BEAVER BOARD
If you are building or going to complete some unfinished rooms, let us show you some colored samples, illustrating the beautiful color effects obtained by using this sanitary and durable board for walls and ceilings in all classes of buildings.
We carry a large stock in assorted sizes.

MAIL ORDERS
We solicit out of town orders which receive our personal attention. The length of time taken to fill orders is governed very largely by how busy we are in the department of our factory in which the particular goods are made. While we have exceptional facilities for promptly turning out goods, it is important to place orders as far ahead as possible. Orders are filled by us in the rotation in which they are received, and customers can always depend on our doing everything in reason to give prompt dispatch.

MILL STREET DISPUTE ON

Mr. Ellsworth Refuses to Allow Improvements—Other Business.

A meeting of the Town Council was held in the Firemen's Hall Thursday evening. His Worship Mayor Murray presiding. There were present Couns. Currie, Belleisle, Ingram, Bisset, Jamieson, Mathews and Devereaux. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications were read as follows:—
From D. A. Stewart in answer to the Clerk's letter re Fire Bylaws stating that so far as he knew all his workmen were observing the said by-laws. Letter placed on file.
American Bank Note Co. wrote asking for payment of $1.0 as they had made an error in charging excise tax on invoice for June. Account ordered paid.
Chas. A. Killam again wrote in reference to damage done by water backing up through the sewer into his cellar. The matter was referred to the Water & Sewerage Committee.
W. H. Wallace wrote asking a refund of toll tax for 1917-18-19-20 as he was over prescribed age. Referred to Assessment & Appeals Committee.
J. A. Fornier and Valmore Soudreau asking for reduction in assessment on account of errors in valuation. Referred to Assessment & Appeals Committee.
W. H. Rodgers asked for reduction of assessment on account of over assessment in Income Tax and John Devereaux asked for reduction because he had no income except government pension.
Both were referred to the Assessment and Appeals Committee.
Various departmental accounts were ordered paid.
The Assessment & Appeals Committee reported recommendation of Valmore Soudreau's assessment be reduced $900.00 and Jas. Fornier's $500.00. Report adopted.
On recommendation of the Police & Licensing Committee, P. Cur was given a license for two pool tables.
Coun. Devereaux reported progress re license for dance halls, etc. The matter was out of town but would return Monday.
Coun. Devereaux asked for an extension of time. Extension granted.
Coun. Currie reported that Mr. Shephard of F. E. Shephard & Co. had requested the town engineer to give him the grade for their new building on Water Street. This had been given as near as it was possible but as it seemed that every building already erected had used a different level it was hard to give this. Mr. Shephard had asked to have the Council give him a guarantee that level would not be changed, but he had refused to do so for the Council. It would let the town in for damages in case something should arise which would make a change necessary.
The matter of opening up Water Street was discussed and Coun. Ingram requested to have necessary deeds made out. The matter of procuring deeds for streets on the O'Leary property was also discussed and the Public Property & Streets Committee was authorized to interview Mr. Fred O'Leary in the matter.
The matter of a refund of a portion of the license fee paid by the Fireman for the Royal Exposition Shows was taken up.
The Clerk explained that the Firemen had paid $150.00 for six days performance. The show was running only two days when closed and they asked for refund of $100.00.
The refund was ordered paid.
The Clerk reported that he had interviewed Mr. Ellsworth in reference to laying sidewalk on Mill Street and he had positively refused to allow any improvements to be made. He said he certainly had a deed to this street.
Coun. Currie explained that Mr. Ellsworth's rights were for a fifty foot right of way, whereas the owners of the property had laid out a street sixty-six feet wide. If thought advisable the sidewalk and light poles could be erected upon this sixteen feet. The town could get deeds of this sixteen feet.
Coun. Jamieson suggested that a committee be appointed to interview Mr. Ellsworth and go into the whole matter.
Coun. Belleisle moved that the Chairman of the Public Property & Streets Committee be authorized to interview Mr. Ellsworth, and report to next meeting.—Carried.
The council then adjourned.

STRONG CANDIDATES CHOSEN BY RESTIGOUCHE SUPPORTERS

Most Enthusiastic Convention Held Here Tuesday. A. T. LeBlanc, M. P. P. and Ex-Warden John C. McLean as Standard Bearer.

One of the most enthusiastic and largely attended conventions ever held in Restigouche was that of the friends of the present administration which convened in the Murray Hall Tuesday afternoon in response to a call issued by the President, Mr. John Harquail. Representatives were present from every parish, their being an unusually large number from Grimmer.

At three o'clock Mr. Harquail called the meeting to order, explained its object and asked that a chairman and secretary be appointed.

Mr. John Harquail was appointed chairman and Mr. M. A. Kelly secretary.

Mr. Harquail said that he would much prefer some one else in the chair, but if it was the will of the meeting, he would do the best he could. He then called upon Hon. P. J. Veniot, Minister of Public Works.

Mr. Veniot was received with great applause and addressed the meeting in English and French.

He congratulated the County of Restigouche on having such a large and representative convention, especially because of the late bad weather and the fact that the farmers had to sacrifice their work on such a fine day, to attend. The attendance also showed that the people of Restigouche were taking a greater interest in matters of public interest which was indeed a good sign and showed renewed interest.

He was not present at the convention proper, but as this is really the opening of the campaign, to speak very briefly upon the work of the government. The choice of the candidates rests entirely with the people.

Since the election of the present government a large portion of the province and prospects were never brighter for a victory. The leader of the Opposition, Hon. James Murray, is to-day disowned by his own party. A new convention of the followers of the Opposition has been called for the 23rd to choose a new leader.

On Saturday last at a meeting of the Opposition party of York County, Dr. W. Crockett, who was the leader of the party for that county absolutely refused to become a candidate. He no longer had confidence in the party he had been associated with for a lifetime.

There were many former supporters of the late Murray administration who to-day refuse to follow either of these gentlemen.

It may be asked why we brought the election on in such short notice. The answer was that the government wanted the campaign fought when the people could tell the difference between the two parties. Since 1917 when the campaign was fought in the bitter winter months, it has never again, except in an emergency, would an election be brought on in the winter months. The government had given a clear twenty-four days instead of twenty-one as called for.

Mr. Veniot spoke at some length upon the road policy of the government and roads as they were to-day. He made the interesting statement that he had been able to have the Dominion government agree to the proposed Campbellton-St. Leonard highway as a trunk road, and it would thus have the Dominion government assistance.

He also spoke of the Hydro Electric Commission which is developing the water powers of the province and preventing them from falling under the control of private corporations.

Encouragement of the great farming industry has also received the attention of the government. The present administration had no quarrel with the farmers. They welcomed any farmer candidate who might be elected.

He asked any farmer to point out in what particular the government had failed to help them during the past three years. They had done everything possible to help and foster the great farming industry. In 1918 when seed grain was held up by the western dealers the government had appealed to Ottawa and the Dominion government agreed to purchase the seed grain which were sold to the New Brunswick farmers at absolute cost and charges, which was a great help to the farmers. Then the government had made it possible for any farmer to restock his farm by procuring through the banks advanced at very reasonable rates.

When fertilizer was almost impossible to obtain the government had erected a most modern plant for the crushing of lime stone and that product could now be procured several dollars a ton less than formerly.

He drew attention to what the government was doing to foster the prosperity of the province. The opposition now say that the big lumber interests have the government by the throat, but this is not so. The opposition wanted the stumpage raised to 7.50, while some of the farmers suggested 10.00 as a fair rate, but the government after taking all matters into consideration thought 5.00 was a fair rate and fixed it so. While perhaps the southern counties, where they have few obstacles to overcome in lumbering, could pay the higher rate they felt that on the North Shore where the most of the lumbering was done, was very differently situated. They had to haul their supplies great distances and drive their logs at heavy expenses.

The government was anxious to deal fairly with every class. The opposition forgot to tell the people that they bled the lumbermen white and put the money into their own pockets instead of the government treasury and that a former premier had gone and is now afraid to show himself.

In closing he hoped that whatever candidates were chosen that they would have the unanimous endorsement of the convention and that every man present would roll up a tremendous majority in favor of the government candidates.—Applause.

Mr. Veniot addressed the meeting in French.

Hon. Wm. Currie was then called upon. He spoke briefly in reference to the government and its policy and thought their's had a progressive policy and which he felt sure the people would endorse at the polls on the 9th of October.

With regard to the county of Restigouche, he thought that the people would admit that the roads had been greatly improved and much other good work done by the present government.

Mr. Currie spoke at length in reference to the Murchie charges, as that was the first opportunity he had of making a statement in public.

He thanked the electors for their generous support in the past and assured all that he would cheerfully abide by the choice of the convention.

A. T. LeBlanc, M. P. P.

Mr. LeBlanc made a very eloquent address in French which was frequently interrupted by applause. He also spoke briefly in English and was given a rousing reception.

The chairman then suggested that the representatives from each parish should meet and choose delegates in ratio to the number of electors. This figured out as follows:—

NEW TELEPHONE RATES SEPT. 30

Patrons Notified of Advances and Much Dissatisfaction.

The new telephone rates allowed by the Public Utilities Commission go into effect September 30th. These call for a considerable advance.
Office or business phones are $30.00 for a wall instrument $9.29 for a desk phone.
Private dwelling phones are $30.00 for a wall phone or $31.20 for a desk phone.
There is considerable dissatisfaction in reference to this increase and the Graphic understands that a large number of house phones will be removed when the new rate goes into effect.

MORE PRIVATE STILLS DISCOVERED

Federal Officers Co-Operate With Provincial Liquor Inspectors.

The officers of the internal revenue department of the federal government are co-operating in several districts of the northern section of the province with the inspectors of the New Brunswick liquor enforcement squad in a determined effort to suppress illicit manufacturing, which has apparently been in progress secretly in secluded places for a considerable time. A general raid has just been made on Shipigan island and other islands and isolated sections of the north-eastern coast of Gloucester and as a result a large amount of spirits ready for drinking by that portion of the consuming public not over-particular as to their brands, and more in process of distillation were seized.

The moonshine distillers were summoned into court and before Maxime Dugas, of Upper Carleton, magistrate for that district of Gloucester county, fines totalling $4,000 were imposed.

FIRE AT ST. OMER.

On Thursday Mr. Nicholas Arseneau of St. Omer suffered a heavy loss by the destruction through fire of his store, house, barn and shed. Very little, if anything, was saved. Mr. Arseneau carried but little fire insurance, owing to the high rate charged.

MORRISON-GILKER. A very pretty marriage took place on Tuesday, Sept. 14th at Zion Church New Carlisle, when Lizzie Isabella Gilker only daughter of the late John Gilker and Mrs. Gilker was united in marriage to Mr. W. R. Reid Morrison of Quebec, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Morrison of New Carlisle, Rev. J. F. McCurdy officiating.

The bride who was given away by her brother, Mr. John Gilker, wore her travelling suit of navy blue tulle with hat to match and carried Ophelia roses and ferns. She was attended by Miss Winifred Chisholm, wearing navy blue serge with black hat and carrying pink roses while Mr. Chas. Gilker supported the groom.

Following the ceremony, dinner was served at the home of the bride's mother, after which the happy couple left for a trip to Niagara. On their return they will reside in Quebec. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl pendant and the bridesmaid a signet ring.

THIS WOMAN'S RECOVERY

Shows Remarkable Curative Power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Chesley, Ont.—"Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a total wreck. I had terrible pains in my sides and was not regular. Finally I got so weak I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest half way up the steps. I tried two doctors but they did me no good. I saw your medicine advertised in the newspapers and thought I would give it a trial. I took four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and was restored to health. I am married, am the mother of two children, and do all my housework, milk eight cows, and do a hired man's work and enjoy the best of health. I also found Vegetable Compound a great help for my weak back because my babies were born. I recommend it to all my friends who are in need of medicine, and you may read this letter if you wish." AN ORIENTAL KNIGHT

East Indian Official Being Honored

In London, England makes much of its colonial worthies and is just now bestowing special attention upon Sir Prabhakar Dattabhai and from whose white turban and robe, full grey beard and patriarchal men make him the subject of admiring notice in any company. He is visiting England on business of state, having been a member of the Council of India since 1917. In that capacity he is in frequent consultation with the political authorities. He finds cordial welcome in literary circles, for he is a student and writer of rare verse. The doors of society are open to him and he is a picturesque figure in gatherings of the social elite.

He comes of a fine Indian family and his home is in Anantwadi, Bhavnagar. He was educated in Morvi, Rajkot and Bombay, and from early manhood he took active and intelligent interest in public affairs. In recognition of his abilities and his loyalty he received the decoration of Companion of the Order of the Indian Empire in 1910. Two years later he became a member of the Executive Council of the Governor of Bombay, serving in that capacity for five years, when he was promoted to membership in the General Council of the Empire. While on duty in Bombay in 1915 the decoration of Knight Commander of the Indian Empire was bestowed upon him.

Sir Prabhakar was born in 1862. In 1891 he married Rama Visvanath Hithaji. They have two sons.

HOLIDAY RAMBLES

Going down the Gaspe towards "Ship Head," there is a place along Gaspe Bay called Peninsula Point. Here General Wolfe spent a winter. He was sent by General Amherst to reduce the French settlements of Gaspe. This was after the capture of Louisbourg. The inhabitants on seeing the ships enter the bay around Point St. Peter, fourteen miles down, took to the woods. General Wolfe tried in every way to reassure the frightened inhabitants that they would be treated with kindness, but they could not think good of the English. Then Wolfe landed and took possession. This is put down by historians as taking place Sept. 6th, 1768. That Wolfe landed here there is no doubt. The site of Wolfe's house is still pointed out on Peninsula Point. For some time various stories have been in circulation as to ghosts seen around this spot, and nervous people do not care to visit this place alone. Mr. Johnston, a citizen of Gaspe, has, with his wife, lived on Peninsula Point for some months on different occasions. He has a certain curiosity about him and possesses the instincts of an adventurer. It was a pleasure to meet this gentleman and to hear from his own lips the account of things his spouse has turned up, testifying to the fact of Wolfe's stay at this place. Among other things Mr. Johnston found was the skeleton of a man. The bones gave evidence of a big man. The skull was so large that Mr. Johnston could put it down over his own head. He had this skeleton all placed together, bone to bone, and lying on the ground, then gave it a decent burial.

It would not be strange at all to conclude that some of Wolfe's men died during that long cold winter on that bleak and inhospitable point. And not only one but several skeletons might be found. The one fact which suggests foul play is the unusual sounds heard both by Mr. Johnston and his good wife. According to Captain Bell, Wolfe's men after fighting away the Indians, burned their homes and stores to the ground. And it is said General Wolfe felt badly when he learned the facts. Such brutal fellows might easily have a quarrel and end it by murder. If murder had been committed the act is so far in the dim past as to make it utterly impossible to punish the guilty party. In that case the ghosts might just as well give up the vigilance and cease to frighten the people. It is to be hoped that some adequate explanation may yet be given of the unusual sounds heard and that no thought of wrong be harboured against so noble and heroic man as Wolfe.

Near the Plains of Abraham, Quebec, along the shore of the majestic St. Lawrence is Wolfe's Cove. As we looked upon it this summer, we thought of that memorable night when he with his men in boats drifted down the river looking for a place to land into this cove they thrust their boats. Above them towered the high cliffs, on the successful scaling of which hung the loss or gain of Canada. It was the 12th of September, 1768, when Wolfe with his volunteers drifted down the river. Perfect silence was maintained, except in one of the boats, when the young general in a low voice full of feeling repeated Gray's Elegy to the officers. "Gentlemen," said he, "I would rather have written those lines that take Quebec." When the cove was reached the boats quickly discharged their human freight, each man passed across the sandy beach and on hands and knees, holding to bushes, vines, roots of trees, breathless and in silence began to take the ascent. The rest of the story every school girl knows. The top was gained, the sentry over-looking and on the Plains of Abraham, Canada passed from the French to the English. On the Plains of Abraham of the very spot where Wolfe fell a fine monument has been erected, around the monument beautiful flowers bloom where the precious blood of the General flowed to the ground.

Lying upon the ground dying, some one shouted "Run! Run! Run!" as one rushed from sleep the dying man uttered "Who run?" The enemy sir, they give way everywhere!" Giving one last command he uttered his last words "Now, God be praised, I die in peace," and the soul of James Wolfe took its flight.

That night drifting down the river he had recited the memorable lines—"The path of glory leads but to the grave." So it was with Wolfe, so it has been with others.

The Plains of Abraham once the scene of battle, whose ground was stained by the blood of those noble fellows who fought both in the English and French ranks is today a beauty spot. Here trees, shrubs and lovely flowers with concrete road for trams and autos, with concrete walks for pedestrians and a gravelled path for horse-back riding, make beautiful and attractive the place where men once suffered, bled and died, and so the Plains of Abraham stand as a symbol of all the beauty and glory which have come to us because of the suffering and death of him who to make it all possible chose "The path of glory" which led "to the grave."

First Harvest Festival

Who was the originator of the Harvest Festival? It is commonly supposed to date from the General Thanksgiving ordered by Queen Victoria in 1843, but Archbishop Doussin held a harvest festival in his church at Ely, in the year 1243, and the famous poet-preacher, Hawker of Howestown, held a similar service in his Cornish village of that same year. The most popular of all harvest hymns, too—"Don't forget to come, yet thankful people come"—was written some years before the Queen's proclamation.

The Canadian contingent "Princess Pate," who saved Ypres, are shown in several scenes in "The Heart of Humanity" Allen Holubar's eight-act production of love and war which comes to the Opera House on Wed. & Thur. next, with Dorothy Phillips in the featured role.

Harrowing Recollection

"Going out for the hockey team, Bill."

"How, every time I get on a skate it brings back old times and I lose all interest in the game."

Greatest Ever.

The editor had stated his case in a few halting sentences. "But have you achieved a success in life?" asked the adored one's father.

"Oh, boy! Hye I!" blurted the happy youth. "Why, didn't I make it clear to you that your daughter has promised to be my wife?"

A New Character

When, four years ago, KING COLE ORANGE PEKOE TEA first appeared, something more than a new tea had been produced—a new character in tea had been created. Only after most searching experiments in flavor-blending were we at last able to develop that peculiarly mellow richness of flavor so delightful to the taste, which has won for KING COLE ORANGE PEKOE the high place it holds. The total annual sale of KING COLE ORANGE PEKOE has doubled twice in the last two years.

We are confident that you will say that it is different to any tea you ever tasted.

CIVIC GOVERNMENT

A sign of the times is the growing demand in the more progressive cities and towns for what is termed "expert" administration. It is freely admitted now that the supreme need in civic government is that each department, as well as the whole administration, shall have experts at its head, and that such experts shall be selected by proper competitive tests. There are cities in Europe where a corps of men take up civic administration as a vocation. In the true sense of the word there is very little expert guidance in Canadian cities. Men are placed in important positions largely through "pull" and precious little head is given to qualifications. Montreal Star.

Just how he was boring Jackson, from the office. He showed him his four rose trees, his half-inch fountain jet, with its little basin and pair of gold-fish; he showed him his Summer house which would almost admit two persons; "know what you can do with a bit of ground till you try!" called the host, rubbing his hands gleefully. "Quite so—quite so!" returned Jackson solemnly. "But I think you might improve it."

"How?" questioned the owner. "Well," replied Jackson, "why don't you take a strip of the flower bed—say four inches wide—turf it over and convert it into golf links."

Canada—Why?

It is really worth while to develop industries and industries which are distinctive Canadian, and which promote the welfare and prosperity of the Canadian people? Of course it is!

Are we waiting our time and energy in training Canadian ability and encouraging Canadian enterprise? Of course not!

CANADA is more than an accident of geography. The magnificent record of effort made by Canadians in the great European struggle bears witness that the peaceful and unhindered development of the Canadian ideal should be maintained.

The future of Canada depends upon the sincere and earnest self-expression of Canada's millions of workers—at the plough, the loom, the forge—in the factory, the office and the home. And loyalty to Canada is best expressed, not in bursts of patriotic emotion on state occasions, but in supporting and sustaining Canadian enterprise and Canadian industry.

Much Nonsense is Talked About the National Debt

A GREAT deal of nonsense is being talked to-day about the National Debt. We frequently hear people speak about the gravity of our financial position, writes Rowland Walker in Pearson's Weekly. Some nervous folk declare that the country is staggering under an "impossible load. Even a respectable newspaper recently asserted that we were "leading for national bankruptcy."

What, then, is the truth about our national liabilities? In the country really in debt? And if so, to whom is the money owing? Is there any danger that the creditors will put the brokers in and sell up the Old Country?

By the National Debt, of course, we mean the sum of money borrowed by the Government. Now, this is worth more than money, whether it be the life of an individual or a nation. And during those dark days of 1914-1915, we rightly staked everything we possessed in order to secure victory. Money had to be spent like water, and so we piled up a National Debt which now approximates to £2,000,000,000. Every year, therefore, we must raise nearly £400,000,000 in taxation from our people in order to provide interest and sinking fund upon this colossal sum.

If we had been compelled to borrow this large sum of money abroad, I admit that there would have been cause for alarm. In buying liberty for ourselves and our children, we should have sold ourselves into financial bondage to foreign creditors. And every year we should have had to pay our creditors in gold or its equivalent the vast amount of £400,000,000. This would really have meant placing the whole of the British Isles at the disposal of the foreigner for an indefinite number of years.

Fortunately, nothing of this kind happened. When the call for money came, and the Government had to borrow so enormously, the people within their islands put their hands into their own pockets and supplied the cash.

Nine-tenths of the Public Debt is held by men and women in this country. The rest, it is true, had to be borrowed abroad, chiefly from America, who lent it, not in money, but in food supplies and in raw materials for munitions of war. But even the loan from America is more than repaid by the money which we sent to the colonies, and to the Allies in order to hasten victory.

To be plain, then, the National Debt is owing to ourselves. Britain is the debtor, it is true, but British hands are the creditors. It is merely a matter of national bookkeeping. We can amass our own wealth to the tune of £600,000,000, and then we distribute the same in the shape of interest to our own people.

It is sheer nonsense for people to talk about our being ruined by the National Debt. As a matter of fact, the city and the banks are going on just as usual. If prices have risen so have wages, and money appears to be more plentiful than ever. Trade is booming, and there isn't the slightest evidence of impending national bankruptcy.

The National Debt is really a family affair, then, and, as a man does not usually put the brokers into his own house, neither shall we break up the British Empire to pay back the loan, which we have only borrowed from ourselves. And I firmly believe that, as a result of the nation's patriotism, and the Government's thrift and economy campaigns, hundreds of millions which might have been flung away in doubtful foreign investments, bogus companies, useless luxuries and so on, have been wisely invested in the National Debt.

Though generally credited as of Scottish origin, there is certain evidence that golf may have been introduced to Scotland from Holland. It was Scotland, nevertheless, that kept the game alive, and gave it to all the Anglo-Saxon peoples. Golf was played in Scotland for generations before it became at all fashionable in England. We know that it was played in the fifteenth century—how long before is unknown. The rules of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, which was founded in 1754, were for many years, and are now, accepted by practically all golf clubs. The rules of Golf Committee, appointed within the last few years, consists of members of the Royal and Ancient Club, so that it has in no way relaxed its authority as acknowledged law giver.

Sir Basil Zaharoff, G.C.B., is Very Wonderful Person, If He Really Can Be Found

IF you ever hear of Sir Basil Zaharoff, G.C.B., G.B.E.? Neither did we. But the London correspondent of the Sun and New York Herald says that he is one of the most remarkable and interesting men in the world, and he makes out a pretty good case for it, too, unless he is drawing upon a highly hectic imagination. According to him Sir Basil is the "Millionaire of Mystery," one of the wealthiest men in the world, whose various art collections can compare with those of any American millionaire, and whose philanthropies are as vast as they are capricious. He is about to visit this continent on a special mission for the British Government.

His visit has to deal with finance, of course, for it is in the realm of finance that Sir Basil shines with purest ray serene. The fact that he was born about 45 years ago of obscure parents and in the intervening years has made himself an amazing fortune, and was able at more than one critical moment in the war to throw his tremendous resources on the side of the Allies would seem to qualify him particularly for a financial mission.

Sir Basil was born of a Greek mother and a Russian father in Athens and reared amid squalor. At the age of sixteen he went to Paris with five francs in his pocket. We now skip over the next fifty odd years and find him dwelling in a palace, one at a time, but having half a dozen other palaces to dwell in when he gets tired of one. We quote from the correspondent: "He enjoys the fellowship of the elect, the homage of beauty, the admiration of statesmen, and the esteem of scholars, and if there is anything else to enjoy he probably enjoys that too. His name is described as short, wiry but distinguished looking, with kindly blue-grey eyes, white hair, mousetail, and Imperial. He has never been known to appear without a red carnation in his buttonhole, from which one would infer that he is always well dressed. In addition, he has an intellectual bearing. Despite his kinks, his character has some quaint kinks. For instance, though a bachelor, he hates to quarrel with a woman, and his escapades from matrimony have been thrilling, his fame and wealth having made him an extraordinarily interesting lure to the ladies. He has had other spouses, too. In the war the Germans are said to have paid him a price of $100,000 on his head, for they recognized in him a determined and influential enemy."

The Sun correspondent, Mr. Edgar G. Middleton, tells of an interview Sir Basil had with a former Chancellor of the Exchequer in one of the dark days of the war, and though we do not believe the anecdote, we repeat it. At the time, millions of every kind were being needed, but the necessary credit to purchase them was not forthcoming. Matters were at their most desperate when one day the Chancellor happened to subscribe himself to a friend.

"The million pounds," remarked the friend, "is a large sum, but it is required. That's nothing. I know a man who would guarantee you that amount within twelve hours. He's in London now. I'll ask him to drop in." And he did. He was a man that within the stipulated time the British Government was guaranteed the required sum. If you believe that a Greek, who, up to this time, was unknown to the British Government, could raise money for millions that the British Government could not raise when the very existence of the Empire was at stake, you may accept this story.

Here is another one that does not seem so severely "exaggerated" in the opening stages of the war, Germany was keenly anxious to secure the co-operation of Sir Basil, and at this time Greece, through its king, was Germany's unofficial ally. Strong representations were made through important Greek personages that Sir Basil should have a conference with German financial experts. To the astonishment of his friends, who knew that Zaharoff was strongly French by adoption, he consented and the meeting took place. The Germans thought that their credit was about to be aided by the untold millions of the Greek financier. Sums of hundreds of millions of dollars were mentioned, respectfully but confidently, Zaharoff was told certain things. He went away, and he did not come back, but it is said that as a result of his information he all but doubled his fortune in two days. It was after this unfortunate incident that the German Government put a price on his head.

For were they mistaken, for throughout the war he gave or lent colossal sums to various allies, in nearly every case his name being withheld at his request. Thus it is that Sir Basil Zaharoff is practically unknown, while men with a title of his money and a decimal point of his wealth are famous internationally. He is a philanthropist, with his own ideas of giving money. He has established a Chair of Aeronautics in Paris, and another at the London University. Mr. Middleton says that he has also established a Chair of French at Oxford, a statement that makes a further pull on our credulity. He established a radio telegraph station at Athens. His benevolences are made without fuss. He asks how much is wanted, when it is required and how it is to be spent. If the answer satisfies him he presents his fountain pen and signs on the dotted line with a single gesture. He refuses to use a typewriter. He has never ridden in an automobile, nor in a flying machine, despite his powerful encouragement to this sport or science.

A close-up view of the blowing up of a trench in No Man's Land is one of the hundreds of thrilling features in Allen Holubar's eight-reel production, "The Heart of Humanity," in which Dorothy Phillips will appear in the leading role at the Opera House next Wed. & Thur.

Dorothy Phillips has been cast in the most appealing role of her screen career in "The Heart of Humanity," Allen Holubar's latest film triumph, which comes to the Opera House next Wed. & Thur.
