OCEANS OF BEER. This year, as far as it has gone, has been exceptionally prosperous for the British brewers. The number of barrels on which duty was paid was 14,-456,501, an increase of over 1,000,000 as compared with the same period last year. The United States has not been taking as much as formerly, but Egypt is rapidly developing a taste for English beers. In answer to these inquiries, Mr. Chamberlain wires the following: 'The Colonial Office attaches no importance to the report. It is believed that all treaties will be submitted to us according to agreement.

OSCAR'S QUICK TEMPER. A special cable dispatch from Berlin of the central section of the general says: King Oscar of Sweden, while traveling through Norway today, left the train at Stoerin. Most of the men on the station platform removed their hats. Several of them, however, kept covered, and the King was in a great rage. He strode up to Ole Foste, a laborer, who had kept his hat on, and knocked the head covering off. Foste lost his temper and started to attack the King, but his friends in the crowd held him back. Most of the men in the crowd who had removed their hats promptly put them on again.

WALES GOING FOR A BATH. The Prince of Wales goes next week to Homburg, where he will take the annual course of bath and det which he finds so beneficial after the fatigue of the London season. During his brief stay in London the Prince's favorite vehicle is a private hansom of dark green pattern, drawn by a large, dark bay, and guided by a driver in irre-proachable drab livery. Seen driving recently in Bond street, the Prince was attired in regulation frock coat and silk hat. His arms rested negli-gently upon the door of his cab, and a cigar of large proportions was between his fingers. Unable to raise his hat, he returned the frequent salutes accorded him with a wave of his hand.

NO MORE WASP WAISTS. An astonishing physiological phenomenon is just announced from Paris. It is that the size of the waists of all women of fashion had suddenly increased three or four inches. Fashion makers, it is declared, have decided that the generous Grecian waist is to be the standard. Search for an explanation of this sudden decree brings an interesting statement from a high authority. He says: "Warnings by medical men against excessive tightlacing are at last being heeded; but in reality the bicycle is responsible for the movement. You can have no idea. of the large proportion of our customers who have taken to the wheel. It is decidedly a great majority. Naturally, the exercise has demanded more freedom of respiration and movement, coming to the conviction that a trifle more liberty in this respect makes a great difference in their comfort, without in any way detracting from their appearance; so the present movement though only within reasonable proportions. An inch and a half to a couple of inches, as a rule, meet the requirements. With the present fashion of loose blouses, tightly-fitting bodices, the difference is scarcely perceptible.

THE BIG FUTURITY STAKE. New York, Aug. 16.—The great Futurity stakes of the Coney Island Jockey Club is over, and the minth the ten contestants to the post, and with little enthusiasm they trotted past the stand up to the chute. After a delay of 25 minutes they were sent away in fair order, with Ogden in the A.B. R. B.H. P.O. A. E. lead and Box second, Panmure third, and Rhodesia fourth. They did not shift in their positions until they were at the quarter pole. Ogden was still in front by a head only, but Tuberville had him well in hand, and was waiting for the final rush. The crack Keene filly, Rhodesia, was next, but only a head in front of Rodermond. Next came the favorite, Ornament, and it seemed then as if the race would be among these four, as the allege that since President Wier took others were practically in the second charge of the company's affairs in the division, and struggling hard to get east wages have been reduced about up to the flying leaders. A Difficult Question Before the Government.

Cross-Petition Against Mr. W. T. R. Preston-The Post of Deputy Postmaster General.

(Special to The Advertiser.) Ottawa, Aug. 16.-The Government has before it a difficult question in the matter of private secretaries' salaries. Many holding these positions have left the medical and legal profession to do so, and as they have not passed the examinations required by the Civil Service Act, are permitted to draw but $600 per annum. Hitherto the difficulty has been overcome by suspending the operation of the act, but as this must be done in the case of each individual private secretary it is objected to. The Government, it is believed, make such amendments to the Civil Service Act as will permit holders of these positions to be fairly compensated without passing the civil service examinations. In Osgoode Hall, Tuesday next, Edmund Bristol will, on behalf of E. B. Osler, enter a cross-petition against W. T. R. Preston, charging unlawful acts on the part of himself and his agent, and asking that he be disqualified.

The position of Deputy Postmaster-General under Hon. Wm. Mulock will probably go to Daniel Spry, postoffice inspector of the London division, which includes Essex county. Mr. Spry is a prominent Mason and a member of the A. O. U. W. Forty years ago he commenced as a postoffice clerk in To-

ROBERT DOWE'S QUEER IDEA.

He Left £50 for What He Thought the Benefit of Men About to Die.

Pall Mall Gazette. Less than a decade is wanting to complete three centuries since Robert Dowe, citizen and merchant tailor, by deed of gift conveyed to the Parish of St. Sepulchre the sum of £50. The object of the gift was peculiar, and may best be understood from the words of the deed itself, which recites that the money was given "on condition that Newgate, not exceeding twelve sessions in the year, shall about the Hour of ten of the clock in the quiet of the night next before every Execution where heaven is. And when St. Sepulchre's bell tomorrow tolls. The Lord above have mercy on your souls. Past twelve o'clock!"

As the criminals passed by the church on their way to Tyburn, a further admonition was addressed to them, and a curious custom prevailed of presenting each unhappy wretch with a nosegay.

A further condition of Dowe's gift was that the greatest bell was always to "towle" as a passing bell on the occasion of an execution until 10 a.m. or the sheriff's officers returned from the execution. The Vestry of St. Sepulchre, though somewhat economical, took good care of their bells, for after the great fire of 1666 we find that all the broken bell metal was ordered to be recast into "three sound and tuneable bells," which were to be of equal weight with the quantity of netal delivered. The other three bells belonging to the church apparently escaped injury from the fire, for on the 16th of March, 1668, the vestry ordered a frame to be made to hang the six bells in the steeple."

The tablet recording Dowe's bequest is still in existence, but the injunctions are no longer regarded, the Charity Commissioners having taken possession of the funds, which are n olied for the benefit of the Discharged Prisoners' Aid Society. The great bell of St. Sepulchre's has not been tolled on the occasion of an execution since gian, was hanged for the murder of a the Chabot Observatory, in Oakland, who accompanies the expedition. His plan is that of giving the correct exposure for each part of every photographic plate at an eclipse. The telescope for this purpose is of 4 inches aperture and 15 feet focus mounted equatorially, and will follow the sun. The image of the eclipsed sun will fall on the negative plate, in front of which is a rapidly-rotating diaphragm; the plate has a hole in its center, through which passes an axis driven by clockwork, and, on the end of the axis

in front of the plate, and close to it, is a rotating fan or diaphragm. The diaphragm is cut into the shape of a double cam, one cam being inverted, so that it is perfectly in balance, and it makes about five revolutions per second. When the plateholder is lifted the clock starts au-tomatically, and runs for about fifteen minutes. Five or six such plates will be exposed during totality, and each plate

will be exposed much longer at the outer limits of the corona, where the light is weakest, than at the inner limit, where the light is strongest. It is, therefore,

hoped to secure in this way a photograph of the corona on a single plate, every part of which has received the proper exposure; this single plate will then exhibit all the details of the corona, instead of having to build up, as it were, the real corona from a series of different thropometry has placed it beyond doubt that the left side of the head is larger than the right, but, so far, no asbolute reason for the difference has been discovered. What we know is, that the vast majority of human beings are right-

sided-that is to say, their right limbs

are larger, stronger, and capable of more delicate action than their left limbs. We also know that the movements of the right limbs are controlled by the centers

of the left hemisphere of the brain, but which of these is cause and which is effect is not known. There is no fundamental reason why the majority of people should be right-sided rather than left-sided; but granted that they have been so, as they have for a very long period, it is easy to see that once right-

sidedness became hereditary, the constant demand on the brain-centers of the left hemisphere would develop them at the expense of those of the right hemisphere. Thus, the majority of children would be born with a tendency to right-to take ducks alive. One is in form like a square box, sides and top of netting, supported at the corners by stakes driven down into the mud. The bottom of the trap is also of netting, except at the center, where there is a round opening, formed by a hoop. Lines carried from the hoop to the corner posts raise the bottom of the trap clear of the bottom of the water in which the trap is placed.

The trap is baited with soaked corn placed under the hoop. The duck dives for the food and comes up through the hoop into the trap. Of course, it could

GREAT ACCIDENTS.

Chance Has Befriended Genins on More The most conspicuous instance of accident befriending genius is the discovery made by Newton. While sitting under an apple tree, one fell and struck him on the head. He was surprised at the force of the stroke and from this he was led to investigate the motion of falling bodies, which finally resulted in his enunciating the principle of gravitation, proba-bly the greatest of all discoveries. Shakespeare owes his fame to the fact that his imprudence made it necessary for him to leave the wool trade, and consequently he fell in with some strolling players, and earned his living by writing. Gibbon, the historian, first thought of writing his great "Decline and Fall" through seeing the friars in the temple of Jupiter at Rome. Sir Joshua Reynolds, having accidentally picked up Richardson's "Treatise," was so inspired by it that he became an artist. Similarly, Covery became a poet owing to the inspiration of Spenser's "Faerie Queen." Corneille first wrote through the inspiration of love and it is probable that but for that we should have lost a great poet. The Jesuits owe their origin to Ignatius Loyola being wounded. While he was recovering he read "Lives of the Saints," which raised an ambition in him to be the founder of a religious order, and the Jesuits resulted. Many more examples might be given, but these are some of the Why Chinese Take to Opium. May it not be from sheer weariness and want of something to do that many Chinese take to the opium pipe? In most places in China organized gambling is forbidden. With the exception of an occasional game at shuttlecock or kifeflying-only at fixed seasons-there are no outdoor sports. The Chinese rarely walk for pleasure. There is no social in tercourse between respectable men and women. There is not sufficient house room, privacy or light for reading after dark. How is time to be killed? I think that the monotony of existence may be one of the chief causes of opium smok-

On the whole, though, at Canton, I was in contact with opium smokers almost daily, and made a point of seeing as much as possible of native life, the seamy side of opium smoking did not obtrude itself much upon me. Just as in an English coast town, one may daily see the flaring light of the gin palace, the besotted faces of occasional loafers, the bedraggled garments, and infer therefrom great misery behind it all, so one might fairly infer great misery from the spectacle of numerous opium dens, cadaverous faces and tatterdemalion garments in Canton, if one should see them, but I did not see them obtrusively, though, as I said before. I was daily poking my nose into all sorts of nooks and corners. Naturally, a medical missionary will see a great deal more of the seamy side. It is his business.

No More Crying Babies. Though the sound of a baby's crying is never agreeable music even to the most devoted mother, it has been held for centuries that this was an affliction from which there was no escape. It has remained for the very new women who are in charge of a well-known New York nursery to discover that an infant's screams are wholy superfluous in a wellregulated home. This is the method by which discontented babies are persuaded to hold their peace: As soon as a child begins to cry the nurse catches it up, holds it gently and places her hand over its nose and mouth so that it cannot breathe. The crying ceases directly and the child is allowed to breathe freely again. Should it a second time attempt to scream the same simple and effectual method is applied. This is repeated till the baby imagines that the painful stoppage of the breath is caused by its own effort to scream and so is careful to

The nurses attest that this regime works to a charm, that the most wellbred quiet is always preserved in the nursery, and that the self-control exhibited by tots of three months old even when in actual pain and distress, is something remarkable. Roaring will therefore be eliminated from the accomplishments of the modern baby.

Treated When He Runs Up a Bill. "Why should a man receive a bonus when he gets things charged instead of paying cash?" asked a New Yorker of an inquiring mind "If I pay my bill regularly every day at the restaurant I frequent a good deal, no notice is taken of it, although in buying goods I would probably get 10 per cent. off for cash. Yet, if I let an account run a week, as a matter of convenience to myself, the proprietor almost invariably offers to treat me when I pay up. "Now, if I always paid at the end of a week, and accepted his offer every time. I would get fifty-two drinks a year for nothing. At the rate of 15 cents a drink, this would amount to $7 80! In addition the restaurant keeper runs the chance of not being paid for an entire week's board. Now, why should he pay a premium of nearly $8 a year to run this chance? Supposing he does it in the case of 100 customers, he pays $780 for the risk of getting cheated, and the risk might often become a certainty in a large number of cases, although in my individual case, I flatter myself it is none at all."-New York Sun.

New Searchlight for Ships.

A novel and powerful searchlight has been invented for the purpose of simplifying searchlight operations on board ship. It is portable, and may be packed in a box when not in use. It can be attached in less than a minute. Its weight is just below 15 pounds, and it can be handled with the greatest ease or suspended from a chain and operated by the officer on watch. Its peculiar feature is that it does not dazzle the sight of the operator. None of its beams is wasted, and it gives a high degree of concentration of light rays upon the object on which they are directed.

The instrument has both automatic and hand feed, and the focussing arrangement is very simple. It shows small objects such as a buoy, three-quarters of a mile off, while it makes sails visible three miles away.

Right to the Point. The clinical lecture room was crowded at 9.30, for every medical student was deeply interested in Dr. Kilorkure's wonderful discourse.

"You will observe, gentlemen," began the doctor, pointing to the patient slumbering peacefully under a mild soportic, "that this is a queer case The vertebra is broken off between the oxias and the

DESERVED A DECORATION.

A Sea Captain Who Would Not Leave Wounded Seaman. The Queen has conferred the decoration of the Albert medal of the first class on Mr. William John Nutman, late master of the steamer Aidar, of Liverpool. The following is an account of the services in respect of which the decoration has been offered: At 2 A. M. on January 19, while the steamer Staffordshire, of Liverpool, was on a voyage from Marseilles to Port Said, signals of distress were observed to be proceeding from the steamer Aidar, also of Liverpool, and the Staffordshire immediately proceeded to her assistance. As the Aidar was found to be sinking fast, three of the Stafordshire's lifeboats were at once launched, and, with great difficulty, owing to the darkness and the heavy sea, succeeded in rescuing her passengers and crew, twenty-nine in number. At 6.10 A. M. the only persons left on the Aldar were Mr. Nutman (the master) and an injured and helpless fireman whom he was endeavoring to save, and whom he absolutely refused to abandon. The steamer was now rapidly settling down, and as it was no longer safe to remain near her the officer in charge of the rescuing boat asked Mr. Nutman for a final answer. He still persisted in remaining with the injured man, choosing rather to face almost certain death than to leave him to his fate. The men in the boat were obliged to pull away, and immediately afterwards, at 6.17 A. M., the Aidar gave one or two lurches and foundered. After she disappeared Mr. Nutman was seen on the bottom of an upturned boat, still holding the fireman. Half an hour elapsed before the rescuing boat could approach, but eventually Mr. Nutman and the fireman were picked up and taken on board the Staffordshire, where the injured man was with difficulty restored by the ship's surgeon .-Pittsburg Dispatch.

Useful Hints.

Window screens of Japanese cedar fretwork are in favor; they are used either in the natural light color or finished to resemble olive wood, cherry, ash or ma-

Slumber rolls of down, also rolls stuffed with curled hair and covered with good ticking are offered ready made for covering. They are easily covered and make a rich accessory in furnishing by any clever housewife.

Picturesque trifles in furnishing often give a touch of refinement; for instance, there are the lovely little porcelain candlesticks, in the form of a full blown pink rose, resting on a spray of green leaves in fine porcelain.

Very decorative screens, threefold, in scarlet silk embroideries with long trailing branches of blossoms and with tropical birds, all in fine silk, are attracting enthusiastic admiration. They are especially handsome in large parlors where they light up somber corners most effectively.

Where windows are built low, as in very old-fashioned houses, leaving considerable space between their tops and the ceiling, pretty railed shelves make a pretty furnishing. They may be ebonized, nahoganized or decorated to match the woodwork of the room.

The newest iron bedsteads which are making their appearance are very decorative, and not unreasonable in price. Besides the brass finish these bedsteads are finished in enamel effect and all the delicate colors used in enameling furniture, and this finish is associated with ornamentation in brass knobs, balls bars and spindles.

Much more pleasing than the ordinary cheap frame for pictures is a frame made of nicely marked pine, stained by rubbing into it with a woolen rag bronzegreen oil paint, thinned with turpentine. This paint, thus applied, brings out all the beauty of the veinage of the wood, giving a pleasing effect. The frame should be finished by a narrow, burnished gilt beading or molding, which may be bought by the foot at a reasonable price.

To remove the finger marks from varnished furniture rub them with a cloth dampened with sweet oil. To remove them from oiled furniture use kerosene

The Grandeur of a Church.

We should never think of complaining of the grandeur of a church. It cannot be too grand, too stately or too costly. At best, it will but faintly express the glory of Him whose house it is built to be, and almost as feebly the depth of gratitude which men ought to entertain towards Him to whose honor they have built it. Let the light sift down through lofty "agate windows" in all the splendor of gold shadows of pictured saint and angel; let the roof rise high with costly stones, ribbed and covered with soaring branch and bursting flower. Let the walls glow with the costliest adornments of art and skill; let the whole glorious house be dim with far-reaching shadows and bright with the splendid lights, dim with violet and bright with the crimson; let it speak of awe and mystery and vastness, and of light and beauty and bightness, too. Let it be the best we can give, and the noblest we can do, and we shall have only done what enlightened Christian judgment will justify.-Bishop Thompson.

Let Her Alone. The art of letting alone should be acquired. Zion's Herald tells why:-

"My dear,," the other day said a lady to a young relative, who was insisting that a delicate mother should not wear herself out by undertaking some work on which the mother's heart was set, "you tire her a great deal more by your opposition than she would tire herself by doing as she wishes to."

It was true, though it was hard for the loving daughter to understand why. One has to arrive at a certain place in life to comprehend that the largest kindness which may be done to any one is, in nine cases out of ten, just to let the person alone. Especially in the dealings of the young with the old there is need of caution, for even kindness may fail if it be overdone.

Curious Storage of Hay.

An English traveler through Kashmir found in practice there a novel method of putting fodder up for winter use. The country lies in a valley among the Himalayas. The chief industry of the people consists in raising fine wool, and in making this into fabrics which have carried the name of the country all over the world.

A curious custom in some places is that of hanging quantities of hay up among the branches of trees. Why it was done was more than I could guess, till my guide informed me that in winter the snow lies five and six yards in depth, and that the supplies of hay, which now look as if they were meant for camelopards, are then easily reached by the locks of sheep which abound there.

International Interest.

One remarkable feature of Canadian everyday life is the avidity with which our people take up and discuss ques tions that are live in the United States. ket places, in every public and private gathering today, we find men discussadian issue instead of the all-engrossing question in a Presidential election.

In this tendency we have demoncoinage agitation in the Dominion?

Another distinguished Canadian has been discovered. Today Mr. Frederick C. Gordon, who has become famous to the public for the exquisite illustrations in Ian Maclaren's recent works. is visiting his old Cobourg home. He was born there 38 years ago. Our boys can hold their own with the best of them.

Home Interests First.

The Dominion Government has refused to allow a Sandusky, O., paper manufacturing company to bring into Canada free of duty its teams, presses, etc. This company has bought straw in Essex county, and it wished to handle the product with its own plant, but as there are plenty of teams, presses and men in Canada, no exception was made to the rule,

Rev. Thomas Wilson's Inaugural Sermon.

Rev. Thomas Wilson, the new pastor

among you save Jesus Christ and Him ly upon this day, this hour, this service. If at its very beginning the minister fully recognizes his position and responsibility among the people, and the people theirs, both to the minister and his work, and each rises to do his duty, then success must follow. For this reason, then, we shall divide the day's work by this morning looking at the minister's duty to the people, and in the evening, the people's duty to the minister. For my own pant, let me say that I determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified. In a call to the ministry we recognize two things: The call of God and the call of the people. No man should enter the ministry unless called of God to it. At the beginning of his ministry he should receive from the Lord his commission. The lesson read gives him his commission. God says I have set thee as a watchman to warn the people. Failing to warn, the peo-ple may perish, and their blood will be required at the hand of the watchman. The minister should deliver every message as though it might be the last he should deliver, or as though someone is hearing message for the last time, and if we know it to be entire, the message would certainly be Jesus Christ and Him crucified. Do not forget, then, that the minister is only faithful when Christ is his theme. But we recognize also the call of the people. I have not been sent here by a bishop or sta-tioning committee, but by the call of the people. What did you in that call expect me to do? You called me, if I understood your meaning, to preach Christ Jesus and Him cru-cified. Do not lose sight of the fact that you expect me to be faithful. I shall only be faithful when urging upon you to become more and more like Christ. Do not think that the minister considers you to be of so much importance that he will write and deliver a part of his sermon especially for one individual. If the message hits you, say nothing about it. being still unresponsive. Yarns are and no one will know that that is from a farthing to 1-8s dearer, but your particular failing. this pulpit." AT ST. ANDREW'S. Rev. Robert Johnston preached his first sermon after his vacation to a large congregation at St. Andrew's yesterday morning. The reverend gentleman took for his text Genesis, xxxii., 24, and dealt with Jacob's crisis. He pointed out that the interpretation of this incident as an example of prevailing prayer was incorrect. Jacob's life hitherto had been twisted and scheming. God had to have dealings with Jacob in order to change his character before he could be allowed to enter upon his possessions in the promised land, and it was when Jacob ceased his strugand in his own helplessness cast himself upon God, that he was allowed to enter upon that inheritance. The incident was then applied to the different phases of Christian experience.

death of an old and highly respected citizen -Mr. James Sharpe, of 246 Oxford street, who passed away last evening. The deceased was in his 86th year, and his death was simply the outcome of old age. For some time past Mr. Sharpe's health has been failing, although he had been able to get around, and to his many friends appeared as well as usual. He was about on Saturday, and had made preparations for the Sabbath. He was taken ill on Saturday night with dysentery and vomiting, and his advanced years told against his recovery, although everything was done that medical skill and kind friends could devise. The Chicago and Western Indiana of Chicago and Western Indiana physician stated that death had resulted possibly from cholora morbus. Consequently holders of silver bullion ceased to send it to the United States mints. and the silver dollars previously coined were hoarded.

When the mint laws were revised in 1873, the provision for the free coinage of silver dollars was dropped. This attracted little attention at the time because none of these dollars had been in circulation for a generation; and, in fact, only eight millions of them in all had been coined from the foundation of the Government up to that time. If we compare this with the dietary system of Dickens, which represents that of his period, his comparatively early decease will excite no surprise. According to English standards, he was an accomplished gastronome. Beef-steak pudding was his ideal, a horrible concoction, only fit for a crude or de-based palate. His highest conception of a dinner was a baked leg of mutton with the bone removed and the cavity filled with a stuffing of oysters and veal. This was accompanied with gin punch, in the making of which Dick-ens took especial pride. It was made as follows: A brass kettle of water was heated over a spirit lamp. When the water came to a boil it was poured into a jug, with a bottle of old gin, lumps of sugar and chips of lemon The mouth of the jug was then to this country in 1830. street. Walworth. "How I wish you could see this place, dearest; the blue sky, the clive woods, the orange and lemon orch-ards between the cliffs and the seasheltering in the hollow of the great hills—and with summer waves dancing up to the narrow ridge of pebbles and weeds which is the Italian idea of a beach. Oh, how I wish you could see It all, mother dear, and bask in the sunshine, that makes it so difficult to believe the date at the head of the November! The air is like an English June-the sun is so hot that I can't walk a few yards without an umbrella. And to think of you at Walworth while I am here! I could cry at the thought that perhaps you will never see this lovely coast, this that bloom in winter. There is a hedge of pink geraniums under my window, ther-a thick, rank hedge, as if the flowers grew wild-and there are Dion roses climbing over arches and palisades all along the terrace—a rose garden full of bloom in November! Just picture it all. You could never imagine the luxury of this hotel. It is nearly new, and has been built and decorated regardless of expense. Our rooms are upholstered in pale blue satin, which shows up Lady Ducayne's parchment complexion; but as she sits all day in a corner of the balcony basking in the sun, except when she is in her carriage, and all the evening in her armchair close to the fire, and never sees anyone but her own people, her complexion matters very lit-

"She has the handsomest suite of rooms in the hotel. My bedroom is inside hers, the sweetest room-all blue satin and white lace—white enameled furniture — looking-glasses on every wall, till I know my pert little profile as I never saw it before. The room was really meant for Lady Ducayne's itting by the heaped up olive logs in the overheated salon—thought of that dressing room, but she ordered one of the blue satin couches to be arranged as a bed for me-the prettiest little bed, which I can wheel near the window on sunny mornings, as it is on castors, and easily moved about. I feel as if Lady Ducayne were a funny old grandmother, who had suddenly appeared in my life, very, very sick, and was not at all exacting. I read aloud to her a good deal, and she dozes and nods while I read. Sometimes I hear her moaning in her sleep as if she had troublesome dreams. When she is tired of my reading she orders Francine, her maid, to read a French novel to her, and I hear her chuckle and groan now and then, as if she was more interested in those books than in Dickens or Scott. My French is not good enough to follow Francine, who reads very quickly. I have a great deal of liberty, for Lady Ducayne often tells me to run away amuse myself. I roam about the hills for hours. Everything is so lovely. I lose myself in olive woods, always climbing up and up towards the pine woods above-and above the pines there are the snow mountains that just show their white peaks above the dark hills. Oh, you poor dear, how can I ever make you understand what this place is like—you, whose poor, tired eyes have only the opposite side of Beresford street? Sometimes I go no farther than the terrace in front of the hotel, which is a favorite lounging place with everybody. The gardens lie below, and the tennis courts, where I sometimes play with a very nice girl, the only person in the hotel with whom I have made friends. She is a year older than I and has come to Ferrino with her brother, a doctora medical student, who is going to be a doctor. He passed his M. B. exam. at Edinburgh just before they left home. Lotta told me. He came to Italy entirely on his sister's account. She had a troublesome chest attack last summer, and was ordered to winter abroad. They are orphans, quite alone in the world, and so fond of each other. It is very nice for me to have such a friend as Lotta. She is so thoroughly respectable. I can't help using that word, for some of the girls in this hotel go on in a way that I know you would shudder at

I want no one, mother darling, for I have you, and you are all the world to me. No husband could ever come between us two. If I were ever to marry he would have only the second place in my heart. But I don't suppose I shall ever marry or even know what it is like to have an offer in marriage. No young man

This letter was written when Bella had been less than a month at Cap Ferrino, before the novelty had worn off the landscape, and before the pleasure of luxurious surroundings had begun to cloy. She wrote to her mother every week, such long letters as girls who have lived in closest companionship with a mother alone can write; letters that are like a diary of heart and mind. She wrote gaily always; but when the new year begun, Mrs. Rolleston thought she de-tected a note of melancholy under all those lively details about the place and the people.

"My poor girl is getting homesick." she thought. "Her heart is in Beresford

It might be that she missed her new friend and companion, Lotta Stafford, who had gone with her brother for a little tour to Genoa and Spezzia, and little tour to Genoa and Spezzia, and as far as Pisa. Visitors at the hotel had told her that the air of Cap Ferrino was relaxing—better suited to age than to youth, to sickness than to health. No doubt it was so. She was not so well as she had been at Walworth; but she told herself that she was suffering only from the pain of separation from the dear companion of her girlhood, the mother who had been nurse, sister, friend, flatterer, all things in the world to her. She had shed many tears over that parting, had spent many a melancholy hour on the marble terrace, with yearning eyes looking westward, and with her heart's desire a thousand miles away.

Mary Ellen, who was faiendless, had been engaged by Dr. De-Hart-Fernald to do light usework, and when the family left for the country she remained in charge of the house. Mr. De Hart-Fernald returned early yesterday. After repeated rings at the doorbell a window was forced. Going down stairs, he called for Ellen, and, meeting with no response, hurried to the kitchen. There he found the body of the old domestic. Her eyes were half closed, her sleeves rolled up and irons and clothes were near by. She had been dead about 24 hours. The heat, causing heart failure, was given as the cause of death. The body was taken to the morgue. Dr. De Harte will, however, arrange for the funeral.

Roberts and Friend left this city to gether. The finding of a letter, in which was set forth their purpose to die together, has confirmed the theory of premeditated suicide. The compact was made when the two young men where out of employment and it was carried into execution only after each had tried to better his position in life and failed.

With hands firmly clasped they entered upon their last step. The night was dark and the train crew could not discern the two bodies upon the track. The headless runks of the two men were not found until the section men went over the road the next

Some Odd Experiences Where the Thermometer is Phenomenally High.

A Glass Factory Where Boys Toiled While Hats Melted!

No one can tell how high a temperature man can endure until he is subjected to the trial. The effect of an intensely heated atmosphere in causing death has been but little studied. "Some years since," says Dr. Taylor, the eminent jurisprudent, "I was consulted in once case in which the captain of a steam vessel was charged with manslaughter for causing a man to be lashed within a short distance of the stoke-hole of the furnace. The man died in a few hours, apparently from the effects of his exposure. Yet the engine rooms of steamers in the tropics have been observed to have a temperature of high as 140, and engineers after a time become habituated to this excessive heat, without appearing to suffer materially in health. In certain manufactories the body appears to acquire a power, by habit, of resisting these high temperatures; still it has been proved that many suffer severely. In a report on the employment of children (London), it is stated that in a glass manufactory a thermometer held close to a boy's head stood at 130 degrees and as the inspector stood near to observe the instrument his hat actually melted out of shape. Another boy had his hair singed by the heat, and said that his clothes were sometimes singed, too, while a third worked in a temperature no less than 150 degrees. Amid this tremendous heat they carry on work which requires their constant attention. They are incessantly in motion.

In the Turkish baths higher temperatures than this have been noted, but there is reason to believe that serious symptoms have been occasionally produced in persons unaccustomed to them, and that in one or two cases death has resulted. All sudden changes from a low to a high temperature are liable to cause death ir aged persons The mother's instinct had been true. | dicative of an effect on the brain, and nace he was observed to fall suddenly on the floor in a state of insensibility. her orange suck in sheer gladness of heart as her light feet skipped over the rough ground and the coarse grass on the mountain side. The odor of rosemary and thyme, the fresh breath of the sea no longer filled her with rapture.

She thought of Beresford street and country. In some cases a person may sink and die from exhaustion, or symptoms of serebral disturbance may continue for some time and the case ultimately prove fatal.

Death from sunstroke, when it is not immediately fatal, is preceded by some well-marked symptoms, such as weakness, giddiness, headache, disturbed vision, flushing of the face, followed by oppression and difficulty of breathing, and in some cases stupor, passing into profound coma. The skin is dry and hot, and the heat of the body is much greater than natural.

. A TERRIFIC SEA FIGHT. The Prince of Monaco has recently announced his intention to send his yacht on an expedition of discovery among the haunts of the sperm whale. This leads Mr. Frank T. Bullen to relate in Nature some of his experiences with whales and he tells a story of a fight of sea monsters in the Strait of Malacca which reads like a romance. The fight occurred in a smooth sea on a moonlight night, and Mr. Bullen watched it from the deck of a ship with the aid of a night glass. His attention was first attracted by a commotion in the water, which he supposed might be caused by a volcanic disturbance of the sea bed. Examination with the glass showed a very large sperm whale engaged in deadly conflict with a monster squid or devilfish, whose tentacles encircled the whale's body. "The livid whiteness of those writhing arms, which enlaced the cachalot (whale) like a nest of mighty serpents stood out in bold relief against the black, boulder-like head of the aggressor." The aggressor was the whale, squids being a favorite prey of sperm whales. "Presently the whale raised itself half out of water, and we plainly saw the awful-looking head of the gigantic mollusk. At our distance, something under a mile, it appeared about the size of one of our largest oil casks, which held 336 gallons. Like the rest of the squid visible it was of a pe-culiar dead white, and in it gleamed two eyes of inky blackness about a foot in diameter. To describe the wonderful contortions of those two monsters is far beyond my powers. All around the combatants were either smaller whales or immense sharks. who were evidently assisting in the destruction of the squid, and getting a full share of the feast." Mr. Bullen says the encircling tentacles gradually slipped off the whale's body, and the fight ended in an evident triumph for the whale.

You don't reach the cause. Go for the kidneys, and the backache goes. Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kid-That is why they cure backache.

This is a fact which can be proven. London people say so. Here is one: Mrs. Mary Wonnacot, 380 Clarence street, London Ont., says: "I have had serious kidney troubles for fourteen years. For the past two years I have been a great sufferer. The doctor said I had what is called 'floating kidney.' I have suffered very much with pain in the back and right side, also neuralgic pains in my head. I was nervous, could not sleep well, had no appetite and was completely dragged out. I was in great distress all the time, and felt thoroughly miserable and sick. "For many years I tried a great number of medicines in order to get relief, but all without avail, until I sent to Strong's drug store and got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I told my doctor I had got them, and he said they would undoubtedly do me good, and they have done so, far beyond my expectations. Since I have been taking them I have felt better every day. They have relieved me and help-ed me in all the distressing ailments to which I was subject. I am stronger; have no more pain. Appetite is much better, and in every way I feel they have done me the greatest good. It is a great thing for me that at last I have found something that suits my case, and which I know benefits me as no other remedy could do."

A young man hired a horse and rig from Young's livery Saturday night, intending to enjoy a couple of hours' drive, but his pleasure was interrupted quite unexpectedly by the loss of his outfit. He drove to a friend's residence on William street, near Oxford, and left his horse tied outside, while he went into the house. While inside some person or persons appropriated the outfit, and after driving until the horse was almost exhausted turned it loose somewhere in the northern suburbs of the city. It was found by Mr. George Bell about 5 o'clock Sunday morning.

School Examinations.

Thirteen Thousand Competed in This Province-The Result to be Known Within a Week.

The Arrival Home of Principal Merchant of the London Collegiate.

The arrival home of Principal Merchant, of the London Collegiate Institute, and other examiners in the recent departmental examinations for teachers' certificates and "passes" has caused numerous inquiries to be made at The Advertiser office as to the probable date of publishing results. It is now believed that the names of successful candidates will be printed on Tuesday, Aug. 25, perhaps a day or two earlier. There were 13,000 candidates this year in the various departments—a greater number than ever before. Not more than half of these can hope to be successful, and the problem now is who the lucky ones will be. Over 200 examiners were busy reading papers for about two weeks. Each candidate had an average of seven papers to write on. and some of them turned in as many as 30 pages of foolscap on such a algebra paper was very objectionyond the limit. A meeting of high school teachers was held in Toronto protect the candidates. Some of the dinner was tendered the friends of the teachers spoke in favor of lowering the percentage required. Mr. Mayberry, of Stratford, objected to that as many of the best students got "rattled" when they saw the paper and were unable to do anything. He introduced a resolution requesting the examiners to throw the paper out altogether. This was carried unanimously, and the examiners are likely to take the hint throughout the provinces. The primary class this year, it is said, is a very poor one, and large numbers of these will fail. JOINED THE SISTERHOOD.

In Starting an Association for the Education of Railway Men.

Valuable Collection of Models, Drawings and Literature-Mr. Thomas Mc-Hattie the Promoter.

In connection with the Grand Trunk Railway system here, there is an educational association which, though quite young, has exerted a most beneficial influence on those connected with it. The prime object is to increase the knowledge of the members -particularly the engineers, firemen and fitters-in regard to the various mechanical contrivances they are daily required to use. London has the honor of being the comotive foreman here, was the promoter, and brought about its organization last January, assisted by Messrs. Geo. Martindale, Alf. Crouch, Geo. Black, D. W. Smith, Wm. Marshall, Walter Loveridge and Charles Harrison. As president, Mr. McHattie is constantly on the alert to further the progress of the association. The members number in all about

The railway company have generously provided a spacious and com-fortable room in the old G. T. R. depot at the corner of Burwell and Bathurst streets, and also furnish gas and heat entirely free. Here the meetings are held semi-monthly. It is very interesting to visit the association, and visitors are heartily welcome at the meetings. To thoroughly understand the construction and workings of the very complex machinery of a railroad en-gine, especially those most recently built, requires a great deal of study road magazines, including "Locomotive Engineering." The interest taken in the society shows that the men are eager to improve, and Mr. McHattie, who has risen from the panks himself, has taken this means of lending a helping hand to his fellow-workers. Late Engineer Boath was a prominent worker in the society, and rendered valuable assistance, giving occasional lectures. He was to have lectured at the meeting following the day of his tragic death. Following are the officers: President, Thos. McHattie; first vice-president, late Engineer Boath; second vice-president, D. W. Smith; third vice-president, Wm. Marshall; secretary-treasurer, Geo. Black. Associations of a similar kind are now being formed in the different
