

THE CITY AND VICINITY.

THE PALE ROUND OF LIFE IN AND ABOUT TORONTO.

What the People are Doing and Thinking About.

Afternoon Gathered Everywhere by World Reporters.

The eastern division court sat yesterday.

The Laborers' union of this city now numbers 400 members.

Refugees are rampant in the precincts of Broad and Brockton.

A bass weighing 5 1/2 lbs. was caught in Ashbridge's bay yesterday.

The recent garden party of the Church of the Redeemer realized $250.

Between $15,000 and $20,000 was paid in taxes to the treasurer of Yorkville Monday.

The Osgood literary and legal society will hold its first meeting of the season next Saturday.

Ald. John E. Mitchell has got it, and will leave for Manitoba this week and have a look round.

A public meeting will be held at Yorkville shortly to discuss the question of annexation to the city.

The new inmates of the Royal Grenadiers have arrived at Quebec, and will be served out to the men next week.

The result of the examinations in the Queen's Own signaling class will be declared at the army to-night.

The Philharmonic society rehearsed Spohr's Last Judgment last night, there being a good attendance of members.

Committee meetings at the city hall to-day: Markets and health at 3 p. m.; property, works and waterworks at 4 p. m.

Many complaints are made against the irregularity in the arrival and departure of Grand Trunk trains at the Union station.

A number of house-building mechanics and laborers are mourning the departure of Thomas Moore, a contractor who owes them wages.

Two little sons of Mr. Irving of Dufferin avenue, Korkville, were severely scalded the other day, a kettle of boiling water upsetting over them.

Edward Croucher, a laborer living on Lumley street, is suffering from a wound in the foot inflicted by a pickaxe. He will be laid up for some days.

The argument of the petition to cancel Follen Johnson's liquor license was yesterday adjourned to the 2nd of October to reconsider the merits of the case.

The Jarvis street Baptist church will meet to-night to appoint another delegation to New York to oppose the proposed demolition of the call to the pastorate.

The play of Grizzly Adams was again produced at the Royal opera house last night, together with a laudable sketch of some clever variety and musical pieces.

A young lad named Barton met with a serious accident at a factory near the corner of Queen and Lisgar streets. He had been taken to a factory near the corner of the other side slipping and fell, breaking his arm and leg.

A civil action is to be brought against Beach, the alleged American forger, for the recovery of some $100,000 embezzled by him. His writs have already been served on the monetary institutions in this city to stop all payments of money on the order of Beach or his family.

Nearby, James Robertson & Co. of the saw and lead works, King and Dorset streets, will pull down that portion of their building on King street and erect a three-story brick building, 110 by 60 feet. They will also build a storage building, 120 by 80 feet, at John and Mercer streets.

A company with a capital of $50,000 is being formed for the manufacture of a combination lock, the patent of which is in this city. The lock is adapted for the use of express companies, or on railway cars, bonded warehouses, safes, vaults, etc., and among its merits are those of simplicity and economy.

The case of J. A. Gauthier, the jeweler, who was called in the court of general sessions yesterday. Gauthier failed to appear in $200, and Mr. C. M. Robson of Whiteby & $500. Mr. Robson also failed to show up, and the court ordered his bail to be extracted. Thus does the thief escape.

Thomas Edwards, caretaker of St. James' school house, yesterday identified the body recovered from the bay, Monday, as that of his brother, Mr. Edwards told a World reporter that he lost track of his brother three years ago, previous to which time he was a clerk in different stores in this city. "He took to drink," said Mr. Edwards, "and whiskey laid him where he is." Deceased had been a wanderer on the face of the earth for three years, and never communicated with his brother, who is steadily and industrious man. The body was interred in St. James' cemetery.

Anthony McKinnon, the well-known cabman, was seriously injured by a runaway accident at the Union station yesterday. The horses lashed the cab against a telegraph pole and the driver was thrown to the ground with great force. McKinnon was badly hurt. One injury was most apparent; a long gash on the back of the head, several inches long, from which the blood flowed in streams. This cut was quickly cleaned and the gaping wound stitched up by a medical man. An examination of the body showed that the collar bone was broken, and that serious injuries had otherwise been incurred. It is feared that severe internal injuries have been sustained, but the physicians think that the chances are in favor of recovery.

SEE TO IT.—Chronic headache, sick headache, costiveness, wind on the stomach, pain in the side or back, distress after eating—all forms indigestion and liver troubles permanently cured with Zepes from Brazil. Try a sample.

THE ASSIZES. Tilton v. Faulkner is reported elsewhere.

Pell v. Oliver.—The plaintiff is a manufacturer of organs, and the defendant is a merchant, having their office at the corner of Lorne and Esplanade streets. Defendants issued to plaintiff a notice, but refused to pay, and the plaintiff brought an action for breach of contract. The case was not finished yesterday, and will probably occupy the greater part of to-day. Robinson, Q.C., and Nugent appear for the plaintiffs, J. E. McLaughlin for the defendants.

CITY COUNCIL NOTES. Petitions were received for gas lamps on Linger and Argyle streets.

A copy of the presentment of the grand jury at the last general sessions was received last night and laid on the table.

The North York society invited the city council to attend their exhibition at Newmarket. The clerk was instructed to acknowledge the invitation with thanks, but to inform them that the city council had already accepted an invitation to attend the St. Thomas exhibition on the same days.

Those in want of sewing machines ought to inspect the Wheeler & Wilson at No. 53 King street west previous to their deciding to buy elsewhere. A visit to Mr. C. P. Ferguson's office would not be out of place.

CITY COUNCIL.

Street Railways.—The William Street Extension.

Referred Back to the Board of Works.—Deputy Mayor, Sept. 27.—The three miles on the Queen's river at Charlotte today.

The city council met for the transaction of regular business last night, there being a good attendance of members.

After routine, the council went into committee of the whole on report No. 34 executive committee, with Ald. Crocker in the chair.

The works committee recommended that the following extensions be made to the Toronto street railway system, and that the city solicitor be instructed to give the company the necessary legal notice, the rail to be used on this route to be the same as recommended in report No. 30 of the committee on works: Commencing at the intersection of York and Front streets, thence northerly along York to Queen, thence along Queen to William, thence up William to Caer Howell, and along Caer Howell to Caer Howell, thence north along Caer Howell to College, and along College to Spadina avenue, thence along Spadina avenue to Bloor street.

Ald. Blevins moved that Russell and St. George streets be substituted for College street.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

THE SPORTING WORLD.

AQUARIUS.

COURTESY WINS ANOTHER RACE.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 27.—The three miles on the Queen's river at Charlotte today.

The city council met for the transaction of regular business last night, there being a good attendance of members.

After routine, the council went into committee of the whole on report No. 34 executive committee, with Ald. Crocker in the chair.

The works committee recommended that the following extensions be made to the Toronto street railway system, and that the city solicitor be instructed to give the company the necessary legal notice, the rail to be used on this route to be the same as recommended in report No. 30 of the committee on works: Commencing at the intersection of York and Front streets, thence northerly along York to Queen, thence along Queen to William, thence up William to Caer Howell, and along Caer Howell to Caer Howell, thence north along Caer Howell to College, and along College to Spadina avenue, thence along Spadina avenue to Bloor street.

Ald. Blevins moved that Russell and St. George streets be substituted for College street.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

Ald. Ball thought the route should not be through William street, which would destroy Caer Howell. If it was to go down York street the nearest way was by University street, along College, to connect with the College street route at Bathurst.

Ald. Evans said nearly all persons he had spoken to objected to the route along Russell and St. George streets.

BACK FROM CLEVELAND.

The Experience of Toronto's Deputation at the Fair of Cleveland.