Sometime, Somewhere.

Unanswered yet? the prayer your lips have pleaded
In agony of heart these many years!
Does faith begin to fail? Is hope departing?
And think you all in vain those falling tears?
Say not the Father hath not heard your prayers:
You shall have your desire sometime, somewhere.

Unanswered yet? though when you first presented
This one petition at the Father's throne,
It seemed you could not wait the time of asking,
So urgent was your heart to make it known;
Though years have passed since then, do not despair,
The Lord will answer you sometime, somewhere.

Unanswered yet? nay, do not say ungranted
Perhaps your part is not yet wholly done;
The work began when your first prayer was uttered,
And God will finish what he has begun,
If you will keep the incense burning there,
His glory you shall see sometime, somewhere.

Unanswered yet? Faith cannot be unanswered
Her feet are firmly planted on a rock;
And the wildest storms she stands undaunted,
Nor quails before the loudest thunder shock.
She knows omnipotence has heard her prayer,
And cries, "It shall be done," sometime, somewhere.

—Robert Browning.

Interesting Story.

"Thankful Ellis."

Slowly the sun crept over the wheat-field, tracking a broad, black shadow-veil across the billows of green falling before the wind's swift passage, and rising again as the sun sent long, quivering gleams through the bright, restless blades.

Beyond the wheatfield, just across the creek, Deacon Ellis was ploughing his corn. His hearty "chirrup," whenever old Moll turned into a new furrow, could be heard away down to the big road. And between furrows the good deacon whiled away the time by singing the old, familiar meeting-house hymn:

"Come, thou fount of every blessing,"
He had sung it so constantly that the neighbors called it "Deacon Ellis's hymn." And indeed the song had become his own much more entirely than had the cornfield, with its heavy mortgage, which the deacon was working day and night to pay off.

He had one striking characteristic—Deacon Ellis had; "a peculiarity," the neighbors called it, but it was more properly a characteristic: he never found matters so bad but that they might be worse. This characteristic naturally showed him the brighter side of life's pictures. Though the gossiping neighbors said these same pictures were dark, only the deacon viewed them through peculiar spectacles.

His was no Sunday religion; his voice rang out as cheerily and trustfully in the cornfield as when, in the village church, each Sabbath morning, he led the praises of Jehovah. He carried it with him at all times, and under all circumstances. Sometimes the neighbors laughed at him, and called him "Thankful Ellis."

It happened that while the deacon was singing in the cornfield, Farmer Foster and his wife were driving to town in their new Jersey. They were crossing the creek at the turn of the big road, and stopped a moment to give the mare a drink just as the deacon's voice rose to its highest pitch:

"Here I'll raise mine Ebenezer,
Hither by Thy help I'm come,
And I hope by Thy good pleasure,
Safely to arrive at home."
The farmer's wife laughed, as she pushed back her sun bonnet to listen. "The deacon's singing, 'Zekiel,' she said, 'same's if his only cow didn't fall in the ditch, yistiddy, an' break her leg, an' have to be knocked in the head.'"
The farmer tapped his whip at a fly on the back of his mare.
"An' the same," he said, "as if his biggest heifer wasn't down with the pink-eye only the week before, and that he last and only hope of a cow had been stricken down with the same disease."
"Streams of mercy never ceasing,
Call for signs of loudest praise."
Higher and fuller the sweet song rose, as if the singer's life had been one continual round of peace, and his pathway one of roses and perpetual summer. The good man shut his eyes to visible cares; and neither the dead heifer nor the unfortunate cow could shake the foundation of thankfulness in his heart.

Spring ripened into summer, the corn in the deacon's field looked healthy. But the wheat, alas! the sun creeping across the waving billows found rust among the ripening heads. And when it was out and waiting the deacon's turn for the threshing, the rain set in and the grain sprouted.

The loss of his wheat was a blow to the embarrassed farmer, and he received but little sympathy from his neighbors who had urged him to follow their example, and shock and cap his wheat on the Sabbath as the only possible means of saving it. But with the consistency for which he was noted he refused to deprecate the Lord's day, but chose rather to keep that holy, and trust the result to Him who controls the weather.

"Here I'll raise mine Ebenezer," Farmer Foster riding down the big road heard the deacon's voice, and following the sound found the old man in the raised field singing among the stubble. Not a break in the grand old hymn to tell of doubt, or discouragement, or distrust. In the midst of wreck and ruin an altar had been erected and reconsecrated to Him who sends both sun to soften and rain to destroy.

"It's bad, mighty bad, a-comin' on me just now; there ain't no denyin' o' that," he told neighbor Foster. "But the cornfield's left, an' that's a good deal to be thankful for."
"So 'tis, so 'tis," replied the farmer, and he went home frowning that somehow Deacon Ellis's affairs were as bad as they could be, but might be worse if the deacon had a mind to look on the dark side.

"Well," said Mrs. Foster, as her good man walked into the backyard, "is Deacon Ellis a-thankin' of the Lord, because the wheat's all spoiled, 'Zekiel?"
"No, Nancy," replied Farmer Foster, "the deacon ain't such a fool as to do that. He's some cut up 'bout the wheat, but he's jubilein' 'pov'ful over the corn."
"Well, when the corn's gone he'll mire over the ground being left. An' when that's tak' there'll sholy be nothin' left for Deacon Ellis to be glorifyin' over. An' it'll be tak, mark what I tell you, 'Zekiel."

It was not long after this that the deacon's little girl died. This was the heaviest blow that had fallen upon him, but so deeply engrossed was he in the effort to comfort his stricken wife that he forgot, his own sorrow, and failed also to notice that the drouth had ripened the grain before its time; so that where he had hoped to find the full, ripe ear, only premature rubbings were hidden away under the crisp, yellow sheaves.

"Well," the deacon drew his wife's head to his bosom, "we have got each other, Nancy, an' that's a heap to thank the Lord for."
But even that solace was denied him very long. Always, as the deacon said, one of the ailin' ones, the strain upon mind and heart was too great for the frail body, and Mrs. Ellis was laid to rest by the side of her little girl under the cedars beyond the wheat-field.

except the gathering of the pippins and the wine-saps, and as the crop had been a short one, the gathering of it was a small matter.

"We're got enough to eat, anyhow," he told the neighbors, "an' that's something to be thankful for."
Finally the fruit was stored and Deacon Ellis entered into his well-earned winter's rest.

"The Lord will let Job alone now," Farmer Foster's wife said, "an' sholy it is time."
But the deacon's troubles were not yet ended; there was still one more calamity in store for him,—the fire that burned his barns and destroyed his last faint hope of paying off the mortgage upon his land. It was nearly the final stroke. The old man had buried his wife and child, for whom he worked and saved,—now the means of his own livelihood were vanishing.

His neighbors were apalled. The good old deacon had no enemies; and now even those who had found something to laugh at in his strong faith in the face of calamity were shocked.

The Sunday following the burning of the barn, the neighbors met early at the church and discussed the matter among themselves. It was finally decided that among themselves they would raise enough money to pay off the mortgage on the farm, and from their own full granaries furnish seed for the next year's crop.

"I want to hear him bless the Lord once more," said Farmer Foster, with a big tear in either eye.
"And have somethin' to bless him for," added his wife, as she brushed off a crystal drop that had trickled to the tip of her nose.

Then some one whispered that the deacon was at the door and the congregation rattled down to its accustomed quiet and decorum as the old man entered. He was aging, Deacon Ellis was; he leaned heavily upon his staff, and the neighbors noticed, for the first time, how the silver in his hair had given place to snow.

Farmer Foster's tears no longer stood in his eyes but followed each other in quick succession down the sun-browned cheeks. He felt, as did many others of the congregation, that at last Deacon Ellis stood face to face with that moment in his life when there was nothing left for gratitude.

For the first Sunday since the little church had heard his prayers there would be no thanksgiving. Then the sympathetic farmer thought of the mortgage, already as good as lifted, and he felt a strong impulse to rise up in his place and tell him; to cry out: "Thank the Lord if you wish; go on thanking Him."

So excited did he become that Mrs. Foster touched him on the arm and said, in a whisper: "'Zekiel, kneel down."
The deacon had begun his prayer; broken and quivering the accents, soft and slow the petition. The rod had fallen so heavily! There was a pleading cry for strength, a grasp at faith, a full surrender to the will of Him who doth all things well; and then, as the voice gathered strength and the heart returned to its old-time trust, the chief characteristic of his religion exerted itself, and Deacon Ellis thanked the Lord that she whom He had given to be to him a helpmate and a solace had been gathered into rest before his calamities had overtaken him.

Then, as the grand old voice rose again in the sweet, familiar hymn: "Here I'll raise mine Ebenezer," the people listening felt indeed the sublimity of Faith erecting its altar upon the ashes of Despair.—Youth's Companion.

Protect Your Street Trees.
People who would give many a dollar for a good shade tree before their doors neglect to protect them against the ravages of horses, for there is very little doubt that it is from the horse, and not from any inability of trees to grow, that we find trees almost entirely absent from the older portions of cities and towns. We have seen many fine trees killed in this way, and we have more than one now in our mind's eye that will in a little while go in the same way unless at once protected. A good shade tree in front of a dwelling is worth at least a hundred dollars, and many people would not be deprived of them for anything like this price, for it takes half a generation to grow one. Yet those very people will see the bark of their trees eaten off without a thought that it is damaging the tree, and would hitch their own horse to another's tree under the same circumstances.

There are only two ways in which one can preserve the luxury of shade trees before his door in the public streets, and that is, first, by the investment of a few dollars in tree guards or tree protectors of some kind—wire netting is very good; and secondly, by the universal spreading of the knowledge that the bark is the life of the tree. If half way round is taken away the tree has only half the proper chance of getting food, and the next year succeeding the loss it will not grow well. The leaves keep up a sickly tint all summer, and fall early in autumn. Besides this the growth is proportionately weak. When the bark is wholly taken off in a complete circle, there is no more hope for the tree's life. All connection with the roots is severed so far as a long continuation of life is concerned.

You picture to yourself the beauty of bravery and steadfastness. You let your imagination wander in delight over the memory of martyrs who have died for truth. And then some little, wretched, disagreeable duty comes, which is your martyrdom, the lamp for your oil; and if you will not do it, how your oil is split! How flat and thin and unillumined your sentiment about the martyrs runs out over your self-indulgent life.

Both the great parties will probably incorporate a plank against floods in their platforms. No party can sweep the great West this fall that omits to deplore these annual visitations, and which doesn't hold the other party responsible for their terrible ravages.—Boston Herald.

Nova Scotia Indians.

The 26th annual report of the Department of Indian Affairs for the year ended December 31st, 1887, is received. It contains much valuable information concerning the Indians of Canada. The first of these reports was issued in 1862, at which time the territory under this department consisted of the provinces of Quebec and Ontario. The department now exercises control of Indian affairs in the provinces of Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia on the Atlantic and British Columbia on the Pacific. The Indians under the control of the department, in 1863 numbered 19,181, while in 1887 the Indians of Canada numbered approximately 128,000 souls. In 1863 there were 30 schools in operation; in 1887 there were 198 of these schools. We condense the following from the report concerning the Indians of our own province:

Table with 3 columns: District, Population, and Total. Lists districts like Annapolis and Shelburne, Digby and Yarmouth, etc., with their respective populations.

These 2179 Indians hold the following property: 28 houses, 53 barns, 2,045 acres land cultivated, 56 acres land newly broken up, 842 agricultural implements, 33 oxen, 104 cows, 130 young cattle, 36 horses, 103 sheep, 58 pigs; and raised the following crops during 1887: 145 bushels wheat, 1175 bushels oats, 65 bushels peas, 241 bushels other grains, 801 bushels potatoes, and 649 tons of hay. Their industries outside of agriculture were valued at $27,769 for the year, or an average for each man, woman and child of about $12.75 each, together with the amount of their farm products. Of this amount the 82 Indians of King's Co. realised $1416, an average of $17.25 each. The cost to the Dominion government of the Indians of this Province during the year was $5797.41.

The general condition of the Indians of the Province seems to be favorable. The principal industries are agriculture, fishing, hunting, timber-cutting, coopers, and Indian handicraft. They seem to be taking more interest in farming than formerly, especially in the counties of Hants, Colchester, Cumberland, Inverness, Victoria and Cape Breton. There are four Indian schools in the Province, but these are not very largely attended. Those attending however are reported as making good progress. The vice of intemperance is reported as being greatly repressed among the Indians and they seem to be as a rule a sober and industrious people.

The Pickling Industry.

While at Gaspereau you may think we called at the pickle factory of the Messrs Davidson Bros. of Halifax and Gaspereau. Mr Robert Davidson, of Gaspereau, has charge of the business department, and Mr Theodore Gole, a practical pickler from England, the manufacturing department. Mr Gole informed us that they were receiving cucumbers from some sixty different persons, all of whom appeared to be satisfied that they could be produced at a fair profit at 1 1/2 cents per pound; and gave us the names of several of them that we might inquire for ourselves as to their opinions respecting the profits of raising them. Mr Rufus Forsyth, of Gaspereau, being one of them we called upon him and found him ready and willing to give any information that he possessed, not only in respect to the cultivation and sale of cucumbers, but also that of tomatoes, apples, pears, plums, and in fact of anything that may be produced upon the farm. In speaking of cucumbers, he said:

"Come into the field and I will show you the ground I have planted and will also tell you what I have sold so that you can judge for yourself what I think of the profits arising from them. This plot contains by actual measurement one-sixteenth of an acre and I have sold from off it 900 pounds, lacking a few pounds, and if the frosts keep off for a few days longer will probably gather some hundred pounds more. Putting the amount at 1,000 pounds at 1 1/2 cents a pound, will give me $15 or at the rate of $240 to the acre."

Mr Forsyth has two other patches of cucumbers planted late in the season, which will not produce so much in proportion as the first plot. He is of the opinion that to be successful in raising cucumbers they should be planted as early as possible after the danger of frosts is over. After looking at his patches of cucumbers, he asked us to look at his tomatoes which are certainly a marvel of productiveness. The plot contains about seven square rods of ground and he has already picked and sold 200 pounds of ripe tomatoes. He has about 50 pounds more picked and ripening and the vines do not show that any had been gathered. He estimates that his entire crop from this patch of ground will yield at least 1800 pounds. The ripe ones will bring from four to five cents a pound and he has a standing offer at the pickle factory for all the green ones at 1 1/2 cents a pound, which will probably make his average 2 1/2 cents a pound or $25 for seven rods, equal to $1028 per acre.

We saw Mr Jowdry, another producer of cucumbers, who sells to the Davidson Bros. He estimated that the piece of ground he has planted will yield him at the rate of $200 to the acre, not taking into account what he has used in his family. Mr George Patriquin, of Wolfville, who has but a small piece of ground devoted to cucumbers, sold to the factory 300 pounds in three days. Mr Alexander Fullerton, of Long Island, sold his patch of cucumbers containing about one-quarter of an acre for $57.50 cash at the first of the picking season. Mr Robert Palmeter, Mr Jehiel Davidson, and Mr William Fullerton, all of Long Island, have raised considerable quantities and found a ready market for them at their door, being at no expense but picking them after coming into bearing.

Mr Gole informed us that they had been more successful in getting stock for pickling than they anticipated and they would have in the course of a few weeks from 500 to 600 half-barrels of pickles ready, which will at once be shipped to Halifax, where a ready market awaits them.

This industry it encourages must be of profit to our people as it will create a market for cucumbers, onions, tomatoes, cauliflower, beans, and many other things easily produced by our farmers, and also a demand for barrels, vinegar, &c., which should be manufactured in connection therewith.

Fruit Raising in Pictou.

King's county fruit has gained a world-wide reputation and King's county fruit growers are among the best and most successful. Besides those who stay at home and are converting our fair county into one magnificent orchard, there are those who push out and are trying their fortune in other places. The following from the New Glasgow Enterprise gives a description of how a King's county man is succeeding in that place as a fruit grower. Mr Shaw formerly resided at Waterville, in this county, and is a brother of Mr Isaac Shaw, of Berwick, who is one of our best informed and most successful growers of fruit-trees.

Can Pictou county raise fruit? This question has agitated the minds of our people for years past. Some believed that all it wanted was a fair trial, while others held that it was an impossibility. D. H. Shaw, a gentleman who came here from the far-famed Annapolis Valley a few years ago, belonging to the former class. He backed up his belief by practice. Securing a six-acre patch on the west side of New Glasgow, he at once set to work, and to-day he has one of the prettiest and most valuable orchards and fruit gardens in Canada. A young tree transplanted in a tub, and set at the door of Mr Shaw's fruit store, laden with plums, attracted the eye of an Enterprise reporter. On inquiry he found that it was of the More's Arctic variety, and was only a fair sample of hundreds of the same kind in Mr Shaw's orchard. On expressing a desire to be kindly shown over the orchard by the enterprising proprietor. Three years ago it was nothing more than an ordinary common; now it contains 1,000 plum trees, 200 apple trees, 3,250 gooseberry bushes, several pear trees, 1,900 currant bushes, etc. The plum trees, which are of the More's Arctic, Coo's Golden Drop, Lombard, Bradshaw, Munro and New Orleans varieties, were planted fifteen months ago, and are all heavily laden with fruit, clusters on the boughs resembling bunches of grapes. Some of the trees contain as much as a peck each of that excellent fruit. This year Mr Shaw picked and sold 5,000 gallons gooseberries and currants, finding a ready market at home and throughout the province. The gooseberry bushes averaging a gallon of berries to the bush. One of the principal features in this garden is the strawberry plant. This year he picked 1,500 quarts strawberries of delicious flavor; in fact Shaw's strawberries have a provincial reputation. He also picked 1,000 quarts raspberries, and between two and three tons rhubarb. The apple trees are principally of the Dutchess variety, and the pears of the Keefe's High Brod and Bartlett varieties. Mr Shaw expects to have from 400 to 500 quarts of plums this year. He has also 600 head of cabbage on this little but marvellous farm. This is the result of two years' work on six acres of land. Can we raise fruit? Mr Shaw has answered the question beyond dispute. We do not think we are saying too much when we say that Mr Shaw has taken more out of his six-acre patch than has been taken out of the best farms in the county. Elbow grease and pluck will do it every time.

Independent of Any Country.

A day or two ago Sir John A. Macdonald in his speech, opening the exhibition at Kingston, Ont., referred to retaliation and said: "You know that we may be obliged to look to our own resources. From what we hear from our neighbors across the line, Canadians are to be excluded for no act of theirs. Well, if they will not allow us to trade with them we can trade with ourselves. We are not afraid or dismayed at any threatened attempt to hamper our commerce or cripple our resources. The effect will be the same as was shown at the time of the abrogation of the reciprocity treaty of 1854. It showed that we could rely upon our own resources. While we should like to continue to trade with our neighbors in a free manner, we can do without it and can afford to wait with calm self-reliance the outcome of the matter. We are quite independent of any country."

Silver Bells.

One of those pleasant events which occur in the history of nearly every one's life took place on Wednesday, Sep. 13th, at the residence of the bride's father, C. E. Beckwith, Esq., of Church St. Although the day was quite unpleasant and disagreeable a large number of the invited guests were present. The two parties mostly interested were Miss Adrie M. Beckwith and J. Allen Sharpe, B. A., son of L. L. Sharpe, Esq., of St John, N. B. At 3 p. m. the groom in his naturally serene and tranquil appearance took his place. In a moment the bride leaning upon her father's arm appeared and stood beside the one who in a little while was to be made her comforter and consolator for ever. She was accompanied by her little niece, Miss Ethel Harris, who held a beautiful basket of flowers.

The groom who was dressed in a full black suit, and the bride in a beautiful cream-colored dress trimmed in heavy lace, made a fine appearance, and when they stepped into the room all seemed to stand in silence. The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. S. B. Kempton, M. A., was indeed touching, but when the people realized the loss the community was to sustain by this holy bond of matrimony it became still more impressive. The presents, which were numerous, showed even to the stranger that she was loved by all, and when the title of husband and wife was pronounced upon them, many eyes were filled with tears. When the congratulations and best wishes of all present had been bestowed upon them, all sat down to a sumptuous repast, after which a short but very pleasant time was spent in examining the presents and decorations, which were numerous and exceedingly pretty. The decorations certainly deserve praise, but we can only mention those of one room, which consisted in wreaths of autumn leaves entwined about appropriate mottoes with many large bouquets of flowers and other garlands of beauty arranged in different places.

At 4:45 the happy couple were driven through showers of rice and old slippers accompanied by some forty friends to Port Williams station from where they took the train via Halifax to St John, in which place the groom is engaged in a large jewelry business. On arrival in Halifax they took coach for hotel and on following day visited many noted places such as House of Assembly, Legislature Hall, Provincial Museum, etc., and a drive through the prettiest part of the city. While here the bride received some very handsome presents. On Friday the early train bore them to St John, where they were received with a large reception, and now while the bride's friends are sorry to have parted with a friend so near, may be the best wishes for their future happiness and prosperity remain with them.

Money Made Keeping Hens.

Hundreds of farmers who never kept an account, would kill every "peaky" hen on the farm if it was not for the "woman folks." The women intuitively know that the hens do not "eat their heads off every six months," but properly kept pay better than any other farm animals. This is true. A record, simple to keep, so it would be used and show the facts in detail, would prove that every hen paid a profit. They could be made to pay, from one to three dollars each. Mr James L. Burgess, Nashua, N. H., reported to the Nashua "Telegraph," that his wife made a clean net profit of $36.59 for eggs alone, from only sixteen hens. He thinks her success was largely due to using Sheridan's Condition Powder a much advertised preparation to make hens lay. Do your hens pay like that? Do you want to learn how to make them pay better? Are you in delicate health, and want to commence poultry raising, for the sake of open air employment? If so, get some reliable advice how to do it. An enlarged, and much improved Poultry Raising Guide has just been printed.

It contains practical information and many new features, which every person who keeps hens should have; such as records and accounts for each month of the year. It also contains a long series of very valuable articles, by A. F. Hunter, "How to make money with a few hens." Of him the Lowell Journal says: "The most sensible poultry literature we have read, we find under the name A. F. Hunter. He evidently knows what he is talking about." These two features alone, are worth ten times the cost of the book; which the publishers, I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House St., Boston, Mass., send postpaid; for only 25 cents in stamps. Send to Johnson & Co., for testimonial circular free.

Cucumbers Again.

MESSRS EDITORS.—I thought that a manufacturer would reply to me over his own signature and not take refuge in a "one-sixteenth" acre cucumber patch of one of his dapses to get off his pop-gun over the shoulder of "Another Producer." Next time I advise him to get into a pumpkin patch with his kith and kin. It will be seen that he does not challenge, much less disprove, any of my "false statements." He admits that pickles can be made for 2 1/2 cents per pound in the old way; and all I have to say is, if that is the case we had better keep to the old ways. But I can prove that they can be made for less than 2 cents per pound by the improved methods! O yes, he did "wrasle" with the problem about 50 cents being less than a cent per pound for a bushel, which I am informed weighs 60 pounds. Let him try it again. I do not care a pin for the "one-sixteenth" acre experience. Let us have an "acre" experience. But even if cucumbers could be produced for 1 1/2 cents per pound, which they cannot, where is the justice in the producer selling at that price while the manufacturer and retailer make a clear profit of 5 and 4 cents respectively. The whole thing is scandalous, but in keeping with many other wrongs. But we, the producers, have the remedy in our own hands, if we are not a pack of dupes and slaves. PRODUCER.

DOCK BLOOD PURIFIER.

I have been sick with Liver and Kidney Complaint and night sweat, for over two years, most of the time confined to my bed. A doctor attended me who failed to cure me; and after trying many patent medicines that were recommended for the above complaints, which failed also, I was advised to try Doctor Norton's Dock Blood Purifier; three bottles has entirely cured me, and I now enjoy the best health I have for twenty years. MESSRS D. MUMFORD, Avondale, Hants County May 2d, 1888.

FRUIT GROWERS' MEETING.—The next meeting of the Fruit Growers' Association of Nova Scotia will be held at Chisholm's Hall, Truro, on Thursday evening, the 27th inst. Subjects of important interest, including the proposed Dominion Convention of Fruit Growers in Montreal, January next, and the tree "Borer" and how to contend against its destructive ravages, will be discussed. As a large number of those interested in fruit culture will be in Truro at the exhibition at that time the meeting will no doubt be large and interesting.

Now in Stock.—Twenty half-barrel of those fat Scataris Herring. E. C. Bishop.

MORE PICNICS.—The Sunday-schools in connection with the Baptist and Episcopal congregations held their annual picnics this week, the former on Tuesday at Oak Island, Avonport, and the latter on Wednesday at Long Island. Both days were favorable and both picnics largely attended. We did not have the pleasure of attending either but from what we can learn a very pleasant day was spent on each occasion. This closes the Sunday-school picnics for this season so far as Wolfville is concerned.—The Chesapeake Sunday-school held their picnic on Wednesday in their own beautiful valley and enjoyed themselves immensely.

T., had been invited to meet with them and at half past eight o'clock they were received by the Division. The worthy Patriarch of the Division, Mr. W. S. Wallace, in a few words gave them a hearty welcome and was followed by an address from the worthy Chief of the Lodge, Mr. J. L. Paquin. A select programme of music followed, interspersed by appropriate addresses from prominent members of both Division and Lodge. During the evening a half-hour's intermission was given for social converse. If indications be for anything this was the pleasantest feature of the evening. The Division and Lodge members became thoroughly acquainted and, realizing that the two orders were one in work and in aim, sympathized with each other in the work for which they were formed. Shortly after half past ten the meeting dispersed each going to his home with remembrance of a pleasant evening's enjoyment.

MR. C. W. BISHOP wishes to inform the people of Wolfville and vicinity that he is prepared to do painting, paper-hanging, and kalsomining in a first-class manner for all who may favor him with their orders.

Masters appeared for plaintiff; C. S. Harrington and W. E. Roscoe for defendants.—Hants Journal.

The camp at Aldershot broke up on Saturday last and the final manoeuvres and inspection took place on Friday. These were witnessed by a large concourse of people from all parts of the country. Much credit was accorded the troops by the general officer in command for efficiency in drill, the 69th, Annapolis, taking the palm, and the 75th, Lunenburg, for cleanly appearance, because of their newer uniform. Their band also was pronounced the best on the ground.—Bridgetown Monitor.

BAND CONCERT.—Their usual good fortune attended the boys of the Kentville band at their promenade concert in the Drill Shed last evening. The night was fine and a goodly number was present. The band played its best music, delicious fruits and other delicacies were served at the refreshment tables, which were well patronized, and a very enjoyable evening spent. The entertainment was varied by the appearance of Prof. Johnson in circus costume, who gave an exhibition of his skill in tossing balls, knives, bottles, etc. His performance was much admired eliciting great applause. The proceeds of the concert were in the vicinity of $50.—Western Chronicle.

The Town Talk.

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Runaround, I am so glad to see you, walk right in and spend the afternoon with me. I was thinking of you to-day, and coming events cast their shadows before. How's baby and hubby, all well? I'm so glad to hear it. I was out shopping yesterday and I heard that they were unwell. Do you go shopping any Mrs. Runaround? I do so like to go shopping and price goods. I suppose that the clerks get vexed with me, but I flatter them a little and make it all right. Speaking of shopping, have you ever seen B. G. Bishop's new store, No. 999, Main St., Wolfville? I was in his place yesterday. He has just opened the most beautiful lot of Tea Sets, Vases, Fancy Goods, Crockery and Glass I ever saw—and so cheap; and such pretty Lamps, it is worth your while to see them. And a beautiful stock of Tinware! He sells a large Wash Boiler for $1.25, and a nice Coal Scentle for 30 cents. His Tinware is dirt cheap, just think of a one-gallon Oil Can for 30 cents! I never heard the beat of it, and such an endless variety! My hubby says that he gets the best satisfaction in Paints and Hardware from Mr. Bishop as he is bound to sell, cheap and keep good stock only. Yes, we will go in and see his store. Oh, must you be going? Well, call again and bring baby with you. Good-bye. Oh, yes, I shall go and see you soon. Good-bye, and come again. Oh my, yes, I guess I will. Good-bye! Good-bye!"
