Court, the Wine Office House Restaurant has been established in three rooms of an old house. It is furnished in cottage style, and is haunted by many journalists, who have discovered that the meals are good. Two other ladies have opened the Wayside Restaurant in a side street near Chancery Lane Post Office, and good meals are served in prettily furnished rooms. Next the Norwich Union building in Fleet Street a window announces that yet another venture is to be made, and the Futurist Restaurant will soon be opened. There is plenty of room for all these new restaurants without interfering with such old-established favourites as the Temple rooms or the dining rooms in Clifford's Inn.

SCOTLAND YARD AND THE DETECTION OF CRIME.

The epidemic of serious crime (including murder, wild West hold-ups, shop gutting, post office safe lifting, etc.) which is raging just now, has revived the oft-heard suggestion that our various local detective systems should be placed in direct touch with Scotland Yard in London, to which department immediate communication of the details of the gravest offences should be made with a view especially to tracing a missing criminal or identifying an arrested suspect. There seems a popular idea that something of this sort of liaison work already exists, but that is unfounded, and the consequence is that much priceless time is often wasted which can never be regained, and usually by the most slow and backward police organizations in the country, these keenly representing the interference of those of superior skill. No one desires a return to the employment of the Blathers and Duff type of "Bow Street Runner" immortalised by Charles Dickens in "Oliver Twist," or even to such a dullard as Inspector Bucket of "Bleak House," probably the worst drawn detective in fiction. Those who remember the great Sergeant Cuff in "Wilkie Collins's "Moonstone" will know the quiet scorn he poured on the local police for their lack of appreciation of obvious clues; and when reading the reports of certain very recent undetected crimes one sees so many points of resemblance that another Sergeant Cuff seems needed to-day to pour some further contempt on the inert. That the London police force has its own weaknesses is evident from the fact that seven constables have been taken in a bunch for leaving their "beats" in the wealthiest parts of the West End of the Metropolis to go and play cards in an adjoining motor garage. Things of this kind, coupled with the return of criminals from the Army and all the rest of the happenings that go to make up the crime boom that is now going on explain popular indignation and unrest in the matter.

A BRAIN-ATTACKING GERM.

The details published from Paris of the spread of lethargic encephalitis in France, cases having been reported from all parts of the country, are of painful interest to those here who know from sad experience that this dread complaint is far from being confined to the other side of the Channel. Cases of a very severe nature have occurred in England, and some in a university center, whose highly-promising students have been suddenly stricken with a paralytic stupor which has brought low even the healthiest athletes. There is a suspicion that the complaint—which is not unknown to medical science, though its visitations have come at rare intervals—was this time brought to Europe by American officers returning from the front, and though it is stated from Paris to be not very contagious, the fact that the germ enters the system through the nostrils and attacks the nervous substance of the brain gradually creeping down the spinal cord, is sufficiently alarming to demand the utmost precaution. The spread of the disease is regarded in the United States, I am told, as very serious, and the greatest care is taken to isolate the sufferers so as to prevent infection. It may be from fear of creating a general alarm that no such drastic steps appear yet to have been taken in regard to certain at least of the cases which have occurred in this country, but in matters of disease it is possible to push the "hide-the-truth" policy much too far.

A COUNTERPANE CAMPAIGN.

Admiral Sir Douglas Brownrigg's rich picture of Winston Churchill conducting a campaign from his counterpane was hugely enjoyed amongst both enemies and friends of the War Secretary. The story is told in the Admiral's book, "Indiscretions of the Naval Casar," of how Churchill sitting up in a huge bed, evidently suffering from a gumbell, with his head swathed in flannel, and a big cigar protruding from among the bandages, dealt with bundles of despatches which he spread over his quilt. There was a glass of hot water within reach of his hand, a typist sat at the foot of the bed, and the Admiral was in the background awaiting instructions. The story is incomplete in one detail. It does not mention the Minister's taste in pyjamas. But members of the House of Commons who took part in the all-night debates on the 1909-1910 Budget will recall evidence they then had that Churchill's eccentricities of dress are not confined to funny hats and outdoor apparel. On that occasion he rushed into the division lobby with an overcoat thrown over a sleeping suit of gay and gorgeous hues. And if he wore anything as striking when the Admiral visited him, there was certainly color in the picture. Churchill is nothing if not unconventional. His little hat which he perches jauntily on the side of his head has long been a source of entertainment. An unkind critic suggests that it was the last one left in the club one night. But the hats and the collars and the overcoats pale into insignificance beside this new picture of the Ministerial matutinal levee. Was it not Napoleon who anticipated the Churchill penchant for conducting campaigns from his camp bed?

CURIOS BECOMING DEARER.

Never has there been such a boom in antique furniture and glass as now, and there seems no likelihood of prices falling. In the neighborhood of the King's Road, Chelsea, which has always been one of the hunting grounds of the collector, many dealers show no desire to sell what furniture they have, as the supply is limited and friends of mine who made inquiries prices still rising. In two shops a number of tables displayed in the shop were told that they were not at present for sale as they had to be polished before they would be ready. This is a common answer to stave off the persistent buyer. There is also a great demand for old Waterford glass and an expert assured me that more has been sold during the last few months than was ever made by the famous factory. Much spurious glass and furniture is being imported from the Continent and some is manufactured in London. It is the work of skilled craftsmen and often will deceive experts at both auction rooms and the principal museums.

GERMAN DIPLOMATS.

Berlin's diplomatic appointments leave the old "professionals" in the cold, although intriguers like Dr. Rosen survive. There are no Socialists. Kautsky is not there, nor even Bernstein, but only the tame Dr. Landeberg. Great business magnates are well represented by Senator Dr. Stamer, for London. A curious exception is made in the case of Tokio, whither Dr. Solf, the ex-Colonial Secretary, is to proceed. This statesman, friend of Kuehlmann and Bal-lin, was associated with Germany's secret overture to Japan for a German-Russian-Japanese alliance during the war, another prominent agent in this diplomatic plot being the banker Herr Stuermer.

HOW YOU CAN TELL GENUINE ASPIRIN

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the labels, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

There is only one Aspirin, that marked with the "Bayer Cross"—all other tablets are only acid imitations. Look for the "Bayer Cross"! Then it is real Aspirin, for which there is no substitute. Aspirin is not German but is made in America, and is owned by an American Company, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" have been proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages, can be had at any drug store.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylic Acid.

Great Exercise to Keep Liver and Bowels Active, But if You Won't, Then take "Cascarets"

There is nothing like bending exercises, taking long walks, or chopping wood to keep the liver and bowels active, but most folks take their exercise in an easy chair. Such folks need Cascarets, else they suffer from headache, sour acid stomach, indigestion, colds and are miserable.

But don't stay bilious or constipated. Feel splendid always by taking Cascarets occasionally. They act without griping or inconvenience. They never sicken you like Calomel, Salts, Oil, or nasty, harsh Pills. They cost so little too—Cascarets work while you sleep.
