BRILLIANT SCENE MARKS NUPTIALS OF ROYAL COUPLE

Princess Victoria Louise Marries Prince Ernest August of Cumberland in Gay Berlin.

UNPLEASANT WEATHER

Bride Drives Thru Capital Prior to the Robing Ceremony and Was Cheered by Immense Crowd.

BERLIN, May 24.—Princess Victoria Louise of Prussia, only daughter of the German Emperor and Empress, and Prince Ernest August of Cumberland, were married with the rites of the Lutheran Church at 5 o'clock this evening, in the Royal Chapel of the Imperial Castle, the ceremony sealing the most ancient part of the castle, at home of Hanover and the house of Hohenzollern.

The presence of the three most powerful sovereigns of Europe—the British King-Emperor, the Russian Emperor and the German Emperor—on terms of intimate friendship, made the event a demonstration of international peace.

The civil ceremony had been performed half an hour earlier in the great Electors' Hall, a small room in the most ancient part of the castle, attended by only the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom.

At the conclusion of the civil ceremony the bridal procession was marshalled into line by Count August zu Eulenburg, grand marshal of the imperial court, and then proceeded to the whole length of the castle, thru a long series of state apartments to the Royal Chapel. It was led by the bridal couple, the princess' train being borne by four of her girl friends.

Princess Ernest August of Cumberland was dressed in Prussian Hussar uniform. After them came Emperor William with the Duchess of Cumberland. Then followed, in order, the Duke of Cumberland with the German Empress.

SKIRL OF PIPES AWAKES BARRIE

48th Highlanders Were Several Hours Late Reaching Scene of Holiday Festivities.

By Staff Correspondent. BARRIE, May 24.—The tread of marching feet and the skirl of the bagpipes awoke the inhabitants of this town at an early hour this morning, when the 48th Highlanders, 450 strong, marched thru the streets from the station to the fair grounds, where they will encamp until Sunday evening.

The regiment was scheduled to arrive about 11 o'clock Friday evening, but owing to the detouring of a freight car in the Toronto yards, which completely blocked the line, it was over five hours late in arriving. Many of the officers were very much dissatisfied with the way in which their regiment was held up and the men were also very sore.

It is said that the wrecking crew which was ordered from Bathurst came away without the crane, and after working almost two hours they had to go back and get it, which took considerable time.

The advance party, which arrived on Friday afternoon, had all the tents up and in readiness for the regiment when it arrived, which was much appreciated by the tired members, who got very little sleep on the train.

No parade was held in the morning, the men being busy preparing for their review, which was held this afternoon at Queen's Park before a large number of the citizens of the town and visitors.

The scene at the park was indeed a pretty one. The dark green foliage of trees with which the park is surrounded made an admirable background for the red-coated Highlanders and the various colored dresses of the large number of ladies who were present. After marching by in quarter column the regiment went thru the ceremony of trooping the colors.

This ceremony, which was entirely new to the people of this locality, elicited rounds of applause, as also did the playing of the brass and pipe bands.

Lt.-Col. Sneath and officers and a large number of the members of the 35th Simcoe Foresters were present and were considerably impressed with the work of the regiment.

A concert will be given by the brass band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Slater at the opera house, this evening, and a large number of townspeople are expected to be present. Divine service will be held at the fair grounds on Sunday morning, and the regiment will entrain for Toronto in the evening.

Four New Liners For Atlantic Service

Grand Trunk to Make Additions to Their Fleet Which Will Be Available For War.

(Special to Sunday World.) MONTREAL, May 24.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, returned to Montreal from London this morning. One of his first announcements was that four new liners would be added to the C.P.R.'s Atlantic fleet within the next few months. These to be of the "empress" type with cruiser sterns and available for auxiliary cruisers in war time.

Sir Thomas would not deny the street stories that C.P.R. is absorbing the Allan Steamship Company, but hinted that an authoritative statement might be issued soon.

GOLD DESTROYED BY CHINESE CUSTOMS

Burning a small piece of gold leaf is a custom observed by the Chinese at certain anniversary celebrations, and it is estimated that gold to the value of over $10,000,000 is destroyed annually in this way. This estimate is based on the assumption that each individual of a total population of 440,000,000 burns at each of two anniversaries a piece of gold leaf weighing 308 grains, making a total of 271,000,000 grains. A five-dollar gold piece weighs 123 grains.

The United States Steel Corporation to Build Their Canadian Plant at OJIBWAY

Initial Expenditure $20,000,000

The United States Steel Corporation is the greatest organization of capital and the largest employer of labor in existence. This is the Corporation which stands behind

CANADA'S STEEL CITY

Official Statements Regarding Ojibway

On December 31, 1912, Judge Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the U. S. Steel Corporation, made the following statement:

"We have decided to establish a manufacturing plant upon the site we secured some years ago in Canada just opposite Detroit. In the comparatively near future we shall commence the construction of some blast furnaces and mills. We shall probably build a wire mill, rail mill, structural mill, bar mill, and perhaps some other mills. I suppose the first cost will be in the neighborhood of $20,000,000."

Mr. Corey, director and former President of The Steel Corporation, made this statement:

"We are going to start construction work at once, and we expect to start operations in the Fall of this year, or in the Spring of 1914. We are going after the trade of Canada and the other British possessions. This will be an immense field. Judge Gary sees great possibilities ahead in Canada."

These statements are plain, and are sufficient for the shrewd investor.

The Steel Corporation first purchased their site on the banks of the Detroit River, south of Windsor. Then after giving satisfactory evidence to the Government as to the prompt carrying out of their enormous plans, the incorporation of Ojibway was secured under Special Act of the Ontario Legislature.

The Mayor and four Councillors, all prominent Canadian Business men, are appointed under the Act of Incorporation.

The Dominion Government has recently completed the re-survey of the channel bank undertaken in connection with the Steel Corporation's immense docks.

The river is 25 to 30 feet deep along the site of the Steel Plant. This will allow the company's immense ore boats and coal barges to unload right at their own docks without the preliminary dredging that took up so much time at Gary.

OJIBWAY IS NOT AN EXPERIMENT

In 1906 the United States Steel Corporation similarly acquired a site about 30 miles from Chicago amidst the barren and uninhabited sand dunes on the southern shore of Lake Michigan. Here they laid out their city, built their plant, and in 1908 the city of Gary, Indiana, had developed with a population of 11,000. This was but the commencement of Gary's development. To-day Gary is a fine, growing city of 40,000 inhabitants.

What the Building of Ojibway Means

The beginning of Gary and of Ojibway was similar. There is every reason to believe that the results will be the same.

The Ojibway district will develop into a Canadian Pittsburgh, and Ojibway will be one of Ontario's largest cities.

Its growth will eclipse that of Saskatoon and other Western cities which have been pointed out with pride as examples of rapid city building.

Gary real estate made fortunes for thousands who had the wisdom to foresee the city's growth and the courage to back their convictions. Ojibway offers the same opportunity.

Oakwood Immediately Adjoins the Site of the Steel Plant

A glance at the accompanying map shows the admirable location of Oakwood in reference to the Steel Corporation's property. The land within the present corporate limits of Ojibway is owned by the Steel Corporation and cannot be purchased from them for investment purposes.

The choicest investment property is naturally that adjoining the present corporate limits.

The greater part of the present site will be required for the plant alone and, as at Gary, the city limits will be frequently extended.

The first extension of the corporate limits of Ojibway will, undoubtedly, take in our property.

SUMMER IS HERE: CITY SURGES WITH PLEASURE

an unwilling boatman from some dim corner—boats that leak so that the water soaks thru the carpet and dyes the cheese sandwiches a pretty pink. Every Place Was Crowded.
But the bunched boats indicated only the numbers. They went across some of them twice, to see Toronto play baseball on the exhibition track, a few thousand saw the lacrosse game and a few thousand more the whizzers on the exhibition track, motorcycles that made more sudden noises than the Chinese firecrackers (made in Hamilton) that wakened mothers early, or caused morning newspapers to mumble fearful things when they should have been sleeping. Fireworks were not much in evidence. That is a racket that is getting pretty well played out.
And then there was the Woodbine, with its feverish flutter of fashion, and still-lonely-looking straw hats, and the monotonous clicking drone of machines, and of course, horses.
Weather Was Just Right.
The sun shined out quite satisfactory and threats of showers did not make good, so the weather was all in all should be on Victoria Day. That, of course, had a great deal to do with had a busy time keeping the lines unproducing the greatest showing of crowds this city has recorded.

At the Union Station one might have almost believed that we were all going away at once, everybody in Toronto. Ticket buyers were lined up right out to the north side of Front street and the squad of policemen broken. Those who had tickets had considerable trouble in breaking thru the crowds to gain entrance to the train platforms. As one official stated, a marble dropped from the ceiling of the station entrance would most surely have struck someone; for the number of people handled by the railways Saturday certainly eclipsed all previous holidays. Passenger trains for all over Ontario were filled to capacity and coaches that looked to have been called from those far away branches where one car does duty for a train, were filled to the brim.
And talk about having family ties broken. When the Chippewa pulled out with a capacity crowd at 7.30, children were left behind when they could not stand the crush and sometimes a small boy who was over anxious crowded in ahead of his parents, who stayed back on the wharf looking for him and were left behind. So many people were left by the Chippewa that the Cayuga left an hour ahead of time.

Probably the busiest place for crowds was around the Toronto Ferry Co.'s dock at Bay street. The Ferry Co. anticipated such a rush and had built two extra ticket booths on the north side of the lake front, but at that tickets could not be sold fast enough to suit the excited people, and if it had not been for the excellent system used by the squad of police serious accidents might have resulted.
Humber Bay and Humber River drew ten thousand. All canoes, motor boats and rowboats for hire were gone before 2 o'clock. Numerous picnickers were scattered along the river rim, and those who were disappointed by boatmen went strolling all the banks were black.
High Park holds out as an attraction to a large amount of people. Those not anxious to get in the crowds and get crushed went to High Park and got crushed. Picnics galore were held in the hills and dales. Small boys and girls let themselves loose and romped around while mother spread the interior of the lunch basket to joyful view.
Toronto Bay presented a summerlike appearance. Crowded ferries plowed back and forth and the dinghy race, the first of the year, proved to be fascinating to a large number of people.
Dogs are made use of to haul light artillery in the Belgian army and are being experimented with by the Holland army.
One person in five in South Africa is white.

NEWMARKET AND CHEAP POWER

As anticipated the Hon. Adam Beck's visit to Newmarket has pruned the confidence of the "business-in-business" advocates of Metropolitan power. It is now evident to some of them even that the power question is not so much a matter of business as of public policy.
When Mr. Forrester rose on Tuesday night and promised to take 75 horse-power of hydro power at the price quoted, he made it impossible for any of the council to repeat the argument that the municipality could not dispose of three-quarters of 300 horse-power. Putting municipal requirement at 120 horse-power, pumping at 50 horse-power, and Mr. Forrester's requirements at 75, there is already a demand for over three-quarters of 300 horse-power.
There is, therefore, no excuse for any statement made that the town could not make a 300 horse-power contract, because the power could not be disposed of. Mr. Beck emphasized the fact that Newmarket is the hub for power distribution to neighboring municipalities. It is in this way that a power line would be built from Cooksville to Newmarket and branches to Aurora, Richmond Hill, Bradford, Markham, Stouffville, Uxbridge and Port Perry. When these lines have been constructed there is an area of 650,000 acres of land, including approximately 60,000 farms and many villages, to which power can be distributed, such as Ixeton, Tottenham, Alliston, Queensville, Keswick, Sutton, Baldwin, Brownhill, Vivian, Mount Albert, Pefferlaw, Goodwood, Agincourt, Unionville, etc.

A Co-operative Scheme.
The Hydro Electric is a co-operative undertaking. The more users of Hydro power there are, the cheaper will the power be. Does a farmer grudge the seed he puts into morning would fairly not and the electors of Newmarket and other municipalities will not grudge the cost of "seeding" Hydro Electric Power, for the harvest is certain.
It is not only a matter of light and factory power, but the surplus energy between midnight and morning would pump sufficient water into No. 1 lock of the Newmarket Canal to render the waterway continually navigable. This is no pipe dream, but an estimate made by an engineer whose professional standing cannot be questioned. He reckons that with seven municipalities contracting for a total peak load of 2000 h.p. there will be a surplus for six hours every night of 1500 h.p., which could be utilized for pumping water from the lake level into No. 1 lock, sufficient to make the canal navigable even in seasons of extreme drought. Pipes could be laid down in the canal and turbine pumps installed at the Holland River.

It is an open secret that the stream which was to supply water for the canal has not furnished the volume of water anticipated. "Seed" Hydro-Electric, therefore, and the Newmarket Canal will cease to be a thing to sneer at and become a source of trade expansion and commercial increase.
Good Roads and Motor Cars.
That is not all, on June 7 the councils of municipalities of North York will meet in Newmarket to outline a good roads system. The day of the horse-drawn vehicle is dwindling to an end, and the time is not far off when farming communities will possess in common motor trucks propelled by storage batteries running on a network of good roads. Think of it—reaping the harvest, threshing it, milling it, filling the silo, milking the cows, chopping the fodder, all with your own power, the people's Hydro-Electric.
It is not long ago that we said: "He might as well try to fly." But he is flying, and the hard jobs that men and horses sweated and sweat over in the past and present are being done and will, more and more, be done by the motor power generated at Niagara.
Every man that uses it makes the using cheaper. Surely there is only one thing to do. Advocate hydro power.
The people of Newmarket must see that they get a chance to vote for it, and if their council is blind to future growth and betterment, a council without blunders must be elected, which knows no whip but the people's will.

The electrical process of tanning leather has been in experimental use in England for some time and it has now reached a stage of development that warrants its adoption on a commercial basis. A large electrical company is now engaged in installing such a plant in one of the leading English tanneries. Specially constructed vats are filled with the hides, along with metal conductors to effect the electrolytic action, and after this preparation has been completed the remainder of the process is almost automatic, for mechanical provisions are made to prevent any damage owing to excess of current. The current passing thru the hides hastens the tanning process to the extent that six weeks suffice to do the work which formerly required several months. The automatic feature of the tanning process makes it an economical one, and two men are thus enabled to take care of all the vats of a large tannery, whereas under the old system the services of five or six men were required.
The Scotia, which will comprise the British Iceberg control, will be fitted with kites for making meteorological observations.
During two years $4,000 miles of improved roads were constructed in the United States, which is more than all the roads of France.

Australian Team Great Cricketers

Every member of the touring Australian cricket team, that play the picked team at Rosedale next month, is well known to the cricketing world of both continents, seven of them taking part in the Trans-america testimonial, which was recognized as the most important game of the season. Proof of this fact is the fact that a check of over $15,000 was handed over to that gentleman as a mark of the esteem in which he is held by the Australian and English supporters of the game.

In the comparison between this great cricketer and C. G. MacCartney, the Sydney Referee states that MacCartney's batting of this year outclasses that of the great Trans-america in the best season he ever had, viz., 1902.

Warren Parfiesky, another member of the team, had the magnificent average of 51.93 at the end of the last Australian tour to England, his highest score being 154 (not out), and achieving a record of being the only batsman to make two centuries in the same "test" match.

E. R. Macneil, who will probably captain the team, was a visitor here last October, and since his return home has had a very fine average of 67.00 in inter-state matches. He is also one of the members

Secure Your Elgin Market Garden Now at this year's price and be Ready to Start Early Next Spring

You can make your payments while holding your present position and prepare to move to the "Gardens" early next year. No better investment has ever been offered to the salaried man in the city. You will be investing in land that will not only show increased value as the years go by, but it will make you a decidedly better living than you are able to earn in your city's position.

Celery Has Paid $1,300 Per Acre

Many men have made fortunes on a few acres of good garden soil. And what has already been done elsewhere can be done on Elgin Gardens, for there is no richer, blacker soil to be found anywhere on this continent. As a celery soil it is unsurpassed, and upon analysis has been found to be as rich as the soil of the celebrated celery fields of Kalamazoo, Michigan.

In Wayne County, Pennsylvania, the Hull Brothers on three and a quarter acres planted to celery averaged $1,300 per acre in 1912. In six years they sold $12,870 worth of celery from their three and a quarter acre field. Their yearly average per acre during the six years prior to 1912 was $1,108.

of the Australian Board of Control and a selector of all representative teams.

J. H. Crawford, late captain of the team, who is now qualified for South Australia, is without doubt one of the best all-round cricketers in the world today, and should be one of the biggest drawing cards of the city. Jack, as he is familiarly known, has two sisters in Western Canada--one in Winnipeg and the other in Vancouver--both of whom will be present to see him play.

G. C. Campbell, the cricketer who has been the regular stump-goer of South Australia, and has been very brilliant in his work last season. In addition to this, he nearly always opens the batting for his side.

H. J. Collins, the left-handed bowler of the team, is of medium pace. He bats right-handed and has the reputation of being one of Australia's finest fielders.

A. J. Miles is the "one-day" bowler, slow but very effective, as his average for the last season shows. His supporters confidently expect that he will shortly be recognized as the premier exponent of the art in his native country.

L. A. Coady, also not widely known, is, according to M. A. Noble and The London Sportsman, one of the coming batsmen of Australia, and should be reckoned on to obtain a place in the next test matches.

Syde Emery, another visitor of 1912 has been playing in most consistent form throughout the season. It will be remembered that he took all ten wickets at Bermuda and made 142 against Victoria. His popularity, as well as being one of Australia's best all-round cricketers, has won him the esteem of all whom he has come in contact with.

P. J. Arnold, A. Diamond and G. E. Down, who complete the team, have all covered themselves with glory, and are regular members of teams representative of first-class cricket in Australia.

BIG PULL FROM WESTERN TOWNS FOR WINTER FAIR

But Toronto Has Million Dollar Plant and Bulk of Exhibits Are From Ontario.

EXPENSE A BIG ITEM

If Fat Stock Show Were Held Elsewhere—Judge in Transportation Building.

Altho it is in Ontario that the strength of the several organizations that want a National Winter Fat Stock Show lies, and altho Toronto is the only place in Canada that has the necessary plant and hotel accommodation, yet a most persistent demand was made from the western provinces for the show. Winnipeg and Edmonton want after it hot; in fact, are after it yet. Ottawa also wants it.

However, because Toronto has a million dollar plant, and has also offered to finance the show, her competitors had to give way. Had any other city been selected the federal government would have to make a very large appropriation to assure success.

With the accessories on hand, Toronto is in a position to finance the show and yet with a reasonably small outlay of money. A conservative estimate of the net receipts is $25,000. Another $10,000 would most probably pay all the bills. It is possible that the receipts will equal expenditures.

For this year the judging arena will be in the transportation building. It will be quite large enough for the purpose. Temporary seats can be placed. The asphalted floor can be covered with tanbark. A couple of large stoves will throw out enough heat to take off the chill on the coldest day. By next year a mammoth arena will have been erected.

One of the suggestions that will likely be adopted is that the aid from the federal and provincial governments be applied partly to rebates on transportation of exhibits from a lengthy distance so that the best in every part of Canada may be brought to the show. The bulk of the exhibits will be from Ontario, and the transportation charges will not be a hardship. But the exhibits from the prairie provinces and the maritime provinces, tho they may be few in number, would probably be withheld on account of the transportation expense unless assistance was assured.

Those interested specially in stock raising for the food supply have suggested that a feature of the competition for prizes be exhibits of car loads by individual breeders and feeders. When an exhibit of car load quality is made it precludes what is termed the "spoon-fed" system, of preparing stock for exhibition. These car load lots would bring to the show the most practical form of fat stock for the food market.

Promoters of the show are directing attention to the benefits to the retail trade of the city. The show will be held during the period of Christmas buying, and there will be low rates on the railways to and from the city.

WICKETT'S IDEA OF TOWN PLANNING

Thinks Number of Civic Centres Would Improve Social Conditions in City Like This.

"One of the most attractive and promising suggestions was that of local civic centres, based on the idea of local community interests," said Ald. Wickett, speaking of his visit to Chicago to attend the conference on city planning. For example, using Toronto as illustration, the idea of a civic centre with a federal square appeals to the whole city as a unit, but such a scheme takes no special thought of the outlying districts such as Parkdale, West Toronto, the northwest, northeast, east and central portions of the city as far as their local life is concerned.

"Ideals of town planning would be more fully realized if local centres were established in these various sections, made up of a grouping of local parks and playgrounds, branch public libraries, schools, municipal buildings, including a public hall for meetings of ratepayers, in case the schools are not suitable. The relation of such centres to the awakening and stimulating of healthful civic sentiment is worthy of careful and sympathetic consideration. In permitting high buildings we are doing with one policy what we are trying to undo by another. We are creating congestion with one hand and with the other we are trying to relieve it by means of better transportation. Such a short-sighted policy is highly unbusinesslike, harmful and foolish."

New York has recently appointed a commission to advise as regards height of buildings. From every where comes the view that considerations of economy, comfort and health have the question of damage to adjacent property caused by high buildings is also dwelt on. Land owners must be given to know just how high they can build, and land values and rents will be limited accordingly. Even hotels must not be necessarily enormously high buildings. Boston's newest hotel has been built under the Boston 20-foot limit.

TURNED THEM AWAY. Toronto hotels were overtaxed Saturday, 500 visitors not being able to secure accommodation. The King Edward had a waiting list of over a hundred and other hotels were similarly fixed. This was caused by the influx of people attending the Woodbine races.

A Permanent and Positive Cure for All Human Ailments.

There are thousands of sufferers from various forms of disease, who would give their all for a remedy that promised even temporary relief. To these we would call special attention to the fact that there is a remedy, not only temporary, but permanent. Oxygen, the great natural health-giver and life conservator, when transmitted scientifically into the system produces such marvelous results that drugs and medicines are destined to take a secondary place in the near future.

The Farador Machine

This scientific oxygenating machine—the result of many years' research—is proving itself every day to be a boon and a blessing to suffering humanity. Chronic cases of rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, paralysis, diabetes, constipation, and many other ailments have been effectively treated, and health and happiness restored to the sufferers. No medicine or doctor required, just natural treatment. The Farador is an exceptionally powerful machine, being several times stronger than any other similar device on the market. It can be regulated to any strength, and is guaranteed for 10 years.

If you are interested, write or call for our little booklet, "The Natural Way," which tells all about oxygen therapy, also the many testimonials received from grateful people who have obtained relief. Remember your health is priceless.

BITTER HOLIDAY FOR A YARDMAN

Myron Dowden Struck Down by C. N. R. Train in Rosedale Yards—Goes to Hospital.

Hard luck, waited upon Myron Dowden of 2 Cambridge avenue when he rose early on the morning of Victoria Day to look after his duties as engine washer for the Canadian Northern Railway at the Rosedale freight yards. Dowden is only 20 years, and he has only been in Toronto for a few days. His parents live in the State of Maine, and he left home with the intention of becoming an engineer on the C. N. R. Dowden is an ambitious young man, and in the few days he spent in the Rosedale yards he made many friends among the trainmen, who were struck with his willingness to work. Yesterday he was down to work before 6 o'clock. At 6:30 he tried to jump an engine as it was passing thru the yards. His attempt almost cost him his life, for he missed his hold and slipped beneath the wheels. He then tried to clear himself, but the wheels passed over his right leg and crushed it. He was rushed to the General Hospital in the day his physician amputated his leg.

SOME TELLING FEATURES

WE RESHRINK ALL CLOTH--WE GUARANTEE PROMPT DELIVERY

One thing about the Scotland Woolen Mills clothing worth considering is the fact that we never allow any cloth to go to the workrooms without first giving it a second shrinking.

We know of course that the cloth has already been shrunk at the mill and bears the big stamp "cold water shrunk," but we believe a little cold water more or less can do no harm. So we shrink it over again.

This is an important thing, for you are sure that the first time your suit goes to the rain storm, it will not shrink. It is something that has helped to make our clothes famous, for reshrinking assists the clothes to retain their proper lines without continual pressing.

Choice of Any Material Made-to-Order SUIT OR OVERCOAT

PROMPT DELIVERY

One splendid feature of the clothes made by the Scotland Woolen Mills Company is the fact that we can promise immediate delivery of every order received. Our immense facilities for making the individual of Suits and Overcoats to measure allows us to guarantee this.

They are in rarely light weaves of browns and grays, with cross checks—just the very thing for wear at this time of the year. And you won't meet a fellow at the next corner either wearing the very same pattern.

OUT-OF-TOWN MEN: Our Mail Order business is a huge success, simply because we have given it unceasing attention. It is a big item now in this big business. If you live out of town and have not given it a trial this is your one big chance in the matter of a Spring Suit. Write for our new list of patterns, for our samples, self-measuring charts and other things. We can prove to you that ours is a perfect affair when it comes to buying clothes through the mail.

The American Wool Tariff

To the Canadian public, generally speaking, we feel sure that the present Tariff Bill before the Government in Washington is of little interest. It is of mighty big import to the Scotland Woolen Mills Company, however, because it will allow the bringing over to the States the best of the wools made in Scotland to compete on a fair basis with those manufactured in the United States.

The people of the Big Republic are demanding that they be furnished with clothing containing some reasonable percentage of real wool instead of that not given them by the trust. This product is manufactured from shoddy and cotton, and is sold at wool prices.

The present conditions existing in the United States clothing market should serve to bring home to any Canadian the fact that his tariff restrictions permit him to buy all-wool clothing at a reasonable price. GIDEON MILLER, President Scotland Woolen Mills.

PARROTT—MAJURY.

In St. Anne's Church on May 29 at 11 a.m. was solemnized the pretty wedding by Rev. L. E. Skeay, M.A., when Miss May youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Majury of Paisley, Ont., was united in marriage to Mr. Lionel R. Parrott, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Parrott, Toronto. The bride was attended by Dr. Elizabeth L. Stewart of Toronto and wore a pretty cream serge suit with becoming white hat, trimmed with Albee blue and que pink roses. The groomsmen were Mr. Miles F. Hoefner of Buffalo. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl and amethyst necklace, and to the best man a watch chain. After the ceremony the bride party had dinner at Messop's, leaving later for a visit to the bride's home. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Parrott will reside in Ossington avenue.

PATON—GOODERHAM.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gooderham, 14 Madison avenue, at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon was the scene of the marriage of their second daughter, Kathleen, to Mr. Robert C. Paton of Winnipeg. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend Archdeacon Cody in the drawing-room, which was decorated with bridal wreath and apple blossoms. The bride, who was brought in and given away by her father, wore a graceful gown of white satin and lace with tulle veil and orange blossoms. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley and wore the groom's gift, a diamond ring. Miss Ethel Gooderham, sister of the bride, and Miss Isabel Paton, sister of the groom, were the bridesmaids, wearing white charmeuse with pink hats and carrying pink roses. The groom's gifts to them were bar pins. Mr. Jack Paton was best man. Mrs. Gooderham, wearing black charmeuse, with Richmond roses, held a reception after the ceremony to about one hundred guests. Mrs. Paton of Winnipeg was in gray and mauve. Mr. and Mrs. Paton left later for New York, before going to their new home in Winnipeg, the bride traveling in a navy blue tailor-made and black hat with blue feathers.

JONES—BOYD.

St. Thomas' Church, at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, was the scene of a quiet wedding, when the marriage was contracted by Miss Mary Macaulay of Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gamble Boyd, to Mr. Howard Jones of the Imperial Bank, son of Mr. George Jones and the late Mrs. Jones. The service, which was fully choral, was conducted by Rev. Mr. Lewis. The chancel and altar were decorated with lilies and trilliums. The bride, who was brought in and given away by her father, wore a traveling dress of gray and black hat with Paddy green and French roses. She carried a bouquet of lilies and orchids. Miss Dorothy Aylmer of Peterboro attended as bridesmaid in a dainty frock of pink satin veiled with marquisette and pink hat with pink and blue flowers and the carried pink sweet peas. Mr. Herbert Jones was his brother's best man. After

Countess Detice di Frazzo in Rome

Her Grace Holds One of the Most Brilliant Balls of the Season.

ROME, May 24.—One of the most brilliant functions of an unusually brilliant season was the ball given recently by the Count and Countess Detice di Frazzo in their palatial suite on Via Abuzzi. The countess, who was a Miss Georgina Wilde of St. Louis, has just completed her seventh year as a Roman matron and she adds new social laurels to her crown each year. She shines not only as a hostess but a most accomplished linguist, French, German, woman and is perfectly at home in politics and literature. With her conspicuous talents she is easily one of the most brilliant conversationalists in Europe. In her is united American dash and brilliancy with old-world culture and distinction of manner. And as she is yet under thirty, she is looked upon as one of the rising young hostesses who have made Rome famous as a cosmopolitan center unequalled perhaps in any other European capital. The dancing at her latest function continued until daylight, when the count and countess bid their guests farewell prior to leaving for the count's chateau in the Tyrol, an ideal country residence where the countess leads the simple life and picnics in the open air amid the mountains of her summer home.

There is probably no other building in Toronto that can be so completely thrown open as Parkdale Rink. Electric fans are located entirely around the building and the hottest night it will be found quite cool in the rink. The music on Thursday and Saturday nights will be one of the big features. All of the latest hits and many musical novelties will be introduced. It will practically be a high-class band concert. This alone should crowd the balcony. The rink will be open at 8 o'clock. From that time until 9:15 there will be skating and from 9:15 until 11 dancing. These two nights are known as "Party Nights," and they promise to become very popular this summer.

Echoes From Parliament Hill

By TOM KIUNG

OTTAWA, May 24.—Everybody here is seeing red. The Liberals see only the red carpet of the senate chamber as their last resource, while many of the Conservatives see red because they are fighting mad. The senate has developed unlooked for courage, and is it after all merely bravado. Many still cling to the belief that the upper chamber will not go to the limit on the naval aid bill, but will find some means of retreat or compromise. On the other hand, if one is to believe his eyes and ears, the hon. Mr. Borden's bill "with bloody hands to a respectable grave."

The senate was not so willing to bury the highway bill. Having killed that measure, from the standpoint of the government, at least, the senate refused to have the body lying above ground, or to provide for it a sepulchre. It swathed the corpse in fine linen, and sent it back to the commonsense man who put his mother-in-law in a carriage and sent her to the other daughter's home; the other son-in-law promptly tipped the caddy to return the old lady, who was again forwarded to the other house, and is still to have perished of inanition without leaving the cab.

When the highway bill, as amended, gets back to the green chamber, there will be a strong objection to burying the remains in that particular. Government and opposition alike desire to blame the other with killing the bill.

"Who Killed Cock Robin?" Mr. Gordon of Nipissing asked the question and, pointed to Sir George W. Ross as the sparrow. Liberal senators however insisted that Cock Robin was not dead after all and that the bill had no occasion to act as clerk, or the bill to toll the bell, for its funeral. Senator Cloran said it was not a corpse the senate was sending back but a healthy new born baby weighing fifteen pounds. The married man recalling how he led to his neighbors about the weight of his firstborn, will excuse the senator's hyperbole.

After all what is the point in dispute between the house and the senate? To the looker-on in Vienna it seems trivial. The government is appropriating money to improve highways throughout the Dominion and says it intends to distribute this money among the provinces on the basis of population. The senate says in effect that it has no doubt that Mr. Borden will be a man of his word, but it desires to have his promise inscribed in the law. That is about all there is to it, and one would be puzzled except on political party grounds, at the senate insisting upon its amendment or at the government refusing to accept the amendment. As it is every member of the senate and every member of the house declares himself in favor of the purpose of the bill, but senate and house alike desire to convict the other of "killing" the measure. The farmer in need of better highways may well exclaim: "A plague on both your houses."

He is in the position of a patient who passes away while his medical advisers are quarreling over a question of precedence.

The bank act was passed in the dead waste and middle of the night. Indeed the third reading was moved considerably after midnight, with scarcely a quorum of members in the green chamber. Mr. Graham, who was leading the opposition, might well have insisted upon a postponement, but he permitted the bill to go thru. As it happened the electric lights throughout the building suffered an eclipse about one o'clock in the morning, and the passing of the bill was as hurried and nocturnal as the burial of Sir John Moore. There was a lusty cheer from some of the lawyers and lobbyists standing midway between room 16 and Mr. Speaker, but otherwise the event passed without comment.

The anomaly presented by a branch of the legislature not responsible to the people, and not in sympathy with the government of the day, was accentuated Thursday night when Senator Loughheed, on behalf of the government, voted to accept the amendment to the highway bill adopted by the senate, and therefore declined to move the third reading of the bill. Sir George Ross, the opposition leader, moved the third reading, and Mr. Speaker Landry quite properly ruled that a private member could not take charge of a government measure. An appeal from this ruling was sustained by a partisan majority, and the remarkable spectacle was presented of a government bill as amended being passed, notwithstanding the objections of the government. Upon the motion for a third reading, and also upon the motion that the bill do now pass, the Liberals voted in the affirmative, and the Conservatives headed by Mr. Loughheed, voted in the negative. Senator Dandurand suggested that some closure rule would have to be adopted to prevent the government obstructing its own measures, and the curious scene was witnessed of the government suffering defeat thru having one of its own bills, as amended, passed against its will.

The Liberal senators to do them justice were consistent, and several of them frankly protested that from a partisan standpoint they were getting in wrong. The incident itself and the votes upon it were interesting as showing the solidarity of the Liberal party as represented in the senate.

Public attention has been focused almost entirely upon the senate this week, and the proceedings of the house have awakened little interest. That chamber, however, slid thru the bank act in the watches of the night and occupied itself with a lame, languid, and uninteresting budget debate on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Friday as usual was given up to supply.

ENGLISH PONIES ARRIVE IN NEW YORK

Forty-two in the Lot Which is Valued at $100,000—Animals All in Good Health.

A special report from a special correspondent of The Sunday World states that after a rough voyage the English polo ponies, which will be played in the coming international matches, arrived in New York Tuesday on board the Atlantic Transport liner Minneapolis. There were 42 in the lot, under the personal care of G. W. Naylor, for 21 years stud groom to the Duke of Westminster.

The ponies are valued at $100,000, and a $50,000 bond had to be placed in the hands of the custom house officers before they were allowed to leave the ship. The animal inspector of the department of agriculture, when looking them over, declared he had never before seen such a fine and healthy-looking lot, and gave them a clean bill. Things were further expedited by the kindness and courtesy of A. J. Evans, the superintendent of the Atlantic Transport docks, who did everything within his official power to help the Englishmen and those who had to be there in getting clear. Six of the ponies, Machine, Nutmeg, Tiger, Energy, Pretty Boy, and Kilkenny, were over to America in 1911, and were played by the English team in the last international matches. A noted pony, named Unknown, reported to be exceptionally fast, and to have been included in the lot, was left behind.

Taking the mounts as a whole and from a quick glance as they were transferred from one boat to another, they certainly impress one as being a likely looking lot. Of course, they are all fat, but that will be run off in a few days. They are not as high as the American ponies, that is taking them collectively, but are built for speed. They have not that rangy, thorobred appearance of some of the Meadow Brook mounts, but are more stocky, but with wonderful depth of chest and shoulders.

SIDNEY DREW

Appears in Motion Pictures. One by one, the foremost actors of the present age are becoming identified with the photoplay. The most prominent recruit of recent date to pose before the camera is the famous actor, Mr. Sidney Drew, who will make his initial bow in film on next Monday evening in Toronto at the Garden Theatre, in a two-act dramatic classic, entitled "The Still Voice," from the pen of George Cameron.

Not everyone is aware that George Cameron is merely the pen-name of Mrs. Sidney Drew, the wife of the famous actor. She has written almost every play in which her husband has appeared during the last 20 years, in many of them appearing at his side before the footlights. Drew was the first theatrical star of any prominence to desert the legitimate stage for vaudeville, and now that moving pictures are fast coming to the fore, he is again in the van. His great-great-grandfather was the basis for his first "hit" as a moving-picture actor.

"The Still Voice" has been arranged by the Vitagraph Company for production in film form, and Sidney Drew and his son, S. Rankin Drew, secured to play two of the leading roles. In its new clothes, the play has lost none of its strong, dramatic power, and may truly be regarded as a triumph of the film-making art. It will be shown next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings, at the Garden Theatre. Three other feature exhibits go to complete the bill, besides an interesting musical program by the famous Garden Theatre Symphony Orchestra.

It is announced that Pavlova has decided to retire after her present world tour has been completed. She is said to be immensely wealthy, and to have refused an offer of $200,000 for twenty-five weeks. She expects to spend most of her time in Europe after her retirement.

NO PRESIDENT OF THIS CONFERENCE

Set Here to Study the Bible Has No Program, No Leader and No Frills.

A Bible Truth Conference is in session at Foresters' Hall, College street, today. The program is a children's meeting at 2 p.m., an open meeting to which all are cordially invited at 3 p.m., and the evening gathering at 7 o'clock, at which preaching of the gospel is the feature scheduled.

The program for Monday is the same as that of Saturday. Bible reading in the morning, an open afternoon meeting, at which addresses will be delivered, and the evening session devoted to preaching.

The visitors are from many parts of Ontario, and from Detroit, Chicago, Allona, Penn., New Jersey, Montreal, Central America, the Bahamas and other parts. There is no set program of details, nor are the meetings presided over in the usual way in gatherings of this nature.

Other items to which they subscribe are: "That when a company of Christians is gathered for worship, there should be no human leader in charge, but that all should be left to the spirit of God to use whom He may choose in prayer, praise or exhortation. We take no collections at public meetings and refuse all help from the world, refusing all thought of salary or stipended remuneration for the preaching of the Word, but hold themselves responsible to minister in temporal affairs to those who give themselves to the Lord's work."

Those attending the meetings are asked to bring their bibles.

VETERANS HONOR DEAD COMRADES

Decorate Monument in Queen's Park and Hear Patriotic Addresses.

Saturday was a big day for the veterans, who mustered in goodly numbers to pay tribute to the comrades who were killed in action. About 90 veterans of 1866, 50 of 1870 and 10 of those who fought in the South African war, paraded from the armories to Queen's Park, and there decorated with flowers the monuments erected to the memory of their dead comrades.

Led by the band of the Army Service Corps, they presented an inspiring sight to the thousands of onlookers as they marched to the Queen's Park.

After the ceremony of decorating the monuments they listened to addresses by Sir John Gibson, lieutenant-governor, Archbishop Cody and Col. Denton.

British Children Honor Empire Day

Nine Million Boys and Girls Participate in Act of Loyalty.

LONDON, May 24.—Children who live under British rule in all parts of the world saluted the flag yesterday in honor of Empire Day. The striking computation is made that nine million boys and girls participated in this act of loyalty, to which huge totals of loyalty supplied three quarters of a million.

Today is Empire Day, but as the schools are closed the children had a special day of patriotism. The great event in London today will be a parade in Hyde Park in the afternoon.

There was a stirring scene in the Guild Hall yesterday, when 1200 children from the elementary schools of the City of London assembled, wearing red, white and blue robes. The Lord Mayor, wearing his official robes, presided. The children recited this ode: "The National Anthem to an accompaniment of twenty young violinists was then sung."

The Lord Mayor reminded his youthful hearers that the British Empire was the greatest empire the world has ever seen, serving under one flag and under one king.

RIVERVIEW

OJIBWAY CANADA'S STEEL CITY

$30 cash and $10 per month will make you one of those who will reap the benefit of enhanced real estate values in this coming steel city

WHAT OJIBWAY WILL BE

Ojibway will not only be Canada's first steel city, but will be her greatest steel city. In her mills will be manufactured steel products for the British possessions as well as millions of dollars' worth of rails, bridges, and so forth, consumed in the Dominion of Canada.

Ojibway is destined to be a city of greater size than any other city which may be built by The United States Steel Corporation in Canada. Far-seeing investors realize this fact and are quickly snapping up choice lots in our property.

Riverview Property is Selling Fast

Because the investing public realize the great possibilities of Ojibway, the lots in our desirable property are selling very quickly.

From the first day that we announced the opening of Riverview property, we have been kept busy by inquirers.

Just after the sale was open we sold 31 lots in twelve hours.

Riverview property is selling fast not only because of the great possibilities of Ojibway, but because of its excellent location.

The Price of Riverview Lots Will Advance in a Few Days

The time to buy property is when it is advancing in price. Shrewd investors buy early, and benefit by all the increases in value.

Riverview lots are worth more today than they were when placed on the market a fortnight ago.

Those who invested at the opening of the sale are able to turn their lots over at advanced prices.

Lots can now be bought from us at $180 and $200 each, by paying only $30 down and $10 per month, but in a few days we will be obliged to raise the price.

Random News of the Real Estate Market

The spring's realty activity is about over and agents are settling down into the quiet humdrum of a holiday market. As a rule, the 24th is the end of the spring season trading, and about all we can look for until the middle of August is the buying of builders who have not been nearly satisfied with land for their summer operations, and a fair run of house business.

A few large central deals that have been progressing during the summer, but which enquiry for business property will be negligible. The professional operators will probably take advantage of the summer lassitude of the market and the wise small investor may discover that owners who do not take kindly to the thoughts of a three months' pull thru a period of inactivity in suburban real estate are often quite willing to sell odd lots at a very reasonable price.

All organized opposition to the street railway deal is fading away in the light of facts being shed on the details of the negotiations. Deep thinking property owners realize that the continued progress of the city is bound up with improved transportation facilities. A continuance of the present unextended service must of necessity throttle all growth in a very short time. While many owners will not be immediately benefited by the city's taking over the street car lines, it is a certainty that the high level that every piece of property in Toronto has reached in the last five years cannot be held unless progress goes evenly on, and in a natural way. The World Real Estate Editor has yet to meet a really man of any weight who is opposed to the proposal. Many agents, some of them with hundreds of properties under their direct care, will be found working very hard for the measure when it is submitted to the people.

It is an open secret that the rigid collection of tax arrears has removed worth as much as the average in "Mill" transactions is $185 a foot, paid for a lot on Oriole road. Four or five magnificent trees dignified this lot and the buyer's lumberman valued them at $1000 each, and that had something to do with the figure paid for the frontage. But there are cities in the west where far higher prices have been paid for residential land than in Toronto. Not that this city's beauties are not equally as charming but because in the west a few people who made money easily paid without thinking of price for lots that struck their fancy and unintentionally raised the value of all the residential land in the neighborhood. This parallels the case of the banks, who are largely responsible for the high level business property has reached in the west, and in Toronto as well.

George Stalter, Buffalo hotelman, has gone back fully impressed with the need for accommodation in Toronto, but not at all enthused over the economic possibilities of a big house here. Mr. Stalter makes himself famous by supplying sleeping space at moderate rentals, but makes his friends say, his hotels pay in the refectories. In Toronto the two best nights in the dining-rooms, in the States, are lost Saturday night is a night of expenditure and so is Sunday on the other side of the line; but here the hotel spending rooms are deserted Sunday and quiet Saturday night. The difference is represented by a loss of $150,000 income a year in this city with the same capital and overhead expenditure as in the States. That is one big reason, say local hotelmen, why Mr. Stalter and other Americans are not hurrying here. The five per cent. regulation and license loss visions are unattractive.

Local men seem to be making little progress toward giving us what we need, and what some big plans have let us know we need, in the way of hotels.

Mr. O'Neill says in the near future he hopes to definitely announce a big project. Mr. McConkey declares he is still looking for a site. "A good one is hard to get," he says in an experienced way.

The visit of Manager Harris of the Ritz Carlton syndicate raised hopes for a while, but careful enquiry leads to the belief that he is making no arrangements for a hotel here. Of course there is the chance that his plans were laid some time ago.

Out of all the talk of new hotels there emerges the fact that in accommodation we are in exactly the same

 In Victoria Day Celebration

Floor of Auditorium Collapses at Los Angeles Where British Societies Were Honoring Memory of Late Queen Victoria.

Special to Sunday World.
 LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 24.—Between 20 and 25 persons were killed and about 100 injured today, when the stage and a part of the flooring of the municipal auditorium at the shore end of the pier collapsed during the Empire Day ceremonies—a celebration by British societies in honor of the birthday anniversary of the late Queen Victoria.
 Every one on the stage fell thru the floor of the big building located on the municipal pier, and in an instant the sand beneath the structure was covered by a writhing mass of men and women.
 Early estimates of the dead ran as high as fifty or sixty. The injured, according to the police, will number several scores.
 Mayor May Be Dead.
 Thirty-five bodies were taken from the wreckage soon after the disaster. Every one on the stage went thru the flooring in one mass, but it is believed, according to police reports, that there may be more bodies in the wreckage.
 Among the first eleven of the identified dead were ten women and one child.
 Eighteen women were among the first score of injured identified.
 About 7000 or more spectators were present and many were injured in the rush. The stage stood twenty feet above the beach. The collapse caused a panic, which the police could not control. An appeal for aid from the Los Angeles police department was answered by several automobiles loads of police.
 Mayor May Be Dead.
 Mayor Hatch of Long Beach, who was to have been one of the principal speakers, was believed to be either dead or seriously injured. Just before the stage fell he stood upon it beside Grand Marshal Restall.
 The greatest excitement prevailed and all the ambulances in the city were summoned. The platform collapsed as a parade was entering the building.

BRILLIANT SCENE MARKS WEDDINGS

The Emperor Nicholas of Russia with Queen Mary of England, King George of England with Crown Princess Cecile, the Emperor William's sons with their consorts, and 50 or more other princes and princesses of the royal blood.

Dr. Ernest Dryander, the grand chaplain of the court, who had baptized Princess Victoria Louise, prepared her for her confirmation, performed the ceremony which was the simple Lutheran rite. He then delivered the customary address of advice and admonition to the newly-married couple. As the ring was exchanged before the altar a battery of artillery stationed outside the castle fired a royal salute.

Then the prince and princess, with Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria and the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland returned to the White Hall of the castle, where they received the congratulations of the guests while seated beneath a canopy at small tables. The guests defiled past them, making profound bows and curtsies.

Day Opened Impulsively. From an early hour the streets were alive with people watching the constant passing of brilliantly uniformed attendants on the many royal personages, including the British, German and Russian Emperors gathered here for the ceremony. Virtually every house was hung with some hunting and at many of the windows were bunches of evergreen, with brightly colored flowers had been placed on most of the balconies, everything together forming a most effective display. The many palaces and public offices had hoisted their largest flags, and when later in the morning the wind strengthened in intensity and the downpour abated, these flew gaily in the breeze.

Every school through the empire had been closed in honor of the occasion, and the school children of the capital in charge of their teachers paraded the streets, or took up their positions at advantageous points waiting patiently to see the various royal processions.

There was, however, little for them to see until shortly before the ceremony. Robing Ceremony. The wedding functions themselves began rather late in the afternoon with the robing of the young bride, at which her mother, the German Empress, presided.

The bride wore a wonderfully worked gown of silver brocade, with a court train of the same material, embroidered with a myrtle and orange flower design and lined with ermine. The bride's veil, which like her entire toilette was of German manufacture, was composed of a two-yard length of lace on which eight Silesian girls had worked day and night for six weeks. It fell over her head toward the back, leaving her face free.

Drive Thru Berlin. The last act in the robing of the bride was performed by the empress when she placed on her daughter's head the historic crown worn by Prussian princesses at their weddings.

Before she was robed for the ceremony, Princess Victoria Louise took a short drive in Berlin, and was cheered vociferously by immense crowds assembled in the neighborhood of the palace.

A state banquet was given at the castle this evening, followed by the historic "orchestra" and the distribution to the guests of souvenir "garters" in the form of silk ribbons bearing the bride's initials, and the date in gold letters, which modern delicacy has substituted for the pieces of the bride's garter formerly cut up and distributed by the princes of the royal family on the points of their swords.

The bridal couple left immediately afterward for the emperor's hunting seat at Hubertusstock, to the north of Berlin, where they will pass the first week of their honeymoon, then going for a fortnight to the Duke of Cumberland's hunting castle, near Chuen-den.

Roosevelt v. Newett To Start on Monday

Plaintiff Objects to Statement That "Roosevelt Gets Drunk, and Not Infrequently."

MARQUETTE, Mich., May 24.—William P. Beiden, chief counsel for Geo. Newett, defendant in the Roosevelt libel suit, returned today from Chicago, where he was engaged yesterday in assisting in the taking of depositions to be used at the trial.

Under the supervision of Judge Flannigan, the court-room where the suit will be heard was fitted with extra tables and chairs to accommodate the crowd of newspaper men who will be here to report the case when it goes to trial Monday, probably in the afternoon. According to the present program Judge Flannigan will occupy during the forenoon hearing motions on the regular calendar, in the course of which "Roosevelt v. Newett" will come up. "Roosevelt v. Newett" will come up, court probably will be adjourned until after noon, when the work of obtaining a jury will begin.

"I doubt if the case will require two weeks," said Mr. Beiden today. "The depositions are much alike and the testimony should be brief. Unless I am mistaken the case will proceed much more rapidly than has been expected. Theodore Roosevelt will attempt to show that George A. Newett, publisher of The Iron Age, was in error when he published the statement that 'Roosevelt gets drunk, and not infrequently, and all his intimates know it'."

LUTHER McCARTY KILLED IN HIS FIGHT WITH ARTHUR PELKY

Big Cowboy White Hope Knocked Out in First Round by a Right-Hand Punch Over the Heart and Dies Thirty Minutes Later From His Injuries.

CALGARY, May 24.—One minute and 35 seconds after Luther McCarty and Arthur Pelky met in the ring this afternoon Pelky landed a right-hand punch squarely over the big cowboy's heart. Thirty minutes later the former heavyweight white champion of the world was dead.

For the first few seconds the fight was an even tenor. The men went at it carefully, feeling each other out. Pelky has been placed under arrest by the mounted police, charged with manslaughter.

McCarty's death was said by physicians to have been due to a weak heart, and the excitement superadded by the fight fully as much as by the blow itself.

McCarty and Pelky both seemed cool and confident when they entered the ring. They shook hands smilingly at the request of Referee Ed Smith, then posed for photos. Pelky was sure of his superiority. He began using a jab to the face. He landed three straight jabs and then McCarty made a weak come back with a right to the body. McCarty tried to rush Pelky but he was stiff left to the jaw and a right two inches below the heart. The right landed with stinging effect. McCarty wavered and staggered. He dropped over on his back. The blow, a hard one, was not delivered with full power of the fighter, and Pelky stepped back ready to resume the fight, but he was surprised when his big adversary failed to rise, as Referee Smith began the count.

Before ten had been counted McCarty was evidently in a serious condition and Billy McCarty, his manager, stepped to the ropes and shouted for a doctor. Doctors in the audience at once responded and they began efforts to restore McCarty. Artificial respiration was resorted to, but it had no effect, and strong stimulants were used to produce a reaction in the heart. McCarty was evidently failing rapidly, and as the doctors worked it was evident that their hopes of reviving the big fellow were lessened. After five minutes' efforts physicians suspended their work. A brief announcement from the ring was made stating that McCarty was dead. A policeman entered the ring and arrested Pelky, who had watched the scene stupefied by the tragedy.

HAMILTON-TORONTO Soccer Teams Draw

HAMILTON, May 24.—(Staff Correspondence.)—The Toronto Motor Cycle Club held their spring meet here this afternoon and furnished a special card of speed events for the large crowd that filled into the grand stand. The 10-mile professional races naturally created the most interest with Harold Cole defending his past honors on a Thor against Joe Barrieau on a fast Indian, and Ernie McIntosh, also mounted on an Indian. The crowd drew the usual attention and a fast track made the time good in all events.

EXHIBITION GROUNDS, May 24.—(Staff Correspondence.)—The Toronto Motor Cycle Club held their spring meet here this afternoon and furnished a special card of speed events for the large crowd that filled into the grand stand. The 10-mile professional races naturally created the most interest with Harold Cole defending his past honors on a Thor against Joe Barrieau on a fast Indian, and Ernie McIntosh, also mounted on an Indian. The crowd drew the usual attention and a fast track made the time good in all events.

Following are the events: First event, novice race, stock market, 3 miles—1. W. Morrison; 2. A. Shuttleworth; 3. G. Levinski. Time 4:19. Second event, C. 130 class, stocks, 5 miles—1. W. Morrison; 2. H. Donohue; 3. M. H. Donohue. Time 7:35. Third event, 10 miles, professional—1. Harold Cole, Thor; 2. E. McIntosh, Indian. Time 12:42.

Barrieau Quit. Cole took an early lead, but was overtaken and passed by Barrieau on the second lap. Barrieau soon had to quit on account of engine trouble, which left an open field for Cole. McIntosh, who got second place, was never a serious contender. Fourth event, single cycle with side car, male passenger, weight 125 pounds or less, 3 miles—1. S. Thompson, Excelsior; 2. H. Miles, Indian; 3. S. Welkins, Jefferson. Time 5:55. This proved the most exciting race on the card as the riders constantly passed and repassed one another. Thompson won handsily in the last mile. S. Barton finished second on a matchless twin, but was disqualified for looking around and fouling Thompson.

SIXTH event, 2-mile bicycle handicap—1. J. Hafferton, C.C.R.C.; 2. N. Munro, H.M. Club; 3. H. Harris, Salem B.C.; 4. H. Martin, Salem B.C. Time 4:55. Seventh event, twin engines and side car, with male passenger weighing less than 125 pounds, five miles—1. C. McDonnell, Excelsior; 2. Belton, Merkle. Time 12:42.

IRISHMEN TOO GOOD FOR LOCALS

Kennedy's Team Start Scoring Early Against Blue Shirts in Opening Lacrosse Fixture—Many New Faces.

SCARBORO BEACH, May 24.—(Staff Correspondence)—That grand ancient game of lacrosse, with its speed, skill and thrills took a fresh grip on life this afternoon.

The grass was rather slippery, placing a slight handicap on speed, but nevertheless the play was fast enough to keep the fans, bugs and nuts on their toes.

The Toronto presented a formidable line-up, but there were five missing guards: Buck Marshall and Dave Gibson of Vancouver and Billy Fitzgerald, the St. Kitts star, who didn't come back.

The Irish secured the face-off Monday carrying the ball down. The Toronto defence were worried for a few seconds, until Powers grabbed a pass.

The Irish rushed down and buzzed around the Toronto goal, only to lose the ball when Harshaw intercepted a pass.

Harshaw saved by blocking Hogan. The Toronto rushed up the field ahead, doing some heat combination work.

The clouds began to unload rain, and there was a bargain-day feeling of the spectators for the shelter of the grand stand.

The ground was now very slippery and the players had their troubles to navigate. The local fielders began to put on some extra strain and made things look dangerous around the Irish nets.

The Irish defence was practically impenetrable, time and again breaking up the rushes of the Toronto aggressives. They played fairly good, but were up against a much stronger team.

WILD. Score: Irish-Canadians 7, Toronto 4. Toronto's awakenings caused the Irishmen to go asleep in one respect at least. After holding the ball as long as possible while the crowd jeered, Longfellow secured in mid-field a chance to shoot, but it went wild, White saving. The ball again was taken to the referee's hand, and again the Irishmen played rag. Finally Fitzgerald picked up a loose ball and took it down, only to lose it. After that the visitors played combination, principally around mid-field. Roberts held the ball a little too long and the referee blew the whistle.

Another Win for Cole. Eighth event—8 miles, professional 20-50 C.L.—J. H. Cole, Thor, 2. N. Newport, Indian, Time 4:37 4-5. Harshaw could not start as his machine was still out of commission and Cole and McIntosh furnished an exciting finish.

Eleventh event—Side-car race for single-cylinder machines, 5 miles—J. S. Barnes, Triumph, 2. Greenwood, Triumph, 3. N. Newport, Triumph, Time 8:38.

INDIAN A WINNER. WOODSTOCK, Ont., May 24.—Frank Jamieson, a local Indian, won the eight-mile bicycle race, which was held here today under the auspices of the Woodstock Amateur Athletic Association. The distance was covered in 25 minutes. Tonight a monster tattoo, in which the 51st Highlanders' Band of Hamilton, the Scotch Fusiliers' Band of London, and the 2nd Regiment Band of Woodstock took part, was held. A feature of the evening was the beautiful fireworks display.

Toronto's Favorite Actress.

Miss Percy Haswell

DAINTY, winsome, Percy Haswell is in Toronto again for the fourth season of asking. No one is better known, better liked or more admired as an artist and a woman than this bright ornament of the 20th century stage. For not only is Miss Haswell a charming and magnetic personality in herself, but she has the artistic sense that requires balance and excellence in all her stage presentations. These are the qualities that have won her so much deserved popularity, established during her first summer season, and increasing with her every return. Summer in Toronto would now be incomplete without Percy Haswell, who made a success of what had been long deemed an impossibility.

Miss Haswell makes no secret of her fondness for Toronto, and the public of Toronto do not hide their affection for this bright caterer to their dramatic and aesthetic sensibilities. They know what to expect when Miss Haswell comes to town with her friends, the company. Good plays, delightfully acted, plays that are full of gripping power while free from all suspicion of the vicious and immoral. Miss Haswell has set up in this respect a high standard, and this is another of the reasons that render her annual visits so welcome. And few of the audiences who crowd the Royal Alexandra realize what an amount of strenuous work the change of play from week to week imposes upon the Haswell Company. The wonder of it is that the fine level of artistic ability is so constantly maintained.

Heresy Hunts Injure Religion

DECLARING that heresy trials are the delight of the ungodly and the despair of religion. Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke deeply moved a New York congregation when he defended his son from a charge of heresy made by a minority committee which examined him for the ministry.

"If there must be a heresy trial," he said, "try it on a grown man, and not on larger hearted, sensitive boys." The occasion was the ordination of Tertius Van Dyke and three other young men into the Presbyterian ministry. Dr. Van Dyke said in his address:

"Whatever comes of the protest, I wish to take my stand with these young men. They are my brothers in the faith. If they are unfit for the ministry I am unfit.

"They are far more worthy than I am. Their love, their courage, their consecration are what the Church and the world need today. I hold with them that the questions which they could not answer about the patterns of the Tabernacle and the literal interpretation of the virgin birth and the physical death of Lazarus are not essential to the Christian faith. If I refused the right hand of fellowship to these young followers of Jesus I should be ashamed to look my Saviour in the face. If the Presbyterian Church should reject their service or cast a slur upon their sincerity she would cripple her own strength and betray her own cause.

"Do you suppose that the first Christians waited to draw up a definition of all their doctrinal beliefs, or to agree upon a system of interpretation of all parts of the Old Testament, before they set out to preach Christ to the world? Do you imagine that there was any one to stop them with a theological and critical inquisition?"

"How would it sound? 'Stay, Peter, before you go to proclaim the Gospel to the Roman Cornelius you must tell us what you think about the ceremonial law of the Jews, and when it was written, and whether it is absolutely inspired. Stay, Paul, before you preach Christ to the Gentiles you must tell us what you understand by the virgin birth of Jesus and give a logical definition of the Trinity. Stay, John, before you minister to the churches you must explain your views on Jonah and the whale, and tell us who wrote the book of Deuteronomy.'

"'Away, away!' I hear them answer, 'our gospel is not in these things. Men are suffering and dying. We must tell them about Jesus, who came to save them from sin and death. We must tell them that He is the resurrection and the life. We must help the outcast and hopeless to find God thru Christ in the spirit. What are these things with which you trouble and delay us? The letter killeth, but the spirit maketh alive.'

"Let us take the Bible, and ask why we reverence and value it. Why do we put it above all other books? Why do we call it the word of God? Because it speaks to our souls. Because, as Coleridge said, 'It finds us.' Because its lesson and its promises and its consolations meet the very deepest needs of our hearts. Because it is a lamp unto our feet and a light unto our path.

"If you read the first chapter of Genesis according to the letter, laying it alongside of the testimony of the rocks, which also was written by God, you will find yourself in a deadening confusion of mind. Can you believe, according to the teaching of some theologians a century ago, that God created fake fossils and hid them in the strata of the earth to fool the men of science?"

"Must you give up your Bible because you cannot believe that? No, you should read the story of creation according to the spirit, as a poetic vision of the power and wisdom of God in the making of the universe—as a revelation that man, tho his body is formed from the dust of the earth, receives his living soul from God—and then the spirit of that story will give new life to your conception of nature and human nature.

"What difference does it make whether the book of Job is an ancient chronicle of events or a sublime drama of the soul? The lesson is the same: The victory of patience and unflinching confidence in God. 'Tho He slay me, yet will I trust Him.'

"What difference does it make whether the wonderful deeds of Elijah and Elisha are described literally as supernatural miracles or described in Oriental imagery as marvelous events which the witnesses could not explain? In either case their meaning is the same. Will you make your faith in the living God depend upon the question whether Elisha caused the head of the axe to float by throwing a stick into the water?"

"Let us come to Christ and consider what it is that makes men willing to commit their souls to Him as their Saviour and their Lord.

"Is it the doctrine that His birth was out of the course of nature and that He had no human father? No, for there is no mention of that doctrine in the preaching of the Apostles which won so many thousands to the faith of Jesus.

"Is it the power to work miracles? No, for the penitent thief had seen no miracles and the Philippian jailer had heard of no miracles, yet both believed in the Lord Jesus Christ and were saved.

"What is it then that gives Jesus power upon the souls of men? It is the Spirit of the Lord, God dwelling in Him, making Him one with the Father. It is the Divine Love which sends Him to seek and to save the lost. It is the Divine Wisdom which fills Him with grace and truth. It is the Divine Unselfishness which makes Him willing to endure the cross for the sake of sinners. It is the Divine Life which brings Him from the tomb, victor over sin and death forever more.

"This is the Person who wins the absolute faith of men and women and little children, who cannot explain or define Him. This is the Person at whose feet doubting Thomas falls, crying 'My Lord and my God!' This is the Person of whom Paul says, 'I know Him whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him.' This is the Christ, the Son of the living God."

In closing Dr. Van Dyke besought his audience to "Let all this strife about the letter pass you by and live in the spirit." He said that the puzzle of abstract theology and the problems of criticism "are of small account compared with the simple truth as it is in Jesus."

England and Peace.

The following from The Philadelphia North American is so well said that we have pleasure in reproducing it in full:

The celebration of the hundred years of peace between the two great English-speaking nations is a powerful stimulus to the ideal of universal amity.

It calls to mind that for a century this nation has impinged upon another for a distance which has grown to be 5000 miles. In that time there has been no armed guard on the far-flung frontier. There has been no army watching the boundary. There has been no navy on the great fresh water seas which wash their 3000 miles of coastline between the two nations.

And this peace has been the solid, steady growth of a century, overcoming the bitter traditions of two wars—wars of aggression in the view of one side and patriotic wars to preserve the integrity of the national dominion in the view of the other side.

England was the only great power with which this nation ever had serious conflict. So deep was the wound that it is but in our day that the youth of the republic have ceased to absorb the atmosphere of a national feud—the myth that Great Britain and the United States are traditional enemies.

The centennial of peace finds that myth dispelled. This national has no traditions of enmity. As a matter of cold fact, if there are any two nations on the face of the earth which are absolutely free from mutual suspicion and jealousy and distrust, it is this republic and the great British dominion to the north of us.

Perhaps history does not present such another case of two peoples under separate sovereignties, with no purpose or design of governmental unity or even of formal treaty, and yet with so universal a feeling of oneness. No American holds a Canadian to be a foreigner. No Canadian looks upon an American as alien.

Instead of a feeling of distrust, because we are so rich and populous and powerful, the Canadian feels in that very fact his greatest sense of security; next to the security he places in his own manly self-reliance—a feeling that Americans can understand and respect. They share its inspiration as they shared its common source. For we know that the foundations of the American people and the American republic were laid by a stream of pioneers that poured from those Teuto-Celtic islands of which England is the largest factor.

What a marvel has been this England! For nearly a thousand years her shores have been inviolate from the foot of an invader, while all the rest of Europe has been crosshatched in paths of blood. With an inexorable purpose unparalleled since the Romans marked the earth for their own, the sons of England have driven towards the outer marches of the world.

Eastward and westward has gone their genius for empire. It subdued the virgin forests and the trackless prairies of North America, and with equal assurance it "kmit up the raveled sleeve" of ancient civilizations and imposed order on the chaotic despotisms of India. Then, with undiminished vigor, it turned to the jungles of Africa and let light into the remotest corners of the Dark Continent.

Wherever it has gone it has carried law and has held aloft the ideal of liberty. Freedom of conscience is not an English invention. But out of England have come the men who have spread it over the face of the earth.

Her parliament is the mother of representative government, and today remains the most responsible and the most responsive government on the face of the earth—with the possible exceptions of those improved governments set up in the newer England beyond the seas.

Her language is the vehicle of poetry unmatched since the golden days of Greece. Her Cromwell and Marlborough are the nearest rivals for the crown of the greatest soldier of the modern world. Her sailors, from Drake to Nelson, were on the sea for 300 years what Napoleon was on the land for 15. Her mighty navy is now the most powerful single influence for peace in all the world.

Back of all this is the firm and unyielding English character, with its love for order, its respect for law, its intense devotion to duty, its indomitable will to do what is to be done, its quickness to know the rights of man, and its unyielding courage to maintain them.

It was in this spirit that the English landed on Plymouth rock, on the shores of the James and on the banks of the Delaware. Other peoples have contributed much of high value to this new conglomerate American people. But the mold was made by England. And on this occasion of 100 years of peace between our republic and the great empire of which England is the foremost element we salute and honor her and her sister kingdoms of the British Isles and her giant children of North America and the southern seas.

U.S. Tariff and British Trade.

Keen interest is being taken in Britain over the revision of the United States tariff and the general impression seems to be that the changes proposed will have a beneficial effect on trade. Not only are British producers looking for an increase in their exports to the United States but also that there will be an expansion in imports from that country. Among the interests that hope to benefit materially is the wool industry altho at the moment manufacturers are not anxious to create new markets. Never before has this trade been so fully occupied, the trouble is to fill the orders that are pouring in. The United Kingdom indeed is at the height of an unparalleled boom which shows meantime no sign of recession.

Other industries that hope to do increasing trade are leather, cotton, china and earthenware. Motorcycle manufacturers are hopeful and gunmakers also see prospects ahead of recovering part of the trade lost by the imposition of the high duty in the McKinley tariff. Some manufacturers, however, are inclined to view the removal of duties on raw materials with anxiety. Nottingham fears that free wool will promote the growth of the knit underwear and hosiery industry in the United States and lead to closer competition in other markets. It is of course recognized that the bill as finally passed may differ from the present proposals but the president to all appearance has now succeeded in lining up the Democratic senators in its support.

The Militia Department is forming a new regiment with headquarters at Haileybury. Ottawa Despatch.

Street Car Letter Boxes.

A good suggestion comes from Huddersfield, England, where the street cars carry a letter box hung on a rail. These boxes are taken to a central office every hour, and from there to the postoffice, empty boxes being put in their place.

Not only do passengers make use of this means of posting their letters, but people along the routes can be in waiting at any regular stopping place and deposit their letters in the box during the brief time necessary for passengers to get on or off the cars. It is not prohibited for the conductor, in case the car is moving, to take letters from a person and put them in this box, or a person may signal the tram to stop, as if he were intending to board the car, and then mail his letter, giving the conductor a penny (two cents), the usual single fare, the conductor punching a ticket the same as for a ride.

The outlying districts, to which the cars on some of the lines run, make much use of the system. In this way letters may be mailed and delivered at the postoffice every hour during the day, whereas if deposited in pillar boxes or branch offices they would be gathered much less frequently.

The Fate of the Senate.

Prime Minister Borden, at his Toronto meeting, uttered a thinly-veiled threat to reform the senate in the event of that body rejecting the naval bill. It is usually the party in opposition that has little use for the senate and from which the demands for reform come. Now we have the government party, whose program is being held up by the upper house and which says that "if the senate stands in the way, the senate must go" or words to that effect.

The reform of the senate or abolition thereof is a good program but the senate should be reformed, not because it rejects any particular measure, but because the time is ripe for that reform. There have been several proposals looking to alter the character of the senate. One is to make it partially elective. In that way there would be an infusion of new blood every four years which would render that branch of parliament more susceptible to public opinion.

Both parties have used the senate to reward faithful followers who have passed their stage of usefulness in the more representative body, or campaign contributors who have perhaps never offered themselves as candidates for election. Making the senate partially elective would still provide opportunities for rewarding party loyalty with positions of honor and involving no great sacrifice of time and labor.

Mr. Borden, whatever the outcome of the navy bill, ought to seriously consider the reform of the upper house. It is unfortunate for the senate that it appears at this time to be following the behest of a defeated party in the house of commons in opposing a proposition that should never have created the slightest division in Canadian sentiment.

Play Censors and Deborah.

The censors seem to be divided in their opinions of the new play "Deborah" which had its premiere at the Princess Theatre last week. One of the censors declared it was all right—the other stated it needed pruning. The Rev. Mr. Coburn of the Committee of Forty saw the show on Tuesday night and pronounced it damnable with a capital D. It all goes to show that there never will be two opinions exactly alike as to a problem play, the weight seems to be in favor of the belief that "Deborah" certainly needed some toning down. But the noisiest crowd is not always right.

Leaving the moral question out of the situation altogether The Sunday World cannot understand why playwrights should produce plays of an unpleasant nature. A great many of them seem to think that they are doing something worth while if they create a clever drama that infringes the border of indecency. Surely there are enough pleasant things to write about and put on the stage without digging for dirt in the underworld. There are far too few dramas like "Rebecca of Sunny Brook Farm," "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "Milestone," "Disraeli," to give employment to the dramatists. The public have always shown a preference for the higher drama over the morbid, emotional plays which appeal more to the sensual mind.

The Dog Nuisance.

Mad dogs, or dogs supposed to be mad, have created havoc in Toronto streets two or three times during the past week. A number of people have been bitten and in one case a baby's face was badly lacerated by the teeth of a raging canine. Yet the biting of a few children with the consequent danger of rabies ensuing creates no outcry for the suppression of the dog nuisance.

When a couple of years ago there was an outbreak of rabies thruout the province, regulations were brought into effect to muzzle all dogs running at large. A great number of humane persons objected to this on the ground that it "annoyed" the dogs. The straps of the muzzles were "uncomfortable" and pressure was brought to bear to have the order rescinded.

A good case can be made out for the suppression of the dog nuisance outside of the aspect of the safety of the children. It is impossible to keep a lawn in good condition on account of the hundreds of dogs running unchained about the streets. We do not advocate the tying up of dogs in kennels. They should have exercise but owners should be compelled to have their dogs in leash when outside their own premises.

Crusts—&amp;—Crumbs

Have you ever observed the way small things seem to occasion important decisions or events in one's life? We are such shallow creatures that we are generally led to suppose, or we lead ourselves to suppose, that the events or decisions have been determined by little outer matters. I do not think such is the case at all. It is said that a little speck of sand or lime getting into the shell of the pearl oyster leads it to secrete the precious substance which becomes a jewel of price. But it isn't the speck that makes the pearl. We have that within us which something reveals to us. The great matter is that we should recognize it. There are people who get glimpses into inner worlds by reason of some abnormal sensitiveness of the pineal gland or other organ, and not recognizing what they see they put on the livery of insanity, and are adjudged accordingly by their friends. It is at least a great measure of insanity to see nothing when the mind opens itself, and to attribute to an outer power what arose within. The outer senses, the waking consciousness, seem to need something concrete to take hold of, to crystallize around. The ignorant man, the fatalist, the materialist, all honestly believe they are compelled to do what they do by environment or heredity or some other hollow epithet, forgetting that men in all ages have transcended these things, and counted non-weaklings who failed to do so. "The fault is in ourselves" and not our stars, that we are underlings." Cassius reminds Brutus. But we must not stray from my point that most of the incidents of life that impress us owe their chief value to our minds, which invest them with an imagined importance. When we see the sign on a street corner and turn down that street it is not the sign that makes us turn.

A few illustrations in my own experience will convey what I mean, perhaps better than much explanation. And first, I will take the influence of a man, indirect, transmitted, reflected through the mind of another, and evidently not an influence, but a revelation to myself of my own ideals. I remember very well reading in a magazine or periodical—I think it was The Pall Mall Gazette—I was in Chicago at the time, and read it in some library there—a eulogy of General Gordon, whose death had just shocked the world. It was an unsigned article, and I had no means of finding the author. But I kept that paragraph in my mind constantly during all those years till last year, looking into every book where any reference to Gordon might be found, but failed to find the passage I wanted. A year ago, in a second-hand bookshop in England I came across Sir William Butler's book on Gordon. I actually had not been aware before that he had written a book on Gordon. It had been published while I was full of the preparations for leaving Scotland, where I had spent two years, to cross the Atlantic again, and had escaped me. And I never saw it until last year. I hastily opened the last pages and speedily found the words that had impressed me so much, as nearly as I can remember them, 27 years before. In the article I read I had thought there was some allusion to King Arthur, but this seems to be the passage:

"Thus fell in dark hour of defeat a man as unselfish as Sidney, of courage dauntless as Wolfe, of honor stainless as Outram, of sympathy wide-reaching as Drummond, of honesty straightforward as Napier, of faith as steadfast as More. Doubtful indeed is it if anywhere in the past we shall find figure of knight or soldier to equal him, for sometimes it is the sword of death that gives to life its real knight-hood, and too often the soldier's end is unworthy of his knightly life; but with Gordon the harmony of life and death was complete, and the closing scenes seem to move to their fulfillment in solemn hush, as tho an unseen power watched over the sequence of their sorrow." And the passage is continued into a bardic reflection. "There is a gray frontier of rock far away in Strathpey—once the Gordon's home—whose name in bygone times gave a rallying-call to a kindred clan. The scattered firs and windswept heather on the lone summit of Craig Ellachie once whispered in Highland clansmen's ear the war-cry, 'Stand fast! Craig Ellachie!' Many a year has gone by since kith of Charles Gordon last heard from Highland hilltop the signal of battle, but never in Keltic hero's long record of honour has such answer been sent back to Highland or Lowland as when this great heart stopped its beating, and lay 'steadfast unto death' in the dawn at Khartoum. The winds that moan thru the pine trees on Craig Ellachie have far-off meanings in their voices. Perhaps on that dark January night there came a breath from heaven to whisper to the old Highland rock, 'He stood fast! Craig Ellachie!'"

Gordon was a mystic and a prince of peace, but he was a great soldier. For the great mystics seem to have that root of action within them that may carry them to death if need be in the fulfillment of the Will. And the faithfulness of the soldier is his prime virtue. He may not be brave or strong, but if he be faithful the other virtues will come. And so the child is baptized to be "Christ's faithful servant and soldier until his life's end." For in spite of all our peace societies and our striving for the Nirvana of God that passeth understanding, life is a battle and sometimes a furious warfare, and when it gathers into national struggle under the Lord of Hosts the only question should be whether the cause is just. The man or the nation that fights in an unjust cause fights a losing battle, and the stars in their courses fight on the other side. I ally myself with the peace societies whenever I can, but I can understand how men like Lyman Abbott find it difficult to continue consistently with the white flag. Gordon's life is full of mystical lessons, but the one that most of us need, in these days when we do not seek each other's blood, but something dearer and more vital, is to understand that "our wrestling is not against blood and flesh, but against principalities and powers, against the world-rulers of the darkness of this age, against the spirits of wickedness in the over-world." Unselfishness, courage, honour, sympathy, honesty, faith, these are the qualities the soldier needs in the warfare St. Paul describes.

In 1878 I read in a paper in the Working Men's Institute in Belfast, now closed, I was sorry to find, last year, the speech made by Lord Dufferin on leaving Canada. It is the fashion to say that one is influenced by such a speech. I think it is truer to say that one is led to discover one's own mind by such utterances. They unveil or reveal for us what is in our hearts, the destiny that we have concluded for ourselves. Until a man understands his own freedom, and to respond to his own will, which is ever striving to make itself heard above the din of the distractions of the world, he is ignorant, an idiot, in St. Paul's sense, and swayed by outer currents of emotion or desire. Events, or speeches, or visions, whatever they may be, can unfold to his consciousness what is behind his consciousness, what his consciousness is not yet seized of, what his spiritual will is ready to convey to him. One may read as I did, the speech of a Dufferin, and have it revealed to him that Canada is the field of the soul's destiny. But most people close their eyes to the light, shut their ears to the further call, and are content to think that the current carries them. The spell of great oratory reaches deep, and perhaps there was something more potent than usual in those mystical words in which Dufferin bade farewell to the great Dominion whose future he foretold. I had the echo in myself of all he said, and I was as confident in 1878, six years before I had seen Niagara, as I am today, of the might, majesty and power of this northern realm. And on years before that I had an intimation which seems almost marvellous today, (if other people would not describe it as silly) in the influence of the old red beaver stamp that used to carry letters from Canada to Ireland. Like Tennyson's lover, "My heart was prophet to my heart and told me I should love." What do I mean by all this nonsense? Some one will ask. Simply that like the flower in the tulip bud, like the blossom in the Lotus, in our hearts, in the earliest childhood, waiting to be unfolded, lies our whole life.

"Lies the seed unreck'd for centuries in the ground?"
Lo, to God's due occasion,
Uprising in the night, it sprouts,
blooms,
And fills the earth with use and beauty."
And again the "Good Grey poet" says:
In this broad earth of ours,
Amid the measureless grossness
and the slag,
Enclosed and safe within its central heart,
Nestles the seed perfection.
And the Master said: "The Kingdom of heaven is inside you."

I have always been amused by the way people describe some accidents. "A brick fell off the building and killed him." "The train cut him to pieces." Animism is not confined to savages. Nor is superstition a monopoly of the religious classes. I know of no greater superstition than that which supposes, in speech at least, that a brick lies in wait till a man comes along and just at the right moment drops down and kills its victim. We cannot get away from the unity of the universe. Whatever relation the brick had to the man must have been recognized by the man himself, interiorly, in the harmony of the inner vision, whether the outer consciousness knew or not. Very frequently the outer consciousness has some dim feeling or reflection of the facts. But the man, the real man, who has no other desire but to do the Will, brings the unconscious body to the point where the law releases the train of cause and effect. It is the man, the active, moving agent, who walks under the falling brick, and brings his term to a conclusion. The engine does not leave its tracks and chase the man who is to die. He walks unconsciously in front of it. Here is the problem of the ages. We cannot solve it till we turn within. And few of us have the wisdom or the courage to do that. It takes a brave heart to know what shall be.

WOMAN AND MOTORS

How the Fair Sex Has Influenced the Auto Industry.

From a widely-quoted book comes the saying: "Render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's," and so in this article I am going to render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's. In this instance, the women of the country are Caesar. To a casual observer, it might never occur to look for the why and wherefore of all the refinements that have come in the automobile within the last few years of its splendid development; but one who can readily trace the source of these refinements to the woman in the home.

"When I say 'refinements,' I mean those things about an automobile which are not absolute necessities except in the sense that a refined taste demands them.

It is usually the woman in the home who adds to the home its refining touch, and in fact adds this same touch to anything with which she comes in contact.

Under this heading of refinements, I place the beautiful high finish which manufacturers are giving to the higher grade automobile bodies; under this head I place also the harmonious tapers which these same manufacturers use in upholstering their cars; and under this head, also, come such little feminine touches as cut glass bottles, watches, card cases, electric signals, bell cords, silk curtains, and cut glass vases. Probably no one will question my statement, when I say that to an ordinary man riding in an automobile the necessity for these touches would never occur.

If he were asked as to his opinion regarding same he would more than likely say, "Tommyrot!"

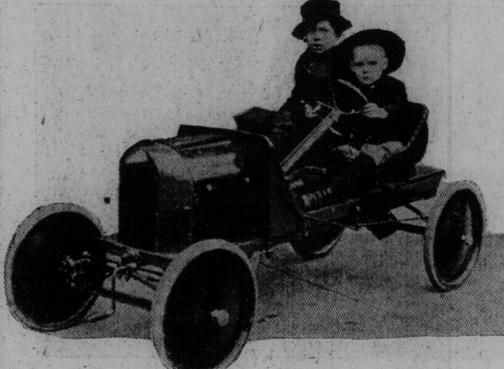

And yet it is a multitude of these fine touches which have added to the manufacture of automobiles the artistic touch which now characterizes the industry. It is this same fineness of detail which the designer and the engineer endeavor to embody in the mechanical construction of their car.

It is this same fineness of detail which gives the sales manager and the advertising manager food for selling argument and source for convincing advertisements. It is beginning to be a recognized fact in the marketing of automobiles that women must be taken into consideration in almost every sale.

In the general field of advertising it is recognized that women either buy or influence the buying of most articles advertised for sale. They constitute a probable 90 per cent. of the buying force in the world today. Is it any wonder then that the advertising manager—who is in reality a long-distance sales manager—spends his waking hours and his sleeping dreams in the endeavor to find the points about his product which will appeal to the feminine mind? Is it any wonder, therefore, that this same advertising manager racks his brain for some distinctive illustration to which he can couple his product, and thus attract the attention and hold the interest of the woman buyers of the country?

A Vital Force.

Women, I maintain, constitute the most vital force in the field of sales-

This little car, which was built in the shops of the Columbus Auto Brass Co., has been driven more than 500 miles by its owner, Leroy B. Coffman, five years of age. It has a 4 h.p. water-cooled motor, 4-gear transmission, shaft drive, 60-inch wheelbase, and can do 10 miles per hour.

manship today. To one who has followed to analyze the real situation, the extent of her influence in the automobile industry will present itself with surprising force.

When the automobile first entered the market of the world, very little salesmanship was needed to dispose of the various manufacturers' output. The reason for this was the fact that the demand outranked the supply. The cars sold in spite of, and not because of, any great amount of salesmanship at the command of the manufacturer.

It entered the market of the world at a time when the market was ready and waiting for it. There was then no need for sales managers and advertising managers to hunt for avenues of argument thru which to take a prospective purchaser. It was rather a question of "How soon can I get a car?" instead of, "Which car shall I get?"

But the time is now reached in the manufacture of motor cars when for the first time in its history, supply has caught up with demand and passed it. The result is the keenest competition in the sales end of the business. The manufacturers are beginning to realize now that the salesmanship that answered some years ago is entirely inadequate to meet the present requirements of a really intricate situation. They have but recently come to a realization that not only must they have a sales and advertising force which can forcibly and enticingly present these superior points of merit, but that they must actually create markets.

They have begun, therefore, to analyze the automobile market of the world and their research has brought them to a realization of the real buying power in the world market. They know now that the buying power for automobiles is the same as the buying power for flour. They know that after all is said and done that the buying power of the world is one unchanging force—woman.

In coming to this knowledge, they are wise enough to realize that if their output is to be sold, it must carry with it features that will specially appeal to women. Clearly the feminine mind has not reached the point where the appeal of horse-power, transmission, axle, bearings or any fine mechanical points will bear much weight. It must be reached then thru some other source, and the wise manufacturer turns to those apparently superficial points—the lines, the style, the finish, the accessories—in fact, the refinements on his car! And in so doing he gives to his salesmen and his advertising men the very arguments which most appeal to the feminine mind.

To a man, it would make little difference if his car were finished in black, blue or red, just so the required number of horse-power was there. Not so with the woman in the home. She not only wants the horse-power, but she demands more and has been getting more. The woman who buys an automobile, not only gets the horse-power with all the fine points of mechanical construction, but she also gets the beautiful finish, harmonious upholstery, the feminine accessories, and the little touches for comfort such as the robe rack, the foot rest, the foot warmer, the side pockets, etc.

Reach the Women.

It is a recognized fact in selling automobiles that if the salesman can reach the woman in the home and interest her, the sale is practically closed. A salesman may have a sale all but closed with a man, and his wife will kill it. Why?—the casual remark that she doesn't like the lines, or the inquiry as to why the car is finished in dark red instead of dark blue; or she may simply remark that she would prefer a Colonial type of body. Many salesmen have reached the point in closing a sale when a man says, "Well, I'm satisfied, if my women folks are." And he realizes that he not only has to sell the man but the whole family.

There are probably thousands of men in the United States today who never had an intention of buying an automobile until their wives put the idea in their heads. There are many salesmen who can thank the women in the United States for the largest per cent. of their sales. It is the woman in the home who has nothing else to do but figure out the things that she use if she had them and then devise ways and means for getting these very things. Automobiles come rationally in this class. We will never know how many automobiles are purchased because of the fact that some woman wants one because some other woman has one.

In summing up, therefore, we may say that the motor car of today must be sold on a basis not of mechanical

Our Gift to Automobile Owners
---The No-Rim-Cut Tire. 10% Oversize

THE words "Goodyear" and "No-Rim-Cut" are inseparable in the minds of the Canadian Car owner.

The No-Rim-Cut Tire, at no increase in cost, gives the car owner nearly double tire mileage. It has won the tire market for that very reason. It is built on a new principle.

It avoids rim-cutting—a tremendous saving to car owners. It is 10% larger than Clincher tires of the same rated size. That adds 25% to the mileage of the average car.

A sale of over 2,000,000 No-Rim-Cut Tires in Canada and the United States shows clearly that the old style tires have lost in the race—that No-Rim-Cut Tires are supreme.

Three Mighty Features

- UNSTRETCHABLE BASE
Single points of advantage could not in themselves make a perfect tire. The No-Rim-Cut Tire is above everything else a balanced tire—every part is built with a view to the strength of every other part.
Without the unstretchable base it would never have been practicable.
128 braided wires woven by our patented process give it the grip of the rim that render the Clincher bead unnecessary. Examine the flat unstretchable base Compare it with other tires.
This is Big Feature No. 1.
It has made the No-Rim-Cut 10 per cent oversize Tire available for mileage reduction to over 700,000 car owners.
- THEN COMES MACHINE-BUILDING
Years ago we overcame the uncertainty of hand-building our tires. Now no weak spots can occur in No-Rim-Cut Tires.
The fabric is of even strength at every point. To insure equal tension over every inch of every layer of fabric we invented the Goodyear Tire Building Machine. Automatic weights stretch the fabric equally as it is laid on the carcass of the tire. We are sure of the uniform strength of every part of every tire.
That is Big Feature No. 2—A tremendous step towards perfection—and increased mileage.
- CURING UNDER AIR PRESSURE
Goodyear Tires are cured twice. While this process is expensive it adds many miles to the life of our tires because it insures uniform toughness through the whole tire. First, the thick tread and the fabric casing are each partially cured. Then the tread is laid on to the carcass, the tire is inflated on a rim and the curing process completed.
See what this double cure does. The thick tread is as thoroughly toughened as the thin side walls. The tire is cured under the same strain as it will meet in actual service.
We believe curing under air pressure is an exclusive process with us. It costs us 50c more per tire. But it adds mileage to No-Rim-Cut Tires.

FOUNDING MOTORS.

"Don't let your motor pound," says Emil Groszmann, manufacturer of the Red Head spark plugs. "On hills this is generally due to the spark being too far advanced, and if the retarding of the spark does not remedy it, one should look for loose crank shaft bearings, loose piston bearings, loose main bearings, or a loose fly wheel. Pounding will soon ruin a motor, and should be remedied at once."

Motorcycle Gossip

Conducted By A. N. B.

Bright Outlook for Settlement.
On Tuesday, May 20, a temporary understanding was reached between the Toronto Motorcyclists Club and the Canadian Motorcyclists' Association, which bids fair to culminate in a permanent settlement of the long-standing differences of these two bodies. Altho nothing was definitely settled, the C. M. A. conceded permits to T. M. C. riders for the race meet on the 24th of May, which assured all riders who took part in that meet a clear card and removed any chance of being outlawed thereby. The present outlook for a complete understanding looks good.

Drops 35 Feet Into River.
Carrying Miss Hazel M. Hall on the rear seat of his motorcycle and traveling at 60 miles an hour, with bicycle police vainly endeavoring to catch him, Rodman Law, who works for a moving picture concern, recently rode his machine over the bridge at Sew. Bright, N. J., and dropped 35 feet into the Thornbury River. The daredevil stunt was witnessed by a large crowd, which had collected on the bridge, being attracted by the moving-picture cameras. Rodman quickly rose to the surface and proceeded to rescue his fair companion, who was slightly overcome by the shock, but soon recovered on being taken to the hospital in an ambulance.

Excelsior Riders to Go to Hamilton.
Percy A. McBride, the popular Toronto agent for Excelsior motorcycles is arranging a trip to Hamilton on Sunday, June 1, which is to consist entirely of Excelsior riders. Mr. McBride is inviting all Excelsior riders to meet at his store, 243 Yonge street, at 8 o'clock in the morning, if the weather is fine, and any rider possessing a side car is invited to bring a lady or gentleman friend. Special preparations are being made for the ride, and a full supply of repairs will be taken along, so that riders may be assisted if trouble is experienced along the route. Mr. McBride has arranged for hotel accommodation and dinner in Hamilton, and Excelsior riders in Toronto are looking forward to a good time on June 1.

A Splendid Ride to Port Perry.
The Wanderers' Motorcycle Club had another good run on Sunday, when they visited the pretty little Town of Port Perry, and the boys were so taken with the place that they intend going there again in the near future. The route followed was east on the Kingston road to Whitby, and then north, and the roads from Whitby on were excellent. Unfortunately, a heavy rainstorm overtook the riders at Manchester, and they were forced to take shelter in the railroad station, where for a time they enjoyed themselves with all kinds of pranks. After the storm had passed, the boys were still determined to reach Port Perry, and, as the going was very heavy, they all experienced falls and minor mishaps, but escaped serious injury to their mounts, and arrived in Port Perry a little late for dinner. A pretty waitress soon provided wants to the hungry crowd, and then the boys had a good look around the town. The return journey was made in good time, and without any startling happenings. One side car outfit accompanied the riders, and, of course, was easiest to handle in the mud. Frank McKay had rather a close call while riding his Indian along a highly-banked road. Getting too close to the edge, his machine started to slip down the incline, but he managed to grab a post, and hung there, holding his machine, until one of his companions came to his assistance.

Buy a "Never Out."
Motorcycle riders who are experiencing constant trouble with carbide lamps, will find relief by purchasing a "Never Out." This is a small oil lamp of excellent quality, and one that lives up to its name. The lamp answers all the requirements of the law, and is quickly gaining popularity in Toronto.

Don't Forget Your Kit!
"For the love of Mike!" you riders who travel without tools and a tire-repair kit, get wise to yourselves and quit taking chances! Some time, when you are alone and about 40 miles from nowhere, you will have a breakdown or a blowout, and have to walk back. Companions on the road do not object to helping any one in trouble, but this expecting the other fellow to lend you tools and supply patches, is an imposition, and the fellow who persists in borrowing should be left in the lurch some time. If only to teach him a lesson. Carry a complete outfit, even if your machine is so good that you don't need it. And, don't forget the pump!

Benzole as a Fuel.
English motorcyclists are still experimenting with benzole as a fuel, and, while some complaints are made about overheating and carbonizing, the general opinion is in favor of the spirit. One rider has made a mixture of 25 per cent. gasoline and 75 per cent. benzole, which he claims makes a perfect fluid for motive power. We would like to hear from some Canadian rider who has tried this spirit, and hear his opinion as to the value of benzole as compared with gasoline.

Motorcycles to Help the Automobile.
The automobile people are learning that the motorcycle can do some things for them better than the automobile itself. The Bemb-Robinson Co., of Detroit, has installed a motorcycle in charge of a uniformed mechanic, who is sent out to give assistance to automobilists who have trouble on the road, and it is very significant of the efficiency of the motorcycle that one of these machines is used in preference to an automobile. The new service is regarded with great satisfaction by the drivers of Detroit, who have learned of the innovation.

Cause of Numbness and Saddle Soreness.
It is the fore-and-aft play that makes saddle soreness and numbness of the hands on the bars. A few minutes' observation of the manner in which the handle bars vibrate, back and forward, when traveling over rough roads, will soon show where the trouble lies. For this reason, riders should be careful to tighten up the bearings in the steering head from time to time, as it will contribute greatly to their comfort. If the bars are set with a downward slant the wrists can take a more natural and easier position.

The motorcycle has invaded another profession—dentistry. Dr. L. M. Basehoare of Mountsville, W. Va., finds a motorcycle very convenient in going to and from his office, and he also declares that it is one of the greatest sources of recreation for a man who is confined indoors all day.

SOME MOTORCYCLISTS OF TRENTON, ONT., OUT FOR A SPIN.

Speedway Curtain Raiser.
Among the many events that motorcyclists are looking forward to at this time is the splendid race program which will be staged at the state fair grounds at Indianapolis, the day before the great automobile races at the Indianapolis motor speedway. A fine and varied program of events has been arranged for the motorcycle races, and it is believed that many automobile enthusiasts who will gather in Indianapolis for the Memorial Day speedway event, will go to the fair grounds on May 29 to see the motorcycle races.

Among the other summer events of particular interest to motorcyclists, is the F. A. M. convention at Denver, July 23-26. A number of tours are being arranged to start from various points throughout the middle west and west, and already cars have been chartered from some of the eastern cities to accommodate those who will attend the convention.

Campaign Against Open Muffler.
The open muffler "fiend" will no longer be tolerated within 500 miles of Chicago. It is not the authorities of Chicago who are to wage war on these motorcyclists who insist on riding with their mufflers open, but the motorcyclists themselves. A motorcycle protective association has recently been organized by Chicago riders who desire that the sport be kept on a sane and dignified plane. The silent motorcycle is the slogan of this organization, which will make it extremely uncomfortable for the rider who insists on disregarding the rights of others. Another object of the association is to provide medical aid for motorcyclists who may be injured.

All riders within a radius of 500 miles of Chicago are eligible to membership.

On Motorcycles This Time.
The "Abernathy Kids," aged nine and thirteen, started May 15 to ride their motorcycles from Frederick, Okla., to New York City. This is the fourth cross-country trip of these boys, the first having been made when they were five and nine years old respectively. At that time they rode horses, traveling from Guthrie, Okla., to Santa Fe, N. M., and return, a distance of more than 2,000 miles. They have also made the trip from Frederick to New York on horseback, and hold the world's record for an ocean-to-ocean horseback trip. They rode their horse from the Atlantic to the Pacific in just sixty-two days. They have now deserted their horses for the motor mount, and expect to make their first cross-country motorcycle trip in record time.

Motorcycle Notes.

The Detroit police department has added ten motorcycles to its equipment. This makes a total of twenty machines in the department.

The Vancouver (B. C.) Motorcycle Club is planning to organize a motorcycle polo team in the near future.

F. Spalding of Fernie, B.C., will start sometime during this month on a motorcycle trip from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast. Heretofore transcontinental motorcycle trips in Canada have been from the east to the west.

Leslie Eagar and Bruno Pilz, two nineteen year old boys of Wilmette, Ill., have started on a motorcycle tour of the world. They expect to spend at least a year sightseeing awhale.

Mrs. W. T. Raypole of Charubusco, Ind., is one of the biggest motorcycle boosters in that part of the country. She is not only an enthusiastic rider herself, but has been the means of interesting a number of other girls in the sport.

"I am like a fish out of water when I can't ride my motorcycle," said Frank Blackman, who had just sent his machine to the factory to be overhauled.

Alex. Murdock of Hoboken, N.J., has ridden his motorcycle more than 5,000 miles in the last year. He is still has the original tires on the machine.

Ivan Johnson, a farmer living near Berne, Ind., finds his motorcycle not only a saving of time, but a saving on his horses as well. "I am glad to get away from the old horse and buggy method of travel," says Mr. Johnson. "I can now go to town and back while the horses are taking their noonday rest."

A Packard Record

World-wide interest has been aroused by an official non-stop run of 300 hours, which was completed Friday morning, May 16, by a standard "35" Packard motor. This is a new record, more than doubling the best previous run of 132 hours, made four years ago in England.

It was announced as a 200-hour test, by the technical committee of the Automobile Club of America, under the official observance of which it was held. At the end of that period, however, the motor was running so smoothly that it was continued in operation for 100 hours more. Throughout the test, coins balanced upon the test rack proved the smooth-running quality.

The motor maintained a constant speed of 1200 revolutions per minute. Measured in road performance, it pulled a "35" car with a full load, at a speed of 37.46 miles per hour over roads heavy enough to demand a wide-open throttle. In the 300 hours it rolled up a total of 11,238 miles, which is approximately half way around the earth.

The run was made with absolute no repairs, and with no adjustments, except minor ones, allowed by the rules of the Automobile Club of America governing the test.

The motor tested was taken from a stock "35" Packard car, driven to New York from Cleveland, by F. H. Trego, research engineer of the Packard Motor Car Company, Detroit. The test is the most severe ever given an automobile engine under official observance, the accumulated strain of much more than the average season's mileage being compressed within an unbroken period of 12 days and 12 nights.

Tried and Tested Principles vs. Worthless or Questionable Fads

WHEN this company was considering the matter of improvements, prior to bringing out the 1913 McLAUGHLIN models, it was pointed out that many of the so-called "improvements" which were being featured by a number of manufacturers were nothing more nor less than fads and fancies—devices of unproven merit.

For this reason it was decided to incorporate in the McLaughlin only such features as had been tried and proven to be useful and valuable.

That this was a wise decision has been demonstrated over and over again since the first of the year. McLAUGHLIN cars are giving universal satisfaction to hundreds of users in every part of Canada, while many of the promised "world-beaters" have already gone home to roost.

ARRIVING AT TIRE CAPACITIES.
A great number of motorists are somewhat bewildered when they read this talk about tires being "over-size." In the literal sense of the word there is no such thing as an "over-size" tire unless someone makes a "bull" in the rating. The mention of "over-size" in tire claims always stands for an unfair comparison between the non-cinch or straight side tire, and the quick detachable clincher or solid-rim clincher tire. Unless a tire maker is fair enough to tell you what his comparison is with, it is like comparing the derby hat with the "top" or "plug" hat—every hat store sells both kinds and no dealer would be so foolish as to claim that the derby hat had as great a head, air or water capacity as the top hat.

If any motorist wants to settle the question in his own mind, as to the correctness or incorrectness of that misnomer "over-size," here's a simple way to do it. Take two or more makes of straight side or so-called "over-size" tires—be sure and not take clincher tires—fill the tubes of both of them full of water, then weigh each tire separately. Divide each weight into cubic inches and you have the cubic capacity of each tire.

A certain tire manufacturer, whose product is seen all over the roads of Canada in the shape of a "V" mark, is very anxious to meet the motorist who on such a test as the above, can find a larger Made-in-Canada tire than their straight side type, no matter whether that other tire is called "over-size" or under-size.

Safety in Equipment.
Every wannabe motorist likes to know that she takes no risk when the car is traveling at a fast clip. She doesn't let the tire equipment is Dunlop Traction Tread.

Stand Against the Elements.
Dunlop don't control the weather, but they control the tire that does. Its name is Dunlop Traction Tread.

KEROSENE CARBURETOR SUCCESS

Noted Race Driver May Have Solved the Fuel Problem.

That the day of the kerosene carburetor has arrived is evidenced by the recent announcement of the "Hendersons of Indianapolis," that the Harroun carburetor will be furnished at eight additional charge on any of their second series models.

Of like importance is the announcement that the two Henderson cars entered in the Indiana Automobile Manufacturers' Association's Indianapolis-to-the-Pacific tour, which leaves Indianapolis July 1, will be equipped with the Harroun kerosene carburetor, one of the two cars being driven on this tour by Mr. Harroun himself, the other by E. P. Henderson, vice-president of the Henderson Company.

In speaking of the trip, Harroun said, "There is no doubt about the result of this unusual test, over road conditions varying from the smooth prairie roads of Kansas to the mountainous roads of Colorado and Utah, including just enough of the desert driving to complete the assortment and prove the merit of my carburetor, which will develop more power, speed, and mileage on a gallon of ordinary kerosene than can be had from the same quality of gasoline."

The Harroun carburetor, however, is easily adjusted from the dash for the use of kerosene or gasoline, this feature having been carefully worked out by Harroun, who, in addition to being the best known "cup winner" among racing drivers, is an engineer of the highest rank.

After winning first place in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis against a field of forty-four entries, Harroun retired from racing and devoted his time to engineering and designing, with the result that he is now one of the most talked of men in America, because of his success with the Harroun carburetor.

In selecting the Henderson car in which to make the arduous Pacific coast trip, Harroun states that he was influenced largely by the "year ahead" progressive policy of the Hendersons, indicated by their early adoption of the newer, yet proven features of European construction. The simple centre control, with the left hand drive, make it a "driver's" car, and the gas tank under the cowl affords a constant flow of fuel to the carburetor without resorting to force feed, thus allowing the car to act naturally at all times regardless of road conditions.

Harroun Well Known.

Harroun needs no introduction to the motoring public. He faced death time after time while a driver of fast cars, but never had a serious accident or suffered injury. In 1911 he won the first 500-mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway and became international champion. This was the longest track race in history, and still holds the record for the number of entries in a track event. Harroun won from a field of forty-four entrants, and his average speed was 74.61 miles per hour.

Having won the greatest race in automobile annals, Harroun retired and took up engineering. He has been just as successful a designer as he was a winning race driver. He recently began the study of carburetors, and the possibility of vaporizing kerosene. This subject has been the chief engineering topic of both continents for the past twelve months, and Harroun is the first to solve it successfully. He has invented the Harroun carburetor, organized a company, and is now engaged in manufacturing carburetors in Indianapolis.

Not only did Harroun win the first 500-mile race, but he was the first man to capture the famous Wheeler-Schubler silver trophy, a $10,000 cup that stands higher than a man's head. This cup will be raced for again on May 30, at the speedway in conjunction with the 500-mile race in which Billy Knipfer is driving the Henderson entry.

Harroun has many victories to his credit on the Atlanta speedway, the Indianapolis track, and at the opening of the Los Angeles motordrome in the spring of 1910. Ray made a clean sweep of the events in which his cars were eligible. One of his most famous victories on this board saucer was the distance record for one hour of continuous driving.

Facts on Rim Cutting

For approximately two years the travelers of Canada's largest tire makers have been collecting tire service news and views from the men who know right and wrong from actual conditions—auto agents and dealers, garage men, auto supply men and repair men, whom we here style "auto-men."

In that time Dunlop representatives have called on nearly every mother's son of them, at least once, and in the regular course of business have got a line on the "auto-men's" experience with users of all makes of tires.

There is no need of Dunlop travelers asking the men who sell tires if Dunlops were the largest tires in Canada. That every dealer knows to be a fact, and, ah, that any motorist can easily get the proof for himself.

But to get a correct synopsis of the customer's finding on rim-cutting was a different proposition. Dunlop men employed no cut-and-dried way of questioning him. The best facts often come unsolicited, and it is only natural for a customer to be canny in the use of words if he becomes conscious the discussion will be farther reaching than the precincts of his own store.

Here is the result of what Dunlop men found, as conveyed to the company in the Saturday morning meetings scattered over a period of approximately two years.

Absolutely and unquestionably the "auto-men" were overwhelmingly convinced that Dunlop tires, with or without traction tread, is the one make of tire which never did rim-cut.

A Tire Triumph.

In buying an anti-skid tire, consider only "real virtues, and real triumphs. Both are mighty plentiful around Dunlop Traction Tread.

Thore Anti-Skid.

There is no guesswork about Dunlop Traction Tread. It's a real thoroughbred anti-skid tire.

Here's the Biggest Defect in Most TIRES OF TODAY:

LOOSENING OF THE TREAD

All other made-in-Canada anti-skid tires, except Dunlop Traction Tread, are manufactured by the old method--the tread is simply a strip of rubber stuck on the tire proper.

Dunlop Traction Tread Straight Side Type

Most Envied Tire in All America

Our Patented Tire. Fits any Detachable Rim.

Naturally, in service, the stuck-on piece soon wears loose. Some tire users don't know what's going on in their tires until one day they find "loosening of the tread."

Unless your anti-skid is Dunlop Traction Tread you have a stuck-on-tread tire.

We control the only successful way to make a build-into tread tire.

That's why Dunlop Traction Tread is the most envied tire in all America.

Thousands of motorists say: "Dunlop Straight Side, with or without Traction Tread, is the one tire which never did rim-cut."

Dunlop Straight Side Tires have 66 cubic inches greater air capacity than any other tires made-in-Canada. That means they are 66 inches larger than so-called "oversize" tires or any other kind of tires.

Strong Company With Percy Haswell

Toronto's Favorite Actress Opens With "Mrs. Dot" at Alexandra Theatre on Monday.

On Monday evening next, Miss Percy Haswell will inaugurate her fourth stock season in Toronto, at the Alexandra Theatre.

Miss Haswell's annual summer visit is always looked forward to eagerly by thousands of her admirers, who like bright clean plays and comedies.

This summer Miss Haswell returns with practically an entirely new company. The exceptions are Miss Julia Hanchett and Mr. James T. Galloway.

The leading man is Robert Cain, whose last appearance here was in "The Spendthrift." Mr. Cain has filled the position of leading man in stock companies in New York, Los Angeles, Denver, and other cities.

He has also played important roles in productions made by Henry W. Savage, the Shuberts, and others.

The juvenile comedian is Effingham Pinto, who is best remembered for his exceedingly clever work in the role of Pietro in "The Climax," a part that he originated and played in New York, Chicago, and London, for two years.

Mr. Pinto has been associated with Charles Frohman, Henry Miller and Henrietta Crossman companies.

D. P. Dawley has not been seen in Toronto for ten years. His last appearance here was with Mrs. Leslie Carter in "Du Barry." He has had a splendid stock experience, and will be found a useful member of the company.

Last season he was leading man with Miss Nancy O'Neil.

Miss Edna Hibbard made her stage debut at the age of eight in "Shore Acres." Since that time she has filled important engagements in stock companies, and was also a member of the original New York company which presented "Officer 666," "Ready Money," and other successes.

Miss Florence Short is another actress who has had a valuable training in leading stock organizations, and with various well known stars. Her last appearance in Toronto was with William Hawtry.

Walter Renfort is another experienced stock actor, and has been associated with a number of the best organizations. He has also played responsible parts with many prominent stars.

Edward Hayes was last seen in Toronto with Blanche Bates in "The Girl of the Golden West." For three seasons he was leading man with Tim Murphy. He has filled many important engagements in a number of well-known productions.

Miss Florence Davenport is a granddaughter of the famous actor, E. L. Davenport, and niece of the late Fanny Davenport. Her last appearance in Toronto was with Forbes Robertson in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," playing the role of "the painted lady." She has been a member of noted stock organizations.

Miss Hanchett and Mr. Galloway are so well known in Toronto that an extended introduction is unnecessary.

Last, but not least in importance, is Mr. Alexander Leitch, Miss Haswell's stage director. He has also played a vast experience in making productions in New York, and other cities for leading managers. He was director of the famous Daniel Frohman Lyceum stock company of New York for a number of years, and was also stage director of other Moscow's noted company in San Francisco.

It is Miss Haswell's intention to produce every play as the author would wish it done. With this end in view, a large staff of artists, scenic builders, electricians, etc., has been engaged.

Miss Haswell has chosen for her first week the sparkling comedy, "Mrs. Dot," by W. Somerset Maugham.

During the stock season, the mid-week matinee will be given on Wednesday, instead of Thursday, and summer prices will prevail.

"The Price" Is a Real Woman's Play

Will Be Presented by Edna Marshall and Excellent Cast at the Grand This Week.

"The Price," a modern drama in three acts, by George Broadhurst, will be the offering at the Grand this week.

In "The Price" the author is said to have supplied an unusual play. It is an emotional drama, founded on the eternal triangle—the woman who loves and sins, the man she thinks she loves, and the man she afterwards finds she truly loves. The picture drawn is that of the helpless girl the point of view of the man being contrasted strongly with that of the woman who has ever paid the price of her misdoings in never-ending sorrow, and more often in desertion.

Mr. Broadhurst has told the story of Ethel Toscani (played by Edna Marshall) with literal clearness. He has made his characters human in their words and aspects. The theme of the story reaches its climax in the flight Ethel Toscani makes to hold her love, the loss of which is threatened through the fact that she has not told her husband of her own mistake.

Ethel Toscani, a refined girl, left penniless by her artist father, comes into the life of Standard Dole. She is his artistic sister-in-law, and enters the physician's household, and sows the seeds of suspicion. Then she shows the happy physician the tell-tale diary kept by her dead husband. The husband forgives the early fault, but is relentless at first, because he believes that his wife caused the death of the artist by her own act.

Clarence Bennett and company have surrounded Edna Marshall with a notable company, which includes Clarence Bennett, George V. Dill, Catherine Evans, Glenn Porter, Roy Van Fossen, and others.

Bonstelle Players Set New Standard

"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," To Be Presented at Shea's This Week.

The Bonstelle Players, during the first two weeks of their summer season at Shea's Theatre, have set a new standard of excellence for summer stock companies. Two outstanding features have been the subject of much comment from all hands. One has been the all-round ability of the members of the company and the other has been the splendid productions of the two plays already presented.

The two new burlesques selected for the principals is one that will tax their comedy qualities to the utmost, which assures the patrons of plenty of bright, clean, and original comedy. The elaborate scenery and illuminations will be a hit and the chorus which consists of twenty-five beautiful, charming, singing and dancing lassies, is already popular.

The cast is headed by Miss Baird, C. Beeson, that quaint Irish character, Eddie Dale, ve funny Dutch character, and an all-star surrounding cast which includes Al Lipman, E. Fisher, Jas. Daley, Anna Kelly and others.

Blanch Baird To Continue Her Successful Season With New Burlesque.

Miss Blanch Baird and her popular English Folly Burlesque Stock Company opens her third week of summer stock at the Star Theatre on Monday matinee, with the most pretentious stock production seen in Toronto.

The two new burlesques selected for the principals is one that will tax their comedy qualities to the utmost, which assures the patrons of plenty of bright, clean, and original comedy. ## Wonderful Acting In Fine Photo-Play

Adventures of a Man-Monkey the Feature at the Strand Theatre This Week.

Astonishing acting in the role of man-monkey makes the picture-play of "Baloo" which is the special feature at the Strand Theatre this week one of the most interesting films yet exhibited. The play is taken from the book by Gaston Leroux of the same name. The story runs as follows:—

An outrage was committed by an unknown and mysterious demon upon Gaston Lovers, a wine merchant. He was passing along a path, when suddenly he was dealt a powerful blow from behind. When he recovered, there was no trace of his assailant.

The next day, a maid was attacked as she was crossing the bridge over the brook, she was suddenly seized from behind in a vice-like grip. She managed to turn her head sufficiently to catch a glimpse of her captor. The sight of the frightful visage caused her to faint. The girl was brought out of her swoon by the chill waters of the stream into which she had been hurled by her assailant.

Some time before all these events, Dr. Coriolis, an eminent scientist had received as a present, an enormous baboon. The doctor was a strong believer in the Darwinian theory. He therefore started to experiment upon the giant ape. He taught him to wear modern clothing, to act like a human being.

However, Dr. Coriolis could not entirely curb the powerful instinct of Baloo.

One day, while Baloo was roaming the woods, he was caught in the powerful jaws of a wolf trap. He was rescued by Hubert, a poacher. The poor beast demonstrated his gratitude.

Dr. Coriolis, at last, became suspicious that Baloo was the perpetrator of the outrages, and by setting watch on his actions, his suspicions were confirmed. He so severely reprimanded him that the poor brute fled in mortal terror.

As a train passed at a high rate of speed, Baloo with perfect ease and agility swung himself aboard.

One day, he read in the paper a message from Laguna, Switzerland, of the malicious pranks of an elusive being, whose escapades had been terrifying the peasantry.

Arriving in Switzerland, he found the town in a terrible state of excitement, and held a consultation with the mayor, telling him of his wonderful experiments on a monkey and the outcome of it all. A searching party was then organized to endeavor to capture Baloo.

For days no sight of him was gained. But finally, they located him swinging from tree to tree. He began to tantalize his pursuers in different ways.

At last, he had apparently reached the end of his flight. He could not go forward; he could not go backward. But with a wild leap, he landed far out in the water of the blue lake in front of him.

The searching party, launched a boat and started after him and at last succeeded in reaching him. Strong hands seized the man-monkey, and drew him aboard. Baloo submitted to this with seeming fear. Suddenly, he arrested himself from the grip that held him, and with one sweep of his powerful arm, capsize the boat, and while his pursuers were struggling in the water, swam away and reached the shore.

Some time after this Baloo turned up in the vicinity of his old home, but on account of his fear of the scientist, did not make his presence known.

Now Hubert, the poacher, had fallen in love with Madeline, the daughter of Dr. Coriolis, but all his overtures were rejected.

One evening Hubert had an altercation with a commercial traveler and he vowed to avenge himself.

He alone was aware of Baloo's presence in the neighborhood, and instructed him to murder the traveler.

Baloo obeyed the orders. That night when all were wrapped in slumber, he softly raised the window, carefully removing his shoes, he placed his bare feet against the wall where the two-pipe ran along its smooth surface.

Baloo softly raised the window, carefully walked up the side of it. Still more wonderful was the feat he performed when he reached the ceiling. Dropping his hands free and holding to the pipe with his powerful toes, he passed along the ceiling with the same ease as if he had been on the floor. When directly over the man the long arms reached out, and grasped the throat in a grip of iron. In a few moments all was over.

The next morning the crime was discovered, but no light could be thrown upon the mystery. Hubert was arrested for the crime, but easily proved an alibi.

The poacher, now persuaded Baloo to abduct Madeline.

The next day, while the girl was strolling thru the forest, she was followed by Baloo. Swinging himself along thru the trees, he at last reached ed the point desired. As the girl passed under the tree in which Baloo was concealed, he suddenly leaped out on the end of a limb. Under his weight the slight bough creaked and groaned. By twisting and turning, he forced it to the ground. When about twenty feet from the earth he suddenly reversed his position. Hanging by one hand, he reached down and seized the terrified girl by the shoulder, at the same time working himself further along the branch to the trunk of the tree.

When Baloo brought Madeline to Hubert's cabin, the dissolute fellow began at once to force with fearful brutality, his odious attentions upon her. Suddenly, Baloo seemed to comprehend the poacher's true intentions toward Madeline. Picking up an empty cask, he hurled it at Hubert. The missile narrowly missed its mark.

The poacher, drew his revolver and fired, mortally wounding Baloo. The poor creature dragged himself away from the woods, and laid an ingenious trap for Hubert. He did not have to wait long, as Hubert soon fell into the pitfall, breaking his legs. While he was lying there helpless, Baloo forced him by threatening gestures to indicate where he had hidden Madeline.

Baloo then hurried to the scientist and by signs informed him of what had occurred. The grief-stricken parent, next, the police were summoned and Hubert was taken from the pit and placed under arrest for the abduction of Madeline. It was then that Baloo, with graphic gesture, described the murder at his own home, and Hubert as an instigator of the deed.

The poor creature, seemingly overcome with remorse at all the trouble and sorrow he had caused, fell on his knees in an apparent paroxysm of grief. Dr. Coriolis conveyed to him the fact that his misdeeds were forgiven, whereupon the strange animal seemed to be overjoyed. However, his happiness was short-lived. His blood was slowly ebbing from the wound he had received. He became weaker and weaker, and finally died.

Dr. Paechter asserted that he could bring evidence that the government telephone girls had notoriously been permitted by the inspector to utilize one big exchange for the reception of their fiancés. One amusement of the girls at this exchange was to look out all the subscribers with the same name, then connect all together, ring them all up and laugh loudly at the result.

BERLIN, May 24.—Remarkable evidence of the effect of the telephone on the minds of subscribers was given recently in the trial of Dr. Paechter, who is also a barrister, for insulting telephone girls.

The commissioner in Lunacy, Dr. Strauch, declared that even phlegmatic men may have their mental balance upset by exasperation at getting no reply from the office. He mentioned the case of one of his own mental patients, a well-known doctor, who became completely insane thru telephone exasperation.

Merry Go Rounders At Gayety Theatre

One of the Funniest and Most Musical Shows of the Season.

Surely Melpomene guided the pen that wrote that intoxicating concoction of music, "The Merry Go Rounders," which with George P. Murphy in the principal role is booked for the Gayety this week.

When three-fourths of an audience leaves the theatre after the last curtain humming the melodies of the piece, you can wager the piece is worth while in one direction at least. We might say that there is a plot if we call the base to build the fun on a plot—but if it amounts to anything more than a humorous theme the audience don't notice it.

When one succeeds in inculcating this sort of an entertainment with real interest without resorting to horse-play and the alleged humor by which the public is so often martyrs, theatregoers appreciate it.

There is a man, George P. Murphy, who must have been born thinking of something funny to say, and he's going to die with a joke on his lips—because he goes thru life making people happy. He's the head of the cast of "The Merry Go Rounders." See him, as well as paroxysm of vivacity, Edna Reming. When she sings one imagines he's listening to a nightingale. She has a voice full of refreshing tone for her hearers, a warble that is natural and free.

And there are others who know something of the art of amusing themselves, a well-known doctor, who wardrobed is not to be overlooked. And dancers! Just cast your eyes on the dancers—they're some dancers.

PAST WEEK IN TORONTO THEATRES

A Problem Play.

"Deborah," a new stage vehicle for Carlotta Nilsson, which received its first performance at the Princess Theatre Tuesday night, is a play for which it seems reasonable to predict neither riches nor long life. It certainly contains few of the recognized elements of popularity. Serious, sincere, and dealing with a worthy problem, it commands a great deal of respect; but the inferences it raises and the emotional overtones involved seem incompatible with the atmosphere of the theatre. To begin with it deals clinically with sex, always an uncomfortable subject in the theatre; and it deals with a phase of sex that is the most uncomfortable of all—the pathological. The main character is an unmarried woman of advancing years, who, for lack of an outlet for her vital functions, is facing premature old age, disease and possible insanity. Her doctor warns her that the only way to avert the impending fatality is for her to become a mother. What has long been her most ardent wish thus takes on the force of vital necessity. Illicitly, and in a peculiarly dramatic manner she obtains the chance to have a child. The fact that a detailed account of this scene would be inappropriate to anything so public as a newspaper must be too evident that the scene itself is not suitable for anything so public as the stage.

It is far from our purpose to accuse the play of immorality. The unimpeachable sincerity with which it is written and acted, and the undeniable integrity of the theme raise it above such a charge. We merely wish to intimate that the performance rouses feelings and ideas that cannot be shared with a crowd. The effect of the play is not shocking, simply uncomfortable. The same theme might be treated in a novel, but in a novel, but seems out of place in the theatre.

Dismissing moral considerations altogether, it is still possible to object to Mr. Legrand Howland's play, on logical grounds alone. He really has not dealt adequately with his theme. He has stated it forcibly enough, laid his motives and carried them up to the point of decisive action, and then he leaves the consequences, or rather emphasizes consequences that have no bearing on the original problem. In the first act he shows us a woman going to seed physically and spiritually for lack of an outlet to her instincts. He argues that a child would rejuvenate her and bring out all the suppressed beauty and capability of her nature. He goes to great lengths to bring about a situation whereby the woman might have a child in an almost guiltless manner. Then he tries to show us the promised consequences. How the problem stated in the first act might have worked out, we never know. The final act presents a new problem altogether, a problem of remorse and confession, not for her sin, but for the fact that she had destroyed the happiness of two lovers. The child and her relations with it, and its effect upon her receive only vague and passing mention. Mr. Howland has evaded his problem, or forgotten it, or lost it. He has not carried his demonstration to the point of Q. E. D. We are none the wiser for looking on. The play fails to satisfy even the thinking few for whom it was intended.

It is not believed that "Deborah" will make much of a splash in theatrical history. If remembered at all it will be for the acting of Miss Carlotta Nilsson, who was very fine and sweet, and true and capable.

sure. You may dream of your mother-in-law. The proper function of Winter Garden shows is to serve as an interlude between dinner and midnight supper. In New York, where they originate, they are mainly put on in incident in an evening of dining and dancing. In smaller cities where the facilities for dining and dancing are not so highly developed, and where the habit itself is not so firmly established, the Winter Garden shows lose half their meaning. People depending upon them solely for an evening's entertainment are likely to find them of slight sustenance. They are apt to go home flummoxed against the triviality of New Yorkers who invent and patronize such entertainments. They are pleased to assert once more the well-known virtue of the provinces and declare that such shows may be all right for New York, but not for them. They forget that a show of this character, as seen in the provinces, is not complete. To be complete it should carry along a lobster palace and a cabaret, with a full equipment of foods and wines. The show would then start at 5.30 and end anywhere between midnight and sunrise. Only after taking the whole course would it be fair to judge the show or the taste of the merry metropolitans who frequent it.

The Gertrude Hoffmann "musical causerie" entitled "Broadway to Paris," which appeared at the Royal Alexandra proved to be much like the other Winter Garden shows that have visited Toronto this season—only more so. Plot and sequence and mentality were reduced to an even greater minimum and reliance placed upon sensuous appeals to the eye and ear and it might be added, to the sense of smell as well. The development of a sixth sense in the pedal extremities is one of the notable phenomena of our time—everybody's doing it—largely fostered, it must be admitted, by Saint Gertrude. When she is finally beatified for her noble offices her emblem shall be a foot bare up to the hip. But as regards the show, it was a phantasmagoria of form, color and rhythm, all in excess. Statistically it might be described as 175 months and maidens (more or less), five spot-lights, and three bass drums. The whole thing whirled with the color and fascination of a kaleidoscope. And when the show was over, one remembered nothing about it. What is more evanescent than a kaleidoscope? —J. B. Crippen.

Paris Doctor Discovers a Remarkable Mathematician Detained As a Lunatic.

PARIS, May 24.—A doctor at an asylum at Nantes has discovered among his patients a "lightning calculator" who, although he can scarcely read and cannot write, solves mental arithmetic problems involving large numbers.

Asked "How many seconds are there in 33 years, 3 months and 12 hours?" he gave the correct answer in 32 seconds. Explaining how he calculated the number of seconds in 30 years, he said:

"I know by heart that there are 31,536,000 seconds in a year. I multiply 30,000,000 by 30. That gives me 900,000,000. Then I multiply 1,500,000 by 30 and get 45,000,000; 30,000 by 30, which gives 900,000; and 6,000 by 30, giving 180,000. I add all these products and get 945,080,000 seconds in 30 years." This answer was given in 14 seconds.

Man Files From Solicitor With Joyful News, Thinking Him a Detective.

LONDON, May 24.—An agricultural laborer living at St. Osyth, near Clacton, has been acquainted with the fact that a sum of £100,000 was left to him by an old schoolfellow who emigrated to the United States many years ago and died there recently.

The amusing scene that occurred before the news was conveyed to him would be described as highly improbable if it appeared in a novel.

A representative of a firm of solicitors made a number of inquiries before he could find any trace of the man. Eventually, he went into an inn, the landlord of which knew the lucky farm laborer.

Shortly afterwards the man passed the inn, and the solicitor's representative shouted to him. Instead of stopping he walked on more quickly.

When he was overtaken he explained that he thought the man was a detective.

Those Broadway Revues

The proper way to enjoy a Winter Garden show is to dine well first. In the glow of a full stomach the show becomes pleasantly fantastic and illusory, without making any demands upon the intellect that might interfere with the delectable process of digestion. After the show one dines again, and thus a well-filled evening is achieved. Some people go to sleep after a heavy dinner and some go to a Winter Garden show. The principal difference is that in the latter case you make certain beforehand of the character of your dreams. When you buy a ticket for a Gertrude Hoffmann revue you know pretty well what visions are going to attend you; but when you buy a ticket for dreamland via the library chair you can't be so

BALOO: The DEMON BABOON

A Photo-play Sensation in Three Parts

EXTRACT FROM "LONDON EVENING NEWS," FEBRUARY 27, 1913:
A MAN-MONKEY ACTOR.

"BALOO," from the novel of M. Gaston Leroux, is now being shown by the Eclair Company. This is the most remarkable of all films I have ever seen, especially the acting of M. Bataille as the man-monkey. It is nothing short of amazing. Feats of strength and agility succeed one another with such rapidity that one is spell-bound. "Baloo" is the name of the creature half-man, half-monkey, which a scientist named Coriolis receives as a gift for the purpose of developing its intelligence. Apart from the story, the feats of M. Bataille as the man-monkey will make the picture one never to be forgotten. The creature, dressed like a man, swings from the branches of high trees, swooping down on man and woman alike, bearing them in his arms to the highest tree-tops. He leaps great heights, jumps from one pole to another, performs such extraordinary feats of agility that one begins to wonder if the actor is not, after all, a monkey.

IT IS NOT A LOVE STORY, NOR EVEN A MELODRAMA, BUT A "GHOST" OR "WERE-WOLF" STORY, A WEIRD TALE. THE HUMAN VILLAIN OF THE STORY IS A POACHER, WHO HAS TAKEN A FANCY TO THE PRETTY GIRL HE HAS SEEN WALKING IN THE WOODS

First Lord of the Admiralty Elected an Elder Brother of Trinity House.

LONDON, May 24.—Mr. Winston Churchill, M. P., first lord of the admiralty, can now claim the title of Capt. Churchill.

He was elected an elder brother of Trinity House, at a special court of the brethren at the Trinity House, and last Christmas, by a royal order, the King conferred on the elder brethren the right to the title "captain," and to take precedence on all occasions next to that accorded to captains in the navy.

Among the elder brethren are the King, the Duke, and Prince Arthur of Connaught, Prince Louis of Battenberg (the first sea lord), Mr. Asquith, Mr. Balfour, the Earl of Rosebery, the Earl of Selborne, the Marquis of Crewe, Lord George Hamilton, and Mr. Joseph Chamberlain. Prince Louis and Mr. Asquith were present at Mr. Churchill's election. Mr. Churchill will now be able to wear an imposing uniform, which differs but little from that of an admiral.

DRUNKENNESS CAN BE CURED

Old Follay That Drunkenness Cannot Be Cured Exploded.

Many men drink who desire to stop the habit. Whiskey, however, has undetermined the constitution and created a craving that is not to be denied, and the man must have whiskey or something that will remove the craving and build up the system and restore the nerves.

Samaritan Prescription stops the craving, steadies the nerves, builds up the general health and makes drink actually distasteful and nauseous. It is tasteless, and odorless, and can be given with or without the patient's knowledge, in tea, coffee or food. It is used regularly by physicians and hospitals. It has cured thousands in Canada, and restored happiness to hundreds of homes.

Read what Mrs. G.-of Hull says of it and what it did for her:

"It is four months today since I started to use your remedy. I followed the directions and had the best of results. One week after I started using your remedy the patient stopped drinking and has not drunk a glass of liquor since. I hope you will accept my heartfelt thanks. Hoping God will bless your remedy wherever tried, I remain,

MRS. G., Hull, Que."

Mrs. Anthony Drexel As London Hostess

American Lady To Give Elaborate Musical Party, At Which Melba Will Sing.

LONDON, May 24.—One of the most active American hostesses in London this season is Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, who has planned to do more entertaining than ever before at her house on "Ford Place." She has her second son, Armstrong, with her.

Early in June she will give an elaborate musical party at which Melba will sing. Later in the month she will give a dinner party for the younger set, friends of her daughter, Viscountess Maidstone, to be followed by a dance.

The fashion this year with Anglo-American and smart English hostesses is to break up their evening's program into short entertainments. A dinner begins the evening. This is followed by a 45-minute musical entertainment including some clever humorist, after which light refreshments are served.

Then comes dancing till one or later and then a regular "sit-down" supper. The party then divides. Those wishing to leave do so, while those remaining sit down to have games which usually end in a regular romp among the young people. The entertainment closes with a breakfast of eggs and bacon, Pilsener ale, dumplings made with beer and other eatables. Then parties are made up for escorting each other home. These are called "scrap parties" and are coming more and more into vogue ever since the Duchesse of Marlboro started them last season.

SOCIETY AT THE CAPITAL

The engagement was announced last week of Miss Gwendolyn Herridge, younger daughter of Rev. Dr. Herridge, of St. Andrew's Church, and Mrs. Herridge, to Mr. Eric Harrington-McLachlan, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Claude McLachlan, of Arran and Ottawa.

Adam and Mrs. Beck of London, Ont., Capt. and Mrs. Walter Long, Mrs. Harry Cassels, Sir Edmund Osler, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Fleming, Hon. William Dennis and Mrs. F. W. Avery.

Hon. Robert and Mrs. Rogers entertained a number of their Winnipeg friends who were in the capital especially for the horse show, taking them afterwards to the theatre to witness "Macbeth" as performed by Robert Mantel and Company. Those who enjoyed this pleasant gathering were Mr. and Mrs. G. Galt and Miss Betty Galt, Lieut. and Mrs. W. D. Cameron, Lieut. A. C. Critchley of Winnipeg, Mrs. H. M. P., and Mrs. Rhodes and Mr. A. ## Start Married Life With A Piano in Your Home

You can do it just as easy as not on Long's No Interest Plan. Having a piano when you are first married is rather a difficult matter when you have to pay cash, and everyone hates to buy on time and pay a lot of money out in interest for the privilege of credit.

Long's No Interest Plan

solves the problem. It gives you the piano you want at the price you see it marked at in the store and you may have three years to pay for it on convenient and easy payments. Not one cent of interest will be charged for this privilege.

Every piano in Long's Warerooms is marked with a plain price and the only exception made to the prices is a straight discount of ten per cent. to the strictly cash buyer. We do this because we feel that the money is worth ten per cent. to us in our business. An important thing to note also is the fact that we sell better pianos for less money than one usually finds elsewhere. Our instruments are all standard Canadian makes and are known for their quality and tone. By comparison, you will find that we sell them for less than they can be bought for anywhere else in Canada.

FRESH AIR AND SANE LIVING RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS CURE

John E. Lathrop Tells How He Conquered Tuberculosis—Discusses Causes of Dread Malady and Means of Prevention.

John E. Lathrop writes in the current number of Collier's the story of his recovery from tuberculosis. "Back to Life," he calls it, and it is to help those thousands who must inevitably waste away in misery and despair that he gives his experience to the public. Six months ago, he says, he was condemned by his friends to die of tuberculosis. His first warning that something was wrong came when he was seized with a strong inclination to cough. He reasoned that he should resist. For two weeks hemorrhages were of almost daily occurrence. He went down from 170 pounds to 138.

He began life in the open air, and was removed to the Adirondack mountains where an appetite developed and he took on weight, rising to 175 pounds in ten weeks. He now claims to be cured. The conditions which brought about his illness are typical of thousands of such cases. To quote: "In my case typical of the average? So far as I can determine this probably was in better circumstances than the average person who contracts the disease. I assume that were my friends to be asked they would say that I should be possessed of more knowledge of life and the needs of life than the average. But so far as over-work is concerned, the disregarding of what should have been plain signs that I was in danger of falling a victim to tuberculosis, and the reception of bad medical advice, my experiences are typical.

Possibilities of Infection. "How did I get infected? It is impossible positively to answer that question. But so vital are these matters, and so intimately do they concern society, that it is worth while right here to set down the possible occasions of my infection. "First—Every day I was accustomed to go to a place where members of my profession assemble in the performance of their regular duties. About two hundred of us go there, not every one every day, but most of us every day. There we use appliances in common, read newspapers, that our mates have read, and mingle in close association for most of a short working day. "During the past few years several of our fellows have gone away, either to die with tuberculosis or to seek return of health in some resort from any one of those who was easily possible that some of us would get the infection. The germs might have been communicated in any one of a dozen ways—by use of towels, washbowls, pens, in telephone booths, on couches that were in the rooms, and were used by all.

"How easy a tubercular person lies on a couch; he leaves germs by coughing or sneezing. Another person lies on that couch. It would seem to be almost a certainty that the latter would get some of those germs on his clothing or flesh. If he be not vitally reduced, he will throw off these germs. If he is "run down" he is likely to be infected. "I distinctly remember that some of my fellows coughed for weeks before going away. Now anyone who stood not more than six feet from the person who coughed stood in peril of being infected by the projection thru the air of sputum from those tubercular lips. Yet for a thousand times some of us were close to such persons when they coughed, close at writing tables or in elevators or elsewhere.

Danger From Dirty Cars. "Second—These micro-organisms have no repugnance for street cars. Dust is stirred; the dust may carry germs attached to the tiny particles. You may breathe this dust into your lungs, and you would say that it is a crime against society that street cars or subway or elevated cars are not cleaned with a vacuum cleaner every day or oftener. That would minimize the danger which in these public conveyances is ever present and constantly menacing.

Third—A sleeping car is a source of danger. What can be done to minimize danger there? It is easy and simple. Let the state and federal establishments see that every sleeping car is fumigated every trip it takes. This is done to all sleeping cars leaving Saranac Lake. "In Saranac Lake, every time a room is vacated, the board of health requires that it be notified, under penalty for failure, and a man is sent to fumigate it according to the latest and most approved method. The rule is unequivocal, and it is enforced. When a house is vacated it must be fumigated as a whole.

Hotel Perils. "Fourth—Hotels should delight the heart of any tubercular bacillus; hotel days should be gala days for them. It would be hard to enforce a rule that every room vacated in a hotel should be fumigated. It would be better were that possible. But at least antiseptic measures could be resorted to—carbolic water used to wash points of contact by former occupants; the linen and bed clothing carefully changed. The linen not yet used need not be rewashed. But all linen used in a hotel could be put into a simple, inexpensive sterilizer, such as I saw in a Saranac Lake barber shop, and which insures absolute death to all germs that may have been on the towels and face cloths.

Fifth—Theaters should be treated daily with vacuum cleaners, the plush or other kinds of seats this being brought to approximate sanitation. Of course the floors should have the same attention. "Sixth—Churches. A vacuum cleaner costs about $60. Any church can afford to buy one, and should buy one, and see that it is used faithfully. It would be quite as good God service to save mankind from the misery of tuberculosis as from the one-time-believed-in blistering from brimstone.

Seventh—Public laundries. The danger of infection from goods washed in public laundries probably is popularly magnified. The truth is that good soap or washing materials, and the heat of the boiling water or steam, constitute one of the best methods of sterilization known. "But, nevertheless, there should be extreme care in all laundries to see that plenty of soap and sufficient heat are applied to assure death of the germs that may be collected on the goods sent to be washed. "Especially is this true as to handkerchiefs and linen, where there may be sputum; for let it be remembered, that it is from the sputum of persons actively tubercular that infection always comes.

Eighth—Factories. What worlds of opportunities here for either woe or weal to mankind! Because the products of these factories are to go upon the bodies of men and women, and, most important, of little children; or on their beds; or (think of it!) into their very stomachs! "Cigars, cigars, chewing tobaccos, canned fish, canned vegetables, canned fruits, and a hundred and one other things that enter into commerce today, come from factories. What need for strict care against infection here!

"BEAUTY UNADORNED IS ADORNED THE MOST" Ingenious Puzzle For Police Dogs

But, before all others as the most probable cause of my own physical downfall must be written—overwork or over-strain of nerves. "The too-tired person is susceptible to infection. He is subnormal in vitality.

"The nervous person is susceptible to infection. His deranged nerves testify to reduced vitality, failure to sustain the strain that has been placed on the system.

"Probably the Baltimore Democratic National Convention did the bad work for me. There was no ventilation, and it was in the hot summer time in Baltimore! Twenty thousand persons, with taut nerves, in an unventilated room for more than a week!

Not Alone I. "One's lungs must have been soaked with violence when those awful days and nights ended. There must have been an assortment of germs that ranged all the way thru the list of communicable diseases in every pair of lungs. And, too, the lungs must have been fearfully reduced in vitality, in resistance to the attacks of the germs. "The nerves must have been—every one of them—like tight strings, for there was enough excitement to supply a normal man for a lifetime. "And it was not alone I. The list of persons who died directly as a result of the vile conditions in that convention hall will never be known in full; but it is known that it was long and dire. "Of course every such gathering has its victims. But the conditions that obtained in that Baltimore convention, and that obtain in national conventions in other cities, are a disgrace to the nation's common sense. "Our Crude Civilization. "Underfeeding, overworking, worry, and ultraneurotic strains of all kinds conduce to tubercular infection. Indeed, the whole problem may perhaps be expressed in those few words as correctly as in any other, using the everyday language of the layman; and it is to laymen in a layman's vernacular that I write.

"The elements of the problem we see are intermixed and interwoven with the whole problem of social advancement—child labor, employment of women in factories, factory sanitation, limited hours of employment, sufficient compensation for wage earners, sanitation measures for cities, homes, and public buildings, and all the other things that go to make up the sociologist's subjects of investigation and reform.

"My infection was not solely my own fault—it was largely a fault of society! "Underfeeding, overworking, worry, and ultraneurotic strains of all kinds conduce to tubercular infection. Indeed, the whole problem may perhaps be expressed in those few words as correctly as in any other, using the everyday language of the layman; and it is to laymen in a layman's vernacular that I write.

"We are recognizing, nationally now, that that workman who falls victim to an accident in the prosecution of his trade or business, on railroad, in factory or mine, should not have to bear his own responsibility; but that society should see to it that that industry with which he has been connected in productive labors must provide for his compensation, charging the cost of the product of that industry, so that all the people may thus be made to carry the burden.

Society's Duty. "Having in principle done the accident of having tubercular infection befall one, thru no whole fault of one's own, differ from that accident to the workman? All of society is to carry that workingman's accident; and it is a glorious victory for humanity that we as a people have at last come to see the other principle, and to begin to interweave it into the warp and woof of our national industrial system.

"Yet, as to the accident of tubercular infection, society sits by, negligently ignoring its own responsibility; permitting men and women and little children to incur daily, momentary, perils, and making small provision for the care of those who fall. "Cannot this great nation at least address itself to the preventive measures that must be adopted if the scourge of the white plague ever is to be eradicated?

"What is the cardinal principle of this complex involvement? Isolation of all actively tubercular persons, so far as that may be possible. "This measure is hedged about with a multitude of difficulties. It cannot be fully achieved at once. It must be approached as a consummation devoutly to be wished and to be approximated now.

"I have not treated the financial phases of this problem. They alone would justify a separate article. The cost to this nation annually from tuberculosis, in expenses of patients and loss of productive power by sickness and death, runs into a sum that staggers one—something from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000. "But, sadder than that, more heart-rending, are the misery, the suffering, the despair, the shattered plans and blasted hopes, the weary days and nights, the lonesome hours of isolation, the feeling that, as one lies ill and helpless, the great big world is rushing onward, ignoring you, crushing still other persons by its colossal neglect, adding daily to the cruelly long list of wounded soldiers fallen prostrate along the way!

PEACE OF EUROPE IS ONLY A TRUCE

General Feeling Is That Although the Balkan Trouble Was Avoided War Has Only Been Postponed.

PARIS, May 24.—An ingenious puzzle for the "police dogs" competing recently at the international competition in the velodrome of the Parc des Princes was contrived in the shape of a "gentleman apache." First the owner had to be warned by his dog of the presence of someone following him. Then the "swell mobster" pretended to be on friendly terms with the dog's owner, shaking hands effusively and embracing him. After going away to a little distance the "gentleman apache" had to follow once more, stealthily, and attack the dog's master from behind. The dog was then required to defend his master, and cease biting the "rascal" immediately he was ordered to. The "apache" was not so heavily padded in the legs as were the actors imitating more vulgar types of murderous hooligans and the dogs in this case wore muzzles.

Thirteen privately-owned dogs competed, coming from Paris, Rouen, Brussels and other places. The majority were shaggy sheep-dogs. The competitors had to jump hedges 7 feet high, to rise on their hind legs fifty yards away at a signal from the master's hand, retrieve various articles from a distance, refuse to eat the most appetizing food left lying on the ground in case they might be poisoned, and seize with their teeth the pistol arm of an "apache" who has just fired at the dog's master, to prevent him from firing again.

Only one dog, Top de la Joliette, actually seized the arm of the "apache." Several were frightened at the shot. In another case the owner put a sack on the ground, telling the dog to guard it. An "apache," unpadding, arrived, and threatened the dog with a stick. The best trained dogs treated the stick with silent contempt. Finally, after the dog had been tempted with meat, which it snuffed, the "apache" tried to seize the sack. And then the dog, in every instance, simply flew at him.

MILITANT CORRECTS POLICE MAGISTRATE

LONDON, May 24.—Arising out of the attempt to hold a meeting at Marble Arch, Nina Boyle and Anna Munro were charged before Mr. Paul Taylor, at Marylebone police court. After police evidence had been given, the magistrate asked: "Any question, Boyle?" "Miss Boyle, please," corrected the accused. "I am not convicted yet," she said.

Mr. Paul Taylor replied that no disrespect was intended. It was not customary in a police court to call a prisoner Miss or Mrs. "We are here to improve the police court," replied Miss Boyle. "Mr. Taylor fined each of the prisoners 20s., or 14 days. The accused said they would not pay."

General Feeling Is That Although the Balkan Trouble Was Avoided War Has Only Been Postponed.

BERLIN, May 24.—Probably in no country in Europe was the change of mind of King Nicholas of Montenegro, received with such a feeling of intense relief as here in Germany. For the the government was determined to stand by Austria and Italy, no matter what might have happened, the people as a whole were bitterly opposed to the idea of Germany taking up arms to fight the battles of others, and many were those who sympathized with Montenegro, declared Austria's policy to have been disgracefully selfish and hypocritical on the part of a country which a few years ago took advantage of the European situation to seize without the shadow of right the Turkish provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina, whose inhabitants hate the Austrians far more than they ever hated the Turks.

Altho everybody is happy that a European war, which looked almost inevitable, was avoided in the eleventh hour, there is a general feeling that no matter how the great powers may arrange matters in the Balkans, the peace to which we are looking forward will be little more than a truce. In a very few years it is felt, there will be another outburst which will revolutionize present conditions and change the map of Europe beyond all recognition.

The reefs which are threatening the peace of Europe are first, the intense national feeling which the war has aroused among the Balkan people, the irrepressible growth of Pan-slavism in Russia, which appeals even to the Czar, the constant friction between the heterogeneous mixtures of races that make up the dual-monarchy of Austria, and not least, the persistent longings of the people of what once constituted the old kingdom of Poland to become once more a sovereign and independent nation.

Nothing in the world seems to be able to prevent this great agitation, which must be a forerunner to universal peace in Europe. As this last struggle will have to be fought with the sword, the various governments will probably be able to get what they demand for military armaments for some time to come.

Rattin' Wi' a Pig.

At a time when work was scarce and there was much distress in the south Lancashire coal fields, a parson met a collier who was taking his dog for a walk. "Come, come, my man!" he said. "Do you think it is right to keep that dog when your wife and children are half starving? It would be a great deal better for them and for you if you sold the dog and bought a pig." "An' a bonny foo' I should look gooin' rattin' wi' a pig," answered the indignant collier.

More Praise for Dr. Hamilton's

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodge, of Bloomshury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to a condition of semi-starvation, and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength, so that the doctors abandoned them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget that I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear, but I began to crave food, and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health.

Get this best of all medicines today, and refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butterbur, sold by all druggists and storekeepers, 25c. per box or five for $1. Sent postpaid by The Cattarrhose Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

On May 14th, when the Made-in-Canada train was formally opened at the Windsor Street Station, Montreal, by Mayor Lavallee, before starting on its transcontinental tour, Mr. David McColl, Vice-President of the C. P. R. stated in his address that there were not enough factories in Canada to supply home market demands. He gave as a case in point the fact that the C. P. R. was compelled to enter the locomotive manufacturing field on account of the Canadian factories being unable to supply the demands of the road.

Since its formation, the business of this company has grown to such proportions that they have been compelled to make a further issue of their Preferred Stock, for the purpose of erecting a much larger factory than they at present occupy."

The Drednot Motor Truck has come to stay. Merchants, manufacturers and others have found that "It Delivers the Goods." The horse cost of living is too high; and in a few years from now the horse delivery wagon will be a thing of the past.

HUNDRED YEARS OF PEACE WILL BE CELEBRATED

Centenary of Signing of Treaty of Ghent Will Be Joyously Observed Throughout the United States

AND BRITISH EMPIRE

England Was Tied In By Peninsular War When American Colonies Won Independence in 1776.

By Sidney Espey.
Washington, May 24.—If the plan for the celebration in Washington of the one hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent be carried out, all previous observance held in the national capital will be completely overshadowed.

Representatives of all the English-speaking peoples and colonies of the earth will participate in the celebration. While there will be a local celebration of some sort in every city and town throughout the dominions of the English-speaking nations, the greatest festival will, of course, be held in the capital cities of the two great nations—Great Britain and the United States.

A conference of delegates having the arrangements in charge met in Washington a few days ago, to ratify the plans made by the local committee of one hundred, and on that occasion a statement of what is intended shall be done by way of commemorating the historic event, was given out.

The Treaty of Ghent was signed December 24, 1814, and rang the knell of battle between the English-speaking peoples for a hundred years, and perhaps a thousand. Its immediate cause was to terminate the war of 1812, between Great Britain and the United States.

It will be recalled that when the war of the American revolution was fought, England was busily engaged elsewhere. The house of Hapsburg, the great Austrian dynasty, which dominated the revived Holy Roman Empire, had set a Bourbon prince upon the throne of Spain, about the time the American colonies rebelled, and France and Spain and Austria were allied against England in a struggle.

Busy in the Peninsula.
The warriors of the British Isles were kept so busy in the Spanish peninsula that they could spare but little time and effort in putting down the American rebellion, which was considered rather inconsequential at Whitehall. The English believed that, as soon as their continental troubles were at rest, they would have little difficulty in quelling the American uprising.

But the taxes imposed by Britain upon her colonies to enable her to carry on her continental warfare so incensed the Americans that they were in no mood to creep back for shelter beneath a monarchical cloak. So when the European war lulled for a season, England took up the cudgel against the colonies. She impressed seamen as a precipitating cause of war, and then went to work in sober earnest to win back her American dependencies.

Attacking by sea and by land, she carried the warfare into the heart of the new republic, but failed and was compelled, again by European disturbances, to make treaty with the United States. Had not Napoleon Bonaparte occupied the attention of England, as well as the whole of Europe at this juncture, and demanded that the English ministry and King direct the last ounce against the ravager, who was putting nation after nation into his private collection, the whole of North America might have been drinking tea at 5 o'clock today.

It is this treaty of 1814, consummated at Ghent by commissioners appointed in London and Washington, that is to be commemorated in the series of festivals which will be held here from December 24, 1914, to February 18, 1915. From the date of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent the English-speaking peoples of different nations had not been at war. The American civil war was between English-speaking peoples, but not between nations, so it is exempted from this consideration.

The committee of one hundred which is making arrangements for the Washington celebration of this event is headed by Dr. James Brown Scott, director of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, which has its headquarters at the capital. Secretary States William Jennings Bryan is the honorary chairman, and the membership of the body is made up of the leading citizens of the District of Columbia.

Historical Festivals.
On Christmas Eve, December 24, 1814, special services are to be held in all Washington churches, commemorative of the consummation of the treaty, and the following Sunday all sermons of Washington pastors are to be based upon the idea of one hundred years of peace. The local board of education will make arrangements for a series of historical festivals of an educational sort, to be presented in the public schools, and there is to be a tremendous public mass meeting, presided over by the president of the United States and addressed by the most distinguished speakers in the land. One of the most brilliant affairs of the series will be the function at which the members of the diplomatic corps resident in Washington will be hosts.

The president and the committee of one hundred will each tender a big reception to citizens and the hundreds of visitors expected to be present. There will be a mammoth exhibition of paintings and other art objects and curious articles having historic associations and significance.

The postoffice department will issue a special series of stamps commemorative of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent, and the committee of one hundred will strike and offer for sale medals commemorative of the occasion.

There also will be a great street pageant, in which military and civic organizations will participate, and the streets are to be decoratively illuminated on certain nights.

No appropriation for the holding of this celebration is to be asked of Congress, according to present plans. The money is to be raised by popular subscription.

AGRICULTURAL AND MANUFACTURING INTERESTS GO FORWARD TOGETHER.
The rapidly increasing prosperity of Canadian farmers is clearly reflected in the growth of manufacturing interests producing farm implements and equipment. One of the Canadian manufacturers who has recently found it necessary to seek more commodious quarters is Dyer, The Fence Man. Mr. Dyer has removed his offices and manufacturing equipment from 47 East Wellington Street to East King Street and Don Esplanade, just across from the C. P. R. Don Station, Toronto. The new location will provide more convenient shipping facilities, both by water and rail, as well as greater floor space to accommodate Mr. Dyer's rapidly developing wire and iron fence business. Mr. Dyer is also extending his lines to include gasoline engines, wagons and other farm machinery, roofing patent will board, etc.

FIRST SEA LORD'S GRAVE WARNING

Prince Louis of Battenberg Makes Important Statement Regarding the Army and Navy.

FLEET NOT ENOUGH

Sir John French Advises the Perfecting of Land Forces As Well as Those of the Sea.

LONDON, May 24.—That the fleet alone would be unable to prevent invasion was the important statement made by Prince Louis of Battenberg, the first sea lord, at the Union Jack Club. He said: "I trust that one great truth will always be remembered—that no one service can dispense with the other. One hears a great deal of loose talk on the matter. It sometimes takes the shape of friendly chaff, but all the same it exists. There are people who go about saying: 'If war comes, the fleet alone is quite enough to keep anybody from coming anywhere near the shores of this island kingdom.' There can be no more foolish or mischievous statement. The fleet alone could not do it, and the presence of a sufficient, trained, professional army in this island at all times is quite as necessary as the other arm of the service."

Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg is recognized as one of the leading naval strategists of the day. He was born at Graz, in Austria, 58 years ago, and is the eldest son of Prince Alexander of Hesse. He entered the navy as a cadet in 1868. He has had a distinguished record of commands, culminating with his appointment last December as first sea lord.

Sir John French, at the London Chamber of Commerce dinner, said that four or five years ago a gallant admiral, who was then first sea lord, told the city that they might sleep comfortably in their beds, because the navy could always protect them from invasion. "We have lately found it necessary to reconsider this matter; and it has now been deliberated upon by the sub-committee of imperial defence, and I suppose we must let the matter rest there, until these deliberations are finished, and until the prime minister sees fit to pronounce the result. I think it will be allowed that the condition of the British empire as it stands today has something to do with the standing army. I really do not know what is going to happen at the commencement of a war in the way of these invasions, and raids, but I do know what will happen at the end of it, if by our neglect of our responsibilities to the empire, we allow our great land frontier to be overrun by hostile armies; and if, in consequence, there is such panic in our over-sea dominions as necessarily forces our fleet to go away from their proper strategic danger post. Then I think there will be invasion to some purpose. Our thoughts ought to be turned to so perfecting our forces that we are not in any danger wherever it threatens at any point of the empire. At present the numerical strength of our regular forces and the numbers and efficiency of our territorial forces are bound by the limits of voluntary effort. We must look to the future. We must prepare for what is coming; and I think everybody will agree that in the future our responsibilities will rather increase than decrease; and that is what we have to look for and provide for. The danger point changes constantly, but it is nearly always over-sea, and it is upon the danger point we fix our earnest attention. When my fellow-countrymen try to sum up the needs and wants, I urge them to take the widest and most comprehensive view of our responsibility throughout the whole of our great empire, and not to confine themselves to only one point here and another point there."

Sir John denied the rumor that he had threatened to resign his position as chief of the staff owing to friction at the war office, and stated that he was on the friendliest terms with Col. Seely.

Lord Curzon, in the house of lords, made a suggestion for a round-table conference on national defence. "Granting the absence of the expeditionary force, and the appearance of 70,000 men on our shores, what have we to meet the invaders?" he demanded. "That is the whole case." Garrisons would have to be manned, and in the last resort the country would have to depend upon the efficient portion of the territorial army. "Could the territorialists do it in their present condition, and in their present numbers, and in their present training? The voluntary system has in the territorial army shown its last bolt. The system is collapsing because it cannot give us the men, and it cannot give us the training. I should like to see a conference on this matter to which the findings of the committee of imperial defence would be referred, and in which the responsible leaders of both political parties would be present. Nobody wants to disturb the framework of the organization which has been set up by Lord Haldane, but there is no doubt that we shall have to resort in the long run to some form of compulsory National Service."

A new development of the national service campaign was begun at Hastings, where Mr. Coulson Kernahan, the novelist and a territorial officer, expounded the proposals of Lord Roberts and the national service league to a brotherhood pleasant Sunday afternoon, this being the first such meeting at which the question has been discussed. Lord Roberts sent a special message, in which he said: "I am pained as well as surprised when I find that those who profess, and profess very loudly, that they are faithful defenders of our country with such un-Christian suspicion and dislike."

Resolutions have been passed by the City of London territorial association urging the payment of out-of-pocket expenses of men attending drills, and a deputation including the Lord Mayor and Field-marshal Sir Evelyn Wood has been appointed to bring the matter before the war office.

"We have much to gain by compulsory military service; it is as much in the interest of peace as in the interest of war," said Archdeacon Donnan in a debate on armaments in the lower house of York convocation. The discussion was initiated by Canon Lambert in a resolution declaring that—

While recognizing it to be the duty of every citizen to be prepared to take his proper part in the defence of his country, the church should at the same time proclaim that warfare with mankind is not, under any true conception of the laws of nature, either necessary or the most efficient means for the preservation of virtue or manliness of the race for the selection of those nations most fit to survive.

KAISER MAY PROBE KRUPP SCANDALS

As a Large Shareholder the German Emperor May Order a Stockholders' Meeting.

BERLIN, May 24.—The shadow of the Krupp scandal is still resting over the empire but nothing definite will be known until the commission, consisting of government experts and representatives of the various parties in the Reichstag sends in its report and this will necessarily take some time. There is reason to suppose that the allegations made by Dr. Liebknecht are well founded, if for no other reason than because a good many Socialists are good German patriots and should the accusations prove untrue, the accused would have done immense harm to his own party.

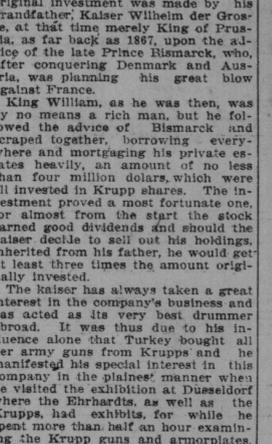

It must be conceded that the proofs which have so far been published in the Vorwärts and other Socialist papers seem pretty reliable and conclusive, and the government's first attempt to have an investigating committee appointed consisting solely of government experts, who would naturally be anxious to apply as heavy a coat of whitewash as possible, a scheme which was frustrated by the Reichstag, did not deserve to place the government in any good favorable light.

No one doubts that the Kaiser is anxious to have the matter probed to the bottom and the full truth revealed, for Germany's safety rests on the reliability of the firms which supply the guns for its army and guns and armor for its navy.

Another way of probing this affair of the Krupp firm privately is open to the Kaiser, and he is said to be considering the advisability of making use of it.

As one of the principal shareholders in Krupp's, the largest, in fact, outside the Krupp family, the Kaiser may order a shareholders' meeting and request a thorough investigation of the company's business methods. Should Bad Luck.

A crash, followed by a scream of dismay. The faithful maid-of-all-work rushes terrified into my lady's boudoir. My lady is staring at the carpet. On it lie the shattered fragments of a hand mirror. Tears stream from her eyes.
"Oh, Mary Ann!" she cries, "what-ever shall I do? They say it means seven years of misery if you break a looking-glass!"
"Never you fret, mum!" comforts Mary Ann. "If you've got cause for misery, what about me? I've just gone and smashed the pier-glass in the drooin'-room!"

One Sure Place.
"Never mind," said the cheerful idiot to a friend who was down on his luck, "remember there's always one place where you can find money and sympathy."
"Where?" said the friend, brightening up.
"In the dictionary," replied the C. I. as he moved off.

The elder woman's gown is made in the tunic effect, although the skirt is really only one piece, having the lower portion cut separately from the pieces over the hips, thus giving it the overskirt appearance. It is very effectively trimmed with black ratine and green buttons.

The girl's frock is made with a kimona style waist, fastened down in front, with the skirt slightly gathered below the knee into the band which extends from the neck to the bottom of the skirt, and on which three groups of braid designs are sewn. The collar and cuffs are of rose embroidered crepe.

Kit's Column

A Weekly Letter of Comment and Opinion.

(Copyrighted.)

I think our veneration for Queen Victoria will last forever, especially in Canada. While the present Queen Mother has been one of the most admired, and beloved of great court ladies, I do not think she ever came as close to the hearts of the people as did Victoria, the Good. She was the type of woman mentioned in the scriptures, the valiant woman whose children arose and called her blessed. The relations of Queen Victoria and her people had been consistently of such a beautiful nature that when death touched her, the empire mourned, there was not the pang of the separation which left the air well with the Queen's part, the Queen's habitual forethought that a bodily decay which must have given its premonition, was not made public. There was little said of her illness which carried her away. She was always patient of her own griefs, and sympathetic in regard to the troubles of others. The Queen was proud of health, and her strenuous industry; she was the last to wish for pity when these powers left her. She died in the harness of a great monarch, always fulfilling her many duties, and leaving the supreme example of fidelity. She was to my mind, England's greatest queen, not excepting Elizabeth, who had many faults of character. She was the most beloved monarch, the most just, the most admired. Today we honor her memory and remember her fine qualities, her ardent faith, her clear common sense, her splendid motherhood. In these days when women seem to be forgetting they are women, when chivalry is all but dead, when in the Queen's great London women are burning and destroying, and shouting, it is pleasant, on the 24th of May, to think of the great, the modest, the womanly little woman who from 1837 to 1901 sat on the throne of Britain.

There were all joys and sorrows that can be. Thou wast our guide in ways most rough and strange; The Britain's isles were whelmed beneath the sea. By cataclysm of wondrous terrene change. Yet should our deathless love and loyalty Remember thee, Victoria!

Was Darwin Right?

The birth was recorded by Dr. Descours of Paris the other day of a female child with a tail. The appendage was five centimetres long and was, at the request of the parents, amputated, as they regarded its presence with chagrin. Is this a reversion to type? But Dr. Descours further states that within the past few years medical authorities have recorded in Europe 116 observations of children born with monkey tails. And of these, 74—or nearly two-thirds—were of the gentle (or deadly) sex. It has been always my opinion that the vermiform appendix is the original tail gone inside, and that since the surgeons have taken to removing it, coming generations will wear it outside for the future. But the horrible thought assails one. Will the "emanicipation" of woman in any way affect this appendage. We may have to climb up a tree, you know, and swing there by our tails to avoid lightning-bow among the militants. In such a case the monkey's "appendix" might prove useful.

Poor Pussy

A great plea is being made by humane organizations and societies for the cats which people leave behind them in city houses when they go on their summer holidays. It is a most cruel practice. First of all we have no right to domesticate and pet these animals thru the winter, making them dependent on us for food and shelter, and we are going to let them starve out of doors all thru summer. Most distressing cases are constantly coming to light of skeleton animals haunting the old home and dying of starvation in some garden or outhouse. We should assuredly have some duties to perform in regard to the domesticated animals. Place your cat in some home or shelter—there are such places—or ask a kindly neighbor to care for it while you are away, or have it mercifully destroyed. Death, quick and painless, is made in these cases, is infinitely kinder than death by slow starvation.

The Amenities of Insect Society

I have been reading in small mouthfuls—a book by Fabre, the celebrated "old man of science, who appears to know everything that occurs in Nature—more especially insect nature. Why small mouthfuls? Because, my friend, no one could take large ones. The book is called Social Life in the Insect World, and when one maintains that Mrs. Grundy is a dear old lady and that the uttermost scandal is a delightful and pleasant thing in comparison with the shocking cruelty in insect social life, one is well within the bounds of truth. Of course, Mrs. Grundy and her companions may ruin a character, destroy a reputation, kill a soul, but the beetles and crickets eat you up altogether, leaving nothing but a shell. And the murderous sinners, as the females—"healer than the male" most assuredly in this nature world. You read of the Praying Mantis which devours her mate immediately after the nuptial embrace; that ventriloquist, the Cicada, who turns is leaped upon by the green grasshopper, seized by the flank, torn open, and the contents of the stomach devoured; of the beautiful golden Scarabeus, whose mate, immediately after courtship, calmly tears him apart; and "rummages in his stomach." Nice ladies! Do you wonder that one has to take these recitals in little mouthfuls? Yet the style of Fabre is so graceful, so delightful, so rich in gentle humor, that you take up the book very often for another small morsel. For is it all blood and thunder. It is a revelation.

ging feet, her face a mixture of half-delight, half-aversion—and all sadness. I imagined I caught the glimmer of tears in her fine eyes—but then I have a lively imagination—maybe it was the sun—or I WANTED to see them there. And up at the top of the curving park walk—the big blue "cop" beams down at the little mother and the slow-moving white baby carriage.

He cannot see that far what's in it, but he knows it's the keenest thing ever and his heart pulls that way all by itself! Just a beloved weakness of ours—to show our naked souls in our eyes— to slow our busy feet—to smile—when we see a baby's face.

May Marriages

There have been quite a few May brides, who have dared the legend of ill luck. "To marry in May is to rue the day," runs the old rhyme, and it is clear, therefore, despite the darling ones, that many are still sentimental enough to wish to avoid running any such matrimonial risk. There may be something in this superstition about May marriages, for it is a belief, apparently, that age cannot die; it is difficult to trace it to its source, which is not Marie Stuart's marriage with Darnley, for Ovid alludes to it, and it was evidently no new idea in his day.

Niagara Falls

Of late the Falls at Niagara have been taking their toll of human life. That there is something soothingly seductive in the big, green, frothing masses that tumble so smoothly over the high cliffs is undoubtedly true. There are people who, when upon great heights, have a desire, terrible and insistent for the moment, to soar down. There are others who cannot pass wide spaces; others again who in nights at sea find the heaving waves alluring to the point of distraction. Medical science, no doubt, has a name for all these, or are they bracketed under the title of that modern trouble which is the despair of the doctor—neurasthenia?

Sleep in the Open

More people than ever are sleeping out on verandah or balcony. Even in New York outdoor bedrooms are becoming common. It is not the poor tubercular who alone does it. There is no better room for nervousness, insomnia, delicate throat, and the tendency to catch cold than this admirable habit. And a woman not only gains in strength, but in good looks. Just now it is well-to-do classes in the city that are giving most attention to the matter of sleeping abroad. Country people, no doubt, because they enjoy fresher and purer air, show less enthusiasm in this matter. "Said a motherly old lady, hale and hearty in appearance, to her very civilized granddaughter who was sitting in the car beside her: "Look at that medical health man's placard: "Sleep with your window open." "Don't be afraid of night air." "Don't be afraid of cold air." The old lady took off her glasses, polished them, put them on again, and carefully read the placard a second Whatever or however, Niagara takes We fell to gossiping with an old Yorkshire man of suicides.

There had been many, the old man said, and he had "most alius had a hand in 'em." "Bless your life, sor!" came the quick reply. "I wouldn't mind a bit! I can take a joke, same as most people!"

AMERICAN PEERESS AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE

LONDON, May 24.—Perhaps the closest friend Queen Alexander has among the outsiders is Cora, Countess of Stratford, who was a New York Colgate.

The Queen Mother has visited the countess twice recently and has had the American Peeress at Marlborough House on several occasions. The Queen took the countess all over Marlborough House and showed her the King's old study, restored just as it was when he was Prince of Wales. The Queen gave her guest as a memento a paperweight mounted in silver, of well marked pebbles which the late King's dog, Jack, dug up one day in the gravel walk near the summer house. The King took a fancy to the pebbles and had them mounted. Alexandra also gave to the countess a water color sketch of a corner of Houghton she herself painted some fifteen years ago. The countess now lives at Noughton.

Woman's Work

"Here," began a woman known to a writer, "here's an article in the evening paper on 'Women's Work for the Feeble-minded.'"

Her husband grunted—being in a reactionary mood. "I'd like to know," he said, "what women have ever done for the feeble-minded?"

"They usually marry them, dear," replied his wife, sweetly.

The Oxypathor :: CURES :: Infantile Paralysis

Such testimonies as the following cannot help but inspire strong confidence in the powerful curative properties of the Oxypathor. It is a common-sense treatment of disease without drugs, causing the body to absorb oxygen in large quantities results in purifying the blood and purifying the system, causing practically every disease. Read of this remarkable cure: INFANTILE PARALYSIS. Niagara Falls, S. Ont. May 5, 1913. The Ontario Oxypathor Co. Gentlemen—This is to certify that I have used an Oxypathor on my little four-year-old Norah for the past seven weeks with splendid results. Last August she was stricken with Infantile Paralysis which left one arm and one leg partially paralyzed, which medical treatment failed to cure, but which Oxypathor has helped greatly. She now plays outdoors with the other children, and we believe will soon be entirely well. Since I began treating her with Oxypathor she hasn't required any medicine whatever whereas previously she required medicine for constipation frequently, and all ways had to be assisted to rise when she fell, whereas now she can get up herself. I would advise any sufferer from Infantile Paralysis to obtain an Oxypathor as soon as possible. Yours truly, MRS. C. T. RAHAM, Leonard street.

At our office we can show you scores of similar testimonies. It will pay any chronic sufferer to investigate. Write for our Free Health Booklet, sent anywhere on request.

THE BOOK OF THE WEEK

"Bobbie, General Manager"

By Olive Higgins Prouty

"Who is Olive Higgins Prouty? And has she written any other books?" I asked after reading the name on a volume of new fiction. The question is still unanswered, but this, at least I know, that if by and by the author of "Bobbie, General Manager," chooses to write another novel it will be eagerly welcomed by a host of "Bobbie's" admirers. Among the multitude of books that are being published it is not every day one can pick up a story whose characters are so real and likeable, and whose record of adventures is so entertaining. It seems as if the story might be the real record of a real girl—for you see Bobbie isn't a boy after all. Although she says of herself that she isn't a bit pretty, wears clothes as ugly as mud, and is not popular with the boys, you and I, the more perspicacious readers, know the real thing when we see it and Bobbie takes our fancy from the start.

Bobbie's family burden. Inspired by the conviction that she is a genius in the bud, Bobbie at 16 years of age, sets out to write her life story. She calls it "Bobbie's Story." "My life has not been an easy one. Ever since I can remember, I have been the mother of five children—two of them older and three younger than myself. They all call me Bobbie, for short, but my real name is Lucy Chenery Vars."

Bobbie's mother died when she was quite little. Her father, "a big, quiet, solemn man, 68 years old," is president of the Vars and Company woolen mills. Tom, the eldest son, is married and away from home. There is Nellie, an old servant of the family, and Della, the cook.

I wish I could insert right here the whole chapter on the home coming of Elise, Tom's fashionable wife, whom he had married abroad. Bobbie, failing to secure her father's consent to have the chronically out-of-repair house done over, worked frantically to have everything in style and the family on their best behavior. The result was most laughable, but is too long to quote.

Boarding School Days. About a year later Bobbie's real troubles began. The first was a unanimous family verdict that she must be sent away to a boarding school for finish and polish. The "wildcat" was not lady-like enough to suit her father and brothers—at least, that was the bitter conclusion she arrived at. Aunt Sarah was to take her place as manager. It was a hard bit for Bobbie, for she didn't want to go, and after vowing to find that Dr. Maynard, a college chum of Alec's, had made the original suggestion. Bobbie resented Dr. Maynard's "butting into her affairs."

Bobbie went to Miss Brown's on the Hudson, buoyed up at the last by visions of shining records and midnight spreads. She carried with her three sage bits of advice: "Go slowly, Bobbie, and know only the best girls." "Don't you dare to get a swell head, Lucy Vars," and "Dear child, discover someone less fortunate than yourself, and be kind to her"—this last from Father. Alas! she herself was the only unfortunate in the statement at her father's head. When the few dark days were over Bobbie was made almost ecstatically happy by the discovery that she was really indispensable at home. Aunt Sarah had proved to be about as soul-satisfying as Miss Brown on the Hudson.

The Old Order Changes. One day Alec, after a prolonged absence from Hilton, brought home the astounding news that Edith Campbell, delicately veiled and delicately named, had been detected, had promised to marry him. This was a hard blow for Bobbie, for it meant her own deposition from the office of general manager. In spite of her preference at gladness for Alec's sake, she was hopelessly miserable. Then Dr. Maynard invited her to live with him. For one day Bobbie says, "I was a girl, but soon after, the doctor said, and away to Germany alone, while the girl dreamed over a photo of Robert Dwinell, whom she had once seen on the stage."

WHERE WATER IS PROPERTY

How the Ranchers of the Western Dry Belt Kept Their Rights.

In A. M. Chisholm's latest book, "Precious Waters," he gives us a remarkably graphic picture of that part of the western foot-hill country called the "dry belt." The fact that the author has spent a good part of his life at Windermere, British Columbia, taking a lively interest in the general growth and development of the west, accounts for the breezy atmosphere of the book.

The plot of "Precious Waters" deals with the struggles of the ranchers to keep water in their irrigation ditches against the encroachments of a large railway concern. Mr. Chisholm cannot be classed with the superficial enthusiasts who study the country only from car windows. It is because of his life in the dense forests that he is able to give this vivid picture of the ranchers.

Water as Property. The irrigation of the west involves large areas, and makes it possible for populous communities to arise. Every acre of land irrigated has some right to the water used. It does not matter whether the water is taken directly from streams from storage works or pumped from underground supplies. The need for adequate governmental protection has increased enormously in recent years. Legislation regarding rights to water is receiving more attention. Water is becoming a form of property which is growing more valuable every day.

Danger to the Ranches. Talapus Ranch, the home of Donald McCrae, which lay by the banks of the "Coldstream," scarcely more than a large creek, was doomed as well as others "to dry up" and become useless, unless some unforeseen intervention could take place.

Many Fierce Encounters. The man, Richard K. Farwell, stands out prominently in the story, a being of iron will and brutal force, at first glance, repulsive and rough. He is sent as an expert to inquire into the rights of the ranchers to the water. He comes determined not to spare anyone in his line of destruction. The "fates" are against him, for he actually falls in love with Sheila McCrae.

There, it's about time I quit this, tho' there's about a hundred and twenty pages more. I'd like to tell you about the transformation of Madge (unlucky Oliver's wife), and the baby contest, and the building of the new home, and the general management of Ruth's love affair. But time's up, so adieu. (Henry Froude, publisher.)

Once in the course of a conversation I had with him in Bermuda, says Mr. Paine, Mark Twain's biographer, not long before the end, Mark forgot a thing and denounced his poor memory. "I'll forget the end of the name some time," he droily declared, "right in the midst of a storm, when I need all the help I can get."

NATURE'S GARDEN

6—FAMILY RESEMBLANCE IN PLANTS.

To the casual observer all plants and flowers look pretty much alike. The difference in the color of the bloom is what he will most likely notice. Plants, nevertheless, may be grouped into families having striking resemblances, and yet the individuals are likely to differ so that no two plants will be found exactly alike.

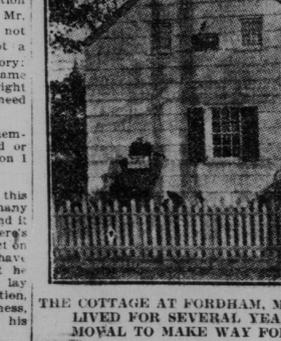

Jack-in-the-pulpit is familiar to almost every one who knows any wild flowers. It belongs to the arum family which is distinguished chiefly by the peculiar formation of the flowers. The callus of the greenhouse, the white arum of the pond, and the skunk cabbage, all belong to this family. The plants contain an acrid, pungent water.

When we begin classifying plants into families we must analyze their various parts. The flower is usually the essential part in making a definite identification of the family of the flower, just as the face is generally the chief feature considered in endeavoring to place the human specimen in its correct national division.

Being Prepared. Has a land of many opportunities its disadvantages? It would seem so, judging by the attitude of many young persons with whom I have occasion to deal. There are many who would like to take a few weeks' training at something not too difficult and thus make certain of an easy, well-paid position for life.

Literary Fame That Hurts. Writers of short stories, novels, plays, and scenarios for motion pictures often misrepresent, innocently, but none the less harmfully, parts of the country varying in size from hamlets to whole states or territories. By unwittingly exaggerating unpopulated types they give millions of people false impressions which it requires decades to correct.

Your Experience. Haven't you sometimes to tell about your experience in "the day's work?"

Choirs and Quavers

A WEEKLY COLUMN OF MUSIC GOSSIP

The choir of Parkdale Baptist Church gave a very interesting and most successful concert on Tuesday evening before a large and appreciative audience. The singing of this choir has reached a very high standard as shown especially in the two principal numbers, Gounod's "Gallia" and "By Babylonia Wave." The soloists were Mrs. Ida McLean Dilworth, Miss Mary Manser and Mr. Julian Holroyd. Miss Irene Weaver made an excellent accompanist in the choral numbers and also gave a fine performance of Moszkowski's Scherzo Valse. The whole concert reflected great credit upon Mr. David Dick Slater, A. R. C. M., London, the recently appointed organist. Mr. Slater's arrangement of Grieg's "Wedding Day" as a duet for piano and organ was one of the most enjoyable numbers on the program.

The result of Miss Hope Morgan's season's work as demonstrated by her pupils last Saturday evening in Foresters' Hall, afforded a most pleasant evening to the large audience present and must have been extremely gratifying to Miss Morgan and to the pupils themselves. There were, in all, thirteen young ladies, all of whom had reached an advanced stage of vocal art solely under Miss Morgan's training, several being already well-known as public singers. The voices were all quite beyond the ordinary and one in particular, that of Miss Marguerite Murch, will surely develop into a remarkable contralto. A few of the numbers will serve to show the kind of work Miss Morgan is doing at her studio. Among them were: "Vissi d'arte, vissi d'amore" from "Tosca," Puccini; "Contra-tu te Pays" from "Mignon"; "Ave Maria" from "Traviata," Verdi; "Air from 'Sanson and Dalia,' Saint-Saens; 'Air from 'La Perle de Bresil,' air from the sacred drama, 'Marie Magdalene,' duet from 'Madame Butterfly,' and songs by Strauss, Arensky, Cornelius, Debussy, Brahms. The pupils were the Misses Nora Moore, Irene Brown, Winifred Cross, Helen Warren, Beatrice Delamere, Elsie Keefe, Ella Harcourt, Marguerite Murch and Marjorie Rogers, and Miss Proctor, Freyseng, Raymond and Miss Lisa Garden at the piano.

Perhaps the most important appointment made for many years in connection with Toronto's church choir soloists, is that of Mr. James Cuyler Black, tenor, who came direct from Europe with the best vocal training and a most successful vocalization. Mr. Black was born in Franklin, Pa., in 1878, and at the age of eight began singing in church choirs of his native city and in the churches of Milwaukee and Pittsburgh. Mr. Black has studied with Antonio Cotozani, Rome, who was at that time undoubtedly the greatest baritone of the world and famous as a master of bel canto, and who was the teacher of Jean and Edouard De Reszke, and the Italian Battistini. He also studied in Germany with the famous Kurt Stoen Opera was opened in Berlin, he was engaged as leading tenor. Mr. Black's repertoire is extensive, comprising all the Italian operas as well as in German. He is also prepared to perform all standard oratorios and his ballad and concert songs cover the principal works of the great and new composers. The Metropolitan Church is to be congratulated upon securing Mr. Black's services as soloist.

The recital given in Foresters' Hall last Monday evening by three advanced pupils of Miss Marie C. Strong was one of the most charming affairs of the season and typical in every way of the highest standard of vocal art. Miss Strong has for years been recognized as one of the leading teachers occupying prominent positions as church and concert soloists or teachers received their entire training at her studio. Miss Rietta Morine Brodie has beautiful lyric soprano voice; Miss Margaret Beattie, a mezzo of lovely appealing quality, and Mr. J. Dennis Hayes, a rich, full baritone and an abundance of temperament that make his singing equally effective in concert or opera. Miss Brodie sang "Don Giovanni," "Joy of the Marriage," "The Huguenots," "The Huguenots," Taylor; "Soft-Footed Snow," Lie; and "The Blackbird Song," Scott. Mr. Hayes sang the splendid recital and audience never tired of his songs, recitations and musical monologues. Miss Lella Auger, soprano, pupil of Mr. Adams, was also warmly received.

Miss Edythe Law, soprano, sang at King Street Methodist Church last Monday evening. Her singing of "The Huguenots" by Anderson Ronald, was beautiful and expressive. Miss Law received her training from Mr. Barbary Nelson, the concert tenor.

Mrs. Mabel Manley Pickard, soprano; and Mr. Zuzman Caplan, violinist, were soloists at a concert in Owen Sound last week. Mrs. Pickard is an old friend of the Toronto audience and she was given a most enthusiastic reception. It was Mr. Caplan's first appearance, and the Times says he is quite the superior of any artist who has visited that city in recent years; his absolute accuracy, eminently sane interpretation and avoidance of the spectacular being highly commendable features of his playing. Mr. Caplan played the adagio from Bruck's minor concerto; "Legende," Wieniawski; humorous, "Zgnerer"; Beethoven's minuet; and "Zigenerweisen," Sarasate.

A very important addition has just been made to the staff of the Canadian Academy of Music, Mr. Fowlston, baritone, English, having associated himself with that excellent institution.

Mrs. H. T. J. Coleman, whose beautiful voice is well known and much admired, has resigned from the position of contralto soloist in Deer Park Presbyterian Church, owing to the removal of her family to Kingston. Mrs. Coleman has studied with Mr. David Dick Slater, the popular composer and teacher of singing, since she came to Toronto, two years ago.

The two appropriate solos given by Miss Gertrude Traynor, in Cooke's Church last Sunday afternoon, gave the young soprano an opportunity to display a voice of lovely quality and extensive range.

Pupils of Mr. Frank Converse Smith are giving a recital at the Canadian Academy of Music on June 3. Miss Nora Francis, soprano, pupil of Mr. Francis Fischer Powers, will sing. The program will include the following numbers: Concerto No. 7, De Beriot; serenade, Schubert-Elman; two quartets, by Tschakowsky and Mozart; "Caprice Viennois," Kreisler; "Fauts Fantaisie," Allard; "Marche Militaire," Schubert, for 14 violins and piano. Miss Francis will sing the Bird Song from "Pearl of Brasil."

It is announced that Milton and Sargent Aborn have been appointed managing directors of the New Century Opera Company, New York, which will give 25 weeks of grand opera under the auspices of the City Club. Half of the performances are to be in English and the remainder in French. German and Italian. There will also be a supplementary season of ten weeks of opera comique.

Mr. Francis Fischer Powers' second May musicale took place at the residence of Mrs. Fudger, last Friday, at 11 o'clock. The spacious music room was crowded with fashionable and musical people, who listened attentively to the very attractive program. Those assisting were: Miss Nora Francis, soprano; Miss Emily Taylor, contralto; Miss Ruth Newton, Mr. Earl Newton, pianist; Mrs. Mills and Miss Barnett, accompanists, and Mr. Harris, Baustit. The voices were all of excellent quality, being free from any appearance of hardness or forcing, the vocal work on the whole demonstrating Mr. Powers' method of teaching to be the very best. The recital, pupil of William Sherwood, played exquisitely, and the accompanists were most efficient and sympathetic.

Very admirable qualities were revealed in the piano playing of Miss Kathleen O'Connor from Thorold, in St. Joseph's College auditorium, on Thursday evening last, when she gave a recital, including compositions by Bach, Liszt, Chopin, Beethoven, Moszkowski and Grieg. A technique of immense proportions, enables her to overcome the greatest difficulties with absolute indifference as to their complexity. They disappear so easily, and the notes dance out with coherent brilliancy, or sing with persuasive eloquence as the music demands. Miss O'Connor should make a name for herself and the good Sisters by whom she has been trained. She is young, and her development has far to go. Needless to say, her playing called forth great applause from the large audience, among whom were noticed some of Toronto's greatest musical critics. Her school companions—who graciously award her the palm for amiability—were most generous with floral offerings. In that difficult "The Huguenots," she was ably assisted by Miss Viola McNulty of St. Catharines, another promising young pupil in attendance at St. Joseph's.

Mr. Clerk-Jeanotte, director and manager of the Canadian Opera Company, has leased His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal, for an eight-weeks' season, beginning November 17 and ending January 10. George Boyce, Arthur Wind-sor, Goldwin Stewart, Kenneth Angus, Douglas Crowe, Jack Stern and Emanuel Prochereau de la Sabliere. Little Lella Preston, who thoroely demonstrates Professor Hamburg's method for children, will play the first concerto of Beethoven with accompaniment of String Octet, with Professor Hamburg at the second piano.

Ibsen and Grieg With "Peer Gynt"

How the Lovely Norwegian Suite Came To Be Written.

In the Copenhagen theatrical newspaper Teatret, according to the Copenhagen correspondent of The New York Sun, Mrs. Nina Grieg, the widow of the composer, describes how he wrote the music to "Peer Gynt": "One lovely day came a letter from Ibsen asking whether Grieg would cooperate in putting 'Peer Gynt' on the stage. Grieg was taken aback, for he could not imagine a performance of a work so philosophical and so strongly imbued with Ibsen's scepticism. For several days he went about in a nervous, restless state, in great doubt and anxiety as to the heavy task, but the more he saturated his mind with the powerful poem the more clearly he saw that he was the right man for a work of such wild witchery and so permeated with the Norwegian spirit. "And so at last he girded himself up for the task, and longed to have a go at it. But where could he find a work-room to suit him? Finally, in the same suburbs of Sandviken, outside Bergen, he found a pavilion, with windows on every side, high up on a hill, and with a magnificent view of the sea on one side and the mountains on the other. "Solveig's first song" was the first thing to see the light, and then "Aase's Death." I shall never forget the bright, clear summer evening up there on the mountain as we sang and played together for the first time. Solveig's song Grieg himself smiled, well pleased at the song, and called it a 'pubic lamp,' and there he was right, for wherever Grieg's name is known it was this song and, of course, 'Ich liebe dich' as well—that first made it known. "We had a clear proof of this when staying one spring in a hotel on the Sommering Pass in Lower Austria. We were sitting one evening in the coffee room when it came a number of peasants with their sithers, and before we had time to turn around they were singing and playing Solveig's song. "Grieg himself considered 'Aase's Death,' the mourning music and Solveig's last song to be his best work. Autumn came and Grieg much wanted to show some sign of gratitude to the old man who had so hospitably lent him his house, and asked him if he might dedicate the music to him, but he never did so. You may be very glad, my little friend, you have got a husband like that, who sits from morning to night over his work instead of going to the club and playing cards."

The vocal method of Mr. Atherton Furlong, the teacher of singing, seems to be creating a great deal of interest among the students of the conservatory. The large and cultured audience that packed Foresters' Hall on May 15, to hear a program of operatic arias and songs sung by a number of his young pupils, ranging from 8 to 17 years of age. Mr. Furlong has been in Toronto nearly a year, and in that time he has built up a class of such proportions as to necessitate his keeping several accompanists and assistants. The phenomenal work of these young students convinced the audience that he possesses the secret of voice development, and is able within a few months to make his pupils sing the famous arias and songs with fluency and fine musical taste. Those taking part were the Misses Ruth Robertson, contralto; Edith Walsh, Alice Rowe, Eva Smith, Edith Stenson, Phyllis Clark, Jane Rowe, Dorothy Milward, sopranos; and Masters George Branton and Milton Morrison, organists. Master Tristram Clarke, violinist, pupil of Mr. F. Converse Smith; and Miss Lella Preston, pupil of Professor Hamburg, also revealed remarkable gifts.

The presentation of a moving picture without the accompaniment of appropriate music is like the presentation of Grand Opera without the accompaniment of an orchestra. That is why the Garden Theatre maintains an orchestra of soloists who, with constant practice and rehearsal, are able to interpret and convey to the spectators, the various moods and emotions of the actors in the picture or enliven those scenes of nature or current events where men or women do not actively participate in the sensitive film.

We have and are making this artistic presentation a constant study to the delight of the thousands of our regular patrons. Are you one of them? During the summer months the Garden Theatre will be found delightfully cool, the ventilating arrangements being such that a plentiful supply of fresh air is assured. Open evenings 7.15 to 10.40. "That's life. The unexpected. Go on."

"I can't reason, I have so little proof. Reason says I'm a fool, that I ought to put the whole affair into the hands of the Monte Carlo police and then go home and take up the threads of my life again. But I can't do that, and I won't. I have only my instincts to help me; they tell me to stop and fight for this girl I love, to save her from the man in whose power she is. She may belong to him by law, but not by nature. She's a prisoner; he's got her in his body, but her soul, in prison. I must set her free, or at least give her a chance of freedom. I've made up my mind. He held out his hand to Smith. "And, strangely enough, you've helped me. I know, only a week ago, I was just an ordinary, conventional man, more or less satisfied with an ordinary, conventional existence. But she came and changed the face of the whole world for me. I can't go back to conventions and shams and hypocrisy until I've seen her again, set her free. Why, she's as free as the wind. I know. You ask me how I know, I who have only seen her twice. We've only seen each other once, but you spoke the truth when you said we were not strangers. There are more things in Heaven and earth than are dreamed of in our philosophy."

CHAPTER XIII.

Stoford left Captain Smith to wander about the gardens of the Casino while he went to the Metropole to see if he could find Varles there. He had formed no plan of action, nor had he any definite idea what he was going to do. He wanted to test his way step by step, to make sure of his ground.

"Time had flown quickly on board the yacht, and he was surprised to see that the hour was nearly over. He searched the lounge. It was more than half empty, and neither Varles nor Mimosa were there. He inquired at the bureau, and was told Mr. Varles had gone out some time ago.

"To the Casino, I think, sir," the clerk said with a smile.

In an unsteady voice he inquired for Mrs. Varles, scarcely daring to hope he might find her alone. With Varles at the Casino, they might have an uninterrupted tete-a-tete until dinner time, or perhaps later.

On How to Live Forever

By DR. GORDON BATES

Bizarre as such a statement may seem, however, some scientists say that, in the absence of germ disease or accident, such an end is not necessary.

A man is as old as his Arteries

It is a statement so often quoted as to be a truism that a man is as old as his arteries. This simply means that with old age there develops in him a condition called arterio-sclerosis or hardening of the arteries. It is a condition which affects the arteries of the body, even the most delicate parts. It is associated with a rise in blood-pressure and a degeneration of organs which generally tends to shorten life. Indeed, it is so closely connected with the change which the cells of the body undergo in old age that, could it be prevented, old age itself, aside from the mere years, might perhaps be postponed indefinitely.

Age and Intestinal Bacteria

Most of the ills that flesh is heir to are caused by germs and in the normal body multitudes of these are found in the intestinal tract. It has been found that some of the intestinal germs are responsible for the production in the body of two poisons called indol and phenol. These substances, it is said, the insidious in their action finally produce degeneration of the arteries, hardening of the liver and induration of the kidneys. In fact the use of small doses of these substances in animals, continued for a long period of time has resulted in exactly such conditions. In the human this result is found only in advanced age. It is hardly far-fetched then for scientists to say that age is not due to the mere lapse of time but to production of the two poisons in the body during a protracted period. Acting on the assumption of Metchnikoff of Paris, has proceeded to attempt to find something which will inhibit their formation.

Indol and phenol are formed by the action of certain bacteria on albumenoids, that is, substances found in meat, eggs and some vegetables such as peas, and it was first found that very small quantities of them were formed when the animals used in the experiment were fed on sweet articles such as dates. Even if the animals was fed on meat as well this was true, so the conclusion was adjoined one another, and the large windows of both overlooked the gardens and the sea. They were wide open.

The furniture was covered with old chairs, wicker and purple; no ornaments, no pictures. A couple of photographs in heavy gold frames, several books, a bureau littered with papers and magazines, and a few remaining toys.

In the room beyond Stoford could see the outline of a great white bed, the gleam of gold on the long, low dressing table, and here and there vivid splashes of color—petticoats, shoes, and frocks. A French maid was busy at the wardrobe.

Telling Stoford to sit down, Clio called her maid to bring her jewel box. Then, after shutting the bedroom door, she unlocked it.

"It's strange what a fascination these colored stones have for us women, isn't it? Sometimes they bore me, and I lock them all away and refuse to wear even a ring on my finger or comb in my hair. Here are the pearls, quite nice, aren't they? As you see, I had everything in the world but a really fine string of pearls; so when I saw these I decided they and I obtained them. I generally get all I want, Monsieur, all except one thing."

Stoford took the pearl necklace, and, rising, carried it to the window, where he examined it. His knowledge of jewels and precious stones was of the slightest, but the veriest amateur would have realized that these pearls were of unusual size, shape and beauty.

"They are genuine?"

"Monsieur?"

"Do you suppose there is another necklace quite like it in the world?"

Clio de Fontaine was amusing herself by playing with her other jewelry. "I don't know," she answered carelessly. "Perhaps not; that's why I wanted it; pearls don't attract me as a rule; they are too cold; too insipid. But these are different."

Stoford did not reply. Presently Clio closed her jewel case, and, rising, stood by his side. "Well, are you satisfied?"

"Is that exciting?"

Clio sighed. "About the only amusement left me."

She began to move forward, but Stoford arrested her. "I wonder if you would do me a great favor. My request is impertinent, I know, and I am sure you will not deign to let me look at that wonderful pearl necklace you were wearing last night?"

"It's not for sale, Monsieur."

"I'll make you an offer, Monsieur. If you told me Varles sold it to you, and I'm interested to know how much he got for it, I'll give you more than that I can't tell you."

"I bought it on conditions," Clio said, slowly.

She was looking at Stoford thoughtfully with just a gleam of suspicion in her eyes. "Is Monsieur a private detective?"

"Nothing half so interesting, merely a member of parliament."

She smiled now. "And in love? I remember. Oh, yes, you shall see the necklace, I bought it on conditions, or rather, I bought it for me. Rather peculiarly, but I was told I had the option of buying it back within a fortnight. He has only a few days left, and I think he has nearly ruined himself again. His poor little wife will lose all her jewels."

They retraced their steps to the hotel, ascended in the lift to Clio's apartments.

She was astonished at their magnificence; flowers, of course, were everywhere, arranged by the hand of an artist. The bedroom and boudoir reached that something in the digestion of sugars tended to prevent the formation of the two poisons. This was brought about, however, proved that since sugars are mostly absorbed before they reach the large intestine (where indols and phenols are produced) starch, from which they are derived, was more valuable still. Metchnikoff then searched for a germ which would produce sugar from starch right in the large intestine and finally he discovered the Lactic Acid Bacterium. The Lactic Acid Bacterium

It is an acid which comes from sugar which really brings about this result and with the idea, his making more acid Metchnikoff next added cultures of the lactic acid bacterium which causes milk to sour. Finally trying the whole scheme out on the human subject, using meat, some of the bacteria he found that with one or two additions he had a nutritious diet which would not produce the ever to be feared poisons.

Life May Be Prolonged Indefinitely

It is a well known fact that certain germs, forming animal life, since they produce new generations by merely splitting in two actually under ordinary circumstances never die. Whether it may be possible to argue that germs, forming animal life, since they produce new generations by merely splitting in two actually under ordinary circumstances never die. Whether it may be possible to argue that germs, forming animal life, since they produce new generations by merely splitting in two actually under ordinary circumstances never die. fresh and pretty, sitting nearby. Two little girls in clean, starched frocks hung their chort, looking very self-conscious and shy. The infant on her lap was six months old. She turned to the pretty little girl.

"Yes, these two. It's enough. I don't want any more."

Whereupon the mother of the three cuddled the wee mite closer, and sent a reproachful look toward the little mother who was content.

"Oh, I do. I love the little things. These two are three and a-half and two and a-half, and the baby is six months. I lost a pair of twins."

Who will dare to say that the great melting pot of a city's population is taken into account when one speaks of the anti-childers in which we are living at present?

A jolly-faced little Irishwoman, with a noticeable absence of teeth, came in, coddling a bouncing boy of twelve months.

I mentioned that he seemed particularly healthy.

"Well, he's the fourteenth. Ten of them are livin'."

It is a most extraordinary thing how these people living in the congested quarters of the city, when one speaks of a certain number of their children to die in infancy. They mention the fact much the same as one might say it looked like rain.

From the little warm room where the babies were weighed, the mothers went into the large room at the front of the building. Comfortable chairs were placed around the room, and there was a pile of cups and saucers on a table in the corner. And more than this, there was a great box full of milk bottles, which were not empty. It was evident that babies and mothers were equally well looked after.

There was a piano in another corner, which someone began to play. It was a great joy for all the mothers, and all the children who had come clinging to their skirts, with them. And for the babies, the dear, cooing little babies, who had no thought for the morrow or what the next week might bring forth.

One mother told me that this was the only place which ever saw her, except the four walls of her little kitchen. It was the one pleasure she had to look forward to, during the whole month. For her baby was a healthy little chap, and they come only once a month to the Settlement. The puny ones come every week, are weighed by the sweet-faced superintendent and given into the hands of Dr. Kendall Bates, who visits the Settlement every Tuesday for the babies.

Mrs. Livingstone, who has spent the last thirteen years in such work, and who is head of the Presbyterian Deaconess' Home on Grosvenor street, spoke to the mothers, reminding them of the significance of Mother's Day, so recently passed.

And then everyone had a cup of tea. Or two cups, or three, if they wished them. And substantial lettuce sandwiches, plenty of them. It was a joyous day for the mothers, who had to hurry by their work, that they might give themselves the treat of a sunny afternoon.

When the tea drinking was over, the little ones who were taken in to the doctor, who prescribed for their ill, if they had any.

It was a most interesting peep into the sunshine which kindhearted people are shedding for the illumination of the lives of the dwellers in the city's congested quarters.

A BIT OF SUNSHINE IN THE SLUMS

By MARGARET BELL

There were 37 women grouped around in the large front room of the building marked 467 Adelaide street west. They were plain-hearted folk, with no thought for learned points or debates in parliament. Their eyes were tired, their gait marked with that resignation which comes from long association with poverty and squalor. Their hands were hard, and showed no signs of the luxuries of a dainty toilet. For none of them the fragrances of miady's boudoir, or the ease of indolent wealth, or the ease of content. They had not seen enough of the brighter side of life to be dissatisfied with their own. They knew that someone made the laws, and were contented with that knowledge. Any thought of assisting in the making of those laws would be as alien to them as the hope of ever leaving their slum, or of owning a car some day.

They were English, Scotch, Irish, Jewish, Italian, Bulgarian, Canadian. They were the backbone of the great organism of city life.

Each woman carried a baby. And many had two or three larger children, clinging to their skirts.

Each was doing her duty as that term was originally conceived by the Deity of Existence.

There was no danger of race suicide among the inhabitants of that part of the city. Those women could not understand why there should be race suicide anywhere. The one motive of their otherwise cramped and narrow lives was to bring forth children. Children, the gift of all ages, in the midst of such squalor and squalor.

But the mothers were learning how to make the filth and squalor become less. That was the reason for their being at 467 Adelaide street west that day.

For the building at that number is one of the most praiseworthy buildings in the whole city. And there are people in that building working silently, unostentatiously, but surely, for the uplifting of all the mothers and babies who live in that part of town.

It is the University Settlement, a building maintained by the University of Toronto.

On Tuesdays the mothers bring their children for treatment. Not so much for treatment, perhaps, as for the advice which will render any treatment unnecessary. Except the treatment of sanitary living and proper food.

The mothers are taught that all the food which is necessary for the sustenance of their babies is PURE MILK. They are shown where it can be bought, and it is proven to them that it is the best food for their babies.

There is a little room toward the rear of the building, well heated and scrupulously clean. It contains a table, some chairs, and a scales for weighing. On the scales is a small basket.

As the mothers come in they are handed a number. Then, in the order of their coming, they are called into the small room with the scales. The babies are stripped and placed, one at a time, in the little basket which rests on the scales.

"How much gain in weight?" one tired-looking mother asks.

"One pound and six ounces."

There is a look of surprise on the mother's face. She has not placed much confidence in the pure milk diet. She fed all the other children out of boiled potato and scraps of meat, from the time when the first tooth began to peep thru. But they had all twelve months. There were seven of them in all. This was the eighth. He was five months old. She was frightened, but she would go like the rest so she brought him to the Settlement, one day. They could advise her there what to do for him. And they gave her a bottle of the pure milk diet, which had that there was a milk station where she could buy it all the time, for the same price as she paid for the milk from the cow. This she felt so good, she seemed to be picking up. It was extraordinary. On milk! And all the others had died. Perhaps, if she had known, she might have saved them too. It was an easy diet. And then if anything had gone wrong, there was the Settlement to consult. They could tell her what to do, by just taking the temperature of the little chap! It was too good to be true.

But there will have to be a perpetual sacrifice made, just to show people that something must be wrong with their mode of living. The poor mother who had buried her seven children was shown how the eighth could live. A good-natured woman came in, carrying a healthy boy of five and a-half months. He cooed contentedly, and she handed him up and down. Her clothes were shabby and her hair awry.

"He was goin' to get baptized last Sunday, but his dress didn't come back from the laundry."

She was talking to an acquaintance, who dandled a baby girl on her lap. Who knows, perhaps when the two babies grew up— Well, the future hangs over them, in the dim greyness of uncertainty.

"From the laundry? You don't mean to say you sent it to the laundry to be washed?"

Such an extravagance seemed unheard of.

"Yes, I have it nice for his baptism. I saved up enough to send it. But it didn't come back. Oh, he's just the handsomest baby boy in all the west. And I guess he can have a laundry-washed dress if he wants it."

And she dandled the tiny atom of humanity, as only a mother can, and cooed words of motherly softness to him.

And her clothes were so tawdry! A pretty young woman came in, carrying a wee babe, and holding a healthy-looking boy by the hand. He wore clean, blue overalls, and had a perpetual smile.

"How old is your baby?" I asked.

"Three weeks. I only got up yesterday."

The tiny mite was found to weigh ten pounds.

There was another mother, not so

Stoford started. "She wore the pearls? When did you first see her wearing them, Madame?"

"Oh, ten or fifteen days ago; I forgot. They come every week from Monte Carlo; I suppose Mr. Varles was a very rich man, only he gambled his fortune away. He'll put his wife's jewels on the spin of the roulette wheel, the clothes off her back, and then, when there's nothing left, he'll stake her soul." She laughed a little cruelly. "He lost his own long ago. Now, Monsieur, shall we go? You may escort me to the Casino, if you like."

Stoford bowed. He wanted to be alone until he could see Mimosa. In his heart he had no doubt now but that the necklace he had just seen belonged to Lady Hetherington. Mimosa had stolen it, and the theft was particularly mean and paltry, since she was the girl his fiancée had befriended and helped. The theft must have been cleverly thought out, too; she had probably worn the necklace from the house so as to escape suspicion—probably the necklace under her blouse and the ear-rings hidden by her hair.

THE HEYDAY of HOBBIES BY MARGARET BELL

Some Valuable Junk.

A number of Canadians were taking a coaching tour thru picturesque England. They stopped at a little inn for rest and refreshments. One of the number disappeared suddenly. When it was time to start on again, she had not returned. Things looked serious. Just as the rest of them were about to divide themselves into different divisions of a search party, she appeared. They knew it was the truant, by the jingle, jingle which accompanied her as she walked.

The jingle was caused by half a dozen jugs which were strapped securely on her back.

She was an inveterate collector of "junk," as she called it, and had been searching the country for jugs. Her search had been rewarded by some beautiful finds. The cause of the merry jingle as she walked.

This enthusiastic collector was Mrs. J. E. Elliott, who has the most varied collections of everything, in Toronto.

Jugs, bottles, brass, old lace, pottery, china, antique furniture and Chinese curios, all are well represented in the home of Mrs. J. E. Elliott.

And besides all this she is quite an expert at amateur photography. One cannot but wonder at such a repertoire

SANGUINOL

Makes Strong Nerves

Read this message from Mr. Wm. Newman, of 15 Northcote Ave., Toronto, whose wife was persuaded to give Sanguinol a trial when she was very nervous and run down.

"I can assure you I will never forget the benefit my wife received from Sanguinol. She has taken four bottles, and never felt better in her life. She has gained five pounds. She was very nervous and anæmic. I cannot praise Sanguinol enough. She previously used a dozen or more other medicines, but none did her any good but Sanguinol."

Does that sound as if Sanguinol might bring health and happiness to you? Is not the most convincing proof of the efficiency of any remedy the results accomplished by it?

Get Sanguinol today. Let it prove to you that it is unsurpassed as a nerve-tonic and blood-builder.

It is sold only at the Owl Drug Stores: 770 Queen Street East, 151 Dundas Street, 481 Parliament Street, 282 College Street, 890 Bathurst Street, 1215 Bloor West, 722 and 824 Yonge Street, VanZant Drug Stores, and E. A. Legge, Corner of College and Ossington Avenue.

of hobbies. It can signify but one thing. A broad-minded interest in everything, and the doings of everybody.

One might make a new proverb, in connection with this hobbyist.

"The greater the number of hobbies, the more generous the mind."

The other jugs in the collection have just as interesting bits of history connected with them as the above mentioned.

Everyone is familiar with the same Whitechapel. And everyone knows that Whitechapel would never be chosen as a place of interest by anyone who were not humanely inclined.

One sees too much of the sordid side of things there. The greatest birthright of the inhabitants of Whitechapel is the birthright of squalor, filth and degeneracy.

And yet, if one takes the pains, one may find treasures amongst all the sordidness.

Mrs. Elliott took the pains. She found some beautiful examples of jugs, pottery and brass there amidst all the squalor and filth.

What did it matter that the brass was green with age, or the jugs chipped and cracked? Those were only the marks of a dignified old age.

And Paris has always been a mecca for all curiosity seekers. Paris, city of pleasure and Bohemianism, is also a city of curio shops and junk bazaars.

When Mrs. Elliott was in Paris for the purpose of studying art in all its phases, she did not neglect the art of the shops where the casual traveler does not expect to find art. While all conventional letterers within the four gay walls were going the rounds of the conventional tourists,—visiting the Louvre, the Tuilleries, and so on, Mrs. Elliott was hunting up the more secluded places, where one finds the most interesting types and problems of every day life. The hundreds of little shops, before which the night-time vendors hawk their garish wares. The resorts of the poor old newspaper woman, who has spent the night on the pile of rags in the public square. The little shops where one may buy French rolls and French chocolate for a few centimes.

That is fascination for you! The whirling, unconventional life of those Parisians whom the world has not blessed—or cursed—with too much ease and comfort. The happy indolence of the poor, the luxury of a mind unburdened with social problems.

Surely a much more interesting study than the existences of conventional Paris, who swarms the Louvre for the purpose of costume display.

Here it was that Mrs. Elliott picked up much of her brass. Brass candlesticks of the revolutionary period, brass knockers of the period of Charles the Ninth. Brass everything, from every period.

Every bit of French brass and china has a romance. Who knows what tragedy might have been witnessed by a candlestick of the time when Napoleon captured the heart of more than one reigning beauty? Who would dare to whisper the secrets that a dignified old door-knocker might divulge, could it only speak?

It is such romances which make invaluable all treasures which may be picked out of a heap of indiscriminate refuse at the rear of some little shop in the Quartier Latin of Paris.

From Parisian France to the France of the habitant in lower Quebec is a great jump. Both France's are represented in Mrs. Elliott's collection of "junk."

Jogging contentedly along in a dog-cart, down in the picturesque country around Vaudreuil, she came suddenly upon the smouldering ruins of a bottle factory. There were many kinds of bottles in the ruins. Of all shapes and sizes. Bottles one could associate with no function except the pleasing indulgence thereof, or the indifference for all confidences as to the indifference of the speaker to the rent bill which has come thrusting itself right under the very nose of his conscience.

The wrath of the landlord is toasted, likewise the long-suffering patience of the tenant, who has endured the landlord's threats for so long.

Those the times to which every successful follower of this sympathetic sect looks back with fond recollections. Those are the hours which no public praise can annihilate from the memory. Those are the real times which test the mettle of true friendship and bid care sneak away.

Thank the Fates for Bohemianism! Let him who has not tasted the pangs of unappreciated hunger, keep silent when he would uphold the conscientious plodder, who keeps a perpetual countenance of sunshine for the mob and drops tears of despair in the sanctum of her own ambitions!

And far away from the good fellowship of New York studio life, bandits in great sombre, with pistols in their belts and murder in their hearts, sat and sipped. Great gulps they took from great glasses, which held the contents of the large, odd-shaped bottle on the table. Tales of love and lottery they told, with no fear for the outcome. Tales of war and bloodshed, with a snap of the finger for risks! Great, wild-eyed fellows, with lives for the material, and no thought beyond the moment, which added a little of enjoyment of their cup, which overflowed with self-satisfaction.

Think of the tales that one of these great bottles might unfold, if it took a leap down from the shelf in Mrs. Elliott's studio, some day when three hundred and ninety-nine of Toronto's four hundred odd chance to be sipping tea there!

The ruby glass bottle which occupies such an important position on the mantel, likewise might prove a garrulous guest, could it only pour words added a little of enjoyment of their cup, which overflowed with self-satisfaction.

out thru the delicate mouth. It could tell tales of sordidness and squalor, and mysticism and graft.

For many years it occupied a position in the cellar of a second-class shop in the lower east side of New York. Many of the squalid inhabitants would pause before the window where it stood, to marvel at its beauty.

Not mere beauty of form and coloring, such as most mortals would see. But occult beauty of diverse colorings. The bottle was a mysterious sort of thing, it was thought among the lower end dwellers. Any who wished to learn his or her fate would pay a dime, and the color of the bottle would decree the good or evil which would befall the superstitious one.

As a matter of fact, the fickle shades of the bottle depended on clever lighting. Electricity and calcium will do much to make vari-colored lights.

How this weird bottle came into Mrs. Elliott's possession is natural. Someone found out about the unlicensed fortune shop, and the proprietor was obliged to seek other quarters. The contents of his shop were sold. Mrs. Elliott bought the ruby-colored bottle. That is all.

There were many adventures in those studio days in New York. I have mentioned that this article in question had a mania for slumming.

Slumming was precarious work. It was never safe to go far alone. Mrs. Elliott had collected many valuable bits of brass. Her candlesticks numbered over 50, and there were brass irons, pans, vases, dishes of every possible shape and description.

However, there was one ornament in brass which she did not possess. This was a Russian samovar. A check had come from home that morning, and she must needs take a holiday.

It would be a novel one. A visit to the slummiest of the slums, in search of a Russian samovar. All her fellow-students were at work, but there was a young man staying in the same house, who did not seem particularly busy. He knew the slums quite well, for he was a missionary in the midst of New York's gaudy and sordidness.

The two of them started out in quest of a samovar. They passed squalid houses, before which piles of produce tumbled in Hebrew disorder. Dirty kiddies played in the gutters, and a dozen hurdy-gurdies wailed all round.

They turned into a street more sordid than the rest. The squalor was worse. The kiddies seemed more riotous in the gutters. Beside, a howling street organ, a group of young people were dancing. Everywhere noise and indolence.

The two curiosity seekers paused. Above the noise of the crowd they fancied they could hear a sing-singing, as if someone were making a pot of tea out in the street.

They looked toward a little shop. The singing seemed to come from it. And there it was! A handsome samovar, green with age, from the top of which were escaping the fumes of freshly-brewed tea!

The dealer, who could not speak English very well, understood enough to tell the price of the samovar, when asked.

Seventeen dollars. Yes, he would sell it at once.

It was done. The black-whiskered little Russian emptied the tea, and the young missionary carried the samovar from the slummiest of Russian New York to the civilization of student New York.

Mrs. Elliott has many valuable articles from New York Chinatown. All sorts of oriental looking junk, including shoes, chop sticks of ivory, beautiful fans, and valuable pottery. Each piece has its own story to tell.

She has some inebriate burners, which came from the peasants' cottages in Beaupre. And chairs and sabots and homespun, from the homes of the French habitants. She used to drive around the country where these habitants dwell, her treasures hanging on the back of her buggy.

And she has some very valuable lace. In fact, Mrs. Elliott is an authority on all kinds of real laces, her one desire being to advise women of the folly of buying cheap imitations.

A wonderful collection of valuables, which would deserve many columns, if an adequate description were given of it.

MUNICIPAL MOTOR STAND UNDER PUBLIC SQUARE.

The construction of a large municipal vehicle stand under the public square of Cleveland has been suggested by the officials of that city as a solution of the increasing congestion of automobile traffic with which they have to contend. The plan involves the excavating of the square to a depth of about 30 feet in order to construct a two-storey garage, which would be covered by beds of flowers and shrubbery, so that the appearance of the square would remain unchanged, except for the necessary entrance. The proposed garage would accommodate approximately 800 vehicles, many of which are now compelled to stand upon the streets and block traffic, especially during shopping hours. The garage would also provide a central and safe place for the motor cars of hundreds of business men, and the storage cost per car would be comparatively low, as no investment is required for the purchase of real estate.

Our Embroidery Design

Design for Pin Cushion.

Use extremely sheer material. Perhaps shadow embroidery would look neatest in the large cushion. This work is done on the wrong side, a simple cat-stitch which forms a rather solid background effect. The tendrils should be finished in delicate outline, and all circles indicate places for delicate eyelet work. Each pattern should be fragile. In case there is a color scheme you could possibly develop something decidedly novel whether the colors be convincing or not. In case of deep tones the pattern should be worked in satin stitches on the right side of the fabric.

The little pillow suggests something dainty for the lavet or baby basket. Such ornaments are in white, pink or blue, the color scheme done with ribbons, the embroidery wrought in white.

Use a good grade of white handkerchief linen, soft white ball-floss and avoid cross-stitches for they show thru the fabric.

The easy springs and the flexible engine support relieve strain on all parts of the car—and, incidentally, the passengers.

OSHAWA---THE FASTEST GROWING MANUFACTURING TOWN IN CANADA

Oshawa has a fine beach where thousands of citizens go daily in the summer to take steamer for other ports, to go sailing or canoeing, to have the children swim in the lake and play in the sand. Oshawa's new harbor, on which the government is spending over $300,000.00 will make Oshawa one of the principal ports between Toronto and Montreal.

Not many places can boast of a Canning Factory with such an enviable reputation as the Oshawa Canning Factory. It has an annual output of 75,000 cases, and it requires 800 acres to produce the fruit and vegetables they put up for consumption.

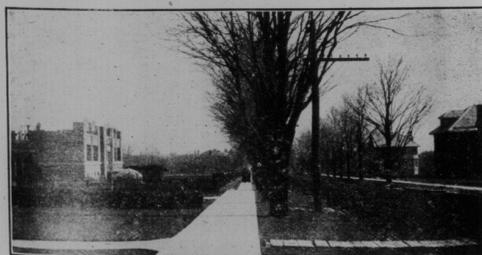

105 ACRES INSIDE CORPORATION LIMITS
This property contains one of the finest apple orchards in Ontario, of 26 acres. I will sell all or part. A portion of this property faces on the main street.

FACTORY OF INTERIOR FITTINGS, LIMITED
Wood Working Factory. Ships interior fittings to all parts of Canada. Employs over 100 men. This factory started a few years ago as a small concern, and is now considering still further enlargement.

FACTORY OF THE PEDLAR PEOPLE
The Pedlar People, manufacturers of metal roofing, siding, lath, door casing, culverts, etc., are the largest of the kind under the British flag. They have purchased additional building sites adjoining the factory, and nine acres more only three-quarters of a mile from Hillcrest. They are spending nearly a quarter of a million in increasing the plant.

Oshawa Boulevard---the most central and highest class property for sale in Oshawa. It is just one minute's walk from the new Central Public School, near completion as shown above. A few hundred yards from two electric car lines, and only ten minutes walk to Central Post Office. Lots 35 and 40 feet frontage, 160 feet deep, $10 to $14 per foot. Easy terms.

Facts About Oshawa

OSHAWA IS FAST EMERGING from a town into a city of factories. It is teeming with life and industrial activity. The shadow of its great future is cast and is taking the attention of manufacturers in all parts of Canada, the United States and the British Isles.

The standard of Oshawa's products is high. Each of its now many large industries started as a small concern. They have grown and are growing by the sterling character of their products. Oshawa breeds success. Men go there to work, and stay to make their homes. The community is prospering and takes pride in Oshawa's growth and future. How fast Oshawa is growing and how great is its future can be well judged by the following literal facts.

Oshawa a City of 25,000 in Five Years

In the last five years the population has increased more than in twenty previous years. In the last two years the increase has been more than in the five years previous. Without growing faster than it has been doing, the population in another five years would reach 25,000. Oshawa needs more houses. Manufacturers to solve the problem of housing their employees have taken the initiative and erected suitable accommodation themselves. In this respect, opportunity is large for both builder and investor. The growth of the factories have naturally brought new men and women into Oshawa and these factories are still growing. The McLaughlin Carriage plant has trebled itself in three years and by 1915 will be manufacturing every part of their automobile. The Pedlar People are spending nearly a quarter of a million in the extension of their plant. Without a single exception, every factory is actively on the increase. Another evidence of growth is that the custom receipts for 1912 in Oshawa totalled $324,000.00.

Oshawa's Industries

The McLaughlin Carriage Co., 800 employees; Ontario Malleable Iron Co., 300; Fittings, Limited, 400; R. S. Williams Piano Co., 300; The Pedlar People, 250; Robson Leather Co., 250. There is also the Oshawa Canning Factory, producing 75,000 cases annually; The T. Eaton Company's White-wear Factory; Brick's Limited; Canada Malleable Steel Range Company; Oshawa Interior Fittings; Schofield Woolen Mills; J. Sykes and Son; R. Woon and Company; H. Gray and Sons; R. H. James; Oriental Textile Company; R. Dillon and Son, and Stacey Builders Limited, and sundry other smaller enterprises. No other town in Canada or even small city has a bigger showing of invested capital and value of products than Oshawa.

The very advantageous terms and provision of an individual siding to each new industry locating in Oshawa is having its effect in attracting still others to come in.

Oshawa's Manufactured Products

Oshawa outdistances in total value of products the City of St. Catharines. Taking the products of Stratford and Galt separately, Oshawa is ahead of each of them by an easy million dollars. A group of cities, including Kingston, Belleville and Brockville produce values less than a million more than Oshawa is producing alone. A group of five towns, Whitby, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Cobourg and Oshawa produce less by some 68,000 dollars than the go-ahead Town of Oshawa.

Railway and Shipping Facilities

Oshawa is served by three transcontinental railroads, G. T. R., C. P. R., and C. N. R., and three electric lines. Besides which the Oshawa Harbor is destined to be an important port of call. Thousands of dollars are saved yearly to Oshawa manufacturers by the FREE collection and delivery of freight to their doors.

What Oshawa Manufactures

Agricultural Implements, Automobiles, Brooms, Brushes, Canned Goods, Carriages, Flour, Gas Pipe Fittings, Interior Fittings, Leather, Metal Roofing, Planos, Steam Fittings, Stoves, Whitewear, Woolens, Textile Looms, Clover Mills, Hay Forks, etc.

The New Harbor

ONE THOUSAND FEET wide by twelve hundred feet long, twenty feet deep, with a twenty-five foot retaining wall all around. Two breakwaters three hundred feet apart, extending several hundred feet into the lake. This will give Oshawa the finest harbor between Toronto and Montreal. To cost in the neighborhood of half a million, surveying completed and work to start at once.

The above facts show conclusively that Oshawa stands sixth in the province, is the liveliest town in Ontario, and has a more substantial basis for future development than any town or small city in the Dominion.

SCHOFIELD WOOLEN MILLS
Manufacture woolen goods, underwear, sweaters, etc., of all kinds. About 100 hands are employed.

THOSE who want detailed facts in preference to general statements, should read the Prize Essay on "Canada's Greatest Manufacturing City", in The Canadian Courier of April 5, 1913. The Facts below are only a hundredth part of the facts that are available for argument in favor of investing in Real Estate in Oshawa. If population increases only 4000 or 5000, Hillcrest and Oshawa Boulevard will be built up solid.

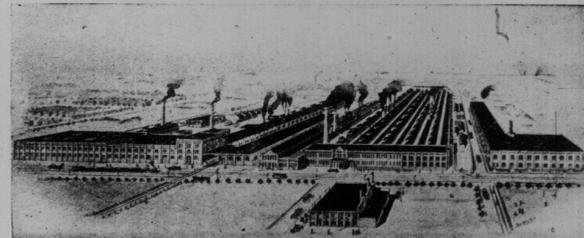

"HILLCREST" and "OSHAWA BOULEVARD" are the two best properties for investment in Oshawa.

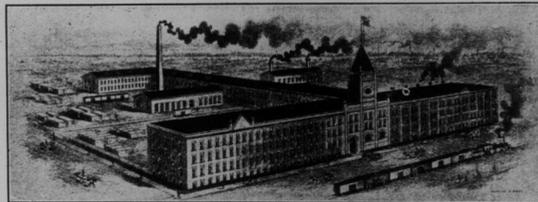

Hillcrest, the most desirable building lot property near the industrial part of Oshawa. Situated between the general factory district and the Town of Oshawa's 142-acre free factory sites for future industries. The land is elevated, good soil, beautifully located, giving view of lake, harbor, and overlooking almost the entire town. The above cut shows a wooded portion of Hillcrest. Houses are rapidly being built up close to the property. Lots are 25 feet and 30 feet by 120 feet deep, and are priced very low at $4 to $9. Terms are $10 monthly and $5 monthly. No interest.

The McLaughlin Carriage Factory is the largest of its kind in the British Empire. It employs about 800 hands. A large wing of this factory is devoted to making the McLaughlin Automobiles. In another year the automobile plant will be practically doubled, with a corresponding increase in the number of hands employed. The buildings cover an area of fourteen acres.

Ontario Malleable Iron Company, Fittings Limited, and Canada Malleable Steel Range factories, are shown above. The Fittings Limited, factory has been enlarged since above drawing was made.

THE R. S. WILLIAMS & CO. PIANO FACTORY
The R. S. Williams Piano Factory, occupying a whole block, gives a floor space of 100,000 square feet. Their output of some 3,000 pianos and piano players demands the employment of 300 men.

FACTORY OF THE ROBSON LEATHER COMPANY
The Robson Leather Company's Factory covers a floor space of 80,000 square feet, and the output is 6,000 sides of leather per week. Their trade extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

I GO TO OSHAWA EVERY WEEK, AND AM PLEASED TO TAKE ANY ONE WITH ME, AND SHOW THEM THE REAL ESTATE OF THAT FAST-GROWING LITTLE CITY. TRAVEL EXPENSES REFUNDED TO THOSE WHO PURCHASE LOTS

TORONTO BOY'S SUCCESS ON STAGE

George V. Dill, whom many sport-loving Torontonians will recall as "that active, wiry Dill boy on the amateur lacrosse team," or as "the hard-checker on the hockey team," has played the drama game, as he played lacrosse and hockey—with all his might and main. He went to New York with the intention of going on the stage, and, tho' the waiting list of applicants was legion, his modest, gentlemanly bearing, good looks, youthful fire, and honest conviction in his ability to do good work won the confidence of the New York managers and secured him a start in Francis Wilson's "Ermie" company. From this he passed to the cast of Weber and Fields' company for a time; thence to a round of classic roles with the Coburn Shaksperian Players; then to the fine dramatic role of Marius, the young Roman, in Clarence Bennett's great scriptural play, "The Holy City," with which he was connected for three years. Then followed two years of continent-spanning tours in "The Squaw Man," in which Mr. Dill appeared in the title role as Jim Carston, the Squaw Man. At present he is playing the leading male role in "The Price," the great Broadhurst play, that appears at the Grand this week. Mr. Dill is doing some of the best work of his career as Dr. Bristol, the leading support of Edna Marshall, the star of the company. "The Price" is a sister-play to "Bought and Paid For," and by the same successful author, Mr. George Broadhurst, and it is considered by the best critics as his master-play.

THE INFORMAL HOME WEDDING.

At the home wedding there are usually neither bridesmaids nor groomsmen. The clergyman enters and faces the company. The bride and groom enter together and stand facing him. When the ceremony is over the bride and groom turn around to receive congratulations. It is no longer considered good form for any but the very nearest friends to kiss the bride. At the home wedding the bride wears either the usual bridal veil and white dress or a traveling dress and hat.

A widow at her second marriage wears a light-colored silk dress or a traveling dress and hat, never a bridal veil or white gown. Such a wedding is in better taste to be a quiet one.

After marriage a bride may drop her middle name and retain her family name. A widow may retain the name of her first husband as a middle name. This is considered good form when there are children of the first marriage.

Cards sent out after the wedding may give the new residence. This is practically an invitation to call on the newly-married pair.

The bride should give immediate attention to recognizing all wedding gifts.—Eldora Lockwood Dow in Woman's World.

Righting a Wrong. Dobber (the artist): "I have called, Mr. Gotrox, to make a confession to which I am driven by the pangs of a gnawing conscience. I grossly deceived you in regard to that pastoral picture you purchased from me two months ago. Old Gotrox: "Did, hey? How, may I ask?" Dobber: "Those blotches in the foreground of the painting—you spoke of them as barberry bushes—Mr. Gotrox, I—I cannot conceal the truth any longer—they are cows!"—Puck.

INDIA'S WANDERING ACROBATS.

The wandering acrobats of India, says a writer in The Wide World Magazine, are recruited from a low caste of people called "Dombarnos," who live by this profession alone.

The children are trained from their earliest childhood, and do not receive any education in schools. They travel from village to town, and give their performances, which are really wonderful, in the open air, before crowds of onlookers. Their tricks are quaint and sometimes astonishingly clever.

Supported by one another, these men will balance themselves in a crazy kind of pyramid, rising 15 or 20 feet from the ground, and one of their number will then climb this living pyramid with a heavy weight in his teeth. Babies not yet able to walk are often seen being made use of in the most dangerous manner during these performances.

Rajahs and rich Indians are very fond of the acrobatic displays, and engage the best of the men to perform before their guests at entertainments.

SPARE DIET FOR A WORKING-MAN.

Dr. Hindhede, a famous Danish food scientist, has just published some new results of experiments in his line of investigation. Among other things, he cites the case of Frederick Madsen, a gardener, a sound and strongly-built man, but one who has never done anything to develop his strength.

This gardener, according to Dr. Hindhede, has for about ten years lived on rye bread, potatoes, oat and barley porridge, and has never touched meat, tobacco, coffee, tea, beer, or any spirits. He usually drinks water, rarely milk. On this diet he does his gardening work, including digging and other severe work, and, in spite of his extremely frugal living, unusually poor in albumen, he can get thru quite as much as any meat-eating man.

For forty days this man lived exclusively on potatoes, and contrary to what is generally supposed this food proved easily and almost fully digestible, only 2 per cent. remaining undigested, against from 6 to 10 per cent. of meat and milk. In fact, he was apparently well nourished and satisfied by the potato fare, and was quite prepared to go on living on it.

SOLAR ENGINE FOR IRRIGATION IN EGYPT.

So great is the sun's working heat in Cairo that the Shuman zinc hollers have been softened by a temperature 200 degrees higher than was developed in Philadelphia, and it has become necessary to substitute boilers of cast iron.

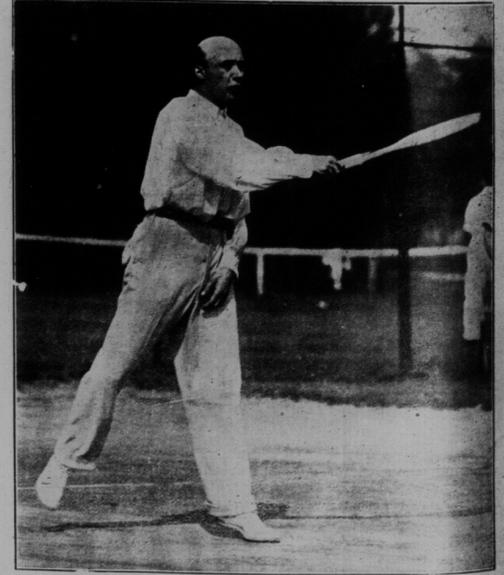

The inventor, however, has announced the success of the solar engine for irrigation in Egypt. He finds that 10 per cent. of the earth's surface near the equator offers suitable conditions for sun-power, and, while the first cost is twice that of an ordinary steam plant, the high price of fuel and growing need of irrigation promise great profits.
