CHAPTER X.

"I would brave death in a thousand horrible forms for your sake. Shall I not dare, then, to tell you that I love you a thousand times better than man ever loved woman?"

She tried to check him; but it was impossible. She raised her hand and held back the almond-blossoms that touched her face. To the end of her life the sight of almond-blossoms filled her heart with pain.

"I know well what a gulf lies between us," he continued; "but my great love shall bridge it over. You have all that the world can give you; I have merely energy and patience, in which I have full faith. Some day I shall inherit my father's vast wealth—and in your hands would become a power. I love you with immeasurable love; no one else can ever love you so well. Be my wife; give me your name—you will have to give it to the man you marry—and I will hold it with honor even as you do yourself. Trust it to me; I will keep it untarnished and spotless."

She felt that she must speak. She flung the almond-blossoms from her hand and cried—

"Hush, hush. You are mad! It would be like sacrilege!"

"Sacrilege?" he questioned.

"Yes. Besides, of what use could it be to give my name to you?"

Slowly he rose from his knees and stood before her, all the gladness fading from his face.

"I do not understand you. Will you repeat your words? I have not heard you right. The wind, the wind from over the mountain, has driven me mad!"—and he gave a laugh that was terrible to hear.

"I repeat," she said, "that it would be like sacrilege!"

"Sacrilege?" he questioned.

"Yes. Besides, of what use could it be to give my name to you?"

Slowly he rose from his knees and stood before her, all the gladness fading from his face.

"I do not understand you. Will you repeat your words? I have not heard you right. The wind, the wind from over the mountain, has driven me mad!"—and he gave a laugh that was terrible to hear.

he like sacrifice to give my name, the name of an ancient, honored, noble race, to you, the son of a commoner." "Twenty generations removed from being a gentleman!" he added, with a wild, mirthless laugh.

Lady Iris had recovered herself. At first the shock had been so great to her, the surprise so complete, that she was quite unable to get the better of it. She had now recovered her calmness and her judgement. Her first feeling was one of indignation that he should have dared to touch her, to take her hand, to force her by the power of his will to go out into the grounds with him, that he should have dared to make love to her, he, whom she had never in the least degree acknowledged as an equal; that he should have presumed to ask her to be his wife and to intrust him with the grand old name she held in honor. Her face flushed with anger, her eyes grew proud and cold and her lips scornful.

"I wonder," she said, slowly, "that you have dared to say what you have said! I have given you no encouragement for such presumption. Why have you dared to hold my hand and kneel at my feet?"

"Am I lower than your dog?" he asked. "I have given you lay your hands carelessly on him and have envied him."

His words only angered her the more.

"I cannot understand," she said, "how you have the presumption to speak to me in this way. I have never by word or look given you the least pretext for addressing me in such a fashion. Let me hear no more of this; your love insults me!" she added, in a clear high voice.

He trembled, and his face blanched. His first impulse was to turn aside with a muttered curse; but once more he fell upon his knees by her side, and hot tears filled his eyes, once more he clasped the hands of the girl who had wounded him so sorely—and the very majesty of his sorrow compelled her to listen and be silent.

"Listen to me only once," he cried; "let me say all that is in my heart! You condemn me because I am humble-born. Be just. Is it my fault? Let me ennoble myself—every man can do so if he will. I would work night and day to make myself noble in your eyes. Do not send me from you with harsh words; do not call my love an insult. Remember that, though I am lowly born, my heart is human and sensitive. Have you no compassion, no pity for me?"

For a moment she was sorry for him. She saw in the moonlight all the passion of pain in the wet eyes, and something like pity stirred in her heart. But it soon gave place to hot indignation.

"I do not wish to be unkind to you," she said; "but you have no right to speak to me in this way—nothing can justify it. You have sought my advice; and I have given it to you; you have sought my friendship, but that I never gave you; and now you come to me and ask for my love. You ask me to marry you, to give you my name, to make you a Fynde of Chandos. I say that your presumption is greater than that of any man I know."

"You should pardon it for the sake of the love that inspires it," he said. "I acknowledge no such love, and I shall never pardon it. I repeat what I have said—your love insults me!"

She had stung his pride at last. He sprang to his feet, and a hot flush came to his face.

"If I am presumptuous," he said, "you are proud; if I go too far in one direction, you do the same in another. The love of an honest, honorable man can insult no woman."

"You insult me," she returned quietly; and for a few moments they looked at each other steadily.

He spoke first, and it was with some warmth.

"I have staked so much on my love," he said, "that I feel that I must appeal to you once more. If you send me from you without hope, you will embitter my whole life."

"I cannot help it," she replied coldly.

"If you send me from you," he continued, "you will prevent my ever becoming a good man. If you would be kind to me, I would spend all my life in doing good. Send me away, and I go out into utter darkness."

"It is not my fault," she said proudly. "I have nothing to do with it. I tell you honestly that I do not love you, that I have never felt much liking for you, that nothing would ever make me love you, and that, being what you are, even if I loved you to distraction, I would not marry you; and no time or words will ever make any difference."

"In fact, the love of a man so humbly born, although the son of a millionaire, is but an insult to you?"

"It is but an insult," she echoed; and again they stood in silence for some moments looking at each other.

Her words had some home—they had struck the very core of his heart. He gazed at her steadily as she stood there in the moonlight, her beautiful face so proud and cold; and, as he looked, the love which had filled his heart changed slowly to deep undying hate. His love died a violent death—her cruel, scornful words had killed it—and with it all that was best and noblest in John Barton. Presently he said—

"While I live, Lady Iris, I shall never forget those cruel words. I have said that I love you. I have told you that I worship you. I take back my words; I have no love for you. Had I known you as I know you now—fair of face, but cold, proud and haughty, without pity, without heart—my love should never have been offered to you."

"I am very glad to hear it," she replied frostily; and her coolness angered him even more.

One gleam of pity or of tenderness would have brought him to her feet again, and they would have parted friends; but her proud indifference enraged him more than her scorn.

"The time will come, Lady Iris," he said, "when you will bitterly repent the words you have spoken to me, and will wish that they had never been said."

"I do not think so," she replied coldly.

"If a child came to you from one of those poor cottages in King's Forest and offered you a flower grown in his humble little garden, would you fling it from you scornfully? No, you would take it with kindly smiles and thanks. Why, then, when a man comes to you with his greatest treasure—his love—should you throw it back to him with so much bitter pride? I offered you the most precious gift I had. Why have you rejected it with such infinite scorn? Why did you not speak gently to me? The pain was hard enough to bear without the scorn."

There was enough truth in his words to make her feel annoyed with herself, but his speech only increased her anger toward him.

"I have no desire to hear a lecture from you, Mr. Barton," she said. "If you please, we will go back to the house."

He raised his miserable face to the sky.

"Great Heaven," he cried, "how cruel a woman can be! How can so fair a face hide so cold a heart?"

"My heart is not cold," she replied. "Because I do not love you, you are not to assume that I love no one. I wish to return to the house, Mr. Barton."

"And that is all you have to say to me and ask for my love. You ask me to marry you, to give you my name, to make you a Fynde of Chandos. I say that your presumption is greater than that of any man I know."

"No," she said coldly, "not one."

"You have crushed every hope I had, you have pierced me to the heart with your cruel words, and yet you have not one word of pity for me."

"Not one."

"You have nothing to give me in return for my life's love but the assurance that my love is an insult to you and like sacrilege!"

She was silent for a few moments and then said—

From Compliment to Insult.

If you had called even the fiercest of our Saxon forefathers a silly idiot, he would not have been displeased, for in those days silly meant blessed or happy, and idiot meant nothing more than a private person.

Nor would he have taken offence had you referred to him as a crafty swindler, for these are both words that have changed their meaning in the course of centuries. Crafty once implied not shiftness but skill, whilst a swindler was a man who was good at driving a bargain.

Other words which, though now uncomplimentary, were once quite the reverse are officious, which formerly meant kind, and consoled, which full of ideas or originality.

But the Saxon warrior would have derided a horrible death for you had you ventured to call his wife a lady! This word has gone up in the smokes, whilst the others have gone down. It really means a kneader of dough, or a bakehouse maid.

Diced tart apples, seeded white grapes, nasturtium seeds and dried oranges marinated with French dressing make a delicious salad.

SHARD'S LINIMENT FOR GAGGET IN COWS.

Knotty Points.

Can you tie a knot? Nine people out of ten can't do so! If they wish to tie up a parcel they always finish off the string with a "granny," which is a very insecure affair.

The difference between the safe reef knot and the slipping granny is very small. It is quite easy to learn, and once you have got the "hang" of it, it will never be forgotten.

The best way to learn is to take the ends of a piece of string and to mark one of them by threading a piece of coloured silk through it with a needle.

Now tie a single knot in the ordinary way, passing the "marked" end over the other. To tie a reef knot bring the former back over and round the unmarked end, and then draw tight. The natural way is to turn the marked end under the other, which produces a granny.

If the granny does not slip it runs up into a little hard ball which cannot be undone without a good deal of trouble. The reef knot, on the other hand, can be loosened in a twinkling. It is well worth while to spend five minutes in learning how to tie it.

SURGERY.

Though I'm in a fierce condition, with diseases nine or ten, I don't seek the learned physician in his highly ornate den. In the dear dead days now vanished I would fly, and my divers ills were banished in the twinkling of an eye. He'd indulge in harmless banter, making me forget my ills, then he'd hand me a deceiver of his compound juice of squills. This was long ago, my masters, when man wore a liver pad, in the days of porous plasters, ere the saw became a fad. Now, no matter what my ill is, the doctors talk the same; ostracised the good old pill is, saying is the only game. I was sick with Texas fever, and the doctor said, "By Jim, your one hope is in the cleaver—let me lend you limb from limb. If there is an ill I catch it every ailment I endure; and the doctor says, "The hatchet is the only certain cure." "Drugs are but a useless fizzle," says the healer, with disdain; "with my buck-saw and my chisel I will rid the world of pain!" Long research has taught us better than to dope away your life; I will cure your mumps or tetter with my ax and drawing-knife. And the surgeons still pursue me, as they follow other hicks, asking for a chance to hew me and to pile me up in ricks.

Household Notes.

There are approximately two cups of butter to a pound.

Silk and woolen clothes should always be washed separately.

Apples can be baked as usual and canned in a thin sugar syrup.

Honey should never be put into refrigerator, as it will granulate.

A cupful of chopped walnuts is a delicious addition to raisin pie filling.

An excellent marmalade may be made from the pulp left after making grape juice.

Corn pudding is attractive baked in ramekins and sprinkled with buttered crumbs.

Inch lengths of cooked asparagus are good combined with thinly sliced cooked carrots.

To store peas, parsnips or carrots for winter, put into boxes and cover with sand.

Britain Marches Steadily Onward.

STILL CARRYING TORCH OF CIVILIZATION, SAYS CANON CODY.

Rev. Canon H. J. Cody was in his best vein recently when he addressed a large gathering of members of the Canadian Club in the ballroom at the King Edward Hotel. Canon Cody drew largely on the incidents of his recent trip to England, and while at times his hearers were in roars of laughter, there were other occasions when he touched the deeper of pathos...

FRANCES W. H. TAFT.

Proceedings, Canon Cody touched on various aspects of his trip, and said that the passage fare to England was a great obstacle in the way of drawing nearer to the Motherland. The third-class now was as much as the first-class before the war. He travelled over with William Howard Taft, whom he described as one of the greatest international factors in the world to-day, and a man who was doing more than anyone else to promote a better understanding between Great Britain and the United States.

IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

Canon Cody described his experiences when he preached in Westminster Abbey, and said that although he was a Canadian born and bred, yet, on entering the Abbey he felt as if he were coming home. On viewing the monuments to the illustrious dead he said: "I felt that I, too, was of the blood and that I would try to be worthy of these great men whose voices seemed to be calling me from the past."

Official Closing of The Aero Tennis Club.

The official closing of the tennis season was held by the members of the above club in St. Patrick's Hall last evening. The affair was in the nature of a dance and supper with toast list and short programme. Invitations had been extended to the other clubs in the Bay with whom tournaments had been played and representatives from Bay Roberts were present, messages being received from the others expressing their inability to attend.

Song—Mrs. W. L. Ross. This song, a couplet with it its donor, Prop. E. L. Oke. Presentation of the Cup and toast to Winner, L. O'Brien; Resp. Miss G. Casey.

Song—C. George. The Officers and Committee—Prop. J. Sutherland; Resp. E. D. Freeman. The supper was held at 11 p.m. and the various speeches were both interesting and pleasing, after which dancing was continued until 1.30 p.m. when the last dance was called and ended a most enjoyable evening.

In Mr. Archibald's speech he made mention that he had approached the other clubs in the Bay and St. John's with the idea of holding an annual tennis holiday, when teams from the different clubs would meet at a fixed place and hold championship games. This would mean the deciding of the Newfoundland Championship and greatly encourage the playing of tennis, at the same time extending the social circle. Of course there would be two championships as the courts in the Bay are hard courts, while those of the Nfld. Tennis Club at St. John's are grass courts so the two would have to be distinguished between. The idea had met with the approval of the other clubs and it is expected that the necessary arrangements will be made and the first of such events will be held here next season.—Hr. Grace Standard, Sept. 29.

Spectacular Settings in "Gilded Lily."

MAE MURRAY SCORES AT THE NICKEL.

The principal attraction at the Nickel Theatre last night was "The Gilded Lily" featuring Mae Murray. The picture, depicting life as it is lived by a certain element of the Times Square mob, is shown with a great deal of veracity in this Paramount release. The types of Broadway rounders are faithfully and amusingly portrayed and the production has a fine setting without resorting to freak effects. The scenes at the Cafe Royal are very artistic and there is correct judgment in the selection of all the accessories.

Guarantee Scheme Afoot.

The Advocate as usual, begs the point. It does not now concede—because it does not suit its book—that the price of fish is what Coaker makes it. Rather it decries the onetime boast of its chieftain, and endeavours to draw the proverbial red herring across the track of argument, by declaring that "the serious situation regarding the price of fish does not worry either the Telegram or the News." Inveracious as ever the Advocate makes up in shiftiness that which it lacks in courage. Did it not spread to the world in broadcast fashion and with spectacular display of headlines not so very many years ago that it is out of man's remembrance that the price of fish is what Coaker makes it? Why then to-day evade that statement? If Coaker made the price of fish in the fat years, surely he can do the same in the lean periods. If not then his boasted power is but a "sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal." The fishermen to-day well know that Mr. Coaker can no more control the price of fish than he can command the ebb and flow of the tides. That was most clearly and expensively proven in the fall of 1920, when a half million dollars, taken from the public treasury were used to buy fish from the men of the North. Without that Government guarantee, for which every man, who produces or earns a cent's worth in the colony, was taxed to meet, Mr. Coaker could no more have made the price of fish than Canute could have controlled the ocean current. And may it not be that the Treasury will be drawn upon again for a similar purpose? All the indications point to another raid on the chest to help out the dictator's policy. Will the people of the South and West, who have been brought to penury because of Mr. Coaker's past autocratic actions, stand for a further attempt to reduce them to beggary? Will the Prime Minister so far forget his obligations to the country at large that he will permit another buccaneering raid on the financial resources of the colony to bolster up the falling fortunes of certain cliques and coteries? So far as fear of Mr. Coaker is concerned, there is only the dread that he may coerce the Government into falling in with his ideas. As a business man he is no more to be feared than any other, but when, with his business there is a combination of political force, he and his trading propositions, becomes a menace against which all those who wish to live in comfort and prosperity must fight. Unfortunately it is that the Government, plus F. P. U. domination is not through yet. When they are through there won't be much left. Meanwhile is there not another nefarious scheme afoot to use public monies for the purchase of codfish from a certain section of the people? Should the Advocate hedge on this question, will it not at least admit that the authorship of the catch cry "the price of fish is what Coaker makes it" may be laid at its threshold?

Blue Puttees Arrange Celebration.

ANNUAL RE-UNION AT DONOVAN'S. The Blue Puttees met last night in the G.W.V.A. Rooms and made final preparations for the annual dinner which is being held at Donovan's, on tomorrow night, Oct. 4th. Colonel Paterson, who occupied the chair, in reviewing the work accomplished by the Committee during the past two weeks, expressed satisfaction at the results achieved, which pointed to a complete success for the third annual event. The attendance this year is expected to greatly outnumber all previous occasions, although many of the boys have migrated to more promising climes in search of employment, and a more profitable existence than that which their native land affords them. The dinner will be laid for 8:30 o'clock and every member is expected to be on time at the Great War Veterans' Building. Buses and motor cars have been secured to convey all members. Appropriate concert items and a pleasant evening, and every member attending is assured a wonderful reception. Don't miss the opportunity of hearing those old popular airs that marked the trail of the Caribou from Pleasantville to Flanders. The songs which helped you over the dusty roads of France, will cheer you on the peace crowd; all roads lead to Donovan's on Anniversary Night.

Charged With Manslaughter.

GRAND JURY RETURNS TRUE BILL. Yesterday at 3 p.m., the Grand Jury met to consider a Bill of Indictment, charging Denis O'Brien, of Freshwater, with manslaughter. At 5:20 p.m. the Jury returned to Court and reported a true bill. Mr. J. Barron for the Crown, moved that the accused be arraigned on Wednesday next at 11 a.m. It was ordered accordingly.

More Burglaries.

ANOTHER EPIDEMIC OF SHOP-BREAKING. Another epidemic of burglaries appears to have broken out in St. John's and two further cases of shopbreaking were reported to the police yesterday. Both occurred on Sunday. The grocery store of A. E. Worrall on New Gower Street, was entered through the back and cigarettes and tobacco to the value of over $50 were taken. Burglars who broke into the Green Lantern Restaurant got away with a quantity of chocolate and chicken. This is the fourth burglary at this place during the past two months.

Sagona Makes Record Run.

HAS 400 PASSENGERS ON BOARD. Yesterday afternoon the Shipping Department received the following message from Capt. Tavernor of S.S. Sagona: "Left Spear Harbor yesterday direct for Conception Bay. Had to make Camp Island owing to strong winds. Left there at 8 a.m. will put into St. Anthony or Port Union for water. Have on Board 400 passengers."

Along the Waterfront.

VERY LITTLE FISH MOVING. Although there are a large number of schooners in port with cargoes, there is not much activity along the waterfront. The Spanish firm at the one time F.P.U. premises are collecting a cargo of Labrador and four schooners are landing there to-day. Shore fish is being bought at $8 per quintal, although $6.20 is being paid by buyers at Croque on the N.E. Coast. In the latter case West India is thrown out.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, Oct. 3. As a mild and gentle, but yet effective laxative for ladies and children there is nothing that surpasses our Compound Licorice Powder. It is of course the regular official preparation of that name, but is prepared from selected materials and is quite a superior mixture. It is easy to take and the dose can be graduated to suit the patient. Price 30 cents a package.

Prospero's Passengers.

S. S. Prospero leaves the wharf of Bowring Bros. at 10 a.m. to-morrow. The ship takes a fair freight and the following passengers: T. Sparkes, Miss Churchill, Miss Northover, F. Wells, Mrs. Decker, T. Jones, A. T. Randall, Mrs. Coppin, Master E. Coppin, Miss E. Shea, Mrs. Ash and several steerage.

Political Rumours.

WILL THERE BE AN ELECTION? The street is once more filled with political rumours, some of which may be taken with a grain of salt, while others bear the imprint of truth. All seem to point to a general election this fall. It is stated that the "Pawnee" has been chartered to distribute the ballot boxes, and there is a startling report to the effect that Hon. W. F. Coaker will move, at the next session of the House, a vote of lack of confidence in the Government. The return of the Prime Minister is awaited with interest, and an announcement will probably be made soon after Sir Richard arrives home.

Missions Night at General Conference.

METHODISTS URGED TO GREATER EFFORTS AT HOME AND ABROAD. TORONTO, Sept. 28.—This was Missions Night at the Methodist General Conference, and the General Secretaries for Home and Foreign Missions, in speeches which were wonderful combinations of fiery eloquence and sober statistics, called on the forces of Methodism to greater efforts both at home and abroad. Rev. Dr. C. E. Manning, of the Home Missions Board, urged the need of more missions, particularly in the West. "We have divided up the fields with the Presbyterian and Congregationalists and I don't see how we can fall in our responsibility to supply the Gospel to every English-speaking community in the portions of the West allotted to us." He said at present Alberta and Saskatchewan had many fields not supplied.

Rotary To-Day.

MR. R. R. WOOD ADDRESSES CLUB. Mr. R. R. Wood, Headmaster of Bishop Feild College, was the principal speaker at to-day's Rotary luncheon. His subject was "What Rotary can do for the boy." Mr. Wood's experiences as a schoolmaster has brought him into close contact with boys of all types, and he was fully qualified to speak interestingly and informatively on his topic. It was announced during the meeting that the District Governor would arrive on the Manco and will remain here until Saturday. Rotarian Cyril Duley was chairman for the day.

Supreme Court.

PRISONERS PLEADED GUILTY AND WERE REMANDED. The two young men Samuel Dawe and John Buckley, against whom a true bill was found by the Grand Jury yesterday, were arraigned in court to-day before the full bench. The prisoners pleaded guilty to breaking into and entering the store of F. J. Fortuna on September 8th, and stealing therefrom a quantity of clothing and boots. Both were remanded to the Penitentiary and will come up later to receive sentence.

Opening Up Oilfields.

NEW WELL DRILLED AT PARSONS' FOND. The summer's operations of General Oilfields, Limited, at Parsons' Pond include the starting of a new well, referred to in the special article of our correspondent published in the Telegram a month ago. The site is on the western side of the bay at what has been named Palmer Point. The derrick was finished a fortnight ago and drilling started on Saturday, Sept. 23rd. The well has been named after Father Palmer of the Boston House of the Society of St. John the Evangelist. Father Palmer, accompanied by Brother Edward, was at the oilfield when the Union Jack was run up, to mark the completion of the service, and took the opportunity of wishing the management and workmen success in this latest attempt to strike oil. Although production at Parsons' Pond is not yet very large, that which is obtained is excellent in quality, and Mr. J. D. Henry, the manager of the oilfields, has every hope that petroleum will be struck in large quantities before long.

Schooner Vignette arrived at Ramen on Sunday from the fishing grounds with 400 qts codfish. Schooner Benjamin has arrived at Sandy Point from Halifax with part general cargo. S.S. Talaraitte sailed last night for Halifax in ballast. S.S. Christian Trogh sailed last night for Manchester after receiving her coal supply. Schooner Grace, Capt. T. Roberts, with a cargo lumber for the Horwood Lumber Co., arrived in port this morning from Dog Bay. S.S. West Cressy, 20 days from Manchester, arrived in port this morning short of fuel oil. The ship has a general cargo and is bound to New Orleans. Schooner Hazel E. Herman, 5 days from La Have, with a cargo salt to A. S. Rendell has arrived in port.

Strathcona Lost.

GREENFELL MISSION BOAT SINKS OFF CABOT ISLAND. After a period of usefulness extending over 20 years, the Greenfell Mission steamer "Strathcona" sank yesterday, only a few miles off Cabot Island. The crew of six were taken off by the schooner "Grace," Capt. S. Roberts, and were landed at St. John's this morning. They have saved most of their belongings and are at present quartered at the Seaman's Institute. SPRANG A LEAK. The story of the wreck was given to the Telegram by Mate Stephen Pelley. The "Strathcona" left St. Anthony last Tuesday, bound for Bay Roberts where she was to log up for the winter. Green Bay was crossed in a raging sea, which beat against the sides of the ship so fiercely that she sprang a leak and large quantities of water poured into her. Twillingate was reached on Tuesday night and on the following morning the ship left for Seldom. The leak was not then so bad as it had been. Seldom was reached on Thursday morning, and the water remained there over Sunday. Leaving Seldom yesterday morning the "Strathcona" had barely gone 10 miles when the water began to rush in at a rapid rate. Two schooners were sighted ahead, one of them being the "Grace," and the steamer was kept on a close course near both. The wind dropping, however, she forged ahead leaving the "Grace" about 3 miles astern. By this time the water was pouring into the engine room over the long boots of Chief Engineer Stiles, and he was compelled to shut the engines off. There were also five feet of water in the forward saloon. Attempts were made to bail out the pump with buckets and the engine pumps were also set going, but the water came in faster than the pumps could control the influx. CREW TAKEN OFF. All the canvas was then hauled off and the steamer hove to, while Capt. Simms went on board the "Grace" in a dory and brought Capt. Roberts of the schooner on board the leaking ship. Roberts advised the "Strathcona's" master to abandon his ship and the crew were immediately ordered to get their clothes together and take to the dory. The ship's log and compass were also saved, but $150 in cash was left behind by the captain. Within half an hour after the "Strathcona's" crew had boarded the "Grace," the steamer settled down and sank stern first. Everything possible for the comfort of the "Strathconas'" crew was done by Captain Roberts.

Mr. W. A. Mackay, who is superintending operations at Silver Cliff Mine, Argentina, arrived in the city on Saturday on a brief visit. Mr. Mackay reports work progressing satisfactorily at the mine and a drift of 70 feet has been made in the direction of Foran's Cut. The new workings are showing excellent results and samples of the mineral continue to show the same high grade ore. Mr. Mackay brought along some samples which are now on display in the window of the Overland Car Agency.

Getting Ready for Contest.

NOVA SCOTIA SCHOONERS BEING PUT IN TRIM.

Advises from Lunenburg and La Have are that vessels entered in the races are being rapidly put in trim for the contest. Lunenburg is all astir and the vessels representing that port are expected to arrive at Halifax early next week, according to the Morning Chronicle of Sept. 30.

Bluenose Out For Spin.

Bluenose is already ballasted, and yesterday afternoon had a trial spin out of Lunenburg harbor. She showed her usual pretty turn of speed, and Captain Walters, keen skipper that he is, was pleased with her performance, though he probably will make some further adjustments before he is satisfied that the champion is in her best racing trim. The Bluenose left her wharf at Lunenburg at one-thirty and went out as far as Cross Island, then shaping over towards Rose Bay. Captain Walters tried her on all points of sailing and seemed as pleased as ever with his swift and handsome craft. Mr. Frederick Zwicker, of the firm of Zwicker and Company, managing owners of the Bluenose, said at Lunenburg last night that the Bluenose would come to Halifax on Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

"It looks like a first-class race," said Mr. Zwicker. "Not as many boats as last year, but probably more interesting. The two new vessels from Lunenburg will make it exciting for the Bluenose, and then we hear that Captain Conrad has his Canada all spruced up for the contest. Four fast vessels they are."

The "Mystery Ships."

The Mahaska and Margaret K. Smith, the two "mystery ships," as some style them, are being fitted at Lunenburg for the fray. Captain Paddy Mack is reported ill and was unable to supervise the work on the Mahaska yesterday but there are plenty of bager helpers. Captain Frank Whynacht is closely attending to the work of making ready the brand new Margaret K. Smith. These two vessels will procure their ballast at Halifax, and it is said that the Mahaska may arrive here as early as Monday or Tuesday of next week in order to have plenty of time during which to trim her ballast to nicety and then sail over part of the course, so as to feel out the vessel's racing qualities. The two schooners may go out to Lunenburg harbor for a spin to-day. The Margaret K. Smith especially needs a spin for sail-stretching.

Down at La Have, Captain Joe Conrad, as keen on the schooner races as any of them, is having first-class work done on the Canada. A gentleman who was on the Canada yesterday and returned to the City last night said that the long handliner is sleek and shiny from a thorough grooming and La Have and Shelburne expect great things of her this year. The Canada is expected to proceed to-day to Lunenburg, there to haul out on the slip for final freshening of her underbody. Like the new Lunenburg vessels, the Canada will probably defer ballasting until she comes to Halifax. For the benefit of those who have not noted the dates of the various races, the following is republished: Nova Scotia races—October 7th, 9th, United States eliminations races—October 13th, 15th, International races—October 21st, 23rd.

"No Mayflower, No Race," is Boston Slogan.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press)—"Boston's waterfront is in a savage mood to-day," says a special despatch to the Tribune from Boston. "The recent action of the trustees of the international fishing schooner race trophy in continuing to bar the schooner Mayflower from the international races has angered fishermen, fish dealers and shipping interests of every sort. Almost to the last man, those who have business at Boston's big fish pier are in accord on the slogan: 'No Mayflower, no race.' That Captain Angus Walters, skipper of the Canadian schooner Bluenose, present holder of the international trophy, is willing to race his schooner against the Mayflower is soothing the critics, but they demand a complete backdown by the trustees. 'Just what action the American race committee, composed mostly of Gloucester men, but with two Boston members, one Provincetown and one Portland member, will take is undecided. The Bostonians declare they will vote to declare the international races of this year because of the action of the Halifax trustees. That the majority of the American committee feel pretty much the same way is rumored about the fish pier, but there are many in Gloucester who claim to know the Gloucester members may still cling to the races."

Queen Mary, LL.D.

CAPPING CEREMONY AT ABERDEEN.

Queen Mary visited Aberdeen on Tuesday, Sept. 12, and received the LL.D. degree from the University, after which she visited several local institutions.

Her Majesty caught the University people by surprise, arriving ten minutes before scheduled time. Rounds of cheering from the students greeted Her Majesty as she swept into the quadrangle at Marischal College. On alighting from the car, the Queen remarked with a smile: "We are early, but I will stop." She entered into conversation with one of the attendants, who saluted as she said: "How do you do?" Many students hustled forward with the press photographers to get snapshots of Her Majesty, who posed for the camera men.

Meanwhile the Chancellor, the Duke of Richmond and Gordon, and Principal Sir George and Lady Adam Smith were informed of the Queen's arrival, and they immediately escorted Her Majesty to the special robing room.

A Picturesque Gathering.

There was a large and fashionable audience in the Mitchell Hall to witness the historic ceremony, a feature of which was the singing of "Folle Boreale Lumen" as the Queen entered wearing her train. After a prayer by Professor Cowan, the Chancellor conferred the LL.D. degree on Her Majesty, and Miss Mary Eusemand, M.A., B.Sc., woman's president of the Students' Representative Council, presented Her Majesty with a beautiful bouquet of flowers, while Mr. James Hunter, M.A., B.Sc., president of the council, presented a copy of the University roll or service.

Afterwards Her Majesty visited the training class for boys and girls at St. Katherine's Club, and proceeded to Chanony Lodge for lunch with Principal and Lady Adam Smith. Her Majesty later on paid a visit to Old Machar Cathedral, and afterwards opened the Rowett Institute at Bankhead, where she was presented with a gold souvenir key.

With the Ex-Service Men.

After tea at Chanony Lodge, Her Majesty visited the Governmental Instructional Factory at Foresthill, where ex-Service men are being trained in various trades, and the Orthopaedic sub-centre, where she inquired of several disabled ex-Service men about their wounds and treatment. Here Her Majesty was presented with a bouquet by a little girl named Mary Queen, daughter of a disabled soldier who is receiving treatment for a withered leg. Seeing an etching of King's College, Aberdeen, by a discharged disabled man, the Queen directed Dr. Middleton Cannon to have another etching sent to Balmoral.

Rift in Oddfellows' Lute Over Language.

There is a schism in the Oddfellows' Grand Lodge, which is meeting in Detroit, because of a bill to restore the foreign-language ritual to lodges of foreign-speaking membership was defeated last week. For nearly 70 years, the members had been allowed to use their mother tongue in the lodge, but in 1916 this was repealed and the use of the English language only in all lodge rituals was made compulsory. The present rift is between the 100 per cent Americans, who desire English only, and the members of foreign birth who desire to speak their mother tongue.

Wisps of Wisdom.

Dream, yes. But, also, wake up! It is better to be straight than smart. Hard times are good times to work hard. The best cure for hard luck is hard work. Acting without thinking is like shooting without aiming. Do not turn your back on troubles; meet them squarely. Press steadily towards achievement. Let others chase fame. No man ever benefited himself permanently by injuring others. Business goes where it is invited, and stays where it is well treated. In the dictionary of determination there is no such word as failure. The world expects each man to do his duty. If he doesn't, both suffer. The man who does his best is a success, whether the world thinks so or not. Real happiness is cheap enough, yet, how dearly we pay for its counterfeit. Following the line of least resistance is what makes rivers and men crooked. Every man should keep a fair-sized cemetery in which to bury the faults of his friends. You may succeed when others do not believe in you, but never when you do not believe in yourself. Carry yourself with a self-confident air, and you will not only inspire others with a belief in your strength, but you will come to believe in it yourself.

Man and Wife Moulded by Pet Bear.

Hartley F. Upper, barrister, and his wife, of Niagara Falls, were severely injured on September 13th, in an encounter with a pet bear. Mrs. Upper, who is most seriously injured, had her scalp torn completely off. The Uppers drove out on a visit, and Mrs. Upper stayed outside, near where a big pet bear was tethered by a chain. He broke the chain and sprang on Mrs. Upper, mauling her over the body and tearing her screams. Mr. Upper rushed to her assistance, and the bear turned on him, permitting Mrs. Upper to crawl into the house. Mr. Upper was also badly maulled, and had his leg broken before the bear was shot.

Girl's Remarkable Masquerade.

Mr. John McConnell, alias "The Battling Kid," alias "Whistling Jack," who for eight years has been a gang leader and one of the "toughest" characters in the Quaker City, is no other than Miss Florence Gray (21), the granddaughter of a prominent retired Southern judge (says the Philadelphia correspondent of the Daily Dispatch).

The astonishing disclosure, which has electrified the whole city, followed a punch delivered without warning by Charles Weaver, an unruly member of the gang, which broke the "Battling Kid's" nose. "Whistling Jack" had Weaver arrested. He was tried, found guilty, and about to be sentenced to one year's imprisonment, when he suddenly "squealed" on his gang leader.

The girl, as John McConnell, was the leader of Philadelphia's "Iron Gang," and her adventures for eight years would turn Tom Sawyer pale with envious admiration. She spent her week-ends in jail. She swam the Delaware River twice, did exhibition boxing, appeared with a woman in a trapeze act, and earned $10 a week during the war as engineer of both a steam and an electric crane in a munition plant. She could break hearts as well as jaws. Three times she wooed and won the flowers of Philadelphia's East End, only to break the engagement to the pretty girl on each occasion. She was engaged "for keeps" to twenty-one-year-old Lettie Harrison, when the denouement came and shattered her last boyish romance.

Christianity Betrayed.

The wily Turk has once more taken advantage of divided councils among Europe's statesmen, and the Christian people of Asia are more than ever at the mercy of their ancient butchers. Red with the blood of Armenia, the Turk returns in triumph to Europe. Selfish interests among the Great Powers have given him his opening and he has won. The representatives of Britain, France, and Italy decided on September 23 that the Crescent should have full sway over Anatolia and Thrace, and the Moslem once more lord in Adriatic and Constantinople. Thus is Christianity betrayed in the house of its friends and the blood of martyred Armenians shed in vain.—Catholic Register.

King Edward's Faith.

To put your hand in a pot of boiling lead, and to take it out without being any the worse for its perilous bath, seems impossible. This ordeal was performed years ago by Lyon Playfair upon no less a personage than King Edward, then Prince of Wales, and studying under Playfair at Edinburgh. Playfair, telling the story of Grand Duff, explained that he first made the Prince wash his hands in ammonia to get rid of any grease upon them, and then said—"Now, sir, if you have faith in science, you will plunge your right hand into that cauldron of boiling lead and ladle it out into the cold water which is standing by." "Are you serious?" asked the Prince. "Perfectly." "If you tell me to do it, I will." "I do tell you," said Playfair, and the Prince immediately ladled out the liquid with perfect impunity.

Beauty Without Grit Without any harm to the teeth

Don't try to whiten teeth with grit that scratches the enamel. That's harmful. Use a soft polishing agent—the Pepsodent agent. Then combat the dingy film twice daily in this new, effective way.

That's what millions of people the world over are doing, largely by dental advice. Look about you and see the beautiful teeth that result.

Teeth are clouded by a film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Stains enter it, when the film is left, forms the basis of dingy coats. That's why teeth lose luster. Film is also the basis of tartar.

Most tooth troubles are now traced to that film. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germis bred by millions in it.

They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Stays on teeth
Under old methods, much of that film remained on teeth. It made teeth cloudy. Night and day it threatened serious damage. That's why so many brushed teeth discolor and decay. Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing.

Now dental science, after long research, has found two film combatants. Able authorities have proved their efficiency. Now leading dentists almost the world over are urging their daily use.

A new-type tooth paste has been created, based on five modern requirements. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants are embodied in it for daily application.

Old ways wrong
Pepsodent also aids Nature in two essential ways. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva.

Every use of Pepsodent thus gives manifold power to Nature's great tooth-protecting agents. Old-time tooth pastes had the opposite effect. They reduced mouth alkalinity, reduced the starch digestant with every application. That was due to their soap and chalk.

We urge you to see and feel these effects, then judge how much they mean.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch these delightful effects for a few days and you will always want them. Cut out the coupon now.

A scientific way to bring five effects which authorities desire. Now advised by leading dentists everywhere.

Ask for the test

We send to every home that asks a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent. Send the coupon for your family's sake, then watch the delightful effects.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.
The Midwives' Club held their opening meeting last evening at the Board of Health Building. The officers for the ensuing year were elected.

Mrs. Hiscock, President, re-elected.
Mrs. Thorburn, Secretary, re-elected.
Mrs. McKay, Treasurer, re-elected.
The President announced that an oral examination would be conducted by Dr. Lena Wilson, of the Midwives' Board for those who took the last written exam. at Columbus Memorial School before issuing the certificates. This examination to take place on Friday afternoon next, Oct. 6th. Mrs. Hiscock gave a talk on Child Welfare during "Adolescence" and the grave need for a deeper understanding of the mental as well as the physical needs of the boys and girls at this period of life. Home nursing and maternity lectures will begin next Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

A Contemporary Opinion.

One of the city dailies is greatly exercised about Canada raising an objection against the guaranteeing by the British Government of part of the amount asked for by the promoters of, presumably, the Humber Proprietary. The Canadian papers claim that similar projects in Canada should receive a like advance from the Home authorities—that it is unjust and unfair to bolster up Newfoundland's industrial propositions and withhold aid to Canadian propositions. We cannot see why there should be any objection raised by Canada. If the British tax-payer is satisfied, why should he not be permitted to do what he likes with his own money? Canada has indirectly received greater help than the one about which the objection is raised. We are inclined to believe that the cry raised by the local press about the unreasonable attitude of the Canadian people, is equally unreasonable. If the two millions that are said to be pledged to the Humber scheme are forthcoming, cannot Canada put forward her claim and seek to secure the help she needs? This question has no bearing upon the soundness or otherwise of the Humber Deal—that has to be worked out, and to the satisfaction of our people. It is now an open question, and stronger reasons than those already advanced will have to be put forward before the country will assume a liability of some ten million dollars.—Hr. Grace Standard.

MOORE—PIKE.

On Wednesday morning last, Sept. 27th, at the home of the bride's parents, Carbonear, there was solemnized the wedding of Miss Winnie Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Moore to Mr. Frank P. Pike. The ceremony was a quiet one, only the immediate friends of the bride and groom being present, and the bride was unattended. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Bugden, and, following lunch, the happy couple left by train for Grand Falls where the honeymoon will be spent. Mr. and Mrs. Pike will also visit Norris Arm before returning to take up residence in Carbonear. Miss Moore was an energetic Church and Sunday School worker and is a most popular young lady, while Mr. Pike holds a responsible position with Messrs. Saunders Howell & Co. The Telegram joins with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Pike in extending best wishes.

I find that it gives quick relief to minor ailments, such as sprains, bruises and all kinds of wounds. Also it is a great remedy for coughs, colds, etc., which one is liable to catch when log driving and cruising during the winter and spring months. I would not be without MINARD'S LINIMENT and cannot recommend it too highly."

Fish Exporting Country Imports Fish.

Although Portugal exports canned and preserved fish—sardines, tunny, anchovies, etc.—by the shipload all over the world, her inhabitants have such a fondness for salt fish that they send fishing fleets way off to the banks of Newfoundland to catch the cod which does not approach Portuguese waters. Millions of pounds of dried codfish are brought into that country every year besides what are caught by the Portuguese boats at Newfoundland, says Consul General Hollis, Lisbon, in a report to the Department of Commerce, and it would be necessary to increase to 250 vessels the present 60 now engaged on the Newfoundland Banks before the demands of the people for salt cod could be satisfied. Fishing is Portugal's secondary industry, being next to agriculture.—N.Y. Fishing Gazette.

FIRST INDOOR MEET AND SUPPER

The first indoor meet of the Royal Swimming Club for the season was held last night at the King George V. Institute. The Club, which has only been in existence for two years, has made great strides. Starting with a few members, the Club soon became popular and now practically every employee of the Royal Stores Ltd. is a member.
After the swim a very enjoyable supper and musical evening was held. Mr. Russell and Mr. Reakes presided at the piano. Mr. T. Murdered at Husband's Grove.

A shocking crime, and an instance of the inhuman practices still extant among the more-ignorant sections of the Egyptian masses, has just been committed in the very centre of Cairo.
An old Egyptian from Upper Egypt who had been in domestic service in Cairo for a long period, died, and the same afternoon his funeral took place with the usual attendance of mourning relatives and friends. After the last rites had been concluded the menfolk left the cemetery, while the female mourners remained at the grave, chanting the usual dirges and accompanying the awful wail conventional on such occasions in Egypt. While the lamentations were proceeding, 2 men entered the cemetery, tore the widow of the deceased from the mound of earth which covered his remains, took her to a corner of the cemetery, cut her throat and literally hacked her to pieces!

While this ghastly scene was being enacted the other women mourners stood within sight of it, the murderers pleading justification. The widow, ing young and pretty, they urged, a temptation to other men, and former coolness towards her late husband convinced them that she was great danger of straying from paths of propriety. To prevent this they thought it best to kill her and destroy her body.

DESIGNER OFFERS TO CHANGE RIG.

(New York Times.)

GLoucester, Mass., Sept. 15.—W. Harting Burgess, designer of the schooner Mayflower, appeared before a meeting of the American Race Committee to-night and offered to go to Halifax and prove to the Halifax trustees that the Mayflower has a cargo-carrying capacity of 525,000 pounds, the carrying capacity being the principal objection to the Mayflower as interpreted by the American committee.

The committee was in session for nearly three hours to-night, eighteen of the twenty-five members being in attendance, and at the end the members declined to make any statement except that to give out a copy of the telegram sent to H. R. Silver, Chairman of the trustees, that the committee is anxious to see every American fishing schooner in the competition and announcing Mr. Burgess's proposed visit to Halifax. Pending the result of the designer's trip to Halifax, the committee will take no action. It is expected that the committee will go ahead with its plans for the elimination races scheduled to start on October 12.

Mr. Burgess will start for Halifax tomorrow morning. The committee sent the following telegram to Mr. Silver:

"At a meeting of the American Race Committee held to-night no definite decision was reached, and the fishermen's international race which is to be sailed off Gloucester this year will depend much on how Halifax accepts the American committee's latest report. W. Harting Burgess, designer of the schooner Mayflower, will leave tomorrow for Halifax ready to prove to the Board of Trustees that the Mayflower can carry 525,000 pounds of fish, equal to the carrying capacity of the winner of last year's race, the schooner Bluenose, this being the principal objection in barring the Mayflower.

"This letter has been wired to the trustees of the trophy and the American committee will take no other action about the coming international race until they hear from Halifax.

"The American Fishermen's Race Committee has received your letter of Sept. 12 together with your explanation of the reasons which governed the Board of Trustees in arriving at the decision regarding the schooner Mayflower. As our committee interprets the explanation controlling objection to the Mayflower expressed on Page 3 of the explanation consists in the cargo-carrying capacity, quoting as an instance the fact that the Bluenose recently landed for one voyage over 525,000 pounds. As this committee is anxious that every American fishing schooner shall have an opportunity to compete we have called before us the designer and managing owner of the Mayflower.

"They represent to us that the Mayflower can safely carry at sea 525,000 pounds. They further offer to change any details of the rig of the Mayflower which you consider do not conform to your standards of fishermen's practice. The designer of the Mayflower has left for Halifax to appear before you. We bespeak for him your consideration. Pending your decision this committee will take no action.

WILLIAM J. MACINNIS, Chairman.

Several Other Vessels Available. Although the schooner Mayflower has been barred from the international fishermen's race of Gloucester next month, information reaching this city yesterday was that several other Gloucester fishing boats might be available for the attempt to lift the cup from the Nova Scotians.

The American committee contends that the Mayflower has been engaged in fishing regularly, as required by the rules, and is not a craft built especially for the fishermen's race, which was won in 1920 by the Gloucester fisherman Esperanto, and in 1921 by the Canadian Bluenose, after the Mayflower had been barred from the race that year. There was the possibility yesterday that the committee might not challenge at all this year, because the Mayflower was barred again, so that no race would be held off Gloucester next month.

The rules governing the cup contests are rigid. They were drawn up at a conference of American and Canadian fishermen and yachtmen in Halifax in 1920, when the International Fishermen's Trophy was presented by The Halifax Herald. The stipulation was that the rules and later modifications would always be drawn to safeguard and continue the intention to the donor of the trophy, which is the development of the most practical and serviceable type of fishing schooner combined with the best sailing qualities, without sacrificing utility.

"For the purpose of maintaining this principle," continue the rules, "the trustees are empowered to disqualify from any or all competition any vessel which, in their opinion is of such a type or dimensions as would contravert the intention of the donors and such decisions of the trustees shall be final.

"The only vessels which can com-

Gives Objection to Mayflower.

Many objections to the Mayflower were detailed in an article in a Gloucester magazine called the Cape Ann Shore, recently sent out from Halifax to persons who might be interested in the races. This article told of the history of the races, and added:

"Then an association of wealthy yachtsmen of Boston, none of whom nor their families had ever been identified with the fisheries, subscribed $50,000 and built the schooner Mayflower as a possible challenger. The Canadians ruled her out, stating that she violated both the letter and spirit of the deed of gift governing the contest. To offset this the Mayflower's advocates pointed out that she had made a voyage to the fishing banks—she has made several since.

W. P. SHORTALL,
THE AMERICAN TAILOR.

PHONE—477. P.O. BOX—445.

"The challenge of the Nova Scotians to the Mayflower's owners to race in mid-winter, with a cargo of fish from Newfoundland, across the Bay of St. Lawrence to South America and return to Halifax, for $10,000 a side, winner to take all, remains unanswered. This is the custom of the Nova Scotians in marketing their fish in winter. It tells the tale of a vessel's weatherly qualities.

"Sir Thomas Lipton has signified his intention of again challenging for the America's Cup. He cannot affix it, for a craft cannot be devised that can stand the journey across the ocean that can compete with the paper-mache construction now utilized in cup defenders. During the last of these series of races a whole sail breeze arose, just the weather dear to the heart of a yachtman. Both the British and American owners of the two contending yachts were afraid to risk the craft and so stayed at anchor.

"It is to avoid this very thing—and so explicitly stated—that this International Fishermen's Cup race was designed, and the Mayflower was ruled out because her building and entry was thought to be a long step toward the very thing the founders of the International Fishermen's Cup feared—the contest will be close and interesting—the building of a freak fishing craft. The new schooner Henry Ford, built first as a fisherman and for a fisherman—Captain Clayton Morrison of this port, arrived from a fishing voyage to the Banks last Saturday. Then there is the Boston schooner Yankee, and several other Gloucester craft. So that if the Mayflower is again barred the contest will be close and interesting.

Crowded Theatre Inspired by Realistic Story of "The Blot."

"The Blot," Lois Weber's latest photo-drama, which opened at the Majestic Theatre last night, was received by an enthusiastic and packed theatre.

This human drama far surpasses anything yet produced by the gifted Miss Weber. She has in "The Blot," a human-interest story as big as "Humoresque" and other productions of this type.

Her acting cast is flawless and if the work of Claire Windsor and Marie Welcamp in this picture is any indication, we can look for some big things in the future from these two beautiful girls. Philip Hubbard scored with an excellent bit of character acting and Margaret McWard and Louis Calhern come in for special mention for their pleasing and realistic work in "The Blot."

The story is one that is timely and will hold your interest throughout. It deals with a situation existing in every city and town in the country today, the neglect of our school teachers and the poverty that they undergo to educate a nation.

If you are the kind that likes a real human story, produced and enacted in a realistic manner, do not fail to see Lois Weber's "The Blot." It is released by the F. B. Warren Corporation.

Whispers Sent Through Space.

HOW MESSAGES RIDE ON WIRELESS WAVES.

How far away can the loudest shout be heard? Probably not more than half a mile in the ordinary way, though it may travel farther in mountainous country. With a megaphone the human voice may carry more than a mile.

The loudest sound that we can make such for example as that caused by firing a 15in. gun, may be heard fifty miles away. As a rule, sounds have a very short range, and they move through the air very slowly. It would take more than four minutes, for instance, for the sound of a big gun's discharge to cover fifty miles.

Yet by means of wireless telephony the feeble sounds made by the speaking voice can be conveyed 5,000 miles or more, and they accomplish a journey of this distance in the thirty-seventh part of a second.

Secrets of Sound Travel.

In wireless telephony the slow-moving sounds of speech and music are made to ride pick-a-back on the rushing ether waves.

When you speak or sing, your vocal cords vibrate as air brushes past their stretched edges; it is quite easy to feel the vibrations if you place your hand on a friend's back when he is talking. Every time the cords move to or fro the little molecules of air lying near them receive a blow, which they pass on to their next-door neighbours, who, in their turn, knock up against other molecules. Thus the air is set in motion and a sound-wave begins to travel outward.

When you make any sound the effect upon the surrounding air is just the same as that produced by dropping a stone into a bucket of water; a disturbance takes place which sets up a series of waves. Wireless waves are exactly similar, except that they move not through air or water, but through the ether, which is present everywhere.

At a broadcasting station, those who are entertaining the world sing, speak or play into the mouthpiece of a microphone, whose action we may explain by calling it an electrical tap. A current is always passing through it, but as sound-waves strike the thin diaphragm at the front of its case they cause it to vibrate, and each vibration has the same effect as turning the handle of a tap backwards or forwards. The stream of electricity is alternately increased and diminished, so that it flows, not steadily, but in a series of spurts.

Telephone Worked by Air.

If no sound strikes the microphone the current will flow evenly, and what is called a continuous ether-wave will be produced in the transmitting aerial. The crests of all the waves will rise to the same height, and the troughs will fall to the same depth. But when the tap-twisting process begins, something different happens, owing to sound-waves breaking against the diaphragm. Each decrease in the current makes the ether-waves a little weaker. The distance between their crests remains the same, but the height to which they rise and the depth to which they fall are reduced.

The original wave is something like the surface of a new sheet of corrugated iron—all its curves are even and regular. But when the voice causes the microphone to modify the waves the effect is that of hammering the iron out of shape with a hammer. Each sound-wave affects hundreds of ether waves. The middle C of a piano vibrates about 250 times a second; wireless waves from a broadcasting station do so something like 750,000 times in the same space!

In the receiving set the teeming wireless waves are, so to speak, filtered out by the detector, and the curves made by their combined crests produce sound-waves in the telephone.

Archbishop Calls Valera Foe of Irish.

BALTIMORE PRELATE DECLARES THE LEADER OF IRREGULARS IS IRELAND'S GREATEST MENACE.

(New York Times.)

Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore, has returned on a trip to Europe, accompanied by Mgr. L. R. Stickey, rector of the Cathedral of Baltimore, and the Rev. Patrick Healey, D.D., Professor of History in the Catholic University of America. The party visited Naples, Rome, where the Archbishop was received by the Pope at the Vatican, and then traveled through France to England and Athlone, Ireland, to visit the Archbishop's aged mother. The Archbishop met John McCormack at Athlone, and said the Irish tenor was in fine health and voice and would return to America in October.

When asked his opinion on the existing conditions in Ireland, the Archbishop dictated the following statement:

"In Ireland there is an Irish Government functioning, with back of this Government 95 per cent. or more of the Irish people. There is nothing more evident in Ireland to-day than that the Irish people want the peace treaty and the Free State status. Ninety-five per cent. of the men who fought the Black and Tans are with the people and are being guided by the will of the people. In other words, Irish Ireland is thoroughly democratic.

"At the head of this Government

Tennis Singles.

INTER-TOWN RETURN MATCH.

Another tennis game was played on the court here on Saturday afternoon last between Mr. Hambling of Bay Roberts and Mr. Kirkpatrick of Carbonear, says the Harbor Grace Standard of Sept. 29. Last week's game was so interesting that many were keen on seeing this and a large number of spectators were present from Carbonear and here. The match was a five set one and after an interesting and exciting exhibition of tennis was won by Mr. Kirkpatrick with the score standing 6-3, 1-6, 6-1, 6-3. The weather was very cold and neither playing nor spectating was pleasant, but the game was thoroughly enjoyed by the tennis fans present. A final game is expected to be played at Bay Roberts one day this week and is being looked forward to by those interested in the game.

QUIT TOBACCO

So easy to drop Cigarette, Cigar, or Chewing habit.

No-To-Bac has helped thousands to break the costly, nerves-shattering tobacco habit. Whenever you have a longing for a smoke or chew, just place a harmless No-To-Bac tablet in your mouth instead. All desire stops. Shortly the habit is completely broken, and you are better off mentally, physically, financially. It's so simple. Get a box of No-To-Bac and if it doesn't release you from all craving for tobacco in any form, your druggist will refund your money without question.

Will it Rain?

In different localities the weather varies so much that the official weather forecasts are only of general application. Here is a simple and reliable way of telling if rain is coming during the day.

As early as possible in the morning go out and search the sky for the smallest cloud that is in sight. Keep this under close observation for five minutes or so and note whether it alters in size. If the cloud gets smaller one can be almost certain of a fine day. On the other hand, if it increases in size, rain will surely come in a few hours.

Where the cloud remains the same size no special change in the prevailing weather is likely to take place. If the cloud increases very rapidly thunder is almost a certainty in the summer.

Alteration in the size of clouds is connected with the state of the atmosphere. When the air is very dry and rain is unlikely, the clouds soon vanish; if the atmosphere is charged with moisture the clouds soon increase and this will soon be discharged in the form of rain.

School Building and Taxation.

The contract for the erection of the Normal School in St. John's has been secured by the Howwood Lumber Co. The cost, it is said, will be $200,000. The building has to be completed in 1923. The Normal School is part of the policy outlined by the educational fathers, but while there is a need for such a department, might not the time of its erection have been deferred until the Colony had recovered from the depression that exists and has existed since the end of the war? When to spend and how best to spend are essentials in the science of political economy. $200,000 for a Normal School, and taxation 70 cents in the dollar!—Hr. Grace Standard.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BOOKS.

"When Frances Chamberlayne Sheridan told Dr. Johnson that she never allowed her little daughter to read anything but the Rambler or other matters equally instructive, he answered with his customary candor: 'Then, Madam, you are a fool. Turn your daughter's wits loose in your library. If she will incline she will choose only good food. If she otherwise all your precautions will amount to nothing.'"—Agnes Repplier.

Don't you love to look over people's bookshelves?
If one were left in a perfect stranger's living room for 15 minutes, what a lot one could learn about what the family would be like from the books, the kind of furniture, the curtains, the wall paper, the condition of the room (right order, comfortable livableness, objectionable disorder) and especially from the magazines on the table and the books on the shelves.

I Wanted to Know Them.
At a charity bridge the other day at the home of a woman I scarcely knew, I conceived a desire to know that family. I was seated beside a table on which stood a rack of books and, while I waited for the game to commence, I glanced over them and found no parlor table collection, but a dozen books evidently bought to read and giving evidence of having fulfilled their destiny. And among that dozen there were several books I had been wanting to get hold of, and two or three old friends. When you meet a stranger and find that he likes and admires some friend of yours, the path to friendship between you two is immediately cleared. And so it is when you find someone who has made friends with the books you love.

I was talking this subject over with a friend and she declared that it was hardly fair to judge people by their books because for financial reasons they might not be able to buy the books that expressed their tastes, but might have to get them out of libraries. True enough. But if one really cares for books some of the books one cared most about would be on one's shelves and one can judge by a few books as well as by a big library.
Personally, I dislike sets. I don't think they ever represent real reading. They are just decorations for libraries. A friend of mine, a lawyer, was waiting in the library of some newly rich clients, and seeing a set of shelves took the liberty to go to the shelf and take down "A Tale of Two Cities" in which he wished to look up something. Or rather he attempted to take it down. For he found that the books were not books at all, simply handsome bindings to decorate the library. I think a great many sets are really that to all intents and purposes.

The Kind of Library I Like.
What I love best to see on anyone's shelves is a heterogeneous collection of books that look as if they had been picked up, not bought en masse. And they will be the kind of people to whom my heart kindles if these include a few good books of reference, an atlas, dictionaries, encyclopedias (people with a background regard these just as essential a part of the home furnishings as an embroidered linen, guest towels and the latest thing in electric fixtures), some of the really worthwhile novels, new and old, some poetry, and some of the more serious books of the present day, as well as the five foot bookshelf type of thing.

This is the sort of library into which one can turn a child loose knowing that he cannot help but be educated by it.

Key to The Ancient World.

ROMANCE OF THE ROSETTA STONE.

There was celebrated in Paris recently the centenary of an achievement which was of inestimable value to the world in bringing to light the hidden mysteries of ancient Egypt. This was mainly the work of the celebrated Frenchman, Professor Jean Francois Champollion, Egyptologist and student of all the Oriental languages.

Until his great discovery in 1822 the hieroglyphics carved and painted on the tombs, altars, and temples of ancient Egypt were a sealed book even to the most assiduous student who sought to discover the stories they had to tell.

Secrets for Centuries.
Everybody is familiar with the appearance of hieroglyphics, the animals and birds in various attitudes, the human figures, male and female, representations of natural objects, and other signs more or less geometrical in form.

It was obvious even to the most ignorant that they were not inscribed merely for purposes of design, but that their symmetrical form and their arrangement in either vertical or horizontal parallel lines betokened an inscription for the enlightenment of those who could fathom the meaning of the symbols.

For centuries antiquarians had endeavored to learn their meanings and thus bring to light the history, manners, and customs of the ancient world, which were then matters either of pure conjecture or else entirely shrouded in mystery. But these enigmatical characters defied all attempts at solution by those who were not in possession of the key, and it was not until the end of the eighteenth century that excavation in Egypt provided us with the means of deciphering them.

In 1799, among the ruins of Fort St. Julien, was found the Rosetta stone. Rosetta (Arabic Rashid) is a small town on the western mouth of the Nile. The territory was at the time in French occupation, and the stone was actually discovered by Boscawen, a French officer, while engaged on the repair of the fort.

Under the Treaty of Alexandria the Rosetta stone was handed over to Great Britain, and is now one of the most valuable treasures of the British Museum.
The Rosetta stone is a large slab of black basalt, bearing an inscription relative to the coronation of Ptolemy V. This inscription is trilingual: in hieroglyphics, the "sacred" writing of the classical Egyptians; in demotic, the popular tongue of Egypt; and in Greek. It was thus possible to compare the Greek with the Egyptian characters, and this way was paved for understanding the dialect of ancient Egypt.
The difficulties in the way of completing this were complicated by the condition of the stone when found, as a part of the inscription in each of the tongues was broken off, or so mutilated as to render portions of the stone indecipherable.

The Signs of Sounds.
However, the work was taken up by Dr. Thomas Young, a student of a remarkably wide range of scientific interests, and, above all, by Champollion, who formed the theory that hieroglyphics were the signs of sounds and not of things, as was generally understood up to that time.
Controversy has raged as to whether it was Champollion or one of his contemporary investigators who first discovered this theory, but there is no doubt that to him must be given the credit for developing it fully, and thus bringing to light the history of ancient Egypt.

"Dempsey my Next Meet," Says Siki.

Paris, Sept. 30.—"Tell Jack Dempsey he's my next meet," was the message your correspondent to-day was asked to convey to the Champion by Battling Siki, a young Senegalese, who fights George Carpentier in Paris on September 24.

"I'm going to knock out Georges in the first round and then go straight to America and camp on Dempsey's trail," continued Siki, who has knocked out many of the best men in Europe but has never been knocked down himself. Nobody in Paris except Siki himself, thinks he has a chance against Carpentier.

Siki is absolutely styleless. His swarthy nose is high resistance. He has been hit on the head with a hammer and scarcely felt it. He crouches against the ropes and bounds towards his opponent striking with both hands. Often in swinging he turns entirely around. He makes not the slightest attempt to guard. He is 25 years old, drinks hard liquor heavily and is always lit-up when he enters the ring. He is a regular bearcat when drinking, more than a dozen policemen being necessary to throw him out at a saloon sometimes.
