IDLEMAN IN CUSTODY

Story of Collector's Arrest Confirmed

United States Marshal Perry and Customs Collector En Route
With Warrant.

Mr. Frank W. Clayton, formerly well known Dawsonite and secretary of the Board of Trade, is renewing old acquaintances here, having arrived yesterday morning from Eagle on the Steamer Tyrrell. Mr. Clayton is now deputy United States marshal stationed at the town of Wickersham which is at the mouth of Steele creek between Fortymile and Eagle. Except that he is suborned from outdoor exercise, Mr. Clayton looks the same as of yore.

The account of the arrest of deputy
U. S. customs collector W. J. Idle-man published exclusively in the Nugget of June 1th, is confirmed by Mr. Clayton, who took Idleman into custody and escorted him to Eagle where he is being held awaiting trial for embezzlement. Idleman was arrested on receipt by Clayton of a telegram sent from Skagway on May 29th by G. G. Perry, U. S. marshal for the 3rd District of Alaska, who stated that he has with him a warrant for Idleman. Perry accompanyed by customs collector for the district of Alaska Captain J. H. Jarvis is expected to reach Dawson not later than tomorrow or the next day when they will proceed on down the river for the purpose of laying formal charges against the alleged delinquent deputy collector.

While in the custody of a deputy marshal to whom Clayton turned his prisoner over at Eagle, Idleman has not been placed in jail. Mr. Clayton says Idleman takes his arrest philosophically and says he is not afraid but that an honest and careful investigation will exonerate him from all liability. He says he has been jobbed by political enemies. Idle-man has always borne an excellent reputation both at Portland, his former home, and since taking possession of the office at the boundary line three years ago. He is a brother of C. M. Idleman, former attorney-general for the state of Oregon.

To Attend Assembly
Rev. George Pringle, brother of the Yukon councillor of the same name, left Saturday evening on the Sifton general assembly of the Presbyterian church in Canada which convenes at Vancouver on June 10. Rev. John Pringle was to have attended as the representative for the Yukon but not wishing to miss the next session of the Yukon council he invited his brother to appear in his stead. The member for No. 2 district will also visit the outside as soon as the July session of the council has been completed, returning on one of the last boats in the fall.

the N. A. T. & T. Co. to the tune of 19 to 10, but they would have whooped and roared just as vociferously had the score been reversed.

Aside from four or five players, Stevens, Kelton and another of two for the N. C.'s, and Hope, Douse and another of two for the N. A. T. & T., the game had an agricultural flavor that revived recollections of the times when the Sleepy Hollow team would cross paddies with the Pea Ridge boys.

KLONDIKE NUGGET. MONDAY, JUNE 8, 1903.

MUST NOT BE OVERLOOKED.

The bulk of available virgin ground left within the known gold bearing area of the Klondike and Indian river districts is almost entirely tied up in concessions.

Under a single grant, ground to the extent of 50 square miles has been removed from the individual staker and now lies undeveloped, awaiting the time in the distant future when it may please the concession holders to begin active operations.

Other large blocks lying in the heart of the gold-producing area are in identically the same position. Their wealth of treasure is kept in the ground and unless the concessions are revoked bids fair to so remain for an indefinite number of years.

In a communication which appeared in Saturday's issue of the Nugget Mr. C. M. Woodworth estimates that a general cancellation of concessions would give employment to 1200 men in addition to those now actively engaged in mining.

This figure we regard as essentially conservative. If all the concessions should be thrown open there would, we believe, be found lucrative employment for double the number contained in Mr. Woodworth's estimate.

It must be remembered that within certain of these concessions, notably the Bronson & Ray and Matson, numerous claims are already being worked by parties who had secured locations prior to the concession grants being issued.

By virtue of this condition the ground covered by the grants has been well prospected without cost, to the concessionaires and the value of the latter's holdings is no longer a matter of speculation.

If these grants were revoked practical miners would be prepared to go to work immediately and begin the actual development of the ground that has so long remained idle. The "dead work" has already been done and there would be no expensive preliminary operations required.

The situation is entirely different from what it would be were the concessions located in a distant and unknown portion of the territory. The concessions lie for the most part at the very door of the city of Dawson. Their probable value from a placer mining standpoint is known to every miner in the district and there is not the slightest shadow of doubt that a far greater number of men than Mr. Woodworth estimates would find room for their operations within the concession confines.

So far as the immediate future of the camp is concerned, the opening of the concessions named and others of similar character would be of greater benefit even than the cancellation of the iniquitous Treadgold grant. The latter is objectionable chiefly by reason of the special privileges conferred and on account of its uncertain conditions of tenure which make it impossible to determine the exact limits of power which the grantees would ultimately secure.

The so called hydraulic concessions are a present hindrance to the progress and prosperity of the district and represent an immediate loss to every legitimate interest in the territory, which loss may be computed in dollars and cents with reasonable accuracy.

Treadgold constitutes a menace to the future welfare of the community and must be combatted to the last. But in the meantime the enemy in the form of blanket hydraulic grants, which is at the door of every miner and business man in the territory, must not be overlooked.

EMPIRE BUILDING.

The Klondike stampede of 1897-98 has opened up a northern empire which will continue to increase in importance and greatness as time elapses. The widespread attention that is now being given to Alaska by the people and government of the United States is due almost entirely to the fact that the lower river country received the overflow of the great stampede.

The north is not altogether regarded as a barren waste. The public mind is gradually becoming awakened to the immensity and variety of wealth which lies under the shadow of the Arctic circle and the interest thus created will never again slacken.

Both Yukon and Alaska have before them a future which while impossible of absolutely clear definition is nevertheless pregnant with potentialities. The work of foundation laying is still under way in both territories, but that work is being capably performed and the superstructure which time will rear will justify the expenditure of time, labor and money that has been involved.

A vast amount of quiet organizing is in progress by both parties on the outside which is taken by many people to indicate the approach of a general election. The last two years have been unusually prosperous and it has become proverbial that a good crop year is a favorable time for any party in power to seek re-election. Nothing will be known definitely, however, until the powers that be have spoken, which, up to date, they have not done.

No enterprise of more moment to the people of the Yukon was ever undertaken than the task of convincing the concession investigating commission of the injuries which are accruing to the territory from the Treadgold and other grants. The committee which has undertaken this work should have the financial as well as moral support of the whole community.

The White Pass Company is making special inducements to tourist travel. There is no prettier summer tour in the world than a trip from Puget Sound to Dawson and return via St. Michael. Thousands of travellers should be brought this way every summer.

The miners of Boucher, Miller and Glacier are doing good work in opening up their respective districts and their efforts should at least be recognized to the extent of furnishing them with good roads.

It is to be hoped that the Treadgold commission will come to Dawson in time to report before the adjournment of parliament. The matter should be settled once and for all during the present year.

The town of Bonanza will celebrate Dominion Day in old fashioned form. An attractive program has been arranged and the event should attract a large crowd of visitors from Dawson and the creeks.

If Dawson alone can raise $2500 to be expended in a day's celebration, the territory as a whole ought to be good for twice that amount to push forward the concession fight.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM

Communications for publication in this column are invited upon all questions of public interest. Correspondents are requested to be as brief as possible and to sign their names, which will be withheld if desired.

Bonanza, June 8, 1903.

Dear Sir, I am an old miner and have noticed much trouble and dissatisfaction created among partners on claims by the thoughtless actions of one or more of the parties concerned, therefore would like to give a few words of advice to mining men in general.

Don't be poking around in the mud box alone. Don't spend much time down in the drift alone when not at work. Don't place yourself in any position that could be construed as a breach of good faith. Don't presume that your partners know you to be perfectly honest, and take liberties any more than a stranger, as it is liable to create suspicion on their part which might lead to ill feeling and discord. A word to the wise is sufficient.

SOURDOUGH.

Destroyed by Dynamite

Salonica, European Turkey, April 30.—The Ottoman Bank here was destroyed by dynamite today. The Turkish office and other buildings also were attacked, resulting in a panic during which two men were killed and two persons were injured. A detachment of 2,900 additional troops have since arrived here from Smyrna.

Quiet has been restored. The attack on the bank was carried out by two bands of men. One party assaulted the guard and the other hurled the bombs. It is thought the strong room resisted the explosions. Several of the men who took part in the attack have been arrested.

The destruction of the French steamer Guadalupe by an explosion while leaving this port Tuesday was evidently caused by a bomb. A Bulgarian has been arrested in connection with the outrage.

In an encounter with Turkish troops yesterday at Nevrokop, European Turkey, eighteen Bulgarians were killed and fourteen were made prisoners. There was also a serious case of over 100 insurgents was annihilated.

Vienna, April 30.—Telegrams received here from Sofia declare that the Mitylene Bank at Salonica also has been burned.

An official telegram reporting the Salonician outrage says that fifty other dynamite explosions occurred in different parts of the city at the same time, and that many persons were killed or wounded.

Vienna, April 30.—The Neu Freie Presse says that fighting, reported from Sofia, Bulgaria, yesterday, between Turkish troops and a large band of insurgents on the right bank of the River Struma, in the district of Dzhumaja, or Dzumaja, near the frontier of Bulgaria, in Macedonia, occurred last Tuesday. The insurgents lost eighty-three men killed, and the Turks had thirteen killed or wounded.

No Pull Needed. During the past few days some substantial improvements have been made on Seventh avenue between Church and Hanson streets with the result that close by neighbors have grown jealous and are talking about "pulls" and making other base insinuations when the truth of the matter is that the city council had nothing whatever to do with the improvements made. Messrs. Bannerman and McClellan, residents of Seventh avenue, did the work themselves and at their own expense.

Clarkson's Interference

Isabel Archer would again teach in district No. 4. This was the chief topic of conversation in the Casparville postoffice.

When she had gone home at the end of the spring term, she had bitterly declared to certain intimates that she would never return. Those who knew best how Lem Tudor had bullied and tormented her did not wonder at her decision. Lem was chairman of the school board, and having set his mouth on the young teacher, he had made life a burden to her.

He was not a pleasing suitor. He lacked even the rough manhood that sometimes atones for the absence of that polish which society gives. A bully by birth and nature, as his father before him, he had used his official position to obtain as his wife not the woman he loved, but the one who would do him the greatest credit.

Casparville was sorry to lose Miss Isabel. There was no one who supposed that she would ever return unless Clarkson should ask her. Clarkson was taller in the Casparville bank. He was diffident and reserved, so that, though undoubtedly an admirer of the pretty teacher, his methods of wooing her were sadly lacking in dash and nerve evinced by Tudor. And, though she certainly smiled upon her bashful suitor, he had just as certainly allowed her to leave Casparville without screwing up his courage to ask the fateful question.

Yet after the distributing of the 9:30 mail Tudor had announced to the bystanders that Bell Archer was going to take No. 4 again.

When he got over to the lumber yard, he drew out the letter and re-perused it with no pleasant expression on his heavy face. It ran:

Dear Mr. Tudor—Very much to my regret I find that I shall have to apply for the school again this season. I had hoped when I left Casparville that I would no longer have to teach but the little income left from my father's estate has so depreciated that my mother needs it all, and I shall have to go to work again. It is too late to obtain another school, so I will have to take No. 4 if the place is still open. You have made my position in Casparville a very hard one, but I suppose this cannot be avoided, so I accept your offer. Yours truly, ISABEL ARCHER.

As he folded up the letter his soul deepened. "She's a little fool," he declared savagely, "but I'll win her yet, just to spite Harvey Clarkson. She will have to give in to me in the end, and then you bet I will make her pay for all she has made me stand for."

When she arrived the following week, it was Lem Tudor who met her at the station and escorted her to the hotel. There was a broad grin on his face as he rudely jested with her. When he winked solemnly and flagrantly at the group of loungers on the corner by Sweeney's saloon, the girl blushed a rosy red, but she knew that remonstrances were of no avail. "I'll call with the buggy this afternoon and take you over to the schoolhouse," he said as he handed her suit case over to the man of all work at the tiny hotel. "See that you are ready at 2. I've had the building painted and bought you a new chair and had the blackboards fixed up."

No. 4 was about three miles from town. As they sped over the quiet country road that afternoon she found herself wondering why the drive appeared so long.

"I'm taking the long way round," he explained in answer to her comments. "I want you to see what a good horse this is. I got him from Bascom last month. I thought you would come back, and I wanted to have an animal that would pass all the rest when I took you out to drive."

"I am afraid that I can go out very little this fall," she said coldly. "I want to study and fit myself for a city school next year."

He laughed harshly. "You had better keep on the soft side of the chairman," he said warningly. "I let you come back because I like to see you, but if you don't behave Millie Stephens will have No. 4 for the winter term."

"Now, see here, Bell," he went on, "you and me might as well understand each other. I let you come back because I want you, but if you are going to stand on that confounded dignity of yours there's going to be trouble. You be nice to me, and in the spring we'll be married, and you'll have the finest house in Casparville. If you keep on being silly, you'll be sorry. Why, you haven't even kissed me yet." And he made a motion as though to take the case.

She gave a cry and sought to ward him off, but his powerful arms were around her, and she could not tear herself loose. His heavy, brutal lips had almost touched hers when the sound of wheels caused him to desist and a light buggy drove up. "I think Miss Archer," said the newcomer, "that you had better change to my buggy. Here at least you are free from insult."

for what thou hast done for the banker and what thou hast not done for the people. We thank thee for all these things because it is our duty as a good Democrat to do so. It may be 'against the grain,' but we will take our medicine. We will work our wives to death, starve our children, sacrifice our homes, crucify liberty and kill prosperity, but will never go back on our dear old party, and on thee, our most adored Cleveland. Thou art more account than all of us put together. Thou knowest more than the South and the West. Call us fools; spit in our faces; wipe your feet on us; we will love thee all the more. And now, our great political father, we leave us in thy care. Do with us as thou wilt; kick silver into the middle of the next century; give more privileges to the national banks; illude more bonds; preserve the McKinley bill; establish state banks; foster trusts; bribe congressmen with patronage; fish whenever thou carest to, and we will endorse everything thou doest, carry Cleveland rosters, campaign torches and for evermore sing thy praise. Amen."

WHITE WING PRAYER

The Offering of a Democratic Chairman. During Grover Cleveland's occupancy of the president's chair and about the time of the panic of '93 the following prayer was uttered:

"Oh almighty and all-powerful Cleveland, who art in Washington, when not fishing; thou who art the father of Ruth and Ruth's sister, and of Maria Halpin's boy Oscar, and the god-father of the Democratic party, (his father wouldn't own it if he were here), we hail thy name as the great political prophet of the century. We bow down before thee in humble political obedience. When thou sayest go, we go; when thou sayest come, we come. We have no desire but to serve thee. If thou sayest black is white, we will swear to it and lick the everlastin' stuffin' out of the man who disputes. When thou takest snuff we will sneeze a when thou sayest free silver we will echo thy words, when thou sayest gold then gold it is. We are Democrats after the improved modern type. Our business is to vote the ticket and vote 'er straight. What is it to us whether we have free silver or not? We are but dogs that eat the crumbs that fall from our master's table. When the crumbs fall we wag our tails; when they don't fall we stand and wait until they do. This is Democracy which elected thee, our great and almighty Cleveland. Oh, most adored master, we love thee for what thou hast not done for us. We love thee because thou art Cleveland. We humbly surrender ourselves to thee. Do with us as thou wilt. Though wheat is but 40 cents a bushel, we love thee, though cotton is low, we love thee, though business is dull, we love thee, though thousands, millions are out of employment, we love thee; though our children are clothed in rags, we love thee, though our wife, the dear companion of our bosom, is scantily dressed and looks so shabby she can't go to church, we love thee, though we are sinking deeper in debt and poverty is knocking at the door and hunger is staring us in the face, we still love thee. This shows our great faith and love for thee. Our wives and children we are willing to sacrifice, even as the Hindoo mother sacrifices her offspring by throwing it under the crushing wheels of the juggernaut. Oh, mighty Cleveland, words cannot express our love for thee. We love our party, too. What care we about the many promises made? We know it promised free silver, and we know it won't give it to us, but we lied when we said it. We thought then that we had some manhood about us, but we ain't. We have no independence. Thou, oh mighty Cleveland, hast all the manhood and independence in the party. We are fools, liars, lickspittles, mudsills. We have no business to want anything or to say anything. Last year we favored free silver and now we have to oppose it. We favored it then because we thought it was all right. We oppose it now, most adored master, because thou tellest us to. Ain't we a honey of the first water? Did ever a dog serve his master more faithfully? Did ever a dog get less for it? Oh, mighty master, we are ever ready to serve thee and party. All the pay we ask is to be patted on the back by some local politician and called a good Democrat. We ain't got any sense. We don't want any only enough to vote the ticket. It don't take any sense to be a good Democrat. What a joyful thought! We don't have to think, we don't have to worry. Our work is all mapped out for us. All that is expected is to do what we are told. We thank thee, oh Cleveland, that we are Democrats. We thank thee for the panic. We thank thee for the idle men and women in the land. We thank thee for the banks that have busted and the thousands of business failures since thou hast come into power. We thank thee for the hard times. We thank thee for the clothes our wife needs and cannot get. We thank thee

SOME RURAL PLEASURE

Many People Visit West Dawson

Ferry Kept Busy With a Steady Stream of Seekers After Sylvan Delights.

Captain Hubrick, of the good ship that plies the Yukon from the foot of Queen street to the west bank opposite, did a rushing business yesterday, making trips without end in order to accommodate the crowds desiring an outing amidst the classic solitude of West Dawson and its attractive environments. The adjacent hills were dotted here and there all afternoon by groups of children and many of their elders fathoming the wild flowers which grow in such profusion. Scattered along on the government road running up the hill and puncturing the quietness of the stillness that now characterizes sleepy West Dawson were little knots of people, staid old married people lost to all sentiment, young couples still in the first paroxysm of love's delights and sweethearts who could find no flowers unless hidden in a quiet nook some distance removed from the beaten paths.

The day was one of Nature's best, an ideal Yukon summer day which causes one to lose sight of the bitter, blinding, wintry days of the past and those of the future, so keen is the enjoyment of the present. The ranches back from West Dawson on the hill and also those on the river bank below the village were visited by many of the pilgrims of whom not one in a dozen upon their return to the city did not carry a huge bouquet of wild flowers gathered from the woods and side hills. Midway between the ferry landing and the village was a refreshment booth where milk fresh from the cow could be procured and drunk seated upon a rustic bench 'mid the peaceful sylvan solitude.

The view from the highest point on the bluff road is sublime, Dawson lying before one's vision in a regular panorama, every particle of the city from the slide to the Klondike river being so plainly visible. But one incident occurred to mar the pleasures of the afternoon and that happily turned out to be but a fright. Two little children whose parents are apparently deficient in good sense allowed their offspring to go across the river for the purpose of gathering flowers unaccompanied, neither one being over eight or nine years old, one a little boy and the other a little girl. Arriving on the west bank they once started to climb the hill in search of bluebells and other posies. At this point the hill is very steep and in order to make the ascent one is compelled to cling with fingers and toes to places. No attention was paid to the children until a shrill scream was heard from one of them and those at the landing happening to look up, were horrified to see the little girl half way up the bluff, probably a hundred and fifty feet up the steep incline, lying flat on the cliff clinging for dear life to some small bushes and screaming at the top of her voice. Had she loosened her hold and started to fall she would not have stopped until the river was reached. Her brother was some fifty feet or more below his sister and manfully started to her rescue though it is doubtful if he could have rendered her any service even had he reached her in time.

Seated on the rocks below waiting for the ferry was a man with a pack on his back dressed in the garb of a miner or a prospector. No sooner did he hear the cry of distress than off came the pack and up the hill he scrambled with the agility of one long accustomed to tramping the hills over. As he neared the little one he spoke to her reassuringly, urging her to hold on that he would soon be there. He arrived not a moment too soon as between fright and exhaustion she was almost ready to relinquish her hold. Grasping her in his arms he paused but a moment to comfort and reassure her and then a perilous descent was begun. It was quickly accomplished and when the ferry was reached she had forgotten all about the peril of a moment before, her childish glee in being the possessor of a huge bunch of flowers, being so apparent and giving her so much joy that she had no time for rejoicings.

The Bridge Craze

London, May 23.—The bridge craze again is agitating society and club circles and a quiet revolt is rising among certain sections against bridge. The craving for bridge has gained such a hold on many of the leaders of society, chiefly women, who formerly were great entertainers, that it has put an end to many of the big balls and other large social gatherings which the people were accustomed to look forward to during the season.

From the correspondence which has been appearing in the papers many people view with real alarm the gambling spirit, which, in the form of bridge, has seized not only on men and married women, but young girls. Archdeacon Sinclair of London, a leading member of the church and of society, and one of the originators of the now successful Pilgrims' Club, waxes fierce in his indictment of the game.

"Playing bridge for high stakes," he says, "has become a grievous evil, and from what I hear is seriously on the increase. The present period reminds one of the days of the regency, when women of high position remained indoors throughout the day with the blinds down playing faro."

"I have recently heard cases in which young girls started playing bridge on Sundays immediately after breakfast and continued playing all day. No man who is a man should allow his womankind to gamble and become in debt to other men. The consequences of such a state of affairs won't even bear discussion."

"The only way to check the growing evil is for women of really high position and high principle to form a league against the playing of bridge by women. There are many ladies who dislike this gambling intensely, who could, if combined, exert an immense influence throughout the country."

A member of the Portland and other clubs, who, although a devotee to bridge, regards with aversion the reckless gambling of fashionable women and would-be smart men, said: "I feel today as many other men do that something must be done to check the gambling, at any rate among the women. Many men, myself among them, absolutely refuse to play bridge with women. Women have been known to stand up when they have lost three rubbers and hysterically accuse some unfortunate male player with cheating before a room full of people. These are facts and call for no further comment in clubs which never were card playing clubs. By playing bridge for higher stakes than ever in the country houses life is becoming impossible."

Thomas Jones Killed

Stratford, April 30.—Thos. Jones, a G.T.R. brakeman running out of London, was killed in the yards here at midnight last night, being caught between the draw heads of two cars. The unfortunate man was terribly lacerated. The cars were provided with automatic couplers, so it is thought he must have tried to cross the track ahead of the train and was caught. Jones was twenty-nine years of age and unmarried. An inquest will be held.

The funeral of the late Bugler Cooke of the 28th regiment who was killed on Tuesday, took place today with military honors. It was largely attended. The workmen of the McLagan factory, where the deceased had been employed, attended in a body.

Messrs. James and Donald Campbell, who, with J. Calder, were alleged in Nelson's affidavit at Buffalo to have been bought by him at Stratford to vote for the Liberal candidate in the North Perth by-election, for $5 each, deny ever receiving money or other consideration from him for their votes. Both the gentlemen state they never polled a vote for any other than a Liberal candidate. The name of R. J. Calder cannot be located here. Mr. F. Calder denied the accusation flatly.

NEWS OF CARIBOU

Amos Slavin Boils One of His Legs

Enterprising Little Village Has Three Cripples and a New Waterworks System.

Amos Slavin is slowly recovering from the tortures of the burned. He goes around with his foot upholstered peddling hot air and trying to tell how it happened. Of course we feel sorry for him, but still we think he had no business to leave his engine room to go down a half sunk shaft and stick his foot in boiling muck. All his acquaintances liked him as he was—just an ordinary lobster—but to have him partly boiled was carrying the lobster business a little too far. He and Bob Smith make a good pair of cripples and are often seen going around together. Bob had his right elbow dislocated and fractured some time since. Hank Bell is a close third with a dislocated elbow and general shaking up. He was thrown from a bolting horse in a race on Victoria Day. The prize money from the tug of war was given to him by the contesting teams, and a good substantial sum besides was collected and handed to him by Kelley the speeler at the termination of the sports on that day.

Dr. Alfred Thompson of Dawson was in consultation at Caribou with Dr. Bell on Monday. The worthy doctor was not looking any the worse of the Yukon council meetings, in fact 'tis thought that making him the junior member has really rejuvenated him in ways other than in title. He returned to Dawson Tuesday.

The citizens of Caribou have just completed a small system of waterworks consisting of a tank reservoir on a hill back of the village on the left limit and the water is carried to the street in the pipe. The water is for a supply for the village and for fighting fire.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Trump of 34 below lower are on a visit to Dawson.

CARNEGIE'S GIFT

To Booker T. Washington's Industrial Institute.

Andrew Carnegie has donated $600,000 to the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute in Alabama under the provision that the trustees will take care of Booker T. Washington and his family as long as he or his wife lives. Such a grand act is worthy of the consideration of every Negro in the United States, as it is a well known fact that Booker T. Washington has spent every dollar that he could earn or obtain for the benefit of the Institute at Tuskegee, and his life's work has been in the interest of building up the race that he is recognized as one of the grandest men of the century and he has accomplished more for the race than any man in the history of our people. The following is an extract of the letter written by Mr. Carnegie to the trustees at Tuskegee:

My Dear Friend,—I have instructed Mr. Franks, my cashier, to deliver to you as trustee for Tuskegee Institute, $600,000.00 5 per cent. U. S. Steel Co. first mortgage bonds toward the endowment fund. I give this without reservation except that I require that suitable provision be made from the gift for the wants of Booker T. Washington and his family during his or his wife's life. I wish that great and good man to be entirely free from pecuniary cares, that he shall be free to devote himself to his great mission.

To me he seems one of the greatest of living men because his work is unique, the modern Moses who leads his race and lifts it through education to even higher and better things than a land overflowing with milk and honey. History is to tell of two Washingtons, one white the other black, both fathers of their people. I am satisfied that the serious race problem of the South is to be solved wisely only through Mr. Washington's policy of education for which he has slave among slaves, to establish and in his own day greatly to advance. Glad am I to be able to assist this good work in which you and others so zealously labor. Truly yours,
ANDREW CARNEGIE.

Thomas McNeil, speaking at the banquet of the Kansas State Bar Association, told of a lawyer who collected $50 for a client and took out $35 for his fee. He said, as he handed over the $15:

"I am your friend, and I can't charge you a full fee. I knew your father for a great many years."

And the client, in the fulness of his heart, could only say, "Thank heaven you didn't know my grandfather."

DRUNK OVERBOARD

Old Man Man Falls From Aurora Dock Into the Yukon

Fred Knance, an aged man, fell from the Aurora dock into the Yukon river this morning and but for the lively work of members of the crews of the Tyrrell and Thistle would have been drowned. The old fellow was very much the worse for liquor. In falling he first fell probably 8 feet, landing on some timbers and from the timbers he rolled into the water. Boys from the steamers above named managed to get a rope around him by which means he was pulled up on the dock. Shortly after the rescue a couple of policemen appeared on the scene and the old man was taken to the barracks and given a change of clothing. He was still too drunk to appear in court this morning but will be given a hearing tomorrow. He was much offended at being taken to the guard room.

EIGHT DAYS SENTENCE

John Murray is Found Guilty of Theft.

Grabbed $500 in Yellow Gold Dust Which Was Intended for Another.

At the opening of court this morning there was a jury in attendance having been summoned to hear the criminal trial of John Murray and also three civil cases now on the docket. The case against Murray was first taken up. He is the chap who it is alleged helped himself to a poke of $500 in gold dust to be applied to his wages on the Bowhay claim on Gold Hill when the dust had been weighed out for another purpose. The charge was read to him and he pleaded not guilty. In empanelling the jury quite a number of challenges were exhausted both by the crown and the defense before the panel was finally complete, Crown Prosecutor Pattullo appearing for the crown and George Black for the accused.

The jury as completed consisted of A. J. Bannerman, H. G. Herbert, A. S. Levine, J. T. Bethune, Alfred Monk and Vincent Keenan. Before beginning his opening statement the crown prosecutor asked that he be permitted to amend the statement of claim by substituting the name of Amy E. Bowhay in lieu of that of Charles Bowhay, the claim from which the gold was taken being in her name instead of her husband's. It was granted by consent. Mr. Pattullo in outlining the case to the jury was brief and to the point. The claim from which the gold dust was taken was known as the Bowhay claim on Gold Hill, owned by Mrs. Bowhay and operated this past winter by her husband as her agent. There were two mortgages on the claim, one for the balance of the purchase money and the other in the sum of $1000 borrowed from Charles N. Bell, to be used in the operation of the claim. The accused was a workman employed on the claim. On May 15 the first cleanup of the season was made which resulted in 118 ounces. The gold was cleaned up in Bowhay's cabin and weighed in the presence of the accused, Bell and other creditors. Bowhay explained that he was compelled to lay aside $500 as a partial payment of the balance due on the purchase price of the claim and that of the balance he was willing to divide pro rata with all his creditors. Bell said that if he got $500 the same as the first mortgagee he would be satisfied to wait until the next cleanup for the balance, and all the creditors expressed their satisfaction at the arrangement with the exception of a man named Levy who had been working but a short time and wanted all his money right on the spot. The arrangement proving satisfactory to all Bowhay weighed out $500 and placed it by itself in a blower and laid in on the table, Murray the accused standing at his elbow while he was doing it. The latter said to Bowhay: "Weigh me out $100 and I'll get out of this."

"All right, Jack," was the reply. The $100 was weighed out and the gold scoop of the scales was handed to Murray with the dust in it. He took it, quickly poured the contents into the blower containing the $500 and before anyone realized what had been done he walked out of the cabin. As Bowhay and Bell stepped out of the cabin they saw the defendant empty the blower into his poke and both protested about the unfair way in which he had acted. He refused to return the dust, saying that he had worked all winter and he wanted his wages at once. He had finally agreed to turn the dust over to the police but had failed to do so. Later when arrested and searched no dust had been found on his person. Alexander A. Gunn was the first witness to be called. He is a teamster and his visit to the claim at that time was for the purpose of collecting some money due him. His evidence was practically a corroboration of the statements the crown prosecutor had outlined in his opening remarks, as was also the testimony of Charles N. Bell who is a merchant at the Forks and who is the second mortgagee. His mortgage amounts to $1000. Shortly before 1 o'clock both the crown and the defense had rested and his lordship was addressing the jury. The latter retired and in a very few moments brought in a verdict of guilty, with a strong recommendation for mercy. His lordship immediately sentenced Murray to eight days at hard labor.

The best local talent will appear at the Operatic Parada, Wednesday evening. Tickets at Cribbs' First Avenue.

MR. CLAYTON HAS FAITH

In Future of the Lower Country

Many New and Valuable Strikes Made in Recent Past—Quartz on Tanana.

From Mr. Frank W. Clayton, an account of whose arrival in Dawson yesterday is given elsewhere in this paper, it is learned that the outlook for the upper portion of Yukon Alaska is brighter now than ever before in the history of the country. Mr. Clayton, deputy U. S. marshal and Judge Samuel Graef, U. S. commissioner and ex-officio mining and land recorder, are located at the mouth of Steele creek, their territory embracing everything from the boundary to near Eagle and as far as Mt. St. Elias to the westward which includes all that vast country contiguous to the head waters of the Tanana.

Mr. Clayton estimates that in the territory above described are 1500 people, nearly all of whom are engaged in mining and prospecting. He says that in the past few weeks the "high channel" has been found in no less than three different places, one on Forty-mile opposite Steele creek, another at the head of Franklin creek and the third further to the westward and wherever struck very rich pay is being taken out, the "high channel" being considered the mother lode of the Forty-mile country. Since the advent of spring Mr. Clayton says a number of men have come from the headwaters of the Tanana for the purpose of recording both placer and quartz locations, specimens from the latter being very rich in gold. Mr. Clayton is firmly convinced that within a comparatively short time Eagle will be the Dawson of Yukon Alaska and especially will this be the case if a railroad is constructed to that place from Vadez and a wagon road from the Steele creek country. Awaiting the arrival of Collector Jarvis and Marshal Perry for Clayton may be in Dawson yet for two of three days.

To Visit His Family Mr. Joe Anstett, the well known printer and good fellow who for several months past has operated a Monoline in the office of the Sun, will leave this evening on a visit to his wife and child in Minneapolis. When he returns in the fall he will bring his family with him.

NO REPLY MADE

John Robert Forfeits His Bail of $1,500.

At the convening of the territorial court this morning before Mr. Justice Dugas the appeal case of the King vs John Robert was called three times and there was no response. His lordship declared the bail of Robert amounting to $1500 cash to be forfeited to the crown and thus ended one of the most unsavory criminal cases ever given a place on the calendar. Robert was convicted in the lower court of living off the avails of prostitution and by his attorney appealed to the higher court, being given his liberty upon depositing with the clerk $1500 in cash. His friends had considerable difficulty in rustling up the needed and it is said the larger portion of it was realized from the sale of the furniture and personal effects of his paramour who is now doing six months in prison. The calling of the case today was a mere matter of form as it was known, or strongly suspected, several weeks ago, that he had skipped down the river in a small boat.

JUDGMENT RENDERED

Case of Ackerman vs. Thomas Lamar

Opinion of the Court of Appeal Not Unanimous, Mr. Justice Dugas Dissenting.

Before the taking up of the regular calendar this morning the court of appeal convened long enough to deliver judgment in the case of Ackerman et al vs Lamar appealed from the decision of the gold commissioner and heard at the last session of the court sitting en banc. The judgment is the first rendered by the court recently in which the judges have not been unanimous in their opinion. The opinion handed down was by Mr. Justice Craig, Mr. Justice Macaulay dissenting, all three submitting judgments. That of Mr. Justice Craig was as follows: "The action is brought by the plaintiffs as owners of certain claims (creek and hillside claims) on Ora Grand, Bonanza division, by way of protest against a plan filed by the defendant under section 16 of the regulations. The defendant claims to be the owner of No. 3 Ora Grand, which is the claim surveyed and posted, together with the extensions of, the side boundaries of that claim. The plaintiffs are interested in various interests in No. 2 Ora Grand, a fraction between No. 3 and No. 2, or an alleged fraction, and in the hillside adjoining No. 3. The regulations provide for a survey under direction of the commissioner and an officer of the department which survey shall absolutely determine the boundaries of the claim surveyed and advertised unless protested within the period limited. The regulations do not provide anything more as to the proceedings and I see nothing in the regulations to prevent any number of owners who are affected by the publication of the plan from joining in one protest against that plan and their various interests and boundaries being determined in the one action. I rather think that the spirit of the regulations contemplates that all who are affected by the publication of the plan should join in the one action. The rules of procedure in this court provide that where our regulations are silent, the rules governing court shall govern, and under order 6, rule 26, all persons in whom the right to any relief claimed is alleged to exist may be joined as plaintiffs, whether jointly, severally or in the alternative, and rule 35 provides that no cause or matter shall be defeated by reason of the misjoinder or non-joinder of parties, and the judge in every cause or matter may deal with the matter in controversy so far as the rights or interests of the parties actually before him are concerned. This is clearly a case distinguished from the case of Smurthwaite vs Hannay, reported in appeal cases, A. C. 2894, p. 491, which case is an authority in favor of the contention that these parties may be joined as co-plaintiffs because their action affects one transaction. It is not a contract, as in the case referred to, but it is a public act authorized by statute which affects all parties having notice of it, and the allowing of the survey to be completed by effluxion of time would affect all the adjoining owners whose claims bordered upon the advertised property. Therefore, I think this is clearly a case coming within the rule where the plaintiffs have a joint interest in attacking this plan. More than that, the defendant has not objected to the misjoinder; in fact, defendant's counsel does not object to the joinder of the parties and thinks it rather aids his case. Therefore, if he does not object there is no question of misjoinder for the court to determine, and it must just deal with the facts before it now.

"The chief difficulty in the case and the one which impressed me most on the argument was the fact that Highest is joined as a party plaintiff, and if the contention of his co-plaintiffs succeed as to No. 3 creek claim, it has the effect of wiping out his fraction so far as this protest is concerned, because they claim to overlap his fraction. I was under the impression on the argument that Highest stated his fraction in a manner different from what he did, but I see upon reading the evidence that the fraction was created by a survey not made under the direction of the parties plaintiff or any one in their interest and that that survey in no way affected the title of the plaintiffs nor are they bound by it. I do not see now why the right of the other plaintiffs should be affected simply because Highest seeks to join in the action or why because he claims the fraction intervening that should shut out the plaintiffs from giving evidence that such a fraction did not exist and that they are entitled to overlap and that it is really a part of their claim. The difficulty which faced me at the argument has on na-

turer consideration of the whole case disappeared. "As to the evidence itself I think the learned gold commissioner was fully justified in finding as he did. I have read every word of the evidence and while there are some slight discrepancies in the evidence of some of the witnesses, particularly in Crawford's as regards distance of cabin from stake, yet I do not think that that error in calculation should seriously impair the weight of his evidence. If one considers the nature of the evidence and the manner in which it was given and judge from reading the apparent intelligence of the witnesses, one must be convinced that the evidence strongly preponderates in favor of the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs' witnesses had exceptional advantages in knowing where that post was (the Crawford-McDonald post). In the first place Crawford swore to it positively; he was the staker. Then Craig and Wordley also identified it. These men worked lays at both ends of the claim immediately adjoining the posts, which were standing on the claim. They are not shown to have any interest in the result of the suit, and as I said before, had peculiar means of becoming familiar with the locality. The evidence of the defendant on the other hand, is uncertain and wavering; a great deal of it is hearsay; in fact, it is hard to determine when it is hearsay and when not hearsay from the nature of the answers. Then the evidence of Lamar himself as to the discrepancy between the date of staking, which he swears was the 8th, and his affidavit, in which he swears it was the 27th, is certainly hard to understand. His cross-examination by Mr. Pattullo, upon this matter certainly leaves one with the impression that there was some trickery going on. An explanation of the cause why he should have changed the date of his staking in his affidavit when he came to locate is given by the chief clerk who says that the ground would not be open for location on the 8th when he actually staked, and the supposition is (and I think it is a reasonable one) that upon ascertaining that fact he deliberately changed the date by his affidavit, that he afterwards went to the creek and made fresh markings on the post. All these facts throw great suspicion on his evidence, and upon the whole case I think the judgment of the gold commissioner is fully warranted by the evidence. The appeal should be dismissed with costs."

CASE DISMISSED

John E. LeChance Not Assaulted by Archie Martin.

Archie Martin was dismissed by Magistrate Wroughton in police court this morning on the charge of assaulting John E. LeChance, a Last Chance miner. From the evidence it appeared that the men had some misunderstanding regarding a little business transaction and LeChance and his brother and son called on Martin and used insulting language that Martin ejected them from his office and in the mix-up LeChance received a blow in the mouth. An amusing incident occurred just after the dismissal of the charge against Martin and when John Murray was called to answer to the charge of selling liquor on Sunday. LeChance struck the word "Murray" for "money" and in a loud voice said "No, your honor, there was no money changed hands."

NEWS FROM CHICKEN

Miner Van Hook Reached Here Sunday

Is on Hurried Business Trip to the Outside—Reports Death of William Voght.

Mr. Harvey Van Hook arrived in Dawson Sunday morning on the steamer Tyrrell. Mr. Van Hook has been mining on Chicken creek for the past year and the big poke which he deposited in the N. C. Co.'s safety deposit vault on his arrival in Dawson is evidence that his labors have not been in vain. Mr. Van Hook says that about 200 people wintered in the Chicken creek country but not over half that number worked. However, he says there will be considerable gold washed out in addition to what has been already taken out this spring. Considerable work will be done this summer. An old man named William Voght, known to all the miners on Chicken creek as "Ragged Bill," died there a week ago today as the result of a stroke of paralysis sustained by him the preceding Saturday. While Mr. Van Hook is very non-communicative about the country, it is evident that he has great faith in its future. He is on his way outside on business and will leave for Whitehorse this evening on the steamer Thistle.
