Portuguese "Republie" On Its Last Legs

The Republic of Portugal was three years old in October, but it is stated, is even more beset with disorders which have marked its whole existence than ever before. Dissatisfaction is declared to be general. Public opinion is shocked by the harsh treatment of Monarchist suspects and outraged by the rule of espionage and arbitrary arrest inaugurated by the secret society of the Carbonaries, "the guardians of the Republic." The Government is stated to be uncertain of the loyalty of the army and navy, so that non-commissioned officers have to be frequently changed lest they should obtain undue influence over their men. Arrests are made daily, and quantities of arms and bombs seized. Only last month a plot to assassinate Dr. Alfonso Costa, the Prime Minister, was discovered, one of the conspirators avowing that their intention was to overthrow the present regime and establish a Republic on strictly Radical lines.

In Cintra and many other places around Lisbon all motor-cars are stopped after nightfall and thoroughly searched for bombs before being allowed to proceed. In some instances iron chains are stretched across the roads. The workmen in the cities and the peasants in the fields are murmuring against the increased burden of taxation, and families are leaving Portugal in ever-growing numbers, so that the rate of emigration is now stated to be 2 per cent. of the population. The floating debt has increased during the last two years by 1,600,000 pounds.

The overthrow of the new government is, according to the London Daily Mail, expected at any time. This is not surprising news. It has been foreseen from the first. The Republic of Portugal has never been a republic except in name. It has borne within itself the seeds of dissolution. It has been incompetent, tyrannical and offensive; and such a regime cannot endure no matter in what guise it masquerades.—Trend Magazine.

A Curious Prison

An almost incredible adventure at sea was told under oath in a maritime court of Danzig, Germany some years ago, by Captain Engelland of the sailing vessel "Erndte." Nothing that Jules Verne, Clark Russell or Joseph Conrad ever imagined could surpass the story that Captain Engelland told.

The "Erndte" sailed from Memel with a cargo of planks for Wilhelmshaven. The captain stood at the wheel during a gale that overtook the vessel the very next night. At four in the morning he went to his cabin to change his wet clothes.

He had just got into dry undervest when the vessel capsized, and he found himself standing on the roof of his cabin, the door of which the sea had forced shut. By loosening the boards of what was once the floor, but was now the roof, he got into the hold, in which there was little except loose sails and rigging. Fortunately, some shelves of a high cupboard remained intact, and from them he collected some cans of condensed milk, some prunes, rice, sugar, and a little sausage. He also found a hammer. For twelve days the master of the ship lived in his curious prison. He ate as sparingly as possible, and drank sea-water, which appeared to have no ill effect upon him. He spent most of his time in hammering on the steel bottom of the ship to attract the attention of passing vessels. He knew when it was day for, a dim light penetrated the water. On the twelfth day, the Norwegian steamer "Aurora" sighted the wreck, and sent a boat to take it in tow. Captain Engelland had fallen asleep but hearing footsteps over his head, he began to shout for help. The "Aurora's" men returned to their ship for tools with which they bored a hole through the bottom of the "Erndte." When they drew out their drill, a man's finger appeared through the hole. Engelland told them that he had food for four days more, and wished to be towed to land, for it was impossible to release him in the open sea.

The "Aurora" towed the wreck safely to Neufahrwasser, where with considerable difficulty the shipwrights took off one of the plates of the hull, and released the imprisoned shipmaster.

The Seizure of Pius VII

In pursuance of his great ambition of ruling the West without that spiritual chieftainship which Charlemagne acknowledged, namely, the Sovereign Pontiff, Napoleon had moved every influence he could command in 1809, to force Pius the Seventh to abdicate his temporal power. As we all know, that abdication was not obtained from him, any more than it was obtained from Pius IX, in 1870. Accordingly, Napoleon resolved to seize the person of the Pope and to imprison him in France. Rome in the month of July 1809, resembled a city occupied by a hostile army, a vast camp in which some of the worst elements of the French Army were to be found for it is now well known that when there was particularly villainous work to be done, Napoleon was accustomed to use the services of certain regiments which were especially noted for the murderous unscrupulousity of its members.

A French historian, Louis Madelin, who treats of this epoch in his work "La Rome de Napoleon," tells us that these regiments were mostly made up of cut-throats, ex-brigands, deserters under deferred sentence to be shot and the scum of Paris malefactors who had been released from the prisons in order to contribute to the glory of the French arms!

Murat was then in Rome, under orders from the Emperor to force the Pope to "see things reasonably." One may excusably decline to believe that it was Murat's so-called humanity that made him transfer the responsibility of his odious task to General Radet. It would appear rather that Murat, personally a man of matchless bravery, but a natural traitor, as Napoleon himself declared after-wards, feared that violence done by him to the person of the Pope must jeopardize his own chances of ruling in Catholic Naples. So then, Radet was commissioned to seize Pope Pius, and if necessary to force in the doors of the Pontiff's apartments in order to secure his person. The date fixed was July 5, when the role assigned to the soldiers was nothing more (says Madelin) than to seize a big barrack-house defended by a few headless armed with fancy pikes and to capture a handful of priests and an old Bishop. These soldiers boasted that they were going to show the priests that the French are masters everywhere; that they were going to make the cardinals run riot through the Palace in the most ridiculous possible manner, as they said.

Among those who were going to show them the way were a few ex-priests who had a grievance against the Vatican. The capture was to be effected by first scaling the walls and then bursting open the door of the Pope's dwelling.

On that night the Pope had retired late, and the sentinels of the Papal Guard were withdrawn later than usual. At two o'clock the attempt was begun, and the walls having been successfully scaled, Radet at the head of a detachment of soldiery attacked the Palace doors and burst them in. Meanwhile, those in the residence awakened to the reality of the attack and the bells of the Quirinal rang out the tocsin on the silent city. Terror and alarm struck upon the slumbers of Rome and men rose from their beds wondering what visitation was come upon them. Radet's men met with only forty headless to oppose their progress and the Quirinal was soon in their power. Cardinal Pacca, the secretary of state, rose hurriedly to warn the Pope.

The old spirit of the rabble awoke once more in the soldiery, remembering Versailles where they had seized King Louis in 1793, the ruffianly band rushed headlong through the Palace to the Pope's chambers, bursting through doorways and smashing the furniture in their progress. The French soldiers looking upon the episode as so much fun, but the Italians, more practical, stole whatever they could conveniently lay hands on. At last they reached an apartment in the extreme end of the Quirinal; an ex-valet pointed to the little door. General Radet knocked, demanding admittance in the name of the Emperor. A key turned and a narrow corridor. Hatchet in hand Radet made his way down followed by his ruffians. At the end was the Pope's chamber and all entered, some of the troops who recognized the Pope saluting the aged Pontiff as if by some instinct of reverence still left in them. Radet turned to them, dismissing all but a few officers, and addressed himself to the Pontiff. Pius sat at his table, pale and troubled though without fear, a Crucifix in his hand.

"What do you wish with me?" asked his Holiness, "and why do you trouble my rest and violate my dwelling?" Radet who had been reared a Catholic, was not worse than many another soldier and was touched by the Pontiff's gentleness. "Most Holy Father," he replied, "I come in the name of the Emperor to ask you to renounce the temporal power," adding that he had had the honor of kissing the Pope's hand while the Pontiff was in Paris for Napoleon's coronation.

The Pope (says Madelin) was not much affected at this naive souvenir of Radet, nevertheless seeing the General's respectful demeanor, he resumed his fatherly tone and manner.

"If you feel bound," he said "to obey the oath of fidelity in carrying out the Emperor's orders, do you think we have no oaths of fidelity to observe? We cannot abandon or give up what does not belong to us, for the temporality of the Church belongs to the Church, and we are but its trustee. The Emperor may rend me in pieces, but he will never obtain that concession from me."

Radet, when asked for his explicit orders replied: "Holy Father, I regret my commission which is to take your Holiness with me." The word was passed, says Madelin; it was emphasized by the noise of the destruction of furniture which was going on in the apartments near by.

The Pope replied: "I submit to the Divine Will, for in giving way so often to your Emperor, perhaps I have been guilty of something for which God is now punishing me." Accordingly, the seizure was effected. Cardinal Pacca and the Pope were barely given the "time to shave," as General Miollis put it. Hardly had the Pope time to designate the persons whom he wished to accompany him and to say his breviary when as he was seated at the foot of his little bedstead, Radet offered him his arm on which the Pontiff leaned on his way to the carriage.

This action of the Pope touched the General, who kissed the old man's hand and led him out through the halls in which the light of dawn showed the deplorable hand of the aggressors. It was just four o'clock, the Pope took a final look at sleeping Rome, and passed through the Square of Monte Cavallo which was lined on all sides with the troops of the Corsican, whose

To Suffer From Headaches MAKES LIFE MISERABLE.

It takes a person who has had and is subject to headache to describe the suffering which attends it. The dull throbbing, the intense pain, sometimes in one part of the head, sometimes in another, and then again over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on, purely indicates that there is something amiss with the system. The fact that Burdock Blood Bitters reaches the seat of the trouble is due to its success in relieving and permanently curing the cause of the headache.

Mrs. Andron, 415 15th Ave. East, Calgary, Alta., writes: "For three years I was troubled all the time with sick headaches, and suffered also with constipation, and kept breaking out in pimples and sores on my face. I tried everything till at last a friend told me of Burdock Blood Bitters. I took two bottles, and my skin is as clean and pure as a baby's, and I have never been troubled with the headaches since."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Our New Dress.

As our readers will immediately observe, THE HERALD appears this week in a complete new dress. The reading matter is all in brand new type. It goes without saying that this makes a wonderful improvement in the appearance of the paper and greatly enhances its value to our readers; all this is self-evident. It affords us much pleasure to be able to make this announcement; we have had the matter in mind for some time and it is but the beginning of improvements which we hope to effect, so as to make THE HERALD, mechanically and otherwise, a first class paper. To effect the present improved appearance of THE HERALD we purchased over four hundred pounds of new type. All will at once realize that this must have cost a considerable amount of money. We trust therefore that our subscribers will appreciate the effort we are making to give them a good paper, and that they will remit any subscription amounts they are conscious of owing us. To present our readers with a first class paper in every respect is our earnest desire; but to be successful in this direction we require the encouragement and cooperation of our subscribers. With these words of explanation and expressions of hope for the future we present to our readers our newly dressed HERALD.

New Governor General.

Official announcement was made in the Imperial Parliament on Thursday that Prince Alexander of Teck, third son of the late Duke of Teck and brother of Queen Mary of England, is to succeed the Duke of Connaught, as Governor-General of Canada. He is forty years of age and was married in 1904 to Her Royal Highness Princess Alice of Albany and has one son and one daughter. The intelligence of this appointment was received with very great interest at Ottawa. There had been an impression that the term of the Duke of Connaught might be extended for another year, an impression strengthened by the genuine good-will existing between the people of Ottawa and the Royal household at Rideau Hall. Parliament Hill attaches significance to the fact that for the second time the Dominion is to have a Governor-General from the Royal Family and it is assumed that these precedents will be followed in regard to future appointments. H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught leaves in October when his term expires. Following the set procedure in such matters Parliament will, at this session, pass an address of farewell and of appreciation.

The Peace Envoys.

The representatives of the South American Republics, who have undertaken to adjudicate the disputes between the United States and Mexico, are styled in the newspapers, the A. B. C. mediators, inasmuch as these are the initial letters in the names of the respective countries from which the commissioners come, viz Argentina, Brazil and Chili. Following the usual custom of conducting the negotiations on neutral territory, the envoys have decided to hold their court on Canadian soil. The town of Niagara Falls, Ontario, has been selected as the meeting place. Here the arbitration tribunal will assemble on Monday next, the 18th inst. Already Huerta's three representatives have sailed from Vera Cruz or Niagara Falls. They are clothed with full powers, nominally at least, to sign any agreement of the convention. The Dominion Government have under consideration the reception and entertainment to be tendered the Southern and American peace envoys upon their arrival and during their stay in our country. The meeting of the envoys will be the greatest historical event of the time since the representatives of Russia and Japan, as the guests of the United States government, negotiated and concluded the treaty of Portsmouth, N. H. which terminated the Russo-Japanese war. While the peace commissioners are not coming at the invitation of the Canadian Government, it is deemed only proper that they should receive a generous welcome and hospitality. It is understood that a formal welcome will be extended to the visitors by some member of the Government who will go to Niagara Falls for that purpose, and that a guard of honor will be detailed, probably from the Toronto and Hamilton regiments. It is also understood that the envoys will be invited to visit the principal cities of Canada as the guests of the nation.

Cardinal Begin.

In our last issue we had a brief notice of most Rev. Archbishop Begin, who is now in Rome or on the way thither, where he will be elevated to the Cardinalate on the 25th day of this month. Mgr. Begin followed a theological course at the Grand Seminary at Quebec and at the Gregorian University of the Roman College in Rome, taking the degree of D. D. in 1865, also receiving the same degree at Laval University. He was ordained in Rome in 1868 where he remained to make a special study of ecclesiastical history and oriental languages, in 1866 and 1867. He continued his studies at the Catholic University at Innsbruck in 1867 and 1868, and was professor of dogmatic theology and ecclesiastical history at Laval University from 1868 to 1884 and also prefect of studies at the Little Seminary at Quebec, and principal of Laval Normal School at Quebec, 1885 and 1888. In 1888 he was appointed Bishop of Chicoutimi, holding that office for three years. He then became coadjutor to Cardinal Taschereau with the title of Archbishop of Cyrenus from 1891 to 1898 and was administrator of the archdiocese from 1894 to 1898. On April 12, 1898, Mgr. Begin became Archbishop of Quebec and was invested with the pallium on January 22, 1899. Mgr. Begin has travelled extensively in Europe and the Holy Land. He took a prominent part in the Eucharistic Congress in Montreal in 1910. He is the author of several works, including "La Primate et l'Infallibilité des Souverains Pontifes," "La Sainte Eglise et La Règle de Foi," "Le Culte Catholique," "Aide Memoire on Chronologie de l'histoire du Canada" and "Catechisme de Controverse."

Advice from St. John's Newfoundland intimates that the seal fisheries of the season just closed were more successful financially than those of last year, according to figures now compiled. Twenty steamers, employing 4,000 men, set out on the hunt two months ago. Nineteen vessels returned with the pelts of 233,718 seals. This catch was valued at $498,086. Last year a greater number of seals were caught, 272,960 skins, being returned, but they were valued at only $493,845. For the fishermen, the financial success has been shrouded in gloom by the enormous loss of life in the hunt, the steamer Newfoundland's catastrophe having cast seventy-eight lives, and 174 men having gone down with the Southern Cross.

Morning sittings were commenced in the House of Commons on Monday of this week and will continue until the close of the session. It is expected that from now on rapid progress will be made with the sessional program. The opinion seems to prevail round Parliament Hill that prorogation may be reached by the first week in June. Outside of the Farmers' Bank affair there are only two contentious questions left. One is C. N. R. and on this it is not believed that the Liberals will put up more than a perfunctory fight. The second is Redistribution. The committee is working hard to bring down a unanimous report, but at present there seems to be more or less of a deadlock the main difficulty being in Ontario. New schemes of settlement are suggested every day. But every new scheme naturally involves the sacrifice of some one since there are no less than eight ridings to disappear.

Federal Parliament.

Ottawa, May 4.—There seems to be no immediate expectation on the part of the government that parliament will be able to prorogue for several weeks yet. Replying to the questions Sir Wilfrid Laurier submitted a week ago, Premier Borden this afternoon outlined in parliament the legislation yet to be introduced by the government and considered and passed this session. This legislation, the Premier said, would include a bill by the Minister of Marine, "respecting the grading and inspecting of fish," bills by the Minister of Justice amending the Controverted Elections Act, probably necessitating provisions regarding the preparation of lists for elections under the Canada Temperance Act, and to amend the Criminal Code; bills by the Minister of Finance to consolidate the Civil Service Act, to provide superannuation, to amend the Dominion Notes Act, and to amend the Quebec Battlefields' Commission Act; by the Minister of Public Works amending the Drydocks Subsidies Act; by the Minister of Railways defining the agreement with the Grand Trunk the C. N. R. and the Crown concerning the Winnipeg terminals, and respecting bridges over the St. John river; by the Secretary of State respecting storage and holding of explosives, the foundations for which were laid by Hon. Mr. Templeman, and an amendment to the Joint Stock Company's Act. The measures dealing with the consolidation of the Civil Service Act and the superannuation, Premier Borden stated would not be hurried through, but there might be a couple of other matters which the government would submit for consideration, of which he was not sure at the moment.

Ottawa, May.—5. Hon. H. R. Emmerson had his annual grumble about the L. C. R. today. It has been an annual spiel ever since he resigned from the portfolio of Railways and Canals and Hon. Geo. P. Graham was appointed in his stead. Nobody takes him seriously, however, for Mr. Emmerson has been definitely installed in the garrulous class, to which he has been gradually edging ever since he came to Ottawa. He does not say much, but he takes a long time to say it, and uses much phraseology. His criticism today was as usual of the pious character. For instance he stated that the cutting off of the Ocean Limited has been a serious matter. Hon. Mr. Hazen punctured this easily, much to the amusement of the house, and even to the Liberal side where Mr. Emmerson is treated pretty much as a joke. The fact is as Mr. Hazen pointed out that only in one year has the Ocean Limited been operated during February and March. That was in 1913 and the loss was $300,000. In cutting off the train for two months the practice of every year, except 1913, has been

Ottawa, May 7.—A further instalment of information in regard to the affairs of the Canadian Northern and of the MacKenzie and Mann Company Limited was tabled by Premier Borden in the Commons today. It contains three interesting features. A statutory declaration by Alfred J. Mitchell, comptroller of MacKenzie and Mann Company Limited, is quoted to the effect that they have made no profit on their work for the C. N. R., as contractors "other than certain fully paid common stock in the C. N. R. company and its allied lines." Mr. Mitchell further says that the whole of the $223,407,641 received by MacKenzie and Mann has actually gone into construction. A further sworn statement by Third Vice-President D. B. Hanna declares that none of the banks hold or property of the C. N. R., or of its allied lines, with the exception of the securities given in a statement furnished. The principal item mentioned is four per cent. perpetual debenture stock totalling $900,000 held by the Bank of Commerce for safe keeping on account of the Canadian Northern Railway Company. The third feature of the return consists of letters and telegrams addressed to Premier Borden by Premier Murray of Nova Scotia, Premier Sifton of Alberta, Acting Premier Calder of Saskatchewan and Sir Richard McBride of British Columbia, endorsing the principal of federal aid to the C. N. R., if necessary to secure the completion of the system, such aid to be given on terms consistent with the public interest. The government auditors appointed to investigate the financial affairs of the C. N. R. system and of MacKenzie and Mann Limited, call attention to the fact that the statement of Comptroller Mitchell, referred to above, had been borne out to our satisfaction from our investigation of the books of the contractors." On March 14 last Premier Murray wired Mr. Borden as follows: "The Nova Scotia government realizes that the C. N. R., contributed very largely to railway development in the province, operating at present over four hundred miles. We feel that this progressive railway situation could only have been brought about by the enterprise of such a concern, and the province, by reason of accepting their guaranteed bonds for large sums, is vitally interested in the future of this company. The government feels that any reasonable assistance, consistent with the public interests, can be accorded by the Dominion to the C. N. R., would be a policy which would be acceptable to our people as it would enhance provincial credit."

Ottawa, May 8.—There was a sensational incident in the House of Commons this afternoon when Hon. H. R. Emmerson at one time Minister of Railways and Canals in the late Liberal administration, referred to the announcement in the press that Prince Alexander of Teck, brother of Queen Mary, had been appointed Governor General of Canada and remarked that he hoped the rumor of the appointment was not true. Afterwards in the lobbies when interviewed by the press Mr. Emmerson said: "My objection is to Royalty, and foreign Royalty being brought to Canada. We have gone the limit with the Duke of Connaught. If necessary I would be prepared to move a condemnatory resolution." Mr. Emmerson added that he had a great respect for the Duke of Connaught on personal grounds. He considered him a fine type of man, but he objected to the continuance of Royalty in this country in any official capacity. He objected especially to a German prince such as Prince Alexander of Teck, being sent to Canada. This illustrates the disloyalty of several of the Liberal members of parliament. Indeed anti-British sentiment is one of the features of the campaign methods of a section of the Liberal party at Ottawa. It will be remembered that Hon. Frank Oliver another ex-Liberal minister, refused on one occasion last year in the house to sing the British National Anthem. Needless to say the majority of the members present keenly the attack made upon the brother-in-law of King George and grandson-in-law of Queen Victoria by Mr. Emmerson, and several of the leading Liberals who are fearful of being classed as anti-Britishers are loud in their protestations against Mr. Emmerson thus publicly expressing his views, and as a Liberal, committing his party to disloyal sentiments. When the house opened Mr. Emmerson said: "I would like to ask if the government has any official information in respect to the appointment of a governor general to succeed the present incumbent of that office. I see rumors in the press which I hope are not true, and I presume the people of Canada would like to know what foundation there is for them. Still I speak individually." The Premier replied: "There has been a telegram received by H. R. H. the Governor General announcing that His Majesty has been pleased to appoint Prince Alexander of Teck to succeed His Royal Highness as Governor General." The incident is the chief topic of conversation in the lobbies of parliament tonight and the resentment against Mr. Emmerson seems to be very strong. The leading men in the Liberal party deprecate such public announcements of the views of those who are anti-British, entailing as it does injury to the party. During the last election campaign one of the methods practised by Liberal candidates among foreign immigrants was anti-British talk. In fact the present day Liberal party contains all the anti-Britishers there are in the country.

The Chief Superintendent of Education has appointed Friday May 22nd as Arbor Day and urges teachers everywhere to use at least a part of the day in cleaning and putting in order the school grounds and buildings, planting trees, making flower beds, preparing for the school garden and getting the children and others interested in improving and beautifying the school premises. As Empire day falls this year upon Saturday it is recommended that the school observance of that day be combined with that of Arbor Day and that an hour or two be devoted to lessons, recitations, songs and addresses having special reference to the significance of the occasion. "Monday May 25th may be observed as a school holiday."

A report comes from Cobalt, Ont., to the effect that a serious accident involving the lives of four men and seriously injuring half a dozen others occurred at Long Lake, while operations were being carried on by the Canadian Exploration Company at Daughton. It is believed the men were buried under a fall of rock in the big Glory Hole.

"I do not look for any great recovery until the fall when, if we have a good crop, and all the signs point that way, there will be recovery, and that of a wholesome and rational nature," stated Sir Thomas Shaughnessy on his arrival in Montreal from the west on the 8th. At the same time he was of opinion that basic business conditions were sound generally.

The steamer Stephanoff left for Halifax, the steamer Pomeranian is still detained and the steamer Sardinian is lying off Cape Race, waiting a chance to enter. A sad fatal accident happened in the vicinity of Tignish on Monday evening by which Mr. John C. McCarthy, about 70 years of age, lost his life. Mr. McCarthy left Tignish at 7 o'clock for his home at Sea Cow Pond 6 miles away, in a truck wagon drawn by a spirited horse. On Saturday morning last Patrick Butler, a lobster fisherman employed at Mr. S. C. Clarke's factory at Blooming Point, while running his lines discovered the body of a man adrift on a large cake of ice about a half mile from the shore. The body was frozen in the ice, the feet (encased in rubber boots) and one arm only being visible. From the clothing he judged it to be the body of a sailor or a fisherman, and there is a possibility it might be one of the unfortunate seamen who was lost in the recent Newfoundland disaster. Butler had nothing in his boat when he found the body, and as a gale then came up he was obliged to abandon it and return to shore. It was hoped that later it would be possible to go back and recover the body, but the storm made this impossible and the dead man was again carried out to sea.

Wreck and Rescue.

John O'Connor, able seaman, the only one of the men rescued from the Leyland liner Columbian whose native tongue is English, told a thrilling story in Boston on the 9th of the wreck and rescue. He said: "When we got away in the lifeboat we drifted down on one of the propeller blades and punched a hole in the boat, and for the next forty hours we baled. When the chief steward William Matthews died, we took some of his clothing to block up the holes, for we were getting so weak that baling was almost impossible. Matthews was horribly burned in one of the explosions before we got away, and was unconscious most of the time after the first hour or two in the open boat. He died on Tuesday morning without a word. Then the sparks came. We could have thrown the body overboard, but it would have been a pretty raw deal for poor Matthews, and besides it would have left 13 in the boat. We had some water, not very fresh, and some biscuits to sustain us, but we were all very thinly clad, many of us badly burned, some of us, myself included, otherwise injured and the boat was leaking, requiring constant bailing. As if this was not enough, it was raw and cold, a chill northeaster was blowing down from the ice-fields. In the night it came on a blow and there were some of us that felt like lying down in the bottom of the boat and taking what came to us. That the missing lifeboat of the Columbian was overcrowded and swamped was the opinion of some of the survivors. They say the boat disappeared from view shortly after launching with two officers and 17 men, and assert that its chances of safety were small unless it was picked up within a few hours after leaving the Columbia.

The Boy Jesus

BY MABLE EARLE.

On the hills of Nazareth,
When the summer dawn grew red,
And the wind with wandering breath Thrilled the thin clouds overhead,
Did a Lad with eager feet Pass the silent doors and sills, Leave the sleeping straggled street For the temple of the hills?
Kneeling on the mountain grass, While the solemn glory grew, Did he watch the shadows pass From the slopes His boyhood knew?
And while light from light was born, Sanctifying sky and sod, Did his heart rise with the morn Homeward to the heart of God, When the noon at Nazareth Smote with blinding, cloudless heat

On the roofs, and scarce a breath Fanned the white glare of the street—
Did he gaze across the lands, Wistful of earth's grinding toil; Resting from the plane His hands, Boyish, marred with sweat and soil?
Did he raise them so, outthrown, Half-unconscious that He blessed
All the race He made His own,
And their toiling, and their rest?
On the hills of Nazareth,
When the long night-rains came down,
And the mist lay still as death Over all the sleeping town Did He lie with wakeful eyes, Looking, while the rain-gusts beat,
Down the years which yet must rise
With their bitter sweet?
Did the ache of earth's old pain Urge his heart with voiceless tears,
And the soil of earth's old stain Cry for cleansing in His ears?
Did the night foreshade His tomb,
And its hush foretell his death, Through the rain-swept hours of gloom
On the hills of Nazareth?

A Hymn of Spring

The voice of spring awaking, The voices of the wood,
The leaves upon the branches,
The world's rejoicing mood—
The breeze amongst the roses,
The roses radiant hue,
The blossom in the orchard,
The sky's unclouded blue—
The thrush upon the lilac, The daisy on the lea,
The sunbeam on the water,
The sparkle of the sea—
The lamb upon the mountain, The mountain's purple height,
The bee amidst the cowslips, The lark's ascending flight—
The music of the fountain, The murmur of the rill,
The waving of the fallow-grass,
The nodding daffodil—
All sing aloud Thy praises, In one triumphant chord!
My soul, with all creation, Unites to bless Thee, Lord!
—Kirke Brampton.

The Rosary.

Not on the lute, nor harp of many strings Shall all men praise the Master of all song, Our life is brief, one saith, and art is long;
And skilled must be the laureates of kings Silent, O lips that utter foolish things!
Rest, awkward fingers striking all notes wrong!
How from your toil shall issue, white and strong,
Music like that God's chosen poet sings?
There is one harp that any hand can play,
And from its strings what harmonies arise!
There is one song that any mouth can say—A song that lingers when all singing dies,
When on their beads our Mother's children pray Immortal music charms the great-ful skies,
—Joyce Kilmer, in the Ave Maria

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—is highly as ever since time immemorial.
It causes blemishes in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"Two of my children had scrofula sores which kept growing deeper and kept them from going to school for three months.
Medicines and medicines did no good until I began giving them Hood's Sarsaparilla.
This medicine caused the sores to heal, and the children have shown no signs of scrofula since." J. W. McGee, Woodstock, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla will rid you of it, radically and permanently, as it has rid thousands.

Short Story

The Dawning Of The Day.

(By Hamilton Bogart Dex.)

He stretched out his empty arms in the darkness; there was no one to come to them—there never would be any one. He had given Celia her freedom; that was over, Perhaps after a time he would become inured to that agony, perhaps his Faith would give him strength to bear it.
Three weeks must escape before he could look for a reply. To Jerry, in the prison of the dark, they seemed, as they dragged themselves past his bed, like an eternity. In a fortnight he was able to make a first essay in walking about, with the aid of a nurse and a cane. It seemed very strange to Mr. Costigan, in the prime of his young manhood, to tap his young along so sightlessly, to sit by the window and feel the sunlight on his face and yet not see it. He must get used to stranger things than that, he realized—life without Celia, for one.
He had many visitors, Billy was indelible in his attentions, and even the general manager of the factory deigned to call.
"You must hurry and get about, Costigan," said the latter worthy, a puffy individual of whom Jerry held no high opinion, "we need you back at the shop."
Jerry smiled grimly.
"Oh I mean it," continued the other, conscious of Jerry's skepticism. "We can't afford to let you go. We're all agreed that nobody but you can advise us on some points. And there's a hundred shares of stock to your credit on our books. We paid twelve per cent last year. There's no thanks about it. It's strictly business," and the puffy one, in a frenzy of embarrassment, hurriedly took his departure.
Two letters came from Celia, but they had evidently been written before the arrival of his, so Jerry did not open them. He made Billy put them away. He would have them read to him some day, when they would not so tear his wound.
Then the time came when he might look for the awaited answer, and Jerry took to counting the visits of the postman. But no letter with a European postmark arrived. Billy's worst suspicions were soon confirmed.
"She never cared for him—or any body else. She thought he was a good catch, and now she assumes he isn't. At that, she might have the decency to write." Such was the general tenor of Mr.
Peters' self-communings. If Jerry had any such thoughts he kept them resolutely suppressed. Probably he never doubted her loyalty.
He invented a hundred reasons, more for Billy's benefit than his own, why the answer might have been delayed, but as the three weeks became four he came to believe in them less and less. Perhaps she had thought it was better not to write, he gnally reasoned, or perhaps she had found it too cruelly hard. He did not want her to write if it hurt her too much to do so, yet had she known how he longed for even a word, surely she would have sent some message. But no word came.
Jerry sat at his favorite post by the window, with the morning sunlight in his scarred face He had been blind a month, a month of horror and grief, lightened by the indomitable power of the Faith that was his, the Faith that rose undaunted to strengthen and sustain him in his trial.
Through it he was learning to bear his burden without flinching.
This morning he was humming a tune, the old Irish song he had whistled so joyously on the night he first knew Celia loved him. Fragments of the words came back to him, and he fitted them into the melody: Through fields all green and gay
And whom should I meet but my Colleen-dhas
By the dawning of the day.
He was far from self-pity, but he could not help thinking that he could never see the dawning, that his Colleen-dhas was lost to him forever. He hummed the sweet old tune over and over, as if there were a kind of comfort in its simple cadences,
And whom should I meet but my
Colleen-dhas—
The door behind him opened and closed very softly, and then, as he turned, Somebody's arms were round his neck, Somebody's voice spoke in his ear.
"Jerry! Oh, Jerry!"
"Celia!" he choked, stricken with wonder.
Celia did not heed his exclamation.
"Jerry, I took the first boat!
Didn't you get my letter? Or my cablegram? Oh, my dear!" Celia had determined to be very brave indeed for his sake, but the tears would force themselves into eyes and voice, despite her. And Jerry, caught unawares, rallied his strength during their swift mutual explanations, to battle for honor's sake and Celia's.
She was making his duty terribly hard as she told of the letters he never received, of her wild rush across three thousand miles to reach him.
"And how dared you suggest breaking our engagement?" stormed "the girl who didn't care."
"Why sweetheart, it's the only thing to do," replied Jerry. I can't have you tied down to a helpless blind—"
"Suppose I chose to be tied down?" cried Celia, with great spirit. "A gentleman has no right to brake an engagement. It's the lady's privilege."
"But dearest girl be reasonable!"
"Don't you know, sir," retorted Celia, choking back the tears.
"That when a man tells a woman to be serious it simply makes her furious? Reasonable, indeed! I'm going to stay right here with you, and put my arms around you, so that people may know that we are—"
"Listen Sweetheart," he interrupted, "it's not just that I'm helpless. It's because—you see I know what blindness looks like—I know I'm repellant, physically—I know—"
He got no further. Celia's hands bent his head forward, and on his seared eyelids he felt the soft warmth of her lips in tenderest caress. Such was her answer.
Speechless, beaten, he drew her close, and Celia, with her victory won, sobbed out her sympathy and love.
"Oh, Jerry," she asked, "is it very dreadful—the dark?"
"She felt his arm tremble about her, but his voice rang with triumph, as if the dawning of the day had come at last.
"There's no such thing as the dark!" he whispered.

Nine Nuns in Family.

An English Catholic paper reporting a lecture on the foreign missions given recently in London by Father Farmer, rector of St.
Peter's College, Freshfield, says that the lecturer told of a convent in Madras, India, in which the reverend mother has eight of her own sisters as nuns under her charge. These nine nuns, sisters in blood as in religion, are members of a family named Murphy, belonging to Newmarket, County Clare, Ireland. This is perhaps the most remarkable case on record. There is another Irish family named Rogan which has supplied five priests to the St. Joseph's Foreign Missionary Order, and has also given a daughter to a religious order in Dublin. The Irish are certainly a missionary race.

Policeman: "Stand back, there!"

man and want to find out about this fire." Policeman: "Stand back, I say. You can find out all about it in the papers in the morning."

COULD NOT STRAIGHTEN UP For Lame Back.

Women are coming to understand that weak, lame, and aching backs from which they suffer are due to wrong action of the kidneys.
The kidneys are overtaxed—given more work than they can do, and when the back aches and pains it is almost impossible to do her housework, for every move and turn means pain.
On the first sign of any weakness in the back, Dr. T. M. Milburn's Kidney Pills should be taken, and thus do away with any suffering from kidney trouble.
Mrs. J. L. Laidlaw, Kingston, Ont., writes:—"I am writing to tell you what a wonderful cure Dr. T. M. Milburn's Kidney Pills did for me. I was suffering with a lame back, and for about seven days could hardly straighten up for the pain. I had used quite a few of other kinds of pills, and received no relief. Just then my sister came and told me about Dr. T. M.
Milburn's Kidney Pills, and what they had done for her, so I decided to try them. I used two boxes, and I am completely cured, and I do not hesitate to recommend them."
Price, 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of $1.25 to The T. M. Milburn Co., Limited,

The young lady exhibited her

"They are quite ingenious, my dear," she was told. And she liked the compliment very much until she looked up the word in the dictionary and found it meant artless. Then she put that newest

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY
PINE SYRUP
Effected A Cure.

Obstinate coughs and colds yield to the great, soothing and healing power of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and for the racking, persistent cough, often present in consumptive cases, it will be found exceedingly beneficial and pleasant to take. The use of it is generally indicated wherever symptoms of throat, or lung troubles appear, but especially so with all persons of a consumptive or tubercular tendency, as it promptly cures the disease, and especially remove the danger, and restore the throat and lungs to a sound healthy state if used in time.
Mrs. Edward Patterson, Young's Cove Road, N.B., writes:—"I have had occasion to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and can say that it is certainly a good medicine. About a year ago I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and left them in a very weak state. The cough racked me terribly, and I was in despair until a friend advised me to give Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a trial. I got a bottle, and before I had it half gone I found relief.
I used two bottles, and have never been bothered since. I would not be without it in the house."
Price, 25c; family size, 50c. Manufactured only by The T. M. Milburn Co.,
