SELLING OUR FRUIT IN HOME MARKETS

In a recent issue THE ACADIAN published a letter from Capt. J. E. Faulkner, of Port Williams, with reference to our apple exports, which must have been read with interest by the growers of this section. The writer of this letter also contributed to the daily press an article in which he advocated reforms in the packing of apples for the local trade. Capt. Faulkner exhibits a very commendable willingness to give the people of the home community the benefit of his experience concerning the packing and marketing of apples, gained during his journeyings in this and other lands, which is doubtless appreciated.

His reference to the quality of Nova Scotia apples displayed in our provincial markets presents a condition which is unfortunately too true. One has only to visit some of our local stores for evidence as to the correctness of his statements. If the same attention and care which is evident in the selection and packing of apples intended for the English markets were given to those which are offered at home we feel sure our growers would find it greatly to their profit. Under the present methods in such industrial centres as Amherst, Truro, New Glasgow and Sydney, Nova Scotia apples are rarely seen while British Columbia fruit is shown everywhere and selling at such prices as would fill an Annapolis Valley grower with envy.

On the other hand Capt. Faulkner gives it as his experience that receivers of our apples in Montreal and other cities readily pay big prices for the real goods when they are able to get them. In his opinion it is not the price but the manner in which our apples are packed and sold that prevents them from receiving their due in our home markets. Our province has wonderful facilities for the production of high-class fruit and it should be our aim that when a barrel or box of apples bears the label "Nova Scotia" it should be none but proof that the contents of the package corresponds with the mark thereon.

INSURANCE RATES

Hints regarding a re-rating of this town for insurance purposes and a likely increase in the cost have not infrequently been heard during the past year. Logically we should be rather expecting a decrease now that in practically all commodities the tendency of prices is downward. During and following the war such an advance might naturally have been expected, although even then there was little justification other than the fact that prices were being boosted in all directions. Now that conditions are assuming normal, insurance underwriters and banking concerns should be the first to set a good example.

So far as Wolfville is concerned insurance companies have fared well during the past quarter century or more. During that time a very large amount has been paid out annually in premiums while the fire losses have been insignificant. If when the town was incorporated some enterprising citizens had possessed far-sightedness enough to have advocated the municipal control of this work, and the matter had been undertaken upon a sound business basis, a sufficient reserve would probably have by this time accumulated to provide for all expenses of town government without taxation of any kind. This should be patent to any person who will give the matter a little investigation. There is, of course, always the possibility of a town such as this meeting with serious disaster through fire in spite of all precautions that may be taken, but if the experience of the past is any criterion Wolfville is far from proving an unprofitable risk to those who are handling the business even at present rates.

ECONOMY IN ALL THINGS NEEDED

Those who are making a study of the financial situation in this country are coming to a realization of the fact that from now on there is bound to be less money to spend both for public and private purposes. In recent times there has existed a prodigality in this regard which has been far away from normal and which in the nature of things must eventually come to an end. By this we do not wish to be understood as advocating an undue tightening of the purse-strings which could only result disastrously to trade generally. In order to serve its purpose in the best interests of all money must be kept in circulation. What we mean is that people should exhibit thrift and frugality in their expenditures and insist that they receive the fullest possible value for every dollar paid out. Easy money has so long been a characteristic of our business conditions that such a procedure will naturally meet with considerable opposition, but in the end it is bound to result to the advantage of all concerned. We must bear in mind that in the final analysis competition is bound to control all negotiations and we must be prepared to compete on equal terms with the people of other lands. When the compensation given our workmen is made to a greater degree comparable with that of pre-war times, and conditions provide that a careful expenditure on the part of the wage earner will make possible an ample living for himself and his dependants, and when the public as a whole becomes satisfied to return to the old order, we will be on the road to the old time efficiency which was enjoyed previous to 1914.

SPEND IT IN WOLFVILLE

Prices here are, as usual, lower than big-city prices. Your home-town merchant is selling the merchandise that he can afford to carry at prices that you can afford to pay. It is up to you, the buyer, to support him, not in a spirit of giving him something, but in the spirit of contributing to your mutual welfare.

Individual prosperity is in no small measure dependant on merchant prosperity, and vice versa. Buy what you need now, buy all you need, and—be sure you buy it in Wolfville.

Don't forget that Germany held out against the rest of the world in the great war for so long a time only because she spent ALL her money at home.

Home-spending makes for home-strength. Strengthen yourself, your merchants and your community by spending your money in Wolfville.

THE DIFFERENCE

When business is poor with the big city stores they do their heavy advertising to force trade. In some of the smaller towns when trade is slow the merchants stop advertising and crawl under the counter and go to sleep.

TOURIST CAMPING GROUNDS

If Wolfville is to move along the line of providing a suitable camping place for motoring tourists next summer it is time that definite steps were being taken. That such an undertaking would prove a wise one will scarcely be questioned. In most of the tourist centres on this continent they already exist and the number is being added to. Visitors to Florida this winter describe the tourist camping arrangements there as most complete. The sites are usually pleasantly located in groves along the sea shore and contain all modern equipments, such as water, electric light, baths, toilets, etc., and when near the larger centres efficient police protection. The cost of occupying these grounds is twenty-five cents per night or one dollar a week. In Florida they think it worth while to cater to the entertainment of visitors and when Nova Scotia people pursue similar methods they will find it profitable. It is to be hoped that Wolfville may be in a position to offer visitors the use of a proper camping place when the tourist season opens this year.

WHY NOT AN ACADIA RE-UNION

May we suggest as a feature of the "Old Home Summer" program this year the holding of a re-union of all Acadia students who may find it possible to visit Wolfville during the coming summer. The Alumni of Dalhousie have plans laid for such an undertaking and with the spirit of aggressiveness which is now so evident at Acadia the time should be opportune for a similar gathering here. We make the suggestion with the belief that its carrying out would be in the interests of the town and neighborhood, of the old graduates themselves and most of all to the University itself. In the hands of a wide-awake committee the work of arranging for such a re-union would not be difficult if at once got under way. We respectfully submit the project to the consideration of college people, and predict that the town and its citizens will gladly co-operate in making it a success.

WHERE YOUNG MEN GET THEIR WIVES

"Wise young men do not hunt for wives on the streets, or at shows." In the modest seclusion of happy homes, helping mother, or in the Sunday School and church, helping to make the world better, or in the school room leading young lives into a higher plane—in places like these they seek to find them. And the young men that gadding girls catch are not worth catching.

WHAT FREEDOM IS

(From The Financial Post)
"Freedom" is one thing; preaching the destruction of our present system of civilization is another. The first can be intellectual; the second is political; but between the two there is a great gulf fixed. "Freedom", in the sense of objecting to restraints, finds a fertile soil in the minds of youth; youth is naturally rebellious, and we can make all allowances for it. When it happens that the idealism of youth is taken advantage of by unscrupulous agitators; when youthful objection to restraint is influenced into lines of thought subversive of the established order; and this by persons of more than doubtful antecedents in international activities, the common-sense demands some measure of protection—not to oppose intellectual freedom, but to expose this trading on young and impressionable minds by glib-tongued agents of mischief.

We learned during the war just what enemy propaganda meant; we saw how patriotic efforts could be hindered and even utilized by enemy interests. The ease with which some people have forgotten all the war lessons is disquieting. It is no alarmist doctrine to say that the forces which worked against Canada and the Empire during the war, and for almost a generation before, are as powerful and well-directed to-day as ever. There is more than the sting of defeat to avenge, there is the fight which is necessary to secure industrial openings and regain economic stability. If propaganda of any kind, "woolly" or "pacifist", will help to keep unsettled the political and industrial conditions of Canada and the Empire, that propaganda will be used—and the enemy interests which fight industrially as well as politically will get the benefit.

We need a rest from industrial troubles, and from political uprisings. The world has had too much of them. The constructive need of the day is work, not agitation which plays into the hands of our opponents at every turn.

GERMANS ARE ORGANIZING FOR REVENGE

Troops Are Being Instructed and Armed, Says French Commander

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—"Blow a whistle and the skeleton of Germany would immediately recover skin, muscle, blood and nerves, the same as in 1914." General Bourgeois, a member of the Nollet Commission investigating military conditions in the Reich, declared today in an interview with the British United Press.

"to abandon allied control of Germany would be a deadly imprudence," the French Commander continued. "Fortunately the Allies have understood this. We have undeniable proof that Germany is secretly organizing for revenge.
"She is instructing officers. She has Reichswehr troops more numerous than the Versailles Treaty permits. She is furnishing them with most modern and complete armaments, rifles, machine-guns, cannon and plenty of ammunition.
"The Reichswehr is the frame of 21 German army corps. A whistle would call all ex-soldiers to join existing companies which are deliberately wearing the numbers of regiments of the old Imperial Army."

AN IMPORTANT USE FOR ALUMINUM
Tea Company first used lead packages but some years ago adopted aluminum foil as being more durable and lighter than lead, besides of course being absolutely clean and air-tight. This method of packing is admitted to be the best to preserve the flavor of tea. All "SALADA" is sold in air-tight aluminum packages.

THAT'S WHAT I'M HERE FOR

It was very early in the morning at the great Union Station when a worried looking woman reappeared at the information desk.

"Will you tell me again, young man, just what you said about my train? I'm mixed on it!"

"Yes, Ma'am, it comes in on track five. It is ten minutes late." Donald gave these facts with the pleasant charm of manner that made him a general favorite.

"Ten minutes late? Did you say ten minutes?" the woman was back at the desk in a few moments.

"Yes, Ma'am, just ten minutes—it lost that at Harrisburg. It will probably not lose any more time. That train seldom is late."

"And which track did you say?" "Track five, Ma'am." Donald's voice was as pleasant as before.

"Say, how do you manage to keep the smile from coming off?" chuckled a youth standing near, as the woman turned away. He came up close to Donald, and spoke in a confidential undertone.

"Asked the same question over and over, didn't she?" "Oh, that's nothing—sometimes they get confused—specially women in a big station like this. And it's what I'm here for—to answer questions!"

A moment later, his own business done, the second youth, Jack by name, was hurrying to his own place behind the information desk at Wheeler & Pimple's Department Store.

He had bitterly chafed at the restrictions and hum-drum quality of his work. Only that morning at the early breakfast table he had uttered a few caustic comments on the general public—and an unflattering opinion as to its general intelligence.

"It's about the last position I'd have chosen," he had finished bitterly to his mother. "Of course, Mr. Pell said there'd be other chances for me later, and knowing father as he did and all that, you'd think—"

Jack had stopped, with a sombre look in his eyes. He was still thinking of Donald's courteous patience when he went to his own place at Wheeler & Pimple's at nine o'clock, and somehow, without half realizing it, he was soon imitating Donald's pleasant manners, in his dealings with the customers who stopped at the information desk.

It was a special bargain sale—the store was crowded. The clerk who shared the duties of the information desk with Jack had been called away to another department for the morning.

"They told me that specials sold to-day are not returnable," a woman complained in a rather high pitched voice; "but I don't think that's fair! How can I tell whether my niece will like the dress I pick out for her? And I'm not even sure of her size!"

Jack would probably have turned her off with a brief statement that it was a rule of the store, if the memory of Donald's pleasant fact had not been with him. With that memory before him, he spoke courteously and with a smile.

"But you see the goods are so reduced in price for quick sale that we have to have some such rule. I believe it is a general rule in most stores for special sales."

"Well now, maybe it is," the woman conceded. "Perhaps if I could get word to my niece about the colors and sizes, that would help," she ruminated.

"Where can I get to a phone, young man? Oh, inside one of those little cubby holes, is it?" And she departed to make room for the next person desiring "information."

"Lots of silly folks you meet, don't you?" remarked a man in the course of the morning, who had been preceded by a bewildered woman who had required minute and thrice repeated information in regard to the suburban deliveries. "Don't you get kind of sick of it?"

"Oh, it's what I'm here for," Jack answered, "you see, folks get sort of mixed up and confused—especially on a rush day like this."

"Well, you're good natured about it—I'll hand that to you." "Somehow full as the morning proved to be, Jack made his way to the cafeteria at noon in a less wearied and disgusted state of mind than was usual with him on bargain days.

He was not particularly analytical so it never occurred to him that his effort to keep outwardly pleasant through those morning hours had had their wholesome psychological effect. He did not realize that the curling of the lips in a smile is very apt to produce a smile in the heart.

Mr. Pell, the floor manager, to whom Jack was indebted for his position, brought his own well filled tray to the same table with the boy. "Well, how goes it, Jack?" he inquired, pleasantly.

"All right, sir," responded Jack. "Busy morning for Wheeler & Pimple's, wasn't it?" he added with a smile.

"You're right it was, and by the way I heard a good word for you today—an old aunt of mine who was in from the country told me that the young man at the information desk was very kind and polite to her. She doesn't go shopping very often, and she's rather shy, too. Wish I'd known when she first came in, but evidently you looked after her. She said she got so mixed up about the deliveries she had to ask you must have thought she was half-witted, she said, but if you did you never showed it. That's the right spirit, boy," added Mr. Pell kindly.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT OPENED

A Reduction in Taxation Promised in Speech from the Throne

OTTAWA, Feb. 22.—A reduction of taxation aimed "primarily at reducing the cost of the instruments of production," and the appointment of a board to investigate and study the various modes of taxation, were the two chief items in the government program announced at the opening of the third session of the fourteenth Parliament of Canada today.

The opening, was favored by sunny weather without, while within the Parliament Buildings there was a brilliant display of uniform and attire to which the canopy of gold and maroon lent an added touch of color in the Senate chamber, where His Excellency the Governor General, Baron Byng of Vimy, read the Speech From the Throne and declared Parliament opened. There was a new reminiscence of the Mother of Parliaments in the wearing of the Speakers of both Houses of knee breeches, silk stockings and buckled shoes, although the wig worn by the Speaker in the British House was absent.

Another alteration noticed from the uniforms of other years was the dressing of the pages of the House of Commons in a business-like suit of black, edged with green, in place of the Eton jacket of former years. The Senate pages, however, appeared in their customary uniform.

In addition to the announcements indicated above, the Speech from the Throne laid emphasis upon the efforts already put forth by the government to secure strict economy and rigorous retrenchment, and the belief was expressed that for the first time since 1912-1913, the national budget would be balanced. The consolidation of the various taxation branches under one head was announced; and in regard to the St. Lawrence waterways, the opinion was expressed that further inquiry was necessary before a final decision could be reached.

An effort to secure a lower carrying charge on shipments of Canadian cattle; and the removal of discrimination in ocean rates on flour and other Canadian products, were referred to; while the re-introduction of the Canadian National branch lines bill, killed by the Senate last session, was also fore-shadowed.

After listening to the Speech from the Throne, the Commoneers held a short session in their own chamber and then adjourned until Monday, when the debate on the Address will be commenced.

During the brief session in the Commons chamber, three ministers were introduced to the House, Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. E. M. Macdonald, Minister of National Defence, and Hon. E. J. McMurray, Solicitor General. The reelection of these members to Parliament was rendered necessary by their acceptance of portfolios during the recess.

F. L. Kelly, Liberal member for Cape Breton North, in succession to Hon. D. D. McKenzie, who was elevated to the Supreme Court Bench of Nova Scotia, was also introduced.

On the Conservative side of the House W. A. Black, of Halifax, and A. J. Doucet, of Kent, New Brunswick, took their seats. Mr. Black represents the seat formerly held by Hon. A. K. Maclean, now President of the Exchequer Court; while Mr. Doucet succeeds A. T. Leger, former Liberal member for Kent, who died last summer. The Speaker of the House announced the vacancy in the county of Richelieu, caused by the appointment of Hon. H. J. A. Cardin, as Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in succession to Hon. Ernest Lapointe, who took the place of Sir Lomer Gouin in the Department of Justice. Before the Commons adjourned brief references were made by the Premier and the Conservative and Progressive leaders to the loss the House had sustained by the death of Mr. Leger, and to the absence from the House at present of Right Hon. W. S. Fielding and Sir Lomer Gouin on account of illness.

The Premier stated that Mr. Fielding was most anxious to be able to continue to play his part; that he retained his old zeal, but that his strength was insufficient. He could only hope

QUEBEC WILL BEAUTIFY COUNTRY

Miles of Roads Will Be Bordered With Trees on Both Sides

QUEBEC, March 1.—Miles of roads with trees bordering both sides, affording protection to travellers by automobile and wagon, and beautifying the country, is the aim of Hon. J. L. Perron, Minister of Roads.

Mr. Perron has laid plans whereby commencing with springtime the roads department will plant great quantities of trees along the Provincial and regional highways.

The Minister is also issuing an appeal to all the municipalities in the Province to follow suit.

Mr. Perron has reached an understanding with Hon. Honore Mercier, whereby the Department of Lands and Forests will supply the municipalities with all the necessary trees at minimum cost, and the forestry engineers of the lands and forest department will lend their services gratuitously to aid the municipal authorities in the new task.

There is a practical side to Mr. Perron's desire to border the roads of the

PA'S IGNORANCE

Most every day when I'm at school The teacher tells us things About the birds and animals And presents and kings. And then at night, when I ask pa If what she says is so, He reads his paper right along And says, "Oh, I dunno!"

One day she told us that the world Is round, just like a ball, And that there's nothing down below It's standing on at all. I sat pa if she told the truth, He read the paper through, And put his feet up on a chair, And said, "Oh, I dunno!"

And once the teacher said the sky Ain't heaven's floor, and tried To make us think no angels walk Along the other side. And so that night I sat my pa And all he said was, "Oh, Don't bother me about such things, I'm busy, I dunno!"

I used to kind of think somehow That my pa knew a lot— But that was wrong, or if he did I guess that he's forgot. Since I've got started into school Most every day or so I hear about a hundred things Pa doesn't seem to know.

WOLFVILLE AS VALLEY CHAMPIONS

Mr. Charles Wigmore, a playing member of the Kentville Hockey Team has been suspended for the second time this season, a meeting of the M. P. B. officers deciding Wigmore's fate at Halifax on Friday evening.

Kentville, acclaiming themselves Valley Champions, played the first of a play-off series with Lunenburg last week, but the Union courageously steps in and declared it "no contest" on account of Wigmore having been suspended. Well then, if Wigmore's association with Kentville is sufficient to disqualify his team in a play-off it is also of sufficient importance to count as a night all league games won by Kentville with his assistance. The Union cannot decide otherwise, and it would appear that the Valley Title, if awarded at all this year, should go to the Wolfville Club, against which not a single protest has been lodged.—Hants Journal.

THE PRODIGAL SON FROM A NEW ANGLE

The parable of the prodigal son has received much attention from the pulpit, being dealt with from many standpoints. On Sunday last the Rev. Thos. Hodgson, from the desk at Canning, gave a fine interpretation of the words, "and when he came to himself," suggesting that in all the crises of life we glimpse venerated or loved faces, possibly oftener the face of a mother, but sometimes as in this case, the face of a father, from whom had been received not only care and sustenance, but religion, as indicated by the words of greeting which his mind prompted, "I have sinned against Heaven." The suggestiveness of the sermon to the fathers and mothers was very forcible and the thought that the elder brother did not "come to himself" very enlightening. A large appreciative audience listened to the discourse.

OUR COAL MAY GO TO ONTARIO

The coking qualities of our Nova Scotia soft coal has been known here for some time. Of late the Dominion Fuel Board has had it under experimentation and will in a short time issue a report on same. The experiments have been successfully carried on at the coking plant recently established at Hamilton, Ontario. Extensive tests were made of the adaptability of our soft coal to this coking treatment with a view to ascertain its suitability as a substitute for anthracite which we have to import. The tests have proved that our bituminous coal lent itself admirably to this coking process. It is likely that from these tests that coking plants will be established at Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa and our coal will be taken there for that purpose. Besides it will be carried on here in the Maritime Provinces so that we may be independent of the American market for anthracite coal.

DEATH OF KENTVILLE'S OLDEST RESIDENT

James Bennett Dickey, the oldest and one of the most highly esteemed and best known citizens of Kentville, died Friday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. G. Harris, in his 93rd year.

He was born at Upper Canard in 1830, son of the late George and Sarah Dickey. His parents moved to Lower Canard, where they purchased a large farm which is now owned by his nephew, Earl Dickey. Here he resided until 11 years ago when he retired and went to Kentville to reside with his daughter, Mr. Dickey's grandfather, James B. Dickey, for whom he was named, emigrated from Scotland to the north of Ireland at the time of the revolution, and from Ireland to New York.

Mr. Dickey travelled very widely. He was for 10 years a member of the firm of D. R. and C. F. Eaton, apple and potato buyers and shippers. He shipped as super-cargo with the first shipment of potatoes from the Cornwallis Valley to Cuba at the time of the Spanish-Cuban war in 1878, in the three-masted schooner "Magnolio" and made many other trips in after years.

He was married at Windsor in 1863 to Ellen McLatchey, daughter of the late Captain Thomas McLatchey. Mrs. Dickey died 5 years ago. Two brothers, Hibbert and Fleming, of Canard, are the remaining members of the Dickey family. He is also survived by one daughter, Mrs. H. G. Harris, who has cared for him during his declining years, and by four grandchildren. He was a cousin of the late Hon. J. B. Dickey, Truro, who served several years in the legislature, representing Colchester county.

Mr. Dickey was a gentleman of the old school, courtly, and with a remarkable keenness of intellect, a retentive memory, and wide knowledge of memorable and interesting events. He retained his faculties with the exception of a slight impairment in hearing and eyesight. He was active in business, social and church life. In politics he was a Liberal, becoming a strong supporter of Union Government during the war.

The funeral services were held from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Harris, on Sunday afternoon.

FORMER WOLFVILLE BOY TEACHING IN WEST

It is refreshing to hear from our Wolfville boys who are filling positions in Canada. Stanley Morrison of Cadillac, Sask., well known to our old High School boys, not long ago received a Toronto paper from his mother, who with his aunt, Miss James, is residing in Toronto, telling him of Miss Rosamond Archibald's reception in that city in her recent campaign for Better English. Stanley wrote at once to Miss Archibald for a King's English Drill and on receipt of same wrote back: "Your (sound) little book came promptly and you may depend upon its being made good use of here. I am hoping that each pupil may own a copy to do effective work. Personally I would gladly pay treble the price for such a handbook and can only wish that I might make it a gift to every pupil. My fellow teachers are ever glad to adopt the method at once. You shall hear from us again." His sister Ruth is to graduate from the Toronto General Hospital in April. Stanley ends his most interesting letter thus: "This country is not much like the Land of Evangeline. In place of the Gaspareau there winds a sluggish creek through space. This very space, however, is not without beauty and the sunsets are exquisite, sometimes and at others, flaunting. Cadillac does not bear the same relation to other towns that the Cadillac does to other makes, but there is a pleasant community spirit pervading the place."

"There's where you fall down" as the small boy said when he pointed to the icy sidewalk.

Worth Its Price

"We have cheaper teas, madam, but I think you'll find 'KING COLE' is worth its price." So said a wise grocer recently to a questioning customer.

He might please her purse with the cheaper article but her final judgment of his service would be on the quality of the tea supplied.

This was one of the many merchants using "KING COLE TEA" in their own homes, and so he could say with sincerity: "It is worth the price."

The gold mines of Northern Ontario broke all previous records in the month of January, when they produced approximately $3,100,000, based on preliminary reports received from the mines.

Grain handled at the port of Montreal in 1923 totaled 1,690,018,008 bushels, the largest amount shipped through any port in North America during the year. Montreal maintains for the third consecutive year her position as the leading grain exporting port of the continent.

Dr. Geo. H. Locke, chief librarian, Toronto, at the request of the Canadian Authors' Association, has undertaken to supervise the selection of volumes for the Canadian literature exhibit at the British Empire Exhibition. The task involves the gathering together of 500 representative books and it anticipated will take about a fortnight.

From all indications, the potato shipments to Havana this season from the port of St. John, New Brunswick, will greatly exceed those of last year. To date there have been 750,397 bushels sent forward in twenty steamers, while from September 1, 1922, until January 31, 1923, a total of 505,668 bushels were shipped in seventeen steamers.

With heavy enquiries from South American sources for Canadian flour, millers expect to see their export volumes substantially increased during the month of February, as compared with January. This movement, together with offerings of a premium for wheat at Vancouver, has been the most encouraging trade feature of the past month in Winnipeg, Man.

Colonel Geo. H. Ham, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who recently returned from Florida, reports that Canada was prominently featured at the South Florida fair, held at Tampa some time ago. A very striking exhibit of Canadian products and natural resources was displayed and a "Canada Day" was celebrated, all of which is said to have been a revelation to those who attended.

Buffalo meat from the park at Wainwright has recently been on sale throughout Canada and has been extremely well received. It is described as resembling beef, but more gamey flavor. Government officials expect that this meat, with hides and other buffalo products, will become a regular source of income to the people of Canada in the future.

Work on the Kenogami dam, in the province of Quebec, is reported as progressing every well, and the $2,000,000 works located at the upper part of the Saguenay River are expected to be completed within 15 months. As a result of these works, the mills operated by the Price interests will be kept in full activity during the whole year, instead of partly closing down in the winter months, as they have had to do in the past.

More than $12,000,000 worth of equipment was added to the Canadian Pacific Railway's service during 1923. Included were 14 Pacific and 20 Mikado type locomotives, all very powerful and equipped with the most modern devices for power, speed and economical operation. Other items were 35 steel baggage cars, 12 mail and express, 15 first class coaches, 6 cafe-parlor and buffet-parlor cars, 1,000 box cars, 350 freight refrigerator cars, 900 coal cars, 100 oil tank cars, 800 automobile cars, 36 vans for freight conductors and 14 snow-ploughs.

The seventh of Canada's direction-finding stations was recently completed for service by the radio branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, to assist the boats and ships navigating the Bay of Fundy and the coastal waters extending to Boston. This station tends to make the route favored by the Canadian Pacific steamships in winter, already splendidly equipped with safety devices, still safer. By means of the apparatus, the wireless operator of any ship in distress within 400 miles of the Canadian shore can find his location simply by pressing a spring. These stations have been described as "Godsend to seafarers."

OUR TOWN OF THE FUTURE

The following, which we copy from a late number of the Porterville (California) Morning Daily Messenger, should be of interest to many of the readers of THE ACADIAN. It is the review of a sermon delivered by a former resident of the town, Rev. H. S. Davidson, an uncle of the publishers of this paper. In his boyhood days Rev. Mr. Davidson was on the staff of THE ACADIAN from which position he entered Acadia University, graduating with the class of 1894. After studying extensively on the continent and abroad he received the degree of Ph. D. at Leipzig, and has since occupied important positions in different parts of the United States. He is now the minister of the First Congregational Church at Porterville, Cal. The sermon, which was prepared for conditions perhaps very dissimilar to those existing here, contains many suggestions equally appropriate to Wolfville or most other towns. Under the heading, "What our ministers said Sunday," the Messenger says:

"The Porterville of the Future." That was the theme of Dr. Davidson's sermon at the Congregational church on Sunday morning.
"What kind of a city would we like Porterville to be? What kind of a city are we making it? According as our dreams are, so to a very great extent will the realization be."

A Jewish Christian of the First Century pictured the new city which was to take the place of that which had been so dear to his people and which had been destroyed. Was Jerusalem to rise again? He believed so. He pictured the new city in highly figurative language so common to the Oriental. If we in trespass those figures in the language of everyday life, we shall see that the new Jerusalem which he pictured was to be characterized in three ways, (1) It was to be a city of great wealth and exceeding beauty. It was to be "of pure gold." It was to be "as a bride adorned for her husband"; (2) Its dwellers were to be men and women of high ideals. "God shall dwell with them and they shall be his people." (3) And lastly, there was to be no slum section, "no submerged tenth. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no sorrow nor crying."

As the years passed and the world seemed to be growing worse rather than better, these words were understood as descriptive of the world to come. If the writer could use them to describe the cities of this world when Christianity has done its perfect work, they constitute of course, no less true a description of that other world where God's will is done even as some day we hope it shall be done on earth.
We can hope for nothing better for the future of our city, nor should we be satisfied with anything less. Dr. Davidson said, that the realization of this dream of the Jewish Christian of the First Century.

It is a mistake to associate poverty with virtue and wealth with evil. Poverty is always an evil, though in the great scheme of things it may work out for good; and wealth is always a good, though it may become an instrument of evil. There are two ways by which we may increase the wealth of our city. We may produce it and we may desist from squandering it. What is our wealth but our powers of brain and brawn converted into a medium of exchange? When we invest our money wisely, therefore we add to our life. When we waste our money, we throw our life away. When we give of our means to worthy objects, we make our life count for the good of the world. He made a stropg plea for the simple life, for living within our means, for buying what we need and not simply getting something because somebody else has it. In these days of reconstruction, he said, one of the greatest services we can render is to do our bit toward replacing the wealth of the world which was squandered in the great war.

But desirable as wealth is, there is something even more to be desired. Above our factories and farms and orchards, is the character of the people. If Porterville is to become the city we desire it to be, our leading men and women must stand for the best things. No finer community service can our people render than to get behind our schools, our public libraries, our churches.

But in a city that is worthy, indeed, the condition of the unfortunate must be considered. The day is past when men may think they can prosper by merciless competition, by crowding the other fellow to the wall. The slums of our great cities are a disgrace to our civilization. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, and a city can never be more prosperous than its poorest citizen, never worthier than its unworthiest man or woman.
What are we making our city? The answer is to be found in the way we are solving these problems.
Is it too much to have as our goal a city of surpassing beauty, "prepared as a bride adorned for her husband"; a city that stands for the best things, of worthy men and women, "in whom God dwells"; a city whose unfortunate are given a chance and helped to get on their feet again, where "there is neither sorrow nor crying?"

A blind horse can never see what he's driving at.
The trouble with passing too many laws is the people also pass them.

SCREEN GOSSIP

The Paramount picture, "Ladies Must Live", is the last production made by the late George Loane Tucker about to be shown. Betty Compton heads a cast in which appear Robert Ellis (leading man), Leatrice Joy, Mahlon Hamilton, Gibson Gowland, Jack Gilbert, and Marcia Manon. The story, adapted from Alice Duer Miller's novel, deals with the troubles of certain women who, since "ladies must live", plan to make that living as easily as possible. Betty Compton's own role is that of a young girl who has been reared by her rich brother-in-law and whose penniless father plans to marry her off to some rich man in order that his income, derived from his son-in-law, may be increased. But there is another woman who has similar plans to obtain an easy living and the two clash, with interesting results.

About 25 years ago, two English lads, J. Stuart Blackton, of Sheffield, and Albert E. Smith, of Faversham, joined forces in New York and with a capital of $750, produced the first motion pictures. These were tiny, 50 ft. affairs, which they put on at music-halls as novelty turns lasting less than one minute. As the popularity of these films grew, the enterprising lads increased their efforts, and a year or two later, with a third man, William Rock, founded the Vitagraph Company. Within a very few years they were enjoying an annual turnover of $5,000,000.

The German Government film director, Herr Karl Grund, has organized a cinema expedition to the North Pole and Greenland. Two ships have been chartered, and a start is expected to be made from Copenhagen next summer. The company, which will include Eskimos and a number of European film stars, will remain away for eighteen months.

Six veterans of the English stage are appearing in important roles in the Frank Lloyd production of Gertrude Atherton's "Black Oxen". They are Conway Tearle, who is co-featured with Corinne Griffith, Kate Lester, Thomas Ricketts, Tom Guise, and Clarissa Selwyn. Frank Lloyd, the director, is also British.

"The Joker" marks Sydney Chaplin's return to the screen after a long absence, and will therefore be welcome. In his comparatively few appearances on the scene he has revealed in many instances quite a similarity to the methods by which his more famous brother Charles achieves his effects in comedy.

"Rags to Riches", a Warner Brothers picture, features Wesley Barry; it is a picture which demonstrates that wealth cannot always buy happiness. The star is supported by Niles Welch and Ruth Renick.

Advices from Los Angeles report that the well-known Christie Comedy Film Company have just purchased 230 acres of ground upon which to erect film studios.

Did You Ever Stop To Think ?

- THAT the wise buyer always reads the advertisements.
- THAT it is the way to save money.
- THAT everybody should know of your home town's business advantages.
- THAT your town is an acknowledged leader in your section for certain lines of business.
- THAT it is a good plan to think before you speak.
- THAT some men often speak before they think.
- THAT it often causes much grief.
- THAT if you think more about Wolfville and study its advantages, you can be a better community booster.
- THAT there are two sides of human nature, optimistic and pessimistic. THERE SHOULD BE ONLY ONE SIDE IN WOLFVILLE.
- THAT some citizens would rather knock their own home town than to boost it. PUBLIC OPINION should make this class of citizen hard to find.
- THAT communities get reputations the same as men.
- THAT Wolfville should have the best of reputations.
- THAT optimism and common sense should be mingled in good proportion.
- THAT if you do this, you will find it easier to think, to speak and to act in a way that will help to make yours a better and bigger community.
- THAT pernicious propaganda in business circles should cease. Now is the time for the trouble monger, the fellow who has done his best to keep things down, to shut up and do some thinking.

OUR SINGING SCHOOL

The summer days had fled and gone and autumn chill was rolling on. When Jeddy Newcomb came along whose voice is ever tuned for song. Wishing to teach a class to sing. If all agreed, until the spring. So an agreement soon was made. That they should meet at evening shade in the old school house; a resort for meetings of every sort. So when the night appointed came they met, too numerous to name and he arose to show his skill. And sang the scale with right good will. He marked the blackboard o'er and o'er with marks it never saw before. On which his pupils fixed their eyes. And thought he must be very wise. Now after marking thus a while. He sang again in a melodious style. And said they all must do so too. And sing the scale entirely through. This seemed a dreadful task to some. But Jeddy said it must be done. That he might know the varied tone. He'd like to hear each one alone. But many thought this would not do. And so they sang together two. And sure the melody was rare. And made our teacher Jeddy stare. In such variety of voice. The teacher surely would rejoice. For he could class them as he chose. Bass, tenor, alto, air-in rows. Some sang with confidence and grace. Without a smile upon their face. Others more timid scarce could sound. The octave note that swelled around. And trembling voices seemed to say. I cannot show my skill today. This exercise at last quite through. The teacher said they all would do. And if the lessons they would take. No doubt they all would singers make. Thus did they meet, twice in the week. Instructions in the art to seek. Whether the night was fine and clear. Or storm and wind were howling dire. No matter what the roads might be. Th' assembled scholars we might see. Which shewed an interest was taken. That would not easily be shaken. When school nights came there was a great glee. All wished at singing school to be. Some full of mischief all the while. Would try to make the others smile. The girls would make a dreadful noise. Sometimes assisted by the boys. But when the singing was begun. Jeddy would say "now stop your fun. And pay attention to the rule. For we must have a quiet school". And thus good order was obtained. Which is a thing not always gained. Our teacher who his calling loved. In music quite a genius proved. For e'er the winter half rolled by. The singing school was all the cry. And many came from far and near. The music of the school to hear. Which was applauded by them all. They sang harmonious, great and small. In varied cadence, low then high. Each one his skill and voice did try. Before the school each night would close. He ranged the children up in rows. They sang with voices clear and sweet. The listeners said it was complete. And the old school house did resound. The music and applause swelled round. But now the singing school is o'er. And Jeddy meets with them no more. And every one is sad at heart. To think our teacher must depart. For what to do they scarcely know. To singing school they can not go. But they will meet together yet. So that they will not all forget. But practise still the lessons taught. They and Jeddy are n'er forgot. Lines written by Margaret D. Michener in 1854.

WILLIAM ANNAND

The death of Mr. William Annand occurred at Hantsport on March 2nd. He had not been ill long and passed peacefully away at the age of 88 years. The deceased had been a resident of Hantsport for six years. He will be much missed on our streets as his genial smile, and cheerful disposition, impressed all with whom he came in contact. Dr. Annand of Hantsport is now the only surviving member of the large family of the late John Annand.

Mr. Annand had been almost a life long member of the Presbyterian church, a ruling elder and an efficient Sunday School teacher. His wife predeceased him four years. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. W. McLeod, Islay, Alberta; Mrs. E. Gordon, Milford; Mrs. (Dr.) Dickie, Hantsport; and Mrs. H. Marshall, Van Buren, Maine. Interment was at Gays River.

WINDSOR BANKERS DEFEAT HANTSPORT

Winners Get Big Counters in Final Period—Hyson Shows Up Well

WINDSOR, Feb. 26.—The Windsor Bankers defeated the fast Hantsport hockey team in the local arena tonight in a fine game by a score of 6-5.

On the last occasion these teams played an overtime, scoreless draw, but tonight's game was much faster. Dill opened the scoring in the initial frame after thirty seconds of play on a front directed shot from a mix up in front of Bishop. Baird duplicated a few minutes later. Hantsport scored their first goal after fifteen minutes of play on a roller that went under Curry's stick, which was from a corner pass by Smith.

One minute later Smith evened the count with a good shot. The visitors had the edge in this period and only Curry's fine stops kept the score down.

The Bankers went after their opponents in the middle session and Dill scored in two minutes. The losers came back strong however and Smith tallied on a mixup. Hantsport pressed but Curry was working well and it was several minutes before Smith tied the score on a pass from Rolfe. Dill started things in the final when he scored on a quick shot. Rolfe followed for the visitors a minutes later.

R. Curry brought the fans to their feet after twelve minutes of play when he brought the rubber out from behind his opponents nets and scored. Both teams played a four man forward line, and three minutes later R. Curry scored again on a corner pass from Shaw. The winners took things easy for the remainder of the game and kept the game well in hand.

T. Curry, Dill and R. Curry showed unusual form for the locals while Hyson was the pick of the losers. The teams: Hantsport—M. Bishop, goal; Hyson, J. Folker, defence; Smith, centre; Davison, Rolfe, wings; H. Folker, Taylor, Riley, subs.

Bankers—T. Curry, goal; Andrew, R. Curry, defence; Baird, centre; Shaw, Dill, wings; Falconer, Reid, subs. Mr. Curry of Hantsport refereed.

REDS ARE BEST

Did you ever get the fever in the spring-time of the year. And you gathered round about you chicks galore? Did the dainty Leghorn get you till you found she wouldn't let you keep her inside of a ten-foot fence or more?

Did you get peeved at her laying when all the scrubs were paying? Did you hanker for a winter-laying hen?

Did you give it up, disgusted, or stand by till you were busted? Or decide to try the other breeds out then?

Did you try the "Rocks" and Cochins and the breaded Polish pet? Did you try the "Dots" and Orpingtons out too?

Did you finally decide, air, that you had over-looked a bet. At the very time when you were getting blue?

Did that snappy, velvet lustre on that old Rhode Island Red. Get you going like a windmill in a breeze?

You were mighty glad to meet her and found you couldn't beat her; She was laying when the others hens would freeze.

THE CHILD AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOL

Ernest Robinson, M. P., Criticizes Present Day Educational Methods

MONTREAL, March 2.—Criticism of present day educational methods in the public schools was levelled here tonight by Ernest Robinson, M. P. for King's County, N. S., speaking in the People's Forum. As an old time teacher and school inspector Mr. Robinson in his subject, "The Child and the Public School", expressed the opinion that the present system was all wrong, doing everything for the child except teach it to think, and loading the student with a mass of memorized material which he neither understood nor wanted to understand, so long as he could pass those "periodical abominations", the grading examinations.
