THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER XIV.

"And I know she refused you, too—you and your coronet, Captain Disbrow, as she has many a bet—another man. Oh, our Jack's not to be had for a word, I can tell you! The man that gets her must do something more than pay her compliments, or give her flowers, or say sweet things by moonlight."

"What must he do? Take lance and shield, and ride forth, booted and spurred, like a second Don Quixote, in search of adventures, conquer a fiery dragon, or rescue some hapless prince from the enchanted castle of some gigantic ogre?" said Disbrow, between anger and sarcasm.

"Yes, sir—!" exclaimed Frank, defiantly. "If such things were to be done now, the man that would lay claim to her pretty little hand would have to prove his knighthood before he would kneel at her footstool. As it is, the man that comes after her will have to mind his P's and Q's before he gets her; for Jack De Vere is no common milk-and-water young lady, but worth half the women in the world—queens and princesses included—rolled into one."

"That is all, doubtless, very true," said Disbrow, with a curling lip; "but I fancy I know some one who—"

He paused abruptly, and bit his lip.

"Oh, you may go on. I know who you mean. You think she's in love with Jacinto—don't you?" said Frank, sarcastically.

"Really, Master Frank, you seem in a catching mood this morning," said Disbrow, facing around and fixing his dark eyes full upon him.

"Supposing we drop this subject. Our friend, Miss Jacquetta, might not thank either of us for so free a use of her name."

Frank blushed at the rebuke, which he could not help feeling he deserved, and in a spirit of retaliation began humming: "A Frog He Would A-Wooing Go," as they left the room.

Disbrow smiled as he heard him, and letting his hand fall on his shoulder, said, cordially:

"Come, Master Frank, it is not worth while for you and I to disagree, as this is the last morning I will ever trouble you. We must part friends, my dear boy."

"That we shall, Cousin Alfred!" exclaimed Frank, shaking earnestly the proffered hand; "and I do like you first-rate, and I wish you had got Jack. Now, then!"

"Thank you! but your wish comes rather too late; I am not likely to win such a prize in Love's lottery. Tell her, Frank," he said, with a look of strange earnestness in his dark, handsome eyes, "to forget all I may have said to offend her; and tell her that my best wishes go with her and whoever may be so fortunate as to win the heart and hand she refused me. Tell her this, Frank, my dear fellow, since I am not destined to see her again."

Frank wrung his hand silently, for his voice at that moment was not altogether under his command.

Both entered the breakfast parlor together, where Augusta, Jacinto, and Mr. De Vere sat waiting them.

Augusta sat the same figure of stone that she always was of late, but the change the past few days had wrought in her never struck Disbrow so forcibly as it did this morning. She had lost flesh and life, and color, she was the shadow of her former self. Her tall, stately form was wasted and thin, her cheeks hollow, her lofty brow deathlike in its blue-veined pallor; her lips were white; and her hands so pale and wasted that they looked almost transparent. The old story of the vampire sucking the lifeblood drop by drop, seemed realized in her case! and oh! the unspeakable depth of desolation and despair in those great, heavy, midnight eyes. And something worse than desolation and despair was in that haggard face, now—remorse, undying, devouring remorse—the worm that never sleeps, seemed gnawing her heart—had set his white, fearful seal on that corpse-like face.

She lifted her eyes slowly, as they entered; and meeting his gaze, so full of pity and compassion, the old haughty pride of the De Veres, that even her night of anguish could not quench, sent a momentary fire leaping to her eyes, and a lefty look to the white face that repelled and cast off fiercely all commiseration.

Mr. De Vere put down the book he was reading, and came forward to greet him; and Jacinto, who sat caressing a beautiful little water spaniel—a pet of Jacquetta's—glanced up and met a look full of angry jealousy from the young Englishman's dark eyes that made him drop his own and flush to the temples.

Mr. De Vere apologized in a few words for Jacquetta's absence, and they all gathered around the breakfast table. The meal passed almost in silence, and sadly enough, too; for all were thinking it was the last the young guardsman would partake of beneath that roof; and until that moment they had not known how he had endeared himself to them. There would be a dreary gap when his tall, gallant form, and say, handsome young face was gone, that would not be easily filled in the family circle.

Had Jacquetta been there, the oppressive silence would soon have been broken; but she was "over the hills and far away," long before this, and doubtless—as Disbrow thought—forgetful of his very existence.

"Which way do you go?" inquired Mr. De Vere, at length—making an effort at something like conversation.

"I will call at the Mermaid, and take passage from there in some schooner, as I wish to take sketches of the scenery as I go along, which, I understand, is very fine along the Hudson."

"None better," said Mr. De Vere. "I have sailed down the Rhine, as the song has it, but I have never seen anything to surpass this new country scenery. You ought to see these American forests in autumn, decked in their Joseph's coat of many colors. You would never forget it. It goes ahead of Old England completely in that point."

"I have always understood it was very fine," said Disbrow; "but, unhappily, I will not be able to see it. I hope to be shooting in Fontelle woods before that."

The door opened as he spoke, and a servant appeared with a startled face.

"Well, Reynolds?" said Mr. De Vere, looking up.

"Ehe's ere again, sir!" said Reynolds, excitedly, "and she won't go away, all we can do. She says she will see you, in spite of us all!"

"Who are you talking about—who is she? Don't be so incoherent, Reynolds."

"It's old Mother Howlet, sir, if you please—and there's a man along with her—and she won't go away."

Augusta uttered a faint exclamation, and sank back in her chair.

Mr. De Vere arose, his face flushed with anger.

"Mother Howlet! How dare she come here! Order her away, Reynolds, and say I will not see her."

"We have, sir, but she won't go. The man along with her has got a pistol, and he says he will shoot the first of us that tries to keep them out."

"Who is the fellow?"

"Don't know, sir. He's a short, thick-set man, with red hair and whiskers, and a savage face."

"Captain Nick Tempest," simultaneously exclaimed Jacinto, Disbrow, and Frank.

"The fellow who tried to shoot you that evening Jacinto was wounded?" asked Mr. De Vere.

"The same."

"Really," said Mr. De Vere, angrily, "Fontelle seems to be a rendezvous for desperadoes of late. Come, Reynolds, I will go with you to this worthy pair, and we will see if they cannot be got rid of."

"You had better be careful, my dear sir," said Disbrow, anxiously. "This Captain Tempest is a most sanguinary villain, and capable of any crime, I believe."

"Then he will find that Fontelle is not in the habit of sheltering sanguinary villains, nor its master of being bullied into listening to what they have to say."

And, preceded by Reynolds, Mr. De Vere left the room.

"What the dickens can bring those two here?" exclaimed the astonished Frank.

"That is a question I cannot take it upon myself to answer," said Disbrow; "for no good, you may safely swear. They must have the audacity of the old demon himself to come here. Are you ill, Miss Augusta? You look alarmed."

ANOTHER STEP FORWARD!

BY

The Broadway House of Fashion

IN A FEW DAYS

We will announce the re-opening of our remodelled GENTS' FURNISHINGS STORE, where alterations have been going on for the past few weeks—so that we may have greater space to serve our ever-increasing clientele.

But Do Not Mistake this Announcement

We take no pride in growth—for growth itself. We regard growth only in its relation to achievement. And not the kind of achievement that adds up and measures up in dollars and cents alone.

Greater Values and Service is the Yardstick We Apply to Our Efforts

It is the measure by which we determine our progress and success. We regard our new GENTS' STORE as a symbol of your reward, as an index of your re-pledged confidence in the "BROADWAY."

The Age of Indifference Has Passed

The public is interested in the motives that actuate, the impulses that move, the values they get, the forces that control—an organization—for, after all, an organization lives or dies by Public Support.

It Is But Human Therefore

THAT WE take pride in our constant growth—for that is an expression of PUBLIC approval—of increased Public support. But—we do not make the mistake of permitting growth to be a "brake" instead of a spur to our efforts.

Therefore You May Regard With Confidence

the establishment of our new GENTS' STORE, as a promise that the "BROADWAY" will continue to deliver the greatest VALUES your money can buy in St. John's.

"It Will Always Cost You Less To Buy It at The BROADWAY"

Agreement in Japanese Amendment Reached—Ottawa Valley Had Five Minutes Earthquake—Liberals Support Irish Boundary Bill.

LIBERALS GIVE SUPPORT TO BOUNDARY HILL.
LONDON, Sept. 30. Prime Minister MacDonald moved the second reading in the House of Commons to-day of the Bill providing for the creation of an Irish Boundary Commission without the participation of Ulster. In making the motion the Premier declared it was the essential duty of every Government to fulfill its obligations. He also presented the charge that the Government's move was an attempt to coerce Ulster. Herbert Asquith, former Premier and Liberal leader, declared that the Liberals would give the Irish Bill their hearty and undivided support.

AGREEMENT SATISFACTORY TO JAPAN.
GENEVA, Sept. 30. A complete accord was reached this morning by the three statesmen entrusted with the task of finding a solution of the difficulty brought about by the presentation by the Japanese of an amendment to the protocol on arbitration and security and the agreement reached is satisfactory to the Japanese. This was divulged by M. Loucheur, the French member of the Committee, just before noon. The Committee was composed, in addition, to M. Loucheur, of Sir Cecil Hurst, of Great Britain, and Signor Scialoja, of Italy, with M. Adachi present. Signor Scialoja told the correspondents after this morning's session that the accord that had been reached would be presented to a sub-committee of the judicial commission at 3 p.m. A full meeting of the arbitration commission has been convened for 3.45 for final discussion of the accord.

REVISED PROTOCOL ADOPTED.
GENEVA, Sept. 30. The revised protocol on arbitration and security, including modifications to satisfy the demand of the Japanese delegation for amendment was unanimously adopted this evening by the Arbitration Commission of the League of Nations and will be submitted to the Assembly for adoption to-morrow.

KING CONGRATULATES ADMIRAL.
LONDON, Sept. 30. The King has sent a message to Rear Admiral Sir Frederick Field, congratulating the Special Service Squadron on its conclusion of the empire wide cruise.

BANDITS WILL HANG.
MONTREAL, Sept. 30. Appeals of Louis's Moral, Frank Gambino, Giuseppe Serafini, Mike Valentino, and Leo Davis, under sentence for the murder of Henri Cléroux, in connection with the Bank of Hochelaga car ho'-j-up, was dismissed here this a.m. by the Court of Appeal. In the case of Davis, Justice LaFontaine and Guerin dissented. This leaves it open to counsel on his behalf to further appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. It was announced immediately after the rendering of judgment, by Counsel for the defence for Davis, that such appeal would be entered immediately. In the cases of the others, appeal was unanimously rejected so that the portals of hope are closed for them at least as far as recourse to the Courts of Justice is concerned. They will hang on October 24 as originally ordered, according to the decision of the court.

NEARING SETTLEMENT IN MOSUL CONTROVERSY.
GENEVA, Sept. 30. Notable progress towards settlement of the Mosul controversy was made in the Council of the League of Nations to-day, when representatives of both Turkey and Great Britain agreed to accept the appointment of a special committee of three persons who will collect all available information on the Mosul question and will submit to the Council at a later date their suggestions as to the best means of solving the problem.

DEATH AND DAMAGE BY FLOODS.
NEW YORK, Sept. 30. Six deaths and hundreds of thousands of dollars damage to property have been reported as a result of floods in different parts of the country, which reached their crest to-day following forty-eight hours constant rain.

EARTHQUAKE AT OTTAWA.
NEW YORK, Sept. 30. An earthquake of sufficient violence to rattle dishes and shake furniture was felt here at 3.45 a.m. Standard Time to-day and continued five minutes. The centre of the quake is thought to have been in Ottawa Valley.

JEROME PHAFF CLAIMS ALIBI.
BREST, France, Sept. 30. Charged with piracy on the high seas, for which the penalty is death, Max Jerome Phaff, a German American 19th Street, New York, this evening emerged smiling from one encounter with French maritime justice. The piracy charge is in connection with the boarding of the French steamer Mulhouse off the Canadian coast last July when it is alleged 35,000 cases of whiskey were removed by armed raiders to schooners which stood by. Phaff has pleaded "not guilty" and states he can prove an alibi. He also alleges he has credit with a Canadian bank which enables him to purchase whiskey without the use of Capt. Kidd's methods. The defence in order to expediate investigation and prevent Phaff's lengthy sojourn in jail announced it would commission a firm of New York lawyers to obtain affidavits at Halifax to prove the alibi.

Talented Newfoundlander
STUDYING SHIPPING PROBLEMS ON THE ATLANTIC.
EDMONTON, Alta.—(Can. Press)—Successful experiments of the Atlantic Coast during the summer months for the detection of foggers, hidden reefs and nearby ships, as well as in the development of deep water telephony have been conducted by Dr. Robert W. Boyle, Professor of Physics, at the University of Alberta, who returned to the city at the week end from the east. Dr. Boyle was accompanied by Charles Reid, a former student of the university, who will continue his work at Harvard. The experiments have been in progress since the middle of April last, and they were conducted on the ice-breaker Montcalm. The scene of the operations was off the coast of Labrador, Newfoundland, Cape Breton and the Straits of Belle Isle. A measure of secrecy attached to the nautical research work of Dr. Boyle, which has been carried on for several years and which is a continuation of that done by him during the Great War, but the Alberta physicist just the other day indicated in a general way what had been accomplished in new methods of sounding for depths, detecting ice and shores, preventing wrecks and avoiding collisions between ships and icebergs. "We joined the Montcalm at North Sydney about the middle of April and installed the equipment that we had been using in the University and had been brought east for the practical experiment. Previous experiments elsewhere had shown that the presence of ships, shores, reefs, etc., could be detected and distance and bearing be given by this new method. Secret telephony and telegraphy could also be carried on between ships and reefs within three miles, and to telegraph or telephone secretly for distances of five miles or even more. "In the present experiments with a small scale model apparatus some of these old experiments were repeated and checked to obtain a basis." The scientist referred to is a Newfoundlander, the son of the late Dr. Boyle of Carleton. To give him the full list of degrees, etc., he is a M.Sc., M.A., Ph.D., F.R.C.S. Educated at Methodist College, he continued his studies at McGill and Manchester Universities. For some years he was Demonstrator of Physics at McGill, and in 1912 joined the staff of the Alberta University. During the war he engaged in the War Research Submarine Detection and afterwards received his Professorship. In addition to his other valuable work he is the author of various scientific treatises.

How Gun-Runners Work

By A SAILOR.
The task of the gun-runner is infinitely more difficult and dangerous than that of the modern "bootlegger," for the reason that the latter can openly load a cargo of spirits in any British or Continental port without let or hindrance, provided the cargo is nominally consigned to some country which permits the importation of alcohol; while the former must carefully conceal the nature of the goods he is embarking and stands in peril of arrest from the moment the first case comes on board until the last has been delivered to the consignees.

I have known rifles and ammunition to be successfully shipped and landed without a soul in the docks at either end having the least conception of the kind of cargo they were handling. The firearms in this instance were packed in piano cases; but the quantity was not considerable and generally speaking, when guns are to be smuggled in sufficient numbers to be of any military use to a rebel or belligerent party, elaborate schemes have to be made, a special ship chartered, and a strong political party is invariably behind the scenes pulling the strings.

Owing to the keen supervision of Customs officers, asked by the C. I. D. and the Secret Service agents, guns are seldom loaded in docks under disguise. In a big coup the method adopted usually on these lines. A small cargo boat which happens to be laid up at the time is chartered. This enables the gang to put their own skipper and men on board to man her. Arrangements being complete for the embarkation of the guns at some convenient rendezvous at sea, a few miles off the track of all other shipping, the gun-runner proceeds to load a part cargo of ordinary merchandise for some port close to the spot where the guns are to be landed. This enables him to get the necessary clearance papers from the Customs without exciting suspicion.

On receiving word (in code) that the agents will be at the rendezvous with the guns at a certain hour, the gun-runner leaves port, keeping most carefully to the recognized track of other shipping. Then at nightfall, with all lights out, she sheers off and makes for the rendezvous, where she is met by the agent with the guns. A private yacht is generally employed to bring the guns off, for the reason that pleasure craft are not bound by the same exacting regulations as merchant ships and are able to anchor in lonely bays and creeks where the guns can be embarked without attracting undue attention. A cargo boat doing the same thing would be immediately suspected.

Directly the guns have been transhipped the gun-runner returns to the recognized route and keeps carefully to it until he reaches the nearest point to the place where the contraband has to be landed—usually some deserted bay or inlet where the receiving agents can remove the guns by road to their hiding-place. Again the smuggler douses all his lights and steers in for the shore. If all goes well his call signal is answered by the countersign, signifying that the identity of both parties is established and all is ready. The guns are landed, and by daylight the cargo boat is once more plodding along on her proper track, bound for the port close by to which her legitimate cargo is consigned and where her skipper can enter and clear his ship in the manner of an honest trader, thus averting all suspicion.

But if things go wrong, instead of the answering countersign the gun-runner may suddenly find himself the centre of focus of a searchlight, as some destroyer or patrol boat fires a blank round across the bows. And then the game is up and only a fog bank or a heavy rain or snow squall will give him a chance of escape. As a last resort he may dump all his guns and ammunition overboard, if he has time, and trust to some plausible lie to save him from arrest.

Falling this, the gun-runner can look forward to a lengthy term of imprisonment—possibly the attention of a string party.—Daily Mail.

SURPLUS OF SORROW.
This world is amply stocked with woe, so don't increase it a t o r e; if you spread sorrow as you go, pray do that stunt no more. We spread ferns stories in the mart as we pursue our way, and they distress some neighbor's heart, and spoil his happy day. Elijah's mantle we assume, our forecasts darkly run; with prophecies of grief and gloom we spoil the people's fun. We talk all day of grievous pains, of aches in knees and aches; and men who hear our mournful strains cast off their cheerful grins. Contagious is the brooding frown that we are prone to wear; one grouch will queer a happy town and fill its streets with care. One mournful wight with tear-wet face, and hair and garments torn, will sow to salt the marketplace and make its people mourn. In many homes there is no sound of honest, wholesome mirth, because Tired Father sits around and scowls for all the world's worth. In countless stores there is no trace of pep among the clerks, because the boss's frozen face has chilled the whole blamed works. Let us be cheerful as we wend down life's little slope; let's bring our walkings to an end, and talk of joy and hope.

Pearline for easy washing.—July 17, 11.
Five Years of Airways
"British Airways have completed their fifth year," says the Daily Mail.

"In 1919, when aeroplanes began to fly between London and Paris, there were three questions civil aviation had to answer. Can 100-miles-an-hour air transport be made reliable? Can it be made safe? Can it pay?"

"Take reliability. Our winged expresses have now flown more than 4,000,000 miles. During the summer they have attained a reliability of 91 per cent. Even with winter fogs, the all-year-round figure is as high already as 88 per cent. This, remembering that organization is being improved constantly, disposes of the contention that aeroplane transport cannot be reliable.

"As to safety, British planes have carried nearly 50,000 passengers, and only six have lost their lives. Which is an answer to the question, 'Can flying be made safe?' It can."

"There is still the question, 'Will air transport pay?' The answer here is that for the first time, with Imperial Airways (our national company) forming plans for ten years ahead, and with planes forthcoming which will carry 20 per cent. more paying load, for any given power, than do existing craft, aerial transport has a chance to make rapid progress. There is every prospect now that the speed and safety of flying will be combined with commercial success."

The ensemble costume is trimmed with fur that matches the fabric. Two shades of lame are often used in the same evening gown. Cut-out applique of gray felt is effective in a hat of black velvet. Slender bracelets of coiled gold or silver wire are exceedingly smart. Some of the more tailored coats feature with four buttons in front.

A feather fantasia in two shades of gray trims a hat of steel-gray felt. The flat envelope purse is covered with brocade or rich embroidery. Woolen jumpers for sports have small white collars and leather belts. The evening tunic is a richly beaded affair, very slim and graceful.

Junkers Throw off the Mask

WAR-GUILT NOTE DELAYED.

BERLIN.—A violent storm is raging over the proposed German Note to the Allies denying guilt for the war.

The warnings of foreign diplomats and German democrats have had their effect, and the Note will be delayed. An official statement says the Cabinet will meet next week, when the Chancellor, Dr. Marx, has returned to Berlin, to decide when and how the Government's declaration of August 29 denying Germany's guilt shall be notified to the foreign Powers.

The official excuse for the delay is that many suggestions and appeals concerning the matter have been received by the Government, especially from business circles. Apparently the business circles were afraid that the Note might spoil the chance of getting the £40,000,000 "loan" and the countless millions that are expected to follow it. The Nationalists believe that the official statement means that the Government will defer the despatch of the Note till the Greek elections, and their rage is so great that they have thrown off their mask and displayed the murderous face of Germany that we learned to know during the war.

To justify the statement it is not necessary to quote from the less responsible Nationalist papers. I will quote the words of one of the most serious of Berlin's newspapers, the Borsen Zeitung, which declares that the leaders of the Revolution "led when they made the people believe in Germany's guilt, and points out that if the League of Nations, and French Government, and the other enemies of Germany cannot put up with a denial of Germany's guilt, the implication is that they consider that the Treaty of Versailles must remain for the co-operation of the nations.

An Appeal to Arms.
"That is a scheme in which we cannot co-operate," says the Borsen Zeitung. "It remains for us an urgent necessity both at home and abroad to put an end to the lie of Germany's guilt for the war, and thus take the only way to the reconciliation of the peoples."

The German plan for the restoration of Europe is the annihilation of the Treaty of Versailles. The Borsen Zeitung is perfectly plain. "Every German, except our pacifists, knows that the Treaty of Versailles is kept in force by arms and that it will only be brought to an end when it can be overcome by arms."

The Borsen Zeitung, be it noted, makes its chief appeal to German business people, German industrialists, and German financiers, whom we are asked to put on their feet.

The Romance of the Wedding Ring

A very fascinating object to most women is a wedding-ring: that shining little circlet which to the happy bride means so much as she stands upon the threshold of her newly married life; and to the happy wife and mother enshrines such tender dreams and golden memories.

A Symbol.
In bygone days its circular form was regarded as the symbol of eternity, and indicative of the continuity of love. The giving of a ring as a pledge both of an engagement and marriage dates back to the old Jewish custom of exchanging or giving something as ratification of an agreement or bargain, and also to the Roman custom of giving a ring upon the conclusion of a bargain or business contract. Among the ancient Egyptians too, the custom existed of placing a piece of ring-money (used before coins were introduced) upon the bride's finger to indicate that she was endowed with her husband's wealth. This symbolism still survives in the present marriage service. "With all my worldly goods I thee endow."

In earlier days both betrothal and wedding rings were very much more elaborate than they are now, Jewish wedding-rings very often being surmounted by a representation of the Temple or the Ark of the Covenant. The Roman "key-rings" were interesting on account of their symbolism. These were made either of gold, silver, ivory, or iron, with a key attached to the circlet in token that the man handed over to his wife the keys of the house on their wedding day. The Saxon father said, "I give thee my daughter to be thy honour and thy wife, and to keep thy keys."

A Beautiful Custom.
The laying of the ring upon the Prayer-book during the service is a relic of the beautiful old custom of the blessing of the wedding-ring before it was placed upon the bride's finger. The "fourth finger," of course, refers to the "five digits of the hand," counting the thumb as the first. Both betrothal and wedding rings have been made, in various times and lands, of almost every conceivable material, such as metal of every kind, bone, ivory, crystal, even earthenware, embellished by every kind of ornamentation and design, chased, engraved, or set with precious stones.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

WHEN LITTLE PITCHERS TALK.

Little pitchers have big ears. Alas, quite frequently, big mouths.

If people realized how often children unconsciously pass on a very distinct reflection of the conversation in the family circle, they would be a little more careful about what they put into those big ears.

There's the Jones', for instance. They would never ask their next door neighbor, the artist, what he gets for a picture. Nor would they want him to listen to the family conversation and hear them gassing away much as gets for a picture, and how many he paints a year, and whether he can really afford that car he has just bought, or is leaving his bills unpaid to buy it.

As if He Had Been Behind the Door.
Yet when small Davey Jones comes over to inspect the new car and says to Mr. Martin: "I wonder how much you get for a picture? You don't paint more than nine or ten every year, do you? Won't that auto cost you an awful lot of money to run it?" Mr. Martin, knowing small Davey's mental range and the improbability that he would take such a deep interest in his financial affairs unassisted, can reconstruct that dinner table conversation almost as well as if he had been behind the door listening to it.

Some neighbors of mine have had a little girl visiting them last week. And every day the little girl from across the street has been over to play with the visitor. The visitor was a little older and evidently the younger child was fascinated by her for the minute she was let out of the house she shot over to her new friend's house like an arrow from a bow. When the visitor left they had a very fond parting with all sorts of promises to write and meet again next year.

What She Thought Her Mother Wanted.

Yet when I asked the little girl's mother if Jane missed her little playmate she said very coolly: "Oh, I don't think so. I don't think she liked her very well—I asked her what she thought of her, and she said she was all right but an awful tomboy."

Now, of course, that may have been Jane's real reaction but she certainly didn't show it by her acts. If I had to win or lose money by it I should wager that Jane was instinctively reflecting as children so often will in their responses to their elders, her mother's own feeling toward the people the child was visiting, and hence toward the child.

Suspicious Phrase.

I witnessed a very amusing little example of the child's habit of unconsciously giving its parents away one day when I was dining at a little inn, and a 12-year-old child in the presence of the inn keeper remarked thoughtfully: "Why, I don't think this food is very bad."

It wouldn't take a scientist to reconstruct from that fragment all that went behind it, would it? May be it's a wicked diversion but I do think this sort of reconstruction is rather an interesting amusement. Of course the danger is that one can sometimes go very wrong and therefore one should not put too much trust in one's reconstructions when they are not supported by other evidence.

Big Trade Slump

British Exports Down by £4,000,000 Last Month—More Brought From Germany.

Imports to Great Britain in August, according to Board of Trade returns issued yesterday, were worth £102,196,492, a decrease of £5,919,006 on July, but an increase on August last year of £13,775,511.

Exports during August were £66,288,294, which is less by £4,994,995 than the July figures, but greater by £6,184,934 than those of August, 1923. Coal exports fell by £2,582,081.

As regards Germany, Great Britain took 5,600 tons of special steel, billets, slabs, etc., against only 500 tons last year; 3,184 tons of sheet bar and tin-plate bars against none in 1923; 465,300 clocks and watches against 174,615 last year.

WOMAN PRISONER'S CALLOUS CONFESSION.

Confessing that she killed four children and her first husband, and attempted to take the life of her second woman prisoner is awaiting trial at San Marcos, Texas, for one of the most startling series of crimes ever recorded in the United States. She is Mrs. Annie Houptrief, a brunette of 35, and according to the confession she signed, the children were uncontrollable, and she wanted to get rid of them. "They would not mind and I poisoned them," she stated. "Their father was always getting them, and it made me furious. I decided to get rid of them, like I got rid of Court Schroeder—poison them." The confession then recited that she went to a drugist and bought a quantity of arsenic. She put this in the coffee of Lydia, aged 12, on April 4, 1923, and gave her some more of the poison on the following day and the next. Lydia died on April 7, 1923. Mrs. Houptrief attended the funeral and wept at the grave. The family returned to the Houptrief home on a farm in Hays County, and Mrs. Houptrief began giving Walter, 14, arsenic. He died on April 11. Again Mrs. Houptrief attended the funeral and wept at the grave. She returned to the home and began administering to Herbert, 8. The boy died on May 4, and was buried the following day. Mrs. Houptrief "took a rest" then. She believed that suspicion might be excited if more deaths occurred in the family. But after a few days "she became herself again" and began administering the poison to Annie. The doses must have been weak, Mrs. Houptrief stated, for the poison did not kill the girl. She was permitted to recover. Later, Mrs. Houptrief mixed up a new portion of the poison and gave it to Anne in water. The little girl died on November 11, 1923. After the children of Houptrief by his first wife were "out of the way," Mrs. Houptrief decided to poison Houptrief. She put poison in his coffee. Houptrief was a strong man. The poison had little effect upon him. Mrs. Houptrief continued to put the arsenic in his coffee, until he grew so weak that he had to be taken to a hospital. It was then the doctors made the startling discovery that he had been poisoned. He was so weak he could not tell what had happened. Doctors declared he had taken so much arsenic that he was almost embalmed alive, "poked with the poison." They reported the case to the authorities. Mrs. Houptrief and her brother were arrested. The brother was released when Mrs. Houptrief confessed to killing the 4 children and trying to kill her husband.

The Prospects of Singapore

The views of the Government upon the question of Singapore remain unchanged, says Mr. Ammon. But, all the same, he added that if the suggested attempt to bring about a further limitation of armaments comes to nothing, we shall probably have to proceed with the scheme. Possibly the Secretary to the Admiralty is beginning to grasp the strategic conception of the project, under which Gibraltar in the West and Singapore in the East are to form the two great points d'appui of our future naval dispositions.—Truth.

Wednesday, October 1, 1924. The London Conference

In the "Monthly Review" of Barclay's Bank appears the following comments on the agreement reached by the London Conference, and a forecast of the results, in which a somewhat optimistic view is taken:

"The supreme achievement of the London Conference lies in the fact that, for the first time in the long series of conferences since the Armistice, a comprehensive settlement has been arrived at by consent. Concessions have been made by each of the parties to the agreement. Inevitably, these concessions have caused disappointment, and if the necessary ratification is secured, the economic possibilities of Germany will become the dominant factor in the reparations problem. The necessary loan has still to be arranged, but the success of the London negotiations is undoubtedly due in part to the realization of the necessity to distinguish sharply between the political and the economic aspects of the question, and with this realization, it should not be impossible to provide security sufficient to assure success. It must be remembered that, to a considerable extent, the proceeds are, under the Dawes scheme, to be used for the finance of deliveries in kind. Definite progress should now be possible in the most difficult of all forms of reconstruction—the reconstruction of devastated trade. The dominant characteristic of the experts' scheme is the recognition of the fact that the payment of reparations is dependent upon the industrial efficiency of Germany, and, although it would be foolish to expect that miracles can now be performed or to deny that many problems remain unsolved, the restoration of sound financial conditions in Germany and the maintenance of a stable exchange should be assured. The tendency to subordinate genuinely productive enterprise to wild speculation will be checked, and with the final removal of the complete distrust of the currency, the advantages of thrift over extravagance will once more become apparent. There is no question that under such conditions Germany will realize that surplus production over consumption which is the essential preliminary to reparation payments. The necessity of disposing of this surplus in foreign markets and the influence of foreign in kind will inevitably involve difficulties, but the ultimate result of wider trading possibilities must be to increase effective purchasing power and to create a more general prosperity in which all countries will share."

seriously disturb the industrial balance. The embargo placed on German goods which was referred to in Monday's despatches would indicate that France at least intends to do everything possible to protect her manufactures. The British Prime Minister also expressed his fears of the result in his farewell to the signatories of the London Agreement. He said:

"There is another great class of dangers which we have to face. I refer to the economic problems which are bound to arise as soon as the Central European Powers find their feet. There will be an attempt on the part of soulless international combines, using the weapon of political pressure, to subordinate common interests to their own. The defence of national interests and of national well-being against such moves as this must receive the most careful consideration and the firm action of democratic Governments."

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

ATHLETE DIES SUDDENLY. HALIFAX, N.S., Sept. 30. Just a few minutes after partaking in the Firemen's Duty Race at the D.A.A. sports in Dartmouth Park to-night Charles Fox Woodside suffered an attack of heart disease and died a few minutes later.

RAIFICATION OF PROTOCOL EXPECTED.

GENEVA, Sept. 30. With Japan satisfied and the British Dominions seemingly content, delegates to the League of Nations Assembly are to-night congratulating themselves upon the successful completion of the stupendous task of drafting the protocol of arbitration and security, which when ratified by a sufficient number of states will be followed next June by a general World Conference for reduction of Armaments. The final act of the historic negotiations will come to-morrow, when the protocol will be presented to the Assembly, but as practically all the delegations are represented on the Anglo-Italian Treaty accepted the final clauses and solved the Japanese difficulties, it was generally expected to-night that the Assembly will approve of the text and vote for transmission of the protocol to home Governments and Parliaments for ratification. The Japanese to-night seemed greatly pleased by the outcome of the day's work. Although they have been obliged to withdraw their amendment concerning the declaration of an aggressor, presumption of aggression has been eliminated unless it is proved that the state is violating the basic principles of the protocol and resorts to war.

Magistrates Court

A labourer resident of Carew Street charged with being drunk and disorderly (3) breaking a pane of glass in the house of Mark Stevenson, Banerman Street, valued at $1.00, was fined $5 or 7 days.

A young man arrested on George Street last night was charged with disorderly conduct and fined $10. A young girl who accompanied him was fined $5 or in default five days imprisonment. This same woman has frequently appeared before court on similar charges and on several occasions the city clerk has made efforts to reform her, but without avail.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

Sept. 29th.—Up very betimes and to the office, albeit mygaw sore of my shoulder which I did bruise with my gun yesterday. Divers people bring me strange rumours of politics which I am little inclined to believe, being mighty ridiculous and so not worth repeating. But Lord, how little does it take to start a rumour in this city, and in how short a time does it spread and become magnified. This afternoon to the Tennis Club, for the formal closing. Despite the soreness of my shoulder, I play many sets to my very great content, being now some 6 weeks since last I used a racket. It is announced that the Club will have a dance soon, and I trust I may be in the city to attend it. But what troubles me is my wife, since the wretch will want to go with me, but I will not take her and will send her for a while to the country that she may not be here when the dance takes place.

Opening of the Normal School

As modestly as the violet blows on some lone bank, the Normal School was opened in its new home on College Heights (the Parade Ground) on Monday morning, the 29th ult. There were present: Hon. W. S. Monroe (Prime Minister and Minister of Education); Mrs. Monroe, Dr. Burke (Deputy Minister of Education), Rev.
Dr. Curtis (Supt. Education, Methodist); Rev. T. J. Flynn (representing R. K. Kennedy, Supt. of Education, R.C., who was unavoidably absent); Dr. Blackall (Supt. Education, Ch. England); and the following members of the Normal School staff:
S. P. Whiteway, (Principal); Miss
Betty McGrath, B.A. (Hons.), Toronto;
Mrs. Stirling Fraser, Prof. Hutton and Prof. Murdoch, J. C. Hogg, B.A.
(Hons.), Cambridge (Science Tripos), lecturer in Science, and Capt. O'- Grady, Instructor in Physical Culture, were unable to be present.

Some 60 students and teachers—nearly all Associates in Arts of the Council of Higher Education—are enrolled for the first half-year and most of them were present, enjoying the beauty of the building and taking inspiration from the fact that a big step forward in educational advance had been taken and at last a real Normal School established.

Principal Whiteway opened the ceremony in an address that he should commit to writing for publication. It dealt with the historical facts of educational growth in Newfoundland in a scholarly manner and showed beyond a shadow of a doubt that, backward though Newfoundland is in the field of education compared with larger communities, the progress made during the past one hundred years is wonderfully great, especially when the difficulties to be overcome are taken into consideration. It is not easy to give a précis of what Principal Whiteway said. It was all solid meat.

The Principal was followed by Dr.
Burke, Deputy Minister of Education.
He regretted exceedingly that Dr.
Barnes was not present, for to this project he had given a great deal of thought, care and personal oversight.
Principal Whiteway had referred to the fact that a century ago a great fish-merchant of Newfoundland, Samuel Codner, had devoted himself whole-heartedly to the cause of education and had established the Newfoundland School Society. Dr. Burke was of the opinion that a great fish-merchant of to-day was just as anxious to help forward the sacred cause of education as Samuel Codner had been; he referred to the Prime Minister, Mr. Monroe. He was delighted to be associated with the opening of the Normal School, for he was convinced that improved methods of teaching could accomplish much for the betterment of Newfoundland, and particularly if the children of to-day could be trained to look for the best that was in everyone rather than the worst. Constructive rather than destructive methods were needed. Dr.
Burke was bright and breezy.

Dr. Curtis then addressed the gathering. He had been delighted with the statement of progress which Principal Whiteway had given and he recognized that, although to that day there had been no regular Normal School, teachers had done amazingly good work. Everyone, however, knew that still better work could be done with the help of greater knowledge and greater skill. A well known philosopher had said that the greatest thing in creation was man and the greatest thing in man was the mind.
Yet how careless the world had been in the past as to the training of the mind—the most wonderful thing with which the Creator endows every child.
No one would hand a precious stone to be melted and fashioned to a tinker, yet many people were indifferent as to the qualifications of the person to whom the training of the child, infinitely more valuable than a precious stone, was to be entrusted.
There were tremendous possibilities for good in the Normal School. The teachers would be trained to understand the mind and would so be the better able to develop it. He was convinced that the bulk of the people of Newfoundland were behind the Normal School and improved education, generally, and would demand the best possible training for their young people.

Dr. Blackall was called upon next.
He was heart and soul for the Normal School. He regretted exceedingly that a large gathering of citizens had not been called together for the ceremony. The opening of the Normal School was a day of national importance. Flags should be flying and bands playing. He felt this for the simple reason that he regarded education as the true foundation of rock on which citizenship could be built. Education was the most important thing with which statesmen, parents, churches, societies, all, could concern themselves. The evils of ignorance were terrible.

The building was none too good.
In its dignity, beauty and simplicity, it symbolized for Newfoundland the grandeur of education. He thanked God that Dr. Barnes had been succeeded by a man of much vision and common sense as Mr. Monroe, for under him he felt assured that everything possible for education would be done.

The next step—and it should be taken immediately—was the inauguration of a Junior College. He knew of parents who had not the means of sending their sons and daughters abroad who were longing for the Junior College to come and he also knew that the teachers of the land were longing likewise for the opportunity of gaining greater knowledge.

The last to be called upon to speak was the Prime Minister. The best wine was kept until the end.

Mr. Monroe expressed great pleasure at being present on such an important occasion. With Dr. Blackall, he regretted that many were not present to share the joy and he was particularly sorry that Dr. Barnes was not there, for he had had pretty well everything to do with the erection of the building. People might criticize the expedition; but at all events, there was something to show for it and something good. The building, however, would not be of much service without the teacher. He felt particularly glad because he took the Normal School to symbolize a willingness on the part of the people of all denominations to co-operate in educational effort.

There was one thing needed to complete the organization and that was the Junior College. The building invited it, the education of the people demanded it, the Carnegie Foundation was willing to subsidize it to the extent of Fifteen Thousand Dollars, ($15,000.00), a year.

There was little doubt that the enthusiasm and zeal of the three Superintendents of Education had done much to make the Normal School possible and to secure the help of the Carnegie Fund towards the Junior College.

He had much pleasure in wishing Professors and students alike a Happy and Successful year.

Famous Recipes for Home Cooking

THANKSGIVING PUMPKIN PIE.

2 eggs.
1½ cups strained pumpkin.
1 cupful sugar.
1 level teaspoonful cinnamon.
½ teaspoonful salt.
1½ cupfuls milk.
1 level teaspoonful ginger.

Mix the sugar, ginger, cinnamon and salt together until there are no lumps, then add to the pumpkin and mix thoroughly. Beat the eggs until light and add to this mixture. Last add the milk. Mix well together.

Make a pastry using:
1½ cupfuls flour,
½ cupful or 4 ounces Crisco,
½ teaspoonful salt.

Sift the flour and salt together. Cut the Crisco in with a knife until it is about the consistency of coarse meal.
Add enough ice water—about four to six tablespoonfuls—to make a paste which will clear the bowl. Cover a pie tin, building up on only one side the filling. Bake in a moderate oven about one hour.

Had a Narrow Escape

An item appears in the Halifax
Herald, Sept. 27th, saying that Joseph Keepins, one of the crew of the Newfoundland schr. Ellen F. Ross, now at Gloucester discharging a cargo of salt from St. John's, had a narrow escape from fatal injury which fortunately resulted in only a lacerated scalp. Keepins was climbing the hoister and one of the crew turned it over by hand. In some manner Keepins had his head too close to the cog wheels of the machine and they clinched his scalp, mangling it and causing a bad wound.

Ask Grandma She Knows—

Years ago, before the Fire—before the Crash, father back than many of us can remember, the favourite washing powder of sensible women was Pearline. There are very few articles in daily use now that were popular at that time. Pearline seems to be the outstanding example, for this great washing powder which is to-day the favourite with millions of modern women, was undoubtedly the choice thirty and forty years ago. Pearline has stood the test of time, and has more friends now than ever. For ten-cents you can get a big package of Pearline at most grocery stores.

Star Ladies' Card Party and Dance

At the Star of the Sea Hall to-night a card party and dance will take place, which promises to be on a line with the successful ones held there last year. The affair, which is in aid of the C.C.G. Band is being held under the auspices of the Star Ladies' Association. For the card party great prizes are being offered and a special prize will also be awarded for the winners of the elimination dance.
Supper will also be served.

Ice small sponge cakes, and while they are still moist, roll them in macaron crumbs.

To-Night's Dance at Gaiety Hall

The Prince's Orchestra are holding a dance in the Gaiety Hall to-night, and preparations are being made to have it a very enjoyable affair. The dance was first to be held, following the Citizens' Ball for the Special Service Squadron, but like the Ball, was postponed. The decorations which were up for the Strollers' Dance have been left standing, and with the special program of music prepared a good night is promised to those who attend.

Motor Car Smash-up

About 8 o'clock last night an Overland motor car, owned by ex-Constable Pike, which had been parked at the top of Flower Hill, suddenly dashed down the incline, scattering pedestrians in all directions. Due to the steep incline the car gathered speed very quickly and it was a miracle how people using the thoroughfare at the time escaped injury. As soon as the car left the road it ran down the sidewalk and collided with the steps leading to the Roberts' residence. It then spun around and ended up by crashing side-on into the house. The Roberts family received a bad fright. When the crash took place some chinaware on a sideboard in the front room was scattered all over the place and smashed in pieces.
The damaged car was later carted away on Lester's sledge to a garage for repairs. Luckily there was no one in the car at the time.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about half as much.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma—there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. "The Great White Way" Coming

NEW PRODUCTION TELLS THRILLING STORY, INTERPRETED BY AN EXCEPTIONAL COLLECTION OF CELEBRITIES.

"The Great White Way," the Cosmopolitan Corporation's big motion picture, which graphically brings modern New York and Broadway to the screen in what is said to be one of the most interesting stories ever filmed, will have its premiere at the Nickel Theatre.

That the new picture has evoked an interest among patrons of the silent drama unparalleled in the history of the tremendous demand for seats to the opening and for ensuing performances. This interest in the forthcoming production is nationwide according to Manager Kieley of the Nickel Theatre.

One of the big features is a realistic prize fight in which Pete Hartley, well known professional lightweight, battles Oscar Shaw, leading man of the picture. This scene includes such leaders in fight circles as Tex Rickard, who appears as promoter; Joe Humphreys, announcer; Johnny Gallagher, referee, and Jimmy Quigley, time keeper. Others who appear around the ring or in the training quarters at Madison Square Garden, are Irvin S. Cobb, Damon Runyon, "Sugar" Baer, "Kid" Broad and Tammany Young.

Another thrilling feature of "The Great White Way" is a big race track scene filmed at Belmont Park on Futurity Day. Earl Sande is one of the cast in this particular sequence.

In addition, the new picture brings to the screen for the first time the entire chorus of the famous "Ziegfeld Follies." The back stage mysteries of a big Broadway production are revealed to film fans from the time of the first rehearsal to the finished performance. For this particular episode, Ned Wayburn, stage director of the "Follies," was engaged to produce a special and original miniature musical comedy.

Health and Vitality to Women

Health and Vitality can be yours without narcotics or drugs. Keeping well is largely a matter of keeping at bay those dread ailments peculiar to women as evidenced by headaches, nervousness, dragging-down, backache and irritability. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been overcoming such conditions and restoring sick and ailing women to health. It surely pays every suffering woman to try it.

Nickel Theatre Secures "In the Shadow of Whitechapel"

HEP WORTH FILMS OF London have produced "In the Shadows of Whitechapel," conceded to be the biggest of England's big melo-dramas. London and the provinces have taken it to their hearts and practically overnight this sensational motion picture production has attained a smashing success. The English press, without a dissenting voice, have endorsed, and actually labelled this the biggest of England's big melo-dramas. The musical settings are a joy to hear, old familiar music hall melodies made famous by the headlines of the varieties of the Old Country are heard again for the first time in many years. A vivid picture of the slums with the joys and sorrows, love and laughter, their quaint mannerisms and quaint "lingo" which is presented in a true story of life in London. "In the Shadows of Whitechapel" will be shown at Nickel Theatre starting to-morrow.

Arrivals from Labrador

The following schooners have arrived at Change Islands from Labrador:—L. C. Norman, with 400 quintals; Wild Willie, 230; and Margaret N. 200. The last two have made the second trip. The Vernie May and Victoria here returned to Herring Neck and Old Perlican with 600 and 370 quintals respectively.

JOHN CONNORS.
A well known and highly respected citizen in the person of John Connors, Master Cooper, passed away at his residence, Brassil's Square, at 3.30 p.m. yesterday. Deceased, who was 82 years of age, was a man of splendid character and his passing will be deeply regretted by his numerous friends. He leaves to mourn, one brother, Patrick, two sons, Timothy and John, the latter is at present dangerously ill of pleuro-pneumonia; one daughter, Mrs. J. F. Lynch, residing in Rome; one step-daughter; and two step-sons, in Canada and the States.

Fishery Reports

Change Islands To Hare Bay Head—Total landed to date 12,476 quintals. Last week 1,590 quintals, including schooner catches. Boats on offer grounds get one to three quintals per day. Squid very scarce, and scarcity of bait the past ten days has been a setback resulting in considerable loss to fishermen.

Channel To Port aux Basques—Total landed to date 1,783. For last week 25 quintals. Prospects not very good. Plenty squid. Dogfish still plentiful and poor weather; the fishermen are therefore hindered.

Colnet Isle To Head Of Salmonier—Total landed to date 3,900 quintals. Last week 200 quintals. Prospects fairly good. Plenty squid. Fishermen report squid plentiful when weather is fine.

Ramea—Total landed to date 4,150 quintals. About 173 quintals last week. Prospects fairly good since September. All month September fish seems to be little more plentiful but dogfish are numerous.

Wild Cove Point To Hare Bay Head, Fogo—Total landed to date 7,200 qts. Last week 325 quintals. Fish not so plentiful, although dogfish so numerous that a good trial of fishing is impossible.

Cobb's Arm to Merrill's Arm—Total landed to date 5,800 quintals. Last week 300 quintals. Prospects fair. Weather stormy, boats fishing only three days.

HAVE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 25.—Coming from far back in the stretch run, J. E. Griffith's Single Foot, bay son of Wrack and Virginia L., yesterday captured the twelfth running of the $10,000 Eastern Shore handicap, beating thirteen other juveniles, and earning $9,650 for his owner. The winner was the favorite. Single Foot, which ran third to Mother Goose and Stimulus in the Futurity at Belmont Park, packed out weight of 122 pounds and ran the six furlongs in 1:13 over a fast track. Fairbrother brought the colt home a neck in front of W. S. Kilmer's Saratoga Maje, the latter being the same distance in front of W. J. Howard's Chink in a thrilling finish.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Sarazen, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt's speedy three-year old gelding, yesterday won the eighth running of the Arverne Handicap at the Aqueduct race course, running the six furlongs in 1:28 1/2 in the fast time of 1:11 2-5, three-fifths of a second slower than the track record for the distance. George Babin had the mount, and the son of Hightime and Rush Box beat the Ramocas Stable's Zev by a length, earning $3,225 for the Fair Stable.

RENAULT-WILLS BOUT ABANDONED.

Promoter Johnston Unable To Get Negro Fighter To Sign Contract.

New York—Negotiations for a heavyweight battle between Harry Wills, negro challenger for the world's title, and Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, who is established as a contender for the class honors, are temporarily off as far as Renault is concerned, according to the announcement yesterday of Leo P. Flynn, the Canadian's manager.

The match was sought as an attraction for the Yankee Stadium of the Polo Grounds on Oct. 13, by matchmaker Jimmy Johnson, but because of Johnson's inability to obtain Wills's signature to a contract, Flynn said, the negotiations have been abandoned for the present. Flynn added that he will be ready to accept the match for Renault just as soon as Johnson presents a contract with Wills's signature affixed.

Renault, Flynn said, now is arranging for a three week's hunting trip, while waiting for his injured right hand to mend. The Canadian has been flooded with offers for bouts since his one-sided victory over Bartley Madden and has professed desire to meet Wills in a match to determine a rival for Champion Jack Dempsey. To all offers, however, Flynn said he has turned a deaf ear to date because of the prospects of a Renault-Wills battle. Now, the manager asserted, he will give careful consideration to all propositions submitted to him under a plan by which he hopes to keep Renault active against heavyweights throughout the country. Flynn added that Renault will not engage in bouts against any light-heavyweights, because he is convinced that Renault has established himself as a legitimate challenger for Dempsey.

Among the offers he has received, Flynn said, is one from Promoter Tom Goodwin, of Boston, who wants Renault to fight Jack Sharkey, Hub heavyweight, in Boston. Jack Doyle, Coast promoter, has offered Flynn a guarantee of $30,000 for five five round bouts for Renault in Vernon, Cal., with the privilege for Flynn of selecting the Canadian's five rivals, Oakland (Cal.), Portland (Ore.), and Middle West promoters also are bidding for Renault's services, Flynn said.

Best Local Talent in "Three Live Ghosts"

Local Artists Open Dramatic Season In Casitas.

Lovers of the theatre will welcome the opening of the dramatic season by the appearance of St. John's favourites in Karl Trapnell's presentation of "Three Live Ghosts," which commences a short engagement in the Casino to-night. The play is brimful of interest from start to finish and those taking part have been thoroughly rehearsed and know their lines to perfection. A piece like "Three Live Ghosts" must have good players as it is by no means a simple manuscript; and therefore that accounts for the casts, consisting of such artists as A. E. Holmes, Capt. O'Grady, Karl Trapnell, Sandy Lawrence and Misses Ryan and Ryall, assisted by an exceptionally well-balanced supporting cast. Whilst the title would lead you to think the play to be a comedy, it is nevertheless a strong detective story, but when A. E. Holmes is there, you may depend there is some lively comedy. The greatest role he has ever played—put sed. Between the acts there are some delightful specialties that alone are well worth the admission. They consist of such well known performers as Arthur P. Cameron, Dan Delmar, Micky Michaels, Sandy Lawrence, A. E. Holmes and Karl Trapnell. It's a whale of a show; book your seats early.

His Questioners Had Many Tongues. But He Had None

The Express rattled over the switches near Ottawa Junction, then gathered speed, leapt onward in the drive to Montreal.

Reclining in a fauteuil of the drawing-room coach, nonchalantly gazing out across the flying panorama, was Phillip, aged ten.

Just where he had come from, or how, everyone seemed at a loss to conjecture; but the fact remained he was very much in evidence, in fact too much so for the peace of mind of the train officials, for it transpired that Phillip didn't have a ticket.

Of course, a traveller without his fare is not in the best of standing with a conductor; and he is perforce required to give explanations. But the explanations tendered by Phillip proved entirely incomprehensible. First they tried him in English; then they tried him in French; they even ransacked the second class, where they inadvertently turned up a gentleman linguist on the way to the Metropolis, who also hazarded various of his tongues, but alas, with no avail.

At the Juvenile Court here, where they finally brought him in desperation, they talked to Phillip in all the official tongues of the Occident and Orient. Then suddenly, an individual, remarkable for deductive ability, discovered that Phillip was deaf and dumb—Montreal Star.

When an Aero-plane Crashes

How the Airman May Save His LIFE.

(By HAROLD BALFOUR.)

There is great art in crashing your aeroplane skilfully and artistically, in such a way that the pilot remains unhurt and the machine takes the chief shock of impact. To crash scientifically when occasion demands is an accomplishment of every experienced pilot.

Except in cases where a mishap, or pilot's error, has put the machine out of control at such a height that a terrible accident is bound to occur, an airman has time for the realisation that he is bound to crash within the space of the next second or so. The actions of that second may decide whether the crew are to be unharmed or hurt, perhaps seriously.

An engine failure at a low height over a wood means a certain crash, but if the pilot does the right thing there is no reason for serious harm.

An Air Force pilot whom I knew was once flying over the New Forest when his engine stopped. Choosing the densest part of the forest that he could see, he glided down and "stalled" his machine about four feet above the topmost branches. When a machine stalls it will "pancake," which means that it drops downwards on an even keel. In this case so gently and skilfully did the pilot arrange his crash that the branches of the trees formed a cushion for his landing and a bed for the machine.

The stranded pilot dared not move from his seat in case of dislodging the aeroplane from its strange perch.

After he had been missing for some hours an aerial search party set out to find him. They soon located him and saw his predicament, but it was not until nightfall that we managed to get the ladders necessary to reach him and effect a rescue. The machine had to be left where it was—an excellent example to the pupils of the station of how to crash in a forest.

In every case where a machine is about to crash, both pilot and passenger should put up one arm to shield their faces against being thrown forward against the edge of the cockpit and from broken glass from the wind-screens or instruments.

During the war, at a training station in Norfolk, I was gliding down in an Avro preparatory to landing in front of, and parallel with, my machine's shed. When at a height of about 30 ft. some mechanics wheeled out an aeroplane from the shed door below and in front of me. I saw that a crash was inevitable, as I had no time to start the engine again and fly away.

It seemed to happen all quite slowly. I had time to shout to my passenger in front, "Look out. We are going to hit," to turn off the engine switch, and check that the petrol was off also, before my undercarriage hit the top plane of the machine below. I can remember, as we collided, bellowing to the mechanics of the machine beneath to clear out. When we hit I had my arms in front of my face and my body braced back in the seat. We looped on to the ground and hung, both unhurt, head downwards by our safety belts.

The aeroplane was a "write off," but we were none the worse—not even scratched.

Many a pupil has misjudged his landing and made it too near a house or wall. The aeroplane may be careering along the ground at forty miles an hour straight at the hard and solid object ahead. Kick the rudder hard over one way and the machine will slow round, wiping off the undercarriage. It will probably tie up, break a wing and do other damage. But a collision which might be serious will have been avoided.

If a pupil accidentally stalls at a height of about 30 ft.—not enough for a bad accident but sufficient to ground and hurt—the student should remember to push the control stick hard over one way. This tilts the machine enough to allow one wing to take the first ground impact and

THE DREAM MAN.

Lullaby, rockabye, here comes the Dream man! Bringing sweet dreams from the village of sleep, "Fresh dreams and bright ones, and lovely all-night ones!" Hear his voice calling: "The prices are cheap! "Come look them over, dreams sweet as the clover! "Dreams I am sure every babe will enjoy! "Come while they last now, I'm selling them fast now! "Dreams for a girl and dreams for a boy!"

Lullaby, rockabye, hear his bell ringing. Softly and sweetly, as evening comes down; Just hear him calling as night time is falling: "Come, all you babies, the Dream Man's in town! "Dreams, old and new ones, and lovely and true ones! "Dreams of enchantment and dreams of delight! "Dreams that will gladden you, dreams that won't sadden you! "Wonderful dreams! Oh, who wants one to-night?"

Lullaby, rockabye! Hush now, my darling. Listen! He's crying his wonderful wares! "Dreams! That are dandy ones, cookies and candy ones! "Dreams about woolly dogs, dreams about bears! "Dreams that are surely made, dreams that are purely made! "Dreams you can have if your eyes are shut tight! "Dreams you can smile through and sleep all the while through! "Dreams for the babies! Who wants one to-night?"

telescope, thus absorbing the main shock.

The golden rule always to be remembered is "Never mind about the machine and do not try to save it from damage. Crash it completely in any way you like if it is going to help you or your passenger to step out unhurt."—London Daily Mail.

Germans in Spain

BLOW ADDED AT BRITISH TRADE.
Further investigations only serve to confirm the conviction, writes a trade correspondent, that the conclusion of the Spanish-German commercial treaty will strike a disastrous blow at British trade with Spain. Germany, whenever the pact is put into operation, will be in a position to out Great Britain from the market. This opinion is freely expressed by those in Spain engaged in the metal trades with Great Britain.

One of the largest houses in Spain in this business is Messrs. Riviere Hijo. They have four factories for wire-drawing, galvanizing, tinning, and wire-netting manufacture. During the last few days Messrs. Riviere have received offers of wire rods—the material from which wire is drawn—from all the big German concerns, including Krupp, at prices which will compel them to place their orders the other side of the Rhine. At the same time Messrs. Riviere have received letters from some of their suppliers in England informing them, almost fatalistically, that as soon as the German Treaty comes into force they will be quite unable to compete. There is a big demand in Spain for iron and steel tubes for locomotive building and repairs. A great deal of the business has been done in the past in England, but the treaty will enable the Germans to undersell everybody. Not only will Great Britain be hit badly, but tube manufacturers in Spain, in spite of the duties, will find themselves unable to compete. Side pockets which fall below the hem are a new note for the long satin tunic-blouse.

Fashions and Fads.

The large hat is so occasional—as to be conspicuous! Straight, narrow, fur-lined capes are for street wear. Satin, grograin, felt and hatter's plush lead in millinery. Fur is used in numerous narrow bands as dress trimming. Many of the short sports jackets have circular capes to match. Straight, narrow coats have deep bands of fur at hem and collar.

The Backward Boy and His Prospects

WHY HIS PARENTS NEED NOT DESPAIR.

By A PUBLIC SCHOOLMASTER.

The story recently reported from New York, of a young American prodigy of learning, ought to be a lesson—and a warning to all parents.

This boy, we are told, was so crammed with knowledge that he could read and write at two years old, entered Harvard at eleven, and received his degree at sixteen.

He is now a clerk, and his chief ambition is to get work of any kind which does not require thinking in order to make ends meet.

The story has its obvious moral. And speaking as a schoolmaster of some experience, I cannot insist too strongly on this moral. But so hardly does tradition die that nearly every parent in my experience has the idea that great mental acquisitiveness in a young boy is a quality which ought to be liberally fostered and increased at all costs.

What a mistaken ideal! Parents have not realised that a super-normal boy wants the most watching.

In fact, my personal acquaintance with such boys leads me to believe that these "prodigies" should be allowed for a time at least.

For success in life—and that is what all parents want for their sons—is the result of many factors, of which a stored mass of information is only a minor one.

The greater factors are control of nerves and adaptability to circumstances; and the "swat" to use a schoolboy expression, by the very nature of his ambition is harming these qualities which arm a man in the struggle for existence.

The so-called "backward boy" who often does cause real worry to his parents—for they cannot conceive at the time any suitable profession for him—is often charged with a latent force of mind and character which will make him an extremely happy and successful man. Nature is kind to these dull boys. She is not hurrying them up in the race for places and honors. But rather is she allowing these dullards to grow up in all ways stronger. They are better garrisoned in their nerves and bodily strength against failure. While the "brighter" pupils are absorbing knowledge at a rapid rate, these boys are biding their time. Of course, it is not true to say that it is the rule that winners of brilliant school honors will be less than average men in the business of life, and vice versa; but it is common experience that this is often the case. Few of our Cabinet Ministers in the present Government have been boys of academic distinction and high promise, yet they are now men who occupy the most honoured places in the British Empire.

I would rather discuss a backward boy with a parent than I would participate in making plans for a brilliant boy.

For a backward boy often has that mysterious illusive quality in him which may enable him to do anything when he comes to maturity. His backwardness is often an armour protecting his real purposes, which at the time are too deep for outward expression.—Daily Mirror.

Mobilization While Drunk

A CONSTANTINOPLE CAPRICE. Constantinople.—The Governor of Constantinople, Rachid Bey, has been dismissed for indulging in a personal caprice in ordering a test mobilization of all the forces of the city after midnight on a Saturday in a manner which might have disturbed the security of the inhabitants.

He was accused of having ordered this while intoxicated.

Rachid Bey was appointed Governor three months ago. He was formerly an inspector under the Ministry of the Interior and his career was not particularly distinguished.

"Second Youth"

LAST CHANCE TO SEE THIS COMEDY TO-DAY.

Laurette Taylor's Masterpiece the Feature to Follow.

To-day is your last chance to see and enjoy "Second Youth," which you will give a chance to see the celebrated Laurette Taylor in her masterpiece "Happiness," which will be run for 3 days.

The story of "Happiness." Jenny is only a little New York shop girl, poor and shabbily dressed, but she is the sole support of her helpless mother in Brooklyn. On another strand, in little Mrs. Chrystal Pole, a beautiful widow, and Philip Chandos, a friend, who are both bored with the social whirl and have lost any ambition they might have had to do something worth while.

The two extremes come together when Jenny delivers a hat to Mrs. Pole. The latter's curiosity is aroused by the cheerful, kind-hearted girl, and thinking to do something interesting, she invites her to dinner with her mother.

Mrs. Pole is charmed with Jenny and insists that the girl stay. Jenny does and has the satisfaction of falling in love with Fernoy MacDonough, an electrician, who comes to repair a broken wire.

The life of idle luxury is not for Jenny, however. She begs to be allowed to return home, for she fears the cold splendor will make her unhappy. Mrs. Pole, now taken out of herself, is filled again with the joy of living, and Chandos has resumed interest in his inherited lumber business. Jenny leaves to start out with a dressmaking shop of her own.

Years later, with Jenny and Fernoy married and Mrs. Pole and Chandos at last coming to an understanding, they all meet in the MacDonough shop, when a shabby little creature knocks on the door and asks for a job. She is a duplication of the Jenny of old and causes all to realize that the world has been good to them. The couraged girl is made happy.

The Duty on Jams

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—I would be pleased to have you publish these few remarks relative to the excessive duty on Jams imported into this country from English, American and Canadian Houses.

This ad valorem duty is, we understand, 35%, but in addition there is an extra 6c per pound that must be paid. Now we come to the usual 10% sur tax. Finally we are compelled to figure on another 5% Sales Tax. Figured out, the whole affair results in a most unfair duty that is by no means called for.

Estimates have proven that in some cases it has been shown that Jams cost as high as 110% to land in St. John's. Surely this is not a Square Deal to all by any means. Whilst it may be readily understood that the Government is not in the position to make a cut in the Tariff in general, it certainly cannot be understood why the deficiencies in other directions should be made up on the Preserve line.

May we hope for some consideration in the matter?

Very yours truly,

IMPORTER,
Water Street.

£2,500 A MONTH FOR HIS FAMILY

Berlin.—In a statement regarding the proposals for a final financial settlement between Prussia and the Hohenzollerns, the Prussian Minister of Finance discloses the fact that the Government paid the ex-Kaiser for property that he owned in the Wilhelmstrasse, Berlin, so that he might be enabled to buy Doorn House, Holland.

Up to May, 1920, the ex-Kaiser received the enormous sum of $21,600,000. Since the beginning of this year $2,500 a month has been paid to the agent of the Hohenzollerns for the support of the members of the family and for administrative purposes.

Mary Pickford Coming to Star Movie

The Star Movie announces as the next attraction for this house, Mary Pickford's latest production, "Dorothy, Vernon of Haddon Hall." This picture, now being released throughout the country by United Artists is based on the popular novel of the same name by Charles Major. The book was one of America's most sensational "best sellers," and the photograph is one of the high spots in this year's dramatic offerings.

In support of Miss Pickford is a cast which reads like a Blue Book of Screenland, no expense having been spared in the selection of players best suited for their roles. Allan Forrest portrays Sir John Manners; Marc MacDermott is Sir George Vernon, father of Dorothy, is ably handled by Anders Randolf, and Wilfred Lucas plays the Earl of Rutland.

Other celebrities in the cast include Clara Bames, Estelle Taylor, Courtenay Foote, Mme. Carrie Danberg, Lottie Pickford Forest, Malcolm Waite, Howard Gaye, Colin Kenny, Eric Mayne, Jack Fowler and Olat Skavlan.

In "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" Mary Pickford gives her greatest screen characterization, for this picture offers an appeal to men, women and children alike, and patrons will bear out that it is the most stupendous picture the star has ever made.

Marshall Neilan acts as director for Miss Pickford for the first time since "Daddy Long Legs," and has brought into this production that "humanness" for which he is justly famous. The photography is in the able hands of Charles Rosher, who has been identified with Miss Pickford for years and is without peer in his profession.

Motor Springs

Motorists are often puzzled to know why their cars do not ride so well after several months of service. Devices often show what seems to be Shock absorbing and spring control a wide variation in effectiveness when applied to cars of the same make. The makes being identical, the addition of balloon tires will frequently give more comfort to one car than to another.

The answer is found in the car's springs. Briefly, every spring has two forms of resistance, fibre and frictional. The former is the resistance offered by the metal of the spring leaves when they are deflected. The latter is the resistance offered by the friction between the spring leaves. Fibre resistance is constant over a long period until the metal becomes "fatigued," and thus may be considered as something beyond the owner's control. Friction resistance, however, varies widely, always tending toward higher limits.

If the springs are allowed to become rusty, if dirt and foreign matter is allowed to work in between the leaves, the resistance from friction may equal anywhere from 10 to 20 per cent. of the force necessary to compress the springs. Thus if a wheel goes into a hole with such force that the respective spring is deflected by a force equal to 700 pounds, anywhere from 70 to 210 pounds will be required to take care of the frictional resistance, and the occupants of the car will experience the sensation of having had the particular spring deflected by a force of 770 to 910 pounds.

In other words the car will seem to be striking deeper holes than it really is, and the passengers will be taking many of the shocks that should have been absorbed by the springs had the latter been lubricated adequately. This naturally affects the spring control devices or any other device planned for the comfort of passengers, since these devices are being called upon constantly to do more than they were designed to do.—Montreal Daily Star.

Restoring Bamboo Furniture

Bamboo furniture that has been in use some time without any other attention than dusting may be greatly improved if treated as follows: Add a handful of common salt to a pail of warm water and wash the furniture very thoroughly, using a nail brush so as to reach all the crevices. As soon as the water becomes at all discolored replace it with fresh. Then leave the furniture to dry, but avoid placing it in the sun. The following day give the furniture a coat of clear varnish, and the articles will then probably look as good as new again.

PRELIMINARY ENQUIRY.—The preliminary hearing into the charges against Sir Richard Squires was resumed yesterday afternoon, when Mr. J. T. Kennedy, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was called to the stand. Several exhibits were put in as evidence, after which adjournment was taken until to-morrow afternoon at 3 p.m.

BOVRIL

Bovril soon puts a man on his feet

High Living for Poor Germans
LEIPZIG FAIR ORGIES.

LEIPZIG. — Germany's poverty-stricken business men have amused not to say filled with envy—the simple tourists from other countries by their convincing demonstration during Fair Week of the art of high living. Only the other day they were endeavoring with horrible groans to coax cash advances out of the pockets of struggling British competitors and were painting in lurid colors a picture of impending ruin.

But, like the beggar who puts away his crutches at the close of the day's work and goes home in his private car, the professional poor of this stricken Fatherland do not wear the garb of poverty in private life. If they brought it to Leipzig, which I doubt, it was left in the cloakroom at the railway station.

Few foreigners touring Germany for pleasure are able to afford the luxuries which have been a part of many business men's daily routine during these six days of trade intercourse at the "Messe."

Prices bounced up unblushingly on the eve of the fair. They remained beyond the reach of all holiday purses save those held by the manufacturers and merchants lately seeking alms from abroad. Hotels, restaurants, and theatres levied heavy tribute on all-comers, and their German guests faced the local banditti with calm cheerfulness.

A Comfortable Luncheon.
I as an involuntary spectator of a comfortable little luncheon party at the Astoria Hotel on Wednesday, when a certain business man invited six accomplices in morning coats to share with him a frugal meal beginning with innumerable hors-d'oeuvres and passing down a long and elaborate menu irrigated by four kinds of wine, all of them of ancient lineage and incredible cost.

The principle topic at this austere board, discussed in tones that made eavesdropping painfully unavoidable, was the recent readjustment of Germany's debt, the probable extent of foreign credits, and the prospect of speedily fixing export prices which would bring her trade back to robust health. The note of confidence was unmistakable.

Even more convincing was the ease and speed with which all the participants in this Lucullan repast demolished the successive triumphs of an expert chef. Anxious head waiters hovered over them. The staggering bill was met with a promptness that should greatly encourage the disciples of General Daves.

The fair has not been altogether the brilliant success hoped for, owing to certain elements in the industrial situation which I have explained in my previous despatches, but the gloom apparent during the daily vigil of the trade delegates vanished—again I cannot help recalling the industrious mendicant who puts away his woe at eventide—under the benign influence of Leipzig's lighter moods when the colored cabarets opened their doors for a session that lasted until dawn, or at least until the last man could drink no more.

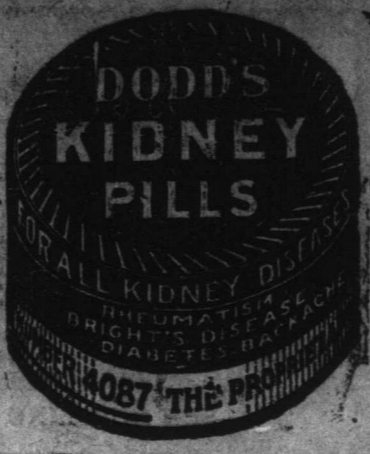

Special attractions are booked by the theatres for Fair Week, and knowing their patrons, the price of seats is doubled. The Crystal Palace, a cheerful building like a converted railway station, has been crowded nightly with prosperous business men eager to see a Viennese revue composed of excessively unclothed young women.

Plenty of Champagne.
The rush of visitors to Leipzig is so great during Fair Week that late comers spend the night in the railway station. A single back-bedroom at a second-class hotel costs 21s. nightly. The restaurants throw so-called meals at the ordinary herd, charge for them exorbitantly, and at a given hour refuse to serve any more under any pretext.

Wines are ludicrously expensive, yet £1 to £1 10s. is paid without question for vintages that a year ago could have been bought for half the price.

The British agents I have met here lived modestly and drank beer. They said quite frankly they could not afford to drink anything else. Their German customers were insistent that they accept hospitality on a champagne basis, and made it clear that such was their own standard of drinking, at least in Fair Week.

When the German export business is in full swing, as every German at the Leipzig "Messe" is confident it will be before long, I doubt very much if British business men will be able to afford even beer.—Daily Mail.

Your Eiderdown
HOW TO RENOVATE IT.

With the approach of colder nights the housewife is now beginning to look over her store of thicker bed clothing. Eiderdowns which have become shabby, need renovating—a task she can undertake at home.

An eiderdown can be washed, of course, if care be taken over the process. A very large bath of warm, soapy water should be used and the quilt plunged in and worked up and down vigorously. After several rinsings in clean water but not "wrung" and hung out of doors on a breezy day.

Ribbon Borders.
The silk or satin borders of eiderdowns wear badly as a rule, and these can be renewed splendidly with wide ribbon and, of course, their color scheme can be changed in the process if desired. The ribbon should be wide enough to cover the border amply and the corded edges as well. It can be tacked by hand, but if planned in position and the corners carefully mitered beforehand the ribbon can be machined on.

If the cover is beyond repair a new one can be bought at most furnishing shops, but it is really very simple to make a new one. The measurements must be accurately taken and just a big bag made of silk, satin, or whatever material is desired.

The special case with colored borders or a special centre-piece must be made separately first and then joined—with the introduction of a stout piping-cord—to the plain back portion.

One end of the cover must be left open until the old quilt has been slipped inside. It must be spread out flat and evenly disposed inside the new cover and pinned securely at each corner.

Rows of Stitching.
Then, either rows of machine-stitching or fine running-stitch must be put in. A row parallel with the edge all round the quilt and about three inches inside will be necessary as well as one or two similar rows inside it. Some simple design such as a large oval or diamond shape will be sufficient to keep the quilt in position in the centre.

If some treasured piece of embroidery has been used for the centre panel, this must be outlined with stitching also. A few eyelet-holes should be worked with silk here and there.

Grass Growing by Electricity

GOLF GREEN READY IN 2 MONTHS
Experiments in the use of electric light at night for promoting the rapid growth of grass are described in the current number of the New York Golf Illustrated by Mr. Frank H. Cole, who says that laboratory greenhouse tests proved that plants could be brought to full growth at practically any predetermined time by electrically reinforcing the work of the sun.

It was therefore decided to try the scheme under outdoor conditions on the Jumping Brook Golf Club's Course at New Jersey, U.S.A. A clay gravel site was dug, and a top portion from another portion of the land brought in to give about 15 inches of soil for the green. This was sown early in June, and over a portion of it were erected 24 special Westinghouse reflectors, each containing a 1,000-watt tungsten bulb. These reflectors were hung four feet from the ground and gave a continuous even light.

Three Inches Ahead.
The lights were put into operation on June 5 and turned off for the next 21 nights. Mr. Cole says that the weather was unfavorable to the rapid germination of grass seed, but that the first seed came through under the electric lights five days after planting. Nothing came through on the unlighted portion of the green until two days later.

At the end of three weeks the grass under the electric lights had attained a general growth of nearly four inches, while on the portion of the green outside the lamps there was a growth of about one inch.

The color of the grass underneath the electric lights was the same as outside.

The experts are satisfied that the electric light system saves at least 40 per cent. in the time between the planting and cutting the average green, and that after cutting it thickens the growth.

The ground treated in this instance progressed so rapidly as to be ready for play two months after sowing.

Claim to $6,000,000
GRANDSONS OF MAN MISSING AT SEA.

SYDNEY.—Mr. Alfred Sydney Harper, of Newcastle, New South Wales, who, as I have already called, is claiming the Anzil estate in South London (left by John Anzil, who died in 1784, and said to be worth $60,000,000), is being placed in the claim by his brother Thomas, of Dubbo, New South Wales.

They claim direct descent from John Anzil's eldest sister. They are the grandsons of a Mr. Harper who left Sydney in 1843 in a cutter. The sisters, which never returned, but was reported to have been pillaged and burned by Hawaiian islanders and the crew murdered.

It is understood that the claimants are required to furnish proof of their grandfather's death, which under the circumstances is difficult.

"Educating" a Dog

Manners make a dog as well as a man. The ancient Persians spoke of a sporting "dog" as being educated, meaning that he had been taught something that made him superior to his fellows. An adult dog that has acquired bad habits will rarely become amenable to discipline, for which reason it is desirable when purchasing a dog to get one that has not passed his first year. A few elementary accomplishments are essential, such as obedience, readiness to come to heel promptly on being called, and willingness to follow on a lead without pulling. These are so simple that they can be taught by anyone who has a little patience and firmness.

Lessons in Discipline.

It is as well to take one lesson at a time, obtaining perfection in that before proceeding with the next, but not prolonging it to the point of weariness. Words of command should be few and simple, the same always being used to indicate a particular act. Do not bluster or lose your temper. The most successful trainers are those who are quietest, but you must insist upon being obeyed. Never give way under the impression that it will not matter for once.

A whip is not wanted. The great thing is to gain the confidence of the pupil, and rewards for well doing are not misplaced. In a short time the dog will take pleasure in doing what he is told. When the above-mentioned teach him to remain in one spot until released by word of command or signal. Place some object on the ground and make the dog lie down, then retire backwards slowly, holding up one hand as indicative of your desire. If he attempts to rise, return and press him once again into a recumbent position.

Mr. C. B. Cochran's Bad Luck

PUBLIC AMUSED BUT FORTUNE LOST.

Mr. C. B. Cochran, the theatrical producer, against whom bankruptcy proceedings have been started, is cheery and hopeful as to the future in spite of liabilities estimated at $280,000.

Proof of the sympathy felt for him in the theatrical profession was afforded by the scores of telegrams and offers of help which were received.

"In the course of my career," he said, "the public have paid more than $1,000,000 to see shows I have promoted. I have made as much as $100,000 in a year, and can do so again if I get the right show. But to do that I must be financed and the money I earn will go first to pay off my liabilities, which I shall always consider morally binding.

"At present neither my wife nor I have a $5 note in the world. I am not a brilliant bankrupt. We have used all our resources to save off the bankruptcy, and to live I must make ready money to meet my daily expenses."

Mr. Cochran's house in London has been mortgaged already to satisfy his creditors; and Mrs. Cochran's jewels and the personal possessions of both have been disposed of.

One of the immediate means by which Mr. Cochran hopes to make money is by the publication of his memoirs, which he has been writing for some time, and hopes to finish before the end of the year.

As Mr. Cochran has already stated, he attributes the beginning of his failure to his illness in 1921.

"One of the worst pieces of bad luck then," he said recently, "occurred in connection with the Carpenter-Dempsey fight. I had made a deposit and was on sharing terms with Mr. Richard, the promoter.

DICKS & CO., Limited, Agents

gram was sent to me asking if I wished to withdraw. Owing to my illness my wife was advised not to show it to me, and those to whom I had given power of attorney, acting in what they considered my best interests, withdrew me from the fight, so that I lost a third share of the profits—enough to have paid off my liabilities to-day.

"The postponement of the production of 'The League of Nations' owing to my illness cost me at least $28,000.

On 'Mayfair and Montmartre,' at the New Oxford Theatre, the loss was about £40,000, largely owing to the bad luck that Delysia lost her voice. The difference in takings between the last week of her appearance and the first week without her, was £1,800.

"On the Russian Ballet, at the Princess Theatre, I lost about £8,000, and on 'The Music Box' last summer another £2,800.

The Rodeo.
"When the Rodeo came along I was not in a position to take risks and had to be financed, for every penny of my own was gone. Those who financed me got their money back, but I did not make a penny. If I had taken, as I hoped, another £50,000 or £60,000 it would have made all the difference.

"Altogether I have lost nearly £200,000 in the last three years. I have put money freely into ventures that appealed to me from the artistic point of view, and I think the public will agree that I have always tried to give them the best. Unfortunately the theatrical season in London this summer was not so successful, as was expected from the number of visitors for the Wembley Exhibition.

The story of Mr. Cochran's career is one of the romances of the last 15 years or so in the entertainment business. No one else has a record of so many really big things attempted and done as has this "showman," as he always calls himself.

Born in Sussex 51 years ago, Mr. Cochran went to the United States as a young man and tried to be an actor. He was not a great success, and after a spell as secretary to Richard Mansfield, the American actor, he came to London and worked in turn as a publicity man, a theatrical agent, and then as a showman. Daily Mail.

Chemical Weed-Killing
An interesting experiment in the chemical destruction of weeds has been reported from near Chartres, France. A dilute solution of sulphuric acid in water was applied, early this season, to a field of young wheat, containing about an acre, and the result is stated to have been the practically complete killing of all weeds, while the wheat itself has not only escaped injury, but seems to have been stimulated to more vigorous growth.

Labradorite

Always we have prided ourselves on the quality of our Labradorite and refused to place on sale stones that did not do credit to the peculiar beauty that is its chief charm. We have now received the first samples of our new stock and they fulfil in every way our ideas of what Labradorite should really be like when made into jewellery.

Specially selected and extra well polished stone made into an assortment of Pendants—Bean, Oval and Square shape are the chief items in our new selection.
